Fiscal year 1987: $1,093,350,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $1,166,450,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $1,215,850,000,000.

(3) The appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $995,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $1,045,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $1,079,000,000,000.

(4) The amounts of the deficits are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $142,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $115,650,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $77,900,000,000.

(b) The following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1986, October 1, 1987, and October 1, 1988:

(1) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $638,850,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $687,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $738,250,000,000.
and the amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be increased are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $5,950,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $6,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $7,350,000,000.
and the amounts for Federal Insurance Contributions Act revenues for hospital insurance within the recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $55,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $60,150,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $64,250,000,000.

(2) The appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $879,800,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $924,350,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $952,800,000,000.

(3) The appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $799,150,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $739,850,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $862,500,000,000.

(4) The amounts of the deficits in the budget which are appropriate in the light of economic conditions and all other relevant factors are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $160,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $152,100,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $124,250,000,000.

(5) The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $2,322,800,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $2,530,650,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $2,713,300,000,000.

(6) The appropriate levels of total Federal credit activity for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1986, October 1, 1987, and October 1, 1988, are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New direct loan obligations, $34,550,000,000.
(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $100,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New direct loan obligations, $32,300,000,000.
(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $91,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New direct loan obligations, $30,050,000,000.
(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $93,500,000,000.

(c) The Congress hereby determines and declares the appropriate levels of budget authority and budget outlays, and the appropriate levels of new direct loan obligations, and new primary loan guarantee commitments for fiscal years 1987 through 1989 for each major functional category are:

(1) National Defense (050):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $292,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $279,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $304,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $285,400,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:

(A) New budget authority, $316,700,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $297,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(2) International Affairs (150):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $17,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $14,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,350,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $17,700,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $13,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,400,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $16,600,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $13,200,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,700,000,000.
(3) General Science, Space, and Technology (250):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $9,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $8,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $9,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $9,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $9,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $9,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(4) Energy (270):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $4,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $3,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $2,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $5,350,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $4,750,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(5) Natural Resources and Environment (300):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $12,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,600,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $12,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $12,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,650,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(6) Agriculture (350):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $23,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $23,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $14,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $26,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $24,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $12,100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,500,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $25,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $21,600,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $11,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,500,000,000.
(7) Commerce and Housing Credit (370):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $10,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,450,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $53,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $10,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,350,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $43,250,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $8,200,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,600,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $44,150,000,000.
(8) Transportation (400):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $25,350,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $25,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $26,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $400,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $26,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $200,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
(9) Community and Regional Development (450):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $6,200,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,050,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,550,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,600,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,700,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
(10) Education, Training, Employment, and Social Services (500):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $33,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $30,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $10,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $30,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $31,450,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,400,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $10,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $30,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $30,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,000,000,000.
(11) Health (550):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $38,600,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $38,300,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $40,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $40,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $42,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $42,400,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
(12) Medicare (570):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $83,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $73,250,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $91,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $21,450,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $101,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $90,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(13) Income Security (600):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $163,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $121,750,000,000.

(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,800,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $175,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $128,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,800,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $179,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $132,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $700,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(14) Social Security (650):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $5,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $5,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(15) Veterans Benefits and Services (700):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $27,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,550,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $16,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $27,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $16,950,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $27,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $17,550,000,000.
(16) Administration of Justice (750):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $7,200,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $7,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $7,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(17) General Government (800):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $5,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $5,450,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(18) General Purpose Fiscal Assistance (850):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $1,950,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,750,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $1,950,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $1,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $2,050,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(19) Net Interest (900):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $148,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $148,300,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $158,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $158,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $160,050,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $160,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(20) Allowances (920):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $50,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $3,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $4,750,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $3,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(21) Undistributed Offsetting Receipts (950):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, −$30,700,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$36,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, −$40,350,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$40,350,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, −$42,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$42,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.

RECONCILIATION

SEC. 2. (a) Not later than July 25, 1986, the committees named in subsections (b) through (t) of this section shall submit their recommendations to the Committees on the Budget of their respective Houses. After receiving those recommendations, the Committees on the Budget shall report to the House and Senate a reconciliation bill or resolution or both carrying out all such recommendations without any substantive revision.

HOUSE COMMITTEES

(b) The House Committee on Agriculture shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $55,000,000 and outlays by $555,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $49,000,000 and outlays by $549,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $43,000,000 and outlays by $543,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(c) The House Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: increase budget authority by $642,000,000 and decrease outlays by $1,658,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease outlays by $523,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase budget authority by $164,000,000 and decrease outlays by $546,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(d) The House Committee on Education and Labor shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $25,000,000 and outlays by $604,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $150,000,000 and outlays by $449,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $250,000,000 and outlays by $141,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(e) The House Committee on Energy and Commerce shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $1,125,000,000 and outlays by $1,867,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $500,000,000 and outlays by $1,721,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $500,000,000 and outlays by $2,012,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(f) The House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(g) The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(h) The House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and decrease outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and decrease outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and decrease outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(i) The House Committee on Public Works and Transportation shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $1,783,000,000 and decrease outlays by $191,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $2,243,000,000 and outlays by $1,023,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $2,723,000,000 and decrease outlays by $1,574,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(j) The House Committee on Small Business shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $438,000,000 and outlays by $343,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $399,000,000 and outlays by $55,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $223,000,000 and outlays by $14,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(k) The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report changes in law within the jurisdiction of that committee sufficient to reduce the budget deficit by $4,350,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; to reduce the budget deficit by $4,095,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and to reduce the budget deficit by $4,190,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

SENATE COMMITTEES

(l) The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $55,000,000 and outlays by $555,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $49,000,000 and outlays by $549,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $43,000,000 and outlays by $543,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(m) The Senate Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: increase budget authority by $642,000,000 and decrease outlays by $1,658,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease outlays by $523,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase budget authority by $164,000,000 and decrease outlays by $546,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(n) The Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(o) The Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $1,025,000,000 and outlays by $1,217,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $400,000,000 and outlays by $421,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $400,000,000 and outlays by $412,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(p) The Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $1,883,000,000 and outlays by $291,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $2,343,000,000 and outlays by $1,123,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $2,823,000,000 and outlays by $1,674,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(q)(1) The Senate Committee on Finance shall report (A) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays, (B) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays, or (C) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease outlays by $850,000,000 in fiscal year 1987, decrease outlays by $1,495,000,000 in fiscal year 1988, and decrease outlays by $1,790,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(2) The Senate Committee on Finance shall report changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to increase revenues as follows: $3,500,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; $2,600,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and $2,400,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(r) The Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and decrease outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and decrease outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and decrease outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(s) The Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $25,000,000 and outlays by $604,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $150,000,000 and outlays by $449,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $250,000,000 and outlays by $141,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(t) The Senate Committee on Small Business shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $438,000,000 and outlays by $343,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $399,000,000 and outlays by $55,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $223,000,000 and outlays by $14,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

CONTINGENCY FUND FOR DEFICIT REDUCTION AND UNMET CRITICAL NEEDS

SEC. 3. (a)(1) Budget authority and outlays for unmet critical needs of amounts not to exceed the amounts specified in subsection (c) for fiscal year 1987 shall be allocated to the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate, and the aggregates for fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989 in section 1 of this resolution shall be adjusted accordingly, when—

(A) legislation has been enacted which would ensure that any legislation providing for such additional funding would not increase the deficits for fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989 set forth in section 1 of this resolution;

(B) the President submits a request pursuant to paragraph (2); and

(C) the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives or the Senate have reported legislation as requested by the President that will, if enacted, make funds available for such unmet critical needs.

(2) If the President determines that additional funding is necessary for unmet critical needs, the President shall submit to the Congress a message or messages—

(A) requesting specific amounts of additional funding to meet such needs; and

(B)(i) requesting the enactment of legislation to ensure that the deficits set forth in section 1 of this resolution are not increased as a result of any additional funding provided to carry out such request; or

(ii) identifying legislation enacted before the date of such submission which would result in such additional funding not increasing the deficits set forth in section 1 of this resolution.

(b) The Committees on the Budget of the House of Representatives and the Senate are authorized and directed to report to their respective Houses revised allocations pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, consistent with legislation reported pursuant to subsection (a)(1)(C), and revised budget aggregates to carry out this section. Upon the reporting of such revised allocations, the appropriate committees of such Houses shall report revised allocations pursuant to section 302(b) of such Act to carry out this section. Such revised allocations and budget aggregates shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c)(1) The amounts of budget authority and outlays available for allocation under subsection (a)(1) for funding unmet critical needs shall not exceed amounts as follows:

Fiscal Year 1987:

(A) New budget authority, $9,950,000,000;

(B) Outlays, $4,800,000,000;

of which not to exceed $6,850,000,000 in budget authority and $3,000,000,000 in outlays shall be available for additional defense spending.

Fiscal Year 1988:

(A) New budget authority, $15,450,000,000;

(B) Outlays, $11,450,000,000;

of which not to exceed $8,100,000,000 in budget authority and $6,400,000,000 in outlays shall be available for additional defense spending.

Fiscal Year 1989:

(A) New budget authority, $12,850,000,000;

(B) Outlays, $10,800,000,000;

of which not to exceed $10,500,000,000 in budget authority and $7,250,000,000 in outlays shall be available for additional defense spending.

(2) Amounts described in paragraph (1) may be used to provide funding for additional defense spending and additional nondefense funding in excess of functional levels set forth in section 1 of this resolution.

(d) Nothing in this section shall preclude the President requesting or Congress initiating legislation—

(1) to reduce the deficits for the fiscal years specified in subsection (a)(1) to levels below those set forth in section 1 of this resolution; or

(2) to ensure that such levels are not exceeded by reason of changing economic conditions or estimates.

Upon enactment of deficit reduction legislation of the type described in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the aggregates in section 1 of this resolution shall be adjusted accordingly.

GENERAL REVENUE SHARING EXTENSION

SEC. 4. Budget authority and outlays for funding an extension of general revenue sharing under the State and Local Assistance Act of 1972 through the end of fiscal year 1989 would be allocated to the appropriate committees of the House and Senate and the aggregates in section 1 of this resolution would be adjusted accordingly if—

(1) legislation ensuring that the funding would not increase the deficits set forth in section 1 of this resolution has been enacted into law;

(2) an authorization for such funding has been enacted into law; and

(3) such committee has reported legislation to provide such funding.

(b) The Committees on the Budget of the House of Representatives and the Senate are authorized and directed to report to their respective Houses revised allocations pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 and revised budget aggregates to carry out this section. Upon the reporting of such revised allocations, the appropriate committees of such Houses shall report revised allocations pursuant to section 302(b) of such Act to carry out this section. Such revised allocations and budget aggregates shall be considered for purposes of such Act as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c) This section shall not apply to the extent that additional funding for general revenue sharing is provided for within the section 302(a) allocations of budget authority and outlays to the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate made in the joint explanatory statement accompanying this resolution.

REPORT ON DOD INFLATION FUNDING

SEC. 5. (a) It is the sense of the Congress that the Secretary of Defense should transmit a report to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate setting forth a full and complete accounting of all moneys appropriated to the Department of Defense for fiscal year 1986 in excess of sums needed to cover inflation. Such report shall be referred to the Committee on Appropriations and Committee on Armed Services of each House. The Committee on the Budget of each House shall be notified upon the transmittal of such report.

(b) It is further the sense of the Congress that the report described in subsection (a) shall also be submitted to the General Accounting Office which shall report to the Congress within a period of 14 days on its findings as to that report, and that upon receipt of the General Accounting Office report the Committees on Armed Services of the House and Senate shall take appropriate action to ensure that only the appropriate levels of funding for inflation are provided.

(c) It is further the sense of the Congress that for fiscal years 1988 and 1989, the Secretary of Defense shall, within 90 days of the close of each such fiscal year, issue to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate, a report accounting for any moneys appropriated for each respective prior fiscal year to cover inflation, which have not been obligated for such purposes.

GNP DEFLATOR

SEC. 6. It is the sense of the Congress that the Committees on Armed Services of the House and Senate should consider legislation prohibiting the Department of Defense from using an arbitrary deflator (one not based on historical or factual data) for major weapons systems which would provide funding for major weapons systems inflation in excess of the GNP deflator.

FEDERAL CREDIT PROGRAM REFORM

SEC. 7. (a) The Congress finds that:

(1) The Federal Government is a major lender and allocator of capital through direct loan and loan guarantee programs.

(2) The creation of the Federal Financing Bank was a major step in streamlining and reducing the cost of these programs.

(3) Despite the improvements in funding brought about by the Federal Financing Bank, however, serious shortcomings remain in the allocation and management of Federal credit programs.

(4) Current allocation decisions for a loan and loan guarantee programs do not adequately reflect economic costs and, because cost calculations are not uniform across programs, they do not allow accurate comparisons among programs.

(5) Current Federal credit program controls provide little incentive for sound credit management practices or timely debt collection.

(b) It is therefore the sense of the Congress that the appropriate committees of the Congress should review proposals to change the Federal credit budget, including use of mechanisms which would—

(1) provide uniform budget treatment of Federal credit programs based on their subsidy cost;

(2) permit accurate comparison of credit and spending programs based on their true economic cost;

(3) promote effective management of Federal credit programs, providing accurate and comprehensive data on Federal credit activity and encouraging timely debt collection; and

(4) undertake accounting and management reforms for Federal credit programs as appropriate.

OIL AND GAS EMPLOYEES

SEC. 8. Since in the last six months the Government of Saudi Arabia has more than doubled its export of petroleum and petroleum products; and

Since these increased export volumes have resulted in a surplus of petroleum and petroleum products within the world marketplace; and

Since this surplus has directly resulted in a dramatic reduction of the weighted average price of international crude from $27.10 on January 7, 1986, to $13.08 on April 15, 1986; and

Since the United States has increased its importation of petroleum and petroleum products by 26 percent over the comparable period last year;

Since this dramatic reduction in price and the increased level of imports has resulted in a corresponding reduction in domestic petroleum exploration activities, including a reduction in the number of active rotary drilling rigs in the United States from 4,797 in 1981, to 865 as of April 21, 1986; and

Since the increase in petroleum imports and the reduction in domestic exploration efforts have resulted in a loss of jobs for individuals who are employed by the oil and gas industry and oil and gas service industry; and

Since American firms and employees that are injured by increased imports are eligible for temporary assistance under the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act; and

Since the Administration is narrowly interpreting the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act so as to exclude employees of the oil and gas industry and oil and gas service industry from receiving the benefits of this Act.

It is therefore the sense of the Congress that—employees of the United States oil and gas industry and oil and gas service industry have been directly injured by a dramatic increase in imported petroleum and petroleum products and by the resulting decline in domestic oil exploration efforts; and the Administration should immediately broaden its interpretation of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act so as to allow employees of the United States oil and gas industry and oil and gas service industry to qualify for certification under the Act; and if the Administration does not act immediately to resolve this matter, the Congress will address this issue on the first appropriate vehicle to be considered by the Congress.

STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE

SEC. 9. It is the sense of the Congress that the policy to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to an ultimate capacity of 750 million barrels be reaffirmed. It is also recommended that the Federal Government purchase oil for the Reserve in a way designed to help domestic stripper oil well producers so as to minimize the shutting-in of stripper production.

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE

SEC. 10. It is the sense of the Congress that Federal funds for the Cooperative Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture should be maintained at a level sufficient to carry out fully the vital services it is providing to rural America during a time of extreme stress. It is further assumed that this funding will be used especially to support and strengthen such core programs as 4-H Youth Development, Home Economics and Family Living, Natural Resources and Community Development, and services that provide agricultural financial analysis and farm management instruction.

FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL INVESTMENT REFORM

SEC. 11. It is the sense of the Congress that the use of foreign aid funds for financing the foreign production for export use of agricultural commodities already in surplus on world markets is a counter-productive use of American tax dollars as well as devastating to the American farmer who loses export markets from the unfairly subsidized competition.

SOCIAL SECURITY COLAS

SEC. 12. It is the sense of the Congress that legislation should be enacted to provide that social security cost-of-living adjustments, and COLAs in other programs linked to those adjustments, will be paid at the actual rate of inflation, whether it is above or below 3 percent.

SECTION 302(a) ALLOCATIONS

SEC. 13. The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives may file, not later than July 9, 1986, a report in the House containing the allocations required to be made pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974. The report shall be printed as, and considered to be, a report of the Committee on the Budget and such allocations made in that report shall be considered to be the allocations required to be in the joint explanatory statement accompanying this resolution.

EXPLANATION OF CONFERENCE SUBSTITUTE

The following tables show the functional allocations and budget aggregates included in the conference substitute. The fiscal year 1987 columns show the budget aggregates and functional allocations for the budget resolution for fiscal year 1987. The columns for fiscal year 1988 and fiscal year 1989 show budget aggregates and functional allocations which the conferees consider appropriate for those years.

Conference agreement

Fiscal year 1987:
Budget authority	$1,093.35
Outlays	995.00
Revenues	852.40
Deficit	142.60
Debt subject to limit	2,322.80
Fiscal year 1988:
Budget authority	1,166.45
Outlays	1,045.40
Revenues	929.75
Deficit	115.65
Debt subject to limit	2,530.65
Fiscal year 1989:
Budget authority	1,215.85
Outlays	1,079.00
Revenues	1,001.10
Deficit	77.90
Debt subject to limit	2,713.30

Conference agreement on-budget only

Fiscal year 1987:
Budget authority	$879.80
Outlays	799.15
Revenues	638.85
Deficit	160.30
Debt subject to limit	2,322.80
Fiscal year 1988:
Budget authority	924.35
Outlays	839.85
Revenues	687.75
Deficit	152.10
Debt subject to limit	2,530.65
Fiscal year 1989:
Budget authority	952.80
Outlays	862.50
Revenues	738.25
Deficit	124.25
Debt subject to limit	2,713.30

FUNCTIONAL ANALYSIS

[In billions of dollars]

	House passed May 8, 1986			Senate passed May 2, 1986			Conference agreement
	1987	1988	1989	1987	1988	1989	1987	1988	1989
Budget authority	1,086.35	1,159.65	1,205.35	1,101.260	1,170.011	1,220.868	1,093.35	1,166.45	1,215.85
Outlays	994.25	1,047.05	1,076.15	1,001.212	1,051.223	1,083.993	995.00	1,045.40	1,079.00
Revenues	857.20	941.20	1,011.90	857.212	941.164	1,011.918	852.40	929.75	1,001.10
Deficit	137.05	105.85	64.25	144.000	110.059	72.075	142.60	115.65	77.90
Function
050 National Defense:
Budget authority	285.00	295.50	306.50	300.953	312.154	327.153	292.15	304.10	316.70
Outlays	276.20	281.40	290.50	281.962	291.753	305.135	279.15	285.40	297.95

FUNCTIONAL ANALYSIS—Continued

[In billions of dollars]

	House passed May 8, 1986			Senate passed May 2, 1986			Conference agreement
	1987	1988	1989	1987	1988	1989	1987	1988	1989
150 International Affairs:
Budget authority	17.00	17.30	15.90	17.856	18.047	17.297	17.45	17.70	16.60
Outlays	13.80	13.55	12.85	14.205	14.134	13.557	14.00	13.85	13.20
250 General Science, Space and Technology:
Budget authority	8.80	8.75	8.80	9.280	9.385	10.048	9.10	9.15	9.40
Outlays	8.75	8.75	8.65	9.097	9.168	9.502	8.90	9.10	9.15
270 Energy:
Budget authority	4.90	4.65	4.80	4.666	5.971	5.771	4.85	2.90	5.35
Outlays	4.85	4.15	3.75	4.612	5.647	5.153	3.50	2.85	4.75
300 Natural Resources and Environment:
Budget authority	11.95	12.00	11.80	12.500	12.599	12.399	12.40	12.50	12.30
Outlays	12.25	12.15	12.20	12.600	12.599	12.699	12.60	12.55	12.65
350 Agriculture:
Budget authority	23.80	26.00	25.30	23.800	26.100	25.300	23.80	26.10	25.30
Outlays	23.55	24.80	21.55	23.500	24.900	21.600	23.50	24.90	21.60
370 Commerce and Housing Credit:
Budget authority	9.80	9.35	7.55	10.004	10.503	7.508	10.30	10.80	8.20
Outlays	2.20	5.10	1.30	3.547	6.293	1.394	2.05	6.55	2.00
400 Transportation:
Budget authority	24.60	26.35	26.30	26.795	26.493	26.592	25.35	26.80	26.90
Outlays	25.50	26.45	26.35	27.795	26.693	26.792	25.85	26.95	26.90
450 Community and Regional Development:
Budget authority	6.30	6.45	6.50	6.891	7.191	7.090	6.20	6.55	6.60
Outlays	7.00	7.05	6.60	7.196	6.992	6.792	7.00	7.10	6.70
500 Education, Training, Employment and Social Services:
Budget authority	33.75	32.85	33.80	33.229	30.278	30.177	33.45	30.30	30.40
Outlays	30.60	32.30	33.10	30.558	31.247	30.645	30.55	31.45	30.90
550 Health:
Budget authority	38.65	40.50	42.70	38.598	40.523	42.523	38.60	40.50	42.50
Outlays	38.35	40.70	42.80	38.324	40.556	42.379	38.30	40.55	42.40
570 Medicare:
Budget authority	83.00	91.40	101.45	82.900	90.900	100.800	83.00	91.40	101.45
Outlays	73.40	81.85	91.35	72.800	80.500	88.800	73.25	81.45	90.90
600 Income Security:
Budget authority	165.25	172.90	176.50	161.350	169.263	173.100	163.50	175.10	179.50
Outlays	121.40	127.20	130.60	121.450	127.733	132.417	121.75	128.00	132.95
650 Social Security:
Budget authority	226.65	257.00	281.40	228.370	260.468	286.487	227.05	259.80	285.10
Outlays	209.35	223.25	238.55	209.388	223.197	238.568	209.35	223.25	238.55
700 Veterans Benefits and Services:
Budget authority	27.05	27.45	27.30	27.042	27.307	27.403	27.00	27.30	27.30
Outlays	26.70	27.05	26.90	26.458	26.907	27.103	26.55	26.90	26.90
750 Administration of Justice:
Budget authority	7.20	7.15	7.25	7.199	7.099	6.999	7.20	7.10	7.00
Outlays	7.15	7.25	7.35	7.167	7.099	7.099	7.15	7.10	7.10
800 General Government:
Budget authority	5.75	6.15	6.15	5.469	5.937	6.071	5.50	6.00	6.10
Outlays	5.65	6.05	6.20	5.387	5.937	6.071	5.45	6.00	6.10
850 General Purpose Fiscal Assistance:
Budget authority	1.85	1.90	2.00	2.000	2.000	2.100	1.95	1.95	2.05
Outlays	2.65	1.90	2.00	2.800	2.000	2.100	2.75	1.95	2.05
900 Net Interest:
Budget authority	143.50	151.50	148.95	143.936	151.953	149.763	143.65	152.30	150.65
Outlays	143.50	151.50	148.95	143.936	151.953	149.763	143.65	152.30	150.65
920 Allowances:
Budget authority	0.55	1.60	2.65	0.517	1.936	2.087	0.90	3.45	4.75
Outlays	0.60	1.70	2.85	0.525	2.011	2.234	−0.05	2.55	3.90
950 Undistributed Offsetting Receipts:
Budget authority	−39.00	−37.10	−38.25	−42.095	−46.096	−45.810	−40.05	−45.35	−48.30
Outlays	−39.20	−37.10	−38.25	−42.095	−46.096	−45.810	−40.25	−45.35	−48.30

CREDIT BUDGET—FUNCTIONAL ANALYSIS

[In billions of dollars]

	House passed			Senate passed			Conference agreement
	1987	1988	1989	1987	1988	1989	1987	1988	1989
New direct loans	34.25	32.25	30.60	34.70	32.30	30.20	34.55	32.30	30.05
Primary loan guarantees	85.40	87.30	87.65	100.90	92.20	94.30	100.75	91.75	93.50
Function
150 International Affairs:
Direct loans	7.15	7.10	7.10	7.40	7.50	7.70	7.35	7.40	7.50
Loan guarantees	11.40	11.40	11.40	11.70	11.70	11.70	11.75	11.70	11.70
270 Energy:
Direct loans	1.95	1.95	1.95	2.00	2.00	2.00	1.95	1.95	1.95
Loan guarantees
300 Natural Resources and Environment:
Direct loans	.10	.10	.05	.10	.10	.10	.05	.05	.05
Loan guarantees
350 Agriculture:
Direct loans	14.30	12.10	11.35	14.30	12.10	11.30	14.30	12.10	11.30
Loan guarantees	8.00	8.50	8.65	8.00	8.50	8.50	8.00	8.50	8.50
370 Commerce and Housing Credit:
Direct loans	4.45	4.60	4.85	4.50	4.30	4.50	4.45	4.35	4.60
Loan guarantees	38.75	39.10	38.45	53.90	43.70	44.80	53.75	43.25	44.15
400 Transportation:
Direct loans	.50	.40	.20	.50	.40	.20	.50	.40	.20
Loan guarantees	.05	.05	.05	.10	.10	.10	.05	.05	.05
450 Community and Regional Development:
Direct loans	.95	1.20	1.05	1.10	1.30	1.10	1.05	1.30	1.10
Loan guarantees	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30
500 Education, Training, Employment and Social Services:
Direct loans	1.50	1.40	1.25	1.50	1.40	1.30	1.50	1.40	1.30
Loan guarantees	10.30	10.70	10.95	10.30	10.70	11.00	10.30	10.70	10.95
550 Health:
Direct loans			.05				.05	.05	.05

CREDIT BUDGET—FUNCTIONAL ANALYSIS—Continued

[In billions of dollars]

		House passed			Senate passed			Conference agreement
		1987	1988	1989	1987	1988	1989	1987	1988	1989
	Loan guarantees	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30	.30
600	Income Security:
	Direct loans	1.80	1.90	1.45	1.80	1.80	.70	1.80	1.80	.70
	Loan guarantees
700	Veterans Benefits and Services:
	Direct loans	1.55	1.50	1.30	1.50	1.40	1.30	1.55	1.50	1.30
	Loan guarantees	16.30	16.95	17.55	16.30	16.90	17.60	16.30	16.95	17.55

ECONOMIC ASSUMPTIONS

The conferees accepted the economic assumptions shown in the table below as the basis for the revenue, spending, and credit estimates in the conference substitute. These economic assumptions were prepared by CBO for the February baseline budget projections. Both the House- and Senate-passed budget resolutions were based on these economic assumptions.

[Calendar years, billions of dollars]

	Actual 1985	Projected
		1986	1987	1988	1989
Annual averages:
Gross national product	$3,988	$4,269	$4,583	$4,930	$5,313
Percent change	5.7	7.0	7.3	7.6	7.8
Real GNP (1982 dollars)	$3,570	$3,689	$3,805	$3,931	$4,068
Percent change	2.2	3.3	3.1	3.3	3.5
GNP deflator (percent change)	3.3	3.6	4.1	4.1	4.1
CPI–W (percent change)	3.5	(1)	4.2	4.4	4.4
Civilian unemployment rate (percent)	7.2	6.7	6.7	6.5	6.3
3-month Treasury bill rate (percent)	7.5	6.8	6.7	6.4	6.1
Taxable incomes:
Wages and salaries	$1,960	$2,094	$2,250	$2,414	$2,595
Corporate profits (economic)	$295	$344	$372	$403	$434
Memo: GNP, current dollars, fiscal year	$3,937	$4,192	$4,504	$4,838	$5,214

[1] The January 1987 cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security and other benefit programs will be based on the percent change in the CPI–W between the third calendar quarter of 1985 and the third calendar quarter of 1986. In the CBO baseline this was estimated to be 3.4 percent. The Senate and House resolutions and the conference substitue all assume, based on more recent data, that the rate of change will be 2.0 percent, that legislation will be enacted to repeal the 3-percent threshold for Social Security and some other COLA's, and that the full COLA at the actual inflation rate will be paid in all programs.

REVENUES

The House resolution recommended total revenues of $857.2 billion in fiscal year 1987, $951.2 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $1,011.9 billion in fiscal year 1989. It provided that revenues be increased by $10.7 billion in fiscal year 1987, $17.4 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $17.7 billion in fiscal year 1989. Of the amounts of additional revenues, Section 3 of the House Resolution specified that the following amounts should be used solely for the purposes of deficit reduction: $4.7 billion in fiscal year 1987, $11.2 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $10.5 billion in fiscal year 1989.

The Senate resolution recommended total revenues of $857.2 billion in fiscal year 1987, $941.2 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $1,011.9 billion in fiscal year 1989. It provided that revenues be increased, from a baseline excluding the revenue increases in the Consolidated Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1985, by $13.2 billion in fiscal year 1987, $20.2 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $20.6 billion in 1989.

The conference agreement sets a revenue floor of $852.40 billion in fiscal year 1987, $929.75 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $1,001.10 billion in fiscal year 1989. It provides that revenues be increased by $5.95 billion in fiscal year 1987, $6.30 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $7.35 billion in fiscal year 1989.

FUNCTION 270: ENERGY

The conferees assume the sale of the Naval Petroleum Reserves and that it will be completed by the close of fiscal year 1988. Although this budget resolution does not include the proposed sale in the reconciliation instructions, the conferees believe the relevant committees should study the means and the costs and benefits of achieving such a sale.

The House conferees believe that if the Naval Petroleum Reserves were to be sold, any such sale should provide that their reserve status—imposed by Presidential Proclamation and Chapter 641 of title 10, United States Code—should be terminated if still in effect, and that the preexisting school land entitlements of the States affected, which were suspended by such reserve status, should be recognized. The House conferees believe that if these lands are no longer reserved for a national purpose, their ownership must revert to the original titleholder as a matter of equity.

FUNCTION 300: NATURAL RESOURCES AND ENVIRONMENT

The House-passed budget resolution assumed a twenty percent reduction in the funding for the Bureau of Reclamation. The conference agreement assumes that 1987 funding for the Bureau will be at the 1986 level as assumed in the Senate-passed resolution.

The reduction assumed in the House resolution was prompted by the repeated failure of the Bureau to respond in a timely or effective manner to serious concerns of Members of the House, particularly those from various areas of California. The House conferees emphasize that the House will review Bureau funding in detail in the 1988 budget resolution and the House will recommend an equivalent reduction in that budget if the Bureau continues to be unresponsive to the Congress on serious issues including project development, toxic contamination, and full and effective enforcement of the reclamation laws.

FUNCTION 450: COMMUNITY AND REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT

The conferees take note of the fact that some employees hired by Government-owned corporations receive salaries far in excess of the maximum allowable annual rate of basic pay for Federal employees under the General Schedule. In light of this, the conferees urge the appropriate committees of the House and Senate to initiate a comprehensive review of pay practices in the case of individuals in similar positions and report legislation which would correct this inequity.

FUNCTION 570: MEDICARE

The House conferees encourage appropriate House committees of jurisdiction to examine the prospect of providing payments under Medicare for vision care services performed by optometrists. Such services would include only those that optometrists already are licensed by their respective States to provide and that are already covered by Medicare when provided by physicians.

FUNCTION 600: INCOME SECURITY

Child Nutrition and WIC

The conference substitute assumes enactment of the conference report on H.R. 7, the School Lunch and Child Nutrition Amendments of 1986, which adds $0.05 billion in budget authority and outlays to the current policy baseline funding $4.2 billion for child nutrition programs in 1987. In addition, the conference substitute assumes an addition of $75 million in budget authority and $68 million in outlays above inflation in 1987 for the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women Infants, and Children (WIC).

FUNCTION 650: SOCIAL SECURITY

The conference substitute assumes that the fiscal years 1987 to 1989 program level for the limitation on administrative expenses account is set at the fiscal year 1986 level. It further assumes that any savings in administrative expenses for the Social Security Administration will not involve any reductions in staffing or office closings. It is the conferees' position that drastic staff reductions or office closings should not go forward without consultation with Congress.

FUNCTION 800: GENERAL GOVERNMENT

It is expected that there will be sufficient funds to pay for current level expenditures for furniture items produced by sheltered workshops for the blind and other severely handicapped under the auspices of the Javits-Wagner-O'Day Act, P.L. 92-28.

FUNCTION 950: UNDISTRIBUTED OFFSETTING RECEIPTS

Oil Overcharge Funds

The conferees assume that the Congress will enact legislation to recover $2.45 billion in additional oil overcharge funds over the next three years, of which $1.25 billion will be recovered in fiscal year 1987. The conferees also assume full funding for the LIHEAP and DOE weatherization programs over the next three years. The House conferees will further elaborate on their assumptions below.

The House conferees assume that legislation will be enacted providing for the United States to receive, beginning on October 1, 1986, all amounts recovered and to be recovered from oil overcharge cases (which amounts have been determined not to be Federal funds), less the amounts required, as provided in such legislation, to provide overcharged persons with compensation as direct restitution in appropriate administrative and judicial proceedings.

The House conferees assume that oil overcharge funds presently collected and held in escrow, or otherwise, and undistributed pursuant to any administrative and judicial action, as well as future funds, will be available for distribution pursuant to such legislation. The House conferees assume that enactment of this policy will recover $1.25 billion in additional oil overcharge funds in fiscal year 1987, and $2.45 billion over the three-year period. If, however, actions beyond the control of the Congress or the administration should make part of these savings unachievable, the committees of jurisdiction would be held harmless for the savings that could not be achieved, if any.

The House conferees also assume that the legislation will provide that part of the oil overcharge funds recovered ($0.25 billion a year for three years) will be used annually, in addition to the funding assumed below, to make indirect restitution to consumers through the four DOE State Energy Conservation Grant programs referred to in the Warner amendment of 1982.

To ensure that such indirect restitution supplements and does not replace existing funding, and that low-income citizens continue to receive this assistance even though the States will not directly receive further oil and overcharge funds, the House conferees also assume, in Functions 270 and 600, the enactment of a three-year advance appropriation for the DOE low-income weatherization program and the HHS low-income home energy assistance program at the full funding levels assumed in those functions.

The Senate conferees do not accept the House assumptions for this function.

The Senate conferees assume that the Congress will enact legislation to recover $2.45 billion in additional oil overcharge funds over the next three years, of which $1.25 billion will be recovered in fiscal year 1987. It is the intent of the Senate that the low income weatherization, Energy Extension Service, Energy Policy Conservation Act grants, and Schools and Hospitals grant programs are funded at their current rate of $250 million for fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989, regardless of the disposition of lawsuits or reconciliation legislation regarding the recoupment of oil overcharge funds. If the courts approve the Department of Energy Stripper Well Exemption Litigation (M.D.L. No. 378), the Senate conferees believe Congress can recover additional funds from future overcharge cases.

Loan Asset Sales

The conference agreement on the budget assumes proposals to sell loan assets from a number of programs. If enacted, the loan sales assumed in the resolution would reduce fiscal year 1987 outlays by $3.1 billion.

Having assumed these sales, the conferees believe that it is essential to make sure that they can actually occur. The conferees hope that the appropriate committees of the Congress will consider legislation that establishes specific guidelines for the sale of these assets. Such legislation should address the process and terms of asset sales, including whether there should be any form of Federal guarantee and what kind of protections should be provided to borrowers.

The conferees believe that specific legislative guidelines for loan asset sales should be established to insure that the sales occur successfully and expeditiously without adverse consequences.

Reconciliation Instructions

The Senate resolution contained instructions to 11 Senate committees and 12 House committees to recommend changes in laws within their jurisdiction sufficient to achieve deficit reduction in fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989, necessary to effectuate the provisions and requirements of the resolution. The House amendment contained instructions of this nature directed to 11 House committees and 9 Senate committees. The conference substitute includes reconciliation instructions directed to 9 Senate committees and 10 House committees.

The Senate resolution required that instructed committees respond by May 30, 1986. The House amendment required instructed committees to report by June 5, 1986. The conference substitute provides that committees must respond by July 25, 1986.

The Senate resolution contained language expressing the sense of the Senate that all reconciled House and Senate committees should include estimates in their reconciliation responses, based on both the budget resolution and current law baselines, of the level of budget authority and outlays available for each program affected by that response after the recommended changes are made. The language also expressed the sense of the Senate that reports of the House and Senate Budget Committees accompanying a reconciliation bill or resolution also include similar estimates. The language defined the current law baseline as the level of budget authority and outlays provided for a program for a fiscal year under the laws in effect on the date of adoption of the concurrent resolution.

The House amendment contained no such provision.

The Senate conferees receded to the House.

RECONCILIATION BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

[In millions of dollars]

House committees	Fiscal year—						3-year
	1987		1988		1989
	BA	O	BA	O	BA	O	BA	O
Agriculture Committee:
Rural development insurance fund
Loan asset sales	−55	−55	−49	−49	−43	−43	−147	−147
Loan asset sales	0	−500	0	−500	0	−500	0	−1,500
Total Agriculture	−55	−555	−49	−549	−43	−543	−147	−1,647
Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee:*
Rural housing loans	642	−1,158	0	−23	164	−46	806	−1,227
Loan asset sales	0	−500	0	−500	0	−500	0	−1,500
Total Banking	642	−1,658	0	−523	164	−546	806	−2,727
Education and Labor Committee:
Guaranteed student loans	−25	−25	−150	−135	−250	−235	−425	−395
Education loan asset sales	0	−579	0	−314	0	94	0	−799
Total Education and Labor	−25	−604	−150	−449	−250	−141	−425	−1,194
Energy and Commerce Committee:
User fees	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−300	−300
FERC user fees	−31	−31	−56	−56	−56	−56	−143	−143
Medicare provider payment reforms	0	−550	0	−1,200	0	−1,500	0	−3,250
Oil overcharge funds	−994	−1,186	−344	−365	−344	−356	−1,682	−1,907

RECONCILIATION BY HOUSE COMMITTEE—Continued

[In millions of dollars]

House committees	Fiscal year—						3-year
	1987		1988		1989		BA	O
	BA	O	BA	O	BA	O
Total Energy and Commerce	−1,125	−1,867	−500	−1,721	−500	−2,012	−2,125	−5,600
Interior and Insular Affairs Committee: User fees	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−300	−300
Total Interior	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−300	−300
Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee: Coast Guard user fees	−50	−50	−50	−50	−50	−50	−150	−150
Total Merchant Marines	−50	−50	−50	−50	−50	−50	−150	−150
Post Office and Civil Service Committee: Unspecified	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−300	−300
Total Post Office	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−300	−300
Public Works and Transportation Committee: Highways	−1,783	−191	−2,243	−1,023	−2,723	−1,574	−6,749	−2,788
Total Public Works	−1,783	−191	−2,243	−1,023	−2,723	−1,574	−6,749	−2,788
Small Business Committee: SBA disaster loan asset sales	−438	−343	−399	−55	−223	−14	−1,060	−412
Total Small Business	−438	−343	−399	−55	−223	−14	−1,060	−412
Ways and Means Committee total Ways and Means deficit reduction		−4,350		−4,095		−4,190		−12,635
Total, deficit reduction	−2,934	−9,168	−3,491	−7,365	−3,725	−7,670	−10,150	−24,203

RECONCILIATION BY SENATE COMMITTEE

[In millions of dollars]

Senate committee	Fiscal year—						3-year
	1987		1988		1989		BA	O
	BA	O	BA	O	BA	O
Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry Committee:
Rural development insurance fund loan asset sales	−55	−55	−49	−49	−43	−43	−147	−147
Loan asset sales	0	−500	0	−500	0	−500	0	−1,500
Total Agriculture	−55	−555	−49	−549	−43	−543	−147	−1,647
Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee:
Rural housing loans	642	−1,158	0	−23	164	−46	806	−1,227
Loan asset sales	0	−500	0	−500	0	−500	0	−1,500
Total Banking	642	−1,658	0	−523	164	−546	806	−2,727
Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee: Coast Guard user fees	−50	−50	−50	−50	−50	−50	−150	−150
Total Commerce	−50	−50	−50	−50	−50	−50	−150	−150
Energy and Natural Resources:
FERC user fees	−31	−31	−56	−56	−56	−56	−143	−143
Oil overcharge funds	−994	−1,186	−344	−365	−344	−356	−1,682	−1,907
Total Energy	−1,025	−1,217	−400	−421	−400	−412	−1,825	−2,050
Environment and Public Works Committee:
User fees	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−300	−300
Highways	−1,783	−191	−2,243	−1,023	−2,723	−1,574	−6,749	−2,788
Total Environment	−1,883	−291	−2,343	−1,123	−2,823	−1,674	−7,049	−3,088
Finance Committee:
Medicare provider payment reforms		−550		−1,200		−1,500		−3,250
Customs user fees		−300		−295		−290		−885
Total Finance (spending)		−850		−1,495		−1,790		−4,135
Revenues		3,500		−2,600		2,400		8,500
Governmental Affairs Committee: Unspecified	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−300	−300
Total Governmental	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−100	−300	−300
Labor and Human Resources Committee:
Guaranteed student loans	−25	−25	−150	−135	−250	−235	−425	−395
Education loan asset sales	0	−579	0	−314	0	94	0	−799
Total Labor and Human Resources	−25	−604	−150	−449	−250	−141	−425	−1,194
Small Business Committee: SBA disaster loan asset sales	−438	−343	−399	−55	−223	−14	−1,060	−412
Total Small Business	−438	−343	−399	−55	−223	−14	−1,060	−412
Total, spending	−2,934	−5,668	−3,491	−4,765	−3,725	−5,270	−10,150	−15,703
Total, revenues		3,500		2,600		2,400		8,500
Total, deficit reduction		−9,168		−7,365		−7,670		−24,203

Miscellaneous Provisions

Contingency Fund for Deficit Reduction and Unmet Critical Needs

The conferees recognize that the fiscal year 1987 maximum deficit target of $144 billion established by the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 requires that Congress, in its budget resolution, must prioritize the Nation's needs within the context of that mandate. However, there are certain needs of the country which cannot be accommodated within this conference substitute without the enactment of additional deficit reduction measures. These unmet critical needs may require an additional funding commitment for defense and nondefense programs. The conferees also recognize the potential need for reducing the deficit below the levels set forth in the resolution, or enacting additional measures to ensure that such levels are not exceeded by reason of changing economic conditions or estimates.

Therefore, to address these concerns, the conference substitute includes a contingency fund for deficit reduction and unmet critical needs. The provision:

Reserves from allocation budget authority and outlays for "unmet critical needs" in defense and nondefense areas in the following amounts:

Fiscal Year 1987:
Budget Authority, $9,950,000,000.
Outlays, $4,800,000,000.
Fiscal Year 1988:
Budget Authority, $15,450,000,000.
Outlays, $11,450,000,000.
Fiscal Year 1989:
Budget Authority, $12,850,000,000.
Outlays, $10,800,000,000.

Provides that, of the amounts reserved, not to exceed the following amounts, shall be available for additional defense spending:

Fiscal Year 1987:
Budget Authority, $6,850,000,000.
Outlays, $3,000,000,000.
Fiscal Year 1988:
Budget Authority, $8,100,000,000.
Outlays, $6,400,000,000.
Fiscal Year 1989:
Budget Authority, $10,500,000,000.
Outlays, $7,250,000,000.

Allows such allocation to be made to the appropriate committees if:

(1) legislation is enacted which would ensure that such additional funding would not increase the deficits set forth in the budget resolution;

(2) the President requests and identifies funding for unmet critical needs coupled with recommendations for legislation ensuring deficit neutrality, or cites previously-enacted legislation which would ensure such deficit neutrality; and

(3) the appropriate committees have reported legislation as requested by the President that will make funds available for such unmet critical needs.

Allows the President to request and Congress to initiate legislation to reduce deficits below the levels set forth in the budget resolution. If such legislation is enacted, aggregates are adjusted accordingly.

General Revenue Sharing

The Senate resolution contained a provision which would allow up to $1.8 billion in budget authority and outlays to fund an extension of general revenue sharing in fiscal year 1987, if such funding is previously authorized and costs are covered by revenues in excess of those reconciled.

The House amendment contained language providing that the spending levels in the resolution would not preclude funding for an extension of general revenue sharing through fiscal year 1989, if an authorization for the funding is enacted.

The conference substitute includes a procedure which would allow for additional funding, beyond the levels set forth in section 1 of the resolution, for general revenue sharing, if such funding would not increase the deficits set forth in the conference substitute. The conferees intend that the offset for general revenue sharing be separate and apart from the offset described in the provision for the contingency fund for deficit reduction and unmet critical needs in section 3 of this resolution.

Report on DOD Inflation Funding

The House amendment included a provision which reserved from allocation $3 billion in fiscal year 1987 budget authority for Function 050 (National Defense).

The language provided that allocation of such budget authority by the Committees on the Budget to the Committees on Appropriations of each House be predicated upon receipt of a report to both Houses by the Secretary of Defense and the General Accounting Office accounting for all monies appropriated to the Department of Defense in fiscal year 1986 in excess of the amount needed to cover inflation. The language also called for similar reports in fiscal years 1988 and 1989.

The Senate resolution contained no similar provision.

The Senate conferees receded to the House with an amendment deleting the reservation of budget authority and expressing the sense of the Congress that the Secretary of Defense and the General Accounting Office should transmit a report accounting for monies appropriated in excess of sums needed to cover inflation.

The Committees on Armed Services of the House of Representatives and the Senate are directed to take appropriate action to insure that only the appropriate levels of funding for inflation are provided.

GNP Deflator

The House amendment contained instructions to the House and Senate Armed Services Committees to report legislation prohibiting the Department of Defense from using an arbitrary deflator (one not based on historical or factual data) for major weapons systems which would provide funding for major weapons systems inflation in excess of the GNP deflator.

The Senate resolution contained no similar provision.

The Senate conferees receded to the House, with an amendment expressing the sense of the Congress that the appropriate committees should consider legislation which would prohibit use of such an arbitrary deflator for major weapons systems.

Federal Credit Program Reform

The Senate resolution contained a provision describing certain findings regarding the operation of Federal credit programs and the allocation and management of credit programs. The Senate resolution further included language expressing the sense of the Congress that the appropriate congressional committees should initiate credit reform legislation.

The House amendment contained no similar provision.

The House conferees receded to the Senate with an amendment calling upon committees to review proposals to change the Federal credit budget, including use of mechanisms which would provide uniform budget treatment of credit programs based on their subsidy cost.

Oil and Gas Industry Employees

The Senate resolution contained language regarding the adverse impact on oil industry workers of increased oil imports and decreased domestic oil exploration activity, and expressing the sense of the Senate that the administration should broaden its interpretation of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act so as to alleviate this adverse impact.

The House amendment contained no similar provision.

The House conferees receded to the Senate with an amendment making the language an expression of the sense of the Congress.

Strategic Petroleum Reserve Purchases

The House amendment contained language expressing the sense of the Congress reaffirming the policy to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to 750 million barrels. The language also recommended that oil should be purchased for the Reserve in a way designed to help domestic stripper oil well producers minimize the shutting in of stripper production.

The Senate resolution contained no similar provision.

The Senate conferees receded to the House.

Cooperative Extension Service

The House amendment contained language expressing the sense of the Congress that funding for the Department of Agriculture's Cooperative Extension Service should be maintained at a level sufficient to fully provide vital services to rural America during a time of extreme stress. The language further stated the assumption that funding will be used to support programs such as 4-H Youth Development, Home Economics and Family Living, Natural Resources and Community Development, and services providing agricultural financial analysis and management instruction.

The Senate resolution contained no similar provision.

The Senate conferees receded to the House.

Foreign Agricultural Investment Reform

The House amendment contained language expressing the sense of the Congress that United States financing for foreign production of agricultural commodities for export use is a counterproductive use of tax dollars and devastating to the American farmer who loses export markets from the unfairly subsidized competition.

The Senate resolution contained no similar provision.

The Senate conferees receded to the House.

Social Security Cost-of-Living Adjustments

The conference substitute contains language expressing the sense of the Congress that legislation should be enacted to provide that Social Security cost-of-living adjustments and COLA's in other programs linked to those adjustments will be paid at the actual rate of inflation, whether it is above or below three percent.

Section 302(a) Allocations

The conference substitute includes a provision which would allow the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House to file with the House, not later than July 9, 1986, allocations required to be made pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974. The allocations in that report will be considered the allocations required to be in the joint statement accompanying the resolution.

Deficit Reduction Account

The House amendment included a provision requiring that increases in revenue through legislation greater than certain amounts be deposited in a new separate account which the President is required to establish in the Treasury, to be used solely for the purpose of reducing the Federal deficit, and further requiring that these additional revenues be set forth separately in the budget resolution with the stipulation that they are solely for the purpose of deficit reduction.

The Senate resolution contained no similar provision.

The conference substitute includes a procedure which provides that legislation may be enacted to reduce the deficits for fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989 below those set forth in the resolution.

NASA Space Shuttle Program

The Senate resolution contained a provision which would allow funding for the NASA space shuttle program of $976 million in fiscal year 1987, $915 million in fiscal year 1988, and $752 million in fiscal year 1989, if such funding is previously authorized and revenues sufficient to cover costs are enacted into law in excess of those reconciled.

The House amendment contained a provision allowing that, notwithstanding the spending levels in the resolution, funding for a shuttle orbiter to replace NASA's Challenger would be appropriate if an authorization for such funding is enacted into law.

The conference substitute includes a procedure which would allow for additional funding, beyond the levels set forth in section 1 of the resolution, for unmet critical needs in defense and nondefense areas if such funding would not increase the deficits set forth in the conference substitute.

Strategic Petroleum Reserve Deferrals

The Senate resolution contained language expressing the sense of the Congress that Congress intends to disapprove two deferrals proposed by the President relating to the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

The House amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate conferees receded to the House.

Highway Account

The Senate resolution included language expressing the sense of the Senate that, over the next three fiscal years, the cash balance in the Highway Account of the Highway Trust Fund should be reduced toward a minimum level of reserves, in a manner consistent with sound financial practices.

The House amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate conferees receded to the House.

WILLIAM H. GRAY III,
JIM WRIGHT,
BUTLER DERRICK,
PAT WILLIAMS,
HOWARD WOLPE,
MARTY RUSSO,
ED JENKINS,
MARVIN LEATH,
CHARLES SCHUMER,
BARBARA BOXER,
BUDDY MACKAY,
JIM SLATTERY,
DELBERT LATTA,
LYNN MARTIN,
BOBBI FIEDLER,
BILL GRADISON,
CONNIE MACK,
BILL GOODLING,
Managers on the Part of the House.

PETE DOMENICI,
NANCY KASSEBAUM,
RUDY BOSCHWITZ,
DAN QUAYLE,
SLADE GORTON,
LAWTON CHILES,
J. BENNETT JOHNSTON,
JIM SASSER,
Managers on the Part of the Senate.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of today, I call up the conference report on the Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 120) setting forth the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate concurrent resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the conference report.

The Clerk read the conference report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the House amendment reported in disagreement is considered as having been read.

The Clerk will designate the House amendment reported in disagreement.

The text of the House amendment to Senate Concurrent Resolution 120 is as follows:

Strike out all after the resolving clause, and insert:

That the Congress hereby determines and declares that the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1987 is established and the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 1988 and 1989 are set forth.

(a) The following levels and amounts are set forth for purposes of determining, in accordance with section 301(i) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, as amended by the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, whether the maximum deficit amount for a fiscal year has been exceeded:

(1) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $857,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $941,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $1,011,900,000,000.

(2) The appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $1,086,350,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $1,159,650,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $1,205,350,000,000.

(3) The appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $994,250,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $1,047,050,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $1,076,150,000,000.

(4) The amounts of the deficits are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $137,050,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $105,850,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $64,250,000,000.

(b) The following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1986, October 1, 1987, and October 1, 1988:

(1) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $643,850,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $700,550,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $750,750,000,000.

and the amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be increased are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $10,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $17,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $17,700,000,000.

and of those amounts by which revenues should be increased, the following amounts shall be used solely for the purpose of reducing the deficits below the maximum deficit amounts:

Fiscal year 1987: $4,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $11,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $10,500,000,000.

and the amounts for Federal Insurance Contributions Act revenues for hospital insurance within the recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $55,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $60,150,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $64,250,000,000.

(2) The appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $873,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $918,950,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $944,050,000,000.

(3) The appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $798,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $840,150,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $857,650,000,000.

(4) The amounts of the deficits in the budget which are appropriate in the light of economic conditions and all other relevant factors are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $154,350,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $139,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $106,900,000,000.

(5) The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987: $2,319,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $2,516,900,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $2,685,100,000,000.

(6) The appropriate levels of total Federal credit activity for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1986, October 1, 1987, and October 1, 1988, are as follows:

Fiscal year 1987:

(A) New direct loan obligations, $34,250,000,000.

(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $85,400,000,000.

Fiscal year 1988:

(A) New direct loan obligations, $32,250,000,000.

(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $87,300,000,000.

Fiscal year 1989:

(A) New direct loan obligations, $30,600,000,000.

(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $87,650,000,000.

(c) The Congress hereby determines and declares the appropriate levels of budget authority and budget outlays, and the appropriate levels of new direct loan obligations, and new primary loan guarantee commitments for fiscal years 1987 through 1989 for each major functional category are:

(1) National Defense (050):

Fiscal year 1987:

(A) New budget authority, $285,000,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $276,200,000,000.

(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.

(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.

Fiscal year 1988:

(A) New budget authority, $295,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $281,400,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $306,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $290,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(2) International Affairs (150):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $17,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $13,800,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,150,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $17,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $13,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $15,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,400,000,000.
(3) General Science, Space, and Technology (250):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $8,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $8,750,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $8,750,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $8,750,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $8,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $8,650,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(4) Energy (270):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $4,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $4,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $4,650,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $4,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $4,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $3,750,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(5) Natural Resources and Environment (300):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $11,950,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,250,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $12,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $11,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,200,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(6) Agriculture (350):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $23,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $23,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $14,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $26,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $24,800,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $12,100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,500,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $25,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $21,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $11,350,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,650,000,000.
(7) Commerce and Housing Credit (370):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $9,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,200,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,450,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $38,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $9,350,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $5,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,600,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $39,100,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $7,550,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $1,300,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,850,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $38,450,000,000.
(8) Transportation (400):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $24,600,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $25,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $26,350,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,450,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $400,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $26,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,350,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $200,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
(9) Community and Regional Development (450):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $6,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,200,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,600,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,050,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
(10) Education, Training, Employment, and Social Services (500):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $33,750,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $30,600,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $10,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $32,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $32,300,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,400,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $10,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $33,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $33,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,250,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $10,950,000,000.
(11) Health (550):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $38,650,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $38,350,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $40,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $40,700,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $42,700,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $42,800,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
(12) Medicare (570):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $83,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $73,400,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $91,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $81,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $101,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $91,350,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.

(13) Income Security (600):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $165,250,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $121,400,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,800,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $172,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $127,200,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,900,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $176,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $130,600,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,450,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(14) Social Security (650):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $5,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $5,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(15) Veterans Benefits and Services (700):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $27,050,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,700,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,550,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $16,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $27,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $27,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $16,950,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $27,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $17,550,000,000.
(16) Administration of Justice (750):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $7,200,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $7,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,250,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $7,250,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,350,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(17) General Government (800):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $5,750,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $5,650,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,200,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(18) General Purpose Fiscal Assistance (850):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $1,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,650,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $1,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $1,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $2,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(19) Net Interest (900):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $148,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $148,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $157,950,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $157,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $158,050,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $158,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(20) Allowances (920):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $550,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $600,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $1,600,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $1,700,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $2,650,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(21) Undistributed Offsetting Receipts (950):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, −$35,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$36,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, −$33,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$33,400,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, −$34,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$34,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.

RECONCILIATION

SEC. 2. (a) Not later than June 5, 1986, the committees named in subsections (b) through (u) of this section shall submit their recommendations to the Committees on the Budget of their respective Houses. After receiving those recommendations, the Committees on the Budget shall report to the House and Senate a reconciliation bill or resolution or both carrying out all such recommendations without any substantive revision.

HOUSE COMMITTEES

(b) The House Committee on Agriculture shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $80,000,000 and outlays by $79,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $83,000,000 and outlays by $83,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $84,000,000 and outlays by $84,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(c) The House Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: increase budget authority by $642,000,000 and decrease outlays by $1,158,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $0 and outlays by $23,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase budget authority by $164,000,000 and decrease outlays by $46,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(d)(1) The House Committee on Education and Labor shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $25,000,000 and outlays by $25,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $150,000,000 and outlays by $135,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $250,000,000 and outlays by $235,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(2) The House Committee on Education and Labor shall report changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide credit authority as defined in section 3(10) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce direct loan obligations by $0 in fiscal year 1987, $18,000,000 in fiscal year 1988, and $97,000,000 in fiscal year 1989; and to reduce primary loan guarantees by $235,000,000 in fiscal year 1987, $15,000,000 in fiscal year 1988, and increase primary loan guarantees by $55,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(e) The House Committee on Energy and Commerce shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $2,713,000,000 and outlays by $2,955,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $415,000,000 and outlays by $886,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $402,000,000 and outlays by $1,114,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(f) The House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $448,000,000 and outlays by $448,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $383,000,000 and outlays by $383,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $374,000,000 and outlays by $374,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(g) The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $170,000,000 and outlays by $170,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $180,000,000 and outlays by $180,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $200,000,000 and outlays by $200,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(h) The House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: increase budget authority by $950,000,000 and decrease outlays by $700,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; increase budget authority by $1,500,000,000 and decrease outlays by $950,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase budget authority by $850,000,000 and decrease outlays by $2,150,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(i) The House Committee on Public Works and Transportation shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $836,000,000 and outlays by $119,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $836,000,000 and outlays by $479,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $836,000,000 and outlays by $544,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(j) The House Committee on Science and Technology shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $0 and outlays by $0 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $0 and outlays by $0 in fiscal year 1989.

(k) The House Committee on Small Business shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $438,000,000 and outlays by $343,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $399,000,000 and outlays by $55,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $223,000,000 and outlays by $14,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(l) The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report changes in law within the jurisdiction of that committee sufficient to reduce the budget deficit by $4,200,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; to reduce the budget deficit by $3,695,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and to reduce the budget deficit by $3,740,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

SENATE COMMITTEES

(m) The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $80,000,000 and outlays by $79,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $83,000,000 and outlays by $83,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $84,000,000 and outlays by $84,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(n) The Senate Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: increase budget authority by $642,000,000 and decrease outlays by $1,158,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $0 and outlays by $23,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase budget authority by $164,000,000 and decrease outlays by $46,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(o) The Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $170,000,000 and outlays by $170,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $180,000,000 and outlays by $180,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $200,000,000 and outlays by $200,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(p) The Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $2,185,000,000 and outlays by $2,377,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; increase budget authority by $82,000,000 and outlays by $61,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase budget authority by $78,000,000 and outlays by $66,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(q) The Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $1,124,000,000 and outlays by $407,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $1,101,000,000 and outlays by $744,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $1,088,000,000 and outlays by $796,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(r) The Senate Committee on Finance shall report changes in law within the jurisdiction of that committee sufficient to reduce the budget deficit by $4,200,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; to reduce the budget deficit by $3,695,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and to reduce the budget deficit by $3,740,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(s) The Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: increase budget authority by $950,000,000 and decreased outlays by $700,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; increase budget authority by $1,500,000,000 and decrease outlays by $950,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase budget authority by $850,000,000 and decrease outlays by $2,150,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(t)(1) The Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $25,000,000 and outlays by $25,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $150,000,000 and outlays by $135,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $250,000,000 and outlays by $235,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(2) The Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources shall report changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide credit authority as defined in section 3(10) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce direct loan obligations by $0 in fiscal year 1987, $18,000,000 in fiscal year 1988, and $97,000,000 in fiscal year 1989; to reduce primary loan guarantees by $235,000,000 in fiscal year 1987, $15,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase primary loan guarantees by $55,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(u) The Senate Committee on Small Business shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $438,000,000 and outlays by $343,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $399,000,000 and outlays by $55,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $223,000,000 and outlays by $14,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

ESTABLISHMENT OF DEFICIT REDUCTION ACCOUNT

SEC. 3. (a) Revenues increased through legislative action above $6,000,000,000 in fiscal year 1987, $6,200,000,000 in fiscal year 1988, and $7,200,000,000 in fiscal year 1989, shall be used solely for the purpose of reducing the Federal deficit.

(b) These additional revenues shall be set forth separately in the congressional budget and clearly identified as for the purpose of deficit reduction only.

(c) The President shall immediately take such steps as are necessary to establish a separate account in the Treasury into which revenues referred to in subsection (a) shall be deposited. The account shall be administered in such a way as to insure that moneys deposited in the fund are available solely for the purpose of deficit reduction. The President shall report on an annual basis to the Congress on the financial condition of the fund and the extent to which the fund has reduced the Federal deficit.

RESERVATION OF DEFENSE BUDGET AUTHORITY

SEC. 4. (a) Of the recommended level of fiscal year 1987 budget authority set forth in section 1 of this resolution for Function 050 (National Defense), $3,000,000,000 is hereby reserved from allocation to the Committee on Appropriations under section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(b) The Secretary of Defense is directed to transmit a report to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate setting forth a full and complete accounting of all moneys appropriated to the Department of Defense for fiscal year 1986 in excess of sums needed to cover inflation. Such report shall be referred to the Committee on Appropriations and Committee on Armed Services of each House. The Committee on the Budget of each House shall be notified upon the transmittal of such report.

(c) The report described in subsection (b) shall also be submitted to the General Accounting Office which shall report to the Congress within a period of fourteen days on its findings as to that report.

(d) After the date on which the report of the General Accounting Office described in subsection (c) is transmitted, the Committee on the Budget of each House is authorized and directed to report to its respective House within five legislative days a revised allocation pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 of new budget authority to the Committee on Appropriations reflecting the full amount of budget authority described in subsection (a).

(e) For fiscal years 1988 and 1989, the Secretary of Defense shall, within ninety days of the close of each such fiscal year, issue to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate, a report accounting for any moneys appropriated for each respective prior fiscal year to cover inflation, which have not been obligated for such purposes.

GNP DEFLATOR

SEC. 5. The Committees on Armed Services of the House and Senate shall report legislation prohibiting the Department of Defense from using an arbitrary deflator (one not based on historical or factual data) for major weapons systems which would provide funding for major weapons systems inflation in excess of the GNP deflator.

SHUTTLE ORBITER REPLACEMENT

SEC. 6. Notwithstanding the spending levels contained in section 1 of this resolution, funding for a shuttle orbiter to replace NASA's Challenger, lost on January 28, 1986, would be appropriate if an authorization for such funding is enacted into law.

GENERAL REVENUE SHARING

SEC. 7. The spending levels contained in section 1 of this resolution would not preclude funding for an extension of general revenue sharing under the State and Local Assistance Act of 1972 through the end of fiscal year 1989 if an authorization for such funding is enacted into law.

STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE

SEC. 8. It is the sense of the Congress that the policy to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to an ultimate capacity of 750 million barrels be reaffirmed. It is also recommended that the Federal Government purchase oil for the Reserve in a way designed to help domestic stripper oil well producers so as to minimize the shutting-in of stripper production.

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE

SEC. 9. It is the sense of the Congress that Federal funds for the Cooperative Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture should be maintained at a level sufficient to carry out fully the vital services it is providing to rural America during a time of extreme stress. It is further assumed that this funding will be used especially to support and strengthen such core programs as 4-H Youth Development, Home Economics and Family Living, Natural Resources and Community Development, and services that provide agricultural financial analysis and farm management instruction.

FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL INVESTMENT REFORM

SEC. 10. It is the sense of the Congress that the use of foreign aid funds for financing the foreign production for export use of agricultural commodities already in surplus on world markets is a counter-productive use of American tax dollars as well as devastating to the American farmer who loses export markets from the unfairly subsidized competition.

MOTION OFFERED BY MR. GRAY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of today, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania moves that the House recede from its amendment to Senate Concurrent Resolution 120 and concur with an amendment, as follows:

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(For amendment, see text of the conference report and joint statement of the managers above.)

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the motion be considered as read, and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GRAY] will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Ohio

[Mr. LATTA] will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GRAY].

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, and colleagues, I am pleased to bring before the House the conference report on the budget for fiscal year 1987 for the United States of America.

□ 2200

This agreement represents many hours and several weeks of negotiations between the House and the Senate conferees. Although this agreement certainly does not contain all that I would have wished, I believe it is a very credible budget document which, when implemented, will provide a lower deficit than required under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings legislation particularly in light of the restraints that we have had to face this year in the budget process.

The conference report before you today would achieve a deficit for fiscal year 1987 of $142.6 billion, more than $1 billion below the Gramm-Rudman target. It would do so without taxes above those requested by the President. In this time of fiscal austerity, we have put together a budget in which the necessary sacrifices are equally shared. At the same time, our conference report maintains the high priority initiatives included in the House-passed resolution. It protects programs serving those least able to help themselves. It provides for a children's initiative which would help address the problem of escalating poverty among America's children. It provides for the teacher initiative included in the House-passed resolution. It contains no Medicaid reductions. In the Medicare area beneficiary costs will not be increased, and there is substantial help to prevent the rise in the deductible.

However, in order to reach the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings target, we had to exercise spending restraint. In this regard the conference agreement follows the House approach of reducing rather than terminating lesser priority programs. Our agreement provides for full cost-of-living adjustment for Social Security and all Federal civilian and military retirees.

In the area of general revenue sharing, the conference resolution does not prejudice the reauthorization of the program. With regard to the national security, America's defense, the conference agreement contains $292.15 billion in budget authority and $279.15 billion in outlays for fiscal year 1987.

It provides for real growth in the outyears and for a 3-percent military and civilian pay raise in January of each year as assumed in the House-passed resolution.

In addition, the conference agreement establishes a contingency fund for further deficit reduction and unmet critical needs, both defense and nondefense.

In order to free up these funds for additional spending, the President must request funding for unmet critical needs. In addition, legislation must be enacted to ensure that such funding would not increase the deficit.

Should defense be a part of this contingency, the President must request—and the Congress must enact—such additional funding in a manner which is deficit neutral. No more than $6.85 billion in budget authority and $3.1 billion in outlays would be available, thus leaving a reserve for deficit reduction.

Thus, in a word, what we have done is we have said to the President if there is an unmet critical need as a result of whatever contingency, Mr. President, the Congress is prepared to make whatever adjustments are necessary in the budget requested and we will move with the legislation if it is deficit neutral.

Further, the resolution provides for strong enforcement, both through appropriation and the reconciliation process. It contains reconciliation directives to 10 House and 9 Senate committees of $9.2 billion in fiscal year 1987 and $24.2 billion over 3 years.

It is my intention following the adoption of this conference report to work very hard with those committee chairs and their committees to make sure that we implement this reconciliation.

In an era of tight budgets and fiscal restraint, it has not been easy to reach the deficit target of $144 billion while at the same time providing for an adequate defense, protection for the least fortunate in our society, and funding for the many competing priorities.

Yet the conferees were able to achieve these goals and to provide for several critically needed initiatives.

Mr. Speaker and colleagues, no Member will find this resolution to be perfect, to be just what they would want. But I believe when one looks at the realities that we had to face in terms of the availability of revenues, the necessity of reaching a total deficit under $144 billion and at the same time providing for domestic and security needs, that we have before us a fair and balanced agreement which I am happy to add has bipartisan support from the conferees. It achieves responsible deficit reduction without placing that burden unfairly on any one area of the budget.

Are there cuts? Yes. Are there cuts in areas that bothered many of us? Yes. But it is fair and it will provide for the goal. It provides a workable framework for appropriations and reconciliation action necessary to achieve the 1987 deficit target. At the same time, it moves us further down the road toward a secure future and a strong economy.

Let me add, my colleagues, no one budget will solve the fiscal crisis we are facing, a sea of red ink that has grown each year steadily where the national debt has been doubled from $900 billion in 1980 to over $2 trillion tonight as I talk with you.

But I believe this budget puts us in the direction of reducing those deficits and making sure that we add no more to that national debt.

Mr. Speaker and colleagues, let me take this opportunity in conclusion to thank the members of the Committee on the Budget on both sides of aisle who have labored so diligently to bring us this agreement.

I want to particularly thank the ranking member, Mr. LATTA, for his hard work and also his bipartisan cooperation.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to support its adoption so that as we adjourn tonight to take the break of the Fourth of July, we will be able to tell America that we have not only seen historic action in terms of tax reform taken by both Houses but also that the budget for 1987 has been passed and we have met the deficit of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings of $144 billion.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. I yield to the distinguished gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. WHITTEN. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

May I say that we have cooperated with the chairman since he has been chairman. Our relations have been excellent. However, as he knows, the budget resolution was supposed to be adopted by May 15, I believe. We have completed our hearings on appropriations, I believe, without exception; we have stayed within the House-passed budget, and we are proud of that. We have held the line. In fact, our Committee on Appropriations has held the line throughout the years.

Now in agriculture it develops we are going to have $16 billion requested because we have the producers of agriculture selling products below the cost of production. All of those things that your committee does not have time to listen to makes us have to reserve the right to go to the leadership and ask for a waiver on this thing, should the circumstances require it.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Let me say to the distinguished chairman I understand his comments this afternoon. Our staffs have reached an agreement with regard to the issues.

Mr. WHITTEN. I am sure you would agree that assumptions should yield to facts when we have the facts.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. That is why, Chairman WHITTEN, you will have an opportunity to make your own assumptions as you implement this budget as well as the authorizing committees.

Mr. WHITTEN. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GRAY] has consumed 12 minutes.

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 7 minutes and 10 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I agree with the statements just made by our chairman. This is a bipartisan budget. It was worked out over many, many hours. Let me say I believe it is a better budget than passed by the House and a better budget than we had in one respect in our budget that we proposed to the House.

First of all, there is one big objection that I have to the budget that we present to you tonight. We could not do anything about it. But sometime I think we must do something about it. That is, that it does not sunset any programs.

You know, I do not know how we are ever going to reduce expenditures if we do not start terminating some of these programs that we did not need in the first place and we do not need now, but we just keep funding them.

We do not terminate any of them.

A couple of years ago, you know, we always had the sunset legislation talked about in this Congress and nothing ever came of it. Well, nothing is going to come of it out of this budget because we do not mandate that any programs are terminated. We are going to leave that up to the authorizing committees to do that job, and hopefully, they will do it before it is too late. Having said that, let me say I agree with the chairman when he says there are no new taxes in this bill or this resolution. That was very important. Over and above what the administration requested, there was a lot of talk on both sides of the aisle about new taxes. Well, we avoid new taxes.

Let me say also that the provision dealing with the contingency fund was critical to our support of this budget because if the President sees a need for additional funding under 050 and under other areas of critical need, he can request up to $4.8 billion, only $3 billion of which can go to defense. This is critical to our support of this budget. As the chairman has pointed out, the deficit is $142.6 billion, well below the Gramm-Rudman target.

□ 2215

Certainly I agree with those who will be saying that we will have sequestration under this proposal that we bring to you tonight, unless we do the things that we provide for under this resolution. We provide for the sale of Conrail at $1.9 billion in fiscal year 1987. In order to reach these targets that we have in this bill, we have to sell Conrail. That does not say that we cannot sell it for $2 billion or more, but we do have that net amount of $1.9 billion for that sale.

There are other things in this bill that we provide for, additional revenues to bring this deficit down to $142.6 billion. This Congress must follow through if it adopts this budget.

Also, we have reconciled $24 billion; reconciled, meaning we are going to mandate that we go forward with these reductions, and certainly that is important if we are going to get down to the $142.6 billion.

Let me also point out that in the field of agriculture, we have a priority item, an agriculture credit initiative of $150 million a year to assist distressed farmers. To improve the security measures for our Embassies overseas, hiring additional IRS agents to provide better taxpayer service and improve collections and certain high-priority education, health and nutrition programs are contained in this budget.

I might also point out that the conferees dropped a very controversial provision, imposing agricultural user fees for such things as grain inspection, market news services, and veterinary programs.

To help us meet our deficit reduction goals, we are assuming the sale of the naval petroleum reserves in 1988. We are also assuming the imposition of new fees for users of the services of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Coast Guard, the Customs Services, and the Navigation Services.

Amending the major domestic spending reforms in the agreement are 10 percent cuts in UDAG grants and the Economic Development Administration programs.

Let me say we do provide, if this Congress wants to pass the legislation, No. 1, in the authorizing form; and No. 2, that we provide the means to pay for revenue sharing, but only under those conditions.

So I think that tonight we bring forward a good substitute budget that we can support on both sides of the aisle. I want to say to my good chairman that it has been a pleasure working with the gentleman once again on bringing to this House a compromise budget resolution.

EXPLANATION OF CONFERENCE AGREEMENT

The conference agreement meets the Gramm-Rudman target for fiscal year 1987.

The agreement projects deficits of $142.60 billion in 1987, $115.65 billion in 1988 and $77.90 billion in 1989.

The agreement includes additional revenues consistent with the revenue increase in the President's budget.

The agreement includes a contingency fund of $4.8 billion in outlays for unmet critical needs. The fund could be triggered only if: the President requests funding for unmet critical needs and recommends how the deficit should be further reduced to offset the additional funding; Congress enacts legislation to ensure that such additional funding will not increase the deficits in the budget resolution; and the appropriate committee reports the funding measure.

The agreement assumes full cost-of-living adjustments for all Social Security and Federal civilian and military retirees.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF FUNCTIONS

Function 050: National Defense

The conference agreement assumes $292.15 billion in budget authority and $279.15 billion in outlays for fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes a three percent military and civilian pay raise in January of each year as assumed in the House-passed resolution.

The conference agreement assumes budget authority will increase by one percent real growth in fiscal years 1988 and 1989.

In addition, the conference agreement provides for a contingency fund for deficit reduction and unmet critical needs of which not to exceed $6.85 billion in budget authority and $3 billion in outlays shall be available for additional defense spending in fiscal year 1987.

Function 150: International Affairs

The conference agreement assumes $17.45 billion in budget authority and $14.0 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987.

The Enhanced Embassy Security program is assumed to be funded at $1.1 billion in fiscal years 1986 through 1987.

Appropriations for foreign aid programs are assumed to be at levels which would be below the fiscal year 1986 post sequestration freeze levels by about 10 percent.

Function 250: General Science, Space and Technology

The conference agreement assumes $9.10 billion in budget authority and $8.90 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes a freeze level for NASA programs.

The conference agreement assumes increases of $0.20 billion in budget authority and $0.10 billion in outlays for science and technology programs, and $0.05 billion increases for DOE general science and NASA basic research programs.

The conference agreement assumes the 2½ percent across-the-board reduction ($0.20 billion in budget authority and $0.10 billion in outlays).

Function 270: Energy

The conference agreement assumes $4.85 billion in budget authority and $3.50 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes $0.5 billion for SPRO oil purchases and $0.15 billion in budget authority for SPRO construction activities.

The conference agreement assumes a $0.05 billion increase for basic energy research activities.

The conference agreement assumes enactment of $0.1 billion in new energy (NRC) user fees.

The conference agreement assumes enactment of $0.05 billion in new FERC user fees.

The conference agreement assumes uranium enrichment programs funded at the freeze level.

The conference agreement assumes outlay reductions of $1.4 billion in fiscal year 1987 for REA loan asset sales that will be made pursuant to the enactment of the fiscal year 1986 Supplemental Appropriation Act.

The conference agreement assumes the sale of the Naval Petroleum Reserve in fiscal year 1988, while not directing its reconciliation.

Function 300: Natural Resources and Environment

The conference agreement assumes $12.40 billion in budget authority and $12.60 billion in outlays for fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes funding at the 1986 level for the Bureau of Reclamation.

The conference agreement assumes funding for Forest Service roads of $40 million in Budget authority and $20 million in outlays.

The conference agreement adopts the House position on the navigation user fees which assumes enactment of the port tax included in the House-passed omnibus water resources bill (H.R. 6).

Function 350: Agriculture

The conference agreement for this function assumes $23.80 billion in budget authority and $23.50 billion in outlays for 1987.

The conference agreement assumes that the House recedes to the Senate in this function.

The conference agreement assumes $150 million per year for an agricultural credit initiative to assist distressed farmers. This initiative was assumed in both the House and Senate resolutions.

The conference agreement does not assume user fees for USDA grain inspections, market news services, egg processing plant inspections, and veterinary services, as the House-passed resolution had assumed.

Function 370: Commerce and Housing Credit

The conference agreement assumes $10.30 billion in budget authority and $2.05 billion in outlays in 1987. These amounts include the effects of the retirement reform legislation which was enacted after the House passed the budget resolution.

The conference agreement assumes funding for the Postal Service at the 1986 level of $716 million.

The conference agreement maintains the House-passed funding at the 1986 level for rural housing and for the SBA business programs.

The conference agreement assumes an additional $750 in premium income for the FHA mortgage insurance program in 1987. This assumes a further increase in the commitment ceiling to $120 billion in 1986 and $80 billion in 1987.

The conference agreement adopts the House position on rural housing loan asset sales which assumes sales proceeds of $1.15 billion in 1987.

Function 400: Transportation

The conference agreement provides $25.35 billion in budget authority and $25.85 billion in outlays in 1987 for transportation programs.

Highways—The agreement provides a 7½ percent reduction in the Federal aid highway program resulting in a budget authority level of $13,517 million and an obligation ceiling of $12,445 million in each year and total obligations of $13,045 million in 1987.

Conrail—The conference agreement assumes receipts of $1.90 billion from the sale of Conrail.

Mass Transit—The conference agreement retains the House-passed assumptions of a 10 percent reduction in Section 3 grants and a ten percent reduction in operating assistance with remaining transit programs maintained at current levels. This includes formula capital grants at $1,183 million, interstate transfer grants at $191 million and Washington Metro at $217 million. Total transit funding for 1987 and the outyears is $3,364 million in budget authority. The conference agreement does not assume reconciliation of the Section 3 grants.

Federal Aviation Administration—The conference agreement provides funding of $2.85 billion for FAA operations; $280 million for research and engineering; a funding level of $1,167 million for facilities and equipment; and an obligation ceiling of $955 million for airport improvement grants.

Coast Guard Programs—The conference agreement would split the difference with the Senate resulting in total funding levels of $1,695 million for operations and $263 million for acquisition, construction, and improvement.

Coast Guard User Fees—The conference agreement assumes new user fees of $50 million each year.

Other changes from House-Passed Resolution—The conference agreement provides an additional $688 million in budget authority and $165 million in outlays above the House-passed assumptions for unspecified increases in appropriated transportation programs.

Function 450: Community and Regional Development

The conference agreement assumes $6.20 billion in budget authority and $7.00 billion in outlays for fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes the rejection of the $500 million community development block grant deferral and other deferrals as in the House-passed resolution.

The conference agreement assumes a ten percent reduction below the 1986 level for Urban Development Action Grants, Economic Development Administration, Appalachian Regional Commission and subsidized rental housing, the same as the House-passed resolution.

The conference agreement assumes the sale of $1.0 billion in Small Business Disaster Loan assets as in the House-passed resolution, and the sale of $0.05 billion in Rural Development Insurance Fund Assets.

The conference agreement assumes an increase in the Bureau of Indian Affairs child welfare program as part of the Children's Initiative contained in the House-passed resolution.

Function 500: Education, Training, Employment and Social Services

The conference agreement provides $33.45 billion in budget authority and $30.55 billion in outlays in 1987.

The conference agreement assumes $200 million in budget authority for education and training activities contained in H.R. 4800, Trade Act of 1986.

The conference agreement assumes the House-passed guaranteed student loan (GSL) reconciliation provisions of $390 million over three years.

The conference agreement assumes full funding for the Children's and Teachers initiatives as well as the inflation increases for the low-income high priority programs.

The conference agreement assumes the $1.50 billion in additional funding included in the House-passed resolution for existing high priority education, training, and social services programs.

Function 550: Health

The conference agreement provides $38.60 billion in budget authority and $83.30 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes no reduction in the medicaid program as does the House-passed resolution.

The conference agreement provides the 1987 current policy baseline medicaid level of $26.1 billion, plus $0.1 billion in 1987 and $0.7 billion over three years to fund the medicaid initiatives assumed in the House-passed resolution.

The conference agreement assumes that States will be given the option of extending medicaid coverage to low-income pregnant women and infants under age one, as well as the elderly poor whose income is below the Federal poverty threshold.

In addition, the compromise assumes $50 million in 1987 to protect States against the loss of funds which may occur from the change to an annual medicaid determination.

The conference agreement assumes unspecified savings of $100 million in 1987 and $300 million over three years, which is to be achieved by a reconciliation directive to the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

The conference agreement assumes that the House and Senate split the difference on discretionary health funding, which adds $150 million to the House-passed level of $10.8 billion in 1987.

Function 570: Medicare

The conference agreement assumes $83.00 billion in budget authority and $73.25 billion in outlays for medicare.

The agreement assumes $0.25 billion in 1987 and $1.0 billion over three years to lower the hospital deductible.

The agreement reflects medicare provider reforms of $0.60 billion in 1987 and $3.30 billion over three years.

Function 600: Income Security

The conference agreement assumes $163.50 billion in budget authority and $121.75 billion in outlays for fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes $8.1 billion in budget authority for subsidized housing. The agreement assumes that 95,000 new units can be supported at this level. A financing change to capital grants allows for the same program level and mix as in the House-passed resolution.

The conference agreement assumes $0.05 billion in 1987 for the enactment of the conference agreement on H.R. 7, the School Lunch and Child Nutrition Amendments of 1986, as in the House-passed resolution.

The conference agreement assumes the Children's Initiative provisions included in the House-passed resolution—a $75 million increase over inflation in 1987 for the WIC program.

The conference agreement assumes the House-passed resolution assumption of $1,986 million in budget authority for the low income energy assistance program.

Function 650: Social Security

The conference agreement assumes $227.05 billion in budget authority and $209.35 billion in outlays for social security, the same as the House-passed level.

Function 700: Veterans Benefits and Services

The conference agreement assumes $27.00 billion in budget authority and $26.55 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes the House-passed level for VA medical care in 1987, which is $9.5 billion in budget authority.

The conference agreement also includes the House-passed level of $0.5 billion for VA medical facility construction in 1987, including start-up funds for four new nursing homes.

Function 750: Administration of Justice

The conference agreement provides $7.20 billion in budget authority and $7.15 billion in outlays, the same level as the House-passed resolution.

The conference agreement assumes inflation for all administration of justice programs plus $200 million for the Customs Service and $50 million for the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) to assist in drug and trade interdiction activities.

Function 800: General Government

The conference agreement for this function assumes $5.50 billion in budget authority and $5.45 billion in outlays for 1987.

The conference agreement assumes full funding of the administration's $4.10 billion request for the Internal Revenue Service (IRS).

The conference agreement assumes a $100 million increase over the 1986 funding level for the Legislative Branch.

The conference agreement also assumes additional Customs Service user fees of $300 million per year as requested by the administration to recover more of the cost of processing merchandise.

Function 850: General Purpose Fiscal Assistance

The conference agreement assumes $1.95 billion in budget authority and $2.75 billion in outlays for fiscal year 1987.

Function 920: Allowances

The conference agreement assumes $0.90 billion in budget authority and −$0.05 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes civilian Federal employee pay raises of three percent effective in January in each fiscal year.

The conference agreement assumes the sale of U.S. government loan assets sufficient to generate one billion dollars in net savings in each fiscal year.

Function 950: Undistributed Offsetting Receipts

The conference agreement assumes −$40.05 billion in budget authority and −$40.25 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987.

The conference agreement assumes the same policy assumptions of the House-passed resolution, and estimates that recoveries will total $1.25 billion in fiscal year 1987, and total $2.45 billion over the three-year period. The conference agreement principally differs from the House-passed resolution in the estimate of the timing for the recovery of oil overcharge funds.

FUNCTIONAL COMPARISON

[Outlays—in billions of dollars; for fiscal years 1986–87]

	Function	Fiscal year 1986 Post GRH	Fiscal year 1987 CBO Base	House-passed	Senate-passed	GOP plan	Conference agreement
050	Defense	269.50	284.00	276.20	281.95	280.00	279.15	(292.15 BA)
150	International affairs	17.10	15.30	13.80	14.20	14.10	14.00
250	General science	8.90	9.05	8.75	9.10	8.80	8.90
270	Energy	4.30	5.30	4.85	4.60	4.40	3.50
300	Natural resources	12.70	13.05	12.25	12.60	12.40	12.60
350	Agriculture	30.80	23.55	23.55	23.50	23.70	23.50
370	Commerce and housing	3.60	3.75	2.60	3.45	2.60	2.05
400	Transportation	27.50	28.00	25.50	26.45	25.30	25.85
450	Community and regional development	8.00	7.50	7.00	7.20	7.20	7.00
500	Education, training, and employment	30.60	30.95	30.60	30.55	30.00	30.55
550	Health	35.70	38.30	38.35	38.30	38.00	38.30
570	Medicare	68.00	73.70	73.40	72.80	73.10	73.25
600	Income security	118.30	122.60	122.05	121.65	121.50	121.75
650	Social Security	199.55	211.55	209.35	209.40	209.40	209.35
700	Veterans	26.60	26.70	26.70	26.45	26.60	26.55
750	Administration of Justice	6.80	7.00	7.15	7.15	7.00	7.15
800	General government	6.00	5.50	5.65	5.40	5.10	5.45
850	General purpose fiscal assistance	5.90	6.20	2.65	2.80	2.60	2.75
900	Net interest	138.50	145.20	143.50	143.95	144.00	143.65
920	Allowances	0.00	1.10	1.85	0.15	0.80	−0.05
950	Undistributed offsets	−35.65	−37.30	−41.25	−39.80	−43.10	−40.25
	Total	982.70	1,018.60	994.50	1,001.85	993.50	995.00
	Revenues	777.80	846.40	857.20	857.20	849.70	852.40
	Deficit	204.90	172.20	137.30	144.65	143.80	142.60

Prepared by HBC minority staff.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LATTA. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman said this is better than the House-passed resolution. I wish the gentleman would explain that further. I understand there is an increase of $7 billion in obligation authority for defense, and I assume that is one reason that the gentleman would ascribe to it being better. What are the reasons that it is better?

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, as I mentioned to my good friend, that is the reason. I would not be standing up here tonight supporting this resolution if we had not come forward with this contingency.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. What are the additional reasons for it being better than the House-passed resolution?

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, I just mentioned to the gentleman, being from an agricultural area as the gentleman is, we take out those user fees that I mentioned. That is very, very important.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LATTA. I yield to the gentleman from New Mexico.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like some clarification as to the procedure that we would use. Let me use this as an example. The NASA budget is frozen in the program. We all suppose that the administration is going to recommend a shuttle to represent the Challenger. That cannot be added on to this budget unless, according to this contingency fund, provisions that the President must recommend, is that the only way to get something like that?

Mr. LATTA. Anything that exceeds these totals that I just mentioned, $142.6 billion, will have to come under the contingency fund and be requested by the President.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 and one-half minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. ANDERSON].

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding for a brief colloquy.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday, the Committee on Public Works and Transportation reported H.R. 3129, the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1986. That bill contains budget authority for highways consistent with what our committee believed the conference agreement to be. However, it is my understanding that those levels now differ from what is before the House, thereby necessitating a waiver of section 302 of the Budget Act in order to permit consideration of the bill on the floor. It is my further understanding that the Budget Committee will support our request for a waiver of section 302 when the bill comes before the Rules Committee, and that the Budget Committee will not oppose the bill on the basis that it exceeds the budget. Is that correct?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. I would say to the gentleman from California, yes, I will recommend to the committee members that they support such a waiver request to the Committee on Rules.

Mr. ANDERSON. The conference agreement also includes reconciliation instructions to the Committee on Public Works and Transportation. Notwithstanding the underlying funding assumptions, it is my understanding that a submission by the Public Works Committee of the aggregate levels of highway budget authority and obligations for fiscal years 1987 through 1989 as contained in H.R. 3129 will be deemed by the Budget Committee to be in compliance with, and to have satisfied, the reconciliation directive pursuant to this conference report. Is that correct?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. I would say to the gentleman from California, "That is correct, yes."

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Speaker, could the chairman tell us about the Budget Committee or the conference action with respect to the Presidential deferral of half a billion dollars?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. That is not a part of the budget process debate or the conference.

Mr. GONZALEZ. But does it not enter into your assumptions, on your budgetary assumptions in your report?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. No; it does not apply to our assumptions in our report.

Mr. GONZALEZ. In that briefing sheet the gentleman has there, it indicates differently, in that yellow sheet.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Is the gentleman referring to recisions?

Mr. GONZALEZ. Deferral.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. I am afraid I do not know which briefing sheet the gentleman is referring to.

That is not a briefing sheet of the House Budget Committee I would point out to the gentleman, but I will try to answer. That is a DSG briefing sheet, not put forth by the Budget Committee.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, will the chairman yield?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, I understand, sharing similar concerns in the housing area with the gentleman from Texas, what the gentleman is asking about. The conference agreement sticks with the House position and rejects the Senate $500 million deferral.

Mr. GONZALEZ. If the gentleman will continue to yield, that is a basic predicate in the assumptions on the budgetary conclusions in the conference?

Mr. SCHUMER. If the gentleman will yield, the gentleman from Texas is right, on the CDBG and all the others.

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GRADISON].

□ 2225

Mr. GRADISON. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, before we overcongratulate ourselves, let us make sure we strike a realistic tone in this discussion with respect to the likelihood of sequestration. It is vital that we sent an accurate signal to our colleagues, the general public, the credit markets, and the Federal agencies.

This Member's personal view is that this budget virtually assures sequestration unless the economy takes off in the near future. The budget includes billions in revenues from asset sales, privatizing Conrail and oil overcharge funds which may not materialize. This budget is based on the optimistic economic assumptions of last February rather than more recent data which suggests a 1987 deficit of $12 to $15 billion higher than earlier estimated.

As I see it, even in the unlikely event that all of this budget is implemented, the deficit will exceed $154 billion triggering sequestration. As a conferee, my conclusions are threefold: First, under this budget, sequestration is better than a 50-50 bet. Second, this budget moves in the right direction. Finally, further action by Congress will be needed if our deficit reduction targets are to be met.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. WOLPE].

Mr. WOLPE. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my very strong support for the budget resolution that is before us this evening. What is particularly striking is how dramatically different a document it is than that which was originally advanced by the White House.

It is dramatically different from the original White House submission in two key respects. First of all, it not only meets the Gramm-Rudman deficit target but actually exceeds the deficit reduction of the President's original budget as re-estimated by the Congressional Budget Office by some $16 billion.

Second, the priorities at this bipartisan budget depart radically from those of the President. In fact it is the redirection of the priorities of this country that is perhaps the msot significant feature of this budget.

I think it is important for the country that this budget is a bipartisan document. What that does is to reinforce the feelings of this institution, of the Congress representing the will of the American people, that we are not going to tolerate the decimation of vital domestic programs, that we are going to insist that the Pentagon begin to accept the same constraints we have imposed on the domestic side of the budget. What this budget reflects is a bipartisan commitment to resist the priorities and values the White House has sought to impose upon the country the past several years.

It is certainly true that there is no guarantee in this budget against sequestration. Yet it is also true that if this budget is accepted sequestration would impose a far less difficult challenge than were it to occur without this budget in place.

I also want to make the further point that to put this budget together without executive leadership, without some assistance from the White House, has been a very difficult task. We all know the constraints under which we have operated. This budget, in my view, represents a very significant legislative achievement.

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. FRENZEL].

Mr. FRENZEL. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I am, as usual, disappointed with the budget resolution. It may be, however, that it is in this House and this country's best interests to pass the resolution for at least there is a modicum of outlay reductions through the reconciliation process.

I am, however, disappointed with the materials which the House has been given to try to understand what the conference committee has given us tonight. I notice on a yellow sheet entitled, "Reconciliation by House Committees," that the Ways and Means Committee is given a reconciliation of $4.35 billion in outlay savings. You know what that is folks? That is $3.5 billion of new taxes lurking in that little, harmless item of outlay savings.

I do not know if that is a mistake on the part of the committee or whatever, but I think the House ought to know that 40 percent of the alleged outlay savings in reconciliation are new taxes, and the House may think that is a good policy or it may not, but at least it ought to know what is in there.

We also ought to know what assets have been sold. Three billion of our loan portfolio? Those are savings? No; they are one-time savings as we unload one asset—loans—for another asset—cash. Another $1.9 billion for selling a railroad we probably are not going to sell.

If you go out into future years, you find that we are selling an able petroleum reserve for what many people think is less than its value at a time when it is admittedly not smart to be selling such reserves because of the price of oil.

This resolution as it has been presented is loaded with smoke and mirrors and gas and lard and whatever else we put into budgets to try to make them attractive for ourselves. I think I am going to vote for this resolution. I do not minimize the task our committee had, and I congratulate all the people who worked on it. But I do not want to have any of us patting ourselves on the back and saying. "This is pretty good." It is the tiniest, little advance over the baseline that I can positively imagine at this time.

We certainly have to do better than this. My judgment is that if we pass this budget, which allegedly makes the deficit targets, we are going to have to pass a sequester resolution because this budget is not going to make it.

Again, I say it is better than nothing. I shall support it. I thank the committee for its hard work and wish they would have done a better job.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. RUSSO].

Mr. RUSSO. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Chairman a question about the reconciliation deadline. Would the Committee on Ways and Means be required to report a reconciliation bill by July 25?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Yes. The committees are required to report their reconciliation legislation by July 25, in order that the reconciliation process could be completed prior to the August 15 snapshot, as provided by Gramm-Rudman. It is my hope that completion of the process would reduce the projected deficit under the Gramm-Rudman procedures.

However, I fully understand that the Committee on Ways and Means will be engaged in the tax reform conference and may not have time to complete its reconciliation legislation by July 25. I would say to the gentleman that we would not penalize the committee if this date cannot be met, although we increase the risk that an initial sequester order may be necessary if this legislation is not completed in time. However, as the gentleman well knows, the first snapshot is a warning to Congress of how much deficit reduction is required, and the snapshot taken in early October would determine any final binding sequestration order.

I would hope that the Ways and Means Committee would make every effort to meet its July 25 deadline and that, by the second Gramm-Rudman snapshot, the committee would have achieved its deficit reduction target.

Mr. RUSSO. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his assurances and I can assure him that the committee will make every attempt to comply with the July 25 deadline in the budget resolution and that, by the second Gramm-Rudman snapshot, we will have certainly met our reconciliation instruction. Let me congratulate the chairman for his outstanding work on the budget and for the conference agreement which he brings to the floor tonight.

Mr. Speaker, if I may briefly respond to the gentleman from Minnesota, the $4.3 billion that the gentleman is talking about for a total deficit reduction from the Ways and Means Committee does not specify specifically that it has to be new taxes, it can be any means by which we reduce the deficit, so taxes are not assured to be passed.

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PORTER].

Mr. PORTER. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, this budget, it seems to me, is a joke and a very bad one on the American people. In general, the spending restraint, as my colleague from Ohio said, is nonexistent, and the revenue numbers seem to be pulled right out of the air.

If you look at revenues, they are up $6 billion from the baseline and there are two problems with this. First, the new revenues originally proposed by the President are being double-counted. Either as savings or as part of the baseline.

□ 2235

If you look at the $2 billion cigarette tax, if you look at new revenues from reform of the civil service retirement system, or you look at new Superfund taxes, each one of them is being double counted on the revenue side.

Second, the baseline revenue estimate is hopelessly optimistic in light of new economic data. And I would call the Members' attention to the E.F. Hutton estimates of February, which were right in line with the CBO February estimate, but today E.F. Hutton is estimating revenues of $825 billion, which the budget resolution estimate is at $846 billion. So if E.F. Hutton is accurate, the deficit will be about $15 billion higher than we estimate it to be.

I would also draw the attention of the Members to these items:

The 3-percent pay raise for civilians is not provided for in the numbers. It is assumed that most of the cost will be absorbed by the agencies.

Second, the sale of SBA disaster loans, valued by the President at $700 million, and by the Senate at $350 million, suddenly is now worth $1 billion. No one knows where the $300 million extra would come from.

The conferees have taken the higher House number on rural housing loan sales—$1 billion, or 10 times as high as the President's original proposal.

Conrail sale is now magically worth another $100 million—$1.9 billion. No one knows where that is going to come from.

There is an unspecified directive to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service to save $100 million; no one knows how.

Mr. Speaker, I would suggest that the budget numbers are fudged that the structural deficit issue remains, and that we will not achieve what we hope to achieve through this budget.

Mr. Speaker, if we pass this budget tonight, we may think that we are fooling the financial markets. We think that we are fooling the American people into believing that we are meeting the Gramm-Rudman targets. But, Mr. Speaker, we will not meet those targets. We will fall about $30 billion short, and we will only be fooling ourselves.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. MONTGOMERY].

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate the distinguished chairman of the House Budget Committee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GRAY], and the ranking minority member of the committee, the distinguished gentleman from Ohio [Mr. LATTA], for reaching agreement with the other body in a way that will assure that the veterans of our Nation will receive the benefits and health care services which they deserve during the next fiscal year.

As I understand it, Mr. Speaker, the numbers agreed to for function 700 generally track the funding levels contained in the budget resolution previously adopted by the House. The conference agreement assumes $27 billion in budget authority and $26.5 billion in outlays for the next fiscal year. It is important to note, Mr. Speaker, that the agreement assumes the House-passed level for VA medical care in 1987 which is $9.55 billion in budget authority and $9.35 billion in outlays.

The agreement also includes the House-passed level of $500 million for VA medical facility construction including start-up funds for four new medical facility projects including two nursing homes which the Committee on Veterans' Affairs recommended to the budget committee. These numbers are substantially above the recommended levels proposed by the administration.

Mr. Speaker, veterans throughout the Nation can be encouraged by what has been accomplished in the budget conference. The House has again confirmed its commitment to our Nation's veterans and I appreciate the leadership of the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania, the distinguished gentleman from Ohio, and other members of the conference who worked together to resolve differences in veterans' matters.

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. KASICH].

Mr. KASICH. I appreciate the gentleman's yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I watched Chairman GRAY characterize this budget on the television, and I have to say that he really did sum it up pretty well. He said that there are constraints on everybody. If you are concerned about national security provisions for this Nation, you have to be a little upset, but you know we had to give a little bit, and everybody knew it. But we have come up; in fact we have come up from what the Committee on Armed Services did just a couple days ago.

If you are concerned about the nondefense area—and everybody is concerned about nondefense, providing for the needs of the people of this country—you had to give a little bit, but everybody knew that they were going to have to give a little bit.

But you know, we worked together. We are making the American people feel good tonight. You know why? Because I remember just 1 year ago when this side was hissing and booing when this side spoke, and this side was hissing and booing when this side spoke. But you know tonight we are all congratulating one another.

We have a sober approach. We know we do not have a miracle in front of us. But what we do know is that we came together as Republicans and Democrats, we gave a little bit on our own parochial interests, and now we have something that is fair, we have something that is compassionate, and we have something that meets many of the security needs of our Nation.

I think that Chairman GRAY and Mr. LATTA, our ranking member, have done an incredible job in being able to formulate something that makes sense for America.

You know the bottom line, though, is Gramm-Rudman works, does it not? Gramm-Rudman forced Republicans and Democrats to come together to meet a budget target, and that is exactly what we have in this document. Let us hope and pray that this economy can grow, and let us hope and pray that we can have the kind of revenues that we need to meet these targets. But I will tell you that tonight is a great night for our constituents, because we worked together, we all gave, and we put America first.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York [Mr. WEISS].

Mr. WEISS. I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me for the purpose of a colloquy with the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Budget regarding the general revenue sharing program.

Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that the conference report provides that general revenue sharing could be reauthorized and funded without violating the Budget Act, even though there is no specific allocation within function 850. Is that correct?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield, that is the intent of the resolution. Nothing in this resolution would prevent the reauthorization or appropriation for general revenue sharing, if it is the will of the Congress in both bodies.

Mr. WEISS. It is further my understanding that the funding for general revenue sharing, if reauthorized, is intended to be deficit neutral under the conference report so that such funding would not increase the deficits set forth in the conference report. Is that correct?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. That is correct.

Mr. WEISS. As we all know, it is entirely possible under the confusions created by Gramm-Rudman, or other factors, that the authorizing legislation could be preceded by various appropriations measures. Would anything in the conference report bar reauthorization of GRS under such circumstances?

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. No, there is nothing in the conference report that would prevent the House and the Senate from acting on this issue.

Mr. WEISS. I very much appreciate the chairman's clarification of these points. Although I would much rather have had the budget resolution provide for full funding of this vital program within function 850, I appreciate the efforts of the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE].

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Chairman, I am going to vote for this budget resolution, and I commend my good friend, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GRAY], the chairman of the committee, and the ranking minority member, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. LATTA], for all their hard work.

Let me say this. The reconciliation part of this bill is as phony as a 3-dollar bill. A billion twenty-five, two hundred fifty million dollars for oil-stripper agreement—I want to ask you, when is that coming forth? A billion nine for the sale of Conrail. I ask my good friend, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. FLORIO], when is that ever going to come out of the committee? Two billion dollars in asset sales—we had $400 million in the supplemental appropriation for a study of the Southwest Marketing Authority. It was cut out entirely by the Senate. I tried to get $100,000 in there for a study of the Southwest Power Marketing Authority—down the drain. I ask the Members, when is that going to come out?

A billion dollars in unspecified asset sales—all going down the drain, $6.15 billion. And these figures here—they will never see the light of day. Never. Believe me.

I filed a bill for a half a billion dollars for users' fees for the Coast Guard a year ago. Do you know how many cosponsors I have? You are looking at them, right here. Not a one. Not a one.

For the honor of the House, I am going to vote for this bill, but I am telling the Members, the reconciliation here is as phony as a 3-dollar bill.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5½ minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY].

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to follow up on a point made by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GRADISON], because I think it is a very important one. I am going to support this resolution because I think that it is essential that we establish a bipartisan congressional agreement on a different set of priorities than those laid out by the President's budget.

I think that these priorities are much more just for the country, a much more intelligent allocation of resources. I have some problems with it because I think, for instance, that we have gone up too far on the military budget. I agree with the judgments about the unrealistic estimate for some of the actions assumed in this resolution.

I would like to ask the chairman of the committee one question. I share the concern of the gentleman from Ohio about the potential for sequestration. One of the previous speakers just said that tonight proves that Gramm-Rudman works. I would like to suggest that tonight may wind up proving in the end that there is a significant flaw in Gramm-Rudman which some of us talked about a year ago, because as I read these numbers, and I know that the chairman of the committee has done as much as is humanly possible to avoid the sequestration problem, I know that his original resolution had a lower deficit than the Senate's for the express purpose of avoiding that possibility of sequestration, but the fact is that as I understand what is happening in the economy, it is possible because of the rigidities built into Gramm-Rudman last year in refusing to take into account economic performance.

It is very possible that even if Congress lives up to each and every promise that it makes tonight in this resolution, that we could still face the possibility of sequestration if the economy sags below the expectations laid out by the administration.

□ 2245

That is my own concern. That is my own guess and I would like to know whether the gentleman agrees with that assumption.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, I would like to respond because several speakers have mentioned this. I think I was the first Member of this body and certainly on the Budget Committee in either House back during the Memorial break to announce publicly to the Nation that I felt that economic growth was going to be slower than expected than the projections of the CBO, not the administration, because we are using CBO projections. The administration's OMB projections were much higher and much more of a rosy scenario of economic growth, and because of that slow growth we would have an overestimation of revenues.

I also said at that time that one of the good news items in the economy is that the policies have been successful in lowering inflation; however, as inflation has moved down, therefore if we had expected a higher inflation that means an overextension of revenues. I said that over 5 weeks ago.

Now everyone is saying, "Hey, we have a problem."

Now, let me add that I cannot control by myself, nor can this Budget Committee of the House or the Senate or this Congress, what totally happens to this economy. We must make our best estimate and guess on the most realistic numbers we have.

Now, let me just simply say this. I hope that we will not start blaming the budget process or the Congress for the defects that we find simply because Gramm-Rudman does not take into consideration changes in the economy which have nothing to do whatever with our spending at all, such as the two items that I mentioned and the two that the gentleman from Ohio is talking about.

I would agree with the gentleman from Ohio and the gentleman from Wisconsin that there may be a problem; however, our job is to try to restrain spending as much as possible.

I believe that the House budget that we passed did a better job of that. We came back with a compromise which within the context of reality does that to the best of our ability.

Let me conclude by saying, are we going to have sequestration? It depends. It depends on how optimistic or pessimistic will the OMB and the CBO be in their economic forecasts now being prepared. Small economic differences produce large differences in deficit.

It depends, too, on how much of this resolution will be enacted by this Congress before the August 15 snapshot and how much will be enacted before October 1 when it is the deadline; so we play a role if we enact.

Third, it depends on what will happen to the technical reestimates, such as agricultural outlays and defense spendout.

Fourth, whether we hit sequestration depends on other legislation enacted by this body; for instance, the tax reform bill, the thrift industry legislation, the urgent supplemental, and other legislation.

If we hold spending and if we are vigilant, then I believe that we can potentially avoid sequestration and thus I would say with the contingency fund, there is a mechanism that if the President and OMB feels we are going to hit the wall of sequestration they can call on the Congress to move into the contingency fund for deficit reduction and thus avoid sequestration.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I would simply like to thank the gentleman for that response. I agree with it and I think that points out, as the gentleman has indicated, if there is a flaw around here and if we run into sequestration because of that flaw, it is not likely to be because of lack of performance by the Appropriations Committee or lack of performance on the part of the Budget Committee, but because of the fatal flaw built into Gramm-Rudman, which refused to recognize initially our responsibility to recognize that the economy can do things over which we have no control.

Mr. FRENZEL. Mr. Speaker, earlier I stated that this budget resolution has been described in very misleading terms. It cannot possibly achieve its own targets, even in the unlikely event that all committees meet their reconciliation obligations.

If the resolution is so lousy and falls so short of deficit reduction objections, why, I have been asked, should anyone in his or her right mind vote for it?

The answer is merely because baseline spending is unacceptable. This budget is lousy, but it is marginally better than the status quo.

Stated another way, if we pass this budget, and if it is reconciled, we will require a slightly smaller sequestration resolution when we, as we inevitably will, fall short of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction targets.

Mr. LATTA. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I have one further request. I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WHITTEN], the chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

If the gentleman needs additional time, I will be glad to yield further.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, may I say, we might as well face some reality. None of the budget cuts that we have experienced in the last 5 years, have gone to reduce the debt or the deficit. All of it was caused by the increase of the carryover of unspent military funds.

What I wish to say is that the gentleman, in order to come up with what he has, and I have been voting for this as a target, is counting on estimates or assumptions only. On the face of it, they cannot happen. I realize what the gentleman is up against.

Now, what we have to do is realize that we have to have a strong economy to back up all this business. We have got to have public support. We have to have butter and guns, or you will not have the guns you want. That is our job.

Now, our Committee on Appropriations has stayed within the budget. We have held it down. We always have held it down. We are going to hold it down again.

I am asking the gentleman that when his estimate or his assumption is clearly going to be hard to achieve, is the gentleman going to admit it and let us go ahead and look after the country.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, let me respond in closing to the question raised by the distinguished gentleman from Mississippi, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

The chairman correctly states that the role of the Budget Committee is to set the targets for each function or the ceilings, and thus what has developed over the years, 10 years of the Budget Act, is for us to give assumptions as to how we reached those targets or those ceilings. In certain cases, we agreed to reconcile assumptions and there are in this budget $24 billion of reconciled assumptions; however, in the rest of the area where we make assumptions, it is our best judgment that this is an appropriate way to reach a particular target or ceiling in a function; however, when there is not reconciliation it then becomes a responsibility of the authorizing committees and the appropriating committee who on many occasions have spent greater lengths of time reviewing these issues to determine what would be the assumptions to reach the target, and thus stay within the target.

So I would say to all of us, we must understand that the budget sets ceilings. It is up to the authorizing committees and the appropriating committees to determine what goes under those ceilings.

When we state what goes under it, we reconcile it; so I would respond to the question from the distinguished chairman that he is absolutely right when he says our role is to set targets. We have done that, and thus by setting the targets we have come forward with a budget that reduces $142.6 billion in deficit reductions for fiscal year 1987 below the Gramm-Rudman target.

Mr. Speaker, I would urge my colleagues to understand, yes, we have the sequestration wall to face, but if you want to avoid it, then all we have to do is act and enact everything here.

Second, I would urge my colleagues to support this budget resolution. It is fair. It is equitable and it achieves the goal.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore [Mr. KILDEE]. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GRAY].

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 333, noes 43, not voting 57, as follows:

[Roll No. 211]

AYES—333

Ackerman	Chappell	Fiedler
Akaka	Cheney	Fields
Alexander	Clay	Foley
Anderson	Clinger	Ford (MI)
Andrews	Coats	Ford (TN)
Anthony	Cobey	Frank
Applegate	Coble	Franklin
Archer	Coelho	Frenzel
Atkins	Coleman (MO)	Gallo
Badham	Collins	Gejdenson
Barnard	Combest	Gekas
Bartlett	Conte	Gephardt
Barton	Conyers	Gilman
Bateman	Cooper	Gingrich
Bates	Coughlin	Glickman
Bennett	Coyne	Goodling
Bentley	Craig	Gordon
Bereuter	Crockett	Gradison
Berman	Daniel	Gray (IL)
Bevill	Darden	Gray (PA)
Biaggi	Daub	Guarini
Bilirakis	DeLay	Gunderson
Bliley	Derrick	Hamilton
Boehlert	DeWine	Hammerschmidt
Boggs	Dickinson	Hansen
Boner (TN)	Dingell	Hatcher
Bonior (MI)	DioGuardi	Hawkins
Bonker	Dowdy	Hayes
Borski	Downey	Hefner
Bosco	Duncan	Hendon
Boucher	Durbin	Henry
Boulter	Dwyer	Hertel
Boxer	Dymally	Hiler
Brooks	Dyson	Holt
Broomfield	Eckart (OH)	Hopkins
Brown (CA)	Eckert (NY)	Horton
Broyhill	Edgar	Howard
Bruce	Edwards (CA)	Hoyer
Bryant	Edwards (OK)	Hubbard
Burton (CA)	Emerson	Huckaby
Burton (IN)	Erdreich	Hughes
Bustamante	Evans (IA)	Hutto
Byron	Evans (IL)	Ireland
Callahan	Fascell	Jeffords
Carper	Fawell	Jenkins
Chandler	Fazio	Johnson
Chapman	Feighan	Jones (OK)
Jones (TN)	Moody	Smith, Denny (OR)
Kanjorski	Moorhead	Smith, Robert (NH)
Kaptur	Morrison (CT)	Snowe
Kasich	Morrison (WA)	Solarz
Kastenmeier	Murphy	Spratt
Kennelly	Murtha	St Germain
Kildee	Natcher	Staggers
Kindness	Neal	Stallings
Kleczka	Nelson	Stangeland
Kolbe	Nielson	Stark
Kolter	Oakar	Stenholm
Kostmayer	Oberstar	Stokes
Lagomarsino	Obey	Strang
Lantos	Olin	Stratton
Latta	Ortiz	Studds
Leach (IA)	Owens	Sundquist
Leath (TX)	Oxley	Sweeney
Lehman (CA)	Packard	Swift
Lehman (FL)	Panetta	Swindall
Leland	Parris	Synar
Lent	Pashayan	Tallon
Levin (MI)	Pease	Tauke
Levine (CA)	Penny	Tauzin
Lewis (FL)	Pepper	Taylor
Lightfoot	Perkins	Thomas (CA)
Livingston	Pursell	Thomas (GA)
Long	Rahall	Torres
Lott	Rangel	Torricelli
Lowery (CA)	Ray	Towns
Lowry (WA)	Regula	Traficant
Lujan	Reid	Traxler
Luken	Richardson	Udall
Lungren	Rinaldo	Valentine
Mack	Ritter	Vander Jagt
MacKay	Roberts	Vento
Manton	Robinson	Visclosky
Markey	Rodino	Volkmer
Marlenee	Roemer	Walgren
Martin (IL)	Rogers	Walker
Martin (NY)	Rose	Waxman
Martinez	Roukema	Weber
Matsui	Rowland (CT)	Weiss
Mavroules	Rowland (GA)	Wheat
Mazzoli	Roybal	Whitehurst
McCain	Russo	Whitley
McCloskey	Sabo	Whittaker
McCurdy	Saxton	Whitten
McDade	Scheuer	Williams
McEwen	Schneider	Wilson
McGrath	Schroeder	Wirth
McHugh	Schuette	Wise
McKernan	Schumer	Wolf
McMillan	Seiberling	Wolpe
Meyers	Sensenbrenner	Wortley
Mica	Sharp	Wright
Michel	Shelby	Wyden
Mikulski	Sikorski	Wylie
Miller (CA)	Siljander	Yatron
Miller (OH)	Sisisky	Young (AK)
Miller (WA)	Skeen	Young (FL)
Mineta	Slattery	Young (MO)
Moakley	Slaughter	Zschau
Molinari	Smith (FL)
Mollohan	Smith (NE)
Montgomery	Smith (NJ)

NOES—43

Armey	Gaydos	Nowak
AuCoin	Gonzalez	Petri
Brown (CO)	Green	Porter
Carney	Gregg	Ridge
Carr	Hall, Ralph	Roth
Coleman (TX)	Hunter	Schaefer
Courter	Jacobs	Shumway
Crane	Kramer	Smith (IA)
Dannemeyer	LaFalce	Smith, Robert (OR)
Daschle	Lloyd	Spence
Dellums	McCollum	Stump
Dorgan (ND)	Mitchell	Vucanovich
Dreier	Monson	Watkins
English	Mrazek
Garcia	Myers

NOT VOTING—57

Annunzio	Dicks	Fuqua
Aspin	Dixon	Gibbons
Barnes	Donnelly	Grotberg
Bedell	Dornan (CA)	Hall (OH)
Bellenson	Early	Hartnett
Boland	Fish	Heftel
Breaux	Flippo	Hillis
Campbell	Florio	Hyde
Chappie	Foglietta	Jones (NC)
Davis	Fowler	Kemp
de la Garza	Frost	Lewis (CA)
Lipinski	O'Brien	Schulze
Loeffler	Pickle	Shaw
Lundine	Price	Shuster
Madigan	Quillen	Skelton
McCandless	Roe	Snyder
McKinney	Rostenkowski	Solomon
Moore	Rudd	Weaver
Nichols	Savage	Yates

□ 2310

The Clerk announced the following pair:

On this vote:

Mr. Donnelly for, with Mr. Florio against.

Mr. AUCOIN changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. EDGAR changed his vote from "no" to "aye."

So the motion was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. Hallen, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate recedes from its amendment to the amendment of the House to the amendment to the Senate numbered 175, to the bill (H.R. 4515) "An act making urgent supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1986, and for other purposes."

The message also announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills, joint resolutions, and concurrent resolutions of the House of the following titles:

H.R. 237. An act to amend the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act to provide that any attorney who collects debts on behalf of a client shall be subject to the provisions of such act;

H.R. 4801. An act to amend section 994 of title 28, United States Code, to clarify certain duties of the U.S. Sentencing Commission;

H.J. Res. 429. Joint resolution to designate July 2, 1986, as "National Literacy Day";

H.J. Res. 664. Joint resolution to designate July 3, 1986, as "Let Freedom Ring Day," and to request the President to issue a proclamation encouraging the people of the United States to ring bells on such day immediately following the relighting of the torch of the Statue of Liberty;

H. Con. Res. 362. Concurrent resolution to express the sense of the Congress that a moment of silence be held during the official ceremonies for the Statue of Liberty for the return of the American captives in Lebanon; and

H. Con. Res. 364. Concurrent resolution providing for a conditional adjournment of the two Houses from June 26 or 27 until July 14, 1986.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks, and to include extraneous matter on the Gray motion to recede and concur with an amendment to Senate Concurrent Resolution 120, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1987.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

AUTHORIZING THE SPEAKER TO ACCEPT RESIGNATIONS AND APPOINT COMMISSIONS, BOARDS, AND COMMITTEES AUTHORIZED BY LAW OR BY THE HOUSE, NOTWITHSTANDING ADJOURNMENT

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that, notwithstanding any adjournment of the House until Monday, July 14, 1986, the Speaker be authorized to accept resignations, and to appoint commissions, boards, and committees authorized by law or by the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR WEDNESDAY BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1986

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday, July 16, 1986.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. CHANDLER (at the request of Mr. MICHEL), for today, on account of personal reasons.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

Mr. FRENZEL, for 15 minutes, today.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. MCMILLAN) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. LUNGREN, for 60 minutes, on July 15, 16, 17, 21, and 22.

Mr. BEREUTER, for 5 minutes, on June 26.

Mr. MYERS of Indiana, for 60 minutes, on June 26.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. TORRES) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. CROCKETT, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. RAY, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. ROSE, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. ANNUNZIO, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. KLECZKA, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. KASTENMEIER, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. DINGELL, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. COYNE, for 5 minutes, today.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

By unanimous consent, permission to revise and extend remarks was granted to:

Mr. LATTA, to include extraneous material on Senate Concurrent Resolution 120, in the House, today.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. MCMILLAN) and to include extraneous matter:)

Mr. MCDADE.
Mr. SHAW.
Mr. SMITH of New Jersey.
Mr. LEACH of Iowa in two instances.
Mr. EMERSON.
Mr. DANNEMEYER.
Mr. LAGOMARSINO in two instances.
Mr. LEWIS of California.
Mr. DORNAN of California.
Mr. CONTE.
Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT.
Mr. RITTER.
Mr. BROOMFIELD in two instances.
Mr. HYDE.
Mrs. BENTLEY.
Mr. PORTER.
Mr. MCEWEN.
Mr. BADHAM.
Mr. BEREUTER.
Mr. MCCAIN in two instances.
Mr. HUNTER.
Mr. HORTON.
Mr. SKEEN.
Mr. GUNDERSON.
Mr. SOLOMON.
Mr. MILLER of Washington.
Mr. CRANE in six instances.
Mr. TAUKE.
Mr. FAWELL.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. TORRES) and to include extraneous matter:)

Mr. SMITH of Florida.
Mr. LEHMAN of California.
Mrs. BOXER.
Mr. DANIEL.
Mr. FASCELL in three instances.
Mr. SPRATT.
Mr. CROCKETT.
Mr. STOKES in two instances.
Mr. DWYER of New Jersey.
Mr. DINGELL.
Mr. STARK.
Mr. BOSCO.
Mr. MILLER of California.
Mr. GARCIA.
Mr. LIPINSKI.
Mr. HAYES.
Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania.
Mr. DE LA GARZA.
Mr. GAYDOS.
Mr. SCHUMER.
Mrs. COLLINS.
Ms. KAPTUR.
Mr. VENTO.
Mr. MCCLOSKEY.
Mr. BROOKS.
Mr. RODINO.
Mr. DOWNEY of New York.
Mr. LANTOS.
Mr. GARCIA.
Mr. RANGEL.
Mr. STARK.
Mr. HEFTEL of Hawaii.
Ms. OAKAR.
Mr. FLORIO in two instances.
Mr. SOLARZ.
Mr. HAWKINS.
Mr. FAUNTROY.
Mr. TORRES in two instances.
Mr. COYNE.
Mr. KOSTMAYER in two instances.
Mr. WEISS.
Mrs. BURTON OF California.
Mr. MRAZEK.
Mr. ST GERMAIN.
Mr. MCCLOSKEY.
Mr. LELAND in two instances.
Mr. WYDEN.
Mr. BONKER in two instances.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED

Mr. ANNUNZIO, from the Committee on House Administration, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled a bill of the House of the following title, which was thereupon signed by the Speaker:

H.R. 4841. An act to amend the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act with respect to State allotments under the act.

SENATE ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

The SPEAKER announced his signature to enrolled bills of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 2180. An act to authorize appropriations for activities under the Federal Fire Prevention and Control Act of 1974, and

S. 2414. An act to amend title 18, United States Code.

JOINT RESOLUTION PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT

Mr. ANNUNZIO, from the Committee on House Administration, reported that that committee did on the following day present to the President, for his approval, a joint resolution of the House of the following title:

On June 25, 1986:

H.J. Res. 297. Joint resolution to designate the week beginning July 27, 1986, as "National Nuclear Medicine Week."

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY, JULY 14, 1986

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the provisions of House Concurrent Resolution 364 of the 99th Congress, the House stands adjourned until 12 noon, Monday, July 14, 1986.

Thereupon (at 11 o'clock and 17 minutes p.m.), pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution 364, the House adjourned until Monday, July 14, 1986, at 12 noon.

EXPENDITURE REPORTS CONCERNING OFFICIAL FOREIGN TRAVEL

Miscellaneous reports filed with the Committee on House Administration and forwarded to the Clerk of the House concerning the foreign currencies and U.S. dollars utilized by Interparliamentary Unions and other similar groups or delegations during calendar year 1985 in connection with foreign travel pursuant to Public Law 95-384 are as follows:

REPORT OF EXPENDITURES FOR OFFICIAL FOREIGN TRAVEL, DELEGATION TO THE NORTH ATLANTIC ASSEMBLY, BELGIUM AND FRANCE, U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, EXPENDED BETWEEN FEB. 13 AND FEB. 19, 1985

Name of Member or employee	Date		Country	Per diem [1]		Transportation		Other purposes		Total
	Arrival	Departure		Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]
Abbruzzese, P	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Bateman, H	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Burton, S	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Carman, N	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Courter, J	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Total					3,420.00		25,334.30				28,754.30
Garcia, R	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Gilman, B	2/13	2/14	Belgium		108.00						108.00
	2/16	2/19	France		351.00						351.00
Military transportation							4,800.17				4,800.17
Lasch, R	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Roberts, A	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Rose, C	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Total					3,195.00		25,067.61				28,262.61
Sparks, R	2/13	2/15	Belgium		216.00						216.00
	2/15	2/19	France		468.00						468.00
Military transportation							5,066.86				5,066.86
Total					684.00		5,066.86				5,750.86
Grand total											62,767.77

[1] Per diem constitutes lodging and meals.
[2] If foreign currency is used, enter U.S. dollar equivalent; if U.S. currency is used, enter amount expended.

CHARLIE ROSE, Apr. 18, 1985.

REPORT OF EXPENDITURES FOR OFFICIAL FOREIGN TRAVEL, DELEGATION TO MEETING OF THE NORTH ATLANTIC ASSEMBLY STANDING COMMITTEE IN PORTUGAL, U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, EXPENDED BETWEEN MAR. 28 AND MAR. 31, 1985

Name of Member or employee	Date		Country	Per diem [1]		Transportation		Other purposes		Total
	Arrival	Departure		Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]
Brooks, Jack	3/28	3/31	Portugal	56.062	324						324
Military air									6,885		6,885
Brady, John J	3/28		Portugal	56.062	324						324
Military air									6,885		6,885
Abbruzzese, P.A	3/28		Portugal	56.062	324						324
Military air									6,885		6,885
Committee total					972				20,655		21,627

[1] Per diem constitutes lodging and meals.
[2] If foreign currency is used, enter U.S. dollar equivalent; if U.S. currency is used, enter amount expended.

Note.—Based on information available as of this date. n nn

JACK BROOKS, Apr. 18, 1985.

REPORT OF EXPENDITURES FOR OFFICIAL FOREIGN TRAVEL, INTERPARLIAMENTARY UNION, LOME, TOGO, U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, EXPENDED BETWEEN MAR. 23 AND MAR. 31, 1985

Name of Member or employee	Date		Country	Per diem [1]		Transportation		Other purposes		Total
	Arrival	Departure		Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]
Benjamin J. Guthrie	3/23	3/30	Togo		739.87		[3] 3,363.37				4,103.24
	3/30	3/31	Spain		8.00						8.00
Vance Hyndman	3/23	3/30	Togo		665.21		[3] 3,363.37				4,028.58
	3/30	3/31	Spain		4.00						4.00
Ellen P. Rayner	3/23	3/30	Togo		503.97		[3] 3,363.37				3,867.34
	3/30	3/31	Spain		4.00						4.00
Julie Illsley	3/23	3/30	Togo		494.84		[3] 3,363.37				3,858.21
	3/30	3/31	Spain		4.00						4.00
Delegation expenses:
Official meals	3/23	3/30	Togo		2,278.97						2,278.97
Control room	3/23	3/30	Togo		1,032.91						1,032.91
Transportation	3/23	3/30	Togo				1,281.90				1,281.90
Overtime (Embassy personnel)	3/23	3/30	Togo						910.57		910.57
Miscellaneous	3/23	3/30	Togo						4.19		4.19
Committee total					5,735.77		14,735.38		914.76		21,385.91

[1] Per diem constitutes lodging and meals.
[2] If foreign currency is used, enter U.S. dollar equivalent; if U.S. currency is used, enter amount expended.
[3] DOD transportation provided pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 22A.

CLAUDE PEPPER, Mar. 19, 1986.

REPORT OF EXPENDITURES FOR OFFICIAL FOREIGN TRAVEL, MEXICO-UNITED STATES INTERPARLIAMENTARY GROUP, U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, EXPENDED BETWEEN JAN. 1 AND DEC. 31, 1985

Name of Member or employee	Date		Country	Per diem [1]		Transportation		Other purposes		Total
	Arrival	Departure		Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]
Akaka, Daniel	5/9	5/13	Mexico		244.02		[3] 558.84				802.86
Alexander, Bill	5/10	5/12	Mexico		177.38		[4] 483.00				660.38
Coleman, Ronald	5/9	5/13	Mexico		241.79		[3] 558.84				800.63
de la Garza, E (chairman)	5/9	5/13	Mexico		340.43		[3] 558.84				899.27
DeLay, Tom	5/9	5/13	Mexico		275.46		[3] 558.84				834.30
Dreier, David	5/9	5/13	Mexico		241.79		[3] 558.84				800.63
Gilman, Benjamin	5/9	5/13	Mexico		248.88		[3] 558.84				807.72
Goodling, William	5/9	5/12	Mexico		177.38		[3] 290.31				757.15
							[4] 289.46
Kramer, Ken	5/10	5/13	Mexico		242.73		[3] 268.53				781.22
							[3] 268.53
Lagomarsino, Robert	5/9	5/13	Mexico		241.79		[3] 558.84				800.63
Leland, Mickey	5/9	5/13	Mexico		249.31		[3] 268.53				642.84
							[3] 268.53
Rangel, Charles	5/9	5/13	Mexico		253.39		[3] 558.84				812.23
Yatron, Gus	5/9	5/13	Mexico		241.79		[3] 558.84				800.63
Brown, Elliott	5/9	5/13	Mexico		241.79		[3] 558.84				800.63
Dunman,Tabor	5/9	5/13	Mexico		241.79		[3] 558.84				800.63
Chester, John C.	5/9	5/13	Mexico		241.79		[3] 558.84				800.63
	12/1	12/5	United States		312.14		[4] 240.00				552.14
Daoust, Elizabeth	5/9	5/13	Mexico		274.03		[3] 558.84				832.87
	12/1	12/5	United States		292.60		[4] 131.12				523.72
Livingston, Shelly	5/9	5/13	Mexico		241.79		[3] 558.84				800.63
	12/1	12/5	United States		405.10		[4] 263.00				668.10
Pena, Richard	5/9	5/13	Mexico		260.28		[3] 558.84				819.12
Tavlarides, Mark	5/9	5/13	Mexico		272.92		[3] 558.84				831.76
Delegation expenses:
Stationery and supplies									969.99
Ground transportation									1,273.00
Inflight expesnes and control room charges									2,342.50
Embassy assistance									209.59
Baggage, miscellaneous									118.85
Planning meetings									234.08		5,148.01
Committee total					6,060.37		11,570.35		5,148.01		22.778.73

[1] Per diem constitutes lodging and meals.
[2] If foreign currency is used, enter U.S. dollar equivalent; if U.S. currency is used, enter amount expended.
[3] DOD.
[4] Commercial.

E de la GARZA, Chairman, Mar. 26, 1986.

REPORT OF EXPENDITURES FOR OFFICIAL FOREIGN TRAVEL, CANADA-UNITED STATES INTERPARLIAMENTARY GROUP, U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, EXPENDED BETWEEN JAN. 1 AND DEC. 31, 1985

Name of Member or employee	Date		Country	Per diem [1]		Transportation		Other purposes		Total
	Arrival	Departure		Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]
Barnes, Michael (chairman)	5/16	5/20	Canada		252.31		[3] 264.89				517.20
Donnelly, Brian	5/16	5/20	Canada		270.85		[3] 264.89				535.74
Fascell, Dante	5/16	5/20	Canada		252.31		[3] 264.89				517.20
Frenzel, Bill	5/16	5/20	Canada		246.31		[3] 88.84				335.38
Gibbons, Sam	5/16	5/20	Canada		255.39		[3] 264.89				520.28
Hamilton, Lee	5/16	5/20	Canada		252.31		[3] 264.89				517.20
LaFalce, John	5/16	5/20	Canada		268.70		[3] 264.89				533.59
Martin, David	5/16	5/20	Canada		261.17		[3] 264.89				526.06
Miller, John	5/16	5/18	Canada		189.23		[3] 88.84				278.07

REPORT OF EXPENDITURES FOR OFFICIAL FOREIGN TRAVEL, CANADA-UNITED STATES INTERPARLIAMENTARY GROUP, U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, EXPENDED BETWEEN JAN. 1 AND DEC. 31, 1985—Continued

Name of Member or employee	Date		Country	Per diem [1]		Transportation		Other purposes		Total
	Arrival	Departure		Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]
Oberstar, Jim	5/16	5/18	Canada		126.15		[3] 88.84				214.99
Stangeland, Arlan	5/16	5/18	Canada		110.77		[3] 88.84				199.61
Bierman, Everett	5/16	5/20	Canada		252.31		[3] 264.89				517.20
Daoust, Elizabeth	5/16	5/20	Canada		226.92		[3] 264.89				491.81
	5/16	5/8	United States		339.79		[3] 308.88				648.67
Ingram, George	5/16	5/20	Canada		221.54		[3] 264.89				486.43
	12/5	12/8	United States		456.74		[4] 378.00		74.11		908.85
Johnson, Victor	5/16	5/20	Canada		252.31		[3] 264.89				517.20
Neal, Carolyne	5/16	5/20	Canada		223.07		[3] 264.89				487.96
Nelson, Steve	5/16	5/20	Canada		255.64		[3] 264.89				520.53
Delegation expenses:
1986 conference deposit									500.00
Official delegation meals and meetings									1,623.10
Ground transportation									120.20
Miscellaneous									30.00		2,273.30
Committee total					4,714.05		4,485.81		2,347.41		11,547.27

[1] Per diem constitutes lodging and meals.
[2] If foreign currency is used, enter U.S. dollar equivalent; if U.S. currency is used, enter amount expended.
[3] DOD.
[4] Commercial.

MICHAEL D. BARNES, Chairman, Mar. 28, 1986.

REPORT OF EXPENDITURES FOR OFFICIAL FOREIGN TRAVEL, INTERPARLAIMENTARY UNION, OTTAWA, CANADA, EXPENDED BETWEEN AUG. 29 AND SEPT. 7, 1985

Name of Member or employee	Date		Country	Per diem [1]		Transportation		Other purposes		Total
	Arrival	Departure		Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]	Foreign currency	U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency [2]
Hon. Claude Pepper	8/29	9/7	Canada		1,115.84		218.40				1,334.24
							[3] 103.13				103.13
Hon. Augustus F. Hawkins	9/4	9/7	Canada		273.51		[3] 819.80				1,093.31
Hon. Lindy Boggs	8/31	9/7	Canada		580.34		[3] 225.63				805.97
Hon. David E. Bonior	8/31	9/4	Canada		429.49		[3] 122.50				551.99
Hon. Mervyn M. Dymally	9/1	9/5	Canada		711.74						711.74
Hon. John Paul Hammerschmidt	9/1	9/4	Canada		298.66		[3] 716.67				1,015.33
Hon. Henry J. Hyde	9/4	9/7	Canada		365.91		[3] 819.80				1,185.71
Benjamin J. Guthrie	8/31	9/7	Canada		712.35		[3] 225.63				937.98
Marty Sletzinger	8/29	9/7	Canada		931.11		124.20				1,055.31
							[3] 103.13				103.13
Frances H. Campbell	8/29	9/7	Canada		1,097.17		218.40				1,315.57
							[3] 103.13				103.13
Ellen P. Rayner	8/31	9/7	Canada		590.57		[3] 225.63				816.20
Julie Illsley	8/31	9/7	Canada		592.56		[3] 225.63				818.19
Delegation expenses:
Official meals	8/29	9/7	Canada		2,775.22						2,775.22
Control room	8/29	9/7	Canada		1,878.60						1,878.60
Transportation	8/29	9/7	Canada				98.52				98.52
Overtime (Embassy personnel)	8/29	9/7	Canada						1,442.06		1,442.06
Miscellaneous	8/29	9/7	Canada						46.61		46.61
Committee total					12,353.07		4,350.20		1,488.67		18,191.94

[1] Per diem constitutes lodging and meals.
[2] If foreign currency is used, enter U.S. dollar equivalent; if U.S. currency is used, enter amount expended.
[3] DOD transportation provided pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 22A.

CLAUDE PEPPER, Mar. 19, 1986.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of rule XXIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

3792. A letter from the Assistant Legal Adviser for Treaty Affairs, Department of State, transmitting copies of international agreements, other than treaties, entered into by the United States, pursuant to 1 U.S.C. 112b(a); to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

3793. A letter from the Comptroller General, General Accounting Office, transmitting a list of all reports issued by GAO during the month of May 1986, pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 719(h); to the Committee on Government Operations.

3794. A letter from the Plan Administrator, Farm Credit Banks of Jackson, transmitting the annual report for the farm credit retirement plan and the production credit associations' retirement plan for the year ending December 31, 1985, pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 9503(a)(1)(B); to the Committee on Government Operations.

3795. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Water and Science, Department of the Interior, transmitting a copy of an approved application by the Hidalgo Irrigation District No. 1, Edinburg, TX, for a loan under the Small Reclamation Projects Act, pursuant to 43 U.S.C. 422d; to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

3796. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Water and Science, Department of the Interior, transmitting notification of a proposed contract with the Farwell Irrigation District, Farwell Unit, Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin Program, NE, pursuant to 43 U.S.C. 505; to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

3797. A letter from the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a draft of proposed legislation to provide for the payment of interest on certain lease revenues paid to the Secretary of the Interior, to eliminate certain unnecessary reporting requirements, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

3798. A letter from the Commissioner, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Department of Justice; transmitting a copy of an order granting defector status in the case of a certain alien, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(28)(1); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

3799. A letter from the Comptroller General, General Accounting Office; transmitting a report of recommendations to the Congress concerning the claim of Mr. John H. Teele to be reimbursed normal relocation expenses as though he had been an employee of the Federal Government transferred in the interest of the government from one duty station to another for permanent duty, pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 3702(d); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

3800. A letter from the Administrator of Veterans Affairs, Veterans Administration, transmitting a copy of draft legislation to amend title 38, United States Code, to limit the types of proposed disciplinary actions in which disciplinary boards function, to allow for the delegation of authority of the Chief Medical Director in certain situations and for related purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

3801. A letter from the Comptroller General, General Accounting Office, transmitting a report of the adverse opinion on the financial statements of the Export-Import Bank of the United States [Eximbank] for the years ended September 30, 1985 and 1984 and the reports on Eximbank's system of internal accounting controls and compliance with laws and regulations, pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 9106(a); 31 U.S.C. 3512(f); jointly, to the Committees on Government Operations and Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. GLICKMAN: Committee on the Judiciary. H.R. 4827. A bill to amend title 31, United States Code, with respect to the fraudulent use of public property or money; with an amendment (Rept. 99-660). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. BROOKS: Committee on Government Operations. Counting all the jobless: Problems with the official unemployment rate (Rept. 99-661). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DINGELL: Committee on Energy and Commerce. S. 953. An act to validate contractual relationships between the United States and various non-Federal entities; with an amendment (Rept. 99-662, Pt. 1). Ordered to be printed.

Mr. SOLARZ: Committee on Foreign Affairs. H.J. Res. 626. Resolution to approve the "Compact of Free Association" between the United States and the Government of Palau, and for other purposes; with an amendment (Rept. 99-663, Pt. 1). Ordered to be printed.

Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania: Committee of Conference. Conference report on S. Con. Res. 120. (Rept. 99-664). Ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 5 of rule X and clause 4 of rule XXII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. GLICKMAN (for himself, Mr. WOLPE, Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. FRANK, Mrs. SCHROEDER, and Mr. FISH):

H.R. 5097. A bill to amend chapter 11 of title 18, United States Code, to prohibit the President, the Vice President, certain other former Federal civilian and military personnel, and Members of Congress from representing or advising certain foreign entities for a period of 4 years after leaving Government service, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. APPLEGATE:

H.R. 5098. A bill to deny beneficiary developing country designations under the generalized system of preference to countries that aid other countries to circumvent certain trade obligations to the United States; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ARMEY (for himself, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. COLEMAN of Texas, Mr. CRANE, Mr. DREIER of California, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. GEKAS, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. PEASE, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. STRANG, Mr. NEAL, Mr. BARNARD, and Mr. DIOGUARDI):

H.R. 5099. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control regarding the improvement of executive agency mail management, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committees on Government Operations, and Post Office and Civil Service.

By Mr. DORNAN of California (for himself, Mr. DANIEL, Mr. DIOGUARDI, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. SILJANDER, and Mr. DANNEMEYER):

H.R. 5100. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to protect family decency, to amend the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act to provide grants to encourage the States to carry out child protection reforms, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committees on the Judiciary, Education and Labor, Energy and Commerce, and Post Office and Civil Service.

By Mr. BENNETT:

H.R. 5101. A bill to provide for disclosure by lobbyists, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BIAGGI:

H.R. 5102. A bill to amend the Ship Mortgage Act, 1920 (46 App. U.S.C. 861 et seq.) and for other purposes; to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

H.R. 5103. A bill to amend the Controlled Substances Act and the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act to provide more effective criminal penalties for violations involving cocaine, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and the Judiciary.

By Mr. BLILEY:

H.R. 5104. A bill to provide for uniform cost-of-living adjustments under Federal retirement programs; to the Committee on Government Operations.

By Mr. BOULTER (for himself, Mr. BARNARD, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. DORNAN of California, and Mr. PACKARD):

H.R. 5105. A bill to amend the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the Poultry Products Inspection Act, and the Egg Products Inspection Act to increase economy and efficiency in the Federal Government and to reduce the Federal budget deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's public sector survey on cost control concerning the examination and inspection of meat, poultry, and egg products processing operations, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. CARR (for himself, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. CRANE, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. ROTH, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. PEASE, Mr. ROEMER, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. DREIER of California, Mr. BARNARD, Mr. DIOGUARDI, Mr. STRANG, Mr. NEAL, and Mr. FISH):

H.R. 5106. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control relating to improved coordination between Department of Defense research facilities; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. CARR (for himself, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. CRANE, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. ARMEY, Mr. ROTH, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. PEASE, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. ROEMER, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. GEKAS, Mr. COLEMAN of Texas, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. BARNARD, Mr. DIOGUARDI, Mr. STRANG, and Mr. NEAL):

H.R. 5107. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control regarding the increased use of paralegals by the Department of Justice, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mrs. COLLINS:

H.R. 5108. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Health and Human Services to fund adolescent health demonstration projects; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. DANIEL (for himself, Mr. ASPIN, Mr. PRICE, Mr. STRATTON, Mr. NICHOLS, Mr. MONTGOMERY, Mr. SISISKY, Mr. HUTTO, Mr. WHITEHURST, Mr. SPENCE, Mrs. SCHROEDER, Mrs. BYRON, Mr. FOGLIETTA, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. MAVROULES, Mr. KASICH, Mr. LEATH of Texas, Mr. DARDEN, Mr. DYSON, Mr. MCCLOSKEY, Mr. SPRATT, Mr. BENNETT, Mrs. LLOYD, Mr. ROBINSON, Mr. HUNTER, Mr. HILLIS, Mr. MCCURDY, Mr. RAY, and Mr. HERTEL of Michigan):

H.R. 5109. A bill to establish a national special operations agency within the Department of Defense to have unified responsibility for all special operations forces and activities within the Department; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. WYDEN (for himself, Mr. WAXMAN, Mr. MADIGAN, and Mr. TAUKE):

H.R. 5110. A bill to encourage good faith professional review activities of health care entities, to require collection and dissemination to hospitals and other health care providers of information concerning certain payments in medical malpractice claims and certain adverse decisions, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. DANNEMEYER (for himself, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. SILJANDER, and Mrs. BENTLEY):

H.R. 5111. A bill to amend the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 to exclude individuals with contagious diseases from the definition of handicapped individuals; to the Committee on Education and Labor.

By Mr. DIOGUARDI (for himself and Mr. WYDEN):

H.R. 5112. A bill to amend the Controlled Substances Act and the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act to impose increased criminal penalties on cocaine dealers; jointly, to the Committees on Energy and Commerce, and the Judiciary.

By Mr. DORNAN of California (for himself, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. CRANE, Mr. CARR, Mr. DREIER of California, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. ROTH, Mr. PEASE, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. COLEMAN of Texas, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. NEAL, Mr. BARNARD, Mr. DIOGUARDI, and Mr. FISH):

H.R. 5113. A bill to increase Government economy and improve efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control relating to the consolidation of certain Department of Defense operations; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. DORNAN of California (for himself, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. CRANE, Mr. CARR, Mr. DREIER of California, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. ARMEY, Mr. ROTH, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. NEAL, Mr. BARNARD, Mr. DIOGUARDI, Mr. FISH, and Mr. STRANG):

H.R. 5114. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control to strengthen the auditing of Department of Defense transportation bills, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committees on Armed Services, and Government Operations.

By Mr. DORNAN of California (for himself, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. DIOGUARDI, Mr. BARNARD, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. STENHOLM, and Mr. NEAL):

H.R. 5115. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control regarding the consolidation of border management and the revision of overtime laws for inspectors, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committees on the Judiciary, Ways and Means, and Agriculture.

By Mr. DREIER of California (for himself, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. CRANE, Mr. SWINDALL, Mr. ARMEY, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. ROTH, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. FISH, Mr. NEAL, Mr. STRANG, and Mr. BARNARD):

H.R. 5116. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control relating to reduced Government competition with the private sector to provide goods and services; to the Committee on Government Operations.

By Mr. DREIER of California (for himself, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. ROEMER, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. CRANE, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. ARMEY, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. NEAL, and Mr. BARNARD):

H.R. 5117. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control to aid in verification of housing eligibility, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committees on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs, and Ways and Means.

By Mr. ECKERT of New York:

H.R. 5118. A bill to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to permit employees of public agencies to volunteer to perform for such agencies the same type of services for which the employees are employed; to the Committee on Education and Labor.

By Mr. EVANS of Illinois (for himself, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. ROWLAND of Connecticut, Mr. OBERSTAR, Mr. PEASE, Mr. ASPIN, Mr. SABO, Mr. MARTIN of New York, Ms. KAPTUR, and Mr. WOLPE):

H.R. 5119. A bill entitled: the "Foreign Sourcing in Defense Contracts Act"; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. FEIGHAN (for himself and Mr. SCHULZE):

H.R. 5120. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to clarify the tax treatment of voluntary employee benefit associations; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GEJDENSON:

H.R. 5121. A bill to require the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to conduct a study of the nuclear power reactor accident at Chernobyl, in the Soviet Union; to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

By Mr. GUNDERSON:

H.R. 5122. A bill to prevent the approval of bovine growth hormone by the Secretary of Health and Human Services until certain information is made available to the Congress for a reasonable time; jointly, to the Committees on Agriculture, and Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. HUNTER:

H.R. 5123. A bill to amend the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to improve the financial solvency of multiemployer pension plans, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Education and Labor.

By Mr. KASICH (for himself, Mr. COURTER, and Mr. SPRATT):

H.R. 5124. A bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to direct the Secretary of Defense to ensure that, to the maximum extent practicable, commercially available products are used to fulfill equipment and supply requirements of the Department of Defense; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. KASICH (for himself, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. ROEMER, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. ARMEY, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. SWINDALL, Mr. CRANE, Mr. REID, Mr. DREIER of California, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. ROTH, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. PEASE, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. GEKAS, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. MOORE, Mr. DIOGUARDI, Mr. LAGOMARSINO, Mr. FISH, and Mr. NEAL):

H.R. 5125. A bill to improve the Government's debt collection and credit management practices, to implement certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committees on Government Operations and the Judiciary.

By Mr. KASTENMEIER (for himself, Mr. SYNAR, Mr. WIRTH, Mr. BOUCHER, and Mr. MOORHEAD):

H.R. 5126. A bill to amend title 17, United States Code, relating to copyrights, to provide for the temporary compulsory licensing of the secondary transmission by satellite carriers of superstations for private viewing by earth station owners; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. KOLBE:

H.R. 5127. A bill to amend title 5, United States Code, to extend the pay retention provisions of such title to certain prevailing rate employees whose basic pay would otherwise be subject to reduction pursuant to a wage survey; to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

By Mr. KOLBE (for himself, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. CRANE, Mr. CARR, Mr. FISH, Mr. DREIER of California, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. ARMEY, Mr. ROTH, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. BARNARD, Mr. NEAL, Mr. DIOGUARDI, and Mr. STRANG):

H.R. 5128. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control relating to reimbursements of the Department of Defense for the use of Defense Industrial Reserve property by Federal Government agencies; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. KOLBE (for himself, Mr. GUNDERSON, Mr. CARR, Mr. REID, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. FISH, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. BARNARD, Mr. ROTH, Mr. PEASE, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. ROEMER, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. DIOGUARDI, Mr. NEAL, Mr. GEKAS, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. COLEMAN of Texas, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, and Mr. STRANG):

H.R. 5129. A bill to increase Government economy and improve efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control regarding improved collection of tax revenue and enforcement of the internal revenue laws, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KOLBE (for himself, Mr. CRANE, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. ARMEY, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. NEAL, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. BOULTER, Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. BARNARD, and Mr. DIOGUARDI):

H.R. 5130. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the budget deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control regarding improvements to Medicare auditing, medical review and administration, and Medicaid quality control, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committees on Ways and Means, and Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. KOSTMAYER:

H.R. 5131. A bill to increase the rate of duty on certain rubber footwear; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LEHMAN of California (for himself and Mr. BEREUTER):

H.R. 5132. A bill to increase the amount of capital available to financial institutions and other agricultural lenders for loans to farmers by providing a secondary market for farm mortgages through the establishment of a federally chartered corporation, and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committee on Agriculture, and Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs.

By Mr. LELAND (for himself, Mr. PANETTA, and Mr. RODINO):

H.R. 5133. A bill to permit State agencies to conduct food stamp outreach to the homeless, to permit the homeless to use food stamps to acquire prepared meals at certain establishments, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. LELAND (for himself and Mr. RODINO):

H.R. 5134. A bill to prevent homelessness and to address the housing needs of the homeless; to the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs.

By Mr. LELAND (for himself, Mr. WAXMAN, and Mr. RODINO):

H.R. 5135. A bill to provide grants for the establishment and expansion of shelters for homeless parents with newborn infants; to the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs.

By Mr. LELAND (for himself, Mr. HAWKINS, and Mr. RODINO):

H.R. 5136. A bill to provide education for homeless children, job training for the homeless, and temporary shelter for runaway and homeless youth; to the Committee on Education and Labor.

By Mr. LELAND (for himself, Mr. WAXMAN, and Mr. RODINO):

H.R. 5137. A bill to provide health care and mental health services for the homeless; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. LELAND (for himself and Mr. RODINO):

H.R. 5138. A bill to ensure that homeless individuals receive veterans' pension benefits; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

H.R. 5139. A bill to amend the Social Security Act to establish a national right to shelter for the homeless, to provide assistance for the homeless under the AFDC and SSI programs, and to modify such programs to aid in the prevention of homelessness among families, children, and disabled and institutionalized persons; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LELAND (for himself, Mr. BARNES, Mr. CROCKETT, Mrs. COLLINS, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. DE LUGO, Mr. DICKS, Mr. FAUNTROY, Mr. FAZIO, Mr. FOGLIETTA, Mr. FRANK, Mr. FUSTER, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mr. KASTENMEIER, Mr. LEVIN of Michigan, Mr. LOWRY of Washington, Mr. MARKEY, Mr. MATSUI, Mr. MITCHELL, Mr. OBERSTAR, Mr. PEPPER, Mr. PERKINS, Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. RODINO, Mr. SAVAGE, Mr. SCHEUER, Mr. TOWNS, Mr. WAXMAN, Mr. WEISS, Mrs. KENNELLY, Mr. LUNDINE, Mr. HAWKINS, Mr. RANGEL, Mr. VENTO, Mrs. BOXER, and Mr. MOODY):

H.R. 5140. A bill to prevent homelessness and to provide a comprehensive aid package for homeless persons; jointly, to the Committees on Ways and Means, Agriculture, Education and Labor, Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs, Energy and Commerce, and Veterans' Affairs.

By Mr. McCLOSKEY:

H.R. 5141. A bill to amend the Toxic Substances Control Act to establish certain requirements regarding the disposal of polychlorinated biphenyls, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mrs. ROUKEMA (for herself, Mr. FASCELL, and Mr. PORTER):

H.R. 5142. A bill to prohibit the production of binary nerve gas weapons, to encourage the negotiation of an international agreement to stop the use, production, proliferation, and stockpiling of lethal chemical weapons, and to encourage the improvement of defenses against the effects of the use of binary chemical weapons on U.S. Armed Forces; jointly, to the Committees on Foreign Affairs, and Armed Services.

By Mr. SENSENBRENNER:

H.R. 5143. A bill to amend title VIII of the act commonly referred to as the Civil Rights Act of 1968 to provide the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the Attorney General with additional authority to enforce rights to fair housing, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. TORRICELLI (for himself, Mr. SMITH of Florida, and Mr. MONTGOMERY):

H.R. 5144. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to provide that the interest on certain obligations issued by an issuer who is in arrears with respect to another obligation issued by the issuer, or guaranteed by a guarantor who is in arrears with respect to another obligation guaranteed by the guarantor, is not exempt from tax; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. VENTO:

H.R. 5145. A bill to amend the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Act of 1983 to require that excess cheese held by the Commodity Credit Corporation be made available, at the request of the chief executive officer of a State, upon a showing of need, and without charge, for distribution by eligible agencies in the State; to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. WALGREN (for himself and Mr. WAXMAN):

H.R. 5146. A bill to provide immunosuppressive drugs to organ transplant centers; jointly, to the Committees on Ways and Means, and Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. WAXMAN (for himself, Mr. LELAND, Mrs. COLLINS, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. FORD of Tennessee, and Mr. DIXON):

H.R. 5147. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to provide programs of newborn genetic screening; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. WEAVER (for himself, Mr. AUCOIN, Mr. LOWRY of Washington, Mr. WILLIAMS, and Mr. WYDEN):

H.R. 5148. A bill to enable States primarily affected by the siting of repositories for high-level radioactive waste or spent nuclear fuel to participate effectively in the site selection, review, approval process; to direct the Department of Energy to reconsider its choice of sites for characterization as the first repository under clarified selection criteria; to allow the Department of Energy to consider sites in crystalline rock as eligible for characterization as the first repository; to require the Department of Energy to prepare an environmental impact statement for site characterization activities; and for other purposes; jointly, to the Committees on Interior and Insular Affairs, and Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. LELAND (for himself, Mr. FAUNTROY, Mr. UDALL, Mr. YOUNG of Alaska, Mr. VENTO, Mr. LAGOMARSINO, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. ALEXANDER, Mr. BARTON of Texas, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. BEREUTER, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. BEVILL, Mr. BLAZ, Mr. BONIOR of Michigan, Mr. BROWN of California, Mr. BRYANT, Mrs. BURTON of California, Mrs. BYRON, Mr. CHAPPIE, Mr. CLINGER, Mr. COELHO, Mrs. COLLINS, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. CROCKETT, Mr. DANNEMEYER, Mr. DARDEN, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. DE LUGO, Mr. DIXON, Mr. DONNELLY, Mr. DOWDY of Mississippi, Mr. Dwyer of New Jersey, Mr. DYMALLY, Mr. FAZIO, Mr. FORD of Tennessee, Mr. FRANK, Mr. GARCIA, Mr. GILMAN, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mr. GORDON, Mr. GRAY of Illinois, Mr. GRAY of Pennsylvania, Mr. HAWKINS, Mr. HAYES, Mr. HORTON, Mr. HOWARD, Mr. HUCKABY, Mr. JONES of North Carolina, Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. KASTENMEIER, Mrs. KENNELLY, Mr. KINDNESS, Mr. KOSTMAYER, Mr. LANTOS, Mr. LEHMAN of California, Mr. LEHMAN of Florida, Mr. LEVIN of Michigan, Mr. LEWIS of California, Mr. LUNDINE, Mr. McDADE, Mr. MANTON, Mr. MARKEY, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. MITCHELL, Mr. MOLLOHAN, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, Mr. MURPHY, Mr. OBERSTAR, Mr. OBEY, Mr. OWENS, Mr. PASHAYAN, Mr. PRICE, Mr. RAHALL, Mr. RANGEL, Mr. REID, Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. RODINO, Mr. ROE, Mr. ROSE, Mr. SAVAGE, Mrs. SCHROEDER, Mr. SEIBERLING, Mr. SHUMWAY, Mr. SMITH of Florida, Mr. STAGGERS, Mr. STANGELAND, Mr. STARK, Mr. STOKES, Mr. SUNIA, Mr. TOWNS, Mr. VISCLOSKY, Mr. WALGREN, Mr. WEAVER, Mr. WEISS, Mr. WHEAT, Mr. WHITLEY, Mr. WILLIAMS, Mr. WILSON, Mr. WORTLEY, Mr. WYLIE, Mr. WOLPE, and Mrs. BOGGS):

H.J. Res. 666. Joint resolution expressing the sense of Congress in support of a commemorative structure within the National Park System dedicated to the promotion of understanding, knowledge, opportunity, and equality for all people; to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

By Mr. PORTER (for himself, Mr. LANTOS, Mr. HOYER, Mr. GILMAN, Mr. YATRON, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. RODINO, Mr. ACKERMAN, Mr. SCHEUER, and Mrs. BURTON of California):

H.J. Res. 667. Joint resolution to designate August 1, 1986, as "Helsinki Human Rights Day"; jointly, to the Committees on Foreign Affairs, and Post Office and Civil Service.

By Mr. McCURDY:

H. Con. Res. 364. Concurrent resolution providing for a conditional adjournment of the two Houses from June 26 or 27 until July 14, 1986; considered and agreed to.

By Mr. BADHAM:

H. Res. 488. Resolution expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the Tax Reform Act of 1985 should be amended to reinstate the deduction for contributions to individual retirement accounts and to increase from $250 to $2,000 the amount which may be deducted for any taxable year by or on behalf of spouses who have no compensation for such taxable year; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CRAIG (for himself, Mr. STENHOLM, and Mr. ROBERT F. SMITH):

H. Res. 489. Resolution providing for the consideration of the resolution (H.J. Res. 27) proposing an amendment to the U.S. Constitution to establish fiscal responsibility through balanced Federal budgets; to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. RODINO:

H. Res. 490. Resolution providing amounts from the contingent fund of the House for further expenses of investigations and studies by the Committee on the Judiciary in the second session of the Ninety-ninth Congress; to the Committee on House Administration.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

413. By the SPEAKER: Memorial of the legislature of the State of California, relative to the dairy herd buy-out program and the Mediterranean fruit fly; to the Committee on Agriculture.

414. Also, memorial of the legislature of the State of California, relative to Filipino war veterans; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

415. Also, memorial of the legislature of the State of California, relative to the Federal Tax Reform Act of 1985; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

416. Also, memorial of the legislature of the State of Louisiana, relative to the formula for distributing funds to the respective States in the Superfund Program; jointly, to the Committees on Energy and Commerce and Public Works and Transportation.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 1 of rule XXII, private bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. DOWDY of Mississippi:

H.R. 5149. A bill for the relief of Joseph W. Newman; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. GALLO:

H.R. 5150. A bill for the relief of Maria Camargo Rickle; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. LOTT:

H.R. 5151. A bill to provide for the consideration under the Color of Title Act of a certain parcel of land in Waynesboro, MS; to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

By Mr. ROSE:

H.R. 5152. A bill for the relief of the Carolinas Cotton Growers Association, Inc.; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ROWLAND of Connecticut:

H.R. 5153. A bill for the relief of Maria Helena Vas and Jose Maria Vas; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII, sponsors were added to public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 64: Mr. DASCHLE.

H.R. 471: Mr. DREIER of California, Mr. FAWELL, and Mr. ZSCHAU.

H.R. 927: Mr. HYDE.

H.R. 1059: Mr. GOODLING and Mr. SCHAEFER.

H.R. 1213: Mr. HOWARD.

H.R. 1402: Mr. ECKART of Ohio, Mrs. BOGGS, and Mr. WOLPE.

H.R. 1453: Mr. DE LUGO, Mr. FAUNTROY, Mr. KLECZKA, Mrs. BURTON of California, Mr. SIKORSKI, and Mr. SCHUMER.

H.R. 1613: Mr. PENNY.

H.R. 1705: Mr. PORTER.

H.R. 1875: Mr. HORTON, Mr. JENKINS, Mrs. BURTON of California, Mr. MARTIN of New York, Mr. YATES, Mr. STUDDS, and Mr. BUSTAMANTE.

H.R. 1946: Mr. DANIEL, Mr. MATSUI, Mr. MONTGOMERY, and Mr. OWENS.

H.R. 1985: Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT.

H.R. 2353: Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut.

H.R. 2482: Mr. NOWAK.

H.R. 2504: Mr. EDGAR and Mr. DREIER of California.

H.R. 2815: Mr. NEAL.

H.R. 3040: Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 3137: Mr. BOUCHER.

H.R. 3232: Mr. KINDNESS.

H.R. 3465: Mr. SAVAGE.

H.R. 3469: Mr. STARK. Mr. EDGAR, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. DORGAN of North Dakota, and Mr. KOSTMAYER.

H.R. 3487: Mrs. BOXER.

H.R. 3643: Mr. GUNDERSON.

H.R. 3646: Mr. DANIEL.

H.R. 3649: Mr. DANIEL.

H.R. 3655: Mrs. BOXER, Mr. DYSON, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. OBERSTAR, Mr. OWENS, Mr. TAUZIN, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. VENTO, and Mr. YOUNG of Alaska.

H.R. 3799: Mr. WOLPE and Mr. WEISS.

H.R. 3968: Mr. DIOGUARDI and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4003: Mr. BURTON of Indiana.

H.R. 4046: Mr. KASTENMEIER.

H.R. 4096: Mr. MYERS of Indiana, Mr. PRICE, Mr. VALENTINE, Mr. HENDON, Mr. JONES of North Carolina, Mr. CARPER, Mr. DYMALLY, Mr. OWENS, Mr. TOWNS, Mr. CROCKETT, Mr. PANETTA, Mr. NEAL, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. DAVIS, Mr. CARNEY, Mr. RUDD, Mr. HOYER, and Mr. ROSE.

H.R. 4155: Mr. MINETA, Mr. BIAGGI, Mr. SOLARZ, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. FISH, Mr. HAWKINS, and Mr. BRYANT.

H.R. 4179: Mr. LELAND, Mr. MOORHEAD, and Mr. TORRES.

H.R. 4273: Mr. RAHALL and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4300: Mr. HOYER.

H.R. 4338: Mr. EMERSON and Mr. DOWNEY of New York.

H.R. 4344: Mr. PURSELL and Mr. FORD of Michigan.

H.R. 4365: Mr. VENTO, Mr. JACOBS, Mr. HAYES, Mr. OBERSTAR, and Mr. PENNY.

H.R. 4368: Mr. FRANK, Mr. LELAND, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. REID, and Mrs. BOXER.

H.R. 4489: Mr. ROBERT F. SMITH.

H.R. 4496: Mr. HUGHES, Mr. VENTO, Mr. DORNAN of California, and Mr. HAYES.

H.R. 4497: Mr. HUGHES, Mr. VENTO, Mr. DORNAN of California, and Mr. HAYES.

H.R. 4499: Mr. DE LUGO, Mr. MURPHY, and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4500: Mr. DE LUGO and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4501: Mr. DE LUGO and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4502: Mr. DE LUGO and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4503: Mr. DE LUGO and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4504: Mr. DE LUGO and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4505: Mr. DE LUGO and Mr. KOLTER.

H.R. 4506: Mr. DE LUGO, Mr. KOLTER, and Mr. KASTENMEIER.

H.R. 4538: Mr. RUDD, Mr. HILER, Mr. BARNARD, and Mr. BADHAM.

H.R. 4545: Mr. LAFALCE and Mr. SEIBERLING.

H.R. 4579: Mr. LENT.

H.R. 4612: Mr. LEHMAN of Florida, Mr. DONNELLY, Mr. GARCIA, Mr. DOWNEY of New York, Mr. EVANS of Illinois, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. WISE, Mr. SAVAGE, Mr. SMITH of Florida, Mr. BROWN of California, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. TRAFICANT, Mr. SPRATT, Mr. DWYER of New Jersey, Mr. ROBINSON, Mr. ACKERMAN, Ms. KAPTUR, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. EDWARDS of California, Mr. BEDELL, Mr. FAZIO, Mr. LAFALCE, Mr. FROST, Mr. DORGAN of North Dakota, Mr. WEAVER, Mr. MRAZEK, Mr. TORRES, and Mr. HENDON.

H.R. 4630: Mr. ANTHONY, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. JONES of North Carolina, Mr. CROCKETT, Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. ACKERMAN, Mr. COLEMAN of Texas, Mr. BARNES, Mr. SEIBERLING, Mr. CARPER, and Mr. FAZIO.

H.R. 4639: Mr. OWENS.

H.R. 4696: Mr. OLIN.

H.R. 4711: Ms. MIKULSKI and Mr. LUNDINE.

H.R. 4713: Mr. GORDON, Mr. SWINDALL, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, Mr. GREEN, and Mr. MOODY.

H.R. 4723: Mr. ROE.

H.R. 4761: Mr. GOODLING, Mr. LEHMAN of California, Mr. STUMP, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. MOLLOHAN, Mr. WILLIAMS, Mr. BLILEY, and Mr. MCMILLAN.

H.R. 4762: Mr. FISH, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, Mr. HAWKINS, and Mr. KASTENMEIER.

H.R. 4764: Mr. HORTON and Mr. LAFALCE.

H.R. 4766: Mr. DENNY SMITH.

H.R. 4772: Mr. MOLLOHAN and Mr. RAHALL.

H.R. 4825: Mrs. COLLINS.

H.R. 4831: Mr. FISH, Mr. SYNAR, Mr. MOORHEAD, Mr. HYDE, Mr. FEIGHAN, Mr. KINDNESS, Mr. STAGGERS, Mr. SHAW, Mr. HUBBARD, Mr. DEWINE, and Mr. SWINDALL.

H.R. 4853: Mr. BOULTER and Mr. TALLON.

H.R. 4870: Mr. DORNAN of California.

H.R. 4871: Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. ROSE, Mr. FLORIO, and Mr. MARKEY.

H.R. 4882: Mr. FEIGHAN, Mr. KOLTER, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, and Mr. COLEMAN of Texas.

H.R. 4886: Mrs. SCHNEIDER.

H.R. 4919: Mr. ANDERSON, Mr. BARNES, Mr. BRYANT, Mr. BUSTAMANTE, Mr. COOPER, Mr. FRANK, Mr. GEPHARDT, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mr. HALL of Ohio, Mr. HUGHES, Mr. LEHMAN of Florida, Mr. RAHALL, Mr. SMITH of Iowa, Mr. STOKES, Mr. TOWNS, and Mr. VOLKMER.

H.R. 4920: Mr. MONSON and Mrs. BENTLEY.

H.R. 4922: Ms. KAPTUR and Mr. MITCHELL.

H.R. 5000: Mr. DIOGUARDI.

H.R. 5048: Mr. FIELDS and Mr. WILSON.

H.R. 5050: Mr. DICKS, Mr. MCCLOSKEY, Mrs. BENTLEY, and Mrs. COLLINS.

H.R. 5061: Mr. PENNY, Mr. HORTON, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. TOWNS, and Mr. ERDREICH.

H.R. 5081: Mr. TORRICELLI.

H.J. Res. 127: Mr. BEDELL, Mr. WILSON, Mr. YATRON, Mr. LEHMAN of Florida, and Mr. BONIOR of Michigan.

H.J. Res. 262: Mr. LAGOMARSINO, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, and Mr. RAHALL.

H.J. Res. 311: Mr. MOLLOHAN.

H.J. Res. 417: Mr. HALL of Ohio, Mr. CONTE, Mr. LAFALCE, Mr. FAUNTROY, and Mr. TORRICELLI.

H.J. Res. 435: Mr. WILLIAMS.

H.J. Res. 504: Mr. DELLUMS, Mrs. MARTIN of Illinois, and Mr. SCHAEFER.

H.J. Res. 512: Mr. FISH, Mr. MURPHY, Mr. LEHMAN of Florida, and Mr. GREEN.

H.J. Res. 524: Mr. NEAL.

H.J. Res. 529: Mr. SWINDALL, Mr. OBERSTAR, Mrs. KENNELLY, Mr. SMITH of Florida, Mr. VALENTINE, and Mr. SPRATT.

H.J. Res. 531: Mr. LEWIS of Florida, Mr. BATEMAN, Mr. WOLF, Mr. FAUNTROY, Mrs. BYRON, Mr. STOKES, Mr. RUSSO, Ms. OAKAR, Mr. LIPINSKI, Mr. DONNELLY, Mr. REID, Mr. NIELSON of Utah, Mr. WISE, Mrs. MARTIN of Illinois, Mr. BROOKS, Mrs. VUCANOVICH, Mr. NEAL, Mr. MANTON, Mr. COATS, Mrs. COLLINS, Mr. SMITH of New Jersey, Mr. DARDEN, and Mr. DUNCAN.

H.J. Res. 552: Mr. JACOBS, Mr. COURTER, Mr. EVANS of Illinois, Mr. HENDON, Mr. STUMP, Mr. MILLER of Washington, Mr. MILLER of California, Mr. MILLER of Ohio, Mr. RINALDO, and Mr. KASICH.

H.J. Res. 577: Mr. SOLARZ, Mr. BOEHLERT, Mr. BROYHILL, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. CHANDLER, Mr. CHENEY, Mr. DELAY, Mr. EVANS of Iowa, Mr. LEWIS of California, Mr. MADIGAN, Mr. MOORHEAD, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, Mr. PORTER, Mr. ROBINSON, Mr. ROWLAND of Georgia, Mr. ZSCHAU, Mr. SOLOMON, Mr. STALLINGS, Mr. STANGELAND, Mr. SPENCE, Mr. PRICE, Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. RITTER, Mr. SKEEN, Mr. PICKLE, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. DARDEN, Mr. SKELTON, Mr. YOUNG of Missouri, Mr. COLEMAN of Missouri, Mr. VOLKMER, Mr. SMITH of Iowa, Mr. BROOMFIELD, Mr. CHAPPIE, Mr. BOLAND, Mr. YOUNG of Florida, Mr. JACOBS, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. HUGHES, Mr. NELSON of Florida, Mr. COBLE, Mr. WHITEHURST, Mrs. KENNELLY, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. BOULTER, Mrs. LLOYD, Mr. DUNCAN, Mr. BORSKI, Mr. WATKINS, Mr. BILIRAKIS, Mr. BEILENSON, Mr. ROGERS, Mr. GARCIA, Mr. BIAGGI, Mr. WEISS, Mr. LIGHTFOOT, Mr. CRANE, Mr. PETRI, Mr. ANNUNZIO, and Mr. ALEXANDER.

H.J. Res. 607: Mr. BROWN of California and Mr. SCHEUER.

H.J. Res. 612: Mr. HOWARD, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. LIPINSKI, Mr. MONSON, Mr. HORTON, Mr. KOSTMAYER, Mr. LAGOMARSINO, and Mr. DAUB.

H.J. Res. 628: Mr. WYLIE, Mr. GEPHARDT, and Mr. LEHMAN of California.

H.J. Res. 642: Mr. FROST, Mr. CHANDLER, and Mr. DYSON.

H.J. Res. 649: Mr. COELHO, Mr. KOSTMAYER, Mr. MARTINEZ, and Mr. O'BRIEN.

H.J. Res. 656: Mr. GOODLING, Mr. FASCELL, Mr. HENRY, Mr. HUGHES, Mr. WILSON, Mr. BEDELL, Mr. HOWARD, Mr. WALGREN, Mr. WYDEN, Mr. BEVILL, Mrs. SCHROEDER, Mr. LEHMAN of Florida, Mr. HEFNER, Mr. CARR, Mr. JONES of Tennessee, Mr. FOWLER, Mr. PANETTA, Mr. RAHALL, Mr. ROSE, Mr. MAVROULES, Mr. RODINO, Mr. TRAXLER, Mr. STOKES, Mr. LAFALCE, Mr. SCHEUER, Mrs. SMITH of Nebraska, Mr. EVANS of Iowa, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. KANJORSKI, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. NATCHER, and Mr. EDGAR.

H.J. Res. 657: Mr. WALGREN, Mr. SUNIA, Mr. HEFTEL of Hawaii, Mr. MCDADE, Mr. KOSTMAYER, Mr. BOLAND, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, Mr. FAUNTROY, Mrs. HOLT, Mr. BEVILL, Mr. HOWARD, Mr. WORTLEY, Mr. KLECZKA, Mr. CONTE, Mr. ROE, Mr. KINDNESS, and Mrs. BENTLEY.

H.J. Res. 658: Mr. LAGOMARSINO, Mr. WORTLEY, and Mr. WHITEHURST.

H. Con. Res. 129: Mr. SMITH of Florida and Mr. HAYES.

H. Con. Res. 244: Mr. EARLY.

H. Con. Res. 332: Mr. KANJORSKI, Mr. MOORHEAD, Mr. PEPPER, Mr. EMERSON, Mr. DAUB, Mr. EVANS of Illinois, Mr. MICA, Mr. LAGOMARSINO, Mr. CONTE, Mr. RUSSO, Mr. HUNTER, Mr. SMITH of New Jersey, and Mr. FLORIO.

H. Con. Res. 333: Mr. WHITTAKER, Mr. LOEFFLER, Mr. THOMAS of Georgia, Mr. COATS, Mr. VOLKMER, and Ms. KAPTUR.

H. Con. Res. 334: Mr. PORTER.

H. Con. Res. 336: Mr. BARNES, Mrs. COLLINS, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. EDGAR, Mr. LUNDINE, Mr. MCCURDY, Mr. MITCHELL, Ms. OAKAR, Mr. PEASE, Mr. WILLIAMS, Mr. FEIGHAN, and Mr. RAHALL.

H. Con. Res. 338: Mr. HORTON, Mr. HOWARD, Mr. SPRATT, Mr. ACKERMAN, Mr. MATSUI, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, Mr. OWENS, Mr. WEAVER, and Mr. SCHEUER.

H. Con. Res. 355: Mrs. SCHNEIDER, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. CHAPPELL, Mr. SMITH of Florida, Mr. SAXTON, Mr. BOEHLERT, Mr. HORTON, Mr. ROE, Mr. RODINO, Mr. DYMALLY, Mrs. LLOYD, Mr. YATRON, and Mr. BADHAM.

H. Con. Res. 362: Mr. RODINO, Mr. KOSTMAYER, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. LELAND, Mr. COELHO, Mr. FAZIO, Mr. HENRY, Mr. LEVIN of Michigan, Mr. YATES, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. ANNUNZIO, Mr. DICKS, Mrs. BURTON of California, Mr. GARCIA, Mr. WALGREN, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. HOWARD, Mr. MRAZEK, Mr. HEFTEL of Hawaii, Mr. HAMILTON, Mr. LAGOMARSINO, Mr. SCHEUER, Mr. MACKAY, Mr. LANTOS, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. ROE, Mr. OBEY, Mr. EDWARDS of California, Mr. EARLY, Mr. FRANK, Mr. KINDNESS, Mr. RAHALL, and Mr. MURPHY.

H. Res. 407: Mr. ASPIN, Mr. BARNES, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. BONIOR of Michigan, Mr. BONER of Tennessee, Mr. CHAPPELL, Mrs. COLLINS, Mr. CROCKETT, Mr. DANIEL, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. DUNCAN, Mr. EDGAR, Mr. EDWARDS of California, Mr. GILMAN, Mr. GREGG, Mr. KASICH, Mr. KILDEE, Mr. KOSTMAYER, Mr. LEACH of Iowa, Mr. LOWRY of Washington, Mr. MCGRATH, Mr. MCMILLAN, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. MAVROULES, Mr. NEAL, Mr. NOWAK, Mr. PEASE, Mr. RANGEL, Mr. ROBINSON, Mr. SOLARZ, Mr. ST GERMAIN, Mr. SCHEUER, Mrs. SCHNEIDER, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. TOWNS, Mr. VENTO, Mr. WORTLEY, and Mr. WYDEN.

H. Res. 412: Mr. TAUZIN and Mr. COBEY.

H. Res. 451: Mr. FUQUA, Mrs. LLOYD, Mr. RODINO, Mr. SWINDALL, and Mr. DIOGUARDI.

H. Res. 461: Mr. SEIBERLING, Mr. MAZZOLI, Mr. HUGHES, Mr. SYNAR, Mrs. SCHROEDER, Mr. FRANK, Mr. CROCKETT, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. MORRISON of Connecticut, Mr. FEIGHAN, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. BOUCHER, Mr. STAGGERS, Mr. SMITH of Florida, Mr. KINDNESS, Mr. LUNGREN, Mr. SENSENBRENNER, Mr. MCCOLLUM, Mr. SHAW, Mr. GEKAS, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. DANNEMEYER, Mr. BROWN of Colorado, Mr. SWINDALL, and Mr. TORRICELLI.

H. Res. 468: Mr. HARTNETT, Mr. FASCELL, Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. SAXTON, Mr. PASHAYAN, and Mrs. BOXER.

H. Res. 476: Mrs. HOLT, Mrs. ROUKEMA, Mr. DOWDY of Mississippi, Mr. TAUZIN, Mr. DORNAN of California, Mr. FISH, Mr. ROWLAND of Georgia, Mr. YATRON, Mr. WORTLEY, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. LEWIS of Florida, Mr. HEFNER, Mr. CHANDLER, Mr. BEVILL, Mr. HENRY, Mr. SAXTON, Mr. REID, Mr. YOUNG of Florida, Mr. BILIRAKIS, Mr. LUKEN, Mr. HORTON, Mr. KRAMER, Mrs. BENTLEY, Mr. RAHALL, Mr. DARDEN, Mrs. JOHNSON, Mr. FEIGHAN, Mr. SWINDALL, Mr. LIPINSKI, Mr. ECKART of Ohio, Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. MONSON, Mr. VALENTINE, and Mr. DIOGUARDI.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of rule XXII, petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

408. By the SPEAKER: Petition of the Bay Mills Indian Community, Brimley, MI, relative to the Internal Revenue Service and Department of Justice policy on taxation of treaty reserved resources; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

409. Also, petition of the Lower Brule Sioux Indian Tribe, Lower Brule, SD, relative to the proposed imposition of Federal taxes on income derived from treaty-protected resources; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

410. Also, petition of the Northwest Indian Fisheries Commission, Olympia, WA, relative to the effects of the Internal Revenue Service to tax treaty Indian fishing income; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

411. Also, petition of the Prairie Island Tribal Council of the Prairie Island Sioux Community, relative to the policy of the Internal Revenue Service regarding Indians' salmon-fishing income; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

SENATE—Thursday, June 26, 1986

(Legislative day of Monday, June 23, 1986)

The Senate met at 11 a.m., on the expiration of the recess, and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Richard C. Halverson, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Gracious Father, we pray for Dave Joy, lab manager of the Senate Photographic Studio, as he undergoes intensive cancer surgery on Tuesday, July 1. Grant Your comfort to his family, successful surgery, and a complete and rapid recovery.

Father God, as Independence Day recess begins, we pray for our families and the Senators' rest and relaxation. Grant, Father, that there will be opportunities for family togetherness, nurture, reconciliation, and renewal. You know, Lord, the responsibilities that await the Senators as they return to their States—constituent requests and needs which require attention. You know the necessity for devoting time to election campaigns, not only for those who are running, but for colleagues who will be supporting them.

Gracious God, make it possible for all the work that must be done to get done—but give to the Senators the will and the wisdom to make time for their loved ones and themselves. May this recess result in full satisfaction in every way so that the Senators will return refreshed and ready for the busy days through mid-August. In His name Who is life and light. Amen.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able and distinguished majority leader, Senator ROBERT DOLE, is recognized.

JULY QUARTERLY REPORT

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, the mailing and filing date for the 1986 July Quarterly Report required by the Federal Election Campaign Act, as amended, is Tuesday, July 15, 1986. Principal campaign committees supporting Senate candidates in 1986 elections file their reports with the Senate Office of Public Records, 232 Hart Building, Washington, DC 20510-7116.

The Public Records Office will be open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. on the filing date for the purpose of accepting these filings. In general reports will be available to the public 24 hours after receipt. For further information, please contact the Public Records Office on (202) 224-0322.

SCHEDULE

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, first, let me indicate that I will yield 3 minutes of my leaders' time to the distinguished Senator from Connecticut [Mr. WEICKER]. Then I will reserve the remainder of my time until sometime after 11 or 11:40.

Between 11 a.m. and 11:40 a.m., the time will be equally divided between the chairman and the ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee for debate on the Manion nomination.

The time between 11:40 and 12 is reserved for the two leaders or their designees, under the standing order, of 10 minutes each, and I will yield 3 minutes of my time to Senator WEICKER.

At some point during the day, the following Senators will be recognized on special orders for not to exceed 5 minutes each: Senators THURMOND, CRANSTON, HUMPHREY, DECONCINI, ROTH, PROXMIRE, QUAYLE, SASSER, MATHIAS, KERRY, and WEICKER. Of course, if they speak now, that time will come out of the debate on the Manion nomination.

At 12 noon, under the provisions of rule XXII, a live quorum will begin, to be followed by a cloture vote on the Manion nomination.

Following the cloture vote, regardless of its outcome, it is anticipated that the Senate will turn to the consideration of three treaties on the Executive Calendar, Calendar Nos. 8, 11, and 12, to be followed by three votes on the treaties—or maybe two votes; we can arrange that.

Following the treaty votes, if cloture is not invoked on the Manion nomination, the Senate will resume legislative session, and it will be our intention to turn to the supplemental conference report. I think we can say at this point that we are not going to take up the housing bill before the recess, but there is a chance that the budget conference report will be available later today. I have not discussed this with the chairman of the Budget Committee, but I believe an agreement has been reached. So I hope we can dispose of that later today, if not tomorrow.

SOUTH AFRICA

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, will the majority leader yield for a question?

Mr. DOLE. I yield.

Mr. KENNEDY. We are at the present time trying to take the House-passed bill on the sanctions on South Africa, which is at the desk, and there is other legislation which Senator WEICKER, Senator CRANSTON, and I have cosponsored that is going to committees in the Senate.

This is an issue which is of enormous inportance and consequence, and I am wondering, as we are coming into the final hours before the recess, if the leader can give us any assurance that we will have an opportunity to be able to address that particular issue in the period between the time we come back in mid-July and mid-August, and be able at least to use his best offices to ensure that we are going to be able to have a debate and action on the floor.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, out of whose time is this coming?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. EAST). The majority leader yielded.

Mr. DOLE. I am not going to spend time on that at this time, but I will be happy to discuss it later.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that until such time as the manager of the nomination is here to control half the time on this side, the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY], may control half the time on this side, up to 11:40 a.m.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I will be glad to yield 1 minute of our time, if the majority leader would like to respond.

Mr. DOLE. I say, in response, that I know it is an important issue. It has been before the Senate before. The last time, we were able to reach some agreement. I would have to discuss this with the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator LUGAR. I have not done that.

It is my hope to meet with members of the Black Caucus on the House side before the recess.

So, we are aware of it, and we are certainly sensitive to the need to respond, but at this point I cannot indicate when.

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by the Member on the floor.

INTEREST RATES, III: TESTING NEW GROUND

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, before we embark on another "well-earned" recess, I would like to take a few moments of my colleagues' time on the subject of interest rates, and the course of the American economy.

Before elaborating further on my views on the need for interest rate reductions, I want to thank my distinguished colleague from Wisconsin, BILL PROXMIRE, for his remarks on this subject yesterday morning. The ranking member of the Banking Committee obviously has agreed to disagree with me; and I respect his prerogative in doing so. Senator PROXMIRE is second to no one in his awesome command of the field of banking and finance.

Nevertheless, Mr. President, I believe my colleague from Wisconsin will yet see the light—if he continues to listen to my remarks about the economy, and put the issue of interest rates in the proper context of the economic revolution that is sweeping the world economy.

THE BEST ANTIDOTE

Mr. President, I have referred before to this economic revolution. Trade, finance, and the flow of information that shapes market decisions are moving at a faster pace: They have to, in this age of high technology, and high stakes, for the international investor. The benefits of less regulation; lower and fairer taxes; more vigorous competition in open markets; and less Big Government manipulation of the economy are being appreciated as never before. We are moving into new territory for the world economy—the rules are changing, and America is at the cutting edge of change.

That's why we have to take some risks as the economic environment is transformed. Right now I believe we have to take a calculated risk in favor of stronger, but stable economic growth both here and abroad. And it may not be such a great risk, after all—the best antidote to inflation is, and always has been, stable economic growth coupled with policies that enhance productivity. In my view, moving to a lower interest rate environment at this time would help stabilize, not disrupt, the economic situation.

THE PROPER ROLE

Mr. President, the role of the central bank—in our case the Federal Reserve—is obviously critical here. I think we would all agree that the proper function of the Fed is to supply the money and credit our economy demands, consistent with price stability. In so doing, the Fed must avoid the opposing evils of artificially restricting the natural course of economic growth, or, of reviving the scourge of inflation by pumping-out money in the vain hope of forcing the economy to grow.

That is a tough job to ask anyone to do, and I stand second to no one in my appreciation of the extraordinary skill Chairman Volcker has brought to the task. He has used the powers of the Fed to guide the economy through some very difficult economic times, and he has had a spectacular success against inflation—a success many thought impossible only 5 or 6 years ago.

But economic conditions are changing, Mr. President. The marketplace has yet to fully adjust to the revolution we call "Reagaonomics," a revolution still in progress. Partly as a result of that, the old standards of measurement don't quite mean what they used to: Measurements of money growth, productivity, and economic potential just aren't sending very clear signals anymore. That means we can't rely on economic theory alone for guidance: We have to look at what's going on in the real economy.

I submit that the real world evidence right now suggests that our central bank is still operating so as to restrain, not accommodate, our capacity for real, noninflationary growth.

A FIRM HAND

Mr. President, no one needs to warn this Senator of the danger and futility of pumping-out money that has nowhere to go. I lived through the 1970's, like everyone else here, and we all understand that is a recipe for disaster. But in the world of the later 1980's, there are places for money to go. In America, manufacturing capacity is lower than at any time since the recession. Unemployment remains at 7.3 percent. And inflation remains lower than in many years.

I have always been one who believes that a firm and consistent monetary policy is the best recipe for noninflationary growth. I still believe that. But let's face it: Our policy on money hasn't been very consistent, except that it is supposed to be geared to restraining inflation. Monetary targets haven't been met except when averaged over a period of time. Changes in the types of money, and their uses, have been invoked as a reason to discount money growth figures, as have special cases like the Continental Bank rescue effort.

Mr. President, it just isn't clear what we are targeting anymore, or why. So until we get better guidance, maybe what we need to do is to sort of discount the information revealed in the monetary aggregates by reference to real-world inflation, growth, and productive capacity. That, in fact, is what the financial markets have been doing for some time—which is why the exceptional growth in M-1 over the past year has not produced anything like a serious concern that inflation is on the march again.

Mr. President, it is a great tribute to Paul Volcker, and his colleagues at the Fed, that they have such outstanding credibility in the financial markets. That credibility has been rebuilt, slowly but decisively, over the past 7 years. It is an invaluable resource that we can draw on in setting the right economic course. And it is precisely that credibility that I believe allows the Fed to take the lead in moving to a lower-interest rate world economy.

INFORMATION

Finally, Mr. President, I would note that everyone's job would be easier if we had better information, and more information, about what our central bank is doing—and about what its aims are. There is a huge industry out there called Fed-watching—I am not sure it's an industry that adds a lot to our economy. The marketplace only works when it has good information, delivered as rapidly and precisely as possible. Even though the Fed must necessarily keep close any number of sensitive financial matters, surely its broad-gauge goals—and actions in pursuit of those goals—need to be a matter of public record in as detailed a fashion as possible. The reports Chairman Volcker makes pursuant to the Humphrey-Hawkins act do help, but they also seem to engender more mystic speculation than hard information about what is going on.

I hope these remarks give the Senator from Wisconsin, and all of my colleagues, a better understanding of the concerns I have. Let me say that I am far from alone in these concerns: A similar message is being heard in many quarters, from highly regarded analysts of our economic situation. As an illustration, I would like to submit for the RECORD at this time two articles from the current issue of Business Week. I do not agree with everything in these articles, but their general thrust is along the lines of what I have been saying:

There being no objection, the articles were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

WANTED: LEADERSHIP FROM THE FED

This year is witnessing revolutionary changes in fiscal policy. Congress is making efforts to wrestle the rampaging budget deficits to the ground, and it is considering the broadest reforms in the tax code in half a century. Long range, such changes should benefit the country enormously. But in the short term they create considerable uncertainty for business and individuals, which undoubtedly contributes to the sluggishness of the economy. For that reason alone, the Federal Reserve Board should respond with a more imaginative monetary policy.

Unfortunately, however, Fed Chairman Paul A. Volcker continues to brood about inflation. But the immediate threat to the country is not inflation. It's slow and uncertain growth. Consumer spending is lackluster, and business' capital spending is not expected to grow. Why should it? The utilization of industrial capacity now stands at less than 79 percent, a decline of 3 percent from last spring. In addition, the unemployment rate is stuck at what used to be the recession level of more than 7 percent. And foreign economies aren't doing too well, either.

What the Fed should do is stop focusing on inflation and push interest rates down. And it should do this in a way that signals an unambiguous commitment to economic growth—even, say, a one-point cut in the discount rate. Earlier this year interest rates came down rapidly, spurring a brisk economic advance. But interest rates have stopped declining. Instead, they are a bit higher now than they were two months ago. Meanwhile, the expected second-half rebound looks more and more like a fading dream. Some economists are saying the economy may grow less than 3 percent this year.

Volcker insists he is not against lower interest rates. It's just that he believes that other industrial countries should initiate the downward trend, and the U.S. can follow. That would be nice, but it is unlikely. The Fed should take the lead.

LOWERING INTEREST RATES: "AFTER YOU." "NO, AFTER YOU"

(By William Glasgall)

The U.S., West Germany, and Japan all agree that lower interest rates can stimulate economic growth. But because it is worried about a precipitous decline in the dollar, the U.S. wants its two partners to reduce their rates first. Germany and Japan, for their own domestic reasons, are resisting (page 47). It's a familiar standoff with one, exception: While the big countries stall, interest rates are edging higher, and the world economic recovery is beginning to falter.

This doesn't have to happen. All three nations are still hewing to conservative policies born in the inflationary 1970s, when spiraling oil prices, too much money, and the falling dollar meant rapid inflation. That's a curious perspective right now. With oil prices slumping, the Organization for Economic Cooperation & Development says that inflation in Japan and Germany will hover around zero. And in the U.S. it will barely break 2 percent. Says Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III: "I don't see any sign today of a return to inflation."

Indeed, with prices in the industrial world rising at their lowest rate in two decades, many economists now are wondering if deflation is next. In this sort of environment, reasons David G. Hartman, Data Resources Inc.'s chief international economist, "there's no reason not to go ahead" with rate cuts.

WAITING GAME

The trouble is, both of the major foreign player also have good domestic reasons for not cutting rates. With the effects of January tax cut and lower oil prices still working their way through the economy, Germany expects growth of 3 percent or more. So central bank chief Karl Otto Pohl thinks lower rates will only worsen an already too-high rate of money growth. The Germans don't believe cheaper money will do much to reduce their 9 percent unemployment rate, since demand for unskilled labor probably wouldn't expand anyway. But they do think a rate cut could heat up already bustling areas where skilled jobs go begging (page 48). And the Deutsche Bundesbank complains further that with Germany's discount rate now a mere three-quarters of a percentage point above its postwar low of 2.75 percent, another reduction could send German investors fleeing to other currencies in search of higher yields.

Japan's objections to rate cuts comprise a curious mix of local, national, and international factors. Included are worries that lower rates will squeeze bank profits, add fuel to a wild boom in Tokyo real estate, and increase U.S. protectionism by reversing the yen's 16-month-long rise. The Bank of Japan shares the Bundesbank's fear of low rates. At 3.5 percent the Bank of Japan's discount rate is at its lowest point since World War II. So, says Yoshindo Takahashi of the Nomura Research Institute: "It is worried that it won't have any additional cards to play."

The notion that rates have an absolute floor fails to impress First Boston Corp. Economist Albert M. Wojnilower, however. Wojnilower says Japanese central bankers have asked him, "Shouldn't there be a minimum below which a discount rate shouldn't go?" His answer: "When I joined the Federal Reserve in 1951, the discount rate was 1½ percent. We look to that time as a rather good one."

SIGNS OF WEAKNESS

Adding to the impetus for rate cuts is a slew of worrisome economic data. While German forecasters are optimistic about the year, their economy contracted at a 4 percent annual rate in the first quarter. Industrial production in Japan, where exporters are struggling to adjust to a strong yen, will hardly rise at all this year. And in the U.S., a host of indicators suggest that the expected boom following the collapse of OPEC this winter is still waiting to happen.

Despite these signs of weakness, interest rates are high. Cyrus J. Lawrence Inc. economist Edward S. Hyman Jr. observes that the real interest rate—the cost of money minus the inflation rate—is a burdensome 5 percent in the U.S., Japan, and Germany alike. Only once since the end of World War II—in 1983, when a tax cut pushed up the U.S. economy—has the industrial world staged a recovery with real rates so lofty, he observes.

Can't anyone act? Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul A. Volcker told the House Foreign Affairs Committee on June 18 that "other major industrialized nations" should be considering easing monetary policy. But the Fed, if it wanted, could take the first step. A unilateral move would risk signaling that the age of global economic cooperation, so vocally promoted by Baker, has yet to arrive. But the move would be worth the risk—especially if America's allies follow through with rate cuts. The world needs a push. Someone should start the engine.

Mr. CRANSTON. Mr. President, will the Senator from Massachusetts yield me 1 minute?

Mr. KENNEDY. I yield.

Mr. CRANSTON. Mr. President, I am delighted that the Senator from Massachusetts has brought up this all-important issue of apartheid. The Senator from Connecticut, who is standing, is also deeply interested in this matter, and he is one of the leaders in our efforts to bring this to a head.

We have a moral responsibility—this goes far beyond the matter of money—to provide leadership in bringing pressure to bear upon the South African Government to end apartheid. We, together, serve notice that we are going to do all within our power—there are many ways we can do it—to see that the Senate comes to grips with this matter and stands up and votes on this matter before we recess in August.

Mr. WEICKER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield me 30 seconds?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut has been yielded 3 minutes of the majority leader's time.

Mr. WEICKER. Mr. President, I should like to bring to the attention of the leadership on my side that whether or not the South African matter was to be brought up as an amendment to the Embassies bill was seriously discussed among Senator CRANSTON, Senator KENNEDY, and myself, which indicates the urgency we put on this matter.

I can assure my colleagues that within days that we get back from the recess, the issue will be on the Senate floor, and it is going to stay on the Senate floor until it is resolved.

While we have our recess and while we go through our parliamentary maneuvers, there are those who are dying, there are those who are dead, and the time has come to speak out now. I think the American people feel very clearly the obligation to speak out, and the only way they can do it is if we enact our proper role as leaders here on the Senate floor.

So I give fair warning as to what is going to happen within days of our return from this recess.

Mr. CRANSTON. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield, I simply add that I believe that the day we get back we will start this action, at least in terms of words, but far more than words, very soon after we return.

□ 1110

This matter is before three committees. There is another measure at the desk. There are many ways that we can get at it.

Mr. KENNEDY. In my concluding time, Mr. President, I just want to underline what our colleagues have stated, and that is that the principal sponsors of the legislation here in the Senate have every intention of assuring that the Senate have an opportunity to vote on the House bill and other measures before we recess in August.

NOMINATION OF DANIEL A. MANION, OF INDIANA, TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE SEVENTH CIRCUIT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut still has the floor.

Mr. WEICKER. Mr. President, what is the status of time now? Are we under leader's time or is the time under control of the distinguished Senator from South Carolina.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut has 1 minute remaining on the 3 minutes allotted to him.

Mr. WEICKER. I ask that I be allotted some time by the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I will be glad to allot the distinguished Senator 5 minutes. Will that be enough?

Mr. WEICKER. I thank my distinguished colleague from South Carolina.

Mr. President, I would like to address for the few minutes the matter of the Manion nomination. There are really two issues involved here. And it is to the second point that I would like to address my remarks.

When Mr. Manion comes for an up-and-down vote, I am going to vote against him and at such time I will give the reasons therefor.

But I would like to address the matter of using the filibuster, if you will, or the necessity of a cloture vote, as being a way of blocking the nomination.

During the past several years I have on more than one occasion gone head to head with my conservative colleagues as I felt that they have used the legislative process to circumvent the Constitution.

Now, the shoe is on the other foot. Many of my dear friends in those battles are using or misusing the constitutional process to circumvent a legislative matter.

Article 2, section 2, provides for the advice and consent of the U.S. Senate, and it requires two-thirds votes on matters of treaties. And that same section then clearly provides that there be a majority vote, simple majority vote when it comes to a matter of advice and consent on nominations.

What I am saying is to impose a supermajority, that is, 60 votes, instead of a simple majority, circumvents the intent of the Constitution.

I think it has been wrong in so many areas to use the legislative process to circumvent that Constitution. Now I see it in another form.

Mr. Manion deserves a vote up or down. My vote is going to be down. But that is the way it ought to be done.

If there are those who object to conservatives being appointed to court positions, then they ought to do something about it at the polls, not to use procedural methods to avoid the issue.

I am going to vote for cloture. I am going to vote for it today. I am going to vote for it every time it comes up. This nomination deserves a vote up or down.

I do not know who has the votes on Mr. Manion. I hope he is not confirmed. But to use cloture, to use that 60-vote majority is wrong. It is wrong.

The Constitution does not provide for supermajority for the advice-and-consent process when it comes to Presidential nominees.

I would only say what we are seeing here is again a convoluting of the process to achieve a particular end as in the case of so many matters convoluting the legislative process to get at the Constitution. That is done mostly by my conservative friends and now those on my side of the philosophical spectrum are using the filibuster, using the cloture process to achieve their end when clearly that is not provided for in the Constitution.

If Mr. Manion gets nominated and further conservatives are appointed to the court, maybe that will galvanize an American population and American constituency out there that is just sitting on its duff, not participating in the political process, and then being stuck with the results of that nonparticipation.

But that inactivity is not going to be excused by this Senator, nor am I going to substitute a convoluting of the process for that inactivity at the polls.

Matters of philosophy are decided by the electorate, not by running in at the last minute and, in effect, through the legislative process, defiling the intent of the Constitution of the United States.

I would hope that cloture is invoked, and I would hope then that the nomination of Daniel Manion is defeated.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. BIDEN. Who controls the time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware controls the time on the minority side and the chairman of the Judiciary Committee controls it on the majority side.

Mr. BIDEN. I yield 3 minutes to the Senator from New Jersey.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey is recognized.

Mr. BRADLEY. Mr. President, I have tried over the tenure of this administration not to impose my values and standards on the nominees submitted by President Reagan. At the same time, I believe there are basic character and competence standards which must be applied to all nominees.

There is, however, a higher standard which must be applied to nominees for the Federal judiciary. Here we are asked to confirm individuals for lifetime appointments. Here we are asked to appoint individuals who have the power and duty to safeguard the very fabric of our democratic society. For if we are not a society ruled by law, where basic civil rights are held sacrosanct, then we will no longer be a democracy.

So, Mr. President, I take especially seriously the Senate's responsibility for confirming Federal judges.

Today, we are considering the appointment of Daniel Manion to serve on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. The appellate court is the last arbiter of justice for most individuals, and I do not believe that Daniel Manion is qualified to assume that extremely important responsibility.

What are the standards which should be used to evaluate Federal judicial nominees? Clearly, a thorough knowledge and understanding of Federal law and judicial precedent is an absolute necessity. In addition, a commitment to upholding the Constitution, as it has been interpreted by the Supreme Court, is also essential. And, finally, it is imperative that these nominees possess the judicial temperament required to ensure all individuals equal justice under the law.

How well does Mr. Manion meet these standards?

Mr. Manion's legal experience is limited at best. He has never argued a case in a Federal appeals court; he has been first chair in few, if any, Federal trials. In fact, by his own description, Mr. Manion's legal practice primarily consisted of "collections in small claims." And the cases Mr. Manion has cited as the "most significant" in his career do not demonstrate the background in Federal legal issues that an appellate court judge should possess.

In a highly unusual move, more than 40 deans of respected American law schools have written to all of us urging the rejection of the Manion nomination because he has "virtually no experience with major Federal or other litigation." While supporters of Mr. Manion argue that he will gain knowledge of Federal law as he serves on the court of appeals, I do not believe this important court is the appropriate place for on-the-job training. This court is too important and there are too many qualified individuals to seek any but the most highly qualified individuals for this position.

Mr. Manion has also demonstrated a questionable commitment to respecting the authority of the Supreme Court. During his confirmation hearing, members of the Judiciary Committee questioned Mr. Manion closely about his views on the doctrine of selective incorporation by which protections in the Bill of Rights have been held to be binding on all the States. The statement of minority views in the committee report cites Mr. Manion's history of opposition to this doctrine. During the confirmation hearings, Mr. Manion acknowledged his earlier disapproval of the incorporation doctrine, but said he now believed that the protections in the first amendment apply to the States.

The committee report goes on to note Mr. Manion's opinion that this important doctrine "has become so integrated into our judicial system that I think it would be very difficult to overrule * * * although the Supreme Court could dissect it somewhat if it chose to do so." The report adds that Mr. Manion testified "that he had 'no idea' whether he would seek to disincorporate any fundamental rights." This lukewarm commitment to basic principles that have led to basic civil rights guarantees is very disturbing to me.

Finally, there is the question of judicial temperament. Clearly, one element of this is the demeanor and evenness of temper to keep sometimes emotionally charged trials functioning in an orderly manner. And, to my knowledge, no one has questioned Mr. Manion's comportment. But another essential element of judicial temperament is an open mind and a willingness to listen, without preconception, to the information presented to him. It is this ability that guarantees individuals equal justice under the law. Mr. Manion's consistent praise of organizations and promotion of literature that is directed to reversing the most basic civil rights and individual freedoms casts grave doubt on the objectivity required in a Federal judge.

So, Mr. President, I am forced to conclude that Mr. Manion does not meet the basic standards which I believe are critical for our Federal judiciary. And I cannot approve a nominee who cannot fulfill even the most minimal requirements that the American people have a right to expect from such an important Federal officeholder. I will not vote to confirm this nominee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. President, I had an opportunity last night to speak at some length to this nomination and we had, I think, a very engaging debate with the distinguished Senator from Utah who very valiantly and I think very well defended this nomination.

I would just like to make two statements at this point.

□ 1120

No. 1, let us keep in mind, as this short debate goes on this morning—and I emphasize "short" because we do not have much time—that the burden of putting this man on the court does not rest with those who believe he should not be on the court, but, under the Constitution, the burden is upon those who support this nomination to domonstrate that he possesses the excellence to sit on this court.

The second point I would like to make is really what is at stake here, in my view, is the role of the U.S. Senate and our attitude toward, quite frankly, the circuit court of appeals, with what regard we hold that court.

As a distinguished colleague recently reminded members of the Judiciary Committee, our duty to the Justice system is far greater than our duty to any single individual. I believe our duty dictates that Mr. Manion not be placed on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

I will further make that argument today, but I see my colleague from the State of Maryland is here and wishes to speak and I yield him 3 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland is recognized.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I rise first to state my very strong view that the motion to invoke cloture on debate on the Manion nomination should be defeated.

This nomination was called to the floor of the Senate on Tuesday. A cloture motion was filed immediately to cut off debate. It is not as though the matter has been debated at any length at the time the cloture petition was filed. Immediately upon the nomination being brought up a cloture motion was put into place.

Most of yesterday was spent on another piece of legislation, so that the opportunity to debate this matter was greatly limited. It was only yesterday evening, late, when my colleagues, the ranking minority member and the other members of the Judiciary Committee were able to speak to the nomination. Prior to that, only Senator EAGLETON, who made a very forceful and persuasive statement, was able to express a view on this matter. So, with respect to the motion that is coming up very shortly on the cloture, I think it should be defeated so that we are assured of adequate time to examine this nomination.

Now, on the nomination itself, I will oppose it. I believe the wrong question is being put to the Senate, and that is why Mr. Manion should not be confirmed. The question we should be considering is why should he be confirmed? We are talking about placing someone on the second highest court in the Nation, the second highest judicial level, for a lifetime appointment.

We do not have the argument here with respect to the President's nominees that is made in executive branch appointments, and that is that the President ought to be able to have with him to help run the executive branch the people he wants and the Senate should take that into account in passing on the nominee. This judicial nomination is to the third independent branch of Government. The President has made a nomination. It is up to us to evaluate the nominee's record and qualifications. The nominee, if approved, will serve for life. If you make a mistake, it is a lifetime mistake.

Now, it is very clear, with the controversy surrounding this nominee, that he falls short of the qualifications and the abilities that one would expect for a nominee to go on a Federal circuit court of appeals. The ABA committee found him barely qualified; a minority found him not qualified. The Judiciary Committee itself did not report this nominee favorably to the Senate.

Some have asserted, "Well, a political game is being played with the President." The answer to that is very simple, 264 nominees of President Reagan's circuit court of appeals have been confirmed by the Senate and only 4 of them have even gone to a record vote on the floor of the Senate.

An adverse judgment has already been passed on Mr. Manion. It was passed by the Judiciary Committee itself which refused to give him a favorable recommendation. They brought the nomination here to the floor without any recommendation after a failure in the committee to obtain a favorable recommendation for this nominee.

I submit that he falls far short of the standard which should prevail for Federal judicial appointments. The case has not been made as to why he should be a Federal judge, and the burden should be on those who are asserting that he ought to go on the bench for life. The burden ought not to be on those of us who oppose the nomination to prove that he is not qualified.

You are not entitled to be a Federal judge. It is something to be earned. The nominee, to go to the Federal bench, ought to bring a record of experience and quality that merits his selection for a lifetime appointment in a very important and responsible position. That case clearly has not been made for Mr. Manion. This nomination ought to be defeated and the opportunity to debate the nomination ought to continue so Members have the opportunity to express their views on this important matter.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr President, unless the proponents would like to speak, I yield 10 minutes to the distinguished Senator from the State of Mississippi.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi is recognized.

Mr. STENNIS. Mr. President, I know nothing about the gentleman that has been nominated except what I have learned here in connection with the case. And, on a personal basis, I certainly wish him well and I will not try to spear him in any way. But this does arouse in my mind a very serious question about the temperamental qualities that he seems to have that I believe probably will interfere seriously with carrying the immense load that goes with service on this particular court.

After all is said and done, our Supreme Court of the United States, as great a job as they do, actually passes on a very, very few cases. Percentagewise, it is just minimal in the course of a year just a very few people are directly affected by their cases being decided by the Supreme Court.

This court of appeals, as a whole, I think they do a marvelous job. They apply the legal principles in the law as passed by the Congress and as announced and followed generally by the people, by the Supreme Court of the United States. It is a tremendous undertaking and deserves and should have an abundance of our very best talent with endurance and will power to serve.

I do not like to be referring to myself in any way, but there is something a man learns in serving as a judge himself. I served several years as a trial judge in a court of unlimited jurisdiction, both civil and criminal. And in the course of that time, we had many cases, not involving great sums of money, but many cases.

Here is a man whose homestead is up, involves a lien on it or a mortgage on it.

Here is the wife and the children, everything they have and been able to save is dependent upon this jury verdict or the judge's ruling as to what is the law in a case. If they lose the case, they cannot raise the money to appeal it to the Supreme Court, pay the court costs and fees and so forth.

Here is a man here on trial for murder. The penalty can be the death penalty.

Here is every phase of criminal violations, most every phase. You sit amidst that atmosphere day after day, month after month, year after year. As I say, you learn. You learn something by the feel of things. A better understanding is evolved of the witnesses' testimony.

□ 1130

I came away from there with the feeling and the belief that I had learned a great deal about life, at least something about law. I found this case here. I did not seek it out. I heard it talked about. Someone gave me a copy of the report on it. I commend the Judiciary Committee, hard working as it is under the Senator from South Carolina, who has done an outstanding job in spite of all the other things he has to do, and a group of highly able men on that committee with varied experiences, well-trained, well-educated, and with knowledge of human nature. I tell you, it is an asset to the Nation. It has been an asset to me as I have tried to get at the bottom of this case, and have a firm feeling as to what should be my duty.

I read the report. There is a quote from Senator MATHIAS, of Maryland, a member of this committee. He has been chairman of the Rules Committee for many years. He and I have never been real close. But I have watched him, I have observed him, and I feel that he is honest, straight, and knows human nature. So I ask unanimous consent to make part of his remarks from the committee report a part of the RECORD.

There being no objection, the quote of Senator MATHIAS was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows?

. . . We must conclude that he acted, not through ignorance of the supreme law of the land, but from indifference to its demands. Subjugating one's personal views to the duties of the bench is one of the most difficult responsibilities of a judge, and this incident made me doubt that Mr. Manion could fulfill it.

Mr. Manion's testimony before the Committee did little to dispel these doubts. Mr Manion acknowledged that if confirmed he would not have the power to overrule a Supreme Court decision. However, he was eager to note that he could criticize a decision, point out any obsolescence, problem or defect, or deviate from the decision if the facts in the two cases were different. While his answer is not incorrect, the tone is disconcerting. The real concern is whether, as a Circuit Judge, he would be sufficiently deferential to the Supreme Court. This concern was exacerbated by his statement that a Supreme Court decision was not "law of the land" but was actually stare decisis, which Mr. Manion perceived as "law of the case". This position seemed too close to the universally discredited doctrine that Supreme Court decisions apply only to the case at hand, and do not stand as the supreme law of the land.

Mr. STENNIS. I did not prepare, and do not have prepared a long statement. But this case deserves our utmost in understanding, in the willingness to stand up and be counted, as I see it, make a ruling in our minds, and then stand on it.

I lean with, and if you examine my record, you know I always lean with the President of the United States, whomever he is, because I believe that our system of government demands that the Chief Executive have a support here on this floor, and in the House of Representatives whenever feasible and possible, and we think he is correct. There is room in that belief for political parties. And I believe in the need for those views, and that is what they are, to help make our system work.

But I do not think the argument can be made with emphasis to everyone that to be loyal to the President or the Chief Executive we have to vote to confirm this or any other nomination in this field. The President has not recommended someone here to strengthen his administration to serve in his term to which he was elected. He is not recommending someone to help formulate foreign policy which is a special mission of his of course. He is recommending someone here to serve not 4 years but to serve for life beyond any of us, beyond the President or anyone else. It is a special created office within the Constitution of the United States. He merely functions here as someone to nominate. Then we have the special duty to pass on that nomination, as I say not for a 2-year or 4-year term but for a period of time that goes on and on beyond our time. And he can only be removed, the appointee that is finally chosen, appointed and confirmed, for cause as we say which means for violation of law and related matters where he cannot be removed by the President then but by the House of Representatives preferring charges, indictment we say. That is not all. Then there has to be a trial, a conviction, and a verdict of guilty by this body before this or any other nominee through this channel of our Constitution can be discharged or put out of office; either that or voluntary retirement. We have a statutory method for voluntary retirement.

We are having to row the boat ourselves. We are having to cut the way, cut the pathway. We are having to preserve the basic principles of our constitutional system. By the way, it will be 200 years old in just a few more days, so to speak. This program has been carried on successively for these near 200 years, through these appointments as we refer to them.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair wishes to advise the Senator that his 10 minutes have elapsed.

Mr. STENNIS. May I have 1 minute?

Mr. BIDEN. I yield another minute.

Mr. STENNIS. Through this court that we are passing on also, really great things have been done for a great number of people under which all of us are controlled, that and the Supreme Court—for 235 million people that our great Nation has grown to be. We must watch our step, know what we are doing, and be very careful to preserve the very essence and principles of these matters that I respectfully call to your attention.

I thank the Chair.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the Senator from Colorado.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. HART. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished floor manager.

Mr. President, the debate on the nomination of Mr. Daniel Manion to the seventh district court has been immensely troubling to the Senator from Colorado. It has been marred by excesses by both proponents and opponents of the nomination; excesses which have obscured the central and decisive issue in the judicial nominations process.

I do not believe this debate is about ideology or politics. I do not believe this debate should be about Mr. Manion's father, or his relationship to the John Birch Society—an organization whose views I abhor. This debate is not about Mr. Manion's typographic skills, or his personal religious beliefs. And it certainly is not about the President getting his way.

The administration has falsely cast the issues raised by this nomination as grounded in politics or ideology. Its insistence that we approve its nominees automatically, without real consideration, denigrates not only the Senate but the Constitution. The Founders at one time contemplated a Constitution providing no Executive role for judicial appointments. The compromise we honor in debate today—advice and consent—demands an active role for the Senate in approving lifetime appointments for the judiciary. As we are reminded by Profs. Philip B. Kurland and Laurence H. Tribe, two distinguished constitutional commentators, this process must be serious; our role must be stringent and cautious.

In a memorandum they prepared for the Senate Judiciary Committee, these scholars said the following:

> Impeachment by the House and trial by the Senate is the only constitutionally authorized method of removing unfit judges, and the great difficulty of such a process makes it usable only in situations of outrageous misconduct. The only practical opportunity to consider the merits of a judicial candidate, therefore, is before that appointment is made. It thus becomes not only appropriate, but obligatory, that the Senate pass on judicial nominees with greater scrutiny than it reviews the President's choices for his own subordinates.

The American people and litigants before the seventh circuit deserve qualified and competent jurists on that court. The judges approved by the Senate for the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals have impressive backgrounds. In the report of the Committee on the Judiciary on Mr. Manion's nomination, the credentials of his prospective colleagues are listed. They are impressive.

Prior to their appointment, these distinguished individuals pursued careers as academics, as legal scholars, as judges on inferior courts. They won Senate confirmation—not because they were "liberal" or because they attended "elite" eastern law schools. Some were clearly conservative. They all received fine educations from a variety of schools. One attended Mr. Manion's alma mater. In fact, they won confirmation in recognition of their competence, judicial temperment and respect for the Constitution of the United States.

But the Judiciary Committee could not approve Mr. Manion on these terms. His nomination could not command a majority of the committee's members. After failing to approve his nomination, the committee voted to send his nomination to the Senate without recommendation. To a large extent, their report demonstrates the wisdom of this judgment.

Some of the objections, while relevant, strike the Senator from Colorado as gratuitous, and I would be remiss if I did not mention them. Six pages analyze his writing and highlight spelling errors, pedestrian language, typos or slips of the pen. These would trouble me more if we were considering Mr. Manion for the position of Poet Laureate or editor of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. With all respect to my colleagues on the committee, I found it petty as best to dwell at length on editorial mistakes he must certainly regret and would surely take back, if he could. Equally important, this line of argument detracts from the central question—his legal competence.

According to materials Mr. Manion submitted to the committee, the most significant cases he argued in court involved automobile repairs, land condemnations, and traffic accidents. He has no significant expertise in cases which typically appear on the docket of the Federal courts. He has never argued a case in which a Federal constitutional issue was involved. If nominated, his judicial experience would constitute on the job training.

He has never argued a case before the seventh circuit court or any other Federal appeals court. Unlike many of his prospective colleagues on the seventh circuit court, he has published no legal or scholarly articles during his career which could enlighten the Senate as to his qualifications or his views.

The committee consequently had to rely on transcripts from radio and television broadcasts of the "Manion Forum" to learn more about Mr. Manion's legal views. I am in many respects uncomfortable with our reliance on this record—the same standards to which we hold jurists do not apply to broadcast hosts or their guests. But they are nonetheless evidence of his constitutional philosophy. In several instances, the nominee advocates "court-stripping," and questions the legitimacy of Supreme Court rulings and the 60-year old doctrine of selective incorporation. In the context of the committee's larger findings, these statements are disturbing indeed.

Mr. Manion, in testimony before the Judiciary Committee, evinced reluctance to accept Supreme Court decisions as "the supreme law of the land." He preferred instead the long-discredited theory of stare decisis; a theory that frees State and Federal officials from following the Supreme Court's interpretation of the Constitution.

As A State senator, he coauthored legislation authorizing the posting of the Ten Commandments in the schools, knowing the bill was unconstitutional. Mr. Manion suggested in testimony before the committee that, had the bill been enacted, it would have been law until it was struck down by the courts—as if the State legislatures were empowered to nullify Federal constitutional law.

Mr. President, these are the issues motivating my decision on Mr. Manion's nominations. His experience as an attorney has neither qualified nor prepared him to take his seat on the seventh circuit court. He holds legal views—as distinct from those which are ideological or philosophical in nature—which are outside the mainstream of American legal thought. And there is no substantial record which could lead the Senate to believe his tenure on the court would be marked by scholarship or excellence.

At issue is not Mr. Daniel Manion's character, but his competence. At issue is not Mr. Manion's ideology, for this Senate and this Senator have supported the appointments of numerous jurists who share his views. But what is the duty of the Senate if ideology is the only outstanding qualification of a nominee for the bench? Our duty, if we take our responsiblities seriously, is to reject the nominee.

Mr. President, I yield back the floor.

I thank the Senator from Delaware.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time of the minority has lapsed.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished Senator from Idaho, Senator SYMMS.

Mr. SYMMS. I thank the distinguished chairman of the Judiciary Committee. I support the nomination of Dan Manion for the seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. President, I really do not have time to give my entire statement at this time. I will reserve the balance of my time only to say in my 1 minute that I think some of the opposition to Mr. Manion I find quite intriguing. I have done some research on that. I want to discuss that.

I also think that I have a very high opinion of the two distinguished Senators from the State of Indiana which should be of some note where there has been a close friendship on the part of one of our Senators from Indiana, Senator QUAYLE, with Dan Manion, who has known him for years.

□ 1140

He knows him to be a man of high integrity, high competence, and certainly qualified to be on the court.

I have had the opportunity to know Dan Manion myself since 1974, and I second the opinion of Senator QUAYLE on that. I think he is highly qualified. I think that unfortunately this nomination has become most political, no matter what has been said heretofore. It is a political issue that we are discussing. I will discuss that at greater length after the vote on cloture.

I thank the distinguished chairman from South Carolina.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Indiana [Mr. QUAYLE].

Mr. QUAYLE. Mr. President, very briefly, I just want to put in perspective where we are today.

This is a vote to invoke cloture to stop a filibuster against the nomination of Daniel Manion. This is not an up-or-down vote.

I want to go on record and concur with my colleague from Connecticut, Senator WEICKER, in pointing out to this Senate what they are doing as far as nominations that come through here are concerned.

Senator WEICKER and I have a different viewpoint on whether Dan Manion ought to be confirmed as judge of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. he has announced today that he is going to vote against that nomination when it comes to an up-or-down vote.

However, we are both in solid agreement that we should not convolute the constitutional process of advice and consent which requires a majority vote.

I am a little bit disheartened to see that this is probably going to be a very partisan vote, along party lines, which shows that this is a political exercise. Though cloture may not be invoked today, though I hope it is, we will bring it back again and again, because I do not think the Senate wants to do what it is about to do; that is, to change the constitutional requirements of advice and consent of a judge nomination.

This process has become highly politicized. Make no doubt about that. I am not going to say it just started today. But at some time, Republicans and Democrats, the leadership on this side and on that side, will have to get together and cut out a little bit of this nonsense that I think is going on on politicizing the process around here. We have a Constitution. We know what the requirements are. Now we are going to be forced to vote not on the qualifications or competence of Daniel Manion but on a motion to invoke cloture.

We have not had that debate because the Democrats on that side of the aisle will not let us have that debate.

Now we are in a filibuster situation and I think that that is most unfortunate.

Mr. BIDEN. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. QUAYLE. I do not have any time.

I think it is most unfortunate that we are in that situation. I hope over due time that we can get an agreement to get that debate and to have an up or down vote on Dan Manion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. QUAYLE. I ask the chairman if I may have 3 additional minutes.

Mr. THURMOND. I extend 3 additional minutes.

Mr. QUAYLE. I thank the chairman.

I think it is about time that we have to do exactly what the Senator has said, that we have to observe that Constitution. I hope the leadership on both sides, after this vote, whichever way it goes, can come to some sort of an understanding for the good of this institution. Let us have a debate on Dan Manion. I look forward to that debate on Dan Manion. I can see that the vote will be very close, a very close call, basically along party lines.

I can only say in summary of Dan Manion that the people of Indiana know Dan Manion. They think quite highly of him. He has almost unanimous support of the people of Indiana. He has the strong endorsement of legal scholars in Indiana who know him. He has the strong endorsement of the presidents of universities who know him. He has strong support of those lawyers who have worked with him, both Republicans and Democrats, almost universal support of the people who know him.

The opposition to him comes from people who do not know him. The opposition comes from outside our State, those who have never met Dan Manion, who do not know his qualifications, who do not know his character, who do not know what kind of a jurist, what kind of a judge, he would be. They do not know.

What they have made is a political debate. There has been a lot of money spent and a lot of time spent. The bottom line is that those who know him almost universally support him and support him with a great deal of enthusiasm.

I hope in due time once we get beyond the theatrics, perhaps once we go flat, as they say, get this off TV, we will settle down and have an up or down vote on the Manion nomination, which the Constitution requires.

I think we are doing a real injustice to that process.

Things change around here from time to time. The shoe can be on the other foot. But I do not think what we are doing today in forcing a vote on cloture is the right way to go about voting on a nomination.

When we get an agreed time, allot as much time as the minority wants to debate the issue, and then get a time certain and vote on the nomination. That is the way the Senate ought to conduct its business.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to be U.S. circuit judge for the seventh judicial circuit. As a member of the Judiciary Committee and as a signator of the majority report accompanying Mr. Manion's nomination, I urge my colleagues to join me in granting the President of the United States his constitutional perogative to select judges of the Federal courts. I came to my decision on the merits of Daniel Manion's nomination after careful consideration of the factors I consider to be embodied in the proper role of the Senate in advising and consenting to Presidential nominations to the Federal bench.

In 1970, when I served as chief legislative assistant to the then junior Senator from Kentucky, Marlow W. Cook, I had the opportunity to express my views on the judicial selection process in a Kentucky Law Journal article. The occasion for my reflection then was the nominations of Judges Haynsworth and Carswell to the Supreme Court and subsequent Senate action on these nominations. The views I expressed some 16 years ago continue to guide my thoughts on the judicial selection process today.

At the time, I set forth five criteria by which, I believe, the qualifications of a Supreme Court nominee might be judged. Although my colleagues would surely agree that a lesser standard of review would apply to a nominee to a lesser Federal court than our highest court, I believe my criteria would still be instructive in regard to Mr. Manion's nomination.

First and foremost, a nominee must be judged competent. Like all nominees to the Federal bench. Mr. Manion was evaluated by the American Bar Association's Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary. The 14 members of that committee are charged with evaluating on a professional and objective basis the qualifications of a nominee. A substantial majority of the ABA committee found Mr. Manion to be fully qualified for appointment to the Federal bench. That committee, by the way, is the only nongovernmental group that has direct input into the evaluation of a potential Federal judge.

Certain Members of this body, as well as a number of Washington based lobby groups, have attempted to question Mr. Manion's nomination on the basis of other groups' comments. The Chicago Council of Lawyers, a group comprised almost entirely of big city lawyers in Chicago, perhaps the principle opponent of Mr. Manion, found him unqualified. Yet even that group, perhaps belying its bias found that "Mr. Manion has a high reputation for integrity, conscientiousness, and fairness." Based on its investigations, it found that "Mr. Manion has excellent interpersonal skills, and that lawyers who work both with him and against him like and respect him."

Mr. Manion's peers have supported his nomination. I would direct my colleagues' attention to endorsements of Mr. Manion by the Honorable Richard M. Given, chief justice of Indiana, and Eugene I. Goldman, of the law firm of Steptoe and Johnson. I would particularly like to read from a letter received from David T. Ready, the former U.S. attorney for the northern district of Indiana, appointed by President Carter. Mr. Ready wrote that:

[d]uring the years 1977 through 1981 I had the opportunity to serve as United States Attorney for the Northern District of Indiana, having been appointed to that position by President Carter. This gives me an opportunity to observe our Federal Judiciary at both trial and appellate levels. As such, I would hope that it also gave me some insight into what Judicial qualities best serve our legal system, especially at the Federal Appellate level. I firmly believe Mr. Manion possesses those qualities, temperament, legal intellect, experience, fair mindedness, judicial integrity, and a plain, old-fashioned willingness to work long and hard. I have no doubt that Mr. Manion's appointment will reflect credut upon the Federal Judiciary.

Such eloquent testimony speaks for itself.

The second criterion I proposed to apply to Supreme Court nominees was based upon achievement. Sixteen years ago, in referring to the nomination of Judge Carswell to the Supreme Court, I noted that "[a]fter all, it is the Supreme Court the Senate is considering not the police court in Hoboken, NJ, or even the U.S. district or circuit courts." Some may point to the lack of publications or other traditional indices of achievement as proving Mr. Manion unqualified for the position, but I would repeat that this is not a Supreme Court nominee we are considering. Mr. Manion has achieved a high level of respect among his peers which would indicate a successful career in and of itself. In fact, the Chicago Council of Lawyers found that:

"the majority of lawyers to whom [they] talked regarding Mr. Manion's legal experience felt that he was a competent lawyer. A few lawyers told [them] that Mr. Manion was an outstanding lawyer. All vouched for his forthrightness and adherence to high ethical standards.

Third, judicial temperament is vitally important. The Chicago Council of Lawyers said of Dan Manion:

Mr. Manion has a high reputation for integrity, conscientiousness, and fairness." They continued by adding that [m]any of the lawyers to whom we talked also thought that despite his reputation for political conservatism, Mr. Manion would struggle to be fair in ruling on cases which present issues on which he has strong political views.

As the report on Dan Manion's nomination noted—

[e]ven his most strident critics have to admit that he is a fair and just individual.

The final two criteria I would apply to prospective nominees require that the nominee must have violated no existing standard of ethical conduct rendering him unfit for confirmation, and must have a clean record in his life off the bench. Let me simply note that despite the exhaustive efforts of groups opposed to this nomination, not a hint of any impropriety or wrong-doing in his background emerged. Indeed, one of my colleagues on the Judiciary Committee admitted that "I think you are a decent and honorable man, but I do not think I can vote for you because of your political views."

Mr. President, I am convinced that opposition to the nomination of Daniel Manion to the seventh circuit is based upon ideology alone. Although the history of nominations in the Senate indicates that politics periodically becomes the paramount concern in approving or rejecting a nomination, I would urge my colleagues to disregard the rhetoric that has been stirred up by this nomination.

While I fully respect the opinions of my colleagues who disagree with the choice of Mr. Manion, and who would have made a different choice, I believe that a heavy burden must be met by those who would have a nominee rejected. Under the Constitution, our duty is to provide advice and consent to judicial nominations. In my judgment, the kind of evidence presented to the Judiciary Committee in this case provides no basis for denying the President of the United States his constitutional perogative to select Dan Manion to be a Federal judge. More than that, after testing Dan Manion against the standards I judged relevant years ago under different circumstances of different judicial candidates, I found him to meet this set of criteria. Mr. President, I would urge my colleagues to vote to confirm Daniel A. Manion's nomination.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following selection of letters on the qualifications of Daniel Manion for the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals be placed into the RECORD. I also want to thank publicly the lawyers and legal scholars who have come forward to share their views and opinions of Mr. Manion's nomination. Colleagues who are willing to state their concerns about a nominee are to be especially commended; it is rare that doctors talk about other doctors; so it is with lawyers too. A public thank-you goes to people for the American way and the many organizations that have helped compile the enormous quantity of information that the Senate has had available throughout this very thorough review of Mr. Manion's qualifications for the bench.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO,
THE LAW SCHOOL,
Chicago, IL, May 28, 1986.

Hon. ROBERT BYRD,
Minority Leader.
Hon. ROBERT DOLE,
Majority Leader, U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC 20510

DEAR SENATORS BYRD AND DOLE: The Senate will soon consider the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to serve as a judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. As law professors at the University of Chicago Law School and residents of the Seventh Circuit, we urge that the Senate decline to consent to this nomination on the ground that Mr. Manion is not qualified to serve on that court.

The Senate has few graver responsibilities than its constitutional obligation to advise and consent with respect to judicial nominees. Federal judges are members of an independent branch of government with great power over our society. Once appointed, these judges are responsible neither to the electorate, nor to either of the other two branches of government. The confirmation of a judicial nominee therefore has consequences far beyond those attendant to most other legislative acts. This is particularly true for a nominee to the Court of Appeals, for he or she may definitively influence the course of the law for millions of our people for many years to come.

A nominee's qualifications in scholarship, legal acumen, professional achievement, wisdom, integrity, fidelity to the law and commitment to our Constitution must therefore be correspondingly high.

Unfortunately, Mr. Manion does not meet these criteria. He has virtually no experience with major federal or other litigation, and has not published any scholarly or other writings. A minority of the American Bar Association Screening Panel found him unqualified, and the Chicago Council of Lawyers, after close scrutiny of his record, concluded that his professional qualifications were inadequate, noting that "Mr. Manion lacks experience in dealing with questions of federal law and federal constitutional issues. He also lacks experience with the kinds of complex federal litigation which he would have to review as a judge of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. Moreover, the quality and extent of Mr. Manion's legal experience even in state court does not demonstrate the high level of legal expertise which the Council feels should be possessed by judges of the Seventh Circuit. Finally, Mr. Manion has not demonstrated any scholarly interest in state and federal law or constitutional issues."

We are also disturbed by the nominee's apparent lack of understanding of the role of the judiciary in protecting individual rights. This was manifested in his action as an Indiana state legislator in co-sponsoring a bill that authorized posting the Ten Commandments in school rooms shortly after the Supreme Court had invalidated a similar Kentucky statute in Stone v. Graham, 449 U.S. 39 (1980). Mr. Manion, in a recent hearing, conceded that the bills were virtually identical and explained his action as a kind of "legislative protest" against the Supreme Court. In the same hearing, he also seemed reluctant to accept the Supreme Court decisions such as Brown v. Board of Education as "the law of the land," saying he preferred to view them as stare decisis which must be followed by lower federal courts.

In light of the above, we urge the Senate to deny consent to the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

Yours very truly,

ALBERT ALSCHULER.
MARY BECKER.
JAMES HOLZHAUER.
NORVAL MORRIS.
GEOFFREY STONE.
DAVID STRAUSS.
CASS SUNSTEIN.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR AND CONGRESS OF INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATIONS

Washington, DC, June 18, 1986.

DEAR SENATOR: On behalf of the AFL-CIO, I urge you to vote against confirmation of Daniel Manion for a seat on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

The Manion nomination presents an unusual situation. Rarely has the Judiciary Committee voted against approval of a judicial nomination. Indeed, though more than 260 nominees have been sent to the Committee by this Administration, this was the first that the Committee refused to approve. We believe that the record which caused members of the Committee from both parties to find Mr. Manion unqualified for the federal appellate bench requires the same conclusion by the full Senate.

Most significant in this regard is that Mr. Manion's experience—or more precisely his lack of experience—is simply inadequate to the high responsibility of a seat on a United States Court of Appeals. Mr. Manion has never participated in a federal appellate proceeding. Nor has he ever served as lead counsel in any case before the federal district courts whose decisions he would be called upon to review. He has not even participated in a federal case involving federal constitutional or public law issues. This lack of experience alone should disqualify a person for an appellate-court judgeship.

But a lack of critically-important experience is not the only respect in which Mr. Manion falls short of the qualifications that should be required of a federal appellate-court judge. The written word is the tool with which an appellate judge does his job. One who handles the language with as little skill and clarity as did Mr. Manion in the briefs he has supplied the Senate cannot be said to meet the minimum level of professional competence required for the job.

While we believe that the Manion nomination should be rejected for the reasons already set forth, there is another insuperable barrier to his confirmation. That barrier is Mr. Manion's demonstrated lack of understanding of the American system of constitutional law. His long record of extreme positions on the meaning of the Constitution, the scope of the Bill of Rights, the applicability of the Federal Constitution to the States, and the role of the Supreme Court, call into serious question whether, as a judge, he would be able to set aside his personal views and adhere to settled constitutional principles with which he disagrees. That question must be answered in the negative if one looks at Mr. Manion's action, as a State Senator, in cosponsoring a bill in the Indiana Senate just weeks after the United States Supreme Court had found unconstitutional a Kentucky law that Manion concededly believed to be virtually identical to the one he propounded.

Cases before the federal courts of appeals are typically complex, often involving either weightly constitutional questions or intricate questions of statutory construction. The appellate courts' decisions are most often final because the Supreme Court can review but a small fraction of such decisions. And, short of impeachment, no correction is possible where a nominee, after Senate confirmation, turns out to be inadequate to the task. The appointment is for life.

We in the labor movement are acutely conscious of the significance of the courts of appeals and the demands upon the judges who serve on these courts. Like all other groups in society, the cases in which we are involved are most finally decided by those courts. Because we do not expect that Presidential nominees will necessarily sympathize with us or share our social and economic views, we have not opposed judical nominees on those philosophical or ideological grounds. We do not do so here.

However, we submit that if the advise-and-consent fraction is to have any meaning with respect to judicial nominations, the nomination of Mr. Manion must be rejected because he fails to meet minimum standards of experience, competence, and demonstrated understanding of and commitment to fundamental principles of constitutional law.

Sincerely,

ROBERT M. MCGLOTTEN,
Director, Department of Legislation.

JUNE 18, 1986.

Senator PAUL SIMON,
SD-462
(Attention: Laurie Westley)

DEAR SENATOR: We urge you to oppose the nomination of Daniel Manion for a seat on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. We base our opposition on his failure to demonstrate that he possesses the level of experience and professional competence to merit confirmation to this important court and on our belief that his views on the Constitution and the Bill of Rights would make it impossible for him to dispense justice independently and impartially.

Mr. Manion has practiced law in South Bend, Indiana for 13 years. During that time, he has never acted as lead counsel in a federal court trial, has never handled a case in which a federal constitutional issue was involved, and has never argued a case in the Seventh Circuit. Nor has he distinguished himself in the area of scholarship—his questionnaire does not list a single published article or speech. Based on this record, a majority of the American Bar Association Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary gave Mr. Manion its lowest qualified rating, and a minority of the panel found that he was not qualified for the appellate court seat. The Chicago Council of Lawyers found Mr. Manion not qualified to be a judge on the Seventh Circuit.

In addition to the lack of experience and professional skill, Mr. Manion's views on such issues as application of the Bill of Rights to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment and free expression of dissenting views are well beyond the mainstream of American legal thought. We are concerned that Mr. Manion is so wedded to his views that he would not be able to set them aside when necessary to comply with Supreme Court decisions.

When put to the test of following his own ideology or complying with the Supreme Court, Mr. Manion failed. As a member of the Indiana Senate, Mr. Manion coauthored a bill that would have allowed the posting of the Ten Commandments in public school classrooms, two months after the Supreme Court rules a similar Kentucky law to be unconstitutional. He admitted that he knew the bill was unconstitutional, but said he acted to indicate his disagreement with the Court. This action, which violated his oath of office, shows that when a conflict occurred, Mr. Manion was controlled by his views rather than by the law of the land.

Mr. Manion is the most extreme example so far of the low qualifications of many of President Reagan's nominees to the Courts of Appeals. Of 28 Reagan nominees to the Courts of Appeals since January 1985, 11 have received mixed qualified/not qualified ratings by the ABA. For purposes of comparison, of President Carter's 56 appointees to the Courts of Appeals, only three were given this low rating.

The Manion nomination is the first to come to the Senate after a motion to favorably report the nomination failed to pass the Judiciary Committee. By defeating this nomination, the Senate could send an important signal to the Reagan Administration that it supports a selection process based on merit rather than on ideological purity.

We strongly urge that you vote to defeat this nomination.

Sincerely,

Nan Aron, Alliance for Justice; Oral O. Miller, National Represenative, American Council for the Blind; Kenneth T. Blaylock, American Federation of Government Employees; William Welch, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO; Theodore R. Mann, American Jewish Congress; Ann Lewis, Americans for Democratic Action; Dr. Robert C. Maddox, Americans United for Separation of Church and State; William L. Taylor, Center for National Policy Review; Children's Defense Fund.

Commission on Social Action of Reform Judaism; Communications Workers of America AFL-CIO; Estelle Rogers, Federation of Women Lawyers; International Union of Electronic, Electrical, Technical, Salaried & Machine Workers, AFL-CIO; International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, AFL-CIO; Mike Lewis, Washington Representative, International Longshoremen's Workers Union; Grace Uyehara, Japanese-American Citizens' League; Japanese-American Citizens' League Legislative Education Committee; Helene Karpa, President, Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington.

Betty K. Shapiro, Chair, Jewish Women's Caucus; Nancy Broff, Judicial Selection Project; Ralph Neas, Leadership Conference on Civil Rights; Rev. Dr. Charles Bergstrom, Executive Director, Office of Governmental Affairs, Lutheran Council; Len Rubenstein, Mental Health Law Project; G. Mario Moreno, Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund; Gloria J. Barajas, Mexican-American National Women's Association; Bob Bingaman, National Abortion Rights Action League; National Association of Letter Carriers, AFL-CIO; Yvonne Price, National Association of Negro Professional Women's Business Clubs; Senator Clarence M. Mitchell, President, National Black Caucus of State Legislators.

National Council of Senior Citizens; Kenneth F. Melley, National Education Association; Ruth Kobell, National Farmer's Union; National Gay & Lesbian Task Force; Clint Lyons, National Legal Aid & Defender Association; Ellie Smeal, National Organization for Women; Irene Natividad, National Women's Political Caucus; Helen Parolla, National YMCA; People for the American Way; Planned Parenthood Federation of America; Rainbow Alliance Lobby; Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO; Edward J. Carlough, Sheet Metal Workers International Association.

Durwood Zaelke, Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund; William C. Velasquez, Southwest Voters Registration & Education Project; United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America, AFL-CIO; Arnold Mayer, United Food & Commercial Workers, AFL-CIO; Michael Holland, United Mine Workers of America; Milan Stone, United Rubber Workers International Union, AFL-CIO; John J. Sheehan, United Steelworkers of America, AFL-CIO; Claudia Withers, Women's Legal Defense Fund; Kristina Kiehl, Voters for Choice.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE,
Washington, DC, June 24, 1986.

DEAR SENATOR: The confirmation vote of Mr. Daniel Manion as judge on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals is scheduled for Thursday, June 26.

The NAACP urges you to vote against this nomination.

We oppose Mr. Manion's confirmation because, in our opinion, he does not have the requisite open mind, impartiality and sensitivity to public issues or the judicial temperament required of appellate judges.

The NAACP questions his view that "The Civil Rights Act of 1964 is unconstitutional." The constitutionality of this act has long been settled; yet, Mr. Manion believes the act is unlawful.

We are also concerned that in his view "the Supreme Court (unconstitutionally) acted with authority superior to that of the Congress, the President and the Constitution itself" in the landmark Supreme Court decision of Brown v. Board of Education. The Supreme Court interprets the Constitution and once a decision is rendered it is the law of the land. Mr. Manion has not fully accepted this.

I am attaching a summary of the NAACP's rationale for its request for a vote against confirmation of Mr. Manion.

ALTHEA T. L. SIMMONS,
Director.

OPPOSITION TO THE NOMINATION OF DANIEL MANION AS JUDGE FOR THE SEVENTH CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS

Mr. Manion Has Been Rated "Not Qualified" to Serve As An Appellate Judge:

A minority of the American Bar Association Committee on the Judiciary reported Mr. Manion "not qualified"; a majority of that Committee gave him the lowest possible rating.

The Chicago Council of Lawyers with a membership of 1,000 found him "not qualified" in that he lacks technical skills as a writer as well as sufficient legal analysis to clearly convey the legal principles applied to the facts of a case. (Chicago is the largest city served by the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.)

Mr. Manion's court experience has been limited to litigating cases of small claims collections; appearances as co-counsel to give legal opinions on issues of state law; and other local action types of cases.

Mr. Manion does not have court experience in cases of constitutional law issues or of public interest which would come before the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. Manion has unacceptable legal opinions on the U.S. Constitution:

He co-sponsored a bill in the Indiana State legislature which he admittedly knew was unconstitutional. The Supreme Court had just ruled within months on similar statutory language in a Kentucky statute, and held that the Ten Commandments could not be posted in public schools. Yet, Mr. Manion after this decision co-sponsored legislation which would permit posting of the Ten Commandments.

He has expressed in public statements, his view that Supreme Court decisions are not the law of the land. Such reasoning leads to a logical conclusion that legislators and lower courts need not adhere to legal principles articulated in Supreme Court decisions.

This view is contrary to Art. VI of the U.S. Constitution which explicitly states that the decisions of the Supreme Court are the law of the land. Moreover, challenges to undermine the weight given to Supreme Court decisions were settled as early as 1803 in the historic case of Marbury v. Madison.

Mr. Manion endorses the view that the Civil Rights Act of 1964 is unconstitutional. (See p. 22 Report from the Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate—Nomination of Daniel A. Manion.)

Mr. Manion views the Supreme Court acted unconstitutionally in the landmark civil rights case of Brown v. Board of Education (school desegregation case).

Mr. Manion praises the John Birch Society.

LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE ON CIVIL RIGHTS,
Washington, DC, May 7, 1986.

Hon. PAUL SIMON,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR SIMON: We write on behalf of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, a coalition of 185 organizations dedicated to the protection of constitutional and civil rights, to oppose the nomination of Daniel Manion to the Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit. At a meeting of the Board of the Leadership Conference on May 5, a resolution to oppose Mr. Manion's confirmation was adopted without dissent for reasons which may be summarized as follows:

(1) Manion has expressed views on the role of the federal judiciary that are extreme. In the 1970s he went on record as opposing the application of the Bill of Rights to the states and as an advocate of stripping jurisdiction from the Supreme Court as well as the lower federal courts (Report pp. 5–11). He also lauded the work of the John Birch Society and heaped praise on Birch spokesman Larry McDonald for a book which repudiates the function of judicial review of state action and attacks Supreme Court decisions including Brown v. Board of Education that exercise such review (Report, p. 16).[1]

(2) As a State Legislator, Manion put his views into action by cosponsoring a bill he concedes he knew was unconstitutional. The bill authorized the posting of the Ten Commandments in public schools and was introduced by Manion and others in the Indiana Senate a short time after the Supreme Court had invalidated a similar Kentucky law in Stone v. Graham. Manion conceded at his April 30 hearing that his bill was identical in all material respects to the Kentucky law. He now justifies his action as a "legislative protest" which he says in retrospect might better have been filed as a resolution rather than a bill. But he still holds the view that the bill, if passed, would have been the law until ruled unconstitutional by the courts. (Transcript pp. 43–49).

(3) Manion is unconvincing in his explanation and modifications of his previous views and actions. He now says that the doctrine of incorporation is "ingrained in our law," that his views about court-stripping are irrelevant since that is a matter for Congress not judges, and that as a judge he would view his obligation to follow the law differently than he did as a state legislator (although the oath of office under Article VI is the same). But Manion continued to express reluctance to accept Supreme Court decisions such as Brown as "the law of the land," saying that he preferred to view them as stare decisis which must be followed by lower federal courts (creating the impression that he might assiduously seek out minor fact differences to distinguish decisions he didn't like). He also had a remarkably selective memory about the recent past. Professing not to know the beliefs of the John Birch Society, he said that he did not have an overall affirmative or negative opinion of the Society's program preferring to judge each issue on its own merits (Transcript p. 62).

(4) Manion lacks the qualifications for the 7th Circuit. While he has some experience in the federal courts, it has been as co-counsel on cases not involving important issues of constitutional or public law. But his own admission, he has published no writings on the law, scholarly or otherwise. And, as indicated, he has an extraordinarily weak grasp of the essentials of our constitutional system.

It should be clear that the opposition of the Leadership Conference to Mr. Manion's confirmation is not based on disagreement with his views about particular substantive issues. Rather it is founded on a record which demonstrates his failure in word and deed to accept the fundamental role of the federal courts in protecting individual rights and liberties. That record cannot be expunged by broad statements that the nominee would follow the rulings of the Supreme Court. Mr. Manion's record and his lack of basic qualifications for high judicial office provide an ample basis for opposition even by Senators who believe the President should be given very wide latitude in his judicial nominations.

---

[1] "Report" refers to the detailed study prepared by People for the American Way, which is enclosed. "Transcript" refers to the transcript of Mr. Manion's second hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee on April 30, 1986.

We urge you to vote against confirmation of Daniel Manion when the committee meets on May 8.

Sincerely yours,

BENJAMIN L. HOOKS,
Chairperson.
RALPH G. NEAS,
Executive Director.

AMERICANS UNITED FOR SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE,
Silver Spring, MD, May 5, 1986.

Hon. STROM THURMOND,
Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR THURMOND: I write you this letter both as Executive Director of Americans United and on the basis of my deep respect for you as a serious student of the U.S. Constitution. Along with many in the country, I want to communicate my alarm over the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to sit on the U.S. Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago.

Our studies show that Mr. Manion lacks the qualifications to hold such an important position. As you know, Mr. Manion received a low ranking from the American Bar Association. His extremist view will distort his ability to render fair and impartial decisions.

Of more particular concern to me are Mr. Manion's views on church/state issues. From his statements and actions he seems to have no regard for the time-honored principle of religious liberty through the separation of church and state. For instance, on the heels of a U.S. Supreme Court decision saying the State of Kentucky could not require the posting of the Ten Commandments in public schools, Mr. Manion arrogantly introduced a similar bill in the Indiana legislature. A man who holds the Supreme Court in such contempt should not sit on the Federal bench.

Furthermore, we take alarm at his kneejerk commitment to the John Birch Society. We are frightened by his inflammatory and injudicious statements proposing unconstitutional methods to curb dissent.

Senator Thurmond, as a public official sworn to uphold the Constitution, I'm sure you share my desire to have judicial nominees who will maintain our most basic liberties. This nominee seems to have a clear disregard for the U.S. Constitution and its principle of separation of church and state. We respectfully urge that you and the other members of the committee stop his nomination in its tracks.

Please give our best to Nancy and your children.

Anytime I can be of service to you or your family, you have only to call.

Sincerely,

DR. ROBERT L. MADDOX,
Executive Director.

JUDICIAL SELECTION PROJECT,
Washington, DC, April 30, 1986.

Hon. PAUL SIMON,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR SIMON: The Judicial Selection Project, a coalition of civil rights and public interest organizations, urges you to oppose the nomination of Daniel Manion for a seat on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. We base our opposition on his failure to demonstrate that he possesses the level of experience and professional competence to merit confirmation to this important court and on our belief that his views on the Constitution and the Bill of Rights would make it impossible for him to dispense justice independently and impartially.

Mr. Manion has practiced law in South Bend for 13 years. During that time, he has never acted as lead counsel in a federal court trial, has never handled a case in which a federal constitutional issue was involved, and has never argued a case in the Seventh Circuit. Nor has he distinguished himself in the area of scholarship—his questionnaire does not list a single published article or speech. Based on this record, the American Bar Association gave Mr. Manion its lowest "passing" grade, a mixed qualified/not qualified rating. The Chicago Council of Lawyers found Mr. Manion to be not qualified to be a judge on the Seventh Circuit.

We believe that this record makes clear that the Administration has nominated Mr. Manion not because of his litigation skills or his scholarship, but rather for his strongly held beliefs on a number of political and social issues. We are concerned about those views in several areas.

For example, Mr. Manion has by his actions indicated that he may have trouble drawing the line between church and state. As a member of the Indiana Senate, he coauthored a bill that would have allowed the posting of the Ten Commandments in public school classrooms, six months after the Supreme Court ruled a similar Kentucky law to be unconstitutional. He also cosponsored a bill to allow creationism to be taught in the public schools. In addition, Mr. Manion's view on such issues as application of the Bill of Rights to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment and free expression of dissenting views are well beyond the mainstream of an American legal thought.

Mr. Manion's nomination again demonstrates the Reagan Administration's commitment to ideology over professional competence. Of 28 Reagan nominees to the Courts of Appeals since January 1985, 11 have received mixed qualified/not qualified ratings by the ABA. For purposes of comparison, of President Carter's 56 appointees to the Courts of Appeals, only three were given this low rating.

The Judicial Selection Project believes that nominees for lifetime appointments to this Nation's Courts of Appeals should be the best that the legal community has to offer. They should meet the highest standards of professional excellance, be open-minded and fair, and should have demonstrated a commitment to equal justice. Mr. Manion does not meet this high standard. By defeating his nomination, the Judiciary Committee could send an important signal to the Reagan Administration that it supports a selection process based on merit rather than on ideological purity.

We strongly urge that you vote to defeat this nomination.

Sincerely,

NANCY B. BROFF,
Director.
NAN ARON,
Chair.

PEOPLE FOR THE AMERICAN WAY ACTION FUND,
Washington, DC, April 30, 1986.

DEAR SENATOR: People For The American Way, a 225,000-member citizen organization dedicated to the protection of constitutional rights and an independent federal judiciary, urges you to oppose the nomination of Daniel Manion to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

As you know, a federal judgeship is one of the most important positions an American citizen can hold. A nominee to the Federal bench for a lifetime appointment must possess outstanding intellectual qualifications, legal skills and experience, as well as an understanding and respect for the law and our Constitution. We do not believe that Mr. Manion meets this fundamental criteria.

Mr. Manion is not qualified to serve on the Court of Appeals. He has received poor ratings from bar associations, including the American Bar Association's Standing Committee on the Judiciary. He has no judicial experience, limited experience as a lawyer, and he has demonstrated no legal scholarship.

His views on the Constitution and Bill of Rights are outside the mainstream of American legal thought. A range of responsible viewpoints on constitutional issues is a strength, not a weakness, of the American judiciary. But every federal judge should honor the essence of our constitutional system which is based on respect for the separation of powers and for individual liberties.

Mr. Manion's record, however, reveals an alarming indifference, if not hostility, to the Bill of Rights. He has challenged the long-established legal doctrine of the 14th Amendment that made the core protections of the Bill of Rights including guarantees of freedom of press, speech and religion, binding on the states.

Mr. Manion has advocated stripping the Supreme Court's jurisdiction to protect constitutional rights by a means emphatically rejected by mainstream American legal thinkers.

Mr. Manion has questioned the fundamental constitutional principle of free speech, and as an Indiana legislator, he used his position to support proposals that violate the separation of church and state. In one particular instance, he co-sponsored a bill to allow the posting of the Ten Commandments in public school classrooms just one year after the Supreme Court expressly held that such religious activity violated the Establishment Clause.

Mr. Manion will not be an objective and impartial judge. His views on the Constitution, past legislative activities advocating those views, and participation in extremist organizations indicate that he would be unable to enforce constitutional rights and interpret federal law objectively and impartially.

A report that details our concerns about Daniel Manion's nomination is attached. We believe that the issues raised by this report constitute sufficient basis for the Senate Judiciary Committee to reject the nomination of Daniel Manion to the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Sincerely,

ANTHONY T. PODESTA,
President.

WASHINGTON COUNCIL OF LAWYERS,
Washington, DC, May 6, 1986.

Hon. STROM THURMOND,
Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR THURMOND: It has come to my attention that Eugene I. Goldman, Esq. has written to the Committee in support of the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. Mr. Goldman is a Director and member of the Executive Committee of the Washington Council of Lawyers. I write this letter to make clear that the views expressed by Mr. Goldman are personal to him. The Washington Council of Lawyers has taken no position on Mr. Manion's nomination.

The Council would appreciate your making this letter a part of the record.

Sincerely,

RICHARD L. JACOBSON,
President.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I rise today to express my opposition to the nomination of Daniel Manion.

In recent weeks, we have heard accusations from various Members of this body that those of us who oppose Mr. Manion's nomination do so for ideological grounds.

Even the President, on his weekly radio broadcast, said that: "Partisanship in the Senate has pushed fair play by the boards," and that we oppose Mr. Manion because he doesn't conform to "the liberal ideology of some Senators."

I would like to remind the President and some of my colleagues that all of us on the Judiciary Committee who voted against Mr. Manion's nomination voted for Judge Robert Bork, for Richard Posner, for Frank Easterbrook, and for John Noonan.

In the wildest stretch of the imagination, I do not believe that any one of these gentlemen could be said to conform to "liberal ideology." And that it not important. What is important is that all of these men possessed the intellect and qualifications for their respective judgeships.

I also would like to remind the President that I led the fight against Charles Winberry, a Carter administration judicial nominee, because I believe he lacked the integrity which is absolutely crucial for elevation to the courts. Partisan politics played no role in my efforts to defeat that nominee, and partisan politics plays no role in my opposition to Mr. Manion.

ISSUE—QUALIFICATIONS

Mr. President, the truth is, we really do not have to get to a discussion of Mr. Manion's ideology to find a reason why he should be defeated.

He simply lacks the qualifications, experience, and intellectual breadth to sit on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

What are some of the things we should look at to determine if a nominee is qualified?

Prof. Philip B. Kurland and Prof. Laurence Tribe, two of our foremost legal scholars, have written a letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee addressing just this issue. I quote from their letter:

> A nominee's entire record—professional achievements, public service, academic credentials, appellate briefs or other legal writings, scholarly or other publications—should be reviewed carefully to screen out the merely competent, and certainly, the simply mediocre.

Let us take a look at Mr. Manion's record from this viewpoint.

With regard to "professional achievements," Mr. Manion has little, if any, experience dealing with Federal constitutional or public law issues.

He has never argued a case before the seventh circuit or any other Federal appeals court.

He has argued few cases in Federal district court.

His legal experience consists mainly of small personal and commercial claims.

Included in Mr. Manion's list of his "10 most significant cases" are 8 cases in State court having to do with small personal and commercial claims.

In terms of "academic credentials," Mr. Manion graduated from Indiana University School of Law without particular distinction. While this certainly does not reflect negatively on the nominee as a human being, neither does it suggest that he is anything more than "merely competent." The burden of proof must be on the nominee to demonstrate outstanding credentials and a standard of excellence.

I invite Members of this body to compare Mr. Manion's academic and professional achievements with that of other members of the seventh circuit, which can be found in appendix B of the committee report on his nomination.

As part of a nominee's record, we are supposed to look at his or her appellate briefs. Well, we have had the opportunity to do so. In fact, we have reviewed five of Mr. Manion's "best" briefs that he, himself, chose to submit to the committee.

Now, President Reagan says that we are "trying to make a major issue of a few typographical errors * * *" in Mr. Manion's briefs. I wonder if the President has taken the opportunity to review the briefs personally. The Chicago Council of Lawyers did, and here is what they said about one of the briefs:

> The brief is poorly written. It is riddled with spelling errors, typographical errors and grammatical errors. * * * Disagreement between subject and verb is rather common. * * * The brief is stilted * * * sentence structure is frequently convoluted and awkward. * * * The brief is neither clear nor forceful. * * * The argument is unnecessarily hard to follow.

The Chicago Council of Lawyers sums up its analysis by stating that:

> These briefs are, at best, average in quality * * * they support the council's conclusion that Mr. Manion has not demonstrated the level of legal skill necessary for appointment to the seventh circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. President, I am forced to agree with the council's assessment of Mr. Manion's writing.

It may interest you to know that in 1985, each member of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals took part in more than 500 decisions and personally wrote approximately 50 opinions. The seventh circuit simply is not the place to learn writing skills. It is not the place for on-the-job training.

In the area of "scholarly or other publications," the committee was unable to evaluate Mr. Manion's works because he has none to evaluate. He has written no scholarly or legal articles. As an Indiana State legislator, he gave several hundred speeches, by his own estimate, and yet submitted none for the committee to review since apparently, none were written down.

In short, Mr. Manion has nothing to recommend him for such an important judgeship. Nobdy is questioning his decency and integrity. But there are a lot of decent, average lawyers in this country, and we should expect, and indeed, demand more of a Federal appeals court judge.

Somehow, the Senate's constitutional role of advise and consent on judicial nominations has for some people come to mean a "rubber stamp of approval" for a President's nominee.

The responsibility of appointment to the judiciary is divided between the White House and Senate. The Senate has an obligation to the American people to carry out its function carefully and seriously.

I refer again to the letter by Professors Kurland and Tribe who said that:

> "The President is certainly entitled to prefer loyal supporters and like-minded thinkers in choosing among the exceptionally qualified.

Let me stress that, again, if I might—the exceptionally qualified.

> But no President has a right to treat Federal judgeships as mere patronage appointments simply to * * * assure a judiciary packed with "true believers."

The Professors go on to say that:

> * * * neither is a confirmation vote in order whenever the best that can be said of a nominee is that he has spent some time in law or public life and is untainted by any major scandal. Even at levels below that of the Supreme court, where the need for exceptional distinction should be beyond debate, the Nation has a right to expect more than minimum qualifications and probable fitness from its Federal judges.

There are many exceptionally qualified men and women in this country who would be an asset to the Federal judiciary. Certainly, many of them share the President's ideology, I urge the President to search out and nominate these individuals of high distinction and caliber, of excellence and keen intellect. And I urge this body to reject Mr. Manion's nomination because he lacks those important qualities, and to send a message to this administration that our Federal judiciary is not the place to compromise on the standard of excellence.

● Mr. DENTON. Mr. President, I rise today in strong support of the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to serve as a judge for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

It has become most apparent to me that partisanship has become the rule rather than the exception in these debates regarding President Reagan's recent nominees to the Federal bench. I am disheartened by this turn of events.

Daniel Manion comes to us as a nominee qualified according to American Bar Association standards. I think we should all be concerned by recent attempts to diminish the high standards required to receive a "qualified" rating by the ABA. Somehow people forget the integrity, experience and accomplishments one must achieve to attain a "qualified" rating for a Federal judgeship. Let us not forget that over 50 percent of the Federal judicial nominees from the four previous administrations were rated as "qualified" by the ABA. Furthermore, three Federal district court nominees in the Carter administration and three nominees to Federal district courts in the Johnson administration were rated as not qualified by the ABA. All were approved by the then Democrat-controlled Senate.

I don't want to sound inordinately partisan myself, but I bring up these facts and figures only to show that this body is no stranger to judicial nominees who have received the ABA's "qualified" designation. But suddenly the likes of Mr. Manion take center stage, and a perfectly solid ABA rating is called into question. I am appalled by the blatant display of partisanship on this nomination.

Mr. President, the record of Mr. Manion's integrity is an impressive one. It is impressive because Mr. Manion has clearly demonstrated that he has earned bipartisan support from those who know him and have worked with him.

I need only read from letters received from Democrats who strongly support Dan Manion's nomination. Mr. Eugene I. Goldman, a lifelong Democrat and a member of the executive committee of the Washington Council of Lawyers, worked with Dan Manion in defending a lawsuit in South Bend, IN. Mr. Goldman considers Dan Manion an "excellent" lawyer, who would be a distinguished member of the seventh circuit.

Attorney John J. Sullivan, the former democratic nominee for mayor of Indianapolis, recommended Dan Manion's confirmation.

Said Sullivan:

Obviously, my political philosophy and that of Dan Manion are quite different. However, over the years I have respected Dan Manion as an individual, as a legislator and as an attorney.

A most impressive recommendation of Dan Manion came from Mr. David T. Ready, the former U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Indiana, appointed by President Carter. Mr. Ready forwarded a letter to the Judiciary Committee which stated:

I have known Mr. Manion for a number of years. I believe that he is eminently qualified to fulfill the position of the United States Circuit Court judge. I firmly believe he possesses the necessary intellect, integrity, and openmindedness which practicing members of the Bar have a right to expect in our judicial appointments.

Mr. Ready concluded his letter by emphasizing the practical balance which Dan Manion would bring to the court. Mr. Ready said:

(O)ur Courts of Appeals are best served when they are comprised of former trial judges, academics, and practicing lawyers. It is my opinion that Mr. Manion is an excellent representative of that latter group and will well serve on the Court of Appeals.

Mr. President, unqualified nominees do not garner such accolades from the opposite side of the aisle. During his 13 years as a practicing attorney and a State senator, Dan Manion has shown those qualities of intelligence and integrity which have brought him the praise of his colleagues, no matter what their political affiliation.

Mr. President, the American Bar Association evaluates nominees for the Federal bench based on comprehensive and stringent standards. The ABA's Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary thoroughly reviews a nominee's professional competence, judicial temperament, and personal integrity. A substantial majority of that standing committee found Dan Manion to be qualified for the position of Federal circuit judge.

Mr. Manion served a distinguished term in the Indiana State Senate from from 1978 to 1982. Unfortunately, there are those who harshly criticize Mr. Manion for the stand he took as a cosponsor of a bill to allow the posting of the Ten Commandments in classrooms. To those who detract from Dan Manion's position on that issue, I encourage you to strip away the rhetoric and look closely at the circumstances surrounding that piece of legislation. First of all, the Indiana bill was significantly different than the Kentucky law which has been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in Stone versus Graham. The Kentucky law required the posting of the Ten Commandments, whereas the Indiana bill only authorized the posting. Second, the Stone decision was a 5 to 4 per curium decision, rendered without the benefit of briefs or arguments on the merits. Third, the issue in the Stone decision was the secular legislative purpose for the posting of the Ten Commandments, for which Justice Rhenquist made a very eloquent and precise argument in his dissent. Although I do not have the Indiana legislation before me today, it seems entirely likely that the intent of that legislation may well have withstood the precise scrutiny as articulated by Justice Rhenquist in his dissent, and could have been distinguished from the Court's majority position. Certainly the 39 State senators who passed the bill felt that it could pass constitutional muster. Finally, let us not forget that this controversial piece of legislation was carefully tailored by the Indiana Senate to become invalid should it be ruled unconstitutional.

I would be remiss if I allowed our concentration on one piece of legislation to detract from Dan Manion's distinguished term in the Indiana State Senate. Dan Manion chaired the Committee on Energy and Environmental Affairs after only 2 years in the State senate, served all of his 4 years on the Judiciary Committee and chaired the Subcommittee on Civil Law for 2 years.

It is significant that Dan Manion currently stands as lead counsel in three pending Federal cases and cocounsel for three other Federal cases. Of these cases, two have been brought under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, two are patent infringement cases, and two are diversity cases.

Finally, Mr. President, it is most telling that Dan Manion has been endorsed by Father Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University. Father Hesburgh spoke of Dan Manion as one who would "bring dedication, integrity and a keen knowledge of the law" to the position of circuit judge.

I would therefore encourage my colleagues to join with Father Hesburgh and the many others who support Dan Manion. I strongly encourage this body to give Dan Manion the strong bipartisan support that he deserves.●

Mrs. KASSEBAUM. Mr. President, I want to speak briefly regarding the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Appointment to a court of appeals confers the second highest honor and responsibility in our judicial system. It is second only to the Supreme Court in prestige and power as the final arbiter in our constitutional system of government.

Given the vital role of the circuit courts in deciding issues that affect all Americans, I believe that those who serve on that high bench must possess the finest legal minds, the broadest legal experience, and a keen understanding of our Constitution. These are high standards but they are essential to safeguard the high standard of justice that is the foundation of our democracy.

I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Manion does not meet these high standards and I cannot support his nomination.

Over the past few weeks, it has become clear that the question of Mr. Manion's qualifications is a close one. The American Bar Association gave him its lowest passing grade. Our own Judiciary Committee, which all of us trust to provide careful scrutiny and informed judgment on these appointments, was split 9 to 9 on the Manion nomination. Finally, distinguished members of the legal profession are deeply divided on the nomination.

I do not doubt the statements of Mr. Manion's supporters that he is a decent man and a competent attorney. Nor do I have a great concern about Mr. Manion's conservative political views. Instead, I am concerned that, at best, Mr. Manion may be marginally qualified to serve as a Federal judge. I hope that all of us have a higher standard than that for those who serve on the second highest court in the land.

CHICAGO COUNCIL OF LAWYERS

Mr. SYMMS. Mr. President, I support the nomination of Dan Manion for the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, and I find some elements of the opposition to Mr. Manion quite intriguing. While this court sits in Chicago, Mr. Manion has been nominated to fill an Indiana seat on the panel. The distinguished Senators from Indiana, Mr. LUGAR and Mr. QUAYLE, have informed us of the high praise and solid support which Mr. Manion has in Indiana. This high praise comes from those who know him best, his colleagues in the Indiana Bar and in the State senate.

Strong measures of support for Mr. Manion have come from both Democrats and Republicans in Indiana. Father Theodore Hesburgh, the president of the University of Notre Dame, known for years as a leader in the civil rights movement, has praised Dan Manion and his life reflecting a profound commitment to justice. Democratic and Republican officials throughout Indiana have supported Dan Manion because of his superlative integrity, his experience, his record, and his flawless reputation for fairness.

Mr. President, normally, we would find such support and qualifications grounds for an overwhelming vote for confirmation. That is not the case, however. An aroma of political inquisition, marshaled by the thought police of the liberal left, has surrounded the attack against Mr. Manion, and I intend to address one source of that opposition today.

Mr. President, I note that the minority on the Judiciary Committee bases a great deal of its opposition to Dan Manion on the criticisms of a group called the Chicago Council of Lawyers. This group, baptized with legitimacy by the minority during Mr. Manion's confirmation proceedings, opposed the Manion nomination. I take this opportunity to address that opposition.

The Chicago Council of Lawyers has a so-called review committee for judicial appointments. The members of this committee contacted many of Manion's colleagues to inquire as to his qualifications. Like virtually everyone else asking those who knew Manion, the council found high praise from those who had worked against him, as well as from those who worked with him.

Their April 9 letter to Senator SIMON states:

> Mr. Manion has a high reputation for integrity, conscientiousness, and fairness. The reports from South Bend lawyers also indicate that Mr. Manion has excellent interpersonal skills, and that lawyers who work both with him and against him like and respect him.
>
> Many of the lawyers to whom we talked also thought that, despite his reputation for political conservatism, Mr. Manion would struggle to be fair in ruling on cases which present issues on which he has strong political views.
>
> The majority of lawyers to whom we talked regarding Mr. Manion's legal experience felt that he was a competent lawyer. A few lawyers told us that Mr. Manion was an outstanding lawyer. All vouched for his forthrightness and his adherence to high ethical standards.

Mr. President, even though this letter was the ostensible basis for the minority's opposition to Manion, they did not deem it worthy of inclusion in their minority views—obviously because it contained so much praise, however begrudging it was.

In spite of their positive findings, the Chicago Council chose to oppose Mr. Manion's nomination. That perplexes me, Mr. President, and it perplexed a good many other people familiar with Mr. Manion's talents. For instance, Eugene Goldman is a member of the law firm of Steptoe and Johnson and a board member of the Washington Council of Lawyers. This group was founded on the same principles as the Chicago Council, and, unlike the members of the Chicago Council, Mr. Goldman has worked with Mr. Manion in Federal court. He wrote Senator THURMOND on April 23, 1986, agreeing with the findings in the Chicago Council report, but not with their decision to oppose Manion:

> I believe that the Chicago Council's findings, including its findings that Mr. Manion has been found to be a competent and outstanding lawyer, are inconsistent with the council's ultimate, speculative conclusion that Mr. Manion will have difficulty with the legal issues routinely presented to the seventh circuit. I respectfully encourage the committee to vote favorably on the President's nomination of Mr. Manion.

I ask unanimous consent to have the entire letter printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. SYMMS. The Washington Council of Lawyers took no position on the nomination, Mr. President. Mr. Goldman was their only member who knew Manion. Mr. Goldman, using the same standards he brings to his work on the executive board of the Washington Council, finds himself in agreement with the findings of the Chicago Council, and marvels at its conclusion. So do I, Mr. President, so do I. But I think we can go a long way toward understanding it if we look a little deeper.

Mr. President, like Mr. Goldman, I am moved to ask, if the Chicago Council of Lawyers found so much good information about Mr. Manion, why would they oppose his nomination? I have done a little research, and take this opportunity to inform the Senate about my findings.

I find that the history of the Chicago Council is informative. The Chicago Council of Lawyers was founded to support the defendants in the Chicago 7 trial, back in the days of the Vietnam war. Now remember, the Chicago 7 were a notorious group of defendants who tried to wreak havoc in their Federal courtroom to demonstrate their opposition to the Vietnam war. Given Mr. Manion's record as a Vietnam war veteran and as a supporter of victory over the Communists there—a sentiment he shared, and still shares, with President Reagan—I can understand why a group founded solely to organize lawyers against the war might oppose his nomination to a Federal bench located in Chicago. But the Chicago Council of Lawyers should be candid, Mr. President, and state their case on its ideological merits, rather than indulge in flights of fancy and concoct imaginary attacks on the nominee's qualifications.

Mr. President, the Chicago Council of Lawyers has been depicted in the Judiciary Committee as though it were the Honor Society of the American Bar Association. To set the record straight, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter from a Chicago lawyer with a more dispassionate view:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 2.)

Mr. SYMMS. Mr. President, Mr. Manion's opponents have been oscillating between the argument that, on the one hand, they are opposed to Mr. Manion solely on the basis of his qualifications, and, on the other hand, that we should consider his political views, regardless of his qualifications. They do so because they are unable to make the case on one ground or the other. So their opposition is, in effect, a shell game.

Indeed, the distinguished ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee told Mr. Manion at his nomination hearing, and I quote, "I think you are a decent and honorable man, but I do not think I can vote for you because of your political views. But that is another question."

Mr. President, that is the question. That is the only question at issue here, and we should make no bones about it. It is the only issue with regard to the Chicago Council of Lawyers, frankly, and with all due respect for the distinguished Senator from Illinois, I think the Senate has a right to know the whole story about the Chicago Council of Lawyers before the Senate takes seriously the criticism of the nominee coming from that organization.

Mr. President, Mr. Wittebort's letter points out that the president of the Chicago Council of Lawyers, Robert G. Perkins, who signed the letter against Dan Manion, was Congressman Abner Mikva's campaign manager. Senator LUGAR and Senator QUAYLE, I would like to point out, support Congressman Mikva's nomination to the District of Columbia circuit, correctly keeping ideology out of the confirmation process—and nobody suggests that Ab Mikva was, or is, ideologically inert.

Mr. President, the argument that the Chicago Council failed to approve Manion solely on the basis of the qualifications of the nominee becomes even weaker when we consider their only contact with Mr. Manion, a telephone interview held after Mr. Manion's first confirmation hearing in March. During that conversation, the Chicago Council interrogators did not keep ideology out; in fact, they devoted the vast majority of their 2-hour interrogation of Mr. Manion to political issues: abortion, busing, school prayer, and the like. The discussion of qualification was quite brief by comparison.

Mr. President, it appears we have some Chicago thought police at work here. We have a group of activist, liberal-leftist lawyers who oppose politically everything they think Dan Manion stands for, and they are out to get him. The Chicago Council did not start harping on Mr. Manion's "inadequate qualifications" until they had determined that he was politically unacceptable in terms of their partisan program. And, I am sad to say, neither did the minority members of the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. President, I began by mentioning that Mr. Manion has been nominated to fill an Indiana seat on the seventh circuit. After reviewing the facts about the Chicago Council of Lawyers and their position on Mr. Manion, I think Senators will agree that the Chicago Council has about as much business taking a position on the Manion nomination as the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce or the Peoria Lions Club. All are equally affected by the law, and by the quality of the members of the Federal judiciary, and I suggest we look not to radicals who know nothing about the nominee apart from their partisan inquisitions. I observe that the Chicago Bar Association has taken no position on the nomination, and that is proper and, I would add, speaks volumes about the context of the Chicago Council position.

Mr. President, I think the Senators who have been influenced by the report that Mr. Manion is opposed by the Chicago Council of Lawyers may now relax. The Chicago Council's opposition has been put in its political context. I call on my fellow Senators to reject this politicization of the nomination process, and confirm Dan Manion to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

EXHIBIT 1

STEPTOE & JOHNSON,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
Washington, DC, April 23, 1986.

Hon. STROM THURMOND,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Senate Dirksen Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN THURMOND: I am writing in support of the confirmation of the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to serve on the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. By way of background, I have been a Democrat all of my life. For the last seven years, I have served as a director and member of the Executive Committee of the Washington Council of Lawyers, which shares its origins and commitment to the public interest with the Chicago Council of Lawyers. I am also a great admirer of Senator Simon and contributed to his campaign for the Senate. I have also had the opportunity to work with Mr. Manion in defending a lawsuit in South Bend.

I believe that Mr. Manion is an excellent lawyer and would be a distinguished member of the Seventh Circuit. I have reviewed the Chicago Council's letter to Senator Simon, dated April 9, 1986, and note the Council's findings that Mr. Manion "has a high reputation for integrity, conscientiousness, and fairness . . . has excellent interpersonal skills, and that lawyers who work both with and against him like and respect him . . . that the majority of lawyers . . . felt that he was a competent lawyer. A few lawyers told us that Mr. Manion was an outstanding lawyer. All vouched for his forthrightness and his adherence to high ethical standards."

I believe that the Chicago Council's findings, including its finding that Mr. Manion has been found to be a competent and outstanding lawyer, are inconsistent with the Council's ultimate, speculative conclusion that Mr. Manion will have difficulty with the legal issues routinely presented to the Seventh Circuit. I respectfully encourage the Committee to vote favorably on the President's nomination of Mr. Manion.

Very truly yours,

EUGENE I. GOLDMAN.

EXHIBIT 2

ROBERT J. WITTEBORT, JR.,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
Chicago, IL, June 19, 1986.

Hon. PAUL SIMON,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR SIMON: I am a managing partner in the 200-attorney Chicago law firm of Chapman and Cutler. As a graduate of Notre Dame Law School, I have been following with great interest the progress of President Reagan's nomination of Daniel A. Manion to the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. I will say at the outset that I believe Mr. Manion to be fully qualified to serve on the Seventh Circuit bench, and I hope his nomination is speedily confirmed by the Senate. But even if I did not feel strongly about Mr. Manion's nomination, I nevertheless would take exception to your description of the Chicago Council of Lawyers.

Judging the capabilities and performance of lawyers is an extraordinarily difficult task, and it is natural for laymen—and legislatures—to seek objective benchmarks. The endorsements of bar groups can act as such benchmarks, but their value as measures of legal ability, as opposed to political inclination, depends chiefly on their objectivity. Based on my twelve years of practice as a Chicago lawyer, I seriously question the objectivity of the Chicago Council of Lawyers. To place its rating on the same footing as that of the American Bar Association is misleading.

In the Senate Judiciary Committee Business Meeting transcript of May 8, 1986, you are quoted as saying that "[t]here are about 19,000 lawyers in Chicago and of that number the most active are members of the Chicago Council of Lawyers" (emphasis added). This comes as news to me. I think I know several lawyers who might fairly be characterized as among the "most active" in Chicago (whatever that may mean precisely) and who are nonetheless not members of the Chicago Council of Lawyers (which numbers, as you pointed out, only slightly more than one thousand). Indeed, according to the 1985–86 edition of Sullivan's Law Directory, notable non-members of the Chicago Council of Lawyers include (but are not limited to) such prominent litigators as Philip H. Corboy, Don H. Reuben, Anton R. Valukas, Dan K. Webb, and Neil F. Hartigan, Attorney General of the State of Illinois. I think those lawyers would be surprised to learn that they have been characterized in the United States Senate as not being among "the most active" lawyers in Chicago. In short, it is incorrect to describe the Chicago Council of Lawyers as comprising "the most active" lawyers in Chicago. It would, however, not be far off the mark to describe the Council as the most activist group of lawyers in Chicago—with all the liberal undertones that word implies when applied to lawyers and judges.

In response to a question from the chair concerning the political complexion of the Chicago Council of Lawyers, you stated that, among its members, "[t]here are many who are liberal; there are many who are conservative' (emphasis added). It is very difficult to formulate reliable tests to determine whether a given individual is liberal or conservative, and perhaps there are a few wayward "conservatives" in the Chicago Council of Lawyers—but to say there are "many" conservatives must, in my view, be wrong. Not only has the Chicago Council of Lawyers been associated with liberal causes for quite some time (for example, opposing the death penalty in the case of mass-murderer John Gacey, and challenging Governor Thompson's use of the amendatory veto), but the Council has been characterized—fairly, in my view—as "liberal" by the Legal Times (on March 19, 1984 and on March 31, 1986). This characterization is consistent with my own personal observation of the actions of the Council and the views of its members whom I know.

You further stated, Senator Simon, that the Chicago Council of Lawyers "obviously [has] approved the previous conservative nominees of the President." With respect, it is my recollection that the Council opposed the nomination of Frank H. Easterbrook and took no position on the nomination of Kenneth F. Ripple. And in connection with the nomination of Richard A. Posner, George F. Galland, Jr., then the president of the Council, was quoted as saying ". . . I really disagree with [his conservative approach]" (The National Law Journal, November 26, 1984). This does not amount to a record of approving the President's nominees and reflects a clear anti-conservative bias in the Council's Seventh Circuit ratings.

Finally, although the Chicago Council of Lawyers clearly has the constitutional right to announce its views on the President's judicial nominations, I seriously question whether its ratings should be given the same weight as those of the American Bar Association. Not only is the Council ideologically biased, but it represents a small constituency—slightly over 1,000 lawyers in Chicago. The Seventh Circuit comprises three states. The Milwaukee Bar Association, the Springfield Bar Association, the Indianapolis Bar Association and even the Chicago Bar Association have not taken it upon themselves to pass judgment on nominees for the bench of the Seventh Circuit—why has the unsolicited view of a small Chicago association been given such weight? When the Council rates local, Chicago candidates for the bench and sitting judges, it is within its realm of competence because it knows the lawyers it is rating. I suggest that the Seventh Circuit is a different matter. If a local bar group's view is relevant, perhaps it should be that of the St. Joseph County Bar Association, which knows Daniel Manion: it overwhelmingly supports his nomination.

In short, Senator Simon, I am disturbed by your statements on May 8, and I am concerned that they may have left a misimpression of the nature of the Chicago Council of Lawyers, and a magnified sense of the importance of its rating, on those who heard or read them. I urge you to consider taking some action to clarify the situation. And I hope that you will weigh the nomination of Daniel Manion objectively. Thank you for your attention.

Very truly yours,

ROBERT J. WITTEBORT, Jr.

● Mr. ZORINSKY. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the nomination of Daniel Manion to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. After carefully reviewing his record I find that he lacks the skills and experience for this prestigious, life-tenured position. There are many fine and engaging human beings with a host of positive qualities, who nonetheless lack the extraordinary qualifications required of a Federal judge. I do not doubt that Dan Manion fits this description.

The reasons that I find Mr. Manion unqualified have been detailed in recent days by opponents of his nomination. Mr. Manion's legal briefs are mediocre at best, his experience as a litigator—especially in the Federal courts—is limited, and his lack of scholarly writings is indicative of his shocking indifference to constitutional jurisprudence.

Excuses have been made for Mr. Manion based on the fact that he is a "small town" lawyer. I find such comments insulting to rural America. Some of the finest legal minds—past and present—come from rural settings and, to the best of my knowledge there are law books and dictionaries in South Bend, IN. The courts, and legal ethics demand quality respresentation by attorneys wherever they practice their profession.

It has been suggested by some that this is a right to life issue. It is not. I am a strong and ardent supporter of the right to life movement—my credentials in this area are beyond reproach. However, if one of the criteria being used to evaluate a judicial nominee is his position on abortion—and for this is on consideration—why not have a prolife nominee who has argued a case before the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals? Why not nominate someone who has distinguished himself or herself as a legal or constitutional scholar? In short, why should we not nominate a prolife candidate who exhibits the excellence Americans deserve in our judicial system?

Furthermore, it has been suggested that opposition to Mr. Manion is purely of a partisan nature. Last Saturday, President Reagan added his voice to those charging Manion opponents with partisanship and obstructionism. This is the greatest red herring of all. I find this accusation incredible in light of the President's 270 judicial nominees the Senate has already approved.

Finally, I believe that President Reagan's support for this nomination does a real disservice to the conservative social agenda. As stated above, I am a strong supporter of the right to life. While I do not think that Mr. Manion's Ten Commandment legislation was well thought out, I have supported efforts to allow students to pray in school. In fact, while some of my Democratic colleagues might find Mr. Manion's ideology objectionable, I do not. The point is that I agree with many of the sentiments Mr. Manion has expressed, but do not believe him qualified to be a Federal judge.

Certainly, there are more qualified conservative candidates available to represent the 22 million people of the seventh circuit. The administration has not simply nominated Mr. Manion to be a district court judge—a distinguished position in itself—but for this most eminent seat on the court of appeals. This is a reprehensible dereliction of duty on the part of the President's selection committee, and a case where the administration has placed ideology above concern for justice. It is up to the Senate to oppose this nomination, and I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing Mr. Manion.●

● Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I oppose the nomination of Daniel A. Manion for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. I would like to commend my distinguished colleague from Delaware, the ranking member on the Judiciary Committee, for his leadership in opposition to this nomination, and for insisting that the U.S. Senate meet its constitutional responsibilities of advice and consent.

Mr. President, the burden is not on the opponents of Mr. Manion's nomination to show why he should not be confirmed for the second highest court in the United States. Rather, the burden of proof is on the proponents of Mr. Manion's nomination to show why he should be confirmed for that high office. That burden has not been met.

Mr. Manion has written no law review articles, or other works of legal scholarship. He has handled no major cases. Indeed, he has never handled any Federal appellate case, and has never been the lead attorney in any Federal case. Mr. Manion has never taught or lectured at any law school. In sum, Mr. Manion is lacking in any legal distinction.

As the New York Times editorialized, in opposing Mr. Manion's nomination, "He has written no scholarly articles to help Senators measure his intellect. His only relevant work record, legal briefs to State courts, would embarrass a first-year law student * * *. And the reader who slogs on finds no redeeming spark of originality or insight."

Mr. Manion's work simply does not measure up to the standards which we have a right to expect of a nominee for a Federal appellate court. As the minority report of the Senate Judiciary Committee states, "Mr. Manion's legal briefs demonstrate a pervasive lack of technical ability, craftsmanship, attention to detail, and reasoning. In each case * * * Mr. Manion's writing fell far short of the standard that should be expected of a Federal appeals court judge." This was the finding not only of the Democratic members of the committee, but also of independent attorneys who reviewed Mr. Manion's briefs at the behest of the Chicago Council of Lawyers.

We have heard the comments of the lawyers on the council's Federal judicial evaluation committee about the quality of Mr. Manion's legal briefs. I need not add to those criticisms.

The bottom line is that Mr. Manion can claim no serious legal credentials. His 13 years of legal experience have been confined to personal injury defense, commercial litigation, and small-claims work. He has participated in only 12 Federal trials, and never as lead attorney. He received only a "qualified" rating from the American Bar Association, with a minority rating him as "not qualified." The Chicago Council of Lawyers opposes Mr. Manion's nomination.

All of us in this Chamber who are members of the legal profession know that there are minimum professional standards which we expect of ourselves, and of our colleagues. When a lawyer is nominated for a Federal judgeship, he or she should meet those professional standards. When the nomination is for a Federal appellate court, second only to the U.S. Supreme Court, the standard should be even higher. When a lawyer can only meet the barest minimum standard of the legal profession, and when a group of his own peers find him to be "not qualified" for the Federal bench, that lawyer should not be nominated for a position on the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Legal skills are not the only quality lacking in Mr. Manion. He has also shown a lack of regard for the U.S. Constitution. He has a history which raises serious questions. As a State legislator in Indiana, Mr. Manion cosponsored a bill to authorize the posting of the Ten Commandments in school classrooms, after the U.S. Supreme Court had already ruled in Stone v. Graham, 449 U.S. 39 (1980), that such a statute was unconstitutional.

Mr. Manion's defender now claim that his bill differed in some respect from the Kentucky bill which was ruled unconstitutional. But Mr. Manion himself failed to make that distinction in his testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee. And if Mr. Manion could not make that distinction, in a case in which he was personally involved, how can he be expected to make the legal distinctions which an appellate judge is called upon to make every day, in difficult constitutional cases?

Mr. Manion has admitted that he knew of the Supreme Court ruling at the time he filed his bill, and that he knew that his bill was unconstitutional. He now claims that he filed it as a "legislative protest," or "legislative prerogative."

Mr. President, there is no "legislative prerogative" to overturn the U.S. Constitution. As the Supreme Court has held in Cooper versus Aaron, upholding the Court's landmark civil rights decision in Brown versus Board of Education, "compliance with decisions of this Court * * * depend on active support by State and local authorities. It presupposes such support. To withhold it, and indeed, to use political power to paralyze the supreme law, precludes the maintenance of our federal system."

Apparently Mr. Manion does not agree with that Supreme Court ruling. Apparently he believes that the Supreme Court is only supreme when he agrees with its decisions, and can be ignored the rest of the time. This is the only possible explanation for Mr. Manion's statement that Supreme Court decisions are not the "law of the land," but are merely "stare decisis," applying only to the case at hand.

It is ironic that Mr. Manion's nomination is supported by Attorney General Edwin Meese, a man who claims to believe in adhering to the "original intent" of the framers of the Constitution. I don't believe that the intent of the framers was to place the judgment of a Daniel Manion above the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Clearly, the basis for Mr. Manion's nomination is not his record of legal qualifications, or his knowledge of the U.S. Constitution. So we can conclude that the only basis for his nomination is, in fact, his ideology. And now the President and the Senator from Utah claim that Mr. Manion has been opposed on the basis of that political ideology. The opposite is in fact true. He has been opposed on the basis of his lack of qualifications. But he has been nominated on the basis of his far-right ideology.

However, I also think that some of his judgments regarding ideology raise serious questions. Mr. Manion has, on more than one occasion, endorsed the views of the John Birch Society. He has praised a book called "We Hold These Truths," by Birch Society spokesman Larry McDonald, as "one of the finest summaries of the history of our Nation," despite the fact that this book repudiates the function of judicial review of State action, and attacks the Supreme Court's landmark civil rights decision in Brown versus Board of Education.

Mr. Manion has also gone on record as opposing the application of the Bill of Rights to the States. That doctrine, known as "selective incorporation," was overruled by the Supreme Court 60 years ago. Yes, it was advocated in the John Birch Society book which Mr. Manion praised so effusively. But it has been discredited by legal scholars, and by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mr. Manion also advocated stripping jurisdiction from the Supreme Court, and from lower Federal courts—a concept which has been rejected many times by the U.S. Senate, and one which clearly violates the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers.

Mr. Manion cosponsored a bill in the Indiana Legislature to allow the teaching of "creationism" in Indiana public schools, a clear violation of the principle first enunciated by Thomas Jefferson of separation of church and state. And, in a 1971 broadcast, Mr. Manion said that antiwar demonstrators "should be penned up * * * . Why are all these people, some who are even convicted criminals, going around the country and not only berating the Constitution and the free enterprise system but also advocating communism, why are they allowed to run free?"

Mr. President, I was one of those antiwar demonstrators in 1971. I suppose that Mr. Manion would have advocated that I should be "penned up." I respect his right to advocate that belief. But I do not think that a man who advocates those views understands the meaning of free speech, or the first amendment to the Constitution.

Mr. Manion's views are not the views of a true conservative. They are the views of a man who does not understand the U.S. Constitution or the values which it protects. And they are the views of a man who does not respect our judicial system. I have no objection to judicial nominees who hold conservative views. I have voted for many of them. But Mr. Manion does not meet the high standards which should be expected of a judge of the U.S. court of appeals.

I am disturbed by the fact that over 40 law school deans, from such eminent schools as Yale, Georgetown, Harvard, and New York University, have signed a letter to the Senate opposing Mr. Manion's nomination. I am troubled by the fact that a coalition of 51 groups, including labor unions, civil rights groups, and legal defense organizations, have joined together in opposition to the nomination of Mr. Manion.

I am also troubled by the fact that several members of the Senate Judiciary Committee feel that Mr. Manion has been less than candid with the members of the committee. I am disturbed by the revelations that Mr. Manion has tampered with the transcripts of the hearing of the Senate Judiciary Committee, to alter the meaning of this testimony.

And as a former prosecutor, I am troubled by Mr. Manion's frequent use of phrases such as "I don't remember," or "I don't recall." I have heard those kind of phrases used many times in the courtroom. I came to understand them as codewords for evasions and untruths. And when that person happens to be a nominee for a Federal judgeship, it is time to take a long, hard look at the credibility of that person. In Mr. Manion's case, I find that credibility to be lacking.

Mr. President, we have given President Reagan the benefit of the doubt many times on his judicial nominations. We have never yet rejected a single one of his judicial nominees on the floor of the U.S. Senate. But the time has come to draw the line. We would be abdicating our constitutional role of advice and consent if we were to confirm Mr. Manion's nomination. Indeed, we would be violating our oath of office, an oath to uphold and protect the Constitution of the United States, if we were to vote in favor of Mr. Manion. In good conscience, I cannot take that step. I will vote against the nomination of Daniel Manion for the U.S. court of appeals, and I urge my colleagues to do so as well.●

QUALITY ON THE COURTS

● Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I will oppose the nomination of Daniel Manion.

The courts hold a special place in our system. Most people will likely never set foot in a Federal courtroom. But, what happens there affects them. It affects the rights they enjoy, and the rules that govern their lives. It affects what they think and feel about their Government, and its capacity to do justice.

The Senate has a role here. It has an important role. It has a duty to see that our courts have men and women of skill, of experience, of intelligence. It needs men and women who will serve the law, serve the Constitution, and serve the people, with fairness, integrity, and compassion.

And, Mr. President, with swings in political mood, with changes in Presidents, we see changes in the backgrounds, in the leanings of those named to serve. That makes for a diverse judiciary—a judiciary as diverse as the Nation it judges.

But, diversity is no excuse for mediocrity. Ideology is no substitute for quality.

Does Mr. Manion meet the test? No he doesn't. First, he lacks the legal experience and skills that the public deserves. Second, he's displayed a disturbing lack of respect for the Constitution and the rulings of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Manion has never appeared before the court to which he has been nominated. He has not handled a substantial part of the range of complex cases that would come to that court. He has not distinguished himself in legal scholarship. His legal work, his writing, and the clarity of his reasoning has been found deficient by law professors.

Even more disturbing is his lack of respect for the Constitution. As a State legislator, he defied Supreme Court rulings. In hearings before the Judiciary Committee, he raised serious questions about his willingness to abide by Supreme Court precedent. He held contempt for Supreme Court decisions that apply the Bill of Rights to the States. He says now he accepts those decisions. But his conversion is less than convincing.

Mr. President, the record is discussed in detail in the minority views of my colleagues on the Judiciary Committee. The burden is on the proponents to show why this nominee should sit on the U.S. court of appeals, the second highest court in the land. The case has not been made.

I will vote against confirming this nominee.●

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I oppose the nomination of Daniel A. Manion to be a U.S. circuit judge for the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

I take no pleasure or satisfaction in opposing the appointment of an individual to the Federal bench. When the Senate debates the qualifications of a nominee, it is inevitable that there will be a personal element to the debate. I regret this, and I want to stress that I bear Daniel Manion no ill will. I've no doubt that Mr. Manion is a good man.

But when it comes to selecting judges for the Federal appellate bench, it is not enough to find "good" men and women. The men and women who serve on the court of appeals should have outstanding qualifications.

Too many of the President's recent judicial nominees have had mediocre records at best. Daniel Manion is the latest in a series of nominees who barely make the grade, according to the ABA Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary. A majority found him just "qualified"; a minority rated him "unqualified." We must remember that when the ABA evaluates judicial nominees, it considers only competence, integrity and judicial temperament. It does not look at the nominee's political philosophy, nor does it seek to assign an ideological score to their prior conduct or views.

Mr. Manion is a conservative—everyone knows that. That surely neither qualifies nor disqualifies him. There are some circumstances under which ideology would be a disqualifying factor—if, for example, the nominees' ideology offends the basic values of our system or is inconsistent with the basic principles of American law. But in Mr. Manion's case, we don't even need to determine if his ideology is within the mainstream of American values because he is not up to the standards required for the Federal bench in other ways.

Mr. Manion has little, if any, experience in dealing with Federal constitutional or public law issues. He has never argued a case before a Federal appeals court. He has been first chair in few, if any, trials in Federal district court. The full extent of Mr. Manion's Federal trial practice has been limited to a handful of diversity jurisdiction cases involving issues of State law. His legal experience consists primarily of representation of clients in small personal and commercial claims, particularly in land condemnation cases, in State court.

Mr. Manion has never published any scholarly or other writings. While the publication of scholarly writings may not be an essential prerequisite for a Federal judge, it is a significant indication that a nominee has the keen intellect and legal insight that are essential for the work of the court of appeals. The only legal writings we have from Mr. Manion are the five briefs he submitted to the Judiciary Committee. Since these briefs have been extensively critiqued already I won't belabor the point. Suffice it to say that these examples of Mr. Manion's work—and remember, these were submitted as his best work—fall far short of the standard that should be expected of a Federal appeals court judge. His work is sloppy. Not only is it full of typographical, spelling, and grammatical errors, but it also lacks the clarity and logic we would expect, or indeed, require from a Federal judge.

Mr. Manion's supporters explain these errors as the result of an incompetent secretary or the pressure of severe time constraints. They say he submitted them with the caveat that they were unedited. Did he give the same caveat to the judge to whom the briefs were originally submitted? Mr. Manion is responsible for his own work, time constraint or no time constraint. These are not rough drafts; these are the actual briefs submitted to the judges in these cases. There is no acceptable explanation for the poor quality of these briefs other than that they are the work of a lawyer of mediocre talents.

The suitability of Mr. Manion to serve on the Federal bench is in fact so questionable that the deans of 44 of this country's most prominent law schools were compelled to write a letter to the majority and minority leaders urging that the Senate reject the nomination on the grounds that Mr. Manion is not qualified to serve on the seventh circuit court. Several other law school deans and distinguished professors of law have written on their own to the Senate leadership or to the Judiciary Committee with a similar message. Speaking for the administration, Attorney General Meese dismissed these letters as part of "an unseemly ideological battle being waged against this administration's nominees." In an article that appeared in yesterday's New York Times, Mr. Meese was further quoted as saying that "Dan Manion's qualifications are simply not in doubt * * *." It is simply incredible to me that anyone could seriously suggest that Mr. Manion's "qualifications are simply not in doubt," in view of substantial doubts about his qualifications expressed by a significant proportion of the best legal minds in our country. The views of 44 law school deans cannot be dismissed as "partisan attacks." These deans took the highly unusual step of signing such a letter because they could see, upon examining the record, that Mr. Manion did not meet the minimum criteria for a Federal judgeship.

Mr. President, the Senate should not be evaluating a less than distinguished lawyer to the Federal bench. The Senate should take seriously its constitutional duty with regard to judicial appointments. "Advice and consent" does not mean "rubberstamp." It does not imply simple deference to the President. In the domain of appointments to the Federal bench, the Senate is an equal partner to the President, and should behave as such.

There is a critical distinction between administrative appointments to the executive branch and judicial appointments. In the case of administrative appointments, the President is entitled to considerable latitude. He is entitled to select people who reflect his views and who will carry out his policies. The Senate exercises its role by raising questions about the nominees' experience, competence, and ethical integrity.

But with regard to judicial appointments, we must apply a different standard. These are lifetime appointments, with removal only by impeachment. The power of the appointed individuals over the Constitution—and the statutes and executive actions flowing from it—is enormous. The men and women we put on the bench, for life, ought to have demonstrated some personal and professional qualities which justify their evaluation. The power we give to Federal judges, members of the third and coequal branch of the Federal Government, is too pervasive to permit us to accept mediocrity on the bench. We can and should require judges to meet a higher standard.

The question before us then should be: Does Mr. Manion meet this higher standard? After examining the qualifications of the nominee, I can only answer this question in the negative. Daniel Manion simply does not have the experience, legal acumen, or professional achievement we should look for in our Federal judges.

(By request of Mr. DOLE, the following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD:)

● Mrs. HAWKINS. Mr. President, I support Daniel A. Manion who has been nominated to be U.S. circuit judge for the seventh circuit. Daniel Manion would be an asset to our Federal judicial system.

Daniel Manion is a qualified and suitable individual to serve in this position as his record will demonstrate. He graduated from the University of Notre Dame in 1964 and went on to Indiana School of Law. His achievements in this time include the John J. Cavanaugh Award at Notre Dame and authoring some 20 briefs on various criminal appeals issues. In 1978, Daniel was elected to the Indiana State Senate where he demonstrated consistently his abilities in leadership and high standards.

As a partner in a South Bend law firm, Mr. Manion litigated a wide variety of cases which suitably prepared him for this post. These include cases in banking, civil rights, tax, insurance, and commercial defense. Furthermore, the ratings given Mr. Manion by his colleagues, the Chicago Council of Lawyers, reveal his character. They describe him as a man with a "high reputation for integrity, conscientiousness, and fairness" and one who is known for his "forthrightness and his adherence to high, ethical standards." His extensive legal experience serves as an admirable example to all aspiring U.S. circuit judges.

I fully support Daniel Manion's nomination to serve on the U.S. court of appeals because I believe he will uphold the U.S. Constitution in the manner Americans expect from such a judicial appointee. I join my fellow colleagues in supporting Mr. Manion for this position.●

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, what is the time situation?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The minority leader has 10 minutes and the majority leader has 4 minutes remaining time under the control of the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask the distinguished chairman of the Judiciary Committee if he would be willing to extend the time on both sides by 7 minutes, 7 minutes on each side. I first thought 5 minutes but I see more Senators here.

Mr. THURMOND. I have no objection.

Mr. President, we have no objection to extending the time 7 minutes on each side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request? Hearing none, without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Delaware.

Mr. President, this nomination comes down to one question. That is, under our oath of office that we take as Senators to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States, Should we vote to approve the appointment of Daniel Manion to be a judge on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals?

I regard that oath of office to be very solemn. It is one we should take very seriously. Under our Constitution, it is the Federal judiciary which is the final protector and final arbiter of the constitutional protections that are so dear to us as Americans: free speech, freedom of the press, all the constitutional guarantees.

It is, therefore, incumbent upon us, as we take our oath of office, to make sure that the confirmation of appointments in the judicial branch of Government, the third branch of Government, are people of the highest competence and integrity, and are appointees who will protect and defend the Constitution of the United States.

I have personally met Dan Manion. I asked to see him. I wanted to meet him. I wanted to find out what this man is all about, to be sure that when I voted I was better informed in my decision of whether or not he should be confirmed to the circuit court of appeals.

Daniel Manion is a nice guy. He is decent. He is clean-cut. But I submit, Mr. President, that Daniel Manion is not sufficiently competent, nor does he have sufficient understanding of, knowledge of, or reverence for, the Constitution of the United States, which is a requisite to be a member of the circuit court of appeals.

I do not have the time to go into details; I do not have the time to go into all the facts.

But the fact is, the sole question is whether we as Senators are going to exercise our highest obligation, our highest duty. Our duty under our oath of office is to make sure that the appointees to the judicial branch do, in fact, have those highest standards and that they will protect our constitutional guarantees.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. METZENBAUM. I thank the Senator.

Mr. President, this nomination provides an opportunity for the Senate to exercise its constitutional duty. We are called upon to determine whether the nominee should assume for the rest of his life one of the most powerful and important positions in our legal system. The President has nominated Mr. Manion to the second highest court in the land. In the great majority of cases, there will be no review of the decisions he and his colleagues make. For all practical purposes, he will make the final decision in thousands of cases.

Some will say that the Senate should always let the President decide who the Federal judges of this country should be. Some will say that I want to take away the constitutional right of the President to choose Federal judges. I do not want to do that at all. The President has the privilege to appoint to the Federal judiciary persons who are compatible with his philosophy. But we cannot allow a presumption that the Senate must confirm each candidate the President nominates.

Those who say that the Senate should always let the President choose our Federal judges should read the Constitution. The Constitution says that the President "shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint judges of the United States." The Constitution says that the Senate must consent to the President's nominee.

Those who suggest that the Senate must approve anyone the President sends to the Senate are wrong.

Though I strongly believe that the Senate must play an independent and meaningful role, I do not believe that the President's choices must be opposed as a routine matter. I have voted for many conservative nominees who have advocated positions with which I disagree.

I am a member of the Judiciary Committee which has acted favorably on many nominees who embrace philosophies which I do not find palatable. We have confirmed over 270 of these nominees. I opposed only a few of these nominees for two simple reasons. One, I found that these nominees held views which were so extreme as to be inconsistent with fundamental constitutional principles. Second, I found that these nominees were not qualified to serve as Federal judges.

When Mr. Manion was before the Senate Judiciary Committee, I asked myself two questions. Is he qualified to serve on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals? Does he have sufficient respect for the Constitution and laws of this country? Regretfully—I was forced to answer both these questions "No."

Let me address the question of competency first—because this issue is so fundamental.

Why does Mr. Manion's competence matter?

Mr. Manion has been nominated to serve on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. If he serves, he will hear arguments on some of our most complex legal issues. He will be expected to write opinions articulating the law of that circuit in a precise, clear and legally sound manner. I do not believe that Mr. Manion can meet these expectations.

Let me review the evidence.

The American Bar Association found Mr. Manion minimally qualified to serve on the seventh circuit. The American Bar Association's Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary uses four categories to rate nominees: Exceptionally well-qualified, well-qualified, qualified, and not qualified. A majority of the ABA committee found him qualified, and a minority found him unqualified.

Not only did Mr. Manion receive a poor rating from the ABA; he also received a "not qualified" rating from the Chicago Council of Lawyers. This is a group made up of well-respected lawyers from Chicago, the largest city in the three States which make up the seventh circuit.

In an April 9, 1986 letter to Senator SIMON, the Chicago Council said:

> Mr. Manion has participated in 12 trials to varying degrees in Federal court; however, he has not yet had the responsibility for being first Chair in a Federal trial. He told us he has handled a case in which a Federal constitutional issue was involved. He also told us he has never argued a case in the seventh circuit.

The council concluded that Mr. Manion is "not qualified" to serve on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. Their letter says:

> The council is very concerned about the fact that Mr. Manion lacks experience in dealing with questions of Federal law and Federal constitutional issues. He also lacks experience with the kinds of complex Federal litigation which he would have to review as a judge of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. Moreover, the quality and extent of Mr. Manion's legal experience in State court does not demonstrate the high level of legal expertise which the council feels should be possessed by judges of the seventh circuit. Finally, Mr. Manion has not demonstrated any scholarly interest in State and Federal law or constitutional issues.

This past Tuesday, I asked my staff to contact the Chicago Council of Lawyers to verify the information in the council's April 9, 1986 letter to Senator SIMON on Mr. Manion's Federal trial experience. A spokesman for the council verified that all of the information was accurate.

The information Mr. Manion supplied to the committee also shows his lack of qualifications. The committee asked Mr. Manion to describe the 10 most significant litigated matters which he had handled.

He listed the following cases: A warranty case involving a volkswagen; a loan dispute; two negligence cases; an attorney malpractice case; two land condemnation cases; a utility sale case; a child custody case; and a personal injury case involving a motorcycle. According to the biographical information Mr. Manion supplied to the committee, two of these cases were Federal court cases.

The committee also asked Mr. Manion to describe the most significant legal activities he had pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial.

In response to this question, Mr. Manion listed the following matters: Two breach of contract cases and a personal injury negligence case. Two of these cases were Federal court cases. Mr. Manion's experience is woefully inadequate.

The fact that Mr. Manion lacks significant Federal court experience troubles me enough. But I am also troubled by the fact that his written legal work is of poor quality.

The Chicago Council of Lawyers asked Mr. Manion to submit to the council five of his best briefs. Each brief was reviewed by a different member of the council's Federal Judicial Evaluation Committee.

We must seriously weigh the analyses of the council. The results are disturbing in light of the position to which Mr. Manion has been nominated.

The council found one of the briefs ineffective. The council said:

> Mr. Manion's writing ability falls substantially short of the minimal requirements for the position.

The council said:

> Brief thoroughly fails to communicate Mr. Manion's arguments in any effective manner . . . (the) brief is extremely difficult to follow because it lacks both an initial summary of Mr. Manion's overall argument and internal summaries of his principal points.
>
> As a result, the reader cannot discern the gist of an argument by Mr. Manion until after completing the entire section of the brief devoted to that argument, if then.

The council found other briefs deficient.

The council said:

> Mr. Manion's briefs did not directly confront the court's analysis . . . by failing directly to confront the court's reasoning, the briefs do not give the court any convincing rationale for changing its result.

The briefs, they said, "are, at best, average in quality."

Of another brief, the council said:

> Mr. Manion's writing is less than persuasive partly because his brief is not very well organized and the confusing syntax often makes his arguments difficult to follow.

The Chicago Council letter concludes by stating that:

> Mr. Manion has not demonstrated the level of legal skill necessary for appointment to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Personally, I am appalled that these briefs may be Manion's best legal work. I am even more shocked that Mr. Manion chose to submit a brief so poorly argued and so riddled with technical error.

Does the nominee have any idea what acceptable legal work is? If Mr. Manion is confirmed, how will he recognize acceptable legal work?

Mr. Manion will be woefully out of place on the seventh circuit. I have compared Mr. Manion's credentials to the credentials the judges of the seventh circuit had when they were nominated. Mr. Manion cannot join these judges as an equal.

Of the 14 distinguished seventh circuit judges, five had served as U.S. district court judges—one for 20 years and another for 19 years. Two were justices on their State supreme courts. Four were professors of law at such institutions as the University of Chicago Law School and Notre Dame. Mr. Manion cannot be favorably compared with the current members of the seventh circuit. We should not compel this court to accommodate his weaknesses.

Not only will he be out of place among his colleagues on his own circuit, his qualifications do not measure up to those possessed by the other 59 men and women who have been appointed to the Federal appeals courts since January 1981.

Many of these judges had either solid legal experience or distinguished academic credentials. Twenty-nine percent were law professors. Forty-two percent had prior Federal legal experience—one was a Solicitor General, some were U.S. attorneys and Deputy Attorneys General. Forty-one percent had been Federal judges. Fifty-three percent were Federal or State judges. Fifty-eight percent received either the exceptionally well-qualified or well-qualified rating from the ABA.

I should also point out that over 40 deans of some of our finest law schools say that Mr. Manion is unqualified to serve on the seventh circuit. They wrote to the majority and the minority leaders of this body to "urge that the Senate decline to consent to this nomination on the ground that Mr. Manion is not qualified to serve * * *"

I have pointed out before that the quality of judges nominated over the past year has declined. But the nomination of Mr. Manion marks a new low.

The next issue I want to raise is whether the nominee has sufficient respect for the Constitution.

I have reviewed his actions as a State senator and I must be frank. I do not know whether Mr. Manion sufficiently respects the Constitution. I don't know whether he believes that Supreme Court decisions establish the law of the land. Because I have serious doubts, I must vote against Mr. Manion.

In January of 1981, while Mr. Manion was a State senator, he joined what he called a "legislative protest" against a Supreme Court decision. The decision he and other legislators protested, Stone versus Graham, struck down a Kentucky statute which required the posting of the Ten Commandments. The Supreme Court said that the Kentucky statute violated the establishment clause of the Constitution.

Two months after the Stone decision, Mr. Manion cosponsored a bill which permitted the posting of the Ten Commandments in public schools throughout Indiana. The bill was virtually identical to the Kentucky statute.

The Indiana State Senate bill stated that:

> Teachers in public * * * schools may display copies of the Ten Commandments * * * on the walls of * * * classrooms.

The invalidated Kentucky statute stated that:

> It shall be the duty of the superintendent of public instruction * * * to insure that a durable, permanent copy of the Ten Commandments shall be displayed on a wall in each * * * classroom.

Though the Kentucky statute mandated posting, and the Indiana bill would have permitted posting, Stone versus Graham condemned them both. The Supreme Court said that government posting was enough to violate the establishment clause.

Let me quote the court: The "mere posting under the auspices of the legislature provides the official support of the State government that the establishment clause prohibits." One need not be a scholar to know that the bill Manion sponsored was obviously unconstitutional.

And Mr. Manion told us at his confirmation hearing that he knew the bill was unconstitutional when he cosponsored it.

He said at his hearing that had the bill been enacted, and these are his words: "It would have to be declared unconstitutional * * *." He went on "Yes, I would say it would have been overturned. No question about it." So there is no dispute over the fact that Mr. Manion knew the bill was unconstitutional.

Mr. Manion defied the supremacy clause of our Constitution, article VI, when he cosponsored the ten commandment bill. That part of the Constitution states that:

> The Constitution shall be the supreme law of the land * * * and that * * * the members of the several State legislatures shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this constitution.

When Mr. Manion joined the Indiana State Senate, he agreed to the principle of constitutional supremacy embodied in the supremacy clause and the decisions of the Supreme Court.

In spite of this oath, Mr. Manion called his sponsorship of the bill—and these are his words "legislative prerogative" and "legislative protest." Mr. Manion's knowing sponsorship of unconstitutional legislation—and his doctrine of State legislative protest and prerogative—are dangerously close to the doctrines of interposition and nullification. These doctrines—which amount to the view that the States may defy national law at will—have been rejected again and again by the U.S. Supreme Court.

I doubt whether Mr. Manion understands or embraces the idea that Supreme Court decisions on the Constitution are controlling. I doubt whether he understands that State legislatures must submit to Supreme Court decisions. My doubts remain, and I intend to vote against Mr. Manion's confirmation.

The information I have reviewed so far is sufficient to support my "no" vote on Mr. Manion. But my other observations convince me that a "no" vote is the only vote I can consider.

I am not the only member of the committee who believes that Mr. Manion has not been candid during his confirmation hearing. Some of his responses to committee members questions are just not credible.

For example, Senator SIMON asked him to explain his impression of a group called the John Birch Society. He said to the committee, "I do not know * * * what their stands are on the Constitution or any other issue of current affairs."

But the committee has seen an August 1979 letter Mr. Manion wrote to the American Opinion Bookstore, the local headquarters of the John Birch Society in Elkhart, IN.

Mr. Manion wrote:

> Your members are certainly the people who are on the front line of the fight for constitutional freedom * * * keep up your good work. Since I represent two townships in Elkhart, I would be happy to help you in whatever causes you may have before the State legislature.

This letter makes it difficult for me to believe that Mr. Manion knows nothing about John Birch Society.

The testimony Mr. Manion gave about a book he once endorsed was also not credible.

The committee asked Mr. Manion about his endorsement of a book called "We Hold These Truths" written by the late Congressman Larry McDonald. The book contains several extremist statements. One statement—"A Supreme Court decision is not the law of the land"—is of special interest to me.

In 1977, Mr. Manion interviewed Dr. McDonald during a radio program sponsored by the Manion Forum. During that broadcast, Mr. Manion endorsed the book "We Hold These Truths."

Mr. Manion said:

> My personal observation is that it is one of the finest summaries of the history of our country—what has happened in the past, what happened to us and what we have to do about it.

The following week, during another radio broadcast, Mr. Manion said to Dr. McDonald:

> In your book you bring down some very justified criticism of the Supreme Court that interprets the Constitution.

Mr. Manion's strong endorsement of Dr. McDonald's book strongly suggests that Mr. Manion read the book and agreed with its controversial concepts.

But during the confirmation hearing, Mr. Manion could not remember the book—or the interview. When Senator BIDEN questioned Mr. Manion on this subject, Mr. Manion said:

> I do not remember saying it nor do I remember the book.

Later in the hearing Mr. Manion insisted that he praised the book in order to remain polite to a guest on his show.

It is difficult for me to believe that his praise was mere politeness. It is especially difficult because the views Mr. Manion expressed during the McDonald interview are consistent with Mr. Manion's idea of State legislative protest and prerogative.

So not only does the nominee lack credibility, but he lacks it on the most important issue of all—whether he accepts the authority and role of the Supreme Court in our constitutional system.

I have taken the time to explain my reasons, because I want them to be understood, and because I hope to persuade the undecided.

I have taken the time because I have enormous respect for the Federal judiciary, and because I want this branch of Government to remain respected and strong.

I have taken this time because the power to confirm a judge for life is awesome and must be exercised with great care and deliberation.

A convincing case has not been made for Mr. Manion's confirmation. He must be rejected.

Some say that this is an ideological debate. Do they mean that we who oppose Mr. Manion believe in the ideology of merit? If that is what they mean, then I agree that this is a debate over ideology.

Some say that this is a partisan debate. Do they mean that we who oppose Mr. Manion are partisans of the Constitution and the Supreme Court? If that is what they mean, I agree that this is a partisan debate.

Some say that this is a symbolic debate. Do they mean that we who vote against Mr. Manion want to send a clear signal to the President? If that is what they mean, then I agree that this is a symbolic debate.

With this confirmation, we must draw a line and take a stand.

Our vote must send the President a loud, clear message—do not send us nominees like Mr. Manion. Our courts are far too important, and our Constitution—far too precious.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the Senator from Massachusetts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, the nomination we are considering is critically important for one reason and one reason only—it poses in the clearest possible terms the responsibility of the Senate to assure that lifetime appointments to our Federal courts meet at least minimal standards of competence and integrity.

Mr. Manion's nomination is in trouble for the simple reason that he is utterly lacking in the objective qualifications required for a judicial nominee. He has had almost no experience in Federal courts; his briefs in State courts border on the illiterate; he insulted the Supreme Court by defying one of its key decisions interpreting the Constitution; he is opposed by the deans of a long list of major law schools throughout the country, and, compounding all of his other demerits, he refused to come clean in his Senate confirmation hearing, and doctored the hearing transcript to delete his own damaging testimony.

Mr. Manion is a conservative—but ideology is not the issue in this debate.

Democrats have voted to confirm dozens of President Reagan's conservative judicial nominees—but they have all had adequate qualifications.

Nine of the sitting members of the seventh circuit were appointed by Republican administrations, and four by Democratic administrations, and I voted for everyone of those sitting judges.

Mr. Manion flunks the test, not because he is conservative, but because he is not qualified. If the President wants to point the finger of blame for this fiasco, he need point no further than Ed Meese for setting the standard of qualifications so low.

In fact, the shoe is on the other foot. Mr. Manion's lack of qualifications to be a Federal circuit judge is so striking that it suggests he was nominated solely because of his conservative ideology and not for any distinction in the law.

Some may say it is the President's prerogative to choose judges by whatever standard he wants—no matter how mediocre their accomplishments, so long as they are not racists or tainted by a whiff of scandal. But the Constitution gives a coequal responsibility to the Senate to advise and consent on judicial nominations, and I reject the view that the Senate is nothing more than a rubber stamp.

A fundamental principle is at stake—the integrity of the Federal courts in our constitutional system of government. "Support the President" is not the end of the analysis. We have also taken an oath to support the Constitution—and that oath comes before all others.

Nominees who seek life tenure on our Federal courts must bear the burden of demonstrating that they are deserving of their solemn trust. The Senate should confirm only those nominees who meet at least a minimal standard of merit. With all respect to Mr. Manion, he does not measure up. The Attorney General has abused the Senate with this nomination, and it should be rejected. Instead of holding our noses and voting for Mr. Manion, we should uphold the Constitution and vote him down.

Mr. President, on the seventh circuit, there are 13 sitting judges. Six of those judges were distinguished jurists before sitting on the seventh circuit. Five of them were distinguished law professors from many of our distinguished law schools around this country. The other two had a combination of 25 years of service as lawyers, practicing in the Federal court and the circuit court. Those have been the criteria. Nine were appointed by Republicans and four by Democrats. I voted for each and every member of that court.

Mr. President, this nominee does not meet the minimum standards that we should establish in terms of service on that court. Instead of holding our noses and voting for him, as I said, I suggest that the Senate uphold the Constitution of the United States and say that he is not fit to serve on that court.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, does the Senator from Delaware have 2 minutes left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has.

Mr. BIDEN. I yield 1 minute to the distinguished Senator from Illinois.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President and my colleagues, the question before us is whether or not we cut off debate and whether or not the question of quality in the Federal courts merits some additional time here.

The Senator from Montana, speaking just a few minutes ago, said, "I do not have time to go into this." We are talking about something that is very fundamental. We are talking about an administration that has given us a nominee who, by any standards, is below what we have been accustomed to.

Does this merit additional debate? I think clearly it does. We are not talking about an endless filibuster. We are talking about going into this and letting the American public know what the issue is. I hope we defeat the cloture motion.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I shall use the remainder of my time. I yield myself the 1 minute remaining to make three quick points.

No. 1, we were here last night all night willing to debate and nobody showed up to debate except the Senator from Utah. The Senator from Indiana, the Senator from Idaho, and others did not show up to debate the issue.

No. 2, this is not about politics. If it were about politics, the question would be why have we, the Senator from Delaware in particular, voted for 264 conservative judges? We have only asked four times since this man has been President, it is only four times that we have even asked for a rollcall vote.

No. 3, he is clearly, unequivocally not qualified to sit on the circuit court of appeals in the United States seventh circuit.

Last, our duty is to the Constitution first, individuals second and when in doubt, we must err on the side of the Constitution. I urge my colleagues to err on the side of the Constitution and vote against cloture and eventually, which will come soon, I hope, against Mr. Manion.

Mr. BYRD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The minority leader is recognized.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, throughout this debate and before it came to the floor and over the airwaves, much has been said about "partisanship" in connection with this nomination. I now read from the President's radio address of June 21 these excerpts:

> Partisanship in the Senate has pushed fair play by the boards, which is why I have sent a letter to the Senate expressing my strong opinion about the prerogative of the President to make qualified appointments to the Federal judiciary and what I feel has been the partisan use of the confirmation process.

Another excerpt:

> I believe the Senate should consider only a nominee's qualifications and character, not his political views.

Mr. President, let us take a look at what the Constitution says about the appointment process. There are three steps in the appointment process.

The President makes the nomination. That is a voluntary act. He can make that nomination based on whatever criteria he wishes to make it. That is his sole decision. The Constitution says "He shall nominate" meaning the President—"He shall nominate." That is the President's prerogative alone.

But listen further, Mr. President: "and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate shall appoint * * * judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States. * * *"

The reference to officers of the United States includes Federal judges.

So, Mr. President, according to the Constitution, while only the President can nominate—the Senate cannot nominate—the appointment is shared by the President and by the U.S. Senate because the Constitution says, and I read again, the President "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate shall appoint."

The third step is the tendering of the commission to the person who is appointed. The President cannot reach that third step, he cannot present that commission if the Senate has not given its consent to the nomination. So, Mr. President, this is a role that the Constitution mandates the play.

It is the Constitution that Senators swear to defend and support when we enter upon our duties here. Each of us takes that oath and we say, "so help me God," we will do that, defend and support the Constitution of the United States.

So, those who write the speeches of the President should read the Constitution again. This is not a monarchy; this is not an absolute monarchy; it is not even a constitutional monarchy; and it is not the Soviet Union. This is the Senate of the United States, and the Senate is doing its duty under the Constitution of the United States.

The Constitution does not say that the Senate must rubberstamp the nominations of the President and it does not say one word, not one word, about qualifications here. It does not confine the advice and consent of the Senate to a decision as to qualifications. It simply says he, the President, shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint.

What we do is look at the whole man. I see that as my responsibility. What are his qualifications? What is his experience? And, yes, I have a right to consider his ideology.

The President has that right. Nobody questions his right to look at the ideology of his nominees. But if he has no doubt about his nominees, then, apparently, nobody else is allowed to have any doubts.

I say Senators are not confined to just looking at the qualifications.

□ 1200

Of course, we should look at the qualifications. Yes; we should look at character. Yes; we should look at the integrity and the experience and the ideology as we make these decisions. We should look at the whole man. I intend to fulfill that role.

Now, Mr. President, let us talk for a moment about partisanship. There have been 59 Federal appellate judges confirmed since January 1981 when this President assumed office for the first term. There have been 205 Federal district judges confirmed. That is 264 in total. And then there has been one Supreme Court Justice confirmed, Mrs. O'Connor. So we have had 265 confirmations. We have had five rollcall votes, including the vote on Mrs. O'Connor—five rollcall votes. That is one vote out of every 53 judges confirmed.

Now, that is not partisanship. It is stretching the word to accuse the Senate of partisanship. Of course, what the President is talking about is Democrat versus Republican when he charges partisanship.

Now, let us look at the nominee. This nominee will have life tenure during good behavior. He is in there for life. The President is not in office for life. No Senator is elected for life. But any Federal judge, once he is confirmed by the Senate and he gets his commission from the President, is a judge for life. And look at the awesome power that he holds over the life, the property, the rights of every man, woman, and child in this country, over commerce and business and agriculture, over institutions of government. And he will interpret the statutes of this country, he will interpret the organic law, the Constitution, of this country. This is an awesome power. A Federal judge can only be removed from office by impeachment by the House and a trial by the Senate. So we should not take the responsibility of advice and consent lightly.

Senators should not swallow the argument, "Well, give us an up-or-down vote." I do not buy that argument.

Mr. President, we have a solemn responsibility because Senators will be appointing a man to a very small class of people in this country, that of being a Federal judge, with all of the awesome power which goes with that high office. I say to my friends and to the President of the United States, with the utmost respect, and more particularly to those who write his speeches and also, yes, to those who swallow those speeches hook, line, and sinker, it is not the role of the U.S. Senate to put its rubberstamp on any President's nominees.

Yes, I go along with the idea that, generally speaking, any President should have the people he wants to serve in Cabinet positions and other high offices of this country. But the Senate also has its responsibility and it is not one to be taken lightly.

Aaron Burr, when he left this Senate, after having served as Vice President and having presided over this Senate for 4 years, in his farewell address to the Senate, said this:

> This house is a sanctuary; a citadel of law, of order and of liberty; and it is here in this exalted refuge—here, if anywhere, will resistance be made to the storms of political frenzy and the silent arts of corruption. And if the Constitution be destined ever to perish by the sacreligious hands of the demagog or the usurper, which God avert, its expiring agonies will be witnessed on this floor.

That is what we are talking about, the Constitution of the United States. It is not our role to see that Constitution perish. It is our duty to solemnly weigh this confirmation. The question is not whether we like the man or do not like him.

Now, finally, we are about to vote on cloture. I do not think this man should sit on the Federal bench, and I will not lend my consent. Others have made the case. There is not one single high achievement in the law to which this man can point, not one instance of demonstrated excellence that I have found as I have reviewed the record. I have nothing against his character, his integrity. But looking at his experience, looking at the case that has been made by the committee, I can find nothing that recommends this man to sit on the Federal bench for life. No man or woman is born in this country with a birthright to be a U.S. Senator or a Federal judge. There should be a standard of excellence. We who are Senators have to stand before our people every 6 years, and they make a judgment as to our competence or lack thereof, our record of service or lack thereof. But this man will be appointed for life. I say to my friends, to my fellow Senators, this man should not sit on the Federal bench. I shall oppose his nomination. I shall vote against him. I shall vote to recommit if that motion is made, and I shall vote against cloture.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MATHIAS). The time of the minority leader has expired.

Mr. BYRD. I urge my colleagues to do the same.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, how does the time stand on each side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina has 8 minutes remaining, and that is all of the time remaining.

Mr. THURMOND. There could not be 8 minutes. We extended it 7 minutes and I had about 11 before that. I was told it is 19 minutes in all.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Because the minority leader used his reserve time, total time is reduced by about 10 minutes. Eight minutes are remaining.

Mr. THURMOND. How much time is remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Eight minutes.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, we had originally how much time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator——

Mr. THURMOND. I yielded 1 minute to Senator SYMMS. I yielded 5 minutes I believe to Senator QUAYLE. That is 6 minutes. How much did I have to start with?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator had 19 minutes to begin with.

Mr. THURMOND. Well, 6 from 19 is what?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I believe that by process of simple arithmetic I arrive at the figure of 13.

Mr. THURMOND. Thirteen minutes. And then it was extended 7 minutes, which makes 20 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the order, it was provided that the two leaders would be able to use their reserve time and the minority leader did so.

Mr. THURMOND. Well, they still have their time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Their time has also expired.

Mr. THURMOND. And I also have 19 or 20 minutes, whatever it is.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair somewhat unceremoniously interrupted the minority leader and cut short his speech. All of his time had expired. All of the leader's time had expired. The majority leader, however, has a remaining minute in addition to the 8 minutes of the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. THURMOND. I do not see how one counts that. I have not yielded but 6 minutes over here, and I had 19 to start with and we extended it 7 minutes. At any rate, I will do the best I can.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the majority leader have 3 additional minutes which he may yield to the distinguished Senator if he so wishes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection it is so ordered.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I rise in support of this nomination. I have been in this Senate for 32 years. I do not think a finer man has come before this Senate to be a judge than Daniel Manion. He is a man of character and integrity. He is a man of ability. He is a man who has attained professional qualifications. He is a man of dedication. He is a hard worker.

□ 1210

This man was appointed by President Reagan. President Reagan sent a three-page letter to the Senate setting out the fact that Mr. Manion is a good man and his nomination should be confirmed.

This man was investigated by the Justice Department and the FBI. The Justice Department recommended Mr. Manion highly.

The American Bar Association, which passes on qualifications, recommends him, and in a few minutes I will cover a little more of that in detail.

Father Hesburgh, the president of Notre Dame, former Chairman of the Civil Rights Commission, recommends him. The chief justice of Indiana, Mr. Givan, recommends him.

The bar association of the county in which he practices law recommends him. Former Senator Hartke, a Democratic Senator from Indiana, who knows him well, a liberal Democrat, recommends him.

Senator LUGAR, the distinguished chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee in the Senate, and Senator QUAYLE, the junior Senator from Indiana, recommend him. They know him better than any of us know him. Should we be willing to take their statement, their qualifications? They would not recommend this man just for political purposes. It would hurt them back home if they recommended somebody who was not qualified.

Mr. President, those are recommendations.

I think the Senate ought to vote cloture for two reasons. The first is that I think the nominee is entitled to a vote by the Senate. How are you going to get the vote? Suppose he had 59 votes for him? Unless he had 60 votes, you could not get cloture, and the nominee would not get a vote. It seems to me that the fair thing to do, the just thing to do, the reasonable thing to do, is to give him a vote. His nomination may not be confirmed, but he ought to have a vote.

It will save time, because if this cloture vote fails, there will be another cloture vote, and maybe another cloture. I do not know how long it will go on. I have seen Lyndon Johnson here, as majority leader, go for four clotures in the Senate.

There has been quibbling here about changing the record. I should like to comment on the allegation made by opponents of Mr. Manion that he changed his testimony.

It is the practice of the Judiciary Committee to send each nominee a transcript of his or her testimony for appropriate corrections. That is the practice with all, Democrats and Republicans. The transmittal letter states that only changes in diction, expression, clarity, brevity, accuracy, or to correct any errors in transcribing are permitted. If changes in substance are desired, a written request must be made to the chairman of the committee.

Mr. President, the allegation that Mr. Manion changed the substance of his testimony is incorrect. A review of the transcript shows that the changes he made are consistent with his overall testimony on specific points.

For example, in responding to a question on the constitutionality of a bill, Mr. Manion's response on page 96 of the transcript reads: "Well, it would have been ostensibly unconstitutional, and it probably"—and "probably" was misspelled p-r-o-b-a-b-l by the reporter, I guess, who wrote the transcript—"would have been repealed."

Mr. President, this was corrected to add the word "have." So it would read, "It would have been ostensibly unconstitutional." The same thought. Then a "y" was added to correct the spelling of the word "probably."

On the very next page, 97, Mr. Manion, in response to a similar question said: "Yes, I would say it would have been overturned. No question about it," as he testified to on the previous page. This was edited to add the "probably" and delete the words "No question about it"—"Yes, I would say it probably would have been overturned."

Mr. President, these statements are not inconsistent. They, in fact, lend more consistency to his testimony and certainly, as required by the transmittal letter, was an accurate and clear representation of Mr. Manion's testimony.

To imply that Mr. Manion has somehow deceitfully changed the transcript and his sworn testimony is simply misleading and untrue. It is untrue, I repeat.

Mr. President, there was no departure from the facts, and a review of the transcript will show just that.

Mr. Manion has a high reputation for honesty and integrity. There is no hint of any impropriety or wrongdoing in his background. Even his most strident critics have to admit that he is an able, fair, and just individual.

The ABA found his professional background met the significant requirements that would qualify him to serve on a court of appeals. I believe that he will bring to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals an excellent background consisting of broad litigation practice, as well as experience as a State legislator. Mr. Manion is clearly qualified and his nomination should be confirmed by the Senate.

Mr. President, we have the transcript here to back up anything I say.

Mr. President, a number of allegations relating to Mr. Manion's nomination have been raised. In view of my limited time, I would like to discuss some of the more significant alleged objections to Mr. Manion.

ALLEGATION

Opponents say that Mr. Manion's ABA rating is not high enough. A substantial majority of the ABA committee found him to be qualified, and a minority found him to be not qualified.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, the ABA in a publication explaining the procedures utilized by their standing committee on Federal judiciary stated that the committee's evaluation of prospective nominees is directed primarily to professional qualifications and specifically includes consideration of competence, integrity, and judicial temperament:

Professional competence encompasses such qualities as intellectual capacity, judgment, writing and analytical ability, industry, knowledge of the law and professional experience.

The committee believes that political activity and public service are valuable experiences, but that such activity and service are not a substitute for significant experience in the practice of law.

In investigating temperament, the committee looks to the prospective nominee's compassion, decisiveness, open-mindedness, sensitivity, courtesy, patience, freedom from bias and commitment to equal justice, among other factors. The prospective nominee's character, integrity and general reputation in the legal community are investigated, as are his or her industry and diligence. Community and professional contributions are considered relevant.

The ABA committee's stringent examination of Mr. Manion's qualifications on this basis resulted in a substantial majority of the committee finding him to be qualified to serve on the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. A substantial majority indicates that from 10 to 13 members of the 14 member committee found the nominee to be qualified. Therefore, a negative vote by only one member of the committee would constitute a minority.

It should be noted that "qualified" is the norm. Furthermore, 43 percent of all nominees to the Court of Appeals under President Reagan have received this rating and each has been approved by the Senate. In this regard, it has been suggested that Mr. Manion does not meet the same high standards as other conservative nominees such as Judges Posner and Easterbrook of the seventh circuit, Judge Bork of the D.C. circuit, Judges Winter and Mahoney of the second circuit, Judge Noonan of the ninth circuit, and Judge Edmondson of the 11th circuit. It should be noted that as nominees, more than half of these judges received the same rating as did Mr. Manion. In fact, only one of these judges was rated higher than qualified by the ABA committee

Mr. President, we have the ABA committee, which is nonpolitical, to provide us with their advice. They have said that President Reagan's nominee to fill this seat on the seventh circuit is qualified. I think that the expertise of the ABA committee in such matters should be utilized. If they did not think Mr. Manion was qualified, they would have said so. I urge my collegues to read the rating for exactly what it is; a statement by the ABA that Daniel Manion is qualified for the position to which he was nominated.

ALLEGATION

It has ben alleged that Mr. Manion lacks Federal court experience.

RESPONSE

Mr. Manion has participated in numerous Federal court cases. Currently he is lead counsel on three pending Federal cases, two involving securities and the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, and one diversity case. Additionally, he is co-counsel on two patent infringement cases and another diversity case. a number of cases in which Mr. Manion was involved in State courts could have been brought to the Federal courts under diversity jurisdiction; but for tactical reasons, the actions were brought in State court. Practice in State courts should not be brushed aside as detracting from an individual's ability to perform ably on the Federal bench. A number of State court judges have been nominated and confirmed by the Senate for Federal judgeships and lack of Federal experience has not been a factor. Yet, now we hear concern about Federal experience. I think these expressions are afterthoughts to his opponents' real concern, and that is ideological differences.

Mr. President, on this subject of Federal experience, the committee received, as I previously stated, a letter from David T. Ready, the former U.S. attorney for the northern district of Indiana. Somebody said he might be prejudiced. He was appointed by President Carter. The letter reads in part as follows:

I have known Mr. Manion for a number of years. I believe that he is eminently qualified to fulfill the position of the U.S. circuit court judge. I firmly believe he possesses the necessary intellect, integrity, and open-mindedness which practicing members of the bar have a right to expect in our judicial appointments.

I would hasten to add that Mr. Manion enjoys an excellent reputation amongst his peers.

Who are his peers? His peers are the lawyers he worked with.

The letter continues:

During the years 1977 through 1981 I had the opportunity to serve as U.S. attorney for the northern district of Indiana, having been appointed by President Carter. This gave me the opportunity to observe our Federal judiciary at both the trial and appellate levels. As such, I would hope that it also gave me some insight into what judicial qualities best serve our legal system, especially at the Federal appellate level. I firmly believe Mr. Manion possesses experience, fair-mindedness, judicial integrity, and a plain, old-fashioned willingness to work long and hard. I have no doubt that Mr. Manion's appointment will reflect credit upon the Federal judiciary.

In commenting on an inquiry he received from one of Mr. Manion's leading detractors, an organization called "People for the American Way," described by the Washington Post as a liberal lobbying group, Mr. Ready states the following:

I must say that I was disappointed in the nature of their inquiry and the questions they asked of me. I have no bone to pick with that organization and, in fact, am sure that they serve a very valid and useful purpose in attempting to counter-balance some of the more conservative minded organizations. That is all in the give and take of the American political system. However, I must say that the overall tone of their inquiry was not one in which they were seeking my opinion on Mr. Manion's qualifications but rather looking for something negative concerning Mr. Manion. When it became apparent that I was not going to accommodate them, simply because I do not know anything negative about Mr. Manion, their interest in talking to me waned sharply and the conversation terminated abruptly.

Mr. Ready concludes:

Finally, Senator Thurmond, I would note that the most recent appointments to our Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals have emanated from the area of academia. I have no problems with the qualifications of many of those persons who were so appointed. However, I believe that our courts of appeals are best served when they are comprised of former trial judges, academics, and practicing lawyers. It is my opinion that Mr. Manion is an excellent representative of the latter group and will well serve on the court of appeals.

Mr. President, I think this letter is strong testimony to the fact that Mr. Manion has the wherewithal to perform well on the circuit court. The letter also cites an example of the bias exhibited by his detractors under the guise of a fair evaluation.

ALLEGATION

Mr. Manion is accused of cosponsoring legislation when he was an Indiana State legislator that would have permitted the posting of the Ten Commandments in schools, knowing this action was in direct conflict with the Constitution of the United States.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, this criticism is raised because the referenced legislation was introduced not long after the U.S. Supreme Court in Stone versus Graham held unconstitutional a State law requiring the posting of the Ten Commandments in schools. Opponents have tried to equate this to the actions taken by Arkansas officials contrary to a Federal court order treated by the Supreme Court in Cooper versus Aaron.

The legislation involving the Ten Commandments which was struck down by the Supreme Court and the Indiana bill on the subject have been described as virtually identical by Mr. Manion's opponents. However, significant differences in the legislation exist. The Indiana bill merely permitted or authorized teachers to post copies in classrooms. The unconstitutional law required the Ten Commandments to be posted in the schools. This difference is not without legal significance.

Further, the Supreme Court stated that the Ten Commandments could "constitutionally be used in an appropriate study of history, civilization, ethics, comparative religion, or the like." The Indiana bill states its purpose in terms of the study of history and ethics. The Indiana bill expressly states that in the event it is found to be unconstitutional, the copies will be immediately removed. Such a statement is not dissimilar to that contained in Gramm-Rudman-Hollings providing alternatives if the law is found unconstitutional.

Although Mr. Manion characterized his action on the Indiana bill as a form of legislative protest, a close examination of the bill shows an awareness by the drafters of significant distinctions between the unconstitutional statute and the Indiana bill.

We turn now to the inappropriate analogy that this cosponsorship of the Indiana bill somehow defies the constitutional responsibility of legislators.

History is replete with examples of the widely accepted practice that legislators may introduce legislation even if they suspect the Supreme Court may not uphold it. Probably the best-known example of this is Abraham Lincoln's statement in the Lincoln-Douglas debates concerning the Dred Scott decision, when Mr. Lincoln said:

If I were in Congress and a vote should come up on a question whether slavery should be prohibited in a new territory, in spite of that Dred Scott decision I would vote that it should.

Another example would be the debate on the Miranda and Escobedo decisions of the Supreme Court prior to the passage of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. I respectfully submit that such actions are not violations of an individual's oath to uphold the Constitution.

An analogy that Mr. Manion's action on this bill was similar to the action of Arkansas officials' failure to follow a Federal court order in Cooper versus Aaron is just not appropriate.

Another objection raised by Mr. Manion's opponents related to the fact that while serving in the Indiana Senate he introduced a bill authorizing the teaching in public schools of creation science along with evolution. Obviously, the constitutionality of such legislation has not been resolved. The Supreme Court just recently agreed to hear a case on the subject in its next term. Criticism of the legislation proposed by Mr. Manion can only be founded on an ideological basis.

Mr. President, I would like to point out at this time that although Mr. Manion has been highly criticized for two bills that he was associated with while in the Indiana Senate, his opponents have not commented on his overall legislative record. His record in the legislature demonstrates a thoughtful and fair approach to the problems a legislator faces daily. Some examples of this are bills which he has introduced authorizing halfway houses for certain incarcerated individuals, legislation protecting the rights of juveniles, and legislation promoting alternative forms of energy.

ALLEGATION

It has been alleged that Mr. Manion improperly interpreted the Constitution while appearing on the Manion Forum radio and television show.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, The Manion Forum was a program conceived and produced by Clarence Manion, the nominee's father and former dean of the University of Notre Dame Law School. The program was aired from 1954 through 1979. The purpose of the program was to provide a forum for conservatives who might not otherwise have a platform from which they could voice their views. Most of the statements attributed to Daniel Manion were in relation to comments being made by his father on the Constitution and decisions of the Supreme Court.

Comment has also been made concerning an interview conducted by Daniel Manion with the late Congressman Larry McDonald on the subject of McDonald's book "We Hold These Truths." This interview was conducted on the Manion Forum in 1977.

Many of the questions asked Mr. Manion at his confirmation hearings were in fact based on the views of his father and Larry McDonald. While there is no doubt that Daniel Manion made supportive statements, the environment in which these statements were made and the obvious purpose for which they were made, which was simply to stimulate the conversation, should be kept in mind.

ALLEGATION

Mr. Manion's opponents state that his testimony lacked credibility when compared to earlier statements he made on the Manion Forum.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, Mr. Manion's credibility is being attacked by allegations that in his testimony before the Judiciary Committee he recanted his previous statements made during public broadcast. It is important to note that many of the statements being criticized occurred over 15 years ago. Additionally, Mr. Manion's role as an interviewer encouraging others to speak freely should be kept in mind. I think that the fact that he testified honestly and forthrightly at the hearings on various constitutional issues should not be used at this point as anything other than a statement as to his beliefs. The reference back to statements on the Manion Forum, some of which were made prior to his graduation from law school, is simply not germane.

Mr. President, Mr. Manion's integrity and honesty should not be questioned. Even the Chicago Council of Lawyers, who opposed his nomination, stated that:

Mr. Manion has a high reputation for integrity, conscientiousness, and fairness. The reports from South Bend lawyers also indicate that Mr. Manion has excellent interpersonal skills, and that lawyers who work both with him and against him like and respect him. Many of the lawyers to whom we talked also thought that despite his reputation for political conservatism, Mr. Manion would struggle to be fair in ruling on cases which present issues on which he has strong political views.

ALLEGATION

Mr. Manion is accused of cosponsoring legislation when he was an Indiana State legislator that would have permitted the posting of the Ten Commandments in schools, knowing this action was in direct conflict with the Constitution of the United States.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, this criticism is raised because the referenced legislation was introduced not long after the U.S. Supreme Court in Stone versus Graham held unconstitutional a State law requiring the posting of the Ten Commandments in schools. Opponents have tried to equate this to the actions taken by Arkansas officials contrary to a Federal court order treated by the Supreme Court in Cooper versus Aaron.

The legislation involving the Ten Commandments which was struck down by the Supreme Court and the Indiana bill on the subject have been described as virtually identical by Mr. Manion's opponents. However, significant differences in the legislation exist. The Indiana bill merely permitted or authorized teachers to post copies in classrooms. The unconstitutional law required the Ten Commandments to be posted in the schools. This difference is not without legal significance.

Further, the Supreme Court stated that the Ten Commandments could "constitutionally be used in an appropriate study of history, civilization, ethics, comparative religion, or the like." The Indiana bill states its purpose in terms of the study of history and ethics. The Indiana bill expressly states that in the event it is found to be unconstitutional, the copies will be immediately removed. Such a statement is not dissimilar to that contained in Gramm-Rudman-Hollings providing alternatives if the law is found unconstitutional.

Although Mr. Manion characterized his action on the Indiana bill as a form of legislative protest, a close examination of the bill shows an awareness by the drafters of significant distinctions between the unconstitutional statute and the Indiana bill.

We turn now to the inappropriate analogy that this cosponsorship of the Indiana bill somehow defies the constitutional responsibility of legislators.

History is replete with examples of the widely accepted practice that legislators may introduce legislation even if they suspect the Supreme Court may not uphold it. Probably the best-know example of this is Abraham Lincoln's statement in the Lincoln-Douglas debates concerning the Dred Scott decision, when Mr. Lincoln said:

> If I were in Congress and a vote should come up on a question whether slavery should be prohibited in a new territory, in spite of that Dred Scott decision I would vote that it should.

Another example would be the debate on the Miranda and Escobedo decisions of the Supreme Court prior to the passage of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. I respectfully submit that such actions are not violations of an individual's oath to uphold the Constitution.

An analogy that Mr. Manion's action on this bill was similar to the action of Arkansas officials' failure to follow a Federal court order in Cooper versus Aaron is just not appropriate.

Another objection raised by Mr. Manion's opponents related to the fact that while serving in the Indiana Senate he introduced a bill authorizing the teaching in public schools of creation science along with evolution. Obviously, the constitutionality of such legislation has not been resolved. The Supreme Court just recently agreed to hear a case on the subject in its next term. Criticism of the legislation proposed by Mr. Manion can only be founded on an ideological basis.

Mr. President, I would like to point out at this time that although Mr. Manion has been highly criticized for two bills that he was associated with while in the Indiana Senate, his opponents have not commented on his overall legislative record. His record in the legislature demonstrates a thoughtful and fair approach to the problems a legislator faces daily. Some examples of this are bills which he has introduced authorizing halfway houses for certain incarcerated individuals, legislation protecting the rights of juveniles, and legislation promoting alternative forms of energy.

ALLEGATION

It has been alleged that Mr. Manion improperly interpreted the Constitution while appearing on the the Manion Forum radio and television show.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, the Manion Forum was a program conceived and produced by Clarence Manion, the nominee's father and former dean of the University of Notre Dame Law School. The program was aired from 1954 through 1979. The purpose of the program was to provide a forum for conservatives who might not otherwise have a platform from which they could voice their views. Most of the statements attributed to Daniel Manion were in relation to comments being made by his father on the Constitution and decisions of the Supreme Court.

Comment has also been made concerning an interview conducted by Daniel Manion with the late Congressman Larry McDonald on the subject of McDonald's book, "We Hold These Truths." This interview was conducted on the Manion Forum in 1977.

Many of the questions asked Mr. Manion at his confirmation hearings were in fact based on the views of his father and Larry McDonald. While there is no doubt that Daniel Manion made supportive statements, the environment in which these statements were made and the obvious purpose for which they were made, which was simply to stimulate the conversation, should be kept in mind.

ALLEGATION

Mr. Manion's opponents state that his testimony lacked credibility when compared to earlier statements he made on the Manion Forum.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, Mr. Manion's credibility is being attacked by allegations that in his testimony before the Judiciary Committee he recanted his previous statements made during public broadcast. It is important to note that many of the statements being criticized occurred over 15 years ago. Additionally, Mr. Manion's role as an interviewer encouraging others to speak freely should be kept in mind. I think that the fact that he testified honestly and forthrightly at the hearings on various constitutional issues should not be used at this point as anything other than a statement as to his beliefs. The reference back to statements on the Manion Forum, some of which were made prior to his graduation from law school, is simply not germane.

Mr. President, Mr. Manion's integrity and honesty should not be questioned. Even the Chicago Council of Lawyers, who opposed his nomination, stated that:

> Mr. Manion has a high reputation for integrity, conscientiousness, and fairness. The reports from South Bend lawyers also indicate that Mr. Manion has excellent interpersonal skills, and that lawyers who work both with him and against him like and respect him. Many of the lawyers to whom we talked also thought that despite his reputation for political conservatism, Mr. Manion would struggle to be fair in ruling on cases which present issues on which he has strong political views.

Mr. President, in view of such a statement from one of his chief opponents, I think that attacks on his credibility and integrity are inappropriate.

ALLEGATION

It has been alleged that Mr. Manion praised the John Birch Society in written communication to that organization.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, at the time of his father's death, Mr. Manion responded to many condolence letters. The communication referred to was simply such a response which he sent to the American Opinion Book Store, a small John Birch Society bookstore located in Elkhart, IN. Mr. Manion has been criticized for stating in this letter that its members were in the front line of the fight for constitutional freedom. A copy of this letter which was given to the committee was unsigned. Mr. Manion testified that he did not specifically recall this letter; however, he did respond to many letters at that time. He testified that his remarks would have been intended only to respond to an expression of sympathy from his father's admirers. He is not now nor has he ever been a member of the John Birch Society.

ALLEGATION

Mr. Manion's opponents state that his legal briefs lack quality.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, following weeks of emphasis on ideological differences, his opponents began to focus on alleged lack of quality, citing lack of Federal experience, absence of scholarly works, and a work product lacking in acceptable grammar and spelling.

While briefs submitted to the minority members of the Judiciary Committee were described by them as his best efforts, Mr. Manion has indicated that he was requested to respond under severe time constraints. The briefs were submitted with the caveat that he was aware of typographical errors, but his selection was intended to show the current diversity of his work. The Chicago Council of Lawyers provided the critiques of the briefs. These critiques are unsigned but were forwarded by the council. The critiques are short and concentrate on misspelled words and alleged faulty composition. Comments on legal content or effectiveness are few, other than unsubstantiated or undemonstrated criticism. No statement is made as to the outcome of Mr. Manion's efforts. However, Mr. Manion has advised that his clients have prevailed in three of the five actions, one was unsuccessful, and one is still pending. I think the final results are far better criteria by which to rate an individual's legal capabilities than the number of grammatical or typographical errors contained in his legal briefs.

Additionally, lawyers generally work under severe time constraints. Keep in mind that Mr. Manion practices in a comparatively small town with a small firm. The resources of such a firm cannot be compared to those of large firms in the areas of equipment and numbers of support personnel.

ALLEGATION

It has been alleged that Mr. Manion's typical cases have not adequately prepared him for a seat on the court of appeals.

RESPONSE

Mr. President, opponents of this nomination have selected certain cases Mr. Manion cited in his response to the committee questionnaire, and portrayed these as nothing more than small claims. This ianot a fair representation. My colleagues in this body who have practiced law know that the dollar amount involved in litigation has no bearing on the degree of difficulty or the importance of the issues involved. How many important issues have been considered and decided by the Supreme Court although the amounts in question were comparatively insignificant? Cost-effectiveness on a particular action cannot be the sole norm in deciding the importance of a case.

Mr. President, this demonstration of selective citation and partial recitation of facts completely ignores the reasons why the cases were cited by the nominee, which were to show the complexity of the litigation and law involved, regardless of the dollars at stake; for example, the complexity of warranty law.

Further, Mr. President, the recitation of cases by the opposition to this nomination is rooted in ideology. We must rise above the temptation to pervert the advice and consent process by making it into a litmus test for either liberal or conservative interests.

Mr. Manion's reputation for honesty and integrity is unquestioned. There is no hint of any impropriety or wrongdoing in his background. Even his most strident critics have to admit that he is a fair and just individual. The ABA found his professional background met the significant requirements that would qualify him for serving on the court of appeals. I believe that Daniel A. Manion will bring to the Seventh Circuit of Appeals an excellent background consisting of a broad litigation practice as well as experience as a State legislator. Mr. Manion is clearly qualified and should be confirmed by the Senate. I urge my colleagues to vote for the confirmation of his nomination.

□ 1220

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I understand I have 4 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader has 4 minutes.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I think the distinguished Senator from South Carolina, the chairman of the committee, has stated it very well. There has been recommendation after recommendation, coming from Democrats, coming from his peers, the American Bar Association, former Senators, Father Hesburgh, and I think we have to be realistic. There has apparently been a judgment made that we are not going to vote on this nomination; we are not going to be evenhanded with this nominee. For some reason he has been singled out. He is qualified. I do not know precisely how many nominees have been before this body before who had that rating and had no difficulty at all.

I think the distinguished chairman just pointed out some are charging that the transcripts were altered and he indicated how ludicrous those charges were.

What I have tried to do, and this may have been touched upon earlier—but I was meeting with the new Soviet Ambassador—and what I would like to see happen is that we set aside the cloture and vote up or down.

I have gone back and looked at the RECORD, and as far as I can determine, in the last 121 years we have only had cloture used on four judges.

One recent case was in 1980 after the election. A well-qualified candidate named Stephen Breyer, who was Senator KENNEDY's chief of staff on the Judiciary, came before this body after the election and there was an effort to sidetrack that nominee but I joined with the distinguished chairman of the committee in helping invoke cloture and the nomination was passed.

In 1984, I guess, on the Wilkinson nomination there was an attempt to block that and cloture was obtained.

The only other two were Justice Rehnquist in 1971 and Abe Fortas in 1968.

So it would seem to me that there really is not any precedent for this.

Are we going to require that you have 60 votes or a majority in this body? And what we are saying in this case is, because this may be a hot political issue and there are a lot of people gearing up on each side, and the liberal press sort of likes this kind of an issue, that we are going to require 60 votes. It just seems to me that is patently unfair; it cannot be justified.

There are going to be some voting for cloture today who are opposed to the nomination. The distinguished Senator from Connecticut has already spoken on that. He will not vote for the nominee, but he does not like this system and this way of proceeding.

And I would hope—and I know that everyone in this body is a fair-minded man or woman—let us go ahead and invoke cloture, let us get a time agreement on the nomination. We will take it up tomorrow. We will take it up the first day we are back. And we will vote up or down on whether or not he should be confirmed.

And that is really all I think he can ask. That is all we can ask ourselves.

Maybe someday one of us will be up here for confirmation for something. And someone may not like what we have done in the Senate or anywhere else. We ought to ask ourselves are we going to require the same standard if we were Mr. Manion, when it says a majority, but we require a super majority for Mr. Manion because somehow we do not like his views.

Mr. President, I hope we will do what is fair and what we customarily do in this Chamber and that is to give the man an up or down vote.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time allotted having expired, the clerk will report the motion to invoke cloture.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on the nomination of Daniel A. Manion, of Indiana, to be U.S. circuit judge for the seventh circuit.

Senators Bob Dole, Pete Wilson, Strom Thurmond, Barry Goldwater, Jake Garn, Al Simpson, Chuck Grassley, Steve Symms, Mitch McConnell, John P. East, Jeremiah A. Denton, Paul Laxalt, Chic Hecht, Richard G. Lugar, Orrin Hatch, Malcolm Wallop, Thad Cochran, Phil Gramm, Ted Stevens, Dan Quayle, and Don Nickles.

CALL OF THE ROLL

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair now directs the clerk to call the roll to ascertain the presence of a quorum.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll and the following Senators answered to their names:

[Quorum Vote No. 9 Leg.]

Abdnor	Glenn	Metzenbaum
Andrews	Gore	Mitchell
Armstrong	Gorton	Moynihan
Baucus	Gramm	Murkowski
Bentsen	Grassley	Nickles
Biden	Harkin	Nunn
Bingaman	Hart	Pell
Boren	Hatch	Pressler
Boschwitz	Hatfield	Proxmire
Bradley	Hecht	Pryor
Bumpers	Heflin	Quayle
Burdick	Heinz	Riegle
Byrd	Helms	Rockefeller
Chafee	Hollings	Roth
Chiles	Humphrey	Rudman
Cochran	Inouye	Sarbanes
Cohen	Johnston	Sasser
Cranston	Kassebaum	Simon
D'Amato	Kasten	Simpson
Danforth	Kennedy	Specter
DeConcini	Kerry	Stafford
Denton	Lautenberg	Stennis
Dixon	Laxalt	Stevens
Dodd	Leahy	Symms
Dole	Levin	Thurmond
Domenici	Long	Trible
Durenberger	Lugar	Wallop
Eagleton	Mathias	Warner
East	Matsunaga	Weicker
Evans	Mattingly	Wilson
Exon	McClure	Zorinsky
Ford	McConnell
Garn	Melcher

□ 1240

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A quorum is now present.

NOMINATION OF DANIEL A. MANION, OF INDIANA, TO BE U.S. CURCUIT JUDGE FOR THE SEVENTH CIRCUIT

Mr. BYRD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The minority leader.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may be recognized for 3 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, what is the request?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The request is that the minority leader be recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. THURMOND. Is this on the nomination of Mr. Manion?

Mr. BYRD. I want the distinguished majority leader to be here. I want to make a proposal to him.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I reserve the right to object and would like for it not to be acted on until we get the majority leader here.

Mr. BYRD. Otherwise, the Senate has to proceed under the rule and will begin the vote. I wanted to speak to the majority leader before the vote began.

Mr. President, I renew the request that I made. I think this will probably take more than 3 minutes. I hope the distinguished majority leader can be here. He is on his way, and he is having to cut short an appointment in order to be here at the moment. But I do not want to proceed until he is here.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the minority leader to have 3 minutes? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The minority leader has 3 minutes.

Mr. BYRD. I thank all Senators. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, the distinguished majority leader has said that we should have an up-or-down vote on the nomination and we should not vote on cloture. Other Senators have said the same in the course of this debate.

Speaking for those on this side of the aisle, and the Democrats who have been accused of being partisan in this debate, I hope the distinguished majority leader would ask unanimous consent that the Senate not proceed with the cloture vote, that the Senate go immediately to a vote up or down on the nomination with the understanding that the rollcall vote not extend beyond, say, 20 minutes at the most. That is 5 minutes more than the usual 15.

What I am seeking to avoid here is a long, drawn-out rollcall. Senators are here. A quorum has been established. I hope the distinguished majority leader will ask the vote on cloture be vitiated, and that the Senate go immediately, without further motion, debate, quorum call, or other intervening action to vote up or down on the nomination and that that vote be closed within 20 minutes after it begins.

Mr. President, I yield to the distinguished majority leader, if he wishes, on my time.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, if the minority leader will yield, I think that is probably a good proposition. I just need a couple of minutes to think about it. [Laughter.]

Obviously, I want to take a quick head count to see how many are in town. [Laughter.]

As I understand, we have two absentees on our side and, of course, I assume it is going to be a very close vote.

□ 1250

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may have 2 additional minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOLE. If the minority leader would permit me to check, I think this is what we want to do. We want an up or down vote. I have made the statement and we have all made the statement, in fact, that we thought we might have an up or down vote when we were fishing around, shopping around, for an 8-hour time agreement. I do not want to press this anomaly knowing there are two affirmative votes who are not here. If it were my gamble, I would take it, if I were gambling, but if it is someone else's future I think I would be very cautious in making that judgment.

I appreciate the offer. I think it is in good faith, though I must say with two affirmative votes not here I have to be a little careful. This is not a roll of the dice. This could be the beginning or the end of a 44-year-old person named Daniel Manion who would like to be on the circuit court. It is not really sport. It is serious.

I like to take chances myself when I am involved, but I am not certain I should roll the dice when I know that this vote is very, very close at best.

Again, I do not want to dismiss the offer. What I need is about 5 or 6 minutes or maybe 10 minutes to take a look and see how far out of town people are. [Laughter.]

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may be recognized for 10 minutes while the distinguished majority leader has the opportunity to make the check.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered. The minority leader is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, may we have order in the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order. Senators will take their seats. Conversations will cease.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, may we have order in the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order. Members will take their conversations to the cloakroom. Staff will resume their seats. Staff will please stop conversing in the Chamber.

Senators will please suspend their conversations.

The minority leader is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, if I may have the attention of the Senators.

Mr. President, may we have order in the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the distinguished majority leader has expressed concern about the future of this 44-year-old nominee. Mr. President, the function of the Senate today is to determine not what the future is of a 44-year-old nominee. The Senate, in fulfilling its responsibility under the Constitution, must look at the future of the Federal judiciary; what is the future of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

But, more importantly, and above all of that, what is the future of every man, woman, and child over which this nominee, if he is confirmed, will hold power. And it is an awesome power.

The Senate should not be made to make its judgment on the basis of what the future of this nominee may be. The matter is far more solemn than that.

What is this man's qualifications? What are his credentials? What is his experience? What is his attitude toward the Constitution of the United States?

There is nothing in the world that I have found, as I indicated earlier, that would recommend this man as a nominee of excellence to be appointed to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

It is the future of the American people who live within that circuit court of appeals, that the Senate must consider.

And also the futures of Americans beyond that circuit are involved, because, as we all know, holdings in a given circuit may very well influence the decisions in another circuit.

Mr. President, one man's vote can make the difference in the seventh circuit. One man's vote can make the difference as to the influence of that court on the holdings of other courts in other circuits. And one man's vote here may make a big difference in the lives of men, women, and children and the institutions of Government, State and Federal.

As I have indicated, this is an awesome power to place in the hands of one man who would be given tenure for life.

No President can serve more than two terms under the 22d amendment of the Constitution. A President may serve 6 years and 1 day, or he may serve 10 years, as President of the United States. He might be elected only for one term. He does not get life tenure. The same can be said for Senators and Members of the House of Representatives and other offices in this land. They are not elected for life.

But here we are talking about a very special class of individuals, individuals appointed to the courts of this country.

So I would say to the people out there who are watching today, this is a matter that vitally affects them. It just does not go to the career, to the future, of one 44-year-old man. This may affect them, the men, women, and children all over this country.

Mr. CRANSTON. Will the Senator yield?

□ 1300

Mr. BYRD. Yes, I yield, Mr. President, without losing my right to the floor.

Mr. CRANSTON. Mr. President, it was my understanding, and maybe the Senator understood differently, that the majority leader was speaking perhaps not entirely about the future of the judge or would-be judge whose name is before us, but the future of two Senators who happened to be absent when there was a very, very important vote looming. I think my assumption was that that was part of what he was talking about, perhaps all he was talking about.

I would like simply to say that we have a count here of who is going to vote how. I am absolutely convinced that even if those two people were here, we would win this vote.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from California. If I misunderstood the distinguished majority leader, I apologize, but I thought he was saying that the future of this 44-year-old nominee was at stake.

Mr. President, the plea today was that we have an up-or-down vote, that we not have this cloture vote.

Mr. BIDEN. Will the Senator yield on that?

Mr. BYRD. Yes. That is precisely what we are offering, to vitiate the cloture vote and have that up-or-down vote on the nominee immediately.

I yield to the able Senator from Delaware.

Mr. BIDEN. I say to the Democratic leader that the reason I suggested to him and my colleagues that we go to an up-or-down vote was not that I am positive that we have the votes but that I am positive that the case that the majority leader made, that we should go with the vote, was the correct course to take. I acknowledge that it is "taking a chance," it is "rolling the dice." But the reason this Senator did not want to agree to an up-or-down vote before is that 8 hours was not sufficient time to debate this. We would not have had an opportunity to engage in this debate.

I want the Record to be clear on two things: No. 1, we are ready to vote. No. 2, on the question of whether or not there are two absent Senators, by my count, I understand—I know the two absent Senators.

I quite frankly was counting on one of them to be against Manion. Maybe I counted wrong, but one of those two I understood to be against Manion, or at least with a strong possibility of his being against Manion.

Last, this was an important cloture vote that was scheduled. Obviously, if there are two people absent and it is of concern to the majority leader, he did not think they were going to win the cloture vote anyway, so he understands where this is.

I think it is reasonable for him to take the 10 minutes, but I hope—regardless of whether we get cloture or whether we end the debate on whether this is political or it is a cloture vote or it is up or down and it wins and it is over, or if it is cloture and it fails—we begin to talk about the merits of this person.

I thank the Democratic leader for his leadership in explaining to the Senator from Delaware and others how to get to this point. His great skill and oratory have been very helpful today. Regardless of the outcome, I thank him. I am prepared to live with the outcome as one Senator. As a few of my colleagues told me, I will, in fact, have to live with outcome but I am ready to do that.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished ranking member of the committee. I also commend him for the leadership he has shown.

Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DENTON). Thirty seconds.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished Senator from Hawaii, and I ask unanimous consent that my time may be extended for an additional 5 minutes out of courtesy for the majority leader.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senator from Hawaii is recognized.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Will the minority leader ask unanimous consent that I may speak for 2 minutes?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished Senator from Hawaii [Mr. INOUYE], then I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Senator from New York [Mr. MOYNIHAN].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise to join those who have spoken in opposition to the confirmation of Mr. Daniel A. Manion to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

Sixteen months ago in similar circumstances, I voted with a majority of this body to confirm Mr. Edwin Meese III for the position of Attorney General. I did so despite some misgivings, because I believe that the President should be able to select as part of his administration those people who, in his judgment, will be best able to carry out his policies. But Mr. Manion has not been nominated to be a member of the administration. He has been nominated to serve on the second highest court in the United States. And the difference between the two appointments clearly, in my mind, mandates a difference in result.

In the context of an appointment to the administration, I believe that fairness to the President dictates that the burden of proof lie with those who allege that a nominee is unfit. Such a standard is appropriate because the risk of error in administration appointments is minimized. Any subsequent demonstration of incompetence, unreasonable prejudices, or a disrespect for the mandates of the law are subject to correction and meaningful evaluation by the appointing and confirming bodies.

Under this standard, the Manion nomination would perhaps present a difficult case. But Mr. Manion has not been nominated to administer a Federal department under the watchful eyes of the President and Congress. He has been nominated to serve for life as a part of an independent Federal judiciary.

The risk of error in the case of this nomination, or any judicical nomination, is therefore substantially greater. A failure to assure that the nominee possesses the qualities and skills required of the demanding position could well effect the administration of justice for decades. And if the nominee proved to be inadequate, neither Congress nor the President would have any recourse short of impeachment. I therefore believe that in the case of judicial appointments, the burden must lie with the nominee's proponents to demonstrate that he or she is unquestionably able and willing to perform the duties of a Federal judge.

This burden has not been met with regard to Mr. Manion.

Professors Kurland, and Tribe in their letter to the chairman of the Judiciary Committee succinctly described the duties of a Federal judge:

> To Federal judges is given the task of policing the boundaries between State and Federal Government, of giving principled articulation to the content of basic human rights protected by the Constitution, enforcing the myriad and complex Federal statutes and regulations, and of overseeing complicated commercial and criminal litigations.

Additionally, appellate judges in particular must—

> Contribute lucidly to a body of legal precedents that can enlighten and guide trial courts, litigants and those who must try to anticipate what courts will do.

In light of these responsibilities, I do not think that it is unfair to evaluate a nominee's ability by carefully examining his academic writings, his experience before the court to which he will be appointed, and the demonstrated qualify of his work product. On the contrary, outstanding achievement in at least one of these areas would appear to be a minimum requisite for a person who we would empower to rule on matters of statutory and constitutional interpretation.

The record provides no support for Mr. Manion in this regard. Mr. Manion has published no scholarly articles and has never argued before the U.S. Court of Appeals. We are thus left with no way of even beginning to meaningfully assess the quality of his intellectual and technical skills other than through his work product. And here, we are presented with the conclusion of the Chicago Council of Lawyers that, based on a review of writings submitted by Mr. Manion, he has not demonstrated the level of legal skill necessary for appointment. On the basis of the analysis presented by the council, I am inclined to agree.

The briefs submitted by Mr. Manion which were the subject of the evaluation may, or may not, have been representative of the quality of his work. They are however, the only examples of his work product on the record before us. To my knowledge, we have been presented with no work of the quality that the people of the United States have the right to expect from the Federal bench.

One might also expect from a Federal judge a lifelong commitment to, and respect for, the rule of law as manifested in our Federal system. And here too, the Manion nomination is suspect. The nominee may indeed have been acting only as an interviewer in praising a book derogating the Supreme Court's decision in Brown versus Board of Education and the Civil Rights Act of 1964, but despite the fact that Mr. Manion gave 400 or 500 public speeches, the record contains no indications of sentiments to the contrary prior to his testimony before the Judiciary Committee.

Similarly, the nominee may have simply been acting out of courtesy when he identified the John Birch Society as "people who are in the front line of the fight for constitutional freedom * * *." And while a note in response to a condolence cannot be taken as definitive of his position, nothing other than a claim of ignorance is used to explain his posture with regard to the group and its beliefs.

The nominee may or may not have changed his mind since publicly denying the right of the Supreme Court to apply the Bill of Rights to the States. And he may indeed have come to agree that the separation of church and state applies on both the Federal and State level, but the record suggests no evidence of this prior to his confirmation. We have no idea if his current commitment to long established doctrines of the law are any more transient than his previous beliefs.

Mr. President, as I am best able to determine, the argument for confirmation in this case is based on a divided qualified rating by the American Bar Association, the recanting of previously expressed views during a Senate hearing, the endorsement of supporters, and a 13-year legal and political career which only occasionally touched the Federal courts. In essence, we are being asked to rely on an equivocal endorsement by the ABA, the changed mind of Mr. Manion, the assessment of his supporters, and a generous characterization of his career.

In light of the serious concerns raised during these confirmation proceedings, I do not believe that this constitutes a sufficient basis to justify confirmation.

I therefore urge my colleagues to join me in voting against confirmation.

Mr. MOYNIHAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, along with others in the Chamber, I had anticipated that the debate would be much longer than it apparently will be and had intended to join in at some length this afternoon or tomorrow. That is evidently not to be the case. In order that I not lose the opportunity, I would like to have placed in the RECORD a powerful and compelling letter from the dean of the Faculty of Law at Columbia University, a faculty which gave us, for example, John Jay in the early years of the Republic. It is a letter from Dean Barbara Black, who writes to oppose in her personal capacity the nomination of Mr. Manion.

She makes a very careful argument that rejects the thought that the constitutional role of the Senate with respect to confirmation is narrowly defined to guarding against dishonorable or dishonest appointments. She thinks this is a minimizing, trivializing interpretation of our responsibility. She asks us to speak to the large questions, the large judgment of the worth and the appropriateness of the appointments. She urges us in this instance to oppose and reject this nomination. I shall certainly vote that way.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent, so the record may be complete, that Dean Black's letter be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, SCHOOL OF LAW,
New York, NY, June 19, 1986.

Hon. DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN,
733 Third Avenue,
New York, NY.

DEAR SENATOR MOYNIHAN: I write as one of your constituents (and in purely an individual, not institutionally representative, capacity) to urge that you vote against the appointment of Daniel Manion to the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

I find the nomination of Mr. Manion troubling in the extreme, and the implication of Senatorial consent to this appointment ominous.

Unless I have wildly mis-read the record, there is nothing to be said for Mr. Manion on the merits—there are as it were, no merits. His selection must be purely ideologically based, and therefore, whether by design or otherewise, this nomination constitutes a challenge to you and your colleagues. It would be difficult to imagine a better test than this case, not so much of the meaning, as of the meaningfulness, of the Senatorial advice and consent: A vote for this appointment seems to me, inescapably, affirmation of the proposition that the Senate is merely the constitutional guardian against appointment of those actually dishonorable or dishonest, nomination of whom will be mercifully rare and almost certainly inadvertent. I know of no history that would compel, or indeed warrant, such a minimalist, even trivializing, interpretation, and no consideration that renders it politically or societally desirable. Moreover, opposition to this appointment says nothing at all about the propriety of a President's staffing the federal judiciary with people philosophically acceptable to that President, but merely affirms that all judicial nomineees must be people at least arguably qualified by experience, personal merit and professional distinction to serve.

As a lawyer and student of the history of the Anglo-American judiciary, and, more to the point, as a citizen concerned for the future of my country, I urge you to vote, and to speak out, against this appointment.

Sincerely,

BARBARA ARONSTEIN BLACK.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I thank the minority leader for making this time available.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the distinguished Senator.

Mr. President, I do not desire to hold the floor. I merely desire that the vote not begin until the distinguished majority leader comes back to the Senate and is in a position, I hope, to proceed with the rollcall vote on the nomination.

I yield, retaining my right to the floor by unanimous consent, to the Senator from California [Mr. CRANSTON].

Mr. CRANSTON. Mr. President, it seems to me that the way this nomination has been handled by those who are pushing it is in many ways an affront to the dignity of the Senate as a deliberative body and a frontal assault on the Senate's constitutional responsibilities.

This nomination was, after all, disapproved by a Republican-controlled Judiciary Committee, which nevertheless reported the nomination to the floor for the consideration of the full Senate.

The Senate is called upon by the Constitution to make its own, independent judgment as to whether this nomination is in the best interests of the United States of America.

But if the report in this morning's newspaper is correct, the constitutional process is being turned completely on its head. Not only is the President pressuring this body to ignore its independent constitutional responsibility to provide considered advice and consent to this nomination but he is apparently willing to nominate or seek to do so, persons about whom he has his own reservations, in order to obtain the votes of Senators who have reservations about Mr. Manion.

That is the lowest common denominator approach to the appointment of Federal judges.

We are urged to approve this nomination because other nominees with equally weak qualifications may have been approved in the past.

That kind of reasoning represents a guarantee that the quality of the Federal judiciary will continually deteriorate.

Again that is the lowest common denominator approach to the appointment process.

In my judgment, Daniel A. Manion does not meet the standard of excellence the framers of our Constitution intended for lifetime appointment to the Federal bench.

This nomination should be defeated. I think it is very ironic that the majority leader, after pleading with us all morning not to go through cloture but to have a vote, is now uncertain about the advisability of having a vote on this candidate.

Mr. KENNEDY addressed the Chair.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's 5 minutes of time has expired.

Mr. BYRD. I ask unanimous consent for an additional 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. EXON. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President, someone might be able to clarify for me what the position is. This Senator has been hounding the Senate to move on a highly important matter regarding the urgent supplemental. I was assured that it would be taken up yesterday, assured it would be taken up no later than 4 o'clock yesterday.

□ 1310

I was assured that it would receive priority consideration. I was assured within the last half-hour that we would take that up by 2 o'clock. I do not have any objection to the extension of time per se except to say that we are moving on this Manion proposition, which is not a priority matter under any legitimate consideration compared with the necessity of moving the urgent supplemental.

Could my friend, the minority leader, tell me whether or not he has any information, if we continue these 5 minutes upon 5 minutes upon 5 minutes, whether that will very likely delay into the 2 o'clock latest promise that I had with regard to the urgent supplemental?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I can only respond if my request is granted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Democratic leader?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I did not mean for that response to sound flippant. Under the rule, the Chair is required to proceed immediately now with the cloture vote.

Mr. EXON. I simply say that I was not objecting to another 5 minutes. I am wondering how many 5 minutes there are. Is this going to go on until 6 or 7?

Mr. BYRD. I would hope not. I hope the distinguished majority leader, when he returns, will accept the proposal which has been made by the Democrats that we proceed immediately to a vote up or down on the Manion nomination and dispose of it.

Mr. CRANSTON. Will the minority leader yield?

Mr. EXON. I have no objection to that whatsoever. I just wish we would move.

Mr. BYRD. Yes. I hope we can do that.

Mr. CRANSTON. Will the minority leader yield for one moment?

Mr. BYRD. Yes.

Mr. CRANSTON. I wonder if the minority leader knows where all the Republicans are. Not only is the leader not here but the Chamber is vacant on the whole Republican side.

Mr. EXON. Or we can phrase it another way: Where are the Republicans just when we need them the most?

Mr. BYRD. I thank the distinguished minority whip for his very perceptive observation.

Mr. President, I am sure that it is the desire of the distinguished majority leader to move to the supplemental appropriation bill this afternoon, and that is also my hope because there are some very important items in that bill for a good many agencies. For example, there is $8 million in the bill for the Soil Conservation Service and $250 million in the bill for the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Those moneys are needed to further clean up from the ravages of last year's very devastating floods in West Virginia and in Mississippi and in several of the Western States including California. So I think it is the desire of all within the joint leadership to get to the supplement appropriation bill this afternoon.

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I did not object to the latest 5-minute extension of the rule that required that we proceed to a vote 1 hour after we came in. I just am sending a signal very loud and very clear that I am not going to sit here all afternoon without raising an objection after a reasonable amount of time has been extended for the negotiations that seem to be going on now with those on the other side of the aisle. So I will be here to tune in on this. I would certainly like the signal to be sent that I wish we could have an up or down vote on the Manion matter. I do not know why we cannot. That is what I had understood for the last 2 or 3 days the majority wanted.

Now it has been offered. Why do we not go ahead and vote up or down on Manion, get that out of the way, and then we can proceed to that very important matter hopefully of the supplemental appropriation and which among the other things, as the minority leader has mentioned, includes $5.5 billion desperately needed to carry out the farm programs that this body enacted.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator.

Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time expired.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I am still trying to accommodate the distinguished majority leader. I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for an additional 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KENNEDY. Reserving the right to object, and I will not object at this time, I would like to counsel with our leader about how long we are going to continue this procedure. So I will not object at this time.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts, and I think that implicit in his statement is a very sound principle, and that is, we ought to get on with this vote.

Mr. President, I will read from the RECORD of June 25. I would prefer to do that, however, when the distinguished majority leader is on the floor. So, Mr. President, I hope that the Chair will indulge me momentarily while I protect the floor hoping that the distinguished majority leader can be here when these minutes are up.

Mr. KERRY. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, how much time do I now have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. About 3½ minutes.

Mr. BYRD. About 3½ minutes.

I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KERRY].

Mr. KERRY. I appreciate that.

Mr. President, I, like many others, was under an expectation that we might have more time to debate and obviously, depending on what the majority leader says when he returns, that may in fact be the case. But I do also rise in opposition to this nomination.

Mr. President, I would just like to say very briefly——

Mr. BYRD. Will the distinguished Senator allow me to intervene? I note that there is no Parliamentarian at the desk.

Now, Mr. President, there should be a Parliamentarian at the desk. There are assistant Parliamentarians in the building. I hope they are not all discussing this parliamentary situation with the distinguished majority leader and other Senators. Certainly the majority leader and other Senators have a right to the advice of the Parliamentarian but there are assistant Parliamentarians around, and I would hope that one would appear. I have noted upon one or two occasions within the past few minutes that the distinguished Presiding Officer has had some problems in responding to inquiries from the floor because there is no Parliamentarian, whose responsibility it is to help guide the Chair.

Mr. President, how much time do I have left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I will, as Presiding Officer, have to ask the gallery to refrain from laughter or be cleared from the Senate. There is a minute and a half remaining to the Senator.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KERRY].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I would simply say in summary that as an attorney, as a member of the bar, as a former prosecutor, as somebody who, as all of us who went through law school, looked at all the benches of our Federal system with a certain amount of awe and reverence, I am genuinely astounded by this nomination. This individual has been put in front of us in a way that somehow makes us responsible for showing why he should not be on the bench when, in fact, by every fair standard by which we make judgments about people we put on the bench, he is totally lacking in those qualities that make us have any reason to say why he should be put on the bench—no record of legal scholarship, no law review articles, no publications, no major cases that he has ever tried, no teaching experience, nothing measurable against those standards of others for whom we have voted.

□ 1320

So I am opposed to it. And I hope my colleagues will join me in that opposition.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, will the Senator from West Virginia yield for a question?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The 5 minutes requested has expired.

Mr. BYRD. I ask unanimous consent that I may have an additional 3 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, reserving the right to object—and I will not object at this time to an additional 3 minutes—I just feel that we have to move ahead.

I inquire of the Chair: If an objection is heard, I assume that, under the parliamentary procedures, we will go directly to the cloture vote. Is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. EXON. I may object the next time, but I will not object at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY].

Mr. KENNEDY. I appreciate that.

Mr. President, I was just trying to inquire of the Senator from West Virginia, who has been in the Senate and on the Judiciary Committee for many, many years, if the fact that we are where we are today troubles the Senator from West Virginia.

We are talking now about a virtually evenly divided Senate on a matter of enormous consequence, the second highest court in this country, the circuit court, a lifetime appointment. Now we are going through this charade of trying to see who has the one- or two-vote advantage on a matter of such importance and consequence, when we are considering a lifetime appointment to the Federal bench, I am interested in whether the Senator, in his experience on the Judiciary Committee and as a Member of the Senate, has seen a circumstance such as we face today.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I have not seen a circumstance that is a parallel to the circumstance that we are confronted with today.

Mr. KENNEDY. We are running out of time.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the distinguished Senator.

Mr. President, do I have any time remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. One minute and forty seconds.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the distinguished majority leader is going to get his time. I ask unanimous consent that I may reserve 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The majority leader.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, we have obviously been doing what the other side was doing, seeing how many votes we have. There is no secret about it—this is very close. There is no secret about it that two of our votes are not here today. They are out of town.

There is no secret about it, as I indicated earlier, that this directly involves the future of one individual in this country, and it seems to me, in fairness, that he is entitled to the best shot we can give him. Whether he is a Democrat or a Republican does not make that much difference.

I think the surprise offer is generous in one respect but not in another. I think we are entitled to have 100 Members here—at least as many as we need, if we can achieve that—to make certain that he is not defeated by an absentee.

I know that this is a highly politicized matter, and I know that people feel strongly about it, and maybe there is justification on each side.

I am not certain that I am prepared, as a leader, to let somebody go down the tube just because two persons who might have supported him are not available at this moment.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DOLE. I yield.

Mr. BIDEN. Would the Senator be willing if we gave him two pairs, so that the two people out of town would not affect the outcome of the vote?

Mr. DOLE. If I knew who the pairs were.

Mr. BIDEN. I would be willing to give a pair, and I suspect that we might get someone else, so that it would be evened out.

Mr. DOLE. I think everybody understands what I am saying.

Mr. BIDEN. I do not. I thought it was the two people out of town that worried you.

Mr. DOLE. It does worry me, yes.

Mr. BIDEN. You are assuming that both of those two people would vote for Manion. If I find you two people who would vote against Manion, would you be willing to go to an up-and-down vote right away, if we would pair out the two votes against Manion?

Mr. DOLE. Now we are talking real turkey here. [Laughter.]

Mr. BIDEN. That is right.

Mr. BYRD. Or about a real turkey. [Laughter.]

Mr. BIDEN. If the majority leader will yield, as long as we are talking about what the real game is here—and it is not a game; it is deadly earnest—the reason why the Senator from Delaware would like to move ahead quickly on this is that I do not want to find out that there has been an Air Force base moved from Delaware to Maryland, or three judges whose nominations were not about to be confirmed for the last 18 months all of a sudden popping up on the screen. I would like to settle it among the Senators, without the President. He made his case.

So I would think, to be self-congratulatory here, that there is a fairly generous offer we have made, if you are ready to go now. But I am not prepared to make that offer if you are going to wait until the President invites some people on helicopter rides or something else.

Mr. DOLE. The President is out of town.

Mr. BIDEN. Then, I am prepared to go ahead.

Mr. DOLE. I think that offer is statesmanlike. You have a future in politics.

Mr. BIDEN. I doubt it. If I lose this one, my future may be ended.

Mr. DOLE. I am not trying to delay it. I know that a number of Senators would like to get to the supplemental, and so would I. If we could stand in recess for 10 minutes and then come back and do one or the other—maybe we will discuss it for 10 additional minutes.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I want to bend over backward to accommodate the majority leader. He and I know what the burdens of the majority leader are. But I hope we will get on with this vote.

It has been said on this floor that there is "a little judicial assassination" going on here—"not even giving the man the right to have an up-and-down vote." It has been kind of thrown in the teeth of Democrats that "it has been a * * * political decision, that we are going to take care of this guy and not going to invoke cloture, and therefore he will never have a chance to have a vote up or down" as to whether or not his nomination "should be confirmed."

Mr. President, I would hope that we would have this "up-and-down vote." I do not think of it in terms of a "roll of the dice," but if that is the context in which some wish to put it, let us have it. Let us vote and—who knows? We may lose, or we may not, so far as the nomination itself is concerned. When I say we may lose, I mean those of us who are opposed to this nomination. The Senate's will may, on the other hand, be the other way.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, do I have any time remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Five minutes have expired.

Mr. DOLE. I ask for 2 additional minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I think we have made some progress. But if the shoe were on the other foot, every effort would be made by Members on your side to protect the nominee, to make certain he had every vote possible.

□ 1330

It might not still be enough. I am not certain how the vote is going to come out. But as I understand, the distinguished ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee, Senator BIDEN, from Delaware, has indicated to offset the absentees on this side—I assume there is no one absent on his side—that there would be two Senators who would pair.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield, to the best of my knowledge, there is no one absent on our side. I was under the impression that the two absent Senators were LAXALT and HAWKINS, both of whom I would be certain would vote for the nominee. Obviously Senator LAXALT is now here. I understand that absent will be Senator HAWKINS and Senator PACKWOOD. My understanding is Senator PACKWOOD might be against this nomination. So I would be prepared to pair with Senator HAWKINS. I would not be prepared to go out and search up a pair for Senator PACKWOOD.

Mr. DOLE. Now we are starting to trim our sails here a bit. I did not know we would be identifying Senators. The Senator indicated to make the balance—I think the RECORD will reflect—to make certain that the two who are absent were covered that he would find two pairs.

Mr. BIDEN. I was told Senator LAXALT and Senator HAWKINS were absent. Then right after the Senator said that, Senator LAXALT walked in. I have no doubt where Senator LAXALT is on this nomination. I do not have any prospect of convincing Senator LAXALT.

I have the undying belief in the generosity and good judgment of Senator PACKWOOD and so I am not at all certain that——

Mr. DOLE. It is my impression he would vote for the nominee, for confirmation.

Mr. BIDEN. I would then begin to shop and see if I can do something. If we are going to do it now, let us do it now.

Mr. DOLE. If there is some doubt about PACKWOOD, then I need to confirm with PACKWOOD. That would take getting him on the phone.

Mr. BIDEN. Is the majority leader prepared to vote right now, right this minute? Let us close it out, get two from the majority leader right now. We can do it right this minute. Just stop talking and do it.

Mr. DOLE. There are two pairs?

Mr. BIDEN. Yes.

Mr. DOLE. Who would vote against?

Mr. BIDEN. Who would otherwise be voting against Mr. Manion.

Mr. DOLE. Yes.

Mr. BIDEN. Let us go. Let us vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The 2 minutes have expired.

Mr. BYRD. By the majority leader it is agreed that the rollcall vote will not extend beyond 20 minutes at most?

Mr. DOLE. To make certain we have it right, there will be the distinguished Senator from Delaware and one other, the Senator from Hawaii, who will——

Mr. BIDEN. Given a pair to Senator HAWKINS, and Senator PACKWOOD.

Mr. DOLE. Right. Let me indicate I think that is eminently fair.

Mr. BIDEN. So do I.

Mr. DOLE. I do not know what the outcome is going to be.

Mr. BIDEN. Neither do I.

Mr. DOLE. We are not going to extend the vote beyond 20 minutes.

Mr. BYRD. We will begin immediately on the vote.

Mr. President, I hope the question would be put so that the vote could begin. The majority leader indicated it would not last beyond 20 minutes.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, as I understand, first it would be necessary to vitiate the cloture motion; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes.

Mr. DOLE. I ask unanimous consent that that be vitiated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate go into executive session to consider the nomination of Daniel A. Manion, of Indiana, to be U.S. circuit judge for the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business.

NOMINATION OF DANIEL A. MANION, OF INDIANA, TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE SEVENTH CIRCUIT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The nomination will be stated.

The assistant legislative clerk read the nomination of Daniel A. Manion, of Indiana, to be U.S. circuit judge for the seventh circuit.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I suggest that the vote not extend beyond 20 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of Daniel A. Manion, of Indiana, to be U.S. circuit judge for the seventh circuit?

On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. STENNIS. May we have quiet, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi is correct. The Senate is not in order. The Senate will please come to order.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask for the regular order on this vote—meaning that Senators vote from their seats.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Regular order.

The legislative clerk resumed the call of the roll.

□ 1340

Mr. INOUYE (after having voted in the negative). Mr. President, on this vote, I have a live pair with the distinguished Senator from Oregon, Mr. PACKWOOD. If permitted to vote, I would have voted no. Mr. PACKWOOD would have voted aye. I withhold my vote.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I have a live pair. Were I permitted to vote, I would vote no. The Senator from the State of Florida [Mrs. HAWKINS] were she here, would vote aye. I withhold my vote.

Mrs. KASSEBAUM (after having voted in the negative). Mr. President, I understand Senator GOLDWATER is not here. If he were here, he would be casting an "aye" vote. I will give a pair, and be recorded as giving a pair to him.

Mr. SIMPSON. I announce that the Senator from Arizona [Mr. GOLDWATER], the Senator from Florida [Mrs. HAWKINS], and the Senator from Oregon [Mr. PACKWOOD] are necessarily absent.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas, 48, nays, 46, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 152 Ex.]

YEAS—48

Abdnor	Gorton	McConnell
Andrews	Gramm	Murkowski
Armstrong	Grassley	Nickles
Boschwitz	Hatch	Pressler
Byrd	Hatfield	Quayle
Chafee	Hecht	Roth
Cochran	Heflin	Rudman
Cohen	Heinz	Simpson
D'Amato	Helms	Stafford
Danforth	Humphrey	Stevens
Denton	Kasten	Symms
Dole	Laxalt	Thurmond
Domenici	Long	Trible
Durenberger	Lugar	Wallop
East	Mattingly	Warner
Garn	McClure	Wilson

NAYS—46

Baucus	Glenn	Moynihan
Bentsen	Gore	Nunn
Bingaman	Harkin	Pell
Boren	Hart	Proxmire
Bradley	Hollings	Pryor
Bumpers	Johnston	Riegle
Burdick	Kennedy	Rockefeller
Chiles	Kerry	Sarbanes
Cranston	Lautenberg	Sasser
DeConcini	Leahy	Simon
Dixon	Levin	Specter
Dodd	Mathias	Stennis
Eagleton	Matsunaga	Weicker
Evans	Melcher	Zorinsky
Exon	Metzenbaum
Ford	Mitchell

PRESENT AND GIVING A LIVE PAIR, AS PREVIOUSLY RECORDED—3

Biden, against Inouye, against Kassebaum, against

NOT VOTING—3

Goldwater	Hawkins	Packwood

So the nomination was confirmed.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the nomination was confirmed, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, may we have order in the Senate?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senate is not in order. Senators are asked to take their seats. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. HART. Mr. President, I make a point of order that the Senate is not in order.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Senators are asked to take their seats. The Senate is not in order. The Senate will be in order. The Senators are asked to take their seats.

□ 1410

Mr. CRANSTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BOSCHWITZ). Is there objection?

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk resumed the call of the roll.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further proceedings under the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move that the Senate go into legislative session.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, without the distinguished Senator's losing the floor, and addressing myself to the motion, would he be in a position to tell the Senate what the program will be for the rest of the day? I ask this in view of the fact that the distinguished majority leader is moving to go back into legislative session.

Mr. DOLE. What I would like to do—the nomination appears to be in a state of flux. [Laughter.]

Mr. BYRD. It is in intensive care.

Mr. DOLE. Yes.

Right now, our nominee is ahead. But what I would like to do is take up the three treaties, then go to the supplemental and, while we are doing that, reach some agreement when we can have a vote up or down on the Manion nomination, probably after we return.

We would go ahead and do the supplemental and do the treaties. I think we have Members on both sides who are either headed for the airport or would like to be. So I would move to go into legislative session at this time.

Mr. BYRD. Will the distinguished majority leader yield the floor further?

Mr. DOLE. I am happy to yield, yes.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, if the distinguished majority leader plans to seek a vote on the treaties, the Senate has to be in executive session to consider the treaties. If the Senate is going to be back in executive session, I think the Senate should proceed with the nomination. The motion to reconsider is now pending, but it is clearly the distinguished majority leader's prerogative, if he wishes to do so, to move the Senate—he has the votes; it only takes a majority vote and I assume he would have them—to move the Senate back into legislative session. I hope the distinguished majority leader would not now propose that the Senate go to the treaties because they would be in executive session also.

The Senator certainly can keep the Senate in executive session.

Mr. DOLE. That thought occurred to me.

Mr. BYRD. But we may not vote on the treaties.

Mr. DOLE. That thought occurred to me, too, so I think we shall just move to go into legislative session.

Mr. BIDEN. Will the majority leader withhold?

Mr. DOLE. I am happy to withhold.

Mr. BIDEN. Things are getting, as the majority leader pointed out, complicated here. I just wanted to make sure, because it is a matter of honor with the Senator from Delaware, did the Senator from Kansas, the majority leader, understand the Senator from Delaware to have committed to continue to pair on votes or only on that one vote?

Mr. DOLE. I say for the record, there is no understanding beyond that one vote. We are not talking about the rest of the day or the rest of the week. We would like to have it, but it was only one vote.

Mr. BIDEN. We may be able to make a deal later on, but I thank the Senator for his response.

Mr. METZENBAUM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. METZENBAUM. Mr. President, I thought the Senator had made a motion and I think it is a debatable one.

Mr. DOLE. It is not debatable.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion is not debatable.

Mr. METZENBAUM. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

□ 1420

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further proceedings under the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is a motion to return to legislative session.

The motion was agreed to.

URGENT SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1986 CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate turn to the consideration of the conference report to accompany H.R. 4515, the supplemental appropriations bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, after the clerk reports, if I could get the majority leader to indicate what the outlook is for rollcalls the rest of the day and whether there will be a session tomorrow.

Mr. LEAHY. Could we have order, Mr. President? Could we have order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

The Senate will come to order.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, let me alert my colleagues on each side, because I know there are a number of Senators who have very important business outside Washington, we will not call up the bill until we come back from the recess. There is no need to penalize somebody who has to leave so perhaps we could agree before we leave that that might be a vote after the policy luncheon on Tuesday, the 15th of July. But we can work that out later.

We will have, I would guess, votes on the supplemental this afternoon. We are trying to work it out so we will not be in session tomorrow. The one key question may be—I am looking at the distinguished Senator from Florida. I do not see the Senator from New Mexico—whether or not we could adopt a conference report on the budget. If that could be done—certainly we would like to do that yet this evening, we would try to avoid a Friday session if at all possible.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished majority leader.

Mr. EXON. Will the majority leader yield for a question.

Mr. DOLE. Yes.

Mr. EXON. Is it hopefully the intention of the majority leader to finish the deliberations and have final vote on the emergency appropriations bill even if it requires a session tomorrow?

Mr. DOLE. The answer is in the affirmative.

Mr. EXON. I thank the majority leader.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the conference report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4515) making urgent supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1986, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses this report, signed by a majority of the conferees.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of the conference report.

(The conference report is printed in the House proceedings of the RECORD of June 19, 1986.)

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

□ 1430

Mr. MATHIAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, the conference agreement on H.R. 4515, the Urgent Supplemental Appropriations Act, provides a total of $1,698,120,000 in net new budget authority for fiscal year 1986. This total is $4,466,841,000 below the administrations supplemental funding request of $6,164,961,000.

With respect to rescissions and deferrals, the conference recommends that $6,953,924,000 in funds previously appropriated be rescinded and that $4,890,075,000 in funds deferred by the administration be disapproved.

As compared to the House and Senate versions of the bill, this conference report provides a net new budget authority level for fiscal year 1986 $18,635,000 above the House-passed level and $2,176,352,000 below the Senate-passed level. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a table comparing the conference report to the President's request and the House and Senate-passed measures be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. (See exhibit 1.)

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I am pleased to inform my colleagues that the recommendations of the conferees meet the requirement of the Congressional Budget Act, as amended by the balanced budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, that additional fiscal year 1986 spending be provided through offsetting savings.

□ 1440

This deficit neutrality requirement imposed on this bill—including the conference agreement—results from the fact that the current Senate scorekeeping report for fiscal year 1986 filed by the Senate Budget Committee indicates that total spending actions taken in fiscal year 1986 exceed the total outlay level contained in the fiscal year 1986 budget resolution as well as the maximum deficit level specified in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

As will be recalled, this was the case when the Senate acted on this measure earlier in the month. The bill reported to the Senate by the Appropriations Committee, as well as the bill passed by the Senate, recommended savings to offset the additional spending recommended so there would be no increase in the fiscal year 1986 deficit. This conference agreement also complies with that deficit neutrality requirement.

I would like to point out to my colleagues that this conference report provides funding for a number of urgent requirements. These include: $5.3 billion for the capital contribution to the Commodity Credit Corporation [CCC] which stopped all payments on June 5 of this month; $9 million for dairy indemnity payments, which will allow pending claims for heptachlor contamination to be processed; $72 million for Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service [ASCS] salaries and expenses to prevent closure of all offices in mid-July; $3.8 million to prevent the continued disruption of Federal civil jury trials; $18.8 million for the Board for International Broadcasting to offset the impact of foreign currency exchange rate shortfalls; $250 million in Federal Emergency Management Agency disaster relief funding to continue public and private assistance to victims of disasters; $340 million for the Internal Revenue Service; and $80 million for the Federal Aviation Administration [FAA] to prevent the furlough of employees late this summer.

In addition, this agreement also includes a number of other funding priorities designated by the administration, including $150 million in additional assistance to the new Government of the Philippines; $702 million for the State Department's Diplomatic Security Program; and $50 million in aid to Ireland.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a table highlighting these and other major funding items recommended in this conference agreement be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 2.)

Mr. President, the House and Senate conferees reported only one amendment in true disagreement. That is Senate amendment numbered 199 dealing with certain tax regulations regarding vehicle recordkeeping requirements. In acting on this conference report 2 days ago, the House insisted on its disagreement to this Senate amendment. The House also took action different than the conference recommendation on two other items reported in technical disagreement:

First, it adopted a substitute amendment in lieu of the further House amendment recommended by the conferees to Senate amendment numbered 23 dealing with the prepayment of Federal financing bank loans guaranteed by the REA. As many of my colleagues may be aware, the original Senate language on this matter was opposed by the administration. The conferees recommended new language to further limit the eligibility of borrowers qualifying under this provision. However, that new language is also unacceptable to the President and I have been notified by the Director of OMB that the President would not sign the bill if the language is included in the form recommended by the conferees. The House substitute language makes a further modification in the language which I understand will satisfy the administration to the extent necessary to remove its veto threat on the bill. Given this and the fact that the House has now accepted the modified language, I will move that the Senate concur in the House amendment.

Second, in acting on the conference agreement, the House insisted on its position on Senate amendment numbered 114. The effect of that motion is to delete the original Senate language extending the FHA mortgage insurance authority and making basic changes in the Urban Development Action Grant program formula.

These amendments will, of course, receive separate action here in the Senate. There are a number of other amendments reported in technical disagreement by the conferees. I will seek unanimous consent at the appropriate time to have those amendments adopted en bloc, excepting the several amendments which are either controversial or which members wish to further amend. I hope my colleagues can agree to this in order to expedite consideration of this conference report.

71-059 O-87-34 (Pt. 11)

EXHIBIT 1

URGENT SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL YEAR 1986

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
CHAPTER I
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
Soil Conservation Service
Watershed and Flood Prevention Operations	---	25,000,000	36,700,000	36,700,000	+36,700,000	+11,700,000	---
Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service
Emergency Conservation Program	---	10,000,000	---	5,000,000	+5,000,000	-5,000,000	+5,000,000
Agricultural Research Service
Buildings and facilities	---	---	11,100,000	---	---	---	-11,100,000
Food Safety and Inspection Service	---	3,700,000	4,500,000	3,700,000	+3,700,000	---	-800,000
Packers and stockyards administration	---	---	80,000	80,000	+80,000	+80,000	---
Farmers Home Administration
Rural Housing Insurance Fund:
(Direct loans)	(-7,000,000)	---	(-4,480,000)	(-3,000,000)	(+4,000,000)	(-3,000,000)	(+1,480,000)
(Deferral disapproval - D86-60)	---	(7,000,000)	(7,000,000)	(7,000,000)	(+7,000,000)	---	---
(Insured loans)	(-699,000,000)	---	(1,500,000)	(1,000,000)	(+700,000,000)	(+1,000,000)	(-500,000)
(Deferral disapproval - D86-60)	---	(693,000,000)	(693,000,000)	(693,000,000)	(+693,000,000)	---	---
Very low income housing repair grants	---	---	3,000,000	2,000,000	+2,000,000	+2,000,000	-1,000,000
Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service
Salaries and expenses (transfer from Commodity Credit Corporation)	(71,598,000)	(71,598,000)	(71,598,000)	(71,598,000)	---	---	---
Dairy indemnity program	6,000,000	10,000,000	9,000,000	9,000,000	+3,000,000	-1,000,000	---
DOMESTIC FOOD PROGRAMS
Food and Nutrition Service
Feeding program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC)	---	20,000,000	---	20,000,000	+20,000,000	---	+20,000,000
Commodity Supplemental Food Program
(Transfer from Commodity Credit Corporation)	---	(3,950,000)	(3,950,000)	(3,950,000)	(+3,950,000)	---	---
Food Donations Program
Elderly feeding programs (by transfer)	---	---	(8,500,000)	---	---	---	(-8,500,000)
Elderly feeding programs (direct appropriations)	---	---	---	8,500,000	+8,500,000	+8,500,000	+8,500,000
Temporary emergency food assistance program (by transfer)	---	---	(2,440,000)	---	---	---	(-2,440,000)
Temporary emergency food assistance program (direct appropriations)	---	---	---	2,437,000	+2,437,000	+2,437,000	+2,437,000
Commodity Credit Corporation
Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service:
Citrus Canker (by transfer)	---	(14,000,000)	---	(11,100,000)	(+11,100,000)	(-2,900,000)	(+11,100,000)
Cooperative State Research Service (by transfer)	---	(5,000,000)	---	(5,000,000)	(+5,000,000)	---	(+5,000,000)
Avian Influenza (by transfer)	---	(10,000,000)	---	(5,000,000)	(+5,000,000)	(-5,000,000)	(+5,000,000)
Reimbursement for net realized losses 1/	5,300,000,000	---	5,300,000,000	5,300,000,000	---	+5,300,000,000	---
External combustion engines	---	---	(4,000,000)	---	---	---	(-4,000,000)
Total, Chapter I:
New budget (obligational) authority	5,306,000,000	68,700,000	5,364,380,000	5,387,417,000	+81,417,000	+5,318,717,000	+23,037,000
(By transfer)	(71,598,000)	(104,548,000)	(86,488,000)	(96,648,000)	(+25,050,000)	(-7,900,000)	(+10,160,000)
(Loan authorization)	(-706,000,000)	---	(-2,980,000)	(-2,000,000)	(+704,000,000)	(-2,000,000)	(+980,000)
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(700,000,000)	(700,000,000)	(700,000,000)	(+700,000,000)	---	---

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
CHAPTER II
DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
Economic Development Administration
Economic development assistance programs (deferral disapproval - D86-36)	---	(40,000,000)	(40,000,000)	(40,000,000)	(+40,000,000)	---	---
National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration
Operations, research and facilities	---	---	10,822,000	10,822,000	+10,822,000	+10,822,000	---
DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
Legal Activities
United States Marshals Service	---	---	2,600,000	2,600,000	+2,600,000	+2,600,000	---
(By transfer)	(2,600,000)	---	---	---	(-2,600,000)	---	---
Support of United States prisoners	---	---	3,000,000	3,000,000	+3,000,000	+3,000,000	---
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Salaries and expenses	---	---	10,000,000	10,000,000	+10,000,000	+10,000,000	---
(Rescission)	---	---	-10,000,000	-10,000,000	-10,000,000	-10,000,000	---
Immigration and Naturalization Service
Salaries and expenses	---	---	3,000,000	3,000,000	+3,000,000	+3,000,000	---
(By transfer)	(3,000,000)	---	---	---	(-3,000,000)	---	---
Federal Prison System
Salaries and expenses	10,620,000	15,500,000	18,000,000	18,000,000	+7,380,000	+2,500,000	---
(By transfer)	(2,500,000)	---	---	---	(-2,500,000)	---	---
National Institute of Corrections (rescission)	---	---	-3,315,000	---	---	---	+3,315,000
DEPARTMENT OF STATE
Administration of Foreign Affairs
Salaries and expenses	228,494,000	---	288,047,000	283,104,000	+54,610,000	+283,104,000	-4,943,000
(By transfer)	---	(237,494,000)	---	---	---	(-237,494,000)	---
Acquisition and maintenance of buildings abroad	454,532,000	---	372,125,000	409,000,000	-45,532,000	+409,000,000	+36,875,000
(By transfer)	---	(454,532,000)	---	---	---	(-454,532,000)	---
Counterterrorism research and development	10,000,000	---	---	10,000,000	---	+10,000,000	+10,000,000
(By transfer)	---	(10,000,000)	---	---	---	(-10,000,000)	---
Total, Administration of foreign affairs	693,026,000	---	660,172,000	702,104,000	+9,078,000	+702,104,000	+41,932,000
Other
The Asia Foundation	---	2,000,000	2,000,000	2,000,000	+2,000,000	---	---
Total, Department of State	693,026,000	2,000,000	662,172,000	704,104,000	+11,078,000	+702,104,000	+41,932,000
THE JUDICIARY
Supreme Court of the United States
Care of the buildings and grounds	46,000	46,000	46,000	46,000	---	---	---
Courts of Appeals, District Courts, and Other Judicial Services
Salaries of supporting personnel	1,200,000	1,200,000	1,200,000	1,200,000	---	---	---
Salaries of supporting personnel (by transfer)	(12,000,000)	(12,000,000)	---	---	(-12,000,000)	(-12,000,000)	---
Fees of jurors and commissioners	3,800,000	3,800,000	3,800,000	3,800,000	---	---	---
Study of construction of office buildings	2,000,000	2,000,000	1,300,000	1,300,000	-700,000	-700,000	---
Space and facilities	---	---	---	---	---	---	---
Total, Courts of Appeals, District Courts, and Other Judicial Services	7,000,000	7,000,000	6,300,000	6,300,000	-700,000	-700,000	---
Total, The Judiciary	7,046,000	7,046,000	6,346,000	6,346,000	-700,000	-700,000	---

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
RELATED AGENCIES
Department of Transportation
Maritime Administration
Operations and training (deferral disapproval-D86-53).	---	(9,350,000)	(1,738,000)	(1,738,000)	(+1,738,000)	(-7,612,000)	---
Board for International Broadcasting
Grants and expenses	22,000,000	14,500,000	18,800,000	18,800,000	-3,200,000	+4,300,000	---
Small Business Administration
Salaries and expenses (by transfer)	---	(2,000,000)	(2,000,000)	(2,000,000)	(+2,000,000)	---	---
United States Information Agency
Salaries and expenses	17,326,000	---	---	---	-17,326,000	---	---
(By transfer)	---	---	(3,900,000)	(3,900,000)	(+3,900,000)	(+3,900,000)	---
Total, Chapter II:
New budget (obligational) authority	750,018,000	39,046,000	721,425,000	766,672,000	+16,654,000	+727,626,000	+45,247,000
Appropriations 1986	(750,018,000)	(39,046,000)	(734,740,000)	(776,672,000)	(+26,654,000)	(+737,626,000)	(+41,932,000)
Rescissions	---	---	(-13,315,000)	(-10,000,000)	(-10,000,000)	(-10,000,000)	(+3,315,000)
(By transfer)	(20,100,000)	(716,026,000)	(5,900,000)	(5,900,000)	(-14,200,000)	(-710,126,000)	---
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(49,350,000)	(41,738,000)	(41,738,000)	(+41,738,000)	(-7,612,000)	---
CHAPTER III
DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE - MILITARY
OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE
Tenth International Pan American Games	---	---	8,000,000	8,000,000	+8,000,000	+8,000,000	---
(Rescission)	---	---	-8,000,000	-8,000,000	-8,000,000	-8,000,000	---
Operation and Maintenance, Defense Agencies	---	---	---	(260,000,000)	(+260,000,000)	(+260,000,000)	(+260,000,000)
PROCUREMENT
Procurement of Weapons and Tracked Combat Vehicles, Army (rescission)	-34,400,000	---	-34,400,000	-34,400,000	---	-34,400,000	---
Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy (rescission)	-40,100,000	---	-40,100,000	-40,100,000	---	-40,100,000	---
Missile Procurement, Air Force (by transfer)	---	---	(345,400,000)	(345,400,000)	(+345,400,000)	(+345,400,000)	---
Other Procurement, Air Force (rescission)	-40,000,000	---	-40,000,000	-40,000,000	---	-40,000,000	---
RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION
Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Air Force (by transfer)	---	---	(316,886,000)	(316,886,000)	(+316,886,000)	(+316,886,000)	---
(Rescission)	---	---	-13,500,000	---	---	---	+13,500,000
Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense Agencies (rescission)	---	---	-11,100,000	---	---	---	+11,100,000
REVOLVING AND MANAGEMENT FUNDS
ADP Equipment Management Fund	---	---	100,000,000	100,000,000	+100,000,000	+100,000,000	---
(Rescission)	---	---	-100,000,000	-100,000,000	-100,000,000	-100,000,000	---
Total, Chapter III:
New budget (obligational) authority	-114,500,000	---	-139,100,000	-114,500,000	---	-114,500,000	+24,600,000
Appropriations 1986	---	---	(108,000,000)	(108,000,000)	(+108,000,000)	(+108,000,000)	---
Rescissions	(-114,500,000)	---	(-247,100,000)	(-222,500,000)	(-108,000,000)	(-222,500,000)	(+24,600,000)
(By transfer)	---	---	(662,286,000)	(922,286,000)	(+922,286,000)	(+922,286,000)	(+260,000,000)
CHAPTER IV
DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE - CIVIL Department of the Army Corps of Engineers - Civil
Flood control and coastal emergencies	---	25,000,000	---	25,000,000	+25,000,000	---	+25,000,000
General expenses (by transfer)	(3,000,000)	(3,000,000)	(3,000,000)	(3,000,000)	---	---	---
Total, Department of Defense - Civil	---	25,000,000	---	25,000,000	+25,000,000	---	+25,000,000

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY
Energy Supply, Research and Development Activities
(Deferral disapproval - D86-38)	---	(23,156,000)	(23,156,000)	(23,156,000)	(+23,156,000)	---	---
Atomic Energy Defense Activities
(Transfer from Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Defense Agencies)	(62,000,000)	(62,000,000)	---	(62,000,000)	---	---	(+62,000,000)
Total, Chapter IV:
New budget (obligational) authority	---	25,000,000	---	25,000,000	+25,000,000	---	+25,000,000
(By transfer)	(65,000,000)	(65,000,000)	(3,000,000)	(65,000,000)	---	---	(+62,000,000)
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(23,156,000)	(23,156,000)	(23,156,000)	(+23,156,000)	---	---
CHAPTER V
FOREIGN ASSISTANCE AND RELATED PROGRAMS
Bilateral Economic Assistance
Agency for International Development
Economic support fund	100,000,000	---	100,000,000	100,000,000	---	+100,000,000	---
(By transfer)	---	(50,000,000)	---	---	---	(-50,000,000)	---
International Fund for Northern Ireland and Ireland	20,000,000	---	---	---	-20,000,000	---	---
(By transfer)	---	---	(20,000,000)	(50,000,000)	(+50,000,000)	(+50,000,000)	(+30,000,000)
Foreign Assistance Contingencies
General contingencies	50,000,000	---	---	---	-50,000,000	---	---
Department of State
Anti-terrorism assistance	4,840,000	---	---	---	-4,840,000	---	---
(By transfer)	---	---	(2,739,000)	(2,739,000)	(+2,739,000)	(+2,739,000)	---
Military Assistance
Military assistance	50,000,000	---	50,000,000	50,000,000	---	+50,000,000	---
Reappropriation	15,000,000	---	15,000,000	---	-15,000,000	---	-15,000,000
(By transfer)	(14,355,000)	---	(14,355,000)	---	(-14,355,000)	---	(-14,355,000)
Total, Chapter V:
New budget (obligational) authority	239,840,000	---	165,000,000	150,000,000	-89,840,000	+150,000,000	-15,000,000
Appropriations 1986	(224,840,000)	---	(150,000,000)	(150,000,000)	(-74,840,000)	(+150,000,000)	---
Reappropriation	(15,000,000)	---	(15,000,000)	---	(-15,000,000)	---	(-15,000,000)
(By transfer)	(14,355,000)	(50,000,000)	(37,094,000)	(52,739,000)	(+38,384,000)	(+2,739,000)	(+15,645,000)
CHAPTER VI
DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT
HOUSING PROGRAMS
Annual contributions for assisted housing (deferral disapproval - D86-41)	---	(2,300,805,000)	(2,300,805,000)	(2,300,805,000)	(+2,300,805,000)	---	---
Rescission in FY 1986	---	---	-3,000,000,000	-5,250,000,000	-5,250,000,000	-5,250,000,000	-2,250,000,000
Rescission in FY 1987	---	---	---	-6,042,000,000	-6,042,000,000	-6,042,000,000	-6,042,000,000
Rent supplement (rescission of contract authority, indefinite)	-1,158,920,000	---	-1,158,920,000	-1,158,920,000	---	-1,158,920,000	---
(Limitation on annual contract authority, indefinite)	(-41,390,000)	---	(-41,390,000)	(-41,390,000)	---	(-41,390,000)	---
Rental housing assistance (rescission of contract authority, indefinite)	-283,584,000	---	-283,584,000	-283,584,000	---	-283,584,000	---
(Limitation on annual contract authority, indefinite)	(-10,128,000)	---	(-10,128,000)	(-10,128,000)	---	(-10,128,000)	---
Housing for the elderly or handicapped fund (deferral disapproval - D86-45)	---	(530,220,000)	(530,220,000)	(530,220,000)	(+530,220,000)	---	---
Nonprofit sponsor assistance (deferral disapproval D86-46)	---	(457,000)	(457,000)	(457,000)	(+457,000)	---	---

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
Federal Housing Administration Fund
Federal Housing Administration Fund (limitation on guaranteed loans)	(6,500,000,000)	—	(57,580,000,000)	(57,580,000,000)	(+51,080,000,000)	(+57,580,000,000)	—
Government National Mortgage Association
Guarantees of mortgage-backed securities (limitation on guaranteed loans)	—	—	(49,000,000,000)	(49,000,000,000)	(+49,000,000,000)	(+49,000,000,000)	—
COMMUNITY PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT
Community development grants (deferral disapproval B86-48)	—	(500,000,000)	(500,000,000)	(500,000,000)	(+500,000,000)	—	—
Rehabilitation loan fund (deferral disapproval B86-50)	—	(131,133,000)	(131,133,000)	(131,133,000)	(+131,133,000)	—	—
MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION
Salaries and expenses (by transfer)	(10,100,000)	(23,701,000)	(30,000,000)	(30,000,000)	(+19,900,000)	(+6,299,000)	—
INDEPENDENT AGENCIES
AMERICAN BATTLE MONUMENTS COMMISSION
Salaries and expenses	1,553,000	1,553,000	—	1,553,000	—	—	+1,553,000
ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY
Salaries and expenses (by transfer)	—	(3,000,000)	(3,000,000)	(3,000,000)	(+3,000,000)	—	—
Construction Grants (release of appropriated funds)	—	—	(600,000,000)	(1,200,000,000)	(+1,200,000,000)	(+1,200,000,000)	(+600,000,000)
FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY
Disaster relief	250,000,000	250,000,000	250,000,000	250,000,000	—	—	—
Salaries and expenses (by transfer)	—	(2,920,000)	(2,920,000)	(2,920,000)	(+2,920,000)	—	—
NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE ADMINISTRATION
Research and development (by transfer)	—	—	—	(5,000,000)	(+5,000,000)	(+5,000,000)	(+5,000,000)
Space flight, control and data communications	—	—	526,000,000	431,000,000	+431,000,000	+431,000,000	-95,000,000
Advance appropriation in FY 1987	—	—	—	100,000,000	+100,000,000	+100,000,000	+100,000,000
Research and program management (by transfer)	—	(38,100,000)	(38,100,000)	(38,100,000)	(+38,100,000)	—	—
VETERANS ADMINISTRATION
Compensation and pensions	272,000,000	272,000,000	272,000,000	272,000,000	—	—	—
Readjustment benefits	91,000,000	91,000,000	91,000,000	91,000,000	—	—	—
Medical care (by transfer)	—	(30,000,000)	(30,000,000)	(30,000,000)	(+30,000,000)	—	—
General operating expenses (by transfer)	—	(6,000,000)	(6,000,000)	(6,000,000)	(+6,000,000)	—	—
Veterans Job training (by transfer)	—	(35,000,000)	(35,000,000)	(35,000,000)	(+35,000,000)	—	—
Total, Veterans Administration	363,000,000	363,000,000	363,000,000	363,000,000	—	—	—
CORPORATIONS
Federal Home Loan Bank Board: (Limitation on administrative expenses, corporate funds)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	—	—	—
Total, Chapter VI:
New budget (obligational) authority	-827,951,000	614,553,000	-3,303,504,000	-5,546,951,000	-4,719,000,000	-6,161,504,000	-2,243,447,000
Appropriations 1986	(614,553,000)	(614,553,000)	(1,139,000,000)	(1,045,553,000)	(+431,000,000)	(+431,000,000)	(-93,447,000)
Appropriations 1987	—	—	—	(100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)
Rescissions	(-1,442,504,000)	—	(-4,442,504,000)	(-6,692,504,000)	(-5,250,000,000)	(-6,692,504,000)	(-2,250,000,000)
(By transfer)	(10,100,000)	(138,721,000)	(145,020,000)	(150,020,000)	(+139,920,000)	(+11,299,000)	(+5,000,000)
(Limitation on administrative expenses, corporate funds)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	—	—	—
(Limitation on guaranteed loans)	(6,500,000,000)	—	(106,580,000,000)	(106,580,000,000)	(+100,080,000,000)	(+106,580,000,000)	—
(Limitation on annual contract authority, indfinite)	(-51,518,000)	—	(-51,518,000)	(-51,518,000)	—	(-51,518,000)	—
(Deferral disapproval)	—	(3,462,615,000)	(3,462,615,000)	(3,462,615,000)	(+3,462,615,000)	—	—

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
CHAPTER VII
DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
Bureau of Land Management
Land acquisition (Rescission)	---	---	-3,000,000	---	---	---	+3,000,000
(Effect of new deferral) 1/	---	(-3,000,000)	---	(-3,000,000)	(-3,000,000)	---	(-3,000,000)
United States Fish and Wildlife Service
Resource management	---	90,000	---	---	---	-90,000	---
Land acquisition	---	---	2,373,000	2,373,000	+2,373,000	+2,373,000	---
(Effect of new deferral) 1/	---	(-4,432,000)	---	---	---	(+4,432,000)	---
National Park Service
Operation of the national park system	13,470,000	13,900,000	13,470,000	13,470,000	---	-430,000	---
Construction	---	---	3,420,000	3,850,000	+3,850,000	+3,850,000	+430,000
Land and water conservation fund (rescission of contract authority)	(-28,710,000)	-28,710,000	-28,710,000	-28,710,000	-28,710,000	---	---
(Effect of new deferral)	(-1,893,000)	---	(-1,893,000)	---	(+1,893,000)	---	(+1,893,000)
Geological Survey
Surveys, investigations and research	---	---	1,400,000	1,400,000	+1,400,000	+1,400,000	---
Minerals Management Service
Leasing and royalty management	---	800,000	---	200,000	+200,000	-600,000	+200,000
Payments to States from receipts under Mineral Leasing	800,000	---	---	---	-800,000	---	---
Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement
Regulation and technology (rescission)	---	-710,000	---	-210,000	-210,000	+500,000	-210,000
Bureau of Indian Affairs
Operation of Indian programs	26,500,000	31,368,000	26,500,000	29,204,000	+2,704,000	-2,164,000	+2,704,000
Construction	---	---	4,900,000	2,500,000	+2,500,000	+2,500,000	-2,400,000
(Effect of new deferral)	---	---	(-4,900,000)	(-2,500,000)	(-2,500,000)	(-2,500,000)	(+2,400,000)
Territorial and International Affairs
Compact of Free Association	178,750,000	178,750,000	210,890,000	210,840,000	+32,090,000	+32,090,000	-50,000
Total, Department of the Interior (net)	219,520,000	175,488,000	231,243,000	234,917,000	+15,397,000	+39,429,000	+3,674,000
RELATED AGENCIES
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
Forest Service
State and private forestry	---	161,000	161,000	161,000	+161,000	---	---
National forest system	165,700,000	165,700,000	165,700,000	165,700,000	---	---	---
Construction	---	---	1,700,000	1,700,000	+1,700,000	+1,700,000	---
Land acquisition	---	4,436,000	4,436,000	4,436,000	+4,436,000	---	---
Timber salvage sales (deferral disapproval-D86-3)	---	(3,153,000)	(3,153,000)	(3,153,000)	(+3,153,000)	---	---
Total, Forest Service	165,700,000	170,297,000	171,997,000	171,997,000	+6,297,000	+1,700,000	---
DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY
Fossil energy research and development (deferral disapproval - D86-6A)	---	(62,205,000)	(22,541,000)	(25,871,000)	(+25,871,000)	(-36,334,000)	(+3,330,000)
(Effect of new deferral)	---	(-2,607,000)	(-2,607,000)	(-2,607,000)	(-2,607,000)	---	---
Naval Petroleum Reserve (deferral approval-D86-8A)	---	---	(-36,461,000)	---	---	---	(+36,461,000)
Energy conservation (deferral disapproval-D86-9A)	---	(36,782,000)	(14,906,000)	(14,826,000)	(+14,826,000)	(-21,956,000)	(-80,000)
Strategic petroleum reserve (deferral disapproval D86-37)	---	(197,940,825)	(41,182,000)	(41,182,000)	(+41,182,000)	(-156,758,825)	---
SPR petroleum account (deferral disapproval-D86-10A)	---	(315,000,000)	(577,534,000)	(577,534,000)	(+577,534,000)	(+262,534,000)	---
Alternative Fuels Production	1,020,360,322	---	1,020,360,322	1,020,360,322	---	+1,020,360,322	---
Appropriation applied to debt reduction	-1,020,360,322	---	-1,020,360,322	-1,020,360,322	---	-1,020,360,322	---

1/ Originally proposed as rescission.

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES
Health Resources and Services Administration
Indian health services	---	20,000,000	1,800,000	13,500,000	+13,500,000	-6,500,000	+11,700,000
Indian health facilities (effect of new defferal)	---	---	(-13,745,000)	(-11,665,000)	(-11,665,000)	(-11,665,000)	(+2,080,000)
SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION
National Gallery of Art
Salaries and expenses (by transfer)	---	(136,000)	---	(36,000)	(+36,000)	(-100,000)	(+36,000)
Total, Chapter VII:
New budget (obligational) authority (net)	385,220,000	385,785,000	405,040,000	420,414,000	+35,194,000	+34,629,000	+15,374,000
Appropriations 1986	(1,405,580,322)	(415,205,000)	(1,457,110,322)	(1,469,694,322)	(+64,114,000)	(+1,054,489,322)	(+12,584,000)
Appropriation applied to debt reduction	(-1,020,360,322)	---	(-1,020,360,322)	(-1,020,360,322)	---	(-1,020,360,322)	---
Rescissions	(-28,710,000)	(-29,420,000)	(-31,710,000)	(-28,920,000)	(-28,920,000)	(+500,000)	(+2,799,000)
(By transfer)	---	(136,000)	---	(36,000)	(+36,000)	(-100,000)	(+36,000)
(Deferral approval)	---	---	(-36,461,000)	---	---	---	(+36,461,000)
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(615,080,825)	(659,316,000)	(662,566,000)	(+662,566,000)	(+47,485,175)	(+3,250,000)
(Effect of new deferral)	(-1,893,000)	(-10,039,000)	(-23,145,000)	(-19,772,000)	(-17,879,000)	(-9,733,000)	(+3,373,000)
CHAPTER VIII
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES
Health Resources and Services Administration
Health resources and services	---	---	2,000,000	2,000,000	+2,000,000	+2,000,000	---
National Institutes of Health
National Cancer Institute	---	6,000,000	---	6,000,000	+6,000,000	---	+6,000,000
Office of Community Service
Community Services Block Grant	---	---	5,000,000	1,500,000	+1,500,000	+1,500,000	-3,500,000
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
Impact Aid	---	20,000,000	---	20,000,000	+20,000,000	---	+20,000,000
Student Financial assistance	---	---	146,000,000	146,000,000	+146,000,000	+146,000,000	---
RELATED AGENCIES
Soldier's and Airmen's Home
Operation and maintenance (by transfer)	---	---	(1,241,000)	(1,241,000)	(+1,241,000)	(+1,241,000)	---
Total, Chapter VIII:
New budget (obligational) authority	---	26,000,000	153,000,000	175,500,000	+175,500,000	+149,500,000	+22,500,000
(By transfer)	---	---	(1,241,000)	(1,241,000)	(+1,241,000)	(+1,241,000)	---
CHAPTER IX
LEGISLATIVE BRANCH
SENATE
Salaries, Officers and Employees
Administrative, clerical, and legislative assistance to Senators	243,000	---	---	---	-243,000	---	---
Offices of the secretaries for the Majority and Minority	80,000	---	---	---	-80,000	---	---
Office of the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper	---	---	500,000	500,000	+500,000	+500,000	---
Agency contributions	32,000	---	---	---	-32,000	---	---
Total, salaries, officers and employees	355,000	---	500,000	500,000	+145,000	+500,000	---

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
Continsent Expenses of the Senate
Serseant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate	9,100,000	---	---	---	-9,100,000	---	---
Miscellaneous items	650,000	---	---	---	-650,000	---	---
Total, continsent expenses of the Senate	9,750,000	---	---	---	-9,750,000	---	---
Total, Senate	10,105,000	---	500,000	500,000	-9,605,000	+500,000	---
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Salaries, Officers and Emplovees
Office of the Serseant at Arms	---	---	500,000	500,000	+500,000	+500,000	---
Continsent Expenses of the House
Standins Committees, Special and Select
Salaries and expenses	350,000	350,000	---	350,000	---	---	+350,000
JOINT ITEMS
Continsent Expenses of the House
Joint Committee on Taxation	950,000	912,000	912,000	912,000	-38,000	---	---
Capitol Police
Capitol Police Board	---	---	13,000,000	13,000,000	+13,000,000	+13,000,000	---
Official Mail Costs
Expenses	50,499,000	---	---	---	-50,499,000	---	---
Total, Joint items	51,449,000	912,000	13,912,000	13,912,000	-37,537,000	+13,000,000	---
ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL
Office of the Architect of the Capitol
Salaries	---	---	250,000	250,000	+250,000	+250,000	---
Capitol Buildinss and Grounds
Capitol buildinss	8,000,000	8,000,000	8,000,000	8,000,000	---	---	---
Capitol srounds	7,675,000	---	---	---	-7,675,000	---	---
Restoration of West Front (rescission)	---	---	-3,683,000	---	---	---	+3,683,000
Capitol Power Plant	2,000,000	1,583,000	1,583,000	1,583,000	-417,000	---	---
Total, Capitol buildinss and srounds	17,675,000	9,583,000	5,900,000	9,583,000	-8,092,000	---	+3,683,000
Library of Congress
Salaries and expenses	---	---	1,000,000	867,000	+867,000	+867,000	-133,000
Total, Chapter IX:
New budset (oblisational) authority	79,579,000	10,845,000	22,062,000	25,962,000	-53,617,000	+15,117,000	+3,900,000
Appropriations 1986	(79,579,000)	(10,845,000)	(25,745,000)	(25,962,000)	(-53,617,000)	(+15,117,000)	(+217,000)
Rescissions	---	---	(-3,683,000)	---	---	---	(+3,683,000)
CHAPTER X
DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION
Coast Guard
Operatins expenses	---	35,500,000	35,500,000	35,500,000	+35,500,000	---	---
(By transfer)	(35,500,000)	---	---	---	(-35,500,000)	---	---
Acquisition, construction and improvements (By transfer)	---	---	(21,250,000)	(21,250,000)	(+21,250,000)	(+21,250,000)	---

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
Federal Aviation Administration
Operations	6,755,000	80,000,000	80,000,000	80,000,000	+73,245,000	---	---
(By transfer)	(73,245,000)	(5,000,000)	---	(4,250,000)	(-68,995,000)	(-750,000)	(+4,250,000)
Research, engineering and development (by transfer)	(72,220,000)	---	(72,220,000)	(72,220,000)	---	(+72,220,000)	---
RELATED AGENCY
Panama Canal Commission
Operating expenses	---	20,000,000	---	18,300,000	+18,300,000	-1,700,000	+18,300,000
Total, Chapter X:
New budget (obligational) authority	6,755,000	135,500,000	115,500,000	133,800,000	+127,045,000	-1,700,000	+18,300,000
(By transfer)	(180,965,000)	(5,000,000)	(93,470,000)	(97,720,000)	(-83,245,000)	(+92,720,000)	(+4,250,000)
CHAPTER XI
DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
Departmental offices (rescission)	---	---	-912,000	---	---	---	+912,000
Internal Revenue Service:
Processing tax returns	194,564,000	194,564,000	194,564,000	194,564,000	---	---	---
Examinations and appeals	68,706,000	68,706,000	68,706,000	68,706,000	---	---	---
Investigations, collections and taxpayer service	76,730,000	76,730,000	76,730,000	76,730,000	---	---	---
Total, Internal Revenue Service	340,000,000	340,000,000	340,000,000	340,000,000	---	---	---
United States Customs Service
Salaries and expenses	---	30,831,000	30,831,000	30,831,000	+30,831,000	---	---
Operations and maintenance, air interdiction program	---	3,225,000	---	3,225,000	+3,225,000	---	+3,225,000
Total, United States Customs Service	---	34,056,000	30,831,000	34,056,000	+34,056,000	---	+3,225,000
Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms	---	---	500,000	500,000	+500,000	+500,000	---
Office of Personnel Management (by transfer)	---	---	(100,000)	(100,000)	(+100,000)	(+100,000)	---
GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION
Federal Buildings Fund (limitation)	---	---	(3,500,000)	(3,500,000)	(+3,500,000)	(+3,500,000)	---
Federal Retirement thrift investment fund
Salaries and expenses	---	---	250,000	250,000	+250,000	+250,000	---
Total, Chapter XI:
New budget (obligational) authority	340,000,000	374,056,000	370,669,000	374,806,000	+34,806,000	+750,000	+4,137,000
Appropriations 1986	(340,000,000)	(374,056,000)	(371,581,000)	(374,806,000)	(+34,806,000)	(+750,000)	(+3,225,000)
Rescissions	---	---	(-912,000)	---	---	---	(+912,000)
(By transfer)	---	---	(100,000)	(100,000)	(+100,000)	(+100,000)	---
TOTAL - New budget (obligational) authority	6,164,961,000	1,679,485,000	3,874,472,000	1,798,120,000	-4,366,841,000	+118,635,000	-2,076,352,000
Appropriations 1986	(8,727,325,322)	(1,708,905,000)	(9,619,056,322)	(9,672,404,322)	(+945,079,000)	(+7,963,499,322)	(+53,348,000)
Appropriations 1987	---	---	---	(100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)
Reappropriation	(15,000,000)	---	(15,000,000)	---	(-15,000,000)	---	(-15,000,000)
Rescissions	(-1,585,714,000)	(-29,420,000)	(-4,739,224,000)	(-6,953,924,000)	(-5,396,920,000)	(-6,924,504,000)	(-2,214,700,000)
Appropriation applied to debt reduction	(-1,020,360,322)	---	(-1,020,360,322)	(-1,020,360,322)	---	(-1,020,360,322)	---
(Deferral approval)	---	---	(-36,461,000)	---	---	---	(+36,461,000)
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(4,850,201,825)	(4,886,825,000)	(4,899,075,000)	(+4,899,075,000)	(+39,873,175)	(+13,250,000)
(Effect of new deferral)	(-1,893,000)	(-10,039,000)	(-23,145,000)	(-19,772,000)	(-17,879,000)	(-9,733,000)	(+3,373,000)
(By transfer)	(362,118,000)	(1,079,431,000)	(1,034,599,000)	(1,391,690,000)	(+1,029,572,000)	(+312,259,000)	(+357,091,000)
(Limitation on administrative expenses, corporate funds)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	---	---	---
(Limitation on guaranteed loans)	(6,500,000,000)	---	(106,580,000,000)	(106,580,000,000)	(+100,080,000,000)	(+106,580,000,000)	---
(Limitation on annual contract authority, indefinite)	(-51,518,000)	---	(-51,518,000)	(-51,518,000)	---	(-51,518,000)	---
(Loan authorization)	(-706,000,000)	---	(-2,980,000)	(-2,000,000)	(+704,000,000)	(-2,000,000)	(+980,000)

	Supplemental Request	House	Senate	Conference	Conference compared with Estimates	Conference compared with House	Conference compared with Senate
GENERAL SUPPLEMENTALS
Total, Chapter I:
Agriculture:
New budget (obligational) authority	5,306,000,000	68,700,000	5,364,380,000	5,387,417,000	+81,417,000	+5,318,717,000	+23,037,000
(By transfer)	(71,598,000)	(104,548,000)	(86,488,000)	(96,648,000)	(+25,050,000)	(-7,900,000)	(+10,160,000)
(Loan authorization)	(-706,000,000)	---	(-2,980,000)	(-2,000,000)	(+704,000,000)	(-2,000,000)	(+980,000)
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(700,000,000)	(700,000,000)	(700,000,000)	(+700,000,000)	---	---
Total, Chapter II:
Commerce, Justice, State and the Judiciary:
New budget (obligational) authority	750,018,000	39,046,000	721,425,000	766,672,000	+16,654,000	+727,626,000	+45,247,000
Appropriations 1986	(750,018,000)	(39,046,000)	(734,740,000)	(776,672,000)	(+26,654,000)	(+737,626,000)	(+41,932,000)
Rescissions	---	---	(-13,315,000)	(-10,000,000)	(-10,000,000)	(-10,000,000)	(+3,315,000)
(By transfer)	(20,100,000)	(716,026,000)	(5,900,000)	(5,900,000)	(-14,200,000)	(-710,126,000)	---
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(49,350,000)	(41,738,000)	(41,738,000)	(+41,738,000)	(-7,612,000)	---
Total, Chapter III:
Defense:
New budget (obligational) authority	-114,500,000	---	-139,100,000	-114,500,000	---	-114,500,000	+24,600,000
Appropriations 1986	---	---	(108,000,000)	(108,000,000)	(+108,000,000)	(+108,000,000)	---
Rescissions	(-114,500,000)	---	(-247,100,000)	(-222,500,000)	(-108,000,000)	(-222,500,000)	(+24,600,000)
(By transfer)	---	---	(662,286,000)	(922,286,000)	(+922,286,000)	(+922,286,000)	(+260,000,000)
Total, Chapter IV:
Energy and Water Development:
New budget (obligational) authority	---	25,000,000	---	25,000,000	+25,000,000	---	+25,000,000
(By transfer)	(65,000,000)	(65,000,000)	(3,000,000)	(65,000,000)	---	---	(+62,000,000)
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(23,156,000)	(23,156,000)	(23,156,000)	(+23,156,000)	---	---
Total, Chapter V:
Foreign Operations:
New budget (obligational) authority	239,840,000	---	165,000,000	150,000,000	-89,840,000	+150,000,000	-15,000,000
Appropriations 1986	(224,840,000)	---	(150,000,000)	(150,000,000)	(-74,840,000)	(+150,000,000)	---
Reappropriation	(15,000,000)	---	(15,000,000)	---	(-15,000,000)	---	(-15,000,000)
(By transfer)	(14,355,000)	(50,000,000)	(37,094,000)	(52,739,000)	(+38,384,000)	(+2,739,000)	(+15,645,000)
Total, Chapter VI:
Housing and Urban Development-Independent Agenci
New budget (obligational) authority	-827,951,000	614,553,000	-3,303,504,000	-3,546,951,000	-4,719,000,000	-6,161,504,000	-2,243,447,000
Appropriations 1986	(614,553,000)	(614,553,000)	(1,139,000,000)	(1,045,553,000)	(+431,000,000)	(+431,000,000)	(-93,447,000)
Appropriations 1987	---	---	---	(100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)	(+100,000,000)
Rescissions	(-1,442,504,000)	---	(-4,442,504,000)	(-6,692,504,000)	(-5,250,000,000)	(-6,692,504,000)	(-2,250,000,000)
(By transfer)	(10,100,000)	(138,721,000)	(145,020,000)	(150,020,000)	(+139,920,000)	(+11,299,000)	(+5,000,000)
(Limitation on administrative expenses, corporate funds)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	(3,429,000)	---	---	---
(Limitation on guaranteed loans)	(6,500,000,000)	---	(106,580,000,000)	(106,580,000,000)	(+100,080,000,000)	(+106,580,000,000)	---
(Limitation on annual contract authority, indfinite)	(-51,518,000)	---	(-51,518,000)	(-51,518,000)	---	(-51,518,000)	---
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(3,462,615,000)	(3,462,615,000)	(3,462,615,000)	(+3,462,615,000)	---	---
Total, Chapter VII:
Interior and Related Agencies:
New budget (obligational) authority (net)	385,220,000	385,785,000	405,040,000	420,414,000	+35,194,000	+34,629,000	+15,374,000
Appropriations 1986	(1,405,580,322)	(415,205,000)	(1,457,110,322)	(1,469,694,322)	(+64,114,000)	(+1,054,489,322)	(+12,584,000)
Appropriation applied to debt reduction	(-1,020,360,322)	---	(-1,020,360,322)	(-1,020,360,322)	---	(-1,020,360,322)	---
Rescissions	(-28,710,000)	(-29,420,000)	(-31,710,000)	(-28,920,000)	(-28,920,000)	(+500,000)	(+2,790,000)
(By transfer)	---	(136,000)	---	(36,000)	(+36,000)	(-100,000)	(+36,000)
(Deferral approval)	---	---	(-36,461,000)	---	---	---	(+36,461,000)
(Deferral disapproval)	---	(615,080,825)	(639,316,000)	(662,566,000)	(+662,566,000)	(+47,485,175)	(+23,250,000)
(Effect of new deferral)	(-1,893,000)	(-10,039,000)	(-23,145,000)	(-19,772,000)	(-17,879,000)	(-9,733,000)	(+3,373,000)
Total, Chapter VIII:
Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education:
New budget (obligational) authority	---	26,000,000	153,000,000	175,500,000	+175,500,000	+149,500,000	+22,500,000
(By transfer)	---	---	(1,241,000)	(1,241,000)	(+1,241,000)	(+1,241,000)	---
Total, Chapter IX:
Legislative Branch:
New budget (obligational) authority	79,579,000	10,845,000	22,062,000	25,962,000	-53,617,000	+15,117,000	+3,900,000
Appropriations 1986	(79,579,000)	(10,845,000)	(25,745,000)	(25,962,000)	(-53,617,000)	(+15,117,000)	(+217,000)
Rescissions	---	---	(-3,683,000)	---	---	---	(+3,683,000)
Total, Chapter X:
Transportation:
New budget (obligational) authority	6,755,000	135,500,000	115,500,000	133,800,000	+127,045,000	-1,700,000	+18,300,000
(By transfer)	(180,965,000)	(5,000,000)	(93,470,000)	(97,720,000)	(-83,245,000)	(+92,720,000)	(+4,250,000)
Total, Chapter XI:
Treasury, Postal Service & General Government:
New budget (obligational) authority	340,000,000	374,056,000	370,669,000	374,806,000	+34,806,000	+750,000	+4,137,000
Appropriations 1986	(340,000,000)	(374,056,000)	(371,581,000)	(374,806,000)	(+34,806,000)	(+750,000)	(+3,225,000)
Rescissions	---	---	(-912,000)	---	---	---	(+912,000)
(By transfer)	---	---	(100,000)	(100,000)	(+100,000)	(+100,000)	---

EXHIBIT 2

Fiscal Year 1986 Supplemental Appropriations Act (H.R. 4515)—Major items in the conference-recommended measure

Program	Budget authority
CCC reimbursement for net realized losses	$5,300,000,000
ASCS salaries and expenses (by transfer)	[1] 71.598,000
SCS watershed and flood prevention operations	36,700,000
Department of State: Embassy security	702,104,000
Philippine assistance	150,000,000
Assistance to Ireland and Northern Ireland (transfer)	[1] 50,000,000
FHA Loan guarantees	[1] 57,580,000,000
GNMA Loan guarantees	[1] 49,000,000,000
HUD management (by transfer)	[1] 30,000,000
NASA space flight	431,000,000
NASA research and program management (transfer)	[1] 38,100,000
Missile procurement, Air Force (by transfer)	[1] 345,400,000
RDT&E, Air Force (by transfer)	[1] 316,886,000
Atomic energy defense activities (by transfer)	[1] 62,000,000
EPA construction grants (release of funds)	[1] 1,200,000,000
FEMA disaster relief	250,000,000
VA compensation and pensions	272,000,000
VA readjustment benefits	91,000,000
Compact of free association	210,840,000
National Forest System (firefighting)	165,700,000
Alternative fuels production (debt retirement)	[1] 1,020,360,322
BIA operation of Indian programs	29,204,000
Student financial assistance (Pell grants)	146,000,000
FAA operations	80,000,000
Coast Guard operating expenses	35,500,000
Customs Service salaries and expenses	30,831,000
IRS funding	340,000,000
All other (net)	381,165,000
Deferral disapprovals	[1] 4,890,075,000
Rescissions	[2] 6,953,924,000
Conference-recommended supplemental	1,698,120,000

[1] Nonadd.
[2] Negative.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I yield momentarily to the very able comanager of this bill, the Senator from Louisiana, Senator JOHNSTON, for any opening comments he may desire to make.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Oregon, the chairman of our committee, for his generous comments. I concur with the statement which he has just made. I commend him.

I commend the distinguished ranking minority member of the full Appropriations Committee, the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. STENNIS] whose guiding hand in this legislation has been steady and firm and extremely able as it always has been.

It is a pleasure for me to work under him and under his aegis in floor managing this bill.

Mr. President, I fully concur with the statements of my distinguished chairman and urge that the matter be adopted as he so stated.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I express my continued appreciation to the Senator from Louisiana and also join in recognizing that the ranking minority member of the full committee, Mr. STENNIS, the Senator from Mississippi, is very much a part of the guiding hand force behind coming to this place where we can consider the supplemental appropriations bill.

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I would like to engage in a colloquy with the chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and the chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture and Related Agencies. I would like to confirm my understanding with respect to the $36,700,000 contained in this supplemental appropriations bill for watershed flood prevention activities of the Soil Conservation Service. Within the $36,700,000 there is to be made available $8 million for continued recovery work from the November flood in West Virginia, as outlined in the Senate report. Is that consistent with the conferees' intent?

Mr. COCHRAN. I am happy to confirm that the conferees have supported the Senate position on this matter, and that the full $8 millon is to be directed toward continuing flood recovery efforts in West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the distinguished chairman of the Agriculture and Related Agencies Subcommittee, and would like to inquire about one more point. I have been told that the Soil Conservation Service has spent $26,300,000 on stream rechannelization, bank stabilization, debris removal, and other flood recovery activities in West Virginia since November 1985. The Service has been unable to complete this emergency work because it has run out of funds.

This flood has caused absolutely the worst devastation in terms of area and total damage that I have seen in my State. The severity of the damage was so great that the President, in making his disaster declaration which was recommended by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, waived all but the first $5 million in cost sharing by the State. The State has, of course, had many other flood-related expenses which were not covered by Federal assistance programs. So, the November flood has done great damage to the State treasury as well as the towns, roads, bridges, and countryside. The Department of Agriculture, following the President's example, also waived the 20 percent cost-sharing requirement for its emergency flood recovery activities to date in West Virginia.

My staff and I have conducted an extensive review of the flood recovery and rehabilitation efforts and, generally, the work of the Soil Conservation Service and other Federal agencies has been outstanding. However, with respect to the Soil Conservation Service responsibilities, much still remains to be done. I have seen many streams with debris, including rusted automobiles, and fallen trees lining the river banks. While this material is unsightly, it poses a much more serious threat to clog the stream channels when the next high water comes. The threat of severe flooding is much greater now in many West Virginia towns than it was before last November because of this debris and because of gravel deposits which still remain in some of the streams.

I do not say this by way of criticizing the Soil Conservation Service because, again, I believe the work that they have done to date has been excellent. But, they have run out of money, and the $8 million in this bill will permit them to continue their recovery activities in West Virginia. The concern that I have is that the Soil Conservation Service may change its cost-sharing policy with respect to this additional $8 million for flood recovery activities which are a direct result of the November 1985 disaster. Is it the chairmen's intent that the $8 million be used to continue the emergency activities in West Virginia under the same terms and conditions, including the cost-sharing waiver, as the $26,300,000 obligated to date?

Mr. COCHRAN. Absolutely. I certainly wish to join with the Senator from West Virginia in making it clear that it is our intent that the full cleanup operation administered by the SCS in his State should continue under the same terms and conditions as the previous flood-related expenditures in his State.

Mr. HATFIELD. I join the Democratic leader and my friend from Mississippi in confirming our understanding that this $8 million is to be spent on an exigency basis and under the continuing cost-sharing agreement which was in force previously.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the two chairmen for their understanding in clarifying this application of the funds.

Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, I rise today to ask my distinguished colleague, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, if I am correct in my interpretation of an amendment I offered to this legislation in committee and which was subsequently accepted by the conference with the addition of some report language. In my opinion the purpose of this amendment is to ensure that, notwithstanding local law No. 19, New York City will receive all of the Federal funds it would otherwise be entitled to for this fiscal year.

Moreover, my understanding is that the first clause of the conference language is intended to specifically reaffirm congressional intent that the interstate transfer funds related to Westway for Federal fiscal year 1986 be obligated by the end of this fiscal year. Thus, Westway substitute transfer funds will be obligated if, by September 30, 1986, the Secretary of Transportation approves the plans, specifications, and estimates, and issues a letter of authority to proceed with a project utilizing such funds as is the case under current law and practice. Is this the understanding of my distinguished colleague?

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I would like to make it clear that my interpretation and understanding of the meaning of this amendment and the conference agreement is the same as the interpretation expressed by the Senator from New York.

Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, I thank the chairman.

FUNDING FOR VETERANS' JOB TRAINING PROGRAM

Mr. CRANSTON. Mr. President, as the ranking minority member of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, I am pleased to rise in support of the provisions in the pending conference report on H.R. 4515, the proposed Urgent Supplemental Appropriations Act for fiscal year 1986, that would make an additional $35 million available for continued operations under the Veterans' Job Training Act [VJTA] by requiring the Veterans' Administration to transfer that amount from the VA's minor construction account to the VJTA account. This provision represents the results of an initiative outlined in a letter that Senators DECONCINI, MURKOWSKI, and I sent to the Appropriations Committee on April 29, 1986, a copy of which I shall ask to be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks, and a similar initiative in the House of Representatives.

The VJTA, formerly the Emergency Veterans' Job Training Act of 1983 [EVJTA], which I coauthored in the Senate, provides cash incentives to employers to hire and train certain long-term unemployed Vietnam-era and Korean-conflict veterans. The program currently has a carryover balance—from the $150 million originally appropriated for it in the fall of 1984—of some $12 million which is being used to place eligible veterans. More than 41,000 veterans have entered into training under EVJTA.

Last year, in the Veterans' Compensation Rate Increase and Job Training Amendments of 1985, Public Law 99-238, Congress approved provisions derived from an amendment I offered, together with the distinguished chairman of the Veterans' Affairs Committee, Mr. MURKOWSKI, that included a fiscal year 1986 authorization level of $65 million and made certain EVJTA Program improvements in order to deal with the weaknesses outlined in the EVJTA Program evaluation. Our amendment and the enacted final legislation also provided for reopening the program for new applications for eligible veterans for a 1-year period beginning February 1, 1986, and extended the ending date of the period for entering training to July 31, 1987.

Last December, in connection with the second continuing resolution for fiscal year 1986, the committee approved and the Senate agreed to an amendment Senator DECONCINI offered—on behalf of himself, Senator MURKOWSKI, and me—providing for the appropriation of $55 million for the program, contingent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation. Regrettably, those funds were deleted in conference with the House.

There is a real and continuing need for the kind of assistance available under the program. Since the program reopened for new applicants on February 1, more than 36,000 veterans have applied and been issued certificates of eligibility and nearly 3,000 have entering into training. Making available the additional funds in this supplemental appropriations package will help ensure that sufficient resources are available to serve the veterans it is designed to assist.

Mr. President, I want to take this opportunity to note that the distinguished Senator from Arizona [Mr. DECONCINI], who serves on both the Veterans' Affairs Committee and the Appropriations Committee, deserves the thanks of all veterans for his successful efforts in persuading the Appropriations Committee to adopt his amendment—by a vote of 15 to 9—which was similar to an amendment in the House-passed version—requiring the transfer of these funds. His efforts were instrumental in ensuring the success of this initiative.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the April 29 letter which I mentioned earlier be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

COMMITTEE ON VETERANS' AFFAIRS,
Washington, DC, April 29, 1986.

Hon. MARK O. HATFIELD,
Chairman,
Hon. JOHN C. STENNIS,
Ranking Minority Member, Committee on Appropriations, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC

DEAR MARK AND JOHN: We are writing to advise you of Senator DeConcini's intention to propose, during the Committee's consideration of H.R. 4515, the proposed "Urgent Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1986", and to urge your support for, a provision transferring $35 million previously appropriated for the Veterans' Administration's minor construction account for FY 1986 from that account to the veterans job training account for the purposes of funding continued operations under the Veterans' Job Training Act (VJTA). This provision would be similar to one included in H.R. 4515 as reported by the House Committee on Appropriations. Copies of the amendment and a CBO estimate that Senator DeConcini's amendment would result in no increase in FY 1986 outlays are enclosed.

As you'll recall, last December, in connection with the second continuing resolution for FY 1986, the Committee approved an amendment Senator DeConcini offered providing for the appropriation of $55 million for the program, contingent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation. Regrettably, those funds were deleted in conference with the House.

The VJTA program—formerly the Emergency Veterans' Job Training Act of 1983—provides cash incentives to employers to hire and train certain long-term unemployed Vietnam-era and Korean-conflict veterans. The program presently has a carryover balance (from the $150 million originally appropriated for the program in the Fall of 1984) of some $17 million which is being used to place eligible veterans.

Nearly 39,000 veterans have entered into training under EVJTA. According to an evaluation of the program—carried out last year under contract with the VA—those who completed the program had an average hourly wage of $6.77; the completion rate for veterans who entered training under the program was estimated to be 44 percent; and the direct cost of training per participant was estimated to be $3,000.

Last year, in connection with the Veterans' Compensation Rate Increase and Job Training Amendments of 1985 (Public Law 99-238), the Congress approved provisions derived from an amendment offered by the Chairman and the Ranking Minority Member of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs that included an FY 1986 authorization level of $55 million and made certain EVJTA program improvements in order to deal with the weaknesses outlined in the EVJTA program evaluation. The legislation also provided for reopening the program for new applications for eligible veterans for a one-year period beginning February 1, 1986, and extended the ending date of the period for entering training to July 31, 1987.

There is a continuing need for the kind of assistance available under the program. Since the program reopened for new applicants on February 1, more than 25,000 have applied and been issued certificates of eligibility. Making available the additional funds in this supplemental appropriations package would ensure that sufficient resources are available to assist the veteran applicants it is designed to help.

We appreciate your past support of EVJTA, and ask for your support of this amendment.

With warm personal regards,
Cordially,

FRANK H. MURKOWSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Veterans' Affairs.
DENNIS DECONCINI,
Member, Committees on Veterans' Affairs and Appropriations.
ALAN CRANSTON,
Ranking Minority Member, Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

JOINT CONGRESSIONAL LEADERSHIP PLAN TO ENHANCE CAPITOL SECURITY

Mr. President, I would like to thank all the conferees on the fiscal year 1986 Urgent Supplemental Appropriations Act (H.R. 4515) for their hard work in resolving the differences between the House and the Senate versions of this legislation. I am particularly pleased that the conference committee has included in the conference report funding for the congressional joint leadership proposal to improve the security of the Capitol and the Senate and House office buildings, and look forward to its enactment.

As my colleagues know, my good friend, the majority whip [Mr. SIMPSON], and I, as the Democratic whip, were asked about a year ago by the majority leader [Mr. DOLE] and the minority leader [Mr. BYRD] to review current security measures around the U.S. Capitol, to consider any need for enhancing Capitol security, and to make appropriate recommendations. At the request to of the joint leadership of the other body, the House whips—TOM FOLEY, for the Democrats, and TRENT LOTT, for the Republicans—joined us in this endeavor. After much consultation, a joint congressional leadership package of four items was included in the Senate-passed version of the urgent supplemental relating to security of the Capitol: $500,000 each to the Senate and House Sergeants at Arms to rectify Capitol Police shortages; $13 millon to the Capitol Police Board to implement an improved U.S. Capitol security plan, subject to approval by the authorizing and appropriations committees; and $250,000 to the Architect of the Capitol for design and cost estimates for a final plan.

The majority whip and I have been in contact with all the Senate conferees to urge that the four items in the Senate-passed leadership package be retained intact. We are delighted that they were, since we are convinced that it is the responsibility of Congress to act to provide necessary protection for the Capitol Building, and especially for the thousands of people who visit and work in the building every day. We firmly believe that the four-part plan we presented would enhance much-needed security while not reducing access to the Capitol Building. Indeed, our proposal would increase that access in certain respects.

Mr. President, under the terms of the language passed by the Senate and approved by the conference committee, the final Capitol security proposal remains to be developed in detail by the Capitol Police Board and will then have to be approved by three House and two Senate committees before any expenditures from the $13 million could be made for implementation. The distinguished Senator from Wyoming [Mr. SIMPSON] and I look forward to working with all five of these committees, especially the two in the Senate—the Committee on Rules and Administration and the Appropriations Committee—as well as the Capitol Police Board—the Senate and House Sergeants at Arms and the Architect of the Capitol—to produce and obtain the requisite approval of the detailed plan.

I also look forward to cooperating with the Senator from New York [Mr. D'AMATO], the chairman of the Appropriations Committee's Legislative Appropriations Subcommittee, who has made a commitment to hold a hearing in the near future in response to concerns about the proposal expressed by that subcommittee's ranking minority member, the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BUMPERS], with whom I also look forward to working closely.

Mr. President, I note that the conferees added a provision to the $13 million appropriation item to require that the transfer of project funds to the Architect of the Capitol to carry out the detailed plan once agreed upon shall be preceded by notice, along with submission of details regarding the scope, cost, and construction schedule of the work to be accomplished under each transfer, to and approval by the House and Senate Appropriations Committees. I fully understand the need for ensuring accountability for the expenditure of these funds but am concerned that this new series of hurdles will operate to create unnecessary delay in moving forward with implementation after approval of the final plan has been approved by the authorizing and appropriations committees.

I very much hope that the Appropriations Committee in each body will act as expeditiously as possible in connection with any such reprogramming requests.

For a detailed description of the congressional joint leadership Capitol-complex security enhancement proposal, I refer my colleagues to the material I inserted into the RECORD on June 5, 1986, beginning on page S6875.

In closing, Mr. President, I want to note how much I have enjoyed working with my counterpart, ALAN SIMPSON, on this project. As always, he is a great ally and friend to have. We also, of course, profited greatly from the work and input of Representatives FOLEY and LOTT, the House whips.

I also thank the Senate Sergeant at Arms, Ernie Garcia, for his great assistance and counsel, and Chief James Carvino, and Capt. Frank Shelton and Sgt. Frank Rader of the Security Planning and Research Unit, of the Capitol Police for their invaluable help. Also, my gratitude to the staff working with Senator SIMPSON and me, Joe Ratliff and Jon Steinberg.

Of course, none of this progress we are making today would have been possible without the full support of our two distinguished leaders, the majority leader [Mr. DOLE] and the Democratric leader [Mr. BYRD]. They gave us the assignment and have supported us throughout our work. We are most grateful. As well, we have had excellent cooperation and support from the chairman of the Appropriations Committee [Mr. HATFIELD] and the ranking minority member [Mr. STENNIS], and we are very appreciative for all of their help, as well as for that of Senators D'AMATO and BUMPERS, and the Appropriations Committee staffs, Keith Kennedy, Frank Sullivan, and Terry Sauvain.

The appropriations contained in the bill are only a first step, but they are the vital first step toward enhancing the security of the Capitol for all of America. We will be continuing our efforts to bring this to fruition, working with so many of our colleagues in the Senate and, of course, in the other body.

THE FHA EXTENSION

Mr. MATHIAS. Mr. President, the Senate's approval of the supplemental appropriations conference report brings us to the threshold of an important achievement—allowing the FHA loan guarantee program to continue in operation through September 30, 1986. Assuming that the President signs the supplemental appropriation bill, the only task that will remain will be to try to explain to the American people why this relatively modest goal has proven to be so difficult for the Congress to achieve.

Six times since the fiscal year began in October 1985, FHA's operations have been interrupted by Congress' inability or unwillingness to provide a full year funding to the agency. These disruptions have caused enormous hardship for more than 100,000 families and individuals attempting to purchase or sell a home.

Approximately 60,000 of those homebuyers are first-time homebuyers with an average income of $37,000. The FHA conventional mortgage insurance program is their only means to afford a starter home, as they do not qualify for private market mortgages which require substantial downpayments and points.

The FHA Commissioner estimates that 5,000 to 6,000 people each day have been unable to close on their loans since FHA reached its credit ceiling on June 18. Tens of thousands of lives have been disrupted. I know—and I think every Senator knows—the human cost of this delay, because we have all heard from the victims of this uncertainty.

My office here in Washington and my State office in Baltimore have received hundreds of telephone calls from distraught young couples whose loan commitments were expiring and who simply could not afford to pay additional points and a higher mortgage interest rate. Additionally, homesellers have been frustrated because their inability to consummate sales, contingent on FHA mortgage insurance, has made it impossible for them to buy new homes.

One young woman called my office in tears last week. She and her husband were supposed to settle that day on the purchase of their first home. The 60-day lock on the interest rate for their mortgage loan also expired that day. All of the paperwork had been completed—the credit checks, the employment verification, the appraisal, the termite inspection, the property survey, the homeowners' insurance—but FHA was unable to issue a loan insurance commitment letter.

This couple not only lost fees they had paid at the beginning of the process; they also lost their mortgage commitment, and with it the home they had worked so long and hard to afford. They were absolutely devastated by the experience.

My staff could offer them little comfort. We could try to explain the procedural problems: arcane rules of the Senate, "holds" placed on the FHA extension legislation by other Senators to accomplish other ends, glitches in the House-passed extender, the bouncing of bills from one House to the other like ping-pong balls. We could conjecture as to when and if the Supplemental Appropriations Conference might be concluded and its report taken up by the Senate and House. We could also conjecture about the housing authorization passed by the House and not yet taken up by the Senate.

None of this was of any comfort to the frustrated people who called my office. They, their lenders, realtors, and a myriad of other actors in the real estate chain had acted in good faith to enter into a contract of sale. And then, out of the blue, the good old reliable FHA—the Federal Government—was failing to deliver on its commitment.

As a result of these stops and starts in FHA insuring authority, the agency has been out of business for 37 days in 9 months of this fiscal year. And untold thousands of housing consumers have been left holding the bag. This is no way to conduct the Government's business. It is unfair and it has cast doubt on the credibility of the FHA and of the Congress. The resulting uncertainty is beginning to shut-out moderate-income homebuyers who depend on FHA-insured loans to get into the housing market. As the executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association said, "We are in the midst of a housing boom and the Government has gone out of the housing business."

Mr. President, the patchwork way in which this Congress has gone about continuing this program, which, since 1934, has aided moderate-income Americans to become homeowners, is a disgrace. And we have no one to blame but ourselves. We have not conducted the people's business in a timely and reliable way. The Congress inability to make decisions has generated needless frustration, heartache, and anger for thousands of American families.

Unfortunately, the problems encountered in reauthorizing FHA are not unique. The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law was held out as a sure-fire means to guarantee that the Congress made budget decisions by certain deadlines. It was intended to improve the predictability of Government actions so that others—those in the private sector—might plan their lives and business activities accordingly. So far, not one of the deadlines imposed by Gramm-Rudman-Hollings has been met by this Congress.

There seems to be a growing institutional problem with the Congress in anticipating problems, evaluating alternative courses of action, deciding on a course, and acting on it in a timely manner. Much of the security of our Nation—economic, social, military, and emotional—rests on the reliability and predictability of the institutions of our Government to be there and deliver on their promises. The Congress is one of the branches of government which must adjust the way it conducts its business in order to meet the needs of the times.

I hope the President will sign the supplemental appropriations bill and put FHA back in business for the next 3 months at least. Even so, it is important that the Senate make a commitment to take up the housing authorization bill as the first order of business after the Fourth of July recess, and to make a timely reauthorization of FHA a priority item for the 99th Congress. We owe it to the thousands of home buyers and sellers of this Nation to make such a commitment and to deliver on it.

Mr. BUMPERS. Mr. President, I am pleased to note that the conferees on H.R. 4515, the fiscal year 1986 urgent supplemental appropriations bill, agreed to retain language in the Senate-passed bill restricting U.S. foreign assistance from bolstering the agricultural export capacity of countries with whom we compete in the world agricultural market. This is an important provision of vital concern to our Nation's farmers, and I have outlined my arguments in favor of this provision in a detailed statement during original Senate consideration of this legislation. I offered this language—section 209 of the final bill—as an amendment to the bill in the Senate Appropriations Committee, and I am gratified that the full Senate and the conference agreed that the amendment is a good one and that it should remain in the bill. Not one word of the statutory language of this amendment was changed by the Senate or conferees. I hope that the Senate will lend its approval to the conference report.

I am concerned, however, that the report language in the joint explanatory statement of the committee of conference describing section 209 does not accurately interpret the intent of the bill language. I would like the legislative history of this provision to be crystal clear with regard to the precise language of the provision and my intent in offering it. The amendment states that:

> None of the funds appropriated by this or any other act to carry out chapter 1 of part 1 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 shall be available for any testing or breeding feasibility study, variety improvement or introduction, consultancy, publication, conference, or training in connection with the growth or production in a foreign country of an agricultural commodity for export which would compete with a similar commodity grown or produced in the United States: Provided, That this section shall not prohibit (1) activities designed to increase food security in developing countries where such activities will not have a significant impact on the export of agricultural commodities of the United States; or (2) research activities intended primarily to benefit American producers.

The provision restricts research done "in connection with" the growth of an agricultural crop for export in a foreign country. This phrase clearly prohibits research that is related to the production of a crop for export in a foreign country with whom we compete in agricultural markets. It was my full intent in offering this provision to the bill that all research which will enhance our export competitor's ability to compete—not just research designed to enhance our competitor's export capacity—should be prohibited.

This is where the conference explanatory language is incongruous with the language in section 209 of the bill as reported by the conference committee. The report states that the conferees agree that this language is only intended to apply to "projects or activities that are specifically and principally designed to increase agricultural exports * * * that can reasonably be expected to cause substantial injury to U.S. exporters." The bill language I offered in committee, which, as I mentioned, was accepted by the Senate Appropriations Committee, the full Senate, and the conference without change, is not so limited. The language applies to testing, grants, and so forth, "in connection with" the growth or production of foreign export commodities which compete with U.S. export commodities. I chose the phrase "in connection with" in order to give the limitation on assistance a broad effect. No particular intent or design on the part of the grantors in making a grant is articulated by the statutory language. If a grant is simply made in connection with a foreign competing export, it is prohibited. The bill language does not require that projects by "designed" to increase foreign exports, and the statutory language itself belies such an interpretation.

Further, contrary to the explanatory statement, for section 209 to apply the foreign export need not "reasonably be expected to cause substantial injury to U.S. exporters." Under the rather precise language of the section, if the foreign export "would compete" with U.S. exports, foreign assistance activities "in connection with" the growth or production of such foreign export are banned regardless of the degree of injury expected to be suffered by U.S. exporters. In effect, injury to U.S. exports is presumed by the statutory language.

There are two exceptions. The first is assistance activities "designed to increase food security in developing countries where such activities will not have a significant impact on" U.S. agricultural exports. In other words, if activities are in connection with foreign exports which would compete with U.S. exports, they are prohibited, unless such activities are designed to increase food security in a developing country, that is, to help a poor country feed its own people, and won't have a significant impact on U.S. exports. The second exception applies when the research is intended primarily to benefit U.S. producers.

The point is that there are several projects which have been funded by AID which have had the effect of promoting an agricultural export crop in a competing country. I pointed to several of these in my floor statement when this bill first came to the floor for Senate consideration. These are the types of research prohibited by section 209 of this bill, not just those specifically designed to promote a foreign country's export capacity.

Again, the statutory language is clear, and the explanatory statement is irreconcilable with the statutory language it purports to interpret. I would expect a court interpreting section 209 to give such dramatically inconsistent explanatory language little weight.

One further clarifying comment is appropriate. Section 209 enumerates several types of research or similar projects which should be particularly restricted. To those familiar with the broad range of research projects that have been implemented by Agency for International Development [AID] in the past, one would notice that research or development of ways to utilize agricultural commodities is not included. This omission was fully intentional on my part.

Utilization research commissioned by the U.S. Agency for International Development may help the export capacity of a foreign agricultural competitor. However, utilization research will likely provide a disproportionate benefit to U.S. farmers. For example, if U.S. AID wants to conduct research on expanding the possible uses of soybeans, they should. Such research may increase global demand for soybeans and lower the present surplus of this crop both here and on the international market. For reasons such as these, I have enumerated in the language of the amendment the certain types of research that should be restricted if they lead to increased agricultural export production in a competing country.

Again, Mr. President, let me state that I am pleased that the amendment was agreed to by the full Senate and the conference committee. But I wanted to set the record straight on the appropriate interpretation of section 209 of the bill. One need look no further than the rather clear statutory language of the section.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, chapter III of the urgent supplemental appropriations bill and conference report contains a recommendation for appropriations totaling $622,286,000 related exclusively to the Department of Defense Space Recovery Program and support. The entire amount recommended is covered through funds previously appropriated. These funds are urgently required to provide assured access to space to address national security needs in light of the shuttle disaster and recent missile failures. In compliance with the provisions of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings and the Senate's desire for a spending neutral supplemental appropriations bill, these additional funds are recommended from within appropriations made available in the past. It should be noted that the Congressional Budget Office has determined that the scoring for this proposal will yield a savings of approximately $160 million in this fiscal year. This is because the Appropriations Committee recommends funding be transferred from programs which have higher spending rates in order to offset the cost for the DOD Space Recovery Program.

Program financing is recommended from two areas—$561.9 million is to be derived from funds previously set aside from military personnel pay and retirement costs. We expect these amounts will no longer be necessary in light of expected enactment of military retirement reform legislation. These funds will be used for an expanded program for launch vehicles to carry defense payloads. In addition, $100.4 million is derived from funds appropriated last year for a tanker aircraft conversion program. The urgency to proceed with an expanded complementary expendable launch vehicle [CELV] program should be considered a higher priority requirement than the aircraft conversion program.

The conferees recommendation to address the assured access to space deficiency is derived from a proposal the administration is considering. While the President is still examining overall requirements for recovery of space launch capability in the aftermath of Challenger and Titan missile accidents, the administration is prepared to support this proposal to secure access to space. At this point I would like to insert in the RECORD a letter from the Director of the Office of Management and Budget which supports the action of the Senate Appropriations Committee to move along with the recommendation for additional funding in this fiscal year. In noting the OMB support for recommended transfers, I would also like to reiterate that the selection of these transfers of funds will yield an outlay savings of $160 million.

Recommended funding for the Space Recovery Program is the primary aspect of the defense section of this urgent supplemental bill. In addition there are administrative provisions recommended by the Senate and agreed to in conference. There is also a revision of a House recommended provision for the Senate's consideration. In particular, the House included a provision requiring issuance of grants for research activities and construction of facilities at two universities, Northeastern University and Rochester Institute of Technology. The conference recommendation would extend application of this provision to all projects previously directed by Congress, including these universities. Last year, Congress appropriated $55.6 million for nine separate university and research center projects. The recommended amendment would make funds available as grants in accordance with previous congressional instruction. While we must be mindful of the problems of earmarking funds, for the near-term it is important to clean up the detail on congressional direction from last year.

The conference report also reflects agreement on the matter of unauthorized defense appropriation for fiscal year 1986. Chapter IIIA of the bill embodies the substance of the agreement between the authorizing committees and Appropriations Committees. Although the conference agreement does not settle the question of defining the parameters of authorization required, it does reflect an amicable solution to the immediate concerns. The highlight of chapter IIIA is the agreement to authorize and make appropriated funds available for the Department of Defense Space Recovery Program. Of particular note, the conference report on H.R. 4220, the retirement reform legislation, will also include the appropriate authorizing bill language for fiscal year 1986 defense appropriations. In substance, this conference report is intended to complement the action taken on the urgent supplemental appropriations bill.

While it is not the intention of the Appropriation Committee to force similar discrepancies with the authorizing committees in the future, I am concerned that the budetary process for fiscal year 1987 may be laying the groundwork for a repetition of this debate. Both the House and Senate versions of the budget resolution contain unrealistic outlay targets relative to budget authority targets.

Last week the Senate Armed Services Committee concluded its markup of the fiscal year 1987 defense authorization bill. While the reported bill seeks to comply with the budget authority limitations set in the Senate budget resolution, the Armed Services Committee's action exceed the resolution outlay targets by several billion dollars. The Appropriations Committee will not be afforded the opportunity to enroll a bill similar to the authorizing committee's recommendations due to the requirements of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings that the appropriations bill must comply with the outlay allocations derived from the budget resolution. When the authorization bill comes to the Senate floor we should be mindful of this potential discrepancy.

In summary, there are no new appropriations recommended in the defense chapter of the bill. In an effort to achieve a spending neutral program, all funds recommended are to be derived from funds previously appropriated which was accomplished by transfer. I trust the Senate will support the conference recommendations.

Mr. MATHIAS. Mr. President, as we debate the conference report to accompany H.R. 4515, I would like to commend the distinguished Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] for his leadership in finding a just solution to a matter which began several months ago with a hunger strike by the leader of the "Community for Creative Non-Violence," Mitch Snyder. This solution, which would transfer title of the building at the corner of Second and D Streets in northwest Washington, DC, to the District for the purpose of providing a shelter for the homeless, is included as a provision in this bill and upon its passage, money intended to assist in the renovation of this property will be released to the District.

I first became involved in this issue in mid-March when I was contacted by representatives of the White House for my advice, as chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on the District of Columbia, on the best method to address the demands of the Community for Creative Non-Violence for a model shelter in the District. My impressions from the beginning have been that the President was interested in finding an appropriate and just solution to an ongoing problem. I believe that this remained his goal throughout the several months it has taken us to reach this point.

In order to more fully acquaint Senators with the work that has taken place on this matter, I have prepared a chronology of events since I first became involved. I ask that this chronology be placed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks, so that it will be available for all to review.

The compromise which is included in the appropriations bill now before us is, in fact, the kind of just and appropriate response that the White House was trying to reach. I commend Mr. HATFIELD the able chairman of the Appropriations Committee for his work on this matter and I urge my colleagues to join me in support of the compromise.

CHRONOLOGY OF EVENTS—SHELTER TRANSFER

MARCH 13

Call to Senator Mathias in Oslo, Norway where he is presiding at a NATO meeting from Dennis Thomas asking for advice/help in solving requests for model shelter in DC and ending Mitch Snyder's hunger strike.

MARCH 14

White House meets with Tom Downs, City Administrator. They discuss a solution in which the WH will see that the City gets clear title to the 2nd and D street shelter, plus a sum of money to renovate. Downs makes clear that CCNV provides a very valuable service to the City, which they expect to continue. The City is also clear that it won't take the responsibility for the shelter (and the CCNV) without a full transfer of title. Downs agrees to take the deal back to see if it will get Mitch Snyder off the hunger strike.

MARCH 15-16

Negotiations continue. Finally, Sunday morning, an agreement is reached whereby the federal government will transfer the building to the City, and $5 million (towards the $7.5 million CCNV claims is necessary) for renovations.

MARCH 27

Senators Mathias and Eagleton introduce S. 2251, a one line bill, drafted with the help of GSA, which simply transfers title of the building to the City. GSA/WH inform the Senators that once the bill transferring title has passed, $5 million that has been identified for reprogramming within HHS budget will be turned over to the District.

APRIL 17

S. 2251 is discharged from the Governmental Affairs Committee and passed unanimously by the Senate. It is referred to the House Government Operations Committee in the House.

APRIL 15-EARLY MAY

A series of correspondence between various House members and GSA takes place. The House members question the wisdom of the agreement, and offer a number of ways that a transfer of the building (although not title) can occur without creating a precedent like S. 2251. GSA rejects these arguments.

MAY 8

Rep. Cardiss Collins introduces HR 4784 which would transfer jurisdiction of the property to the District pursuant to a special section of federal law relative to property transfers in the District of Columbia. 40 USC 122. The bill is referred to House Gov Ops.

MAY 14

Senator Hatfield offers an amendment to the Urgent Supplemental Appropriations bill for FY86 which is the substance of S. 2251. The bill also includes a $5 million appropriation for renovation.

MAY 15

House Gov Ops subcommittee holds hearings on HR 4784. GSA and City both testify, indicating solid support for the deal. Markup follows hearing.

MAY 22

Full Committee marks up HR 4784. Bill ordered reported that would transfer jurisdiction of the building "for providing shelter and related services to the homeless" pursuant to 40 USC 122. The bill will not transfer title and will not allow the District to sell the building if it so chooses.

JUNE 1

Snyder starts back on his hunger strike because no money for renovations have been forthcoming. The WH reiterates its position that they will not transfer any money until the building is in the hands of the City and the City will not accept any money until the building is transferred.

JUNE 3

The Senate adopts a sense of the Senate amendment that the WH should release the money.

JUNE 4

Mathias staff meets with staff of House Gov Ops to talk strategy. House staff insists on not transferring the building free and clear. Mathias staff stresses the agreement that title must pass or else money will not be turned over.

JUNE 5

House passes HR 4784, by vote of 242-116. Several debilitating amendments are just barely defeated. House substitutes its language onto S. 2251 and returns the bill to the Senate.

JUNE 6

The WH, at the urging of Senator Hatfield, releases nearly $1 million for renovations. Snyder estimates that this will take the project through July 1.

JUNE 9

S. 2251 is received in Senate and held at the desk.

WEEK OF JUNE 9

Mathias staff attempts to determine if House is adamantly opposed to any transfer of title (even with a reverter clause should use be determined to be improper). Finally, answer is that title transfer might be considered pursuant to something like 20 USC 484(k),which would provide that the building be used for certain specific purposes with a reverter if those purposes are violated. Hatfield can't agree to this because he is committed to full title transfer and cannot accept the reverter.

JUNE 16

Staffs of Mathias, Hatfield, Weicker, House Gov Ops meet to attempt to negotiate tentative agreement. Strong positions of House and Hatfield are maintained.

JUNE 17

Hatfield, Brooks and McCandless meet to discuss issue. Impass it reached once again.

JUNE 18

Hatfield offers solution which would transfer title to the building; however, rather than reverter, proposal would provide for a restriction on the sale of the building for ten years, during which time a defined portion of the proceeds of such sale would have to be paid to the federal government. In return, Hatfield adds an additional $1.5 million for renovations to the pot. This is adopted by the conference committee on the supplemental.

AMENDMENT 186 OF THE SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL

● Mr. STAFFORD. Amendment 186 of the fiscal year 1986 supplemental appropriations bill provides that if by July 15, 1986, the Secretary of Transportation has not entered into a full funding agreement with officials of Dade County, FL, for the construction of a Metromover project in Miami, a memorandum of understanding submitted by Dade County "shall be deemed approved by the Secretary and shall be binding on the Department of Transportation." This is to be done even if certain provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act [NEPA] have not been fully met.

The statement of managers explains that the NEPA exemption was agreed to because of the conferees' belief that approval of the memorandum of understanding does not constitute a major Federal action. Surely, execution of a full funding contract for the Dade County project would represent a major Federal action.

Thus, I would like to clarify with the chairman and ranking member of the Subcommittee on Transportation and Related Agencies, Senator ANDREWS and Senator CHILES, a very important question: Is it your understanding that the language contained in Amendment 186 is not waiver of the NEPA process for this project and that Dade County will be required to complete all applicable provisions of NEPA before any construction funds are obligated?

● Mr. ANDREWS. Yes, my distinguished colleague is correct. The conferees stated in the conference report that this language provides that all NEPA requirements do not have to be completed to execute a memorandum of understanding for this project. However, all applicable NEPA requirements must be complied with before a full funding contract can be executed for the project.

● Mr. CHILES. I agree with what both of my distinguished colleagues have said. The Urban Mass Transit Administration and Dade County are now doing an environmental impact statement on this project on an accelerated schedule.

● Mr. STAFFORD. I thank my distinguished colleagues. I believe that the NEPA process is absolutely essential to assuring responsible, sound and successful transportation projects. I view NEPA as the foundation upon which all other Federal environmental laws are built upon for public works projects. For this reason, I will strongly oppose any waiver from NEPA. Do my distinguished colleagues agree that NEPA prohibits the construction of a project before a record of decision on the environmental analysis is issued by the Secretary of Transportation, and that nothing in the language of the supplemental appropriations bill changes that requirement?

● Mr. CHAFEE. I want to associate myself with what the distinguished chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, which has jurisdiction over NEPA, has said. I am very concerned about an exemption from NEPA for public works projects and I also want assurance from my distinguished colleagues that this project is not beng exempted from the NEPA process.

● Mr. ANDREWS. I agree with the Senators and know how strongly they support the NEPA process. This provision will not waive the NEPA requirements for a full funding contract. I agree that Dade County should move expeditiously to complete the environmental review before any funds can be obligated for construction of this project.

● Mr. CHILES. I also agree with my distinguished colleagues, and will do all I can to encourage Dade County to complete their environmental review as quickly as possible.

PORT OF MIAMI

● Mr. CHILES. One item in the supplemental is $30,831,000 for the U.S. Customs Service to fund an additional 777 customs inspectors. This is the dollar amount and the associated positions that were eliminated by the Gramm-Rudman sequester. It was the judgment of both bodies that to not restore these positions would adversely impact the Service's ability to continue its drug interdiction programs and would negatively impact the Service's ability to process and collect duties. I am pleased that this funding has been restored. I believe it is critical to the Customs Service and I urge the Customs Service to fill these positions as soon as possible.

As Senator DECONCINI and Senator ABDNOR, the chairman of this subcommittee know, the committee has provided guidance in the past to the Customs Service to address a critical problem at the Port of Miami by hiring at least an additional eight inspectors in the Port of Miami.

The Port of Miami is the largest cruiseship port in the world, processing, almost 2½ million passengers a year. On a typical weekend, the port processes between 14,000 to 16,000 passengers. All of these people have flight connections to make at the Miami International Airport. It is critical to make these flight connections and to clear the passengers on time.

The Customs Service, in order to clear the cruise ship passengers, pulls 15 to 16 inspectors out of cargo work at the port to work passengers. When the passengers are cleared, the Customs Service inspectors return to their cargo clearance work.

The practice results in large backlogs of cargo—often a 4- to 5-day backlog representing $5 to $6 million of merchandise. This backlog and the general and growing knowledge that it exists is placing the Port of Miami at a competitive disadvantage with other gulf and east coast ports. For those who must use the Port of Miami, it is a real commercial disadvantage, often with refrigerated items resulting in commercial loss.

I have written Regional Administrator Ed Kwas in Miami and he has complained about the lack of resources and other high priority efforts that have not permitted him to put additional inspectors at the port.

Would Senator ABDNOR, the chairman of the Treasury, Postal Service Subcommittee, yield for a question.

Senator ABDNOR. Yes I would be pleased to answer a question.

● Mr. CHILES. Now that we have provided an additional $30.8 million for customs inspectors, would Senator ABDNOR, the chairman of the subcommittee, join with me in directing the Customs Service to place at least eight more inspectors at the Port of Miami.

● Mr. ABDNOR. The Senator from Florida has talked with me about this matter and I concur that there is a need for these positions at the Port of Miami. I would certainly advise the Customs Service to give this matter high priority. I understand that Senator DECONCINI, the ranking member of the Treasury, Postal Service Subcommittee concurs.

● Mr. DECONCINI. I do concur and I would join with my colleagues in directing that at least eight more inspectors be assigned to the Port of Miami.●

Mr. MCCLURE. Mr. President, I wish to make one comment on the passage of H.R. 4515, the urgent supplemental appropriations bill. There is a large and important industry in Idaho which will benefit from the passage of this conference report. That industry is the beef cattle industry. Normally this industry does not benefit directly from Government farm subsidies. More often they are hurt by Government farm porgrams. This recently happended with the imposition of the Dairy Termination Program, which caused a dramatic decline in the cattle prices.

Passage of this supplemental is important to the cattle industry because Commodity Credit Corporation funds, which will be made available by passage of this bill, will go to buy red meat, namely beef, to help offset the oversupply of beef brought on by the Dairy Termination Program. Up to now the Red Meat Purchase Program has been up to date and partly effective. But the most important purchase is now pending, that being the purchase by the Government of Brazil of 198 million pounds of American beef. This purchase would fulfill nearly one-half of obligated CCC purchases under the Red Meat Purchase Program. The Brazil sale is a Government-to-Government sale. If our Government cannot purchase the meat for sale, the Brazilian Government will cancel the purchase. Therefore, it is critical that this supplemental appropriation be made available as soon as possible.

The beef cattle market is making great strides in regaining the price that prevailed prior to the initiation of the Dairy Termination Program. The cattle producers believe that if the Brazil sale falls through because of lack of funds, another crash in cattle prices can be expected. I, for one, do not want this to happen. I urge acceptance of this conference report and fast passage into law.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, if there is no further debate I urge adoption of the conference report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate?

Mr. HATFIELD. I move the adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there be no further debate, the question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House to the amendments of the Senate reported in disagreement with the exception of amendments numbered 23, 91, 93, and 175 and that no amendments be in order to amendment 93.

Mr. President, let me identify these exceptions so Senators will have a clear understanding of what we are excepting.

Amendment No. 23 is the prepayment for the FFB loans guaranteed by the REA.

Amendment No. 91 is the DOD university funding.

No. 93, the aid to Ireland, would be the one that would have no amendments in order.

No. 175 is the Department of Labor job care center provision which Senator JOHNSTON will offer a second-degree amendment to relating to trade adjustment assistance material.

Mr. President, that is the unanimous-consent agreement which I might comment has been cleared on both sides of the aisle and I would ask its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 10 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

During fiscal year 1986, and within the resources and authority available, obligations for direct loans and related advances pursuant to section 504 of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, shall not exceed $11,335,000.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 11 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SELF-HELP HOUSING LAND DEVELOPMENT FUND

For loans for acquisition and development of building sites for mutual and self-help housing, $1,000,000.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 15 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

Strike out the matter stricken by said amendment, and inset:

FEEDING PRORAM FOR WOMEN, INFANTS AND CHILDREN (WIC)

For an additional amount, for the special supplemental food program as authorized by section 17 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1786), $20,000,000, to be distributed to the States under the existing fisical year 1986 growth formula.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 18 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION

REIMBURSEMENT FOR NET REALIZED LOSSES

For the operations of the Commodity Credit Corporation, not to exceed $5,,300,000,000 for capital restoration, to enable the Corporation to use the authority authorized by the Charter of the Corporation and other laws to carry out programs handled by the Corporation.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 20 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

Strike out the matter stricken by said amendment, and insert:

COOPERATIVE STATE RESEARCH SERVICE

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

The Secretary of Agriculture shall transfer $5,000,000 from the Commodity Credit Corporation to the Cooperative State Research Service to meet the matching funds requirement for development of an international trade center at Oklahoma State University.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 22 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

DEFICIENCY PAYMENTS

(a) Effective only for the 1986 crop of wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, and rice, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Agriculture shall make deficiency payments to producers on a farm under section 107D(c)(1), 105C(c)(1), 103A(c)(1), or 101A(c)(1) of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1445b-3(c)(1), 1444e(c)(1), 1444-1(c)(1), or 1441/1(c)(1)), as the case may be, if the Secretary determines that—

(1) the producers on a farm are prevented from planting any portion of the acreage intended for a commodity to the commodity or other nonconserving crops because of floor, heavy rains, excessive moisture, or drought; and

(2) the farm is located in an area that the Secretary determines has been substantially affected by a natural disaster in the United States or by a major disaster of emergency designated by the President under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.).

(b) The amount of deficiency payments under subsection (a) shall be computed by multiplying—

(1) 40 percent of the projected payment rate; by

(2) the number of acres so affected but not to exceed the acreage planted to the community for harvest (including any acreage that the producers were prevented from planting to the commodity or other nonconserving crops in lieu of the commodity because of flood, heavy rains, excessive moisture, or drought) in the immediately preceding year; by

(3) the farm program payment yield established for the crop for the farm.

(c) Such sums shall be deducted from cropinsurance indemnity payments due as a result of such disaster.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 25 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

ELDERLY FEEDING PROGRAM

For an additional amount for reimbursement at a level of 56.76 cents per meal during fiscal years 1985 and 1986, determined under section 311(a)(4) of the Older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3030a(a)(4)), for meals served under section 311 of such Act in such fiscal years, $8,50,000, to remain available until expended.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 28 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: Upon the request of the Pike Place Market Preservation and Development Authority, Seattle, Washington, the Secretary of Commerce shall authorize the sale or lease to any person of the Fairley Group Building (project numbers 07-01-01890, as modified by 07-01-01890.01 and 07-11-02606) located in the Pike Place Market, King County, Washington, without affecting the Federal assistance provided under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, if the transfer documents provided for the continued use of the Fairley Group Building as a pulbic market during the expected useful life of the building: Provided, That the provisions of 13 CFR 314.4 and OMB Circular A-102 Attachment N are hereby waived so long as the Fairley Group Building remains in the control of the public authority and is used as a public market during the expected useful life of the building.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 40 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

Of the funds appropriated to the Department of Justice in Public Law 99-180, not to exceed $150,000 from "Fees and Expenses of Witnesses", not to exceed $150,000 from "Salaries and Expenses, antitrust Division", not to exceed $100,000 from Emergency Assistance in "Office of Justice Programs, Justice Assistance", and not to exceed $100,000 from the Public Safety Officers' Benefits Program in "Office of Justice Programs, Justice Assistance", may be transferred to "Salaries and Expenses, General Legal Activities" to pay expenses related to the activities of any Independent Counsel appointed pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 591, et seq.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 42 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

NATIONAL ASSISTANCE PLAN TO HALT ROCK AND CRACK COCAINE TRAFFICKING

The Attorney General as Chairman of the National Drug Enforcement Policy Board is directed to convene the Board to address on an emergency basis the crisis phenomenon that cocaine freebase, "rock" and "crack" cocaine, have caused in communities throughout the nation.

Within 60 days of enactment, the Board is directed to report to the Congress and to develop and implement a national plan of assistance to state and local governments to halt trafficking in rock and crack cocaine; to promote effective law enforcement efforts to identify, investigate, prosecute and incarerate perpetrators engaged in enterprises involving rock and crack cocaine; and, to foster public understanding of the dangerous effect of this substance on public health and safety.

This plan of assistance shall concentrate on methods of using existing laws in such areas as conspiracy, aiding and abetting, forfeiture, possession and trafficking to address this drug with its special potency and distribution characteristics, including the use of rock or freebase houses where the cocaine freebase is processed, distributed, and smoked. The Board's plan should also address those areas where existing law should be amended to strengthen enforcement and prosecution against rock and crack cocaine.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 44 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: $283,104,000, to remain available until expended.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 45 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: Provided, That $222,104,000 of this amount shall become available for obligation on September 30, 1986.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 50 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

Strike out the matter stricken by said amendment, and insert:

GENERAL PROVISION—DIPLOMATIC SECURITY PROGRAM

The funds made available by this chapter to the Department of State under the headings "Salaries and Expenses", "Acquisition and Maintenance of Buildings Abroad", and "Counterterrorism Research and Development" shall not be used for any purpose inconsistent with or contrary to authorizing legislation for the Diplomatic Security Program as enacted into law.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 54 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

Of the funds made available in title IV of Public Law 99-180, not to exceed $8,000,000 from "Expenses of Operation and Maintenance of the Courts" may be transferred to "Salaries of Supporting Personnel" and not to exceed $500,000 from "Expenses of Operation and Maintenance of the Courts" and not to exceed $2,500,000 from "Salaries of Judges" may be transferred to "Space and Facilities".

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 59 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

Section 18006(b) of the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 is amended by striking out "declared before October 1, 1985" and inserting in lieu thereof "which occurred prior to October 1, 1985, and with respect to which a disaster declaration application was submitted prior to October 1, 1985".

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 77 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SEC. 1. Section 8051 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986, Public Law 99-190, 99 Stat. 1211, is amended by striking out "Army, Navy, and Air Force" and by striking out the proviso and inserting in lieu thereof: "Provided, That such transfers shall not exceed $678,700,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Army; $1,301,600,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Navy; $30,100,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps; $608,700,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Air Force; $24,300,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Defense Agencies; $19,300,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Army Reserve; $47,600,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Navy Reserve; $4,200,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps Reserve; $14,400,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Air Force Reserve; $42,100,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Army National Guard; and $35,400,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Air National Guard".

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 78 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of "SEC. 3." named in said amendment, insert: SEC. 2.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 79 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SEC. 3. Section 8103 of the fiscal year 1986 Department of Defense Appropriations Act, Public Law 99-190, is amended as follows: in subsection (b) insert "the Department of Defense Space Recovery Program, the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services," directly following "and the Coastal Defense Augmentation account,"; and insert a new provision at the end of subsection (b) before the period, as follows: ": Provided further, That $260,000,000 for the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services shall be available without notification procedures otherwise required by this subsection".

Resolved, that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 80 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SEC. 4. Of the amounts available to the Department of Defense, not to exceed $5,000,000 shall be available for such claims arising from property losses caused by the explosion of Army munitions near Checotah, Oklahoma, on August 4, 1985, and claims determined by the Department to be bona fide shall be paid from the funds made available by this section.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 81 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of "SEC. 6." named in said amendment, insert: SEC. 5.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 84 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

CHAPTER III A

AUTHORIZATION OF CERTAIN UNAUTHORIZED APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 1. AUTHORIZATION OF CERTAIN UNAUTHORIZED FISCAL YEAR 1986 APPROPRIATIONS.

Notwithstanding section 8109 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986 (Public Law 99-190) and except as otherwise provided in this chapter, funds appropriated or otherwise made available to or for the use of the Department of Defense by the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986 (as contained in section 101(b) of Public Law 99-190), and which were not otherwise authorized by law, are authorized to be obligated and expended as provided in such Act.

SEC. 2. UNAUTHORIZED APPROPRATIONS.

The following programs and amounts provided in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986 (Public Law 99-190) are not authorized to be obligated or expended: Research and Development: Air Force Space Defense System, $15,066,000. Air Force MEECN communications upgrade, $15,000,000. Operation and Maintenance: Audit/inventory report reductions not taken in the appropriations act, $29,000,000.

SEC. 3. PROHIBITION AND LIMITATION ON OBLIGATION OF FUNDS FOR CERTAIN PURPOSES.

MARINER FUND.—Of the funds appropriated or made available by the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986, none shall be available for construction of commercial type vessels, with or without military specifications, for lease to private shipping concerns under the Mariner Fund or any other program.

SEC. 4. AUTHORIZATION FOR OBLIGATION OF CERTAIN UNOBLIGATED FUNDS.

Of the funds appropriated by the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986 (as contained in section 101(b) of Public Law 99-190), but which may not be obligated or expended for the purposes for which appropriated by virtue of section 3 of this chapter, and of the funds made available for obligation and expenditure from prior year unobligated balances by section 8103 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986, the following amounts are authorized to be obligatd and expended for the stated purposes and are subject to the same notification procedures set forth in section 8103 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986, except for the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services:

(1) for military pay, $1,599,400,000;

(2) for military retirement accrual payments, $2,156,000,000;

(3) for Coastal Defense Augmentation, $140,000,000;

(4) for the Department of Defense Space Recovery Program, $1,498,686,000;

(5) for the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services, $260,000,000; and

(6) Any amounts remaining available from such funds are authorized to be obligated and expended and are available for readiness and for other purposes, including funds authorized for obligation and expenditure for purposes listed in clauses (1), (2), (3), (4), and (5) not otherwise required for such purposes.

SEC. 5. REVISION OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS OF PUBLIC LAW 99-190.

(a) Aircraft Competition.—The paragraph under the heading "Aircraft Procurement, Air Force" in title III of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986 (as contained in section 101(b) of Public Law 99-190), is amended by striking out ", of which $200,000,000 shall be available only to initiate the air defense aircraft competition authorized by law" in the matter preceding the first proviso;

(b) Revision of Drug Interdiction Funds.—Of funds made available in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986, Public Law 99-190, $35,000,000 made available for purchase of one AC-130H aircraft and $3,000,000 made available for P-3 aircraft modifications shall be available only for the following purposes:

(1) for HC-130 tanker, $18,500,000;

(2) for Aerostat radar, $12,000,000; and

(3) for APS-138 radar system, $7,500,000;

(c) 120mm MORTAR.—Of the funds appropriated in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986, for procurement of the 120mm mortar, obligations and expenditures may be incurred only in accordance with the requirements set forth in House Report 99-235 and Section 8095 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986 (as contained in section 101(b) of Public Law 99-190); and

(d) M72E4 LIGHTWEIGHT MULTIPURPOSE WEAPON.—From the funds appropriated in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1986, the Army shall complete development and operational testing of the M72E4, type classify the weapon, and acquire a technical data package.

SEC. 6. TEMPORARY WAIVER ON POLYGRAPH EXAMINATION LIMITATIONS.

In computing the number of counterintelligence polygraph examinations that may be conducted during fiscal year 1986 under section 1221 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986 (Public Law 99-145; 99 Stat. 726), there may be excluded from such computation any polygraph examination conducted during the period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act and ending on September 30, 1986, if such examination—

(1) is conducted by the Air Force under an authorization granted by the Secretary of Defense on November 24, 1981; or

(2) is conducted under an authorization granted by the Secretary of Defense on August 31, 1982, and is conducted on a person who is participating in a national program—

(A) which has as its purpose the collection of specialized intelligence through reconnaissance;

(B) which is under the purview of the Director of Central Intelligence; and

(C) for which a polygraph examination was established on or before October 1, 1985, as a condition for participation in such program.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 87 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

For an additional amount, for "Flood Control and Coastal Emergencies", as authorized by section 5 of the Flood Control Act approved August 18, 1941, as amended, $25,000,000, to remain available until expended.

Using available funds authorized by section 5 of the Flood Control Act approved August 18, 1941, as amended, the Secretary of the Army shall, in consultation with State officials of the Great Lakes region, develop emergency contingency plans to prevent or control near term flooding along the Great Lakes. The Secretary shall report to Congress within sixty days after the date of enactment of this Act on the contingency plans. The Secretary is authorized to spend up to $1,000,000 for the purposes of this provision.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 95 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: in title II of the Foreign Assistance and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1986 (as enacted in Public Law 99-190), subject to the notification process of the Committees on Appropriations

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 96 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: , or the equivalent amount in local currencies, may

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 97 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

Notwithstanding any limitations on assistance to Haiti contained in Public Law 98-473 or Public Law 99-83, funds in the amount of $750,000 previously appropriated for the purposes of chapter 2 of part II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, may be made available for Haiti to carry out such purposes: Provided, That none of the funds made available pursuant to this paragraph may be made available for obligation unless the Appropriations Committees of both Houses of Congress are previously notified fifteen days in advance: Provided further, That the funds provided under this paragraph shall be made available only to provide nonlethal military assistance for Haiti.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 98 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SPECIAL ASSISTANCE TO THE PHILIPPINES

ECONOMIC SUPPORT FUND

For an additional amount for the "Economic Support Fund", $100,000,000, to remain available until March 31, 1987: Provided, That this amount shall be available only for the Philippines: Provided further, That none of these funds may be available for obligation unless the Appropriations Committees of both Houses of Congress are previously notified fifteen days in advance.

MILITARY ASSISTANCE

For an additional amount for "Military Assistance", $50,000,000, to remain available until March 31, 1987: Provided, That this amount shall be available only for the Philippines: Provided further, That none of these funds may be available for obligation unless the Appropriations Committees of both House of Congress are previously notified fifteen days in advance.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 101 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

HOUSING PROGRAMS

ANNUAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR ASSISTED HOUSING

(RESCISSIONS)

Of the amounts of budget authority that become available during fiscal year 1986 as a result of the forgiving, pursuant to section 4(c)(1) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, of any loan made pursuant to section 4(a) of such Act, not less than $5,250,000,000 of budget authority (and such amounts of contract authority as correspond to the amounts of budget authority) are rescinded.

Of the amounts of budget authority that become available during fiscal year 1987 as a result of the forgiving, pursuant to section 4(c)(1) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, of any loan made pursuant to section 4(a) of such Act, $6,042,000,000 of budget authority (and such amounts of contract authority as correspond to the amounts of budget authority) are rescinded on or after October 1, 1986 and before September 30, 1987.

RENT SUPPLEMENT PROGRAM

(RESCISSION)

The limitation otherwise applicable to the maximum payments that may be required in any fiscal year by all contracts entered into under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (12 U.S.C. 1701s), is reduced in fiscal year 1986 by not more than $41,390,000 in uncommitted balances of authorizations provided for this purpose in appropriations Acts.

RENTAL HOUSING ASSISTANCE

(RESCISSION)

The limitation otherwise applicable to the maximum payments that may be required in any fiscal year by all contracts entered into under section 236 of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1715z-1), is further reduced in fiscal year 1986 by not more than $10,128,000 in uncommitted balances of authorizations provided for this purpose in appropriations Acts.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 107 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

CONSTRUCTION GRANTS

Of the funds appropriated in section 119 of Public Law 99-190 for necessary expenses to carry out title II of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, an additional $1,200,000,000 is hereby made available: Provided, That the allocation of the $1,200,000,000 made available by this paragraph shall be in accordance with the formula in effect on October 1, 1984.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 108 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SPACE FLIGHT, CONTROL AND DATA COMMUNICATIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For an additional amount for "Space flight, control and data communications", $431,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1987: Provided, That, upon enactment into law of this Act, $5,000,000 shall be transferred to "Research and development": Provided further, That $100,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1988, is appropriated for fiscal year 1987 for "Space flight, control and data communications", and shall not become available for obligation until October 1, 1986: Provided further, That funds appropriated for fiscal year 1987 in the previous proviso may not be obligated until the Administrator of NASA has certified that the recommendations of the Rogers Commission have been implemented or are being implemented, or that an alternative approach satisfies the direction of the recommendation.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 109 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: not less than $25,000,000 nor more than

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 111 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

For payments to defray the costs of training and provision of incentives to employers to hire and train certain veterans as authorized by the Veterans' Job Training Act, as amended (29 U.S.C. 1721), $35,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1988, and to be derived by transfer from "Construction, minor projects".

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 112 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Retroactive to October 1, 1985, all payments for appraisals performed on a contractual basis in connection with the liquidation of housing loans guaranteed, insured, or made in conjunction with loan guarantee operations shall be charged to the VA loan guaranty revolving fund.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 120 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: For an additional amount of "Land Acquisition", $2,373,000, to be derived from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, to remain available until expended.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 122 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the sum named in said amendment, insert: $3,850,000

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 128 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: Notwithstanding any other provision of law, for data and information acquired in fiscal year 1986 or thereafter, by the Secretary, pursuant to section 1352(a)(1)(C)(iii) of title 43, United States Code, payment shall be made for processing costs to permittees with permits issued on or before September 30, 1985.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 131 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert ": Provided further, That the levels established for general assistance by Public Law 99-88 (99 Stat. 388), are the maximum allowable payments"

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 132 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

CONSTRUCTION

For an additional amount for "Construction", $2,500,000, to remain available until expended.

DEFERRAL

Of the funds previously appropriated under the heading "Bureau of Indian Affairs' construction" in Public Law 98-8 (90 Stat. 20), $2,500,000 shall not become available for obligation until October 1, 1986.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 134 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

Strike out the matter stricken by said amendment, and insert: sections 177, 122, 221, 223, 103(k), 105(c)(2), and 105(m) of

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 136 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: ", including $8,000,000 for initial capitalization of a trust fund to fund the Prior Service Benefits portion of the Trust Territory Social Security System in accordance with section 105(m) of Public Law 99-239, and $2,750,000 for the Enjebi Community Trust Fund, as authorized in section 103(k) of Public Law 99-239, and $9,340,000, to remain available until expended, for grants and necessary expenses to the Republic of Palau, to become available for obligation upon the enactment of S.J. Res. 325 or similar legislation"

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 143 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, FOREST SERVICE

SEC. 1. Provisions of 7 U.S.C. 147b shall apply to appropriations available to the Forest Service only to the extent that the proposed transfer is approved by the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations in compliance with the reprogramming procedures contained in House Report 97-942.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 144 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SEC. 2. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Agriculture shall, within funds made available by this Act or any other appropriations Act, release on behalf of the United States the condition described in subsection (b) of this section with respect to the tract of land described in subsection (c) of this section: Provided, That—

(1) the State of Georgia, acting by and through the Georgia State Properties Commission, enters into an agreement with the Secretary of Agriculture stating that the State of Georgia will convey the described tract of land to Brantley County, Georgia, for consideration determined adequate by the Commission, and which consideration shall, if withdrawn from the account, be used exclusively for public purposes;

(2) the State of Georgia shall pay into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts a sum of money which the Secretary of Agriculture deems is sufficient to reimburse the administrative costs of releasing the condition pursuant to this subsection; and

(3) the State of Georgia shall provide to the United States the fair market value of the described tract of land, as determined by the Secretary, either in cash or by exchange of lands, waters, or interest therein.

(b) The condition to be released pursuant to subsection (a) of this section is the condition found in that certain deed dated March 30, 1955, which conveys from the United States to the State of Georgia, Georgia Forestry Commission, certain real property in Ware and Brantley Counties, Georgia, and which deed was recorded on May 17, 1955, in the Office of the Secretary of State, State of Georgia, providing that the land conveyed be used for public purposes and that the title to said land revert to the United States if it is not used for public purposes.

(c) The parcel of land to which the release provided for in subsection (a) of this section is described as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land, situated, located and being in Land Lot No. 128 in the 9th Land District of Brantley County, Georgia, being 55.04 acres, more or less, and being more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the point where the centerline of the SCL Railroad tracks from Waycross to Brunswick intersects the centerline of that certain Brantley County paved road known as County Road No. 15, and thence N 08 degrees 54'00" W a distance of 97.72 feet to a point; thence, N 79 degrees 40'50" E a distance of 40.02 feet to a point; thence, N 79 degrees 40'50" E a distance of 260.03 feet to a point; thence, N 68 degrees 30'00" E a distance of 390.0 feet to a point; this point being the point or place of beginning of the tract to be released from the described condition; thence, N 13 degrees 15'00" W a distance of 701.15 feet to a point; thence, S 73 degrees 10'00" W a distance of 647.09 feet to a point; thence, N 17 degrees 13'50" W a distance of 304.91 feet to a point; thence, N 61 degrees 23'03" E a distance of 2452.76 feet to a point; thence, S 06 degrees 09'26" E a distance of 275.29 feet to a point; thence, S 07 degrees 17'36" E a distance of 442.26 feet to a point; thence, S 00 degrees 30'41" E a distance of 183.67 feet to a point; thence, S 12 degrees 11'06" E a distance of 160.31 feet to a point; thence, S 05 degrees 13'46" E a distance of 390.62 feet to a point; thence, S 34 degrees 53'42" W a distance of 201.01 feet to a point; thence, S 75 degrees 01'09" W a distance of 1371.18 feet to a point; this point being the point or place of beginning of the tract.

For a more complete description of the tract, reference is hereby made to that certain plat prepared on August 4, 1985, by Harry Strickland, Brantley, County Surveyor, entitled "Survey for Brantley County" which plat is on file with the Georgia State Properties Commission.

(d) Section 32(c) of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1011), shall not apply to the release provided for in subsection (a) of this section.

(c) The conveyance made pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall reserve to the United States all gas, oil, coal and other mineral deposits as may be found in the lands conveyed by this section.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 154 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: $13,500,000: Provided, That $1,530,000 shall not become available for obligation until September 30, 1986: Provided further, That funds made available to tribes and tribal organizations through grants and contracts authorized by the Indian Self-Determination and Educational Assistance Act of 1975 (88 Stat. 2203; 25 U.S.C. 450), shall remain available until September 30, 1987

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 155 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

INDIAN HEALTH FACILITIES

(DEFERRAL)

Of the funds previously appropriated under this head, $11,665,000 shall not become available for obligation until October 1, 1986.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 162 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

Funds made available for fiscal year 1986 and hereafter to the Warren G. Magnuson Clinical Center of the National Institutes of Health shall be available for payment of nurses at the rates of pay and with schedule options and benefits authorized for the Veterans Administration pursuant to 38 U.S.C. 4107.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 163 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

OFFICE OF COMMUNITY SERVICES

COMMUNITY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT

SEC. 1. (a) The Administrator of General Services shall assign the property described in subsection (e) to the Secretary of Health and Human Services for transfer of such property in accordance with this section to the District of Columbia for use as a shelter for homeless individuals in the District of Columbia.

(b) Immediately after the assignment of such property pursuant to subsection (a), the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall transfer the title to such property without cost to the District of Columbia for use as a shelter for homeless individuals.

(c) The deed of conveyance for the property described in subsection (e) shall provide that, if the District of Columbia sells, leases, or otherwise transfers such property to any other person or agency, a fraction of the proceeds of such sale, lease, or transfer (as determined under subsection (d)) may be retained by the District of Columbia for use in programs providing shelter and related services for homeless individuals in the District of Columbia and the remainder of such proceeds shall be paid to the Secretary of the Treasury and deposited as miscellaneous receipts of the United States.

Any sale, lease, or other transfer pursuant to this subsection shall be made after public advertising for bids or by other means designed to secure full and open competition.

(d) The fraction of such proceeds which may be retained by the District of Columbia for use in programs providing shelter and related services for homeless individuals in the District of Columbia shall be determined by dividing—

(1) the number of months that such property is used as a shelter for homeless individuals in the District of Columbia pursuant to this section prior to such sale, lease, or transfer; by

(2) 120, except that such fraction shall not be greater than one.

(e) The property to which this section applies is the property located at 425 Second Street, Northwest, in the District of Columbia, more fully described as follows:

All that parcel situated in the Northwest quadrant of the City of Washington, District of Columbia, and being a portion of District of Columbia Square Number 571, containing in their entirety former lots numbered 9 through 18, inclusive, and 22 through 26, inclusive, as recorded in Liber B, Folio 160 of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia, and lots 45 through 51 inclusive, as recorded in Liber 19, Folio 118 of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia; such land now known for purposes of assessment as Lot 820, and containing 1.16 acres of land, more or less; and more particularly described in a deed between the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the United States of America, dated July 30, 1947, and recorded in Liber 8761, Folio 79 of the Land Records of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 2. For making a grant to the District of Columbia upon the completion of the conveyance to the District of Columbia of the property located at 425 Second Street, Northwest, in the District of Columbia, in accordance with section 1 and upon the submission of a request to the Office of Community Services, Department of Health and Human Services, by the District of Columbia, $1,500,000 for the repair and renovation of such property for use as a shelter for the homeless.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 168 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

Effective on October 1, 1980, section 3(d)(3) of the Act of September 30, 1950 (Public Law 874, Eighty-first Congress) is amended by redesignating subparagraph (C) as subparagraph (D), and by adding after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

"(C) The local contribution rate for a local educational agency shall include current expenditures from that portion of a real property tax required to be levied, collected, and distributed to local educational agencies by county governments pursuant to state law where the remainder of such real property tax is transferred to the State."

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 172 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

REHABILITATION SERVICES AND HANDICAPPED RESEARCH

From the amounts appropriated to carry out the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, $27,945,000 shall be made available for special demonstration projects for the severely disabled under section 311: Provided, That $8,613,000 shall be used for supported employment demonstrations.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 176 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

On page 66 of the engrossed Senate amendments, strike out all after "made." In line 5, down through and including "made." in line 8.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 179 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

CAPITOL POLICE

CAPITOL POLICE BOARD

For an additional amount for the "Capitol Police Board", $13,000,000, to remain available until expended, to implement an improved security plan for the United States Capitol, after such plan shall have been approved by the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, the Senate Committee on Appropriations, the House Committee on Appropriations, the House Committee on Public Works and Transportation, and the Committee on House Administration: Provided, That upon approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations, such Board is authorized to transfer to the Architect of the Capitol so much of such funds as may be necessary to enable the Architect of the Capitol to carry out appropriate projects to implement such plan, and the Architect of the Capitol is authorized to obligate and expend the funds so transferred to him to carry out contracts entered into without regard to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended: Provided further, That before any such transfer of funds to the Architect of the Capitol takes place, the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations shall review and approve detailed documentation describing the scope, cost and construction schedule of the work to be accomplished by the transfer of funds.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 180 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

OFFICE OF THE ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL

SALARIES

For an additional amount for "Office of the Architect of the Capitol, Salaries", $250,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That these funds shall be transferred to the appropriation "Capitol Grounds", and the Architect of the Capitol is authorized to obligate and expend funds so transferred only for the detailed design and cost estimates associated with the construction aspects of the congressional joint leadership proposal to improve security of the Capitol and the House and Senate office buildings.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 182 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the first sum named in said amendment, insert: $867,000

Resolved, That the House receded from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 184 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, AND IMPROVEMENTS

Out of available funds, the Coast Guard shall make available not more than $750,000 for maintenace, sealing and preservation of lighthouses in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 186 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: $84,250,000, of which $2,000,000 shall be derived by transfer from "Coast Guard, Retired pay", and $2,250,000 shall be derived by transfer from "Coast Guard, Research, development, test, and evaluation": Provided, That, if by July 15, 1986, the Secretary of Transportation and the appropriate governmental authorities of Dade County, Florida, have not reached agreement on the execution of a full funding contract for the project identified in section 320 of the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1986, the memorandum of understanding submitted by the Metro-Dade Transportation Administration to the Urban Mass Transportation Administration on June 6, 1986, shall be deemed approved by the Secretary and shall be binding on the Department of Transportation and Metropolitan Dade County upon acceptance by the appropriate Dade County governmental authorities: Provided further, That such memorandum of understanding shall be deemed approved by the Secretary notwithstanding 42 U.S.C., sections 4321 through 4335, inclusive, and applicable regulations.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 187 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: Provided further, That, at a minimum, the air traffic control onboard employment level shall be 14,480 by September 30, 1986.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 192 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

Strike out the matter stricken by said amendment, and insert:

RELATED AGENCY

PANAMA CANAL COMMISSION

OPERATING EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Panama Canal Commission, Operating expenses", $18,300,000, of which $17,181,000 may be available either for operating expenses or for vessel accident claims as authorized by Public Law 99-209, and $1,119,000 shall be available for payment to the Republic of Panama, pursuant to article XIII, paragraph 4(c) of the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 216 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SEC. 203. None of the funds in this Act, or any other appropriations Act for fiscal year 1986, may be used to implement changes to OMB Circular A-21 made subsequent to February 11, 1986: Provided, That this provision shall expire 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 218 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

SEC. 207. Notwithstanding section 514 of Public Law 99-178, amounts appropriated by that Act for Federal financial assistance to the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands shall be available, as would have been available had the Compact of Free Association Act (Public Law 99-239) not been enacted, until alternative funding is available under the terms of the Compact of Free Association Act of 1985 (Public Law 99-239). Thereafter, except insofar as the Compact of Free Association Act otherwise provides, such amounts shall be available only for the Republic of Palau, but only in amounts that such Republic would have received had the Compact of Free Association Act of 1985 not been enacted.

Resolved, That the House insist upon its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 114 and 199 to the aforesaid bill.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the Senate concurred in the House amendments.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

EXCEPTED AMENDMENT NO. 23

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate the next committee amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 23 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

PREPAYMENT OF LOANS BY RURAL ELECTRIFICATION AND TELEPHONE SYSTEMS

In the case of a borrower of a loan made by the Federal Financing Bank, and guaranteed by the Administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration, under section 306 of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C. 936) that is outstanding on the date of enactment of this Act, the borrower may prepay the loan by payment of the outstanding principal balance due on the loan using private capital with the existing loan guarantee. No sums in addition to payment of such balance shall be charged as the result of such prepayment against the borrower, the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund established under section 301 of such Act (7 U.S.C. 931), or the Rural Electrification Administration. To qualify for prepayment, a borrower shall certify that such prepayment will result in substantial savings to its customers or lessen the threat of bankruptcy of the borrower unless in such individual case, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Treasury, to repay would adversely affect the operation of the Federal Financing Bank: Provided, That any regulations under this provision shall be issued and become effective within 30 days of enactment of this Act.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I would like at this time to engage in a bit of colloquy for clarification on the amendment relating to the REA with Senators from North and South Dakota who I believe are here on the floor for that purpose.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. ANDREWS. I appreciate that, Mr. President, and the senior Senator from North Dakota, Senator BURDICK, will be here shortly to join in this.

Mr. President, since this amendment has been made a part of the overall bill, I would like to engage in a brief colloquy on the amendment that provides for prepayment of FFB loans by rural electric systems.

This important provision was first passed by the Senate, on June 5, 1986 after considerable debate by a vote of 62 to 36. It has now been sent back to this body by the House of Representatives. I continue to support this provision because it is clearly needed. It will permit rural electric systems to prepay, without penalty, any of their loan advances from the Federal Financing Bank. In doing this they will pay 100 cents on the dollar plus an accured interest on each individual FFB loan advance that they prepay. These FFB funds will be replaced with private capital on terms and conditions agreed to by the borrowers and private lenders and the existing REA guarantee on the loan to be prepaid will cover the new loan.

This provision will change an inequity in current FFB rules which prevent rural electric systems and their consumers from benefiting from the current decline in interest rates that has been achieved.

It was subjected to considerable debate in this body. It was adopted by a rollcall vote.

I would ask for a clarification of one provision that is included in the House language on this provision. It weakens to a certain extent the words of the Senate, but perhaps it does not. It provides that prepayment would be permitted "unless, in such individual case, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Treasury to prepay would adversely affect the operation of the FFB."

I would ask Senator HATFIELD, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, to inform me if my understanding of that language is correct. My understanding is that this language was not included to prevent rural electric systems from prepaying their FFB loans and that the Secretary of the Treasury will not arbitrarily reject all or even most requests for prepayment.

Mr. HATFIELD. The Senator is correct. This language does not give the Secretary of the Treasury the authority to deny all requests for prepayment of FFB loans.

Mr. ANDREWS. I note also that the Congessional Budget Office has reported that the revised language passed yesterday by the House of Representatives will result in the same $300 million of outlay savings during fiscal year 1986 as was estimated by CBO based on the language passed by the Senate on June 5. I would, therefore, assume that the language before us now as changed in the House would result in no less then $300 million in refinancing during fiscal year 1986 and in fact if borrowers submit requests for refinancing in amounts greater than $300 million there is no reason to assume from the language before us that this could be rejected by the Secretary of the Treasury. I would think that as soon as possible after enactment of this act that the Secretary of the Treasury would immediately approve requests for prepayment in the cases of rural electric systems which are in financial difficulties, do not have parity of retail rates with their neighboring urban utilities, or have high-rate loans from the FFB. These approvals would not be rejected based on some arbitrary dollar limit. Does Senator HATFIELD agree with my interpretation of this language?

Mr. HATFIELD. I would say the Senator is correct in this interpretation and I would like to also add that I expect the Secretary to act in good faith and not arbitrarily reject prepayment applications as such.

The language does not limit the amount of FFB loans which rural electric systems could prepay. In fact this entire amendment is included in H.R. 4515 for the express purpose of permitting and facilitating these prepayments. There is no intent here to deny these requests.

Mr. ANDREWS. I appreciate the statement of the Senator. I thank the Senator for his clarification.

This provision is extremely important to our rural people, who in 75 percent of all cases pay higher rates than their urban neighbors. It is unfair to deny rural electrics the opportunity to refinance when investor-owned and other utilities are refinancing unprecedented amounts—expected to exceed $9 billion during this year alone. The FFB prepayment provision we voted on will allow rural people throughout this great Nation to share in the benefits of lower interest costs and lower electric rates.

Mr. ABDNOR. I certainly appreciate the chairman yielding to me.

Mr. President, Early this month, I cosponsored an amendment to H.R. 4515 to permit REA borrowers to repay any or all of their outstanding loans with the Federal Financing Bank [FFB]. This amendment is needed because under FFB's current rules, REA borrowers cannot receive any economic benefit from prepaying their FFB loans. They are simply locked in to long-term rates, which are as high as 15.128 percent.

This FFB rule is unfair. The Government's own cost of money is now in the 7- to 8-percent range. Refinancing is occurring in all segments of our economy, from homeowners to utilities. It makes no sense to deny rural electric systems this opportunity to replace Government loans with private capital at lower interest rates. The amendment I cosponsored with Senator BURDICK was passed by the U.S. Senate by a vote of 62 to 36 after more than 2 hours of debate.

Today, we are again considering H.R. 4515. This bill was passed yesterday by the House of Representatives with revisions to the FFB prepayment provisions. The revised language appears to permit REA borrowers to prepay their FFB loans unless the Secretary of the Treasury determines that these prepayments will adversely affect the operation of the Federal Financing Bank.

The House of Representatives decided to amend our provision on prepayment. They sought to accommodate the fears of the administration that this provision would lead to a precedent that others would try to unfairly take advantage of. This provision will not, however, create a precedent because in this case:

First, prepayments will be made by a group of borrowers—rural electric systems—who are in an industry with others who are doing an unprecedented amount of refinancing. I might point out that this year alone, investor-owned utilities are expected to refinance 19 billion dollars' worth of old high interest rate loans.

Second, savings from any prepayments will be used to reduce rates to consumers—the people at the end of the lines. They will not be used to benefit stockholders or investors.

Mr. Chairman, I will reluctantly vote for this bill only because of my understanding that the revised House language will not prevent rural electric systems from prepaying their FFB loans. It is my understanding that this language does not give the Secretary of the Treasury the discretionary authority to deny all borrowers to right to prepay.

I am disappointed that the original language offered by Senator BURDICK and me and adopted by the Senate was not retained by the House of Representatives. Under that language, all rural electric cooperatives would have been allowed to prepay their debts and then refinance in the private sector. Under Senator BURDICK's and my language, there would have been no doubt. There would have been no suspicion. Very clearly our language was cleaner and more straightforward. Our language would have saved rural electric customers over $200 million annually.

Although the compromise accepted by the House is not as good as the language Senator BURDICK and I included in the Senate bill, I am informed that it still will allow for rural electric cooperatives to refinance. With the understanding that the Secretary of the Treasury will not arbitrarily deny refinancing requests and that refinancing will be allowed, I reluctantly accept the House language.

I might also point out that the Congressional Budget Office has completed an estimate of the savings that will result from this prepayment provision as revised yesterday by the House of Representatives. CBO's estimates for the House revision—a $300 million reduction in outlays—is the same as CBO's estimate for the provision I cosponsored. This means that the revised provision is intended to result in the same amount of refinancing as our original provision. I will therefore continue my support for this amendment, based on my understanding of the way that it will be administered. This is a low-cost provision that will greatly assist rural people throughout our Nation.

I have been one of the main sponsors of this amendment and think it is very necessary. Frankly, I would be remiss if I did not say that I would have much preferred the original Burdick-Abdnor language but I certainly understand how the art of compromise works here. We have an overall purpose of trying to obtain an appropriations bill.

I am very, very grateful to the Senator from North Dakota and the chairman for the colloquy they had to at least set forth the agreements that were obtained in making this compromise.

□ 1450

The course of action that most people have agreed to hopefully will work and be a fair and equitable proposal that will take care of rural electric cooperatives.

I will say that I will be the first one to try to correct and improve the compromise or go back to the original Burdick-Abdnor language should the administration not uphold its promise. I thank you, Mr. Chairman, for the work you have done on this to salvage some form of a repayment policy. Let us hope that it will do what we expect it to do.

With the explanation and colloquy you have entered into with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ANDREWS], and this Senator I will support the amendment.

Mr. HATFIELD. May I respond to the Senator from South Dakota, in that I would associate myself with him in this whole matter. I think we have worked out an accommodation. I am sure the Senator will be very much a policeman on this as this is implemented. And down the line, next year or the following year, whatever, if this would appear to be getting off track, I know Senator ABDNOR would be the first there to correct it.

Mr. ABDNOR. I thank the Senator. That is correct.

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, this Senator from Nebraska has to make a very important decision, and I am going to make it on the side of reason. I salute the head of the Appropriations Committee and the ranking Democrat thereon for their diligent efforts. I do not know whether they have said so or not, but I suppose that they find themselves not in essentially the same position as the Senator from Nebraska with regard to the REA loans that was voted out of the Senate on a fairly strong vote, as I remember it.

I want to say that I am most unhappy that the REA provisions that were adopted by the U.S. Senate were dropped in conference. I think it is only appropriate to say at this time why that was dropped in conference.

I refer, Mr. President, to a letter from the President's Director of the Budget, dated June 20, 1986, to the Honorable MARK HATFIELD, chairman, Committee on Appropriations, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MARK: President Reagan will not sign H.R. 4515, the 1986 urgent supplemental appropriations bill, in its present form. The provision of the bill waiving prepayment penalties on REA loans is unacceptable to the President.

I ask unanimous consent that the balance of this letter be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. EXON. I want to say, Mr. President, that I suppose, under the situation that confronted the conferees, with the President of the United States saying, through his Director of the Budget, that he would veto the urgent supplemental and all that was in there, there was really no other way that the managers of the bill could respond. They may have something to say to that on their own. Maybe they have said it already.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Will the Senator yield at that point?

Mr. EXON. I am happy to yield.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I think the Senator read the first sentence in that letter. I have been seeing these letters come up from OMB and from the White House now for over a decade, and that is the most explicit veto threat I have seen in all that time.

It says the President will not sign. It does not say, "We will recommend," it does not say, "We may not," it says absolutely he will not sign based on the original text of the REA amendment.

So, facing a certain veto and facing the absolute necessity to get this urgent supplemental—and indeed it is urgent—then compromise seemed the better part of discretion, although we very, very strongly supported the original language as originally proposed by the distinguished Senator from North Dakota, who was the original author in the Appropriations Committee of this amendment.

Mr. EXON. I thank my friend from Louisiana. He said it all very well.

As unhappy as I am with this provision being deleted and as shocking as it is that the President of the United States is taking an anti-REA stand, I nevertheless will vote for the urgent supplemental appropriations because there are funds in that bill, not the least of which has to do with the money going to farmers throughout the Farm Belt. They need that money now. They have already waited for a month.

So I compliment the leaders who were in negotiation with this. I understand with this gun to their heads they had no other option. You made the right choice, as disappointing as that is for all of us.

I yield the floor.

EXHIBIT 1

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT,
OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET,
Washington, DC, June 20, 1986.

Hon. MARK HATFIELD,
Chairman, Committee on Appropriations, United States Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MARK: President Reagan will not sign H.R. 4515, the 1986 Urgent Supplemental Appropriations bill, in its present form. The provision of the bill waiving prepayment penalties on REA loans in unacceptable to the President.

The Administration strongly supports your amendment on the Senate floor to the amendment in technical disagreement with the House to the REA provision. Although the Administration has serious concerns about several other provisions, if your amendment were adopted the President's senior advisors would recommend that he sign H.R. 4515, as it otherwise presently is written.

Your amendment would require utilities with REA-guaranteed FFB loans to prove that waiver of the prepayment penalty for refinancing is necessary to avoid default. This is a reasonable requirement for utilities to satisfy if they wish to escape their contractual obligations.

Thank you for your strong leadership and constructive efforts on H.R. 4515.

Sincerely yours,

JAMES C. MILLER, III,
Director.

Mr. BURDICK addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. BURDICK. Mr. President, we again have before the Senate the issue of rural electrification administration borrowers who have loans from the Federal Financing Bank. This provision is of utmost importance to our rural electric cooperatives, as well as to rural telephone systems, because it allows them to repay their loans to the Federal Government with money they obtain from private lenders and provides a significant economic benefit for rural America.

Under the pending legislation, the 100-percent Federal guarantee of principal and interest would be maintained for loans prepaid using private capital. To generate the capital for the prepayment, the loan guarantee would be issued, transferred, or assigned to a legally organized lending agency—such as the Banks for Cooperatives or the National Cooperative Financing Corporaton—as provided under current law.

Such private lenders experienced with the rural utility industry will provide essential loan servicing. In addition, the lenders will be available to renegotiate or restructure loans as necessary, and otherwise meet the needs of the borrowers—thus relieving the Federal Government of some of those responsibilities.

The reason we are considering this issue again, Mr. President, is extremely troublesome for me. Apparently, President Reagan is adamantly opposed to this provision. For the life of me, I cannot understand his opposition. In every Federal lending program with which I am familiar, this administration has tirelessly pushed to get the borrower off the Government role and into the private sector.

Well, Mr. President, that is exactly what this measure does. The borrower pays back his loan from the Federal Government 100 percent—he pays back every penny. I just wish there were somebody either in the White House or in the administration who could explain to me what is wrong with that.

This provision simply states that once the borrower pays back the outstanding principal, no additional sums or penalties shall be charged to the borrower. In other words, it eliminates any prepayment penalty. As a matter of policy, there should be no prepayment penalty. A prepayment penalty is an obstacle to paying back the loan. When the Federal Government makes a loan to a borrower, does that mean we do not want that loan paid back?

Absolutely not. It means that the borrower is in need of the loan because he cannot get the same deal in the private sector. We want him to pay it back as soon as he can.

Think of student loans. We do not tell those students they cannot pay back their loans unless they pay a penalty. Think of loans to farmers through the Farmers Home Administration—be they for farm operating, farm purchasing, or home buying. Those farmers can pay back those loans at any time without paying a penalty. It would be unconscionable, unthinkable, to charge them an additional amount so that they would not pay the loan off ahead of schedule.

This Government, Mr. President, should not penalize its borrowers for paying back its loans ahead of schedule, it should congratulate them. It should extol them. It should reward them. We want that money back to the Federal Government, so that we can turn it around and make additional loans to those in need—additional student loans, additional farm loans, and additional REA loans.

□ 1500

The President is dead wrong on this issue. It is not costing the taxpayers anything. The fact that the Government will not be getting the high interest over the next 30 some years does not translate into a cost for the taxpayers. The Government can immediately reprogram the money, relend it, and make interest on their new loans. Where is the loss? I would challenge anyone to tell me that a student paying off his loan in advance is gouging the taxpayer. It is the exact same issue.

Now I understand that there is concern that this provision will adversely affect the operation of the Federal Financing Bank. How a bank getting its money back—100 cents on the dollar—can be construed as adverse is beyond me. The FFB is going to get $300 million back in fiscal year 1986 and $7 billion back in fiscal year 1987. This return can only be construed as a positive effect, not an adverse effect.

Mr. President, I hope this administration will keep in mind that this provision results in savings to the Government, and that unless the President and his administration work to facilitate these refinancings, there will be no savings and no reduction in the deficit.

Mr. President, if I may, I would like to ask my colleague, the distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Committee for his comments on several questions.

Mr. HATFIELD. I would be very happy to respond to the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. BURDICK. What assurance do we have that the Secretary of the Treasury will cooperate with the intent of this provision and will not summarily turn down every application for refinancing?

Mr. HATFIELD. Let me say to the Senator from North Dakota that even though I have not talked to the Secretary of the Treasury personally, he was very much a party to the whole process of arriving at this compromise language. He acted through, and his views were given to me through, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget who was sort of the go-between our committee and the administration.

So I feel that he was a party to it. Therefore, he in effect signed off on it, and I have confidence as I indicated earlier that he will act in good faith, not capriciously and that he will honor the intent of this amendment, and particularly in light of the legislative history that is being built here today on the floor by the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. BURDICK], and previously the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ANDREWS], and the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. ABDNOR]. Consequently, I really expect him to act in good faith on the applications as they arrive in his office.

Mr. BURDICK. The provision speaks about an adverse effect on the operation of the FFB. Would you agree with me that paying money back into the FFB by paying off the loan 100 cents on the dollar plus any accrued interest would not be an adverse effect in itself?

Mr. HATFIELD. It would seem to me so. I would say, yes.

Mr. BURDICK. Mr. Chairman, my concern is that the administration will stretch the meaning of "adversely affect" to such an extent that few refinancings will be allowed. Can we have the Secretary of the Treasury report to Congress and to the Appropriations Committees when he does determine that a refinancing would have an adverse effect and to spell out that effect to us?

Mr. HATFIELD. I certainly would be very happy to request the Secretary to report to us, to our committee, the Appropriations Committee, and through us to the entire body should he determine that a refinancing would have an adverse effect.

Mr. BURDICK. I would also hope that we can be assured that the administration will consider applications for refinancing in an expeditious manner. We have required that any regulations be issued and become effective within 30 days of enactment of this act. Is it the Senator's expectation that the applications will be acted on in a similar time period?

Mr. HATFIELD. Again, I do not know if the applications would be acted upon within a 30-day period. But I can say to the Senator that I am confident that the agency will act very expeditiously, and I have the assurance of the administration on that point, that they will act expeditiously as these applications are presented to them.

Mr. BURDICK. The Congressional Budget Office determined that this provision will return $300 million in savings for fiscal year 1986. The House amendment has not changed that estimate. The only way these savings will be achieved is by allowing some borrowers to refinance. Is the Senator's expectation that the Secretary of the Treasury will work to achieve those savings in 1984, and can he assure us that he will use his best efforts to reach that goal?

Mr. HATFIELD. The question is being propounded to me, Senator? My response to your question would be, yes.

Mr. BURDICK. Mr. President, with these assurances, I am hopeful that this administration will do its best to provide for as many refinancings as possible. Therefore, I will not press for changes at this time, but you can be sure that I will be watching this issue in the future and will press for changes if the need arises.

I thank the chairman of the committee.

Mr. JOHNSTON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SYMMS). The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I first want to congratulate the distinguished senior Senator from North Dakota for bringing this amendment in the first place, and so ably championing that amendment in the committee and here on the floor; also to concur with the statements of our distinguished chairman, Mr. HATFIELD, in answer to his questions about the meaning of the compromise language.

I also would point out that it would be expected that in exercising the discretion which the Administrator will have with respect to these loans that I would expect they would rank loans according to some objective factors such as disparities between interest rates of the REA's and the urban investor-owned utilities so that if the interest rates of the REA were particularly high, compared to those of investor-owned utilities that would rank them very high in terms of priority.

Second, the length of time of the outstanding obligations of the REA compared to the average length of the outstanding Treasury obligations should also be a very strong factor. Finally, those with the highest interest rates as among the REA's. For example, if you had some REA's with a 12-percent outstanding loan portfolio as opposed to 10 percent in others, then of course the higher interest rates should get the higher priority.

I wonder if my distinguished colleague would concur with those matters with respect to the priority which should be given by the Administrator on these loans.

Mr. HATFIELD. I would concur within the scope of my understanding. I would like to yield to the chairman of the subcommittee, who also is a participant in this whole process. He may like to make some comments, but also would like to perhaps give his interpretation to the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. COCHRAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished chairman of the full committee for yielding to me.

It is my understanding, having had conversations just within the last hour with representatives of the Department of the Treasury and Office of Management and Budget, that this is an authority which will be used, that the language in this amendment is not going to be used to get around the problem and give a veto power that will be used in every case by the Secretary of the Treasury to prevent prepayment. It is the understanding of this Senator that regulations will be drafted, guidelines developed by not only the Treasury Secretary but also the REA Administrator to help facilitate the understanding of this new authority to prepay, and the circumstances under which prepayment will be possible.

□ 1510

I think the distinguished chairman of the full committee has correctly stated, in response to the questions of the Senator from North Dakota and the Senator from Louisiana, that those utilities which have guaranteed loans, which are facing the possibility of default, who can certify that by prepaying without penalty they may be able to avoid default or bankruptcy and that this would be beneficial to their customers, will be permitted to prepay, if the Secretary can approve that as not adversely affecting the operation of the Federal Financing Bank.

I think the amendment has meaning and it will be helpful to distressed utility associations.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Will the Senator yield for a question, Mr. President?

Mr. COCHRAN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Will the Senator agree with me that those loans which, first, have the highest interest rates, secondly, where there is the greatest disparity between the rural REA loans and the urban investor-owned loans, and those where the outstanding portfolio of the REA is longest as composed to the portfolios of the Treasury, that those three factors should definitely be considered very strongly in ranking which of the loans would receive the prepayment benefit and which will not?

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, it is my judgment that those would be important factors. They would have to be considered by the Secretary in developing these regulations and guidelines. They ought to have a big impact on the establishment of that priority that the Senator described.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I thank the Senator.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, let me say in describing the subject area of this amendment that the Senate, I think, has gotten good concessions on this issue. The Senators from North Dakota, Senators BURDICK and ANDREWS, and Senator ABDNOR of South Dakota, who argued for this position on the Senate floor, have won a big victory, in my opinion, even with the change that was made in the language to provide the Secretary of the Treasury with this authority to approve and certify that there would be no adverse effect on the operation of the Federal Financing Bank.

I think the Senators are to be congratulated and that the Senate should adopt the amendment.

I yield to my distinguished senior colleague.

Mr. STENNIS. I thank the Senator.

Mr. President, I want to say a special word of commendation and thanks to my colleague and to the other Senators who worked on this problem. I remember it being something that should be done, but the more he exposed what the real facts were and explained it, the better it was accepted here. There were also contributions made on the House side by our colleague, Congressman WHITTEN.

I appreciate very much what the Senator did. This will do a lot of good.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Mississippi for his comments. He is absolutely correct in giving credit to our friend and colleague on the House side, Congressman JAMES WHITTEN, of Mississippi, for his constructive involvement and assistance in working out language that could eventually be approved by the House of Representatives and the administration as well. I think there is ample credit to be passed around in both Houses of Congress and in the administration for working to make this acceptable. I hope the Senate will approve it, Mr. President.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, over the past few years, the Rural Electrification Administration has come under increasing criticism for making loans to electric cooperatives that started out providing service to rural residents but were later engulfed by urban areas. The critics charge that the REA's great mission to make electrical service available to rural America has been compromised by such loans.

In an effort to respond to these criticisms, the urban electric cooperatives are trying to shift their financing efforts from the REA and the Federal Financing Bank to the private sector.

Over the past several years, my colleague from Alaska, Senator MURKOWSKI, and I have worked closely with Chugach Electric Association—Alaska's largest electric cooperative—which serves many urban residents, to help Chugach make such a transition.

It is my understanding, Mr. President, that one of the primary purposes of the REA loan refinancing proposal before us is to assist urban electric cooperatives in making the transition from public to private financing. I would like to ask the distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Committee whether my understanding is correct and what impact the House amendment will have on such transition efforts.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, the senior Senator from Alaska is correct: One of the primary purposes of the refinancing proposal is to help urban electric cooperatives shift to new private sources of financing. The House amendment is not intended to impede this purpose. I do not believe that refinancing of urban cooperative loans would, in itself, adversely impact the operation of the Federal Financing Bank. We expect the urban cooperatives' refinancing efforts—including the effort of the Alaska REA cooperative the Senator mentioned—to move forward to completion.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I thank the chairman for clarifying this important point.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, a few weeks ago in connection with the Senate's consideration of H.R. 4515, the urgent supplemental appropriation bill for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1986, the Senate adopted an amendment which is very important for rural electric cooperatives throughout the Nation and in my State. Basically, the Senate amendment provided that REA cooperative electric utilities may prepay their outstanding principal balance on their high interest loans with the Government without incurring prepayment penalties if they secure new loans using private sources of capital.

The basic purpose of this amendment was to enable REA cooperatives to prepay and refinance loans made in the late 1970's and early 1980's during a period of very high—13, 14, and 15 percent—interest rates. The amendment would result in major savings in interest costs to the cooperatives and their customers. It is also in accord with general commercial finance business practices on prepayment penalties. Further, it more nearly places the REA cooperatives on a par with private and municipal electric utilities, many of which have already refinanced the high interest loans they incurred during the same period.

Recently, the House of Representatives considered the conference report on H.R. 4515. The REA refinancing amendment had been reported by the conference committee as an item in technical disagreement (Amendment No. 22). During the House's consideration of this matter yesterday, the distinguished chairman of the House Appropriations Committee offered an amendment which, I am informed, was designed to resolve some differences of opinion on this general subject between some Members of the Senate and House and the administration.

The House floor amendment was adopted and was added at the end of the third sentence in the first paragraph and provides as follows:

Unless, in such individual case, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Treasury, to prepay would adversely affect the operation of the Federal Financing Bank.

If I may, I would like to ask the distinguished manager of the bill a question or two concerning the meaning and operation of the House floor amendment.

This new language appears to be designed to protect the FFB's operations, solvency and financial integrity from being adversely affected as a result of permitting prepayment of these loans. Is that correct?

Mr. HATFIELD. Yes, that is my understanding.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. The House and Senate intent is that the regulations to implement the amendment would permit prepayment.

Mr. HATFIELD. Yes.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Do the conferees intend that the Secretary would consider requests for prepayment on a case-by-case basis and would approve them unless the financial integrity and operational structure of the FFB were somehow adversely affected in a significant way?

Mr. HATFIELD. Yes, that is my understanding. We contemplate that individual loans may be prepaid unless the Secretary determines that prepayment would adversely affect FFB's operations.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. For some years the administration has urged that larger urbanized REA cooperatives find private sources of capital to finance their utility systems operations. If these types of utilities seek to prepay their FFB loans under the amendment, will the Secretary consider this administration policy as well as the impact, if any, on the FFB?

Mr. HATFIELD. Yes, I am sure the Secretary of the Treasury will consider all relevant policy considerations which have an impact on the FFB and the Treasury.

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION ADMINISTRATION LOAN AMENDMENT

Mr. ZORINSKY. Mr. President, I am compelled to vote for this provision effecting the prepayment of outstanding loans to the Federal Financing Bank only because I am concerned by the threat of a Presidential veto of the entire supplemental appropriations bill.

My farmers in Nebraska have exercised great patience in wating to receive checks that are due them from USDA.

Although this provision would give the Secretary of Treasury the power to veto individual loan arrangements, I understand that prepayment will remain an option for rural electric and telephone systems, and that appropriate regulations will be drafted accordingly.

Mr. HATFIELD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment to Senate Amendment No. 23, which is the REA amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate? If not, the question is on agreeing to the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I move to lay that on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

EXCEPTED AMENDMENT NO. 91

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate the next committee amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 91 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

Strike out the matter stricken by said amendment, and insert:

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

Of the funds previously appropriated or made available for research, development, test and evaluation for the Department of Defense for fiscal year 1986 pursuant to Public Law 99-190, $55,600,000 shall be available only for grants or contributions to educational institutions for research activities, construction of research related facilities and for other related purposes as provided in House Report 99-450 accompanying House Joint Resolution 465, Public Law 99-190, and the Secretary of Defense shall provide these grants or contributions expeditiously: Provided, That such grants or contributions are a one time obligation and expenditure and shall not interfere with or change the existing system of other competitive research grants or contracts.

Mr. DANFORTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, this amendment is going to require a rollcall vote. It is on almost precisely, with one slight exception, the same subject that the Senate voted on June 5. On June 5, when this bill was before the Senate, an amendment was offered to strike the provisions of the bill which earmarked funds for research spending for the Department of Defense.

The committee bill did earmark funds for nine specified universities for specific research projects.

In addition to that, the House of Representatives had earmarked two different research projects for specific universities for research.

An amendment was offered on the floor on June 5 to delete the earmarking. We went to a rollcall vote and we voted by 58 to 40 to strike the earmarking for both the two House projects and the nine Senate projects.

Therefore, the Senate bill had no earmarking for university research. The House bill had earmarking for two projects.

The conferees met and restored to the bill, through this amendment in disagreement which we will be voting on, both of the House projects and seven Senate projects for a grand total of nine.

In other words, the Senate's position was, "Do not earmark for university research." The House position was, "Earmark two projects." The conferees came back and said, "We will earmark nine projects for specific spending for university research."

That is the specific issue that is before us now.

□ 1520

Is the Senate going to stick by its guns? Is the Senate going to stick by the principle which we established on the night of June 5? Is the Senate going to continue to stand by the basic premise that research money should be spent according to merit, not according to politics?

That issue was debated over a period of about an hour-and-a-half, as I recall, on June 5. Good speeches were made on both sides. The Senate thought about the subject, and the Senate voted. The position that we took on that night was that research money spent by the Department of Defense should be spent according to merit, that scientists, whether they are in-house scientists in the Department of Defense or whether they are scientists who are utilized on a peer review basis, professionals should make the decision as to where the wisest spending of our research dollars occurs. That was the position of the Senate.

Now the conferees come back to us with all of those projects put back that we struck earmarking for, and with the two House projects put back.

The question of principle, of course, is whether merit should govern determination of research spending or whether, instead, pork-barrel approaches should govern. It is notable, I believe, that of the nine items, the nine particular research projects that are specified, three of the universities never even had submitted proposals to the Department of Defense at the time that the Committee on Appropriations put the earmarking in for these proposals. No proposals were even submitted by the universities. Without even an application being made, the Committee on Appropriations selected three of the universities.

The Department of Defense went out into the field, looked at the universities that had applied, looked at the universities that had been designated by the Appropriations Committee, and the Department of Defense found that four of these earmarked universities did not have the research capability to do the job that we were going to hire them to do in this appropriations bill.

So three universities had not even sent in applications and four of them were found incompetent to do the job by the Department of Defense. Yet the conference committee comes back with an amendment in disagreement to earmark funds for these universities.

The position that is taken by the Committee on Appropriations, the position that money should be earmarked and not awarded by competition or by merit, is opposed by the White House and has been opposed by the White House; it is opposed by the Department of Defense; and it is opposed by, I believe, every professional organization that has anything to do with the field of education or the field of science in America.

The concept of earmarking and earmarking in this bill has been specifically opposed by the Association of American Universities, by the National Association of State Universities and land-grant colleges, by the American Council on Education, by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, the American Physical Society, the National Academy of Sciences, the White House Science Adviser, the Department of Defense, and the Council of Scientific Society Presidents. Those are the opponents of this idea of earmarking.

Mr. President, let me turn briefly to the question of what earmarking does to our colleges and universities. We pride ourselves in this country on the quality of higher education. We pride ourselves that our colleges and universities are the cutting edge of America, this is the future of America. The capability not only of our colleges not only to train our young people but also to do very high-quality work in science and technology—this is the pride of America. If we adopt this amendment in disagreement, we are saying to our universities in this country that it does not matter whether they are qualified or not; it does not matter whether they have the capability to do research or not; it does not matter if they bother to file an application to do research with the Department of Defense or whatever department of the Federal Government. What matters is politics; what matters is pork-barrel politics; what matters is having the right friends on the right committees of the Congress of the United States.

There is a magazine which came out yesterday. It is Common Cause magazine. I suppose it is not the favorite magazine of a lot of people in the Senate, but that is neither here nor there. What is really striking about the magazine is the cover. This cover of Common Cause magazine shows three pigs, three pigs dressed up in academic garb, with morterboard hats and robes. The cover story is "Hog Heaven: How Pork Barrel Politics Pays Off for Universities."

Here is what universities are doing. I have heard this from educators. It is pretty well written up in this article.

Here is the state now of the relationship between our academic community and the Federal Government. There is a lobbyist in town named Mr. Cassidy. This Mr. Cassidy goes around to colleges and universities and says, "Pay me $2,000 a month for a minimum of 2 years and I will help you to get Government grants."

Mr. President, this is just plain wrong; it is just plain wrong for colleges to be bellying up to the trough of the Federal Government. If they want research grants to do research for our Government, it should be on the basis of their competence and their ability, not on hiring a lobbyist and getting into the pork barrel.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DANFORTH. Of course.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Was that the same issue of Common Cause magazine that spoke about the qualifications of Mr. Manion to be judge?

Mr. DANFORTH. I have not read it that far.

Mr. President, that is what this has done to our colleges and universities. It has transformed them into organizations that apply to lobbyists, pay lobbyists, lobby the Congress, just like anything else. I think that is wrong and I think that is what we are encouraging by this amendment in disagreement.

I think it is further true that from the standpoint on national defense—and that is that is what we are dealing with here, the national defense of this country—the strong point of the United States is not brawn, the strong of the United States is not how many people we have in arms or how many tanks or how much artillery we have.

□ 1530

The Soviet Union has much greater ones than we have. The strong point of the United States is the quality of what we have, the ability of our research people to maintain the absolute forefront of development with respect to science and technology. That is our strong point, and that is why money that is spent for national defense and for research in national defense should be spent wisely and not just dished out on a political basis.

If any one of us in the Senate had a child who was very, very sick, to what doctor would we go to treat the child? Clearly, we would pick out the most qualified doctor available because we want the best competence to save the life of our child.

If somebody were to come to us and say, "Please, instead of hiring or retaining the most competent physician, retain somebody who is friendly or retain somebody who needs the job," we would not do that for our own family.

But what is at stake in national defense spending is the country. It is our children, and we cannot just dish out research money on the basis of what Members are on the Appropriations Committee. It has to be done, in my opinion, on the basis of competence.

And finally—just one further point—we are going to have a continuing battle in the Congress on national defense spending. In the age of huge budget deficits and Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, we are going to be fighting this battle of how much we can spend for national defense for the foreseeable future. I have always supported a reasonable level of defense spending, at least I have thought it was reasonable. But always we are asked, "Isn't there fat in the defense budget? Isn't there waste in the defense budget?" And we always have to argue, "Oh, this money is being spent wisely and we in the Congress are doing our best to make sure that it is spent wisely and efficiently and well." And we are always being asked, "Well, how about the $600 toilet seats, or the $700 hammers?" or the latest indignity that we have read about. And we have said, "Oh, we didn't know about that but we found out about it and we stopped it."

Well, Mr. President, this is fat. This is waste. It is absolutely wasteful to take research money appropriated for the Department of Defense and give it to four universities that the Defense Department has found are not competent to spend the money. It is absolutely wasteful to take money that is appropriated for our national defense and give it to three universities that never even applied for it when the money was put in the budget. That is waste. It is likened to the $600 toilet seats. It is scandalous and it is wasteful, and I do not know how, with a straight face, we can say that we have squeezed the fat out of the defense budget when we are throwing money at universities because they have hired lobbyists to get the money.

Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry. As I understand it, as yet, a motion has not been made to approve the amendment in disagreement?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DANFORTH. In that case I yield the floor.

Mr. PROXMIRE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, I rise in support of the distinguished Senator from Missouri [Mr. DANFORTH]. I think he has made one of the best speeches I have heard in a long, long time on the floor.

On June 5, just 3 short weeks ago, the Senate passed, by an overwhelming 58 to 40 bipartisan majority, a majority of Republicans and majority of Democrats, an amendment of which Senator DANFORTH was the principal sponsor, which struck from this bill all earmarkings for defense research and development programs. This body, the U.S. Senate, said no to $80.6 million in earmarkings to 10 specific universities. None of these universities, Mr. President, not one, competed for these defense dollars. None, not one, won the award through the competitive process. None of these projects were authorized by the Armed Services Committee. None were requested by the Department of Defense. And in fact each one was opposed by the Department of Defense. That 58-to-40 vote on the Danforth amendment said no to pork-barrel science. It said no to the substitution of political power over open competition. It was a correct vote then. It is a correct vote now. Nothing has changed.

Mr. President, nothing has changed except that the conferees at the request of the House have overridden the Senate vote and placed $55.6 million of that $80 million of earmarking for nine universities back in the conference report. Now, I was on the conference and when I asked the House conferees what happened in the conference on this matter they responded, and I quote: "We had to give people what they wanted." So the earmarkings were restored. Nine universities will receive funding without going through competition, without being approved by the Department of Defense, and every other university in the rest of our States that would like to compete will lose out. Seven States win, forty-three States lose out, and the Nation loses out because the most competent researchers with the best capability will not have a chance to bid on these contracts.

Mr. President, this is just plain outrageous. Why the favoritism to these seven States? What makes them more equal than the other States? What gives them the right to stand at the front of the line and push all the others aside? Well, there is only one answer. They had patrons in the conference, patrons who look out for them, patrons who seek to insure that their universities get funding without going through competition where they may or may not survive.

Now, Mr. President, there is a hint in the conference university research amendment that having sinned once, having sinned once, the conference will not sin in the future. That is the rationale behind the curious wording of the proviso clause in the amendment, which states, and I quote now: "Provided that such grants or contributions are a one-time obligation and expenditure and shall not interfere with or change the existing system of competitive research grants or contracts."

Now, some people interpret that as meaning "we will never do it again. We did it this time, it was wrong, but we will not do it again." Well, taken literally, this language is a total contradiction of the amendment itself. The amendment provides funding for nine universities by going outside of, that is, by interfering with the existing system of competitive research grants or contracts. The implication is that this procedure shall not be followed again. Do you believe it? Do you believe it? Is it binding? Well, I have serious reservations as to whether or not it is binding. It does not appear to be binding in any legal way. It may be nothing more than a technique to insure violation of the competitive process one more time.

So, Mr. President, I support the Senator from Missouri in his effort to once again stop these earmarkings before the entire system of competition for defense dollars turns into a political test of wills and influence peddling.

That Danforth amendment has been strongly endorsed by the Defense Department on the basis of a vital principle. That principle was that the Defense Department should be allowed by Congress to allocate its research funds on the basis of professionally administered competition. The Defense Department contended that it could not secure research of the highest quality and the most reasonable cost unless they were allowed to rely on professionally administered competition.

Mr. President, on this issue, the Defense Department was absolutely right. Our military procurement is wasteful and scandalous enough without the kind of gross intervention by individual Members of the Congress contained in the initial appropriation bill when it came to the floor, and still contained, unfortunately, in the conference report.

What did the Appropriations Committee bill do before it was corrected by Senator DANFORTH'S amendment? It took 10 projects in 8 States out of the competitive process and, in effect, it ordered that research funds should go to these projects in those States regardless of merit, regardless of price, regardless of the judgment of professional experts selected to supervise the competition between our economic institutions.

□ 1540

What did the Senate and House conferees agree to do? They, in effect, thumbed their noses as the Senate. They directed that 9 out of 10 noncompeting projects the Senate had removed from the bill by the Danforth amendment would go right back in the bill.

Let me spend a minute on the project they excluded.

One project, the $25 million research allocation to Arizona State University, was not included. To his everlasting credit, that Arizona project was explicitly opposed by the senior Senator from Arizona, Senator BARRY GOLDWATER. Here was an extraordinary situation, a Senator rising to oppose these 10 specially packaged gifts to 8 States, although his own State received the biggest single allocation of all—$25 million. That fact alone was a major reason, Mr. President, why such a decisive majority of the Senate voted for the Danforth amendment and to delete all of this special, noncompetitive earmarking.

Why did Senator GOLDWATER vote against this earmarking of defense research funds that so heavily favored his own Arizona? Senator GOLDWATER is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. He is the prime majority expert in this body on national security. Senator GOLDWATER recognized what a serious threat this earmarking of defense funds for noncompetitive allocations is for the quality of defense research. He was supported in this position by Senator SAM NUNN, the ranking Democrat on the Armed Services Committee, this body's most minority expert on national defense, along with the distinguished Senator from Mississippi [Mr. STENNIS].

Senator NUNN spoke to me just a little while ago and said he felt it was a terrible thing that the conference had done in overriding the will of the Senate, so clearly and emphatically expressed on this matter.

The Defense Department itself takes the same position. Mind you, the Defense Department is not saying let us decide what institutions will get research funds. The Defense Department is saying let the allocation of defense research funds be decided by professionally supervised competition.

Mr. President, many of us in this body have criticized the waste and mismanagement in the Defense Department. The American people widely share the view that our Federal Government wastes billions on defense, in part because there is not enough competition in procuring the research as well as the weapons systems necessary to defend our national security interests. Throughout this country, we frequently hear the charge that the Government spends defense money to gratify some local economic or political interest. Do we waste money this way? Indeed, we do. Here is a prime example. There is nowhere that this criticism is more richly justified than in the deliberate, calculated, by-passing of competition represented by the action of conferees in flatly rejecting the emphatic decision of the Senate to eliminate all of the earmarked, noncompetitive research grants by adopting the Danforth amendment.

For these reasons, Mr. President, this Senator urges his colleagues to stay with the principle established by the Danforth amendment and to vote "no" on the pending amendment 91 to the conference report.

Mr. DECONCINI. Mr. President, I oppose the argument just put forth by my distinguished colleagues from Missouri and Wisconsin. They seem to approach this in a way that there is something wrong for one of us to come on this floor and try to represent a State university—or a private university, for that matter—that does not have the peer review process to even go to.

These particular projects we are talking about here are facilities. These are not proposals for some kind of research. They are the facilities to do the studying and the research.

I am disappointed that, once again, we have to stand here and defend a step that Members of the Senate have taken to help groups who are very worthy universities, who are seeking to expand the contribution they are trying to make to the scientific advancement of our country.

I say to my colleagues and the sponsors of this amendment that there is no money in amendment 91 for Arizona State University project at this time. That was taken out, and I am very sorry, and I will be glad to debate the Senator from Wisconsin on the reason why my senior colleague voted against this. There is far more to it than meets the eye. He is not here to engage in the debate today, so I see nothing gained by doing that. I have no vested interest in the universities that are covered by this provision in the conference report.

The real issue here has become bogged down in convoluted rhetoric about peer review and congressional responsibility. What we should be talking about is the appropriateness of spending more money on education and the facilities needs of institutions of higher education. We are all aware of the severe financial constraints under which we are operating. We all share a concern about balancing the budget. But we cannot lose sight of the necessity for spending funds essential to meet our future national needs. Developing university research facilities is fundamental to assuring our continued economic vitality and national security. It is our responsibility as Senators to support through appropriations, when necessary, efforts directed toward those goals. There is nothing sinister or wrong about this, in this Senator's judgment.

We should not have to be defending and debating the appropriateness of funds for university facilities or for education or for cancer research or for health care. We should recognize that we are making an investment in America's future through the education of its youth at universities with modern facilities. That is what is at stake today, as it was 2 weeks ago.

Some of my colleagues have implied that these university projects will take money away from other institutions, money that should have been awarded through peer review. That is not the case. First of all, there is no peer review system for funding university facilities. Second, if this money had not been appropriated for these universities, it would not have been appropriated at all.

Are we going to be so foolish as not to invest in our universities in order to have the facilities to do the research, so that we can have these weapons systems and the modern technology and scientific needs that this country has moved on for years?

This is not a matter of Senators injecting themselves into a peer review process. These funds are not for research projects but, rather, for research facilities and equipment. This is a matter of Senators injecting themselves—and properly so—into providing better facilities for more of our students at more universities throughout the country. I see absolutely nothing wrong with that. In my judgment, that is why we are sent here. This money should be spent in some universities. I am sorry it is not going to be spent in one in Arizona. But I am very supportive that it is going to be invested in some of the quality universities that are mentioned here and have been mentioned in past bills.

Some of my colleagues are talking about peer review and competition and money for research. They say we are acting out of turn, that we do not have the expertise to make decisions about research funding. We are not making decisions about research funding, and I underscore that. We are making decisions about research facilities. And we have the expertise to do so. We know the sorry state of the infrastructure of U.S. universities. Facilities needs have been variously estimated at in the range of $20 to $50 billion. What we are considering today will mark just a small step in meeting some of those needs for some of our universities who deserve this funding.

□ 1550

For those who are calling for more competition, let me just say that providing new facilities and equipment for these universities will increase the competition for peer reviewed research dollars later, and perhaps it is this increased competition that some of my colleagues find troublesome, because if we have more universities that have the facilities so that they can compete in the peer review, because now it goes to a very limited number of schools, about 16 to 20, there is not much competition, so these universities that are named here are the ones, and Arizona will have really no chance or opportunity to ever get into that peer review. Here we are not talking about a peer review. We are talking about the facilities that the research will be accomplished in.

I am all for competition. Let us help these universities enter that competition. Without new facilities and equipment, they will never be truly competitive and the bulk of Federal research dollars will remain in the hands of a few universities in this country, those prestigious schools with reputations, and I take nothing from them—they are great schools—but it seems to me that some of our other schools are just as great, if they had the right to compete, which they do not have because they do not have the facilities. Those of us who share my point of view on this issue are the ones seeking to increase the competition, not restrict it.

And I ask my colleagues who oppose this funding, where do you expect these universities to go for the funds? They go but to their elected representatives.

I do not believe we should be penalized for doing our constitutional right or they should be penalized. I do not believe we should punish them for seeking and coming to their representatives and asking for some assistance so that they can partake in the moneys for facilities only, so then they can come to the peer review process.

As U.S. Senators we have the authority and the responsibility to act and represent what we believe is good and we can make an expert judgment as to facilities. I submit, in this case, universities are our constituents.

They have made a legitimate request to Congress, and I believe we should exercise our prerogative and appropriate these funds for these universities.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I am not going to take very much time on the merits of this issue. I think the Senator from Missouri and the Senator from Wisconsin have discussed it very well.

Let me just indicate, though, that I firmly believe that allocating our research funds on the basis that it is represented in this bill is a guarantee that we will proceed down the path of mediocrity in our national research enterprise.

For those of us who are interested in the long-term economic competitiveness of our Nation, I need to point out that our trading partners are not allocating our research funds on this kind of basis. The Japanese and Germans do not allocate research funds on the basis of which district happens to be represented on the Appropriations Committee in their particular legislative body.

We need to continue to use competitive merit-based procedures to allocate our limited research funds if we are not going to fall even further behind some of our international competitors in some of these key fields.

Mr. President, earlier this week the Senate took a very major step away from special interest legislating when we adopted the tax bill which was before us. As Senator LONG might say we stood up for the fellow behind the tree. The Senator from Louisiana is famous for his saying, "Don't tax you, don't tax me, tax the fellow behind the tree."

I would suggest that if that has been the rule here with regard to tax law for some years and perhaps we made a break with it this week—I would like to think so—but perhaps we have a different rule that is equally applicable or becoming applicable to the allocation of research funds which might be stated, "Don't forget you, don't forget me, don't forget those fellows behind the tree."

I think clearly we cannot afford to aliocate research funds on that kind of basis.

Mr. President, we need to allow the Department of Defense and its professional staff to allocate these resources to universities who put forth the best research proposals, and that is all that the Senator from Missouri is asking for here. These nine earmarked projects that have been referred to are not just new money that has been found. These projects are being funded from seven different defense research accounts. All of those accounts, I might point out here, are funded below the President's request in this year's budget, in the 1986 budget.

I have a table that I have prepared showing the cuts that we, Congress, have made in those seven accounts already that I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the table was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EARMARKED ACCOUNTS—FISCAL YEAR 1986 DEFENSE RESEARCH BUDGET

[In millions of dollars]

Account	President's request	Appropriations (following Gramm-Rudman)	Earmark
Army Defense Research Sciences	236.9	222.1	[1] 8.5
Army Military Disease Hazards Technology	29.0	26.0	[2] 2.0
Air Force Defense Research Sciences	206.3	194.5	[3] 6.5
Air Force, Very High Speed Integrated Circuits	193.8	191.1	[4] 13.5
DARPA, Defense Research Sciences	92.6	79.2	[5] 2.0
Defense Nuclear Agency	384.4	318.1	[6] 11.1
DARPA, Strategic Technology	254.4	216.7	[7] 12.0
Totals	1397.4	1247.7	55.6

[1] $5 million for Wichita State University for aviation research; $3.5 million for University of Nevada, Las Vegas, for computer research.
[2] $2 million for University of Kansas for neurotoxin research.
[3] $6.5 million for Iowa State University for unspecified research.
[4] $13.5 million for Northeastern University for engineering research.
[5] $1 million for Oregon Graduate Center for advanced semiconductor research; $1 million for Oklahoma State University for unspecified research.
[6] $11 million for Rochester Institute of Technology for microelectronics engineering and imaging sciences research.
[7] $12 million for Syracuse University for the CASE Center computer research project.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Overall, we have cut these seven research accounts by 11 percent for $150 million from what the Preseident asked for. If we force the Department of Defense to earmark another $55.6 billion of these funds we will be effectively making another 4-percent cut in these accounts. For some accounts, such as the Defense Nuclear Agency's account and DARPA's strategic technology account, the overall cut that would result would reach 20 percent or more.

I can assure you the Japanese are not making a 20-percent cut in their fifth-generation computer project and the Soviets are not making a 20-percent cut in their research on nuclear weapons effects in order to fund marginal projects in important legislator's districts. We should not be doing so either.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to reject this approach to the allocation of defense funds and to support Senator DANFORTH's stand in favor of a merit-based competition for these funds.

I yield the floor, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, first of all I would like to associate myself with the remarks made by my distinguished colleague from Arizona, Senator DECONCINI.

I think it is worthwhile noting, Mr. President, the fact of the matter is that there is no peer review system for funding construction of science and technology facilities for our Nation's universities. It is a specious argument, absolutely specious. And yet, we keep hearing over and over and over that somehow we are interfering with this magnificent peer review system that works so well.

I would like to address some comments with respect to that system and I intend to ask for a GAO investigation because those that have been undertaken so far have not indicated that it has been run the way it should. It is the old buddy system and we will refer to that in my remarks.

Mr. President, the fact of the matter is, there is no peer review system for funding the construction of science and technology facilities for our Nation's universities.

A report from the Congressional Research Service—I will give Senators a copy of that—from Mr. Bosman of the Office of Science and Technology states:

> • • • I have made inquiries at the National Science Foundation [NSF], the Association of American Universities [AAU], and the General Accounting Office [GAO] concerning the application of the Federal peer review system to the construction of federally funded R&D facilities. These inquiries have brought to light no comprehensive surveys of explicit statutory mandates or regulatory requirements for the application of Federal peer review procedures to R&D facility construction, although peer review of Federal research projects is widespread.

Thus Mr. President, this argument that has suddenly come to the floor about peer review as it relates to construction of science and technological facilities is specious. That is the point that a number of us have been attempting to make. It may very well in the future provide some legitimate competition for relatively few universities that seem to share in a disproportionate amount of the research grants that are presently put out and spent out. It may even shake up the old boy network on peer review, that means the taxpayers, that appropriate the dollars we authorize appropriate and send to the university systems, and they will decide who under their councils of peer review will get the dollars. I would suggest that maybe we should look rather closely at that.

Thus, the peer review system is in place for research, instrumentation, and programs of that nature. But little, if any peer review is available for the assessment of proposals for the construction or renovation of facilities. Therefore, the argument that Congress is affecting the peer review system is misleading. All to often, the charges of the critics and the statements of the defenders do not appear to refer to the same topics (Science, Technology & Human Values, vol. 10, issue 3, summer 1985, Funding Science: The Real Defects of Peer Review and an Alternative to it, by Rustum Roy).

□ 1600

The fact of the matter is, the Department of Education for the first time since 1974 plans to conduct a program for funding facilities this year. The National Science Foundation has no line item program for facilities construction. NSF only has a recently developed policy statement. Therefore, there are no line item programs to funds university facility needs. Hence, there is no "peer preview" system to assess or fund facility needs.

In addition, many fail to recognize that in the recent 1986 report to the White House Science Council—panel on the Health of U.S. Colleges and Universities to the Office of Science and Technology Policy—that at a minimum $10 billion, $5 billion Federal and $5 billion non-Federal sources is needed to address the magnitude of the university infrastructure shortfall over the next 10 years.

Only a few agenices have ever allocated funds for facilities. For example, in 1984 the U.S. Government spent just under $50 million in support of science and engineering research and development [R&D] plants: This total includes construction, as well as renovation and repairs for existing facilities.

The Academic Facilities Program of the Department of Education has not had funds for the construction, reconstruction and renovation of academic facilities since 1974. For 1986, $38 million will be awarded under this program. The dates for the announcement have not been determined but already more than 700 inquiries have come into the Department of Education for funding. This $38 million represents less than 1 percent (.76 percent of $5 billion) of the $5 billion Federal share needed by our universities. No peer review; just beginning to come into a process of allocating some funds.

The National Science Foundation [NSF] does not have a program in place to systematically fund university facility construction and renovation. However, NSF has recently developed a policy to examine proposals that come in for facility construction assistance. This is not a clear signal of available funds for our universities. It is an indication that their needs will be considered. In the past, for example, NSF has funded construction for particular facilities in conjunction with the engineering programs, chemistry program, et cetera. For example, the engineering center's competition included funds for construction along with proposals that focused mostly on engineering research.

The few million that we are discussing is a small step toward meeting the $10 billion needed to address the infrastructure needs—both facilities and equipment—of our Nation's universities. We cannot afford to wait until the recommendations of the Packard Commission are acted upon to provide funding for university facilities. We must act now to help address a compelling national need.

Indeed, Congress has always played a major role in deciding which universities will receive funds for research facilities. During World War II and through the 1950's and 1960, Congress made a major commitment to building university facilities and national laboratories, which were most often also affiliated with universities. In making these decisions, Congress recognized that university research facilities were essential to the economic health of the country and vital to our national defense. "Peer review" did not come into play at that time, nor has peer review generally been applied to decisions concerning facilities. The Department of Defense does not have any tradition of using outside peer review panels to make decisions concerning the funding of research programs or facilities. Thus, we have been accused of violating a system that does not exist for the construction and renovation of science and engineering facilities.

The critics of these direct approaches to Congress have rallied around the concept of "peer review." However, the General Accounting Office [GAO] has several reports suggesting that without proper controls specialists who are appointed for proposal evaluation are involved in conflict of interest. In fact, GAO report number HRD 78-121 (November 17, 1978) shows: "Accountability in the evaluation process continues to be a problem. All proposal files should show why the experts were selected and how their comments were handled, so that Foundation officials who review the staff's recommended decisions on proposals can be sure that equitable evaluations are made." Furthermore, GAO report number PAD 81-16 (January 15, 1981) mentions that some reviewers have made decisions on grant proposals that create an appearance of impropriety under applicable Federal guidelines, policies and regulations.

The findings reported in the National Science Foundation's January 1986 publication is worthy of note. Federal support to universities, colleges, and selected nonprofit institutions for fiscal year 1984 shows that the top 10 universities received 27 percent of NSF funds. This represents about $277 million of $1 billion. The top 20 universities received 42 percent, or about $422 million of NSF's $1 billion. If you consider the total of $8.4 billion in both R&D and FFRDC funds nationwide for 1984, the top 20 universities received more than $4.7 billion or more than 55 percent of these funds.

Similar findings have been summized by members in the academic community. For example, the president of Boston University, John Silber before the Congressional Science Policy Task Force (June 26, 1985) stated: "In practice, however, the system of peer review now in operation in this country is seriously flawed. Approximately 20 institutions, clustered in only three geographic regions receive nearly half of all Federal support." Daniel S. Greenberg in the October 1985 issue of Discover, entitled Science and Politics stated, "* * * Is U.S. science really injured by these end runs? Not a bit. Congressional wile and muscle have always played a major role in the economic and cultural development of this country."

Therefore, while peer review is clearly an appropriate mechanism for the evaluation of proposals for individual research projects, it is not the only appropriate or necessary mechanism for decisions on the location of federally supported or congressionally mandated research facilities. In its more extreme forms, the argument on behalf of the existing system of peer review incorporates several erroneous assumptions and neglects issues that are critical to the economic health and well-being of the United States and the research community itself.

The basic research conducted at universities provides the foundation for the later commercial development and application of new products and technologies critical to maintaining our ability to compete in the international marketplace and to be assured of a strong national defense. Therefore, it is equally important that the Congress makes certain that we have facilities to house this important research.

Mr. President, the location of university research facilities has enormous economic consequences both for the Nation at large and for the community in which they are situated, in particular. New facilities create new jobs and attract new industries. Decisions on where facilities should be built and what purpose they should serve have ramifications that go well beyond the realm of scientific responsibility or insight. Congress must make these decisions for it has the wisdom and the responsibility to do so.

Mr. President, I believe that the cry of those who oppose these funding projects on the altar of peer review is simply crying wolf when there exists no danger, where there is no intrusion to the academic life of science and research, but rather a legitimate expression of Members of Congress to aid and assist those universities who, for the most part, otherwise would be without.

UNIVERSITIES FACILITIES FUNDING

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the conference committee report to the supplemental appropriations bill. I was particularly pleased to note that my colleagues on the committee saw fit to put back in the bill funds for a number of university projects. This action rectifies the previous decision by the Senate to strike funding for these worthy institutions. I am glad that the midnight madness the Senate engaged in a few weeks ago in striking this provision of the bill can be redressed.

I would just like to make a few brief points to refute the allegations that have been made inaccurately against these universities and those of us in Congress that are supporting their cause.

First of all, to label congressional backing for university research facilities and equipment as "pork barrel politics" is needlessly inflammatory and altogether unjust.

Second, any attempt to classify these universities as saboteurs of some hallowed peer review system is inaccurate. These universities are merely exercising their constitutional rights to petition Congress on their own behalf. Congress should listen to their arguments, weigh the merits of the case, and make a decision. Congress should not be guided by unsubstantiated allegations that support for facilities at these universities might—just might—somehow, in some unspecified way, reduce the quality of scientific research in this country. I don't believe that. In fact, all the evidence points to the contrary conclusion: Funding for these facilities will contribute and add to both the quality and quantity of scientific research in this country, just as the Federal investments in our national laboratories and other universities have done in the past.

Mr. President, there is certainly a need for geographical equity in the distribution of university research funds. By exercising its legislative prerogative to earmark funds for special programs, Congress can help to redress the institutional and geographical imbalance which currently exists in the distribution of Federal research support to universities.

In 1984, 20 universities located primarily in the Northeast, and in California received 56 percent of all Federal research support. Universities in the South, the Southeast, the Southwest, the Plains States, and the Rocky Mountain States received only modest amounts of Federal research support.

It is not fair to funnel a disproportionate amount of our research dollars to only a handful of institutions located primarily on the east or west coast. The scientific talent of the country should not be confined to one or two geographical locations simply because the universities in these areas have the most modern facilities.

It is in the national interest to broaden the base of scientific research development and education in this country beyond the 20 schools which year after year receive the majority of Federal research dollars.

Third, opponents of university facility funding completely overlook the fact that considerations other than existing scientific capability must legitimately be taken into account when deciding whether or not to fund a university facility. Foremost among other considerations is whether or not a university facility will contribute to the economic development of the area in which it is located and to the Nation generally. The construction of a new facility will create jobs. Better facilities and improved equipment will attract top-flight talent to a university. Industries with interests related to the research agenda of the university will be attracted to that location in order to be near a source of supply of well qualified personnel and to be close to facilities where research on the cutting edge of new technologies is being conducted. Because of the important economic implications involved in funding these university projects, I believe it is altogether fitting that Congress reserve for itself the right to make some of these decisions.

University research facilities often serve as an anchor for industrial parks in which academia and industry work in partnership to apply research findings to the commercial development of new products and technologies vital to our national economic growth. University research facilities can and will stimulate the economic development of a community by attracting new industries in the areas of the university's research inquiries. The proximity of a university to industry will allow for the exchange of ideas, information, personnel, and technologies which will enhance the research quality and facilitate the increased commercial application of research findings.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to join me in voting in favor of the conference committee report.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, the issue in question here is whether or not nine universities which received $55.6 million for research funding under the DOD appropriations bill last year should actually receive the funds as Congress had directed. This is not a new issue. Congress has already appropriated these funds in this way once. We are merely trying to make certain that the intent of the Congress is carried out, and that Congress has some say as to where at least some of the research money in the DOD budget should go. These funds would be provided in addition to what the Pentagon had requested for research funds which would be subject to an internal peer review process.

After the passage of the continuing resolution for fiscal year 1986, the Department of Defense notified Congress that it was unable to obligate the funds appropriated for the university research facilities for construction purposes. This amendment to the conference committee report provides the authorization necessary to carry out the intent of the Congress as expressed in the continuing resolution.

FUNDING FOR FACILITIES, NOT RESEARCH

Mr. President, there is one issue that should be clarified at the outset—the funds under consideration in amendment No. 91 are for university facilities and equipment. They are not funds for research programs and activities. Therefore, it is debatable as to whether these funds should be subject to a so-called peer review process at all. True research money is not the issue here. This amendment to the conference report provides new funds to the Department of Defense specifically for the construction of facilities and the purchase of equipment. It does not take away previously appropriated funds which were to be awarded to universities through a competitive process.

NOT DISPROPORTIONATE SHARE

The $55.6 million contained in the amendment to the supplemental conference report represents just 4 percent of DOD spending on university research in fiscal year 1986—it hardly represents a "disproportionate share" of DOD funds for university research.

If the $55.6 million under consideration today were to be given directly to the Department of Defense for university research, it is likely, given past performance, that the funds would end up in the hands of those universities that are already receiving substantial support from the Federal Government for their research activities.

Again, I want to emphasize that the funds in question were added to the DOD budget for university research; the funds were not taken away from other university research programs at DOD.

PREVIOUS FEDERAL FUNDING PATTERNS

Mr. President, if you look at DOD funding patterns for university research in fiscal year 1984, you will find that just two institutions—MIT and Johns Hopkins—received $640 million or 49 percent of all university research funds awarded by the Department of Defense. Further, DOD awarded $862 million or 66 percent of its university research funds to just 10 institutions, while 76 percent of the funds went to only 20 institutions.

The Department of Defense does not have any tradition of using outside peer review panels to make decisions concerning the funding of research programs or facilities. Congress has been accused of circumventing a system that does not exist. Further, there is no existing Government program specifically designed to fund university research facilities. Only a few agencies ever allocate funds for such facilities, and they do so on an ad hoc basis. Such projects comprise only a small part of their budgets.

Nearly half of Federal research funds—48%—went to just 15 universities, 7 of which were located in California and 8 of which were located in the Northeast. I ask that a list of the top 20 recipients of Federal research funds in fiscal year 1984, showing the amount of funding each received, be included in the RECORD at this point, along with the list of the top 20 recipients of National Science Foundation funds in fiscal year 1984.

COMPETITION SHOULD BE FAIR

Without state-of-the-art facilities, universities cannot effectively compete for research funds. At the present time, just 20 universities receive $4.7 billion of the $8.5 billion the Government spends for research development—56 percent of the total.

The major part of these Federal research funds goes to a handful of institutions located primarily on the east or west coasts. Universities located in the Midwest, the Rocky Mountain States, the Southwest, and the South are virtually locked out of the competition for significant Federal support of their research activities. In fiscal year 1984, for example, 56 percent of all Federal funds for university research went to just 20 institutions, 7 of which were located in California.

In order to compete effectively for Federal research funds, universities must have state-of-the-art facilities. Until they possess such facilities, institutions will continue to be at a serious disadvantage in the competition for research funding and will be denied the opportunity of developing to their fullest potential.

Once these universities have modern research facilities, they will be competing for research funds under peer review and other existing systems for allocating research funds.

Facilities are instrumental in attracting faculty, industry, and private support to a university. With a state-of-the-art facility, a university will be able to attract the outstanding faculty necessary to conduct high quality research. In today's mobile society, scientists and professors are willing to relocate to those institutions that offer them the most up-to-date setting in which to work. The scientific talent in this country should not be confined to one or two geographic areas simply because the universities in these places may have the most modern facilities. Other universities deserve a chance to compete on equitable terms.

OPPOSITION FROM UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY

Mr. President, only a small segment of the academic and scientific community opposes the earmarking of funds. Just this morning I received a telephone call from Dr. Jean Meyer, the president of Tufts University. He firmly believes that Congress has every right to direct where the research money that it appropriates goes. Further, he described the peer review process as an "old boys network" that feels threatened every time something new happens. He does not think there should be only one system supporting research. Of the peer review process, he stated: "It is a self-interested, confused approach to use only one mode of funding research."

Further, in a letter to my distinguished colleague from Illinois, Mr. SIMON, the president of Northwestern University in Chicago says:

> Senator DANFORTH's argument that academic facility grants should not be approved without peer review, is somewhat disingenuous in light of the fact that there has not been any significant amount of peer-reviewed funding for academic facilities during the past fifteen years . . . moreover, peer review is not the only appropriate or necessary mechanism for decisions on the location of federally funded academic research.

In the June 15, 1986, issue of the Science and Government Report, those opposed to earmarking have been described as "well-heeled institutions who can mobilize to keep their privileged place in the distribution of Federal research funds."

KANSAS PROJECTS

Mr. President, as my colleagues know, this supplemental contains $5 million for Wichita State University in Wichita, KS, to construct an aviation research center. This Senator would not have supported that program if it did not have significant merit and was not strongly supported by the community itself, as well as surrounding industries. Wichita happens to be the heart of the aircraft industry, and the Boeing, Cessna, and Beech companies have pledged to match the Federal funds dollar-for-dollar. This is what I consider to be an outstanding example of public-private sector cooperation.

The basic research conducted at universities provides the foundation for the later commercial development and application of new products and technologies critical to maintaining America's ability to compete in the international marketplace. This type of effort is also critical in establishing and maintaining a strong national defense.

The location of university research facilities has enormous economic consequences for the Nation at large and for the communities and regions in which they are situated in particular. New facilities create new jobs and attract new industries. Decisions on where such facilities should be built and what their purpose should be have implications that surpass the realm of scientific responsibility or wisdom. Congress, not the academic community, often has a better sense of priorities in making these decisions.

University research facilities will stimulate the economic development of a community by attracting new industries interested in the university's research endeavors. The proximity of a university to certain industries will allow for the exchange of ideas, information, personnel, and technologies which will enhance the quality of the research and facilitate the rapid commercial application of research findings.

At this point, I might also mention that $2 million are designated to go to the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, KS, to carry out research activities related to toxic substances. I believe both of these projects have great merit, and should not be viewed in the negative light that some have attempted to shine on this issue.

CONCLUDING REMARKS

Mr. President, the nine universities that were designated to receive funds appropriated in the continuing resolution last year have relied on receipt of these funds. They have engaged in their own fundraising activities through the private sector, and if these funds are withdrawn at this point, it will leave them in a most awkward financial position. Such a situation is unfair and unjust. Congress in this instance is simply upholding action that it has already taken in last year's appropriations process. The conference committee has decided to restore specific funding for nine university research projects. I suggest that we should support the action of the conference committee. I urge my colleagues to vote against the motion of the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. HATFIELD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. EVANS). The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment to Senate amendment No. 91 and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. DOLE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I am going to move that we go back into executive session—but I want the distinguished minority leader to be alerted—and consider the motion to reconsider the Manion nomination. Then I will move to table the motion to reconsider and, hopefully, we can dispose of that matter and then not further interrupt the distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Committee with reference to the supplemental.

I indicated to the minority leader's staff earlier that this would be my procedure so there would not be any surprise. I will wait for the distinguished minority leader to come to the floor.

Mr. KENNEDY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I rise in support of the funding for university projects that is contained in the supplemental appropriations bill being debated today.

Let me begin by stating that I support the concept of merit-based peer review—when it is applicable. The peer review process has been established by several Government agencies to ensure that research funds awarded to academic, scientific, and medical institutions maintain our Nation's position as the leader in scientific and technological development. However, the current debate focuses on an entirely different issue. The issue before the Senate is whether new funds should be specifically appropriated for the construction of research facilities and the purchase of research equipment to academic institutions of established reputation who seek to become competitors for research money in a field dominated by a select group of universities that seek to maintain their privileged position. This is an important distinction.

□ 1610

First, let me address a misconception. Currently, there is no merit review process in place, whether at the Department of Defense or elsewhere, for reviewing the allocation of Federal funds for university construction projects. The peer review process is used in awarding funds for research in already existing facilities, but is not the basis upon which the Government distributes money for the construction of research facilities and equipment.

In fact, only a few agencies allocate funds for facilities and such projects constitute a small portion of their budgets. These scarce resources fail to meet an increasing problem of obsolete equipment and aging facilities that threatens the quality of academic research. Recently, the White House Science Council estimated the infrastructure needs of our Nation's universities to be approximately $10 billion.

In fiscal year 1984, the U.S. Government spent less than $50 million for the repair and construction of science and engineering research and development facilities.

Second, the overwhelming beneficiaries of merit-review in the awards of current research funds are a small group of select institutions that have benefited over the past several decades from the millions of dollars in Federal support, awarded on a non-merit review basis, for the construction of modern, sophisticated research facilities. In 1984, 56 percent of all Federal research funds went to only 20 universities. The construction of the research facilities at these select universities was not based on competitive merit-based review. But that support has been critical to their success in competing for Federal research funds that are subject to merit review.

Now, these same universities want to deny Federal support to other schools that are attempting to build their own research facilities in order to compete more effectively for scarce Federal research dollars. The great bulk of present Federal research funds flows to universities that benefited from past building programs, and it is unfair to deny other universities the opportunity to acquire the facilities essential to compete effectively for scarce research funds.

Obviously, these top educational institutions are performing quality research. But I am concerned that denying opportunities to other institutions will only serve to worsen the existing system and perpetuate the current double standard.

I particularly object to the "pull up the ladder" mentality by which existing elite institutions are seeking to keep other good institutions down.

The funds proposed to be awarded to nine educational institutions in this legislation is Federal money well-spent. Funding for university research facilities will serve a dual benefit.

It will increase the quality and quantity of research conducted in the United States by expanding the research base to include more universities. University research facilities will also stimulate the economic development of their communities by attracting new industries interested in the university's research endeavors. Northeastern University—one of the proposed beneficiaries of these funds—is an excellent example.

Northeastern intends to utilize these funds for the construction of a high technology resource center that is the focal point of an impressive community redevelopment program for the Roxbury-Dudley area—a chronically depressed part of Boston.

This redevelopment project will have a beneficial impact on the economy of a poor community. It will have the short-term effect of creating construction jobs, and it will have the long-term effect of promoting further economic development.

Through its unique cooperative educational program, Northeastern University has proven its commitment to the community by providing an equal educational opportunity to all people—regardless of income or race.

By assisting institutions such as Northeastern University in their important educational work, the Federal Government will assist thousands of Americans who may not otherwise have access to a quality education, stimulate the economy of these areas and provide new employment opportunities for community residents.

I am proud to lend my assistance to Northeastern University and other academic institutions that have labored diligently in a highly competitive environment to become respected members of the educational community. I ask my colleagues not to turn their backs on the future of these institutions and the students at these schools who are destined to become our future leaders.

Mr. HARKIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DANFORTH). The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the motion by the distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Committee to concur in the conference report. I have just a couple of things I want to talk about with regard to this. I think the first one is regarding just who the lobbyists are that are lobbying on either side of the issue we are talking about here on the floor now.

I was quite astounded sitting in my office of hear the name of an individual for whom I have a high regard who is not a Member of the Senate, but an individual in the private sector, who represents different universities, who does a lot of work with universities, and I could not believe my ears to hear his name and his firm used in a rather pejorative sense. The individual referred to, Mr. Cassidy, does indeed have a firm in Washington in which people are employed to assist universities all over the United States, assist them not just in lobbying here in Washington, but to assist them in development programs, research programs, building science parks. There are over 50 people employed in this firm in helping universities develop and grow.

I cannot think of more laudable work to be done than in helping to build the scientific and educational base of this country. There are a lot of lobbyists in Washington. There are a lot of people to lobby for different things. I cannot think of a more laudable goal to be lobbying for than to increase the educational research, and scientific basis of this country.

So I was quite astounded to hear Mr. Cassidy's name and his firm used in that rather pejorative sense.

I would just point out again for the record, to be quite clear, that in this firm of Cassidy & Associates there is the former president of the University of Alabama, Dr. Frank Rose, 14 years president of the University of Alabama, a distinguished academician in his own right. He is there in this firm to help other universities develop their programs.

Also in this firm is Dr. Elvis Stahr, former president of the University of Indiana.

So to speak of this firm as just a bunch of lobbyists I think really is being a little bit disingenuous on the part of the Senator from Missouri when he used Mr. Cassidy's name here on the floor. The fact is that this group of individuals are involved, as I said, in helping universities all over the country.

But as long as we are talking about lobbyists, I did not hear the distinguished Senator from Missouri talk about another lobbyist, Jack Crowley, who is the registered lobbyist for the AAU here in town, who I am sure has been in offices all over the Hill, I am sure has been in the office of the distinguished Senator from Missouri and others, and calls all the time on the phone; or even Mr. Robert Rosenfweig the President of the AAU.

Come on. Let us face it. There are lobbyists all over who lobby for their interests. Jack Crowley is no different than any other lobbyist.

So when we are talking about individuals here on the floor of the Senate, I think we have to be a little bit careful about naming names because sometimes these things can tend to come back to haunt us.

As long as we are talking about lobbying, on behalf of universities, let me point out that Stanford University employs lobbyists from three different congressional offices, employees who formerly worked here on the Hill just to lobby for Stanford University.

The University of California has a full-scale lobbying office right here in Washington. The State of California has allocated $1½ million to lobby in Washington for one project in the State of California, the supercollider—$1½ million just to lobby for that.

So I think really when we are trying to cast aspersions on individuals who are doing work here in Washington; that is, work in two areas, one to get the Congress to allocate more money for research and development, and for facilities and equipment to upgrade the research base that we have in this country, then I think that it is somewhat disingenuous at best to say they are just lobbying on behalf of special interests.

□ 1620

I also think that individuals who are here working with universities around the United States to help them upgrade their facilities and equipment, ought to be applauded for their efforts rather than trying to be degraded.

So, Mr. President, I just wanted to make that point and to point out that there are all kinds of lobbyists around this town. When you name one, we might get on the list and name a couple thousand if that is what we want to do here.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I do not want to make a motion to go into executive session without the distinguished minority leader being present.

Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Washington.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. EVANS. Mr. President, I have listened to some tortured reasoning this afternoon on why the proposals made in the supplemental appropriations do not constitute good old-fashioned pork barreling. But they are indeed tortured sets of reasoning.

I had the privilege of serving for 6 years as president of a small college. I think only one other Member has had that privilege, that being the junior Senator from West Virginia, Senator ROCKEFELLER.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator withhold? There is not order in the Chamber.

The Senator from Washington.

Mr. EVANS. I thank the Chair.

Neither of those colleges were part of the old-boy network. We were not part of, as someone said, the three major geographic areas of the Nation to which 50 percent of this research money goes. We would have to fight and fight hard indeed for any piece of any action, and yet felt very strongly that what we got we should deserve, and we should deserve on the basis of review by those who have a significant and I think detached view of research, of research facilities, and how research facilities and research personnel and research capacity all tied in together.

Mr. President, we just had a vote on this very issue just a few weeks ago, and the vote, as I remember it, was rather substantially in favor of retaining a peer review and objecting to this concept of pass it around among the committee members according to who lobbied best. That vote, as I remember, was something like 60 to 40.

And yet 2 weeks later we are faced on the floor of the Senate with the same issue coming back to us and we are placed in the position, in a somewhat adverse situation, of trying to sustain the vote which we made just a short time ago.

That is the nature of conference committees, I suppose.

I would only pass along to all of my colleagues who worked hard, many who supported versions of the Senate-financed package in the tax reform bill, that we have now sent that on to a conference committee. Are we going to have the votes that were cast so overwhelmingly in the Senate on versions of that tax reform bill come back to us after conference totally twisted and turned about?

I would hope not.

Mr. President, let us just knock away all the gloss and all of the verbiage and all of the words. What we are talking about here is just plain good fatback pork, and those who are advocating the specificity of certain universities and certain colleges are those who would just like to get some good old fat side pork.

These are not roads or bridges.

I might say, Mr. President, we do not even try to do that much anymore. We have gotten over that old characteristic of trying to specify whose road and whose bridge would get built. We recognized that that ought to be done in a different way. It ought to be done on the basis of need. It ought to be done on the basis of engineering determinations. It ought to be done in a scientific or at least a respectable way.

But here we are not just dealing with roads and bridges. We are dealing with brains. We are dealing with the future of the Nation. We are dealing with the only thing that is likely to keep us competitive. We are dealing with the only thing that is likely to keep us competitive in the years ahead. I think we ought to be very careful before we substitute the pure lobbying of one Member to another for a specific benefit for one college or university or another in place of a responsible system.

Mr. President, I would only say, finally, that it might even be possible to do this if the Department of Defense asked for it, thought that it was a better idea, felt that the current situation was bad.

Mr. President, we have seen fit in the last couple of years, and I suspect we will see fit again this year, to reduce the Defense Department budget, to make it imperative on the Defense Department to use each dollar in the best way they can. But I do not see the Defense Department here asking for this kind of specificity. In fact, in a letter sent to several Senators, Secretary Weinberger made a strong case against the earmarking in the supplemental.

The Department funds research including that conducted at colleges and universities that is in support of our defense mission. Except when otherwise authorized by statute, individual projects are competitively selected for funding after taking account of all relevant considerations with the particular emphasis on the research needs of the Department and the technical merit of the research proposal.

Mr. President, in a time of tight defense budgets, at a time when many Members of this body are supporting the need for continued research in some important defense fields, including SDI, it seems to me not very smart to ignore the request of the Secretary of Defense, to veer away from the kind of practical, continuous, long-term review that has been done by the Department of Defense.

It is tough enough to limit defense now. It is even tougher to specify something the Defense Department does not want. I think it would not be in their best interest, and certainly is not in the best interest of either the scientific community of this country, the broad university community of this country, or in our own future which depends so much on legitimate funding of research and development.

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

The Senator will withhold. The Senate is not in order.

The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I would like to pose a question to the managers of the bill. As I understand the situation we are in right now—unless we adopt the position of the committee as articulated by the chairman thereof—if we do go in and change the position agreed to in the conference, then we could find ourselves in the uncomfortable situation of forcing this measure back to the House of Representatives, which, from all practical standpoints, would set this aside and we would have to revisit this on July 15, or sometime thereafter when we return.

Is that the parliamentary situation that we find ourselves in now?

Mr. WEICKER. The Senator from Nebraska is correct.

Mr. EXON. Aside from the very important matter of the universities and under other circumstances I might find myself in support of the position taken by my distinguished friend from Washington, my friend from Wisconsin, and others. I would simply say that we have made a compromise, an unfortunate compromise, about eliminating the REA funding consideration because the President put a gun to our heads and said, "You either change that or I will veto the bill."

We have gone ahead and we waived that, unfortunately. As I said earlier, I do not believe the conferees had any option other than to agree to that.

I would simply say that we are going to find ourselves in the same situation if we do not accept the recommendation from the chairman of the Appropriations Committee. Therefore, in this instance, I would hope that the Senate would not agree to resist at this juncture the matter of where funding goes to universities, as worthy as that might be.

I simply say once again, that this measure is too important. We have to get this through and get the money flowing, following the commitments that we made to the people of the United States of America. Therefore, I hope when we come to a vote, in whatever form it comes, we go along with the recommendation of the chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

□ 1630

Mr. WEICKER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. EVANS). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, I wanted to clarify a point made by the Senator from Nebraska and the Senator from Connecticut.

It is my understanding that subsequent to the disposition of this issue on university research, there is going to be an issue raised by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. JOHNSTON] relating to trade adjustment assistance. I believe it is correct to say that the effect of that is that this conference report is going to have to go back to the House anyway. Is that not right?

Mr. WEICKER. That depends on the disposition of the amendment of the Senator from Louisiana, which, very frankly, I think might share the same fate as the amendment of the distinguished Senator from Missouri. So I would not want to say that is going to be the case.

Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, in other words, it is not correct to say that whether or not this matter goes back to the House depends solely on the position that we take on university research?

Mr. WEICKER. Mr. President, I do not think that statement was made either by the distinguished chairman of the committee or the Senator from Connecticut. The question that was asked is, if this amendment passed, would it go to the House? The answer was yes. It was not a question of solely——

Mr. DANFORTH. The same would be true of the amendment on trade adjustment assistance.

Mr. WEICKER. The same would be true of any amendment. That is a matter of speculation on the part of the distinguished Senator from Missouri.

Mr. SYMMS. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

□ 1640

Mr. WEICKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the call for the quorum be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is on the motion to concur in the amendment of the House.

Is there further debate?

Mr. HARKIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further proceeding under the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, prior to having the vote on this motion, I want to respond to one point that was brought up in the debate on this issue the first time it came around several weeks ago.

In reading the RECORD at that time after the vote was taken, it became clear to this Senator that perhaps there had been some misconceptions on the part of some people as to what we were talking about in terms of the $56 million and the universities involved in these projects. I want to quote from the RECORD debate on June 5 of this year.

The distinguished Senator from Missouri said, "The issue raised by the amendment is whether the Appropriations Committee should earmark research money to certain specified universities."

Mr. President, the amendment at that time, just as the provision before us right now, does not provide funds for research projects. It provides funds for facilities and equipment. So that is not the issue. Let no one be led astray that we are talking about doing away with the peer review process for research. We are not. We are keeping peer review for research. But there is no peer review within the Department of Defense for facilities and equipment, and there has not been for years.

All we are saying is that we as the U.S. Senate and the other body, the House, are making decisions on facilities and equipment, not on research money but only on general purpose construction for facilities and equipment. So for those Senators who may have thought they were voting to uphold peer review for research money, that is not the case. What we are simply saying is that we here in the Senate and the other body have as much right and should in fact be involved in the decisionmaking process of facilities and equipment as unnamed bureaucrats sitting in the Department of Defense. That really is the issue and not peer review for research.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate? If not, the question is on agreeing to the motion. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. SIMPSON. I announce that the Senator from Florida [Mrs. HAWKINS] and the Senator from Oregon [Mr. PACKWOOD] are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. WARNER). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 56, nays 42, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 153 Leg.]

YEAS—56

Abdnor	Gorton	Matsunaga
Andrews	Grassley	McClure
Baucus	Harkin	McConnell
Biden	Hatch	Melcher
Boren	Hatfield	Moynihan
Burdick	Hecht	Murkowski
Byrd	Heflin	Nickles
Chafee	Heinz	Pell
Cochran	Hollings	Pressler
D'Amato	Humphrey	Quayle
DeConcini	Inouye	Riegle
Denton	Johnston	Rudman
Dodd	Kassebaum	Stafford
Dole	Kennedy	Stennis
Domenici	Kerry	Stevens
East	Laxalt	Symms
Exon	Leahy	Thurmond
Ford	Long	Weicker
Garn	Lugar

NAYS—42

Armstrong	Glenn	Proxmire
Bentsen	Goldwater	Pryor
Bingaman	Gore	Rockefeller
Boschwitz	Gramm	Roth
Bradley	Hart	Sarbanes
Bumpers	Helms	Sasser
Chiles	Kasten	Simon
Cohen	Lautenberg	Simpson
Cranston	Levin	Specter
Danforth	Mathias	Trible
Dixon	Mattingly	Wallop
Durenberger	Metzenbaum	Warner
Eagleton	Mitchell	Wilson
Evans	Nunn	Zorinsky

NOT VOTING—2

Hawkins	Packwood

So the motion to concur in House amendment to Senate amendment No. 91 was agreed to.

□ 1700

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion to concur was agreed to.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair is recognizing the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, may we have order?

Mr. BUMPERS. Mr. President, may we have order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will suspend until such time as there is order.

The Chair respectfully requests Members to retire to the cloakroom for the purpose of conversation.

The Senator from Oregon is recognized.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, a number of colleagues have asked about the time frame——

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, may we have order in the Senate so we can hear what the chairman has to say about the program?

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, a number of the colleagues have inquired about the schedule. We have two more committee amendments, one dealing with aid to Ireland, and another one that will be offered by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. JOHNSTON], relating to trade adjustment assistance.

I have not had any requests for a final passage rollcall, but there may be one.

I do not believe that there will be more than one on the Ireland aid because in fact there is a unanimous agreement where it was agreed that no amendment to that committee amendment could be in order so that amendment to the committee amendment will be voted on either by one rollcall or none depending on who requests it.

So those are the only two other committee amendments.

□ 1710

Mr. JOHNSTON. Will the chairman yield?

Mr. HATFIELD. I am happy to yield.

Mr. JOHNSTON, Mr. President, I am advised that a rollcall vote on final passage need not occur and will not occur because we have already concurred in the conference report.

Mr. HATFIELD. The comanager is correct. So that the most we could plan on at this point, I would say, would be probably one or two more rollcalls.

EXCEPTED AMENDMENT NO. 93

Mr. HATFIELD. The committee is ready to move ahead on committee amendment No. 93.

The amendment reads as follows:

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 93 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert:

INTERNATIONAL FUND FOR NORTHERN IRELAND AND IRELAND

(TRANSERS OF FUNDS)

For an additional amount for the "Economic Support Fund", not less than $50,000,000, which shall be available only for the United States contribution to the International Fund established pursuant to the November 15, 1985 agreement between the United Kingdom and Ireland, to be derived from funds appropriated or otherwise made available by the Foreign Assistance and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1986 (as enacted in Public Law 99-190), as follows: $4,900,000 by transfer from Title I of such Act, $12,350,000 of funds made available by such Act for the "Economic Support Fund", $9,100,000 by transfer from Title II of such Act, excluding funds made available for the "Economic Support Fund", $20,000,000 by transfer from Title III of such Act, and $3,650,000 by transfer from Title IV of such Act.

Mr. ZORINSKY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska is recognized.

Mr. ZORINSKY. Thank you, Mr. President.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE TO NORTHERN IRELAND—WE DO NOT NEED A NEW FOREIGN AID PROGRAM

Mr. ZORINSKY. Mr. President, I am compelled to voice my strong disapproval of the $50 million for Northern Ireland in this supplemental. In the Foreign Relations Committee, I expressed my opposition even to the $10 million authorized for Northern Ireland, principally because of the economic fact of life we face in this country—we simply cannot afford it.

I want to support the hopes of Americans yearning for peace in Northern Ireland, but the stark reality here at home is that we are virtually broke, we are deeply in debt, farmers in the Midwest are losing their livelihoods, and other Americans are having great difficulty in making ends meet. It simply is not the time to send money to yet a new foreign aid recipient.

Furthermore, I am convinced that Northern Ireland does not need this assistance. I recently met with Members of the House of Commons who told me that the aid from the United States is not necessary. In fact, the money from the United States may as well be called aid to the United Kingdom, because that is the nation which will benefit from all of this. We will be saving the United Kingdom a lot of money. The responsibility for restoring peace in Northern Ireland lies essentially with the British. They have the resources; they have to make the tough decisions regarding the allocation of their foreign aid resources, just like we have to do in the Senate. I also want my colleagues to realize what we are doing here is wrong. We are starting a foreign aid program for Northern Ireland. This will become an annual ritual—the sums are sure to grow based on our past performance and on aid to other countries.

Some Members of the House of Commons have even gone so far as to inform me, if we approve this $50 million of aid to Northern Ireland, they will reduce, by the like amount of $50 million, the aid from Great Britain to Northern Ireland. So, in effect, we will displace money that the British would have given to Northern Ireland. So we might as well make the check out directly to the United Kingdom.

We are beginning a new commitment which we will have to keep for years to come, as the Government of Northern Ireland becomes more and more dependent on us for support.

Mr. President, the provision of $50 million for Northern Ireland also disturbs me because of the process that has been followed in determining that aid level. The Senate provision, making any aid for Northern Ireland subject to an authorization, was dropped in conference and the highest possible aid level of $50 million was substituted for the President's request of $20 million. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has recommended an authorization of only $10 million, a level which, incidentally, I also opposed.

What we are doing here is circumventing the authorization process of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Now, let me say this to my colleagues: I have heard each and every one of you, in the last 10 years that I have been here, when something came to this body, that circumventing a committee that you served on, you got pretty steamed up about us going around your committee and appropriating money that had not been authorized in your committee.

I think I have a right to feel the same way, as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, that this $50 million has circumvented our committee and has not been authorized.

In my judgment, the higher figure of $50 million could not be sustained in the normal authorization process—and should not be.

I will be voting for this supplemental appropriation conference report, but I wanted to make my views on Northern Ireland absolutely clear to my colleagues. It is my intention to separate our amendment No. 93, and I take this opportunity, Mr. President, to ask for the yeas and nays on that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, let me make an inquiry as to the parliamentary situation. The yeas and nays have been ordered on what? There was no motion to concur made by the manager of the bill on the committee amendment. I would be happy, if I am correct, to set the parliamentary situation for the Senator from Nebraska to make his request for the yeas and nays, but I really do not understand what he has made his request for the yeas and nays on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's point is well taken. There is no motion now pending before the body.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I would like, then, to accommodate the Senator from Nebraska by moving that the Senate concur in the House amendment to Senate amendment No. 93 and ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I would like to express my own opposition to the provision contained in chapter 5 of the conference report pertaining to economic assistance to Northern Ireland. This provision in chapter 5 makes available $50 million as a contribution to an International Fund to be established pursuant to the Anglo-Irish agreement concluded last fall by the Governments of the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland. The funding would be provided by transfers from already appropriated moneys in the International Affairs account.

Mr. President, I personally, as well as the Foreign Relations Committee which I chair, are on public record as strongly supporting the Anglo-Irish agreement. In fact, the Foreign Relations Committee last week reported out S. 2572, legislation authorizing assistance in support of that agreement.

My objection to chapter 5 of the conference report, Mr. President, is based on my judgment that this $50 million funding level is too much, too soon. I strongly support the Anglo-Irish agreement, but I believe that the United States simply cannot afford to make a contribution of $50 million in fiscal year 1986. S. 2572, the bill reported by the Foreign Relations Committee last week, reflects that reality and authorizes a lower figure.

Our own budget constraints have meant that worldwide funding for foreign assistance programs has already been severely cut. This provision of $50 million to Northern Ireland, as contained in the conference report, constitutes in fact another cut. The conference report provision would spread the impact of these cuts across a multitude of multilateral and bilateral assistance programs, military assistance, refugee assistance, and even the Eximbank. In all likelihood, the cuts occasioned by the provision in chapter 5 of the conference report will impact most severely on economic development programs in Africa. We simply do not have the funding in the International Affairs accounts to address existing foreign assistance commitments. We certainly cannot afford to make an additional commitment of the magnitude envisioned in the conference report at this time.

The administration submitted legislation strongly supportive of the Anglo-Irish accord, but because of stringent budget constraints and other foreign policy priorities, it proposed only $20 million in fiscal year 1986 as our cash contribution to the International Fund. For its part, the Foreign Relations Committee has recommended only $10 million in fiscal year 1986. I am certain that if we were not operating under such severe resource constraints, the administration—because of its strong support for the Anglo-Irish agreement—would have proposed higher levels.

Mr. President, in addition to my substantive and fiscal objections to this provision in chapter 5 of the conference report, I have a procedural objection. As I noted, the Foreign Relations Committee acted favorably last week on legislation which would support the Anglo-Irish agreement. That legislation is awaiting action by the full Senate. That bill reported by the Foreign Relations Committee authorizes $10 million for the International Fund in fiscal year 1986. That level reflects the judgment of the committee as to a useful and prudent level of funding consistent with our own budget restraints.

The Foreign Relations Committee is not only willing but obliged to permit other Members of this body to address this issue. Unfortunately, in receding to the House position on funding for Northern Ireland, the conference committee eliminated the opportunity for authorization and, therefore, would prevent the Senate from addressing this issue directly.

Therefore, Mr. President, I would like to indicate my objection to this provision of the conference report. International economic and security commitments are already severely constrained by our budgetary situation. I find it impossible to support an additional cut in already limited funds, which would be the practical effect of the provision in chapter 5 of the conference report, without the Senate having the opportunity to assess fully the advisability of such cuts.

Mr. CHAFEE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I would like to inquire on this particular subject matter of the managers of the bill about this particular amount.

As I recall the history of this—and I stand to be corrected—the administration sought $10 million to foster the agreement that the Republic of Ireland and Britain entered into in order to foster peace in Northern Ireland. If I am not mistaken, the sum asked for was $10 million.

Second, I would ask about this particular amount which, as I understand it, is now not less than $50 million.

□ 1720

Am I correct in believing that that $50 million has to come from foreign aid that we have already voted for? In other words, this would be a reduction from the lump sum of foreign aid which is being directed all over the world to countries that desperately need it? If I am correct in that, I find that extremely depressing and of great concern because those nations that are receiving our foreign aid such as the poverty stricken nations in Africa are being reduced by this extra large sum way above the administration's request, if I am correct, in order to accommodate this.

The first question is, Am I correct in believing that the administration asked for $10 million, not $50 million?

Mr. KASTEN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. CHAFEE. Yes.

Mr. KASTEN. As chairman of the Foreign Operations Subcommittee, let me say that the administration sought $50 million for Ireland; $20 million of that $50 million was to come from ESF, and the remaining $30 million of the $50 million from a number of different programs. Those programs were primarily AID programs, the Housing Guarantee Program, private sector revolving loan funds, the Trade and Development Program, and Overseas Private Investment Corporation—they suggested it come from a number of different programs.

So the administration request was for $50 million, $20 million ESF, $30 million other programs.

Mr. CHAFEE. Now, is the committee compromise of $50 million all from ESF? So if we vote to approve this, that means that not only will those poor countries that are receiving foreign aid which has already been cut from the request of the administration, be cut not just $20 million that the administration sought, but an additional $30 million will come from somewhere in those accounts that is being distributed all over the world to various nations?

Mr. KASTEN. Will the Senator yield? The Senator is correct.

Originally, the Senate position was that the dollars would not come from existing foreign aid sources, that in fact the dollars would be new money. The House position, however, was that the dollars come from existing foreign aid funds and in the process of the compromise we now arrived at, the position the Senator described. Fifty million dollars will come from ESF and other funds already appropriated.

Mr. ZORINSKY. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. CHAFEE. I yield the floor.

Mr. BUMPERS. I would like to ask the Senator from Wisconsin a more basic question. Certainly the question of the Senator from Rhode Island is a relevant one. Where is the money coming from? But the more basic question is why are we putting $50 million into a program. I do not know what the money is to be spent for except it help bring peace maybe in Northern Ireland. What is the $50 million going for, and why are we involved in it? Is this not a sensitive problem with the United Kingdom?

Mr. BIDEN. If the Senator will yield, I will be delighted to answer that question.

Mr. BUMPERS. I am asking anybody who knows.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I know, among others in here, there are several reasons why. First of all, we are an international power with international power responsibilities with a long historical tie of about 40 million Irish here in this country—42 million. I am corrected by my Irish friend from Massachusetts, No. 1.

No. 2, let me suggest that we are filling our commitment made by this body in House Concurrent Resolution 239 to give economic support and aid if in fact the British would do finally what they did. I say finally, 800 years it has taken us to get to the spot where the British—and to the credit of Mrs. Thatcher—in conjunction with the Republic of Ireland have agreed, with the concurrence and leadership of our own President, upon the most positive move with regard to dealing with the bloodshed in Northern Ireland that has occurred since the early 1920's. It has taken a long time to get here.

We stand here and we talk about the rights of people in Micronesia. We stand here and every one of us, myself included, talk about the responsibilities we have to the tiny country of Israel. We stand here and we talk about how we have responsibilities in other parts of the world to help end bloodshed. And here we are, a nation with long and deep ties to the Irish people, able to play a constructive role after the British and the Irish, the Republic of Ireland finally have made a positive forceful step in the direction of peace, and we——

Mr. BUMPERS. If the Senator will yield, my question is, What is the money going for?

Mr. BIDEN. The money is going for economic development in Northern Ireland. It is part of the process where everyone understands unless there is opportunity, as the Senator from Arkansas so eloquently states on the floor here, for the underprivileged of America to have jobs, to have an opportunity to work, to have an opportunity to participate in the economic process——

Mr. BUMPERS. What is the unemployment rate in Northern Ireland?

Mr. BIDEN. The unemployment rate in Northern Ireland is staggering. I yield to my friend from New York who would have an exact number as he does everything else.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. In some Catholic areas of Northern Ireland, it is now approximately 60 percent.

Mr. BUMPERS. Sixty percent?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. It is about 22 percent for Northern Ireland as a whole.

Mr. BUMPERS. Why is England not able? I mean Northern Ireland and England are essentially one. Why are they not handling this problem? Why are we involved?

Mr. BIDEN. Because they essentially view themselves as one in a sense, and the argument is whether or not they should be one. It has in fact been a debate for some time.

Mr. BUMPERS. This $50 million does not resolve that?

Mr. BIDEN. No; but Mrs. Thatcher has taken a courageous move. She has taken as a consequence a great deal of heat for having done what she did. In turn, there are only so many times that she can go to the well on this.

But I see my friend from New York who is leading this effort in opposition to my distinguished friend from Nebraska who talks for the farmers, and I will share that, and I will remind him that the Senator from the consuming State of Delaware has voted with him on all the legislation relating to the farmers, not that that means he should change his mind. But the question is where our concern lies.

Mr. ZORINSKY. Have I asked the Senator to support a farmer living in Ireland?

Mr. BIDEN. No; the Senator has not. But I suspect he would ask me to support the opportunity to avoid bloodshed in other parts of the world. We do it all over the world. We seem to recognize our responsibilities and accede to other nations and other responsibilities we have. It seems to me the closest, nearest, and most needing ally of aid and assistance at this moment that could help hold an agreement together, and that holds some hope and prospect for peace in the region.

Mr. ZORINSKY. If my colleague will yield for just a moment, let me point out that Northern Ireland is not a third world country. Let me point out that there are many Germans in this country, many Polish people in this country; we are all from ethnic groups in this country. We can all find a cause for our ancestors. But believe it or not, I am getting calls from Irish living in Nebraska saying be reasonable with my tax money. And if it is to instill a good economy in Northern Ireland, their tax money can be better used for Irish in America who are going broke farming.

Mr. BIDEN. It is to help the peace process just as our aid to Poland was to help feed starving Poles, just as our aid to the non-Third World country of Israel is to support freedom, just like—and the list goes on. I respect the Senator's opinion. I was responding to the question as to why this is part of the linchpin as to whether or not the historic Anglo-Irish agreement—I mean how much money did we spend on the strength of the Camp David agreement for Egypt and for Israel? It was money well spent in my view to enhance the peace process. This is a similar circumstance.

I yield the floor.

Mr. MOYNIHAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I thank all of the previous speakers.

Speaking particularly to the Senator from Arkansas, I wonder if I might give a very brief account of this culmination of what is almost a decade of effort, and its origins. First, there is no relationship which the United States has with two other countries more close than that of Great Britain and Ireland. The American Revolution was part of a political movement made in Ireland, as well as in Britain, as well as here. Our relations have been involved for the very longest while. The largest single ethnic group in the country is of English-Scottish-Welsh, and the second largest is Irish. The signers of the Declaration of Independence were from abroad more from Ireland than from England, for example.

□ 1730

Nine years ago on Saint Patrick's Day, 1977, the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts, myself, our revered Speaker, and then Governor Carey, of New York, issued a statement having to do with the rising levels of violence in Northern Ireland which had been taking place for 8 years, a statement addressed not to Northern Ireland but to our own American compatriots, many of whom were providing support for both sides of the violence.

There are two large religions in that province, the Presbyterian and the Roman Catholic. They have been at violence for at least three centuries.

I once saw painted on the side of a wall "Remember 1689." That is the situation there.

We asked that the Americans stop giving any aid to violence in the North. We said,

> We appeal to all those organizations engaged in violence there to renounce their campaigns of death and destruction and return to the path and life of peace. And we appeal as well to our fellow Americans to embrace this goal of peace, and to renounce any action that promotes the current violence and provides support or encouragement for organizations engaged in violence.

We were part of that problem.

In that year, some months later, as a first statement in the history of our country, President Carter stated that "the people of Northern Ireland should know they have our complete support in their quest for a peaceful and just society." He went on to say that "the U.S. Government would be prepared to join with others to see how additional job-creating investment could be encouraged, to the benefit of all people in Northern Ireland."

This statement was made by President Carter in 1977. That was during the process of consultation between the Governments of Northern Ireland and England, in the context of the American Government saying we were willing to be part of the effort.

A growing number of Members of this Senate and the House were saying we wanted no support for violence.

As the distinguished Senator from Delaware said, the Hillsborough accords, as they are informally known, the agreement between Northern Ireland and the United Kingdom, was in fact a historic statement. It sets forth three propositions.

It said that the two governments affirm that any change in the status of Northern Ireland can only come about with the consent of the majority. It said there was no majority for a change, but that should a clear majority for a change emerge, legislation to bring it about would be introduced in the respective parliaments in Dublin and in Northern Ireland.

That was an enormous achievement. Nothing of its kind had ever been stated before, the acknowledgment of both sides, and then the consultative procedure between the two governments, as much concerned with terrorism as both sides have been.

This does go to both countries.

Immediately after that accord was signed, President Reagan congratulated the parties and spoke of the agreement's "promise of peace and a new dawn in the troubled communities of Northern Ireland." He went on to promise to work "closely with Congress in a bipartisan effort to find tangible ways for the United States to lend practical support to this important agreement."

One of the oldest conflicts in Europe has the potential of healing and being resolved.

Shortly after the President spoke, both Houses approved on December 5 House Concurrent Resolution 239, which declared our "willingness to work with the President in supporting the Anglo-Irish agreement with appropriate United States assistance, including economic and financial support, to promote the economic development of those areas of both parties which have suffered most severely from the violence in recent years."

Thereafter, the President sent us a 5-year, $250 million proposal and in the way that Congress has worked its way we now have the first-year installment.

Mr. BUMPERS. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I am happy to.

Mr. BUMPERS. Is this the first installment of $50 million a year?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. There is no such statement in the legislation. The President has proposed a 5-year package. We are approving 1 year with no future approvals.

Mr. BUMPERS. Would it be the Senator's intention for the U.S. Congress to appropriate $50 million a year for this purpose?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I think if we could see what we find in the way of its effectiveness, if it is, yes.

I speak to a matter that has engaged this Congress for two centuries but never before in so constructive a purpose to bring about peace and reconciliation. I hope it will do that. I hope when it is set up in the record of debate, it will be so indicated.

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Yes.

Mr. KENNEDY. Was it not the hope that these resources would induce contributions by other countries around the world?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. The Senator is absolutely right. This is to be a worldwide effort.

Mr. KENNEDY. As I understand, there have been early preliminary commitments by Canada, Australia, and also by a number of the European countries. I think there is a recognition that with this kind of a commitment by the United States, it will have a vast multiplier effect to try to move us beyond this amount.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. There is not a nation on earth where a historic division does not exist and where there is not simultaneously an urge to bring some healing to these people. We are left behind by the hundreds of millions around the world.

Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I yield.

Mr. SARBANES. Is it not correct that the economic support that this would provide, in conjunction with the support coming from other countries, is really essential for the accord, the Hillsboro agreement, to have any chance of success in Northern Ireland?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I so much agree. We are saying, and other countries are saying, that they did the right thing. It took a great deal of courage for the British Prime Minister to go into this, and the Irish Prime Minister moving forward. They said, "We are going to go the route of peace."

This is an opportunity for other countries to say, "That is right." You have friends when you do that. You are not left alone.

Mr. SARBANES. This is a breakthrough which is unprecedented in trying to resolve the Irish problem, is it not.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Not since the Irish atttempt for home rule has anything happened, and that did not succeed.

Mr. DODD. If the Senator will yield, this proposition has opponents here, as our colleague from Nebraska raised the question based on other considerations. But our colleagues should know that there are those in Northern Ireland who are adamantly opposed to this Anglo-Irish agreement and adamantly opposed to this particular aid package.

I think it might be well for the Senator from New York to share with us who those opponents are and what extremes they come from.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I would be happy to. I did not intend to raise the names on the floor.

Two days ago there was issued what amounted to an appeal to Protestants to mobilize for war against the British-Irish accord, and a warning that "This could come to hand-to-hand fighting in every street in Northern Ireland."

And it has its exact counterpart in the Catholic community. They are absolute minorities, both, but do we need to believe that a very small number of determined persons are willing to resort to violence to disrupt any consideration of this?

□ 1740

Mr. DODD. In a sense, then, despite the fact that some of our colleagues might approach this from a different perspective, what sort of a message would it send this evening if a majority of the U.S. Senate supported the extremists of the Unionists and the extremists of the Catholics by rejecting this aid package and adding another voice?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. It would be devastating and the Senate would have blood on its hand. I am sorry to use the phrase, but that is exactly what it would be.

Mr. ZORINSKY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. ZORINSKY. Mr. President, I would like to bring the conversation back into the context of reality. We have a $200 billion deficit. I do not think anybody up there in the galleries can write checks out if the money is not in the bank. We are undertaking another pledge and commitment that, once it starts, is infinite and it will continue to grow annually.

In the Foreign Relations Committee today, an additional $100 million was authorized for the Philippines. I think the American people are tired of being blackmailed in the name of providing peace in the world and lessening bloodshed everywhere, because we just "ain't" got the money to do it, to give it to everybody that wants it.

We are going to stop bloodshed in Central America; we are going to stop bloodshed in the Middle East; we are going to stop bloodshed in Asia. Now we are going to stop it in Ireland. We are going to stop it all over the world at the same time that we are a debtor nation and cannot even pay our own bills.

That is a joke, Mr. President. I think right now, and I do not know how many of my colleagues are aware of this, we are pledged to build a $10 million pavilion in Brisbane, Australia, for their World Fair. Now, I was going to raise that as a question and I was told, "You cannot do that, because New Zealand is mad at us. Australia is the only friend we have in that area, so we had better continue with the $10 million pavilion."

What chance does the American taxpayer have? When do they get the chance to get in line? Or do we have to wait until there is bloodshed in our own country to say, "Aha, finally, we can use some more of our money that we do not have to stop bloodshed in our own country?"

Let me say this: There are suicides in our country, due to the economic problems in agriculture and other sectors that are in trouble.

I am just saying, Mr. President, it is great for us to be philanthropic. Fine; let us all sit down and take our checkbooks out of our own pockets and write out our own checks to the Irish over there if we feel so pathetically inclined to do so.

I say, it is easy to give somebody else's money away. That is the way this operation works back here. We make money the old-fashioned way: we print it. I guess that is the way this body has operated.

[Laughter.]

Mr. DODD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senator will suspend. The Chair admonishes the gallery that it is not to have any statements made.

The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, a brief response to my colleague from Nebraska.

We are not here to argue the virtues of American foreign aid, although many Members of this body have in the past found the subject engaging.

The fact of the matter is we have a serious situation in this little helpless corner of Northern Ireland—2,500 human beings in a nation with a population of about 1.5 million have lost their lives in the last 17 years, with violence every single day in those counties. This Anglo-Irish agreement is an effort to resolve that problem.

No one can say with any degree of certainty—in fact, if you had to wager, you would have to conclude that it probably will accomplish little, given the history. But it is yet another effort to try to resolve that turmoil that tears that country apart.

What we are asking for here today is a little bit of help. Margaret Thatcher showed great courage, as the Senator from New York has pointed out, and she is being bludgeoned throughout the United Kingdom because of the courage she showed to say, "Let us try to bring peace to that part of the world." Garret Fitzgerald, Prime Minister of Ireland, is being bludgeoned politically because he took a stand.

We can stand up here and say we are going to send money back to Nebraska or Connecticut to the farmer or the consumer—and not spend it to try to save those counties in Northern Ireland. I think we can do that. But we also like to take pride in the fact that we are a nation that cares about people, other people on the face of the Earth. We care about Latin America and Africa and we know money does not buy our way out of all problems. But we do know that here, a contribution might make a difference. It just might make the difference in bringing peace.

Fifty million dollars is a lot of money, but $50 million is a small price indeed if it can bring peace in Northern Ireland. Seventeen long years of bloodshed and this just might mean the end of it. And would we not like to be a participant or a party to that in this great Senate, to say we helped because we contributed some of our constituents' tax dollars to bring peace in that part of the world?

I hope our colleagues will go beyond that kind of short-term debate and argument and say to our constituents back home, "This is a sound investment of your tax dollar. This is the way we should be spending your tax dollars."

In many cases, right here at home, we squander and abuse tax dollars. So my hope is that the Senate will support the proposition of the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] and vote for this amendment.

Mr. ZORINSKY. The Senator is a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, as I am. We authorized $10 million; is that correct?

Mr. DODD. That is correct, in the committee. And the House authorized $50 million.

Mr. ZORINSKY. When future changes like this come back that circumvent our committee's ability to have brought this into our own body, is the Senator going to support it?

Mr. DODD. The Senator from Nebraska knows that, from time to time, we have all been through this.

I do not disagree that authorizing committees should not sit back and let every piece of legislation be written by the Appropriations Committee.

Mr. ZORINSKY. Does he think this is the proper vehicle?

Mr. DODD. This is the proper vehicle. We have had a strong expression. Three hundred and eighty to one was the vote in the other body for $50 million. We had a strong expression of support in the committee for this proposition. We disagreed on the numbers, but on the basic concept of whether or not we ought to be participating financially to try to make the Anglo-Irish agreement work, the overwhelming majority, by the final vote in the committee, expressed the will to do that, The fact that we did not have the numbers we want in that committee does not mean we should destroy it entirely.

Mr. ZORINSKY. I wish the Senator would not use the rationale of the overwhelming agreement in the other body as being the reason why he thinks this is proper, because I have heard him disagree at times with some of the votes in the other body. We are distinctly a separate body. I am proud to be in the U.S. Senate and not in the other body. I disagree sometimes with the votes in the House and thank God that we get a separate vote in the Senate.

MR. DODD. Mr. President, may I just say I am not offering that as the rationale for support of this, but merely as a piece of evidence that there is strong bipartisan support for this proposition among our colleagues in the other body and our colleagues on the Foreign Relations Committee. We have disagreed about the number, the dollar amount, but that does not seem to me to be the essence of the argument. The essence of the argument is that we ought to be participating, and that is where the Foreign Relations Committee has taken a position.

Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DODD. Yes; I yield.

Mr. SARBANES. The Senator from Connecticut is absolutely right. This issue was considered in the Foreign Relations Committee and the Senator from Nebraska disagrees with that because he feels no aid whatever should be provided, as I understand it. He is totally against the concept. That was not the decision of the overwhelming majority of the committee who were prepared to support aid. Perhaps not the level of the authorization, but the figure here is within the level of authorization that the House adopted and the Senate, had we gone to conference, would have had to adopt the authorization with the Senate figures.

We went for 3 years without an authorization bill in the foreign aid area, which was done by the Appropriations Committee. The Senator from Connecticut was one of the leaders in insisting that we move back on to the authorization path. This departs from it only in the sense that we are moving with an appropriation before the authorizing process has been fully completed.

□ 1750

To the extent the authorizing process has taken place, the judgment—although the Senator from Nebraska has disagreed with it—has been to move forward with some assistance. Now, this vehicle is important because time is of some urgency in this matter. If we are to provide the underpinning for the accords reached in the Anglo-Irish agreement, it is important to come forward in prompt fashion with some sustenance and also to gain the matching funds that are coming from a number of other countries which will help to make this package even more significant. So it seems to me, all things considered, we are moving according to the process. I serve on that committee and am sensitive to the role of the committee, but the committee has considered the matter and made the judgment that we ought to participate in this process.

Mr. ZORINSKY. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SARBANES. Surely.

Mr. ZORINSKY. I would just like to conclude that I did not intend to take this long in presenting this case, but to borrow a phrase from down on Pennsylvania Avenue, "Here we go again." We are sticking our nose into a place economically that will get to enjoy many, many more years of our involvement. And I predict, as I sit down and yield the floor, that we will be back here again next year and the following year and the amounts will no longer be $50 million; they will be in excess of that.

Mr. KERRY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. KERRY. I will yield to the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I simply say in response to that, if this investment succeeds in bringing peace to Northern Ireland, it will be one of the wisest investments that this body and this Nation has ever made.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I express my strong support for the $50 million in Irish aid contained in this conference report.

In April, I had the opportunity to meet with the Honorable John Hume of the Social Democractic Labor Party in Northern Ireland to discuss the package of assistance being put together in an effort to strengthen the Anglo-Irish agreement. John Hume is a political moderate who has placed his career on the line in support of the Anglo-Irish agreement which seeks a peaceful solution to the civil strife in Northern Ireland.

John Hume made the following point which I believe is relevant to what we are doing today. He stated that supplemental extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States, which has stirred considerable controversy in this country, will not even remotely deal with the issue of terrorism in Northern Ireland. On the other hand, he emphasized that the Irish aid proposal, which addresses major elements of the root causes fomenting the civil strife in Northern Ireland is the only effective means for bringing terrorism under control eventually.

As a signal of our strong support of negotiations which culminated in the signing of the Anglo-Irish agreement, two administrations—that of President Carter and President Reagan—committed themselves to supporting such an agreement with direct American financial assistance. The Irish did not ask for such assistance, but America promised that it would be forthcoming if the British and Irish would create a political and constitutional framework within which a solution could be found.

As John Hume pointed out to me, once the United States made such a commitment, to renege on it now would only undercut the Anglo-Irish agreement and play into the hands of the extremists on both sides, thereby fomenting growing terrorism in Northern Ireland. In addition, a less than satisfactory assistance program would signal our less then enthusiastic support for reconciliation in Northern Ireland. In other words, if terrorism is really a concern of the Senate, then the most important tool we have to deal with this problem is a reasonable aid package for Northern Ireland. I believe the proposal of the House of Representatives represents a reasonable level of assistance required to deal effectively with this problem.

In supporting the $50 million in proposed aid for Ireland, the bulk of which would be available for employment-generating projects in Northern Ireland, I think it is important to underscore one additional point. For this assistance to contribute effectively to attacking the root causes of the civil strife in Northern Ireland, it has to be administered fairly. The Irish Catholic minority has to sense that the discriminatory practices of the past have come to an end. If this assistance only perpetuates the discriminatory social, economic, and political policies of the past, then the United States will only become a part of the problem, rather than a significant contributor to the solution.

Within that caveat in mind, I urge that the Senate support the $50 million in assistance for Northern Ireland contained in this supplemental.

Mr. President, I do not want to prolong this debate if indeed the debate is about to end, but I would like to remind my colleagues of a couple of points.

First, I do not know, and I do not know if any of my colleagues in this Chamber can tell me, how much money we spent to maintain a force in the Gulf of Sidra, how much money it cost for some 18 F-111's and some 15 A-6's and 3 aircraft carriers to prance around in the gulf for a period of time to send a message in that region of the world about terrorism, but it certainly in a brief span of days was in the millions of dollars. No administration—I do not think any Congress—in recent history has spent more time or more energy trying to convince the world of the importance of taking steps to stop terrorism.

Now, the Irish Government did not ask for this money. They did not come to us hat in hand and say, "We want aid from the United States." The United States as part of its effort to make a statement about terrorism and to try to fulfill the role which we carry in the world went to the British Government and the Government of Ireland and said, "If you can put together a constitutional framework and a political framework that can help to lay the foundation for peace, then aid will be forthcoming." This is part of our initiative, not someone else's. I have heard my colleagues here on this floor allude to what the effect would be if we withdraw from our own part of that kind of initiative.

Now, we have spent a lot of energy in the Foreign Relations Committee recently, and I believe the Senator from Nebraska voted in favor of a treaty for extradition because the Prime Minister of Great Britain—he voted against it, excuse me, but overwhelmingly the committee voted for it and I think the sentiment of the country and certainly the President and others has been we need some kind of effort to make that further statement about terrorism.

Well, John Hume, who is a leader of the Social Democratic Labor Party in Northern Ireland, is a moderate, a moderate, who has placed his political career as well as his life on the line in the effort to try to create peace. He has said it is this aid package that is more central to the notion of fighting terrorism, more important in the effort to try to keep the IRA and extremists off balance in Northern Ireland than any other single effort that has been at their disposal in recent history and which is part of the peaceful framework which is trying to be created there.

So I would echo what we have heard from the Senator from New York and others. To pull out now, to say at this moment in time that we who have helped to initiate this effort are going to withdraw what is essential to the conclusion, to the effort to give it some meaning, would be a devastating message not only to our relationship with these two countries but it would be a devastating message with respect to this effort we have made, the expenditure of our moral power and our force to send messages about terrorism. If we want to give aid and give succor to terrorism, then do not give aid through this package. But if you want to help an effort for peace which would pay off in the long run, which is inexpensive compared to all the other losses which are incurred by seeing this dilemma continue, this is the way to go and I strongly urge us to support it.

Mr. SIMON. Will my colleague yield for a moment?

Mr. KERRY. I yield.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I simply want to echo those sentiments. I speak with a little bit of conflict of interest. I have to tell you my wife is Irish by background. She was in Northern Ireland just 2 weeks ago. She came back very depressed about the situation there and said, "They need every spark of hope they can get." I think here we have a chance to give them a little bit of a spark of hope and we ought to do it. I commend my colleague.

Mr. CHAFEE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I would like to first voice my concerns about this legislation. It is as follows. The aid for Northern Ireland is not a new sum of money. It is being taken from the existing part of aid that has already been shrunk, and I am concerned and I wish greatly that they had succeeded, those involved with this process had succeeded in committee, if indeed it should be $50 million, that it be new money added to the aid package instead of taking money, clipping it from Senegal or Upper Volta or Sudan or whatever it is, those countries that so desperately need it.

Now, the Senator from Maryland made a statement on which I would like to just briefly question him, if I might. He said that this aid will be matched by other aid. Could he enlighten us a bit on that? He indicated that other countries were coming forward, if I understood him correctly, with aid and this is an important part of the total. Did I understand that statement correctly?

Mr. SARBANES. It is my understanding that a number of other countries—Australia, Canada—have under consideration providing money to be supportive of this effort to move toward peace in Northern Ireland, and the United States, of course, by moving to provide very important leadership, will be part and parcel of that effort.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Might I add that the European Community is about to make some provision.

Mr. CHAFEE. I think that is an important factor. So on one side we have the fact that all these countries which are now receiving aid from the United States—and I believe should receive it and are desperate, already having been reduced through various cuts including Gramm-Rudman—are going to receive less. However, at the same time it is my understanding from a conversation with the chairman of the subcommittee on this matter—and indeed it points out in the legislation—that some portion of the money will come from military assistance, $20 million of it will come from military assistance. That package is rather a large one, so there I do not think any nation will suffer too much.

On the other side of the coin we have the fact that this money will be extremely helpful in fostering the peace process in Northern Ireland and indeed, as has been pointed out, will act as a catalyst for other nations to contribute. I think that is a goal we should seek. I have been concerned, and followed this with some interest over the years, about the battles, the fighting in Northern Ireland and the tragedy that exists there.

□ 1800

For that reason, Mr. President, I will support the committee in this sum of money. But I hope that in the future if they provide money like this, they will not take it from the existing foreign aid package but will add the money from other sources, rather than from the existing aid package.

Mr. KASTEN. Mr. President, the amendment currently under discussion would provide $50 million pursuant to a request by President Reagan for assistance to Ireland and Northern Ireland in response to a formal agreement between the British and Irish Governments, signed November 15 of last year, which established a framework for constructing a durable peace in Northern Ireland.

This initiative is therefore our response to that agreement and is being provided in hopes of making some progress in that troubled area of the world.

Mr. President, I believe that most Members support the administration's request, and the controversy just seems to be how much and what type of assistance. The Senate supplemental had provided for $20 million in ESF-type assistance, whereas the House had suggested $50 million.

In conference with the House, we acceded to the $50 million number and the house agreed that that $50 million would not come out of existing ESF funds alone, but instead we distributed it proportionately over the entire foreign assistance bill.

This was a fair compromise, I believe, although I had hoped that we would have been able to provide new money as existing foreign assistance resources are already stretched to the limit, as the Senator from Rhode Island pointed out.

Mr. President, I think that this particular item is a reasonable response and I hope that the Senate will support the conference agreement.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, those of us who are in favor of this are much in the debt of the Senator from Wisconsin for his efforts and understanding which have made this possible.

In closing, may I suggest that the Senate might consider, with its actions in this coming vote, that if we do confirm the judgment of the committee, as I hope and am confident we will, we do so in honor of the President of the United States, Ronald Reagan, and the Speaker of the House.

● Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I strongly support the financial assistance for Northern Ireland in the conference report, and I urge the Senate to reject any attempt to delete it or weaken it.

This $50 million assistance package provides much-needed United States support for the historic Anglo-Irish agreement signed last November by Prime Minister FitzGerald of Ireland and Prime Minister Thatcher of Great Britain. This far-reaching accord offers the best opportunity in a decade to achieve a peaceful settlement of the conflict in Northern Ireland, and the provision of United States financial assistance is a significant element in the prospects for the success of that accord.

The Anglo-Irish agreement provides new hope to the people of Northern Ireland that the Nationalist and Unionist traditions may at last be able to achieve a reconciliation that respects the rights of both traditions and end the violence that has wracked the province for the past 17 years, at a cost of over 2,500 lives and untold damage to the fabric of the community.

Most important, the agreement sends an important message to the people of Ireland—and the United States—that peaceful progress is possible in Northern Ireland, and that the path of the bomb and the bullet is not the way to Ireland's future.

In one of its central provisions, the Anglo-Irish accord includes the unprecedented British acceptance of a role for the Republic of Ireland in the day-to-day affairs of Northern Ireland. With this specific new role for Ireland, the long-suffering Catholic minority in the North will have greater assurance that its rights and aspirations will be more fairly honored and more fully protected.

All of us who favor the cause of peace in Northern Ireland recognize the need to make this United States financial contribution available as swiftly as possible. The Irish and British Prime Ministers have clearly expressed their determination to move forward. The best way for the United States to demonstrate its support for the accord is to provide assistance now—when support is needed most.

We had hoped to make these funds available before the end of 1985, so that our support could begin to work its healing effect in the early days as the accord was first being implemented. If we fail to approve this contribution now, in all likelihood no U.S. aid will be available before the end of the current fiscal year, and an entire year will have been lost to inaction.

It has now been 7 months since the Anglo-Irish accord was signed—and the tensions have seldom been higher in Northern Ireland. Current headlines report ominous new threats by the extremist leaders of the Unionist community in their unconscionable effort to cripple the agreement. A strong demonstration of American support for the accord is especially timely now—and will be an important counterweight against the irresponsible appeals to violence of those opposed to peaceful change.

America has strong ties to both Britain and Ireland, and this modest American contribution to a better future for Northern Ireland can be a useful part of the process to achieve a permanent and lasting peace. On the day the Hillsborough Agreement was signed last fall, President Reagan praised the accord and pledged his support. In doing so, the President was reaffirming the commitment made by the previous Administration to work closely with Congress in a bipartisan effort to find effective ways for the United States to support the cause of peace in Northern Ireland, including the provision of financial assistance.

Last December, the Senate and the House of Representatives passed resolutions commending the accord and declaring our willingness to provide appropriate U.S. assistance, including economic and financial support.

Legislation approving a U.S. contribution to the accord has been adopted by both the Senate Appropriations Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The House of Representatives has already completed action on a 5-year program of financial assistance, of which this $50 million is the first installment for the current fiscal year, 1986.

This installment is not new money; the funds will be derived from the broad range of existing programs specified in the conference report, without serious harm to any single program. This appropriation will not bust the United States budget—but failure to adopt it will be a serious blow to peace in Northern Ireland and to our longstanding friendship with Ireland and Britain.

The United States funds will be used for economic reconstruction and revitalization of hard-hit areas in both

Northern Ireland and Ireland affected by the current violence. One of our principal goals is to provide employment opportunities for the most severly depressed areas of Northern Ireland—some of which have unemployment rates of 60 percent. The funds will also help to catalyze private investment in Northern Ireland, to attract new capital and thus provide further employment opportunities.

In addition, a substantial United States contribution is expected to induce contributions from other nations, including Canada, Australia and the members of the European Community.

Security measures alone cannot end the violence in Northern Ireland. The real hope and the best hope for lasting peace is the credible promise of common progress in the future for both communities if they put aside their ancient differences and learn to live and work together in peace.

Yesterday, the Senate passed a $1.1 billion dollar embassy security and antiterrorism bill, reflecting the deep concern that Americans share about the increasing level of terrorist attacks throughout the world. Few Americans, however, are aware of the terrorism with which the people of Northern Ireland have lived for the past two decades. The provision before us is the most concrete, positive step the United States can take to help the Irish and British Governments combat terrorism in Northern Ireland. If we are serious about fighting terrorism, it would be irresponsible for the Senate to refuse to approve this modest appropriation for Northern Ireland.

Many pitfalls lie ahead. Success of the Anglo-Irish accord is by no means guaranteed—and it will be tragic if America's lack of support contributes to the failure of the current initiative.

Make no mistake. Amid all the controversy over the accord, both sides in Northern Ireland are carefully watching what we do. The extremists hope that we will deny these funds, and play into their schemes to block the economic progress that is at the heart of the real promise of the accord. But those who are still committed to peaceful change will see in our support a fresh sign that the accord can work.

The Senate has the chance to make a small but important contribution to the fight against international terrorism. I urge my colleagues to reject this anti-Irish effort to approve the provision adopted by the conferees, and thereby do our part in the search for peace and an end to the violence on both sides in Northern Ireland.●

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion to concur in the House amendment to Senate amendment No. 93. On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. SIMPSON. I announce that the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ANDREWS], the Senator from Arizona. [Mr. GOLDWATER], the Senator from Florida [Mrs. HAWKINS], and the Senator from Oregon [Mr. PACKWOOD] are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 65, nays 31, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 154 Leg.]

YEAS—65

Baucus	Gore	Mitchell
Bentsen	Harkin	Moynihan
Biden	Hart	Murkowski
Bingaman	Hatch	Nunn
Boren	Hatfield	Pell
Boschwitz	Hecht	Pryor
Bradley	Heinz	Riegle
Byrd	Inouye	Rockefeller
Chafee	Johnston	Roth
Chiles	Kassebaum	Rudman
Cochran	Kasten	Sarbanes
Cohen	Kennedy	Sasser
Cranston	Kerry	Simon
D'Amato	Lautenberg	Simpson
Dixon	Laxalt	Specter
Dodd	Leahy	Stafford
Dole	Levin	Stennis
Domenici	Long	Stevens
Durenberger	Mathias	Warner
Eagleton	Matsunaga	Weicker
Ford	Melcher	Wilson
Garn	Metzenbaum

NAYS—31

Abdnor	Gorton	Nickles
Armstrong	Gramm	Pressler
Bumpers	Grassley	Proxmire
Burdick	Heflin	Quayle
Danforth	Helms	Symms
DeConcini	Hollings	Thurmond
Denton	Humphrey	Trible
East	Lugar	Wallop
Evans	Mattingly	Zorinsky
Exon	McClure
Glenn	McConnell

NOT VOTING—4

Andrews	Hawkins
Goldwater	Packwood

So the motion to concur in the House amendment to Senate amendment No. 93 was agreed to.

□ 1820

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

EXCEPTED AMENDMENT NO. 175

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, will the clerk report the next amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 175 to the aforesaid bill, and concur therein with an amendment as follows:

Strike out the matter stricken, and insert:

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

No Job Corps Center operating under part B of title IV of the Job Training Partnership Act shall be closed prior to July 1, 1987.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, will the Chair indicate what is precisely before the body at this time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Amendment No. 175.

Mr. HATFIELD. Committee amendment No. 175, is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes.

AMENDMENT NO. 2169

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I move to concur in the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate with a further amendment, which I send to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. JOHNSTON] for himself, Mr. LONG, Mr. BENTSEN, Mr. BOREN, and Mr. NICKLES, proposes an amendment numbered 2196.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment reads as follows:

At the end of the amendment insert:

Chapter VIII A.—Trade Adjustment Assistance

SECTION 1. (a) Section 222 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2272) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 222. GROUP ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS.

"(a) The Secretary shall certify a group of workers (including workers in any agricultural firm or subdivision of an agricultural firm) as eligible to apply for adjustment assistance under this chapter if the Secretary determines that—

"(1) a significant number or proportion of the workers in such workers' firm, or an appropriate subdivision of the firm, have become totally or partially separated, or are threatened to become totally or partially separated,

"(2) sales or production, or both, of such firm or subdivision have decreased absolutely, and

"(3) increases of imports of articles like or directly competitive with articles—

"(A) which are produced by such workers' firm or approprate subdivision thereof, or

"(B) in the case of workers of a firm in the oil or natural gas, industry, for which such workers' firm, or appropriate subdivision thereof, provides essential parts or essential services.

contributed importantly to such total or partial separation, or threat thereof, and to such decline in sales or production.

"(b) For purposes of subsection (a)(3)—

"(1) The term 'contributed importantly' means a cause which is important but not necessarily more important than any other cause.

"(2) Natural gas shall be considered to be competitive with crude oil and refined petroleum products.

"(3) Any firm, or subdivision of a firm, which—

"(A) engages in the exploration for oil or natural gas,

"(B) produces or extracts oil or natural gas, or

"(C) processes or refines oil or natural gas, shall be considered to be a part of the oil or natural gas industry and to be a firm providing essential services for such oil or natural gas and for the processed or refined products of such oil or natural gas.

"(4) Any firm which provides essential parts, or essential services, to another firm that conducts activities described in paragraph (3) with respect to oil or natural gas, as its principal trade or business, shall be considered to be part of the oil or natural gas industry and to be a firm providing essential services for such oil or natural gas and for the processed or refined products of such oil or natural gas.".

(b) Subsection (c) of section 251 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 234(c)) is amended to read as follows:

"(C)(1) The Secretary shall certify a firm (including any agricultural frim) as eligible to apply for adjustment assistance under this chapter if the Secretary determines that—

"(A) a significant number or proportion of the workers in such firm have become totally or partially separated, or are threatened to become totally or partially separated.

"(B) sales or production, or both, of such firm have decreased absolutely, and

"(C) increases of imports of articles like or directly competitive with articles—

"(i) which are produced by such firm, or

"(ii) in the case of a firm in the oil or natural gas industry, for which such firm provides essential parts or essential services, contributed importantly to such total or partial separation, or threat thereof, and to such decline in sales or production.

"(2) For purposes of paragraph (1)(C)—

"(A) The term 'contributed importantly' means a cause which is important but not necessarily more important than any other cause.

"(B) Natural gas shall be considered to be competitive with crude oil and refined petroleum products.

"(C) Any firm which—

"(i) engages in the exploration for oil or natural gas,

"(ii) produces or extracts oil or natural gas,

"(iii) processes or refines oil or natural gas, or

"(iv) provides essential parts, or essential services, to another firm that conducts activities described in any of the preceding clauses as its principal trade or business, shall be considered to be in the oil or natural gas industry and to be a firm providing essential services for such oil or natural gas and for the processed or refined products of such oil or natural gas.".

(C)(1) The amendments made by the section shall apply with respect to petitions for certification which are filed or pending—

(A) on or after September 30, 1986, and

(B) before October 1, 1987.

(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no worker shall be eligible for assistance under subchapter B of chapter 2 of title II of the Trade Act of 1974 if—

(A) such worker is covered by a certification made under subchapter A of such chapter only by reason of the amendment made by subsection (a) of this section, and

(B) the total or partial separation of such worker from adversely affected employment occurs after September 30, 1987.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, when this bill was on the floor of the Senate earlier, we adopted an amendment with respect to trade adjustment assistance. That amendment was costed out by CBO at $44 million for the first year and a like amount for each of 4 successive years.

The OMB costed out that amendment at $115 million. Nevertheless, we adopted that amendment on the floor because of the dire straits of oil and gas workers and oil and gas States.

When we went to the conference committee, Mr. President, I met personally with members of OMB for the purpose of addressing their objections. OMB had four objectives.

First, it requested that we require the imported articles to be directly competitive with the articles produced by the workers' firm. Therefore, OMB asked that the word "direct" be added to section 222(a)(3). We agreed to this.

Second, the OMB suggested that all tertiary workers be removed from the bill; that is, those whose relationship to the oil and gas industry is not direct.

Third, they suggested that secondary workers be limited to the oil and gas business.

□ 1830

And finally OMB requested that the amendment's affect be limited to those workers who become eligible in fiscal year 1987 alone.

Mr. President, we acceded to OMB's request in full. Subsequent to that, the amendment was costed out by the Congressional Budget Office, which determined that in fiscal year 1987 it would cost only $7 million in budget authority and $7 million in outlays.

Mr. President, I send this memorandum dated June 19, 1986, from the Congressional Budget Office with respect to estimates for this amendment, and I ask unanimous consent that it be placed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the memorandum was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 19, 1986.

MEMORANDUM

Subject: Recent Estimates for Trade Adjustment Assistance.

This memorandum provides more details on the estimates that I have recently provided to you. The first is the trade adjustment assistance provisions in the recently passed Senate version of the fiscal 1986 supplemental appropriations bill (H.R. 4515), which would extend coverage to oil and gas industry workers and secondary workers in other industries. You also asked me to consider a one-year extension of covered to oil and gas workers and their suppliers, but to exclude other secondary workers.

Senate-passed H.R. 4515. In the Senate-passed version of the urgent supplemental appropriations bill for fiscal year 1986, an amendment was attached that would specifically allow oil and gas industry workers to be certified to trade readjustment allowances, and would extend eligibility for benefits to workers in firms supplying good and services to firms directly affected by increased imports (so-called secondary workers). The CBO estimate for the costs of these programs expansions are displayed below. The CBO assumed that this would increase the entitlement components of TAA-cash benefits and job search—by about 40 percent, the same assumption used in last year's deliberation of the secondary workers issue.

ADDITIONAL COSTS

[By fiscal year in millions of dollars]

	1987	1988	1989	1990	1991
Budget authority	44	45	47	48	50
Outlays	44	45	47	48	50

We did not specifically isolate the oil and gas workers in this estimate. Because the baseline incorporating COBRA relied on recent program history and in the previous year some oil refinery workers had been certified, the baseline implicitly includes some oil and gas workers. These workers would represent roughly 3 percent of the number of certified workers assumed in our current law estimates. The Department of Labor (DOL) assumed that the language of the Senate amendment to H.R. 4515 would cover roughly 2.5 additional workers for every oil worker who would be certified under current law. Although this is significantly higher than the 40 percent assumed for secondary workers in general, oil and gas workers were too small a proportion of all recipients to cause us to change the percentage for this amendment.

One-year extension to oil and gas workers and their suppliers. An alternative to the Senate amendment that is now under consideration is a one-year extension of TAA coverage limited to only oil and gas industry workers and their suppliers. Only petitions for certifications filed before the end of fiscal 1987 would be allowed. No benefits would be paid to any newly covered workers before October 1, 1986. The CBO estimate for this provision is displayed below.

ADDITIONAL COSTS

[By fiscal year, in millions of dollars]

	1987	1988	1989	1990	1991
Budget authority	7	3	0	0	0
Outlays	7	3	0	0	0

Outlays would occur in 1987 and 1988 under this proposal. The 1988 outlays occur because of the petitions filed in late 1987 which would not have their processing completed until sometime in 1988.

Additional considerations. The baseline assumptions upon which this estimate is based are the CBO February 1986 economic and budget projections. The economic forecast was actually completed in December before the oil price decline was fully realized. Although some decline from 1985 to 1986 had been forecast, it proved to be much smaller than the actual decline. As a result, our baseline budget projections do not reflect the dislocations caused by the oil price declines. Thus, even though almost 100,000 oil and gas industry workers have lost their jobs since January, the baseline does not reflect this change in economic conditions. However, it is still uncertain how long oil prices will remain at the current level. If oil prices were to return to levels near those assumed in baseline, many oil and gas workers would probably regain their jobs. On the other hand, continued low prices could have important implications for spending in programs which are sensitive to unemployment. However, our economic forecast will not be revised until this summer, and revised baseline budget estimates will be produced at that time.

If you have any further questions, I may be reached at 226-2820.

RUDOLPH G. PENNER,
Director.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, the OMB has further communicated that by virtue of reducing this matter to the point that it has been reduced, if accepted on the floor, it will not be vetoed by the President of the United States. It is fair to say that while we have answered and agreed to each and every objection of OMB, they still dislike trade adjustment assistance in its entirety. Nevertheless, they have specifically stated that the bill will not be vetoed if adopted in this form. That is as close to an endorsement as you can get from the Office of Management and Budget.

Mr. President, I will not restate at this point all of the reasons I, and others stated on the floor at the time a much bigger amendment was adopted. Let me simply say that we are in dire straits in the oil-producing States of this Nation. This is a $7 million amendment. We just adopted $50 million for Northern Ireland, $55 million for universities, and I hope no objection will be made to this very modest amendment which has now passed muster with OMB.

Mr. BENTSEN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. BENTSEN. I rise in support of the Senator's amendment. Some 142,000 people have been off in the oil industry the first 5 months of this year. Many of us watched one of the major network shows the other night where they were bringing in U-Haul trailers from all over the Nation to move unemployed people out of Texas. They were taking the trailers to some Texas cities, such as Midland and Odessa, which have been great oil-producing cities where oil provided substantial employment. Now you are seeing an incredible reduction in that kind of work. We are seeing unemployment in Texas at the highest level it has been since the Great Depression. This is a time when we have more workers out of work in Texas than we have had since the early thirties.

I strongly support the amendment, as I did previously, of the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. DANFORTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, I make a point of order that this amendment violates section 401 of the Budget Act in that it is legislation on an appropriations bill.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I move to waive the Budget Act as provided by the Budget Act, and ask for recognition.

Mr. President, a $7 million amendment is being objected to when people in my State are suffering to a degree that they have not suffered since the Great Depression. The same thing is true of Texas.

Mr. President, as I was saying, this amendment involves $7 million for oil and gas workers who are laid off.

Mr. President, I had breakfast this morning with the new mayor of New Orleans. If I could give you some idea of how deep the suffering is in the oil and gas producing States, the mayor told me he has a $12 million deficit in the budget of the city of New Orleans. This deficit is requiring him this very day to lay off one-third of the policemen and firemen in New Orleans. It requires them to let out of jail 900 prisoners, many of whom are exceedingly dangerous. They had to close the public libraries for lack of money. A group of businessmen got together and said look, we cannot allow this to happen. Let us put up the money for 6 months and hope something will come along.

Some 1,800 employees of the city of New Orleans are being fired immediately. The State legislature is now in session and has had to cut $800 million from its budget. It is going to let off State workers by the thousands. The unemployment rate in my State—and Louisiana is not the only State impacted, Mr. President—is 13.2 percent and rising. Eighty thousand people who were formerly employed have left the State. Mr. President, you cannot hire a U-Haul trailer in Louisiana. They are all gone. They are actually chartering planes to send people to Miami to pick up U-Haul trailers and drive them back to bring them back to Louisiana. That is all that is left, Mr. President.

What this trade adjustment assistance does is two things. First, it gives extra unemployment insurance to those who are laid off in the oil and gas industry due to increased imports. Second, it gives retraining funds to those same people.

Next year, this amendment will cost 7 million measly dollars. Mr. President, the so-called Gramm-Rudman Act and the Budget Act provide for a waiver. If this is not an emergency, I do not know how you get an emergency, Mr. President. If this Senate cannot respond with $7 million to these people who are in dire straits, I do not know where the consistency is. How can we give $50 million to Northern Ireland and turn right around and say our own unemployed cannot get a measly $7 million? I voted for funds for universities, $55 million a month ago because I think the universities need it. But I can tell you they do not need it as badly as these unemployed workers do.

Mr. President, I plead with my colleagues that this amendment is only a fraction as large as it was, somewhere between one-fourth and one-seventh of what it was.

It has passed muster with the OMB. It is a very small amount but targeted right to the heart of the problem. I hope, Mr. President, that my colleagues will go along with this very small amendment.

Let me say one more thing, Mr. President. The House is in session, and will be in session until this matter is received by them. I have reason to hope that the House will accept this, in which event it will require no further action. If they reject the amendment, we will not have to have another rollcall vote. Therefore, it is not a question of Senators having to stay around here if they vote for this amendment. I want to make that very clear. However you vote on this amendment, Senators should understand that it is not going to require them to stay around for another rollcall vote.

While I have good reason to hope that the House will accept it, which would be the end of the matter, if they do not, then we will have no alternative but by voice vote to go along.

Mr. President, I cannot believe that this Senate after having voted 55 to 40 to waive the Budget Act for a much larger amendment would now turn us down for a much scaled-down version which has been approved by the OMB.

EXPANSION OF TAA PROGRAM TO INCLUDE LAID OFF OIL AND GAS INDUSTRY WORKERS

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. President, I join with Senator JOHNSTON in calling for extension of the current Trade Adjustment and Assistance Program to oil and gas industry workers. I supported a similar amendment by Senator JOHNSTON when the urgent supplemental appropriation bill was considered. It was approved by the full Senate then, and I hope the more narrowly targeted version being offered by Senator JOHNSTON now will be approved as well.

The TAA Program is designed explicitly to provide temporary assistance, job training, and search help to workers in industries hard hit by foreign trade. The energy industry is a primary candidate for inclusion in that program. The amendment before us now will ensure that workers in that industry are eligible to participate in the TAA Program. Last year, some 20,000 American working men and women received benefits under TAA—in industries all across this Nation and in both service and manufacturing sectors. Over one-third of them received job training or job search assistance as well. That is a higher proportion than in past years under the TAA Program. It means that our unemployed oil and gas field workers or workers in firms supplying the energy industry will have the right to both temporary assistance and retraining if they so choose. In that sense, this amendment provides both a short-term answer to the problems afflicting oil and gas industry workers and a longer-term answer, too.

Some have questioned whether our oil and gas industry is really in economic distress due to foreign trade. In fact, the domestic energy industry is so dominated by events abroad that it catches a cold everytime Saudi Arabia sneezes. The price at which our domestic energy industry can sell its oil and gas is directly determined abroad. The quantity they can sell here at home is nearly completely up to the handful of major producers in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, or OPEC. The explanation is simple. OPEC can produce oil at $1 or less per barrel while much of our domestic production is considerably more expensive, with an average lifting cost approaching $10 per barrel. The vulnerability of domestic producers to foreign trade was dramatically demonstrated this winter when Saudi Arabia decided to reduce its price and increase its sales. It dropped prices by over one-half and captured market share by guaranteeing to match any lower price by any other producer.

A Government owned hand is on the value, not the invisible hand of the free market. The collapse in prices to the neighborhood of $13 per barrel now from $27 per barrel last fall has hit our domestic oil and gas producers on the chin. They are reeling—cutting output, laying off workers, slashing exploration budgets and shutting down all drilling not under binding contracts. It is all directly due to foreign trade.

There cutbacks have raged like a wildlife through the oil and gas industry. Nearly daily, papers across my State of Texas carry stories of budget cuts and layoffs. Nationally, the Bureau of Labor Statistics shows that 142,000 oil and gas industry jobs were lost in the first 5 months of this year. That's a loss of 23 percent in barely 5 months. At that pace, there will be only one person working in the oil and gas business by Christmas for every two in that industry this last Christmas. Any industry facing job loss at a 50-percent annual pace is in trouble. There is blood all across the energy heartland of our Nation. As I said before, U-Haul trailers are being brought into Texas from all over the Nation to move our unemployed to other States.

In recent weeks, the number of rotary rigs has fallen 85 percent from its 1981 peak to set new lows. Currently, there are barely the same number of oil and gas rigs in operation that we had in the dark, early days of World War II when our Nation was diverting pipe and everything else to the war effort. That collapse in drilling translates directly into declining exploration and fewer new oil discoveries. Only 1 well in 13 wildcats locates new deposits. Thus, all across the Nation we could well see a bare 3 wildcats a week come in this year, compared to 30 successful wildcats back in 1981.

That's bad news for the country. It means increasing vulnerability to OPEC oil blackmail. It means higher oil prices in the future. In my State of Texas, however, the impact has been much more immediate. Since January, 172,000 jobs have been lost in Texas. Some 40,500 of them have come directly from the oil and gas industry. But for each job lost directly in that industry, three or more others have been lost in the ripple effect. For example, since December, 15,000 jobs in manufacturing in Texas have been lost. Some 39,000 jobs in retailing have been lost. Even 6,000 needed jobs in the motion picture and amusement sector have been lost. All together, unemployment in my State of Texas has risen 44 percent since December to a record 779,000 in May. The unemployment rate has risen 50 percent since January.

Tell me any other State that has that kind of loss, and tell me about how you want to eliminate a $7 million assistance program designed to give oil and gas workers the same help that other workers get. Unemployment claims in the oil patch have jumped many fold.

This amendment will ensure that oil and gas industry workers in refining, exploration and production are eligible for TAA assistance. But it goes further than that. It recognizes that the ripple effects on other related industries is a real fact of life. Thus, laid-off workers in industries which provided goods and services to the oil industry, like drill bits and oil rigs, will be eligible as well. Finally, it will provide eligibility for workers laid off since last fall—since October 1, 1985.

The cost of this program is minimal—a mere $7 million for only 1 year, spread across the entire country. For those who still balk I remind you that providing help for oilworkers is just as deep a problem as providing help for steelworkers, textileworkers, or shoeworkers. It is only minimal assistance we ask for tonight.

I am very pleased to support this amendment. It is a quick and necessary Federal response to the crisis gripping our energy industry. I hope that the House or Representatives will act favorably on it.

Mr. BOREN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. BOREN. Mr. President, I congratulate my colleague from Texas and my colleague from Louisiana for the amendment which has been offered. I join them in offering this amendment. I commend them also for their remarks they have just made to our colleagues in the Senate.

We had this issue before us a few days ago. The Senate went on record very strongly by a substantial margin in favoring a proposal to provide this kind of assistance to unemployed oilworkers thrown out of work because of developments in world trade and manipulation of prices by the governments of other nations.

Now we have an amendment before us much scaled back from that original proposal. I feel certain that my colleagues in the Senate will once again go on record as they did before in favor of providing this kind of assistance for oilworkers. We are simply talking about fairness and equity, Mr. President.

We all realize that we are living through a revolutionary change in our economic relationship with the rest of the world. Twenty years ago, 3 or 4 percent of the products that we produced in this country and the products that we used every day in this country moved through international trade. We had a self-contained national market, really open primarily to American producers of goods and services.

In just 20 short years we have had a revolutionary change in this relationship. We have had a fourfold increase in the percentage of the goods and services that we produce in this country that must be sold to markets overseas. We have had the same kind of increase in the level of imports coming into the United States. In fact, today, 80 percent of all the producers of goods and services in this country must compete with foreign competitors for the American market here at home. That is a drastic change in our economic relationshp with the rest of the world.

It takes time to adjust to these kinds of drastic changes, just as it took time, Mr. President, to adjust to changes that were wrought by the industrial revolution.

When the history of this period is written, it is going to be noted that this change was as dramatic and far reaching in the 1970's, 1980, in the last two decades of this century, as the industrial revolution, itself.

So we have realized wisely, I believe, that we needed a curb on the impact of those changes on the lives of people who simply had no control over what was happening to them. We have done that. We have provided additional unemployment benefits. We have provided a longer period of transition where jobs are not available. We have provided training assistance so that people who must learn new skills in order to take advantage of the employment opportunities that are available will have a chance to learn those skills.

Mr. President, in the years in which my particular part of the country and my particular State were in a boom, when we had very low unemployment, as a member of the Finance Committee I still consistently supported trade adjustment assistance that benefited citizens primarily in other parts of the United States because I did not think it was their fault that they were being thrown out of work. They could not direct their companies, they could not direct the policies of the governments of other nations, which in some cases were providing subsidies to their exports. They had no control over those forces that cost them their jobs and their livelihood.

These are proud people, people who want a chance to work, people who want a chance to support their families, people who want a chance to pay for the education of their children, people who want to make their house payments on time.

They do not want to sit back and draw a Government check. They want a chance.

But they have had no choice. They did not choose to become unemployed. They did not choose to lose their jobs.

I felt it was very important that all of us join together as Americans without regard to which part of the country we may happen to live in, without regard to which industry might be dominant in our State, that we reach out as Americans to help each other with compassion and with understanding, to try to help people make shifts in their lives, to learn new skills so they could remain productive, taxpaying citizens.

□ 1850

That is our goal. That is what the vast majority of the people that are affected by these changes want to do. They do not want to become wards of the Government. They are proud, independent people who want to pull their own weight in this society and contribute something back to it.

Mr. President, I am at a loss to understand why, for some reason, when you mention the word "oil," a whole new set of standards is thrown up. I think that sometimes when you say the word "oil," there are visions that come into mind of J.R. Ewing ruling some huge empire from Hollywood sets to chisel the rest of us.

I wish my colleagues had a chance to know the people who work on these drilling rigs, people who have undertaken great hazards on those jobs. I do not know how many people I have known who have worked on those drilling rigs and have suffered personal injury. Many of them I grew up with, and they are now working on those drilling rigs.

Now, because of the admitted—not as if it is a secret. Press conference have been held all over this world by the leaders of OPEC, saying they are manipulating the price of oil. Because of that manipulation, 86 percent of all the drilling rigs in the United States are stacked today, and the people who worked on those rigs are out of work. They did not have anything to say about it. That roughneck who lives in Okemah, OK or Seminole, OK, or Ardmore, OK, was not asked whether he wanted to be thrown out of a job because of a decision made by an oil minister in a Gulf state. He had no choice.

The price of oil has been so manipulated that not only have we stopped drilling, with the price being driven to levels below even those in 1941, which until this time had been the lowest recorded, but also, we are cutting out jobs on existing wells.

Studies have shown that with respect to the 400,000 stripper wells in this country, when prices get as low as $10 a barrel, we will have the plugging of some 60 percent of those wells within 12 months.

There is no way you can operate and produce from an oil well if the cost of lifting that oil is $15 a barrel when the price is $10. When that well is plugged, not only is that oil lost, tragically, to American consumers who have already paid the environmental costs and other costs of drilling that oil, but also, jobs are lost. The pumpers on those wells are thrown out of work, alongside the workers on the wells that are now stacked up and down the highways of States like mine.

The oilworkers who take these hazardous risks, who are not paid a higher wage per hour than workers in any other industry, are no less virtuous than workers in other industries. Their house payments and the cost of education for their children are no less real and no less pressing than the bills that come into the households of the steelworker, the shoeworker, the textileworker.

I appeal to my colleagues. In the past, we have all been guilty of this in the various regions of the country. We have all talked only in terms of what interested our own geographical regions. I hope we will try to set, aside that attitude, that we will realize we are all Americans together, and one part of this country cannot suffer for very long without it spilling over and impacting the rest of us.

There were some people in my part of the country, when we had a boom, who said: "We are an oasis. We don't have to worry about the economic problems in other parts of the country." They have learned that those economic consequences will affect other parts of the country as well.

Let us establish a standard that whatever happens to a region in the country—and that is a standard of fairness—we will treat all workers the same, hardworking people who are thrown out of jobs through no fault of their own, if they need retraining, and see that they have a chance to remain productive citizens.

We should meet the needs of that person who is a victim of economic forces beyond his control. We should meet that need whether that particular worker happens to be a Texan or an Oklahoman or a New Yorker or a Californian or an Alaskan. It should not make one bit of difference. We are all Americans together, and we should have equal treatment for people who find themselves in the same situation.

So I commend the Senator from Louisiana for taking the lead in offering this amendment. I am privileged to join him as a cosponsor. I hope my colleagues will support his proposal by an overwhelming majority.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I have listened to my dear colleague from Oklahoma talk about how some people react differently as soon as the word "oil" comes up.

I say to my colleague that no more beautiful word comes to my mind than "oil." Maybe that is because I represent, along with Senator BENTSEN, the great State of Texas. I represent people who are out of work. I do not need to be told how bad problems are in the oil industry. I have seen the devastation; and since we are talking about a collapse in world oil prices, certainly that qualifies under trade adjustment assistance.

My problem is the same one I had when we last debated this issue. It is that while I am fully in favor of granting coverage under trade adjustment assistance and would stand ready to vote for it, we have made a commitment this year, for the first time in a long time, to try set out some parameters to bring spending under control. We committed ourselves that if we are going to spend money on something of great importance, such as this, we will take that money from something else of less importance.

My objection to this amendment has nothing to do with the fact that we are trying to help people who legitimately need help. I agree with that. I do believe that in the past there has been this feeling, as our distinguished colleague from Oklahoma says, that everybody in the oil business is a "J.R. Ewing." I wish that were true today, because there are a lot of people suffering, and if they had his assets this would be an unhappy time but not such a painful one. For every person sitting in an air-conditioned office as the president of an independent oil operation, there are a great many more men and women laboring in the industry, working hard day to day—or people who have no jobs.

Mr. President, what we are doing here is saying that there is this crisis in the Nation and therefore we should respond by overriding a point of order on the budget. My view is that there is a crisis in the Nation.

I wish our distinguished colleague from Louisiana had offered an amendment that reduced expenditures on another entitlement and said that this is a higher priority than some other program we are spending money on.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. GRAMM. Let me make an additional point.

Our distinguished colleague from Louisiana raised the point about aid to Ireland. I voted against aid to Ireland, even though we reprogrammed the money in terms of aid to Ireland, which is something that is not proposed here.

So we had one problem in that we are adding a new entitlement. That is something I, personally, could live with if we were saving the money in another area. But I come back to the point that each of us has a particular concern. My concern happens to be the one that has been expressed so articulately by my three distinguished colleagues from Louisiana, Texas, and Oklahoma. I share that concern. I also share our concern about trying to operate within the Budget Act.

I have no doubt this amendment will be approved, and there is no doubt that I will be happy the people in Texas will benefit from it—if the House accepts it. However, I must make the point that this amendment, as meritorious and compelling as it is, is a perfect example of why we are such poor stewards of the taxpayers' money.

We each have our own particular interest that is so important that we are willing to violate the budget because of it. Yet, in the aggregate, the net result is that deficits continue to be a deadweight burden on the economy; they continue to depress the creation of the very jobs we seek. That is why I voted against this amendment—not on the amendment itself, but on the point of order not to increase the deficit. That is why, if there is a vote here today, I will vote to preserve the budget point of order, even though I am strongly in favor of the content of the amendment and would vigorously support the amendment if the point of order did not lie against it on the budget or if there were an offsetting provision to hold the deficit neutral.

I yield to the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I thank the Senator for yielding.

Mr. President, I wish to make three points.

First, I think the Senator knows that this vote is not on a point of order. Rather, it is on a motion to waive the Budget Act, as we have done tens of times this year on other matters. The Senator will agree that we have waived the Budget Act a number of times, though not precisely on this point.

□ 1900

Mr. GRAMM. If I may, a point of order was made that under the Budget Act under title 401 we are creating a new entitlement here and in this process sending up the deficit. There is some dispute how much that is, whether it is $7 million or $30 million. That is going to be discussed later. That is not my point. We have waived the Budget Act in the past. I opposed it in the past. I think if we have critical needs—and I think the distinguished Senator from Louisiana has presented one that to me is certainly a critical need—what we should do is take the money away from a lower priority use, rather than simply waiving the Budget Act which we do on an almost continuing basis but which we do to the overall peril of the economy and the future of the country.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Second, was the Senator aware of two things: first, even though this point of order is on the question of creating a new entitlement, that the so-called entitlement is only for 1 year, that is, for those workers who are eligible for TAA during fiscal year 1987? Therefore, the Senator should be aware that this is not like other entitlements that go on forever—the Food Stamp Program or Social Security or whatever. This is, in effect, a 1-year entitlement. Second, since the point of order is on the question of the entitlement, there is no requirement that we take the $7 million from somewhere else and put it here, as it was, for example, in the tax bill.

There was no requirement to do that, which is the reason we did not do it. We could find it in a million places. This is only 1/100,000th or less of the Federal budget. It is chickenfeed for the budget. However, it is vital for oil workers. I think the Senator would certainly agree with that. He is aware of these three points, is he not?

Mr. GRAMM. I am perfectly aware but I go back to the point that if this is that critical—and I believe it is—I think it would have behooved us to have produced an amendment that made a corresponding reduction. I think those of us who are concerned about the deficit would have been eager to support it under those circumstances. We do have a point of order about a new entitlement, and I believe that we set out a Budget Act to achieve a worthwhile purpose. We do not fulfill that purpose by simply waiving the Budget Act, though we have that right. That is the source of my concern.

Mr. NICKLES and Mr. ROTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I rise in support of my good friends and colleagues, Senator JOHNSTON, Senator BOREN, and Senator GRAMM, and others in support of this amendment. We should not really have a long debate tonight. We have already debated this. The Senate debated it at length and the Senate by a strong majority agreed with those of us who said that oil and gas workers should be included under the Trade Adjustment Program. They are unemployed, not of their own choice. They are unemployed because of the Saudis and other countries deciding to increase world production and drive prices down. That is not the marketplace at work. It is manipulation of the market. But the Senate has voted. The Senate has debated. We have considered it and I would hope that we would not really waste a lot of time.

I think people know how we are going to vote. We have a lot of people who are wanting to leave town tonight. I hope that we would agree with Senator JOHNSTON and move this amendment forward. I was very disappointed that the House of Representatives dropped it. If one says, "Well, they dropped it for fiscal reasons," if you read the budget, if you read the supplemental appropriation bill, you will find lots of cats and dogs, lots of them. I agree with my good friend and colleague, Senator GRAMM from Texas, that maybe this would have been a better amendment if we had an offset, but right now we do not.

However, we do have a lot of unemployed workers who need some assistance, and they really do not have the time, they do not have the ability to wait for future legislative action. They are hurting. They are hurting right now. I introduced legislation today on behalf of myself and Senator BOREN that would make a legislative change, that would allow this assistance for oil and gas workers as it would for a steelworker or a rubber worker, a textile worker or any other industry, if that should happen. But we are not going to get that passed tonight. That should happen, and I hope that it will happen, in the next couple of months. But now what we have before us is the ability to be able to provide very limited, much more restrictive relief than what even passed the Senate a few weeks ago. So I hope that again we will move this forward and vote on it in the very near future.

Mr. DIXON and Mr. ROTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DIXON. Mr. President, I rise to add my voice in support of what my friend from Louisiana is doing. So that there is no impression that this is just the oil-rich States like Louisiana, Texas, and Oklahoma that are interested, in southern Illinois we have a very substantial oil and gas industry, largely stripper wells, things of that kind. Over 4,000 unemployed workers in southern Illinois would be benefited by the passage of the amendment advocated by the Senator from Louisiana. I think that is generally true in many other States which have modest oil and gas industries with unemployed people. I urge my colleagues to support the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. ROTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I will be brief because I know everybody does want to move on. I have great sympathy for what the distinguished Senator from Louisiana is attempting to do, but my concern is that it is not equitable. The fact is that we have other employees who have lost their jobs because of imports, other secondary workers who are not eligible for TAA. We only have to look at the textile industry, the steel industry, the automobile industry, the rubber industry, to name just a few sectors that have been hard hit by imports, like the secondary worker to the oil and gas industries, the employees supplying products to these industries are not receiving TAA either.

I think it is very important to understand that the primary employees of oil and gas are being treated exactly the same as employees of the textile industry, rubber, steel, and the others. They are all covered by TAA primarily because I was successful earlier this year in getting trade adjustment to be continued as part of budget reconciliation.

As you know, Mr. President, I have been working long and hard with the help of just about everyone in this Chamber to strengthen our Nation's Trade Adjustment Assistance Program. But I am also a proponent of equity, complete fairness in the administration of this assistance. All American workers and firms adversely affected by trade must be treated equally. Under no circumstances should we show bias or begin what could result in conflict among our country's various industries by favoring secondary workers in some instances but not in others. Unfortunately, this is the consequence of the Johnston amendment. We would be giving special coverage to the secondary workers in the oil and gas industry but not others.

Let me say, so the RECORD shows, it is my full intent to again offer a trade adjustment amendment in the Finance Committee which will cover all secondary workers including the oil and gas workers but also many others who have been adversely affected by imports. I would also say that, in answer to my distinguished junior Senator from Texas, I will once again make a proposal that is self-financed. I feel it is only fair that there be some kind of a small import fee that would pay the cost of this trade adjustment assistance.

So, Mr. President, while I rise in opposition to the amendment of the Senator from Louisiana, I assure him and the others that I intend to offer at the earliest opportunity an amendment that will cover all secondary workers. We will also provide the means to finance this proposal.

Mr. ABDNOR addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. ABDNOR. I rise simply to ask my colleague from Louisiana a question. I think I supported the Senator on the earlier amendment but I am just wondering what is different this time. The Senator and I both ran into the obstacle. The gentleman over in the House has the rule that all he has to do is what he did before, get up and refuse to accept it. I would hate to go through this exercise for nothing. Is there any reason to think that something is changed?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I appreciate my colleague's question. What has changed in the meantime is that we have negotiated with OMB and met four separate requirements that they required, including making this a 1-year entitlement instead of a 5-year entitlement. Second, we have reduced the cost. According to CBO, the original amendment would have cost $44 million in 1987. Now it costs $7 million.

Mr. ABDNOR. I am not trying to cause the Senator trouble. That is not my concern. That gentleman sits over there with rule XXI that he made up for his own behalf that says anything relating to his committee has to be out of his committee and approved by him, and all he has to do is bring it up and it is stopped, no matter what OMB or anyone else says. I dislike that and I am going to make a comment about it on another matter because I think it is grossly unfair to the Senate, that we have to put up with that. But it did happen. I am just wondering if the Senator got him called off. More power to him if he has.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I am telling my colleague I hope so.

□ 1910

Mr. DANFORTH addessed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, I previously indicated to the Senator from Louisiana that I would like a rollcall vote on the waiver of the Budget Act. I have reconsidered that position and I shall not ask for a rollcall.

I do want to make just two points, though. The first is on the effect that this has on the budget.

There is a dispute on this. The Congressional Budget Office has indicated that it is about $7 million. However, during this debate, Director Miller of OMB telephoned me and said that their figures indicate that this is a $30 million cost, not a $7 million cost.

The second point I make is that it is important to distinguish between oil field workers and people who are employed in related industries.

Oilfield workers now may apply for trade adjustment assistance and, in fact, trade adjustment assistance has been given to some oil field workers. Not all that have applied, but some who have applied, have received trade adjustment assistance on a finding that those oil-field workers who have received assistance work for businesses that have been directly impacted by imports.

This amendment, as I understand it, does not go to the question of oilfield workers. It does not expand their rights. Rather, it goes to workers who are ancillary to the oil business, secondary workers who provide essential services to the oil industry. Therefore, what this amendment would do is single out businesses that are ancillary, secondary, to the oil industry and make them subject to coverage under trade adjustment assistance.

There are people who have advocated this as a general principle and the amendment that was offered by Senator JOHNSTON on the floor a few weeks ago did extend secondary trade adjustment coverage beyond the oil industry to other industries as well. What this amendment would do, as I understand the amendment, is single out the oil industry and provide trade adjustment assistance to those related industries that, in turn, feed into or supply the oil industry.

I think that this is something that is very doubtful. I do believe that it is an entitlement program. I think that it is not realistic to think that it is an entitlement program that will stop at 1 year or that will stop at only the oil industry, I think that it constitutes legislating on an appropriations bill.

This is not the way to broaden the Trade Adjustment Assistance Program if we want to broaden the Trade Adjustment Assistance Program. However, I recognize that the Senate voted on this matter a few weeks ago and I do believe that Senator JOHNSTON would have the votes in this case. In view of the hour, I shall not insist on a rollcall vote.

Mr. SIMPSON addressed the Chair.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. President, I am not going to intrude upon the time of my colleagues at this hour but I do insist that this is an important issue in my State.

WYOMING UNEMPLOYMENT

Figures just released show that the unemployment rate in Wyoming is 10.8 percent—fourth highest in the Nation and directly attributable to the downturn in the energy industries.

OIL PRICE AND IMPORTS

In the first week of April 1986, spot market prices for oil briefly feel below $10 a barrel—or one-third the $30 price that prevailed as recently as November 1985.

In the last 6 months, the United States has increased its import of oil by 26 percent.

It is clear to me that the large increase in unemployment in the energy production States is directly attributable to the increased import of cheap foreign oil.

We have known in energy-producing States like Wyoming for many, many months that problems in our domestic energy industry spell deep problems for the entire country. It is imperative that we move swiftly on all fronts to lessen the effects of what thoughtful people would call the current crisis. Efforts to broaden the interpretation of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act is but one of the many steps we should be taking.

The Trade Adjustment Assistance Act provides up to an additional 26 weeks of unemployment compensation and retraining funds to workers who have lost their jobs because of imports.

The reconciliation bill passed earlier this year by Congress extends the Trade Adjustment Assistance Program to 1991 and requires workers to be enrolled in a job search program to be eligible for cash benefits.

The Trade Adjustment Assistance Program has come under increasing—and valid—criticism for being little more than extended unemployment for certain workers in our society, but not for others who cannot prove they were hurt by foreign competition.

I have not always supported the TAA Program—and in these times of fiscal austerity I might well vote in favor of future restrictions—or even termination of the program.

However, as long as such a program exists, I believe that energy-related companies that have been hurt by foreign oil imports should be allowed to receive benefits under the Trade Adjustment Assistance Program.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, the amendment that I am offering as an amendment to the House amendment to H.R. 4515 is a scaled-back version of the trade adjustment assistance amendment that was adopted by a vote of 55 to 40 during Senate consideration of the urgent supplemental. Specifically, this amendment limits the extension of TAA to the oil and gas and oil and gas service industries and eliminates the extended eligibility after fiscal year 1987. The CBO estimates that the cost of this amendment, both in terms of budget authority and outlays will be $7 million in fiscal year 1987 and $3 million in fiscal year 1988.

First, section (b)(2) of this amendment states that the whole oil and natural gas chain, from exploration to refining is one primary industry.

Second, by extending trade adjustment assistance to workers and firms that provide essential parts or essential services to the oil and gas industry, it is my intent to assure that such assistance will be available to the traditional suppliers of the oil and natural gas industry as defined in (b)(2). By such suppliers, I mean to include anyone who provides essential parts or services to anyone in that chain such as mud suppliers, drill bit suppliers, seismic companies, crew boat companies, board road suppliers, pipeline installation companies, helicopter operations, and others.

Mr. President, this amendment applies to primary workers in the oil and gas business and only to those workers whose principal trade or business is furnishing goods or services or labor to the oil and gas industry.

I thank my colleagues.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion to waive the Budget Act.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Louisiana.

The amendment (No. 2169) was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I move the adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's motion is a motion to concur with the amendment.

The question is on agreeing to the motion to concur.

The motion to concur was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, first, I thank all colleagues for their help in this matter. I sincerely hope the House will be as accommodating. I certainly thank my colleague from Missouri who, even though he vociferously opposed the amendment, nevertheless allowed us to pass it with dispatch.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I believe that now we have concluded the amendments in disagreement numbers 23, 91, 93, and 175. So that completes those amendments that have been sent to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

There are still two Senate amendments pending.

Mr. HATFIELD. I understand. I simply wanted to get those with which we are in disagreement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

AMENDMENT NO 114

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate amendment No. 114.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The House insists on its amendment to amendment No. 114.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, that is UDAG amendment No. 114.

I move that the Senate recede from its amendment No. 114.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the motion of the Senator from Oregon?

Hearing none, the motion is agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 199

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate amendment No. 199, motor vehicle records maintenance.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 199: Page 30, after line 4, insert:

SEC. 4. None of the funds appropriated by this Act or any other Act shall be used to implement temporary Internal Revenue Service Regulation section 1.274-5T or section 1.274-6T or any other regulation issued reaching the same result as, or a result to, such temporary regulations.

Mr. ABDNOR. Mr. President, I wish to speak on this amendment. I know what occurred in the conference committee and there was nothing we could do about it. I would not attempt to do what the Senator from Louisiana attempted.

□ 1920

Last year, by a 92 to 1 vote, the Senate passed a bill repealing the requirement that taxpayers keep detailed records on their business vehicles.

But the House, while boasting about how they were killing logbooks, passed a different bill which actually contained a requirement that taxpayers maintain "written records" and called for the IRS to issue a whole new set of regulations specifying what sort of documentation would be required.

In conference, the Senate was able to water this language down, but the House conferees still insisted on enough language about "written evidence" that the IRS had the exact loophole they needed to reimpose their nit-picking recordkeeping rules all over again.

And the IRS took full advantage of that loophole by publishing new regulations. While technically those regulations do not require logbooks, most CPA's I have talked to are advising their clients that nothing short of detailed records documenting every business mile will protect them in the event of an audit.

The amendment which I wrote into the Treasury section of this supplemental and which we passed here in the Senate by an overwhelming 81 to 17 vote simply invalidates the increased substantiation requirements contained in the latest IRS regulations.

The Senate committee report language makes it crystal clear that the intent of this provision is simply to return to the substantiation requirements in effect prior to passage of the 1984 tax bill—the bill which caused the whole recordkeeping mess in the first place.

Despite the overwhelming sentiment here in the Senate for ending this nightmare for millions of honest taxpayers, the House conferees said they simply could not agree to this provision. They said it's a "tax or tariff" measure and violates rule 21 of the House. And yesterday, when this provision was brought up on the floor of the House, it was dropped as soon as the threat of a point of order was raised.

And I was astonished to hear one of the members of the House Appropriations Committee say on the floor of the House when the night legislation was before them that those who were supporting this amendment should just hold off and wait for the problem to be taken care of on the tax bill.

Well, the truth of the matter is that neither the House nor the Senate versions of the tax reform bill even address this problem. Who's kidding who? The opportunity to scrap the IRS logbook rules was right here, on this bill.

But the message being sent to the Senate is that no matter what we do, no matter what kind of majority we put together, we are simply no match for the procedural rules of the House of Representatives. I suggest to Senators that perhaps it is time to revise some of our own rules. Time after time when we go to conference on appropriation bills the House expects the Senate to accept numerous provisions which are clear authorizations and have nothing to do with appropriations.

On the other hand, when the Senate adds a legislative provision, House conferees simply throw up their hands and say, "nope, we can't take this, it's authorizing on an appropriation bill and is subject to a point of order on the House floor." This sort of one-sided exchange where the Senate is always forced to give up its legislative provisions while the House simply takes whatever it wants has got to stop.

By now the record should be clear. Those of us in the Senate have done everything possible to scrap this latest IRS bureaucratic boondoggle. But the buck stopped over on the other side of the Capitol.

The leadership in the House of Representatives, rather than agreeing to clean up this mess, chose instead to raise a technical procedural roadblock. As a result, millions of American farmers, ranchers and businessmen will have to maintain volumes of pointless records on their vehicles. That is the height of irresponsibility.

In fact, there was testimony before the Treasury appropriations subcommittee that the IRS's attempts to impose recordkeeping requirements will cost American businessmen 79 million man-hours of lost time very year. That's an awfully high price to pay when even the most inflated estimates of the extra revenue received by making taxpayers comply with these rules is $200 million on an annual basis, and I assure you I do not have any faith in that estimate in the slightest.

But the truth is that you are not going to get one dime's worth of extra revenue out of imposing ridiculous paperwork requirements. Anyone who wants to cheat will do so just as easily under the new IRS regulations. All that is accomplished by these rules is to stick honest taxpayers with a lot of extra paperwork.

I hope that Members of the House of Representatives are willing to take responsibility for their actions because when irate taxpayers complain to me about the ridiculous records they have to keep, I am going to tell them exactly where they should take their complaints—straight to their elected Representatives in the House.

Mr. President, this shameful action on the part of the House has to stop because it puts us in a ridiculous position. Anytime they want an authorization, that has the clearance and away it goes; but when we offer a very meaningful, a very worthwhile amendment, all we get is rule XXI shoved in our faces.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I commend the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. ABDNOR] for a very eloquent statement on this very terribly frustrating situation that we do face with the House of Representatives.

It is a very selective system of observing rules and not observing rules that they enjoy. But, obviously, it always becomes a matter for the Senate to observe the rule when we initiate some kind of action. It is their privilege to always disallow the rule or to ignore the rule when it comes to their role of initiating some kind of action.

I know the Senator from South Dakota especially has been in the center of that kind of frustration and I can understand his feeling.

I commend him on bringing this to the attention of the Senate.

Mr. President, I now move that the Senate recede from its amendment number 199.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the motion to recede?

If not, the question is on agreeing to the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

OFFICE OF SURFACE MINING RESCISSION

● Mr. McCLURE. Mr. President, in the conference report on the fiscal year 1986 supplemental appropriations bill the Senate has accepted a House proposed rescission of $210,000 in the Office of Surface Mining but the report does not include language explaining the reasons. I would like to take a moment to explain the situation and the reasons surrounding that decision.

In the fiscal year 1986 continuing resolution, Congress provided funds for an additional 10 FTE's to assist States when their programs faulter. A total of six FTE's were to be used in Oklahoma to ensure a smooth transition from Federal primacy to State primacy and then to be used in other States that need attention. The remaining four positions were to be divided between the eastern and western field offices to aid States when their programs faulter.

OSM provided the additional six FTE's to work on the Oklahoma program. Unfortunately, in an effort to get the continuing resolution signed by the President, a 0.6-percent across-the-board reduction was made in the Interior section. This action eliminated one of the four other "troubleshooters."

The remaining three "troubleshooters" were not hired because of the constraints put upon the Office of Surface Mining by the 4.3-percent sequestration order. Since this function is defined as a "subactivity," rather than a "program, project or activity," the Office of Surface Mining is operating within the scope of the law by reducing this function by more than 4.3 percent.

During this fiscal year people were shifted from within OSM to the offices of External Affairs, Public Affairs, and Congressional Affairs. In all instances except one, these people were either replacements for those who have resigned or came from within OSM. I do not believe that these hiring decisions were made at the expense of the "troubleshooters" but they were done separately.

The External Affairs, Congressional Affairs, and Public Affairs Offices, are all funded under General Administration. To comply with the sequestration order, General Administration reduced travel, reduced printing, and in some cases, vacant positions were left unfilled.

As the attached letter from the Director of OSM indicates, the external affairs function is important to OSM and is utilized to improve cooperation between industry, the States and environmental organizations.

OSM has recently been required to spend a great deal of time appearing before several congressional committees. As my colleagues know, responding to congressional requests to appear at oversight hearings is important for any agency especially an agency that has had as much difficulty as the Office of Surface Mining. These congressional appearances are running at a level above fiscal year 1985, so it is important for OSM to at least keep the congressional staff at a level consistent with last year's.

In accepting the rescission, Mr. President, I was informed by OSM that excess funds do exist and a $210,000 rescission will not adversely affect them. Adjustments will be made so current programs will not be affected. As my colleagues know, the Deficit Reduction Act requires this bill to be deficit neutral and every dollar helps to facilitate that cause.

Mr. President, I ask that a letter from the Director of the Office of Surface Mining be printed in the RECORD.

The letter follows:

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, DC, June 18, 1986.

Hon. JAMES MCCLURE,
Chairman, Senate Subcommittee on Interior and Related Agencies, Committee on Appropriations, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR MCCLURE: During the Fiscal Year 1987 budget hearings for the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSMRE), questions were raised regarding OSMRE's intent to fill positions in its new External Affairs Office, which is designed to improve working relationships with industry, the States, environmental groups, citizens and the Congress, and our inability to hire so-called "troubleshooters" mandated in Fiscal Year 1986 report language for Field Offices to address State regulatory program problems. I have previously explained that the External Affairs Office was to be funded under a different line item in the budget than regulatory program personnel. I have also noted that, with respect to the troubleshooters, OSMRE did in fact comply with Congress' wishes to the maximum extent allowable; the reduction in planned program hiring was attributable to the 0.6 percent across-the-board reduction enacted for Fiscal Year 1986, and the subsequent 4.3 reduction required under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act.

As you know, the House subsequently passed a rescission of $210,000 in the General Administration activity of our Regulation and Technology appropriation due to the above mentioned concerns, which we have appealed. Under the circumstances, I must clarify the status of our efforts to staff the External Affairs Office, and the effects of the proposal rescission.

The external affairs function is important and has been established in other agencies responsible for dealing with a wide range of interested parties. Congress has frequently indicated its belief that improved cooperation between industry, the States and environmental organizations is essential to carry out the Surface Mining Act. The External Affairs Office would clearly assist us in accomplishing this goal. However, after reexamining requirements for staff office functions in OSMRE Headquarters, I discovered that by assigning collateral duties to existing staff, three of four current external affairs position vacancies would not need to be filled, and they have been frozen accordingly. Further, I wish to discuss the staffing of the Public Affairs Office. Although the size of this office has increased from six to nine, the three additional people were transferred from the Technical Information Branch (Division of Reclamation Technology) to Public Affairs. Finally the Congressional Liaison staff has not been expanded at all; there are four people there now as there were last year. The enclosure describes some of the workload related to the Congressional Liaison function.

The proposed rescission, however, would have significant impacts during the balance of this Fiscal Year because it would reduce the overall resource base for the General Administration activity. If the rescission were enacted, there are several possible effects. We are studying the following options: delaying the relocation of several employees planned as part of the agency's decentralization initiative to improve program effectiveness in the assessments and collections area; deferring computer hardware and software purchases that have already been delayed; and deobligating some blanket purchase order authority for supplies and other essential materials that had been obligated at the onset of this Fiscal Year. The use, to date, of these blanket purchase orders has been less than expected. Therefore, we may have some unexpected savings available. Finally, we may have a savings available from compensation payments owed to the Department of Labor. In each case, it is important to note that activities not funded in the current year could not be cancelled altogether, but would ultimately have to be funded in the next fiscal year, thereby creating a continuing problem.

I hope that this information proves useful in your consideration of the proposed rescission.

Sincerely,

JED D. CHRISTENSEN,
Director.

HEARINGS (MAY, 1985—PRESENT)

1. House Appropriations Subcommittee on Interior and Related Agencies, Fiscal Year 1986 Appropriations, May 2, 1985.
2. Senate Subcommittee on Natural Resources Development and Production, Status of Oklahoma Program and Return to Primacy, June 14, 1985.
3. Senate Subcommittee on Natural Resources Development and Production, Cost Recovery—Permit Fees, July 9, 1985.
4. House Government Operations Subcommittee on Environment, Energy and Natural Resources, AML Fee Collection Program, July 11, 1985.
5. House Public Lands Subcommittee, Historic Preservation, July 30, 1985.
6. House Energy and Environment Subcommittee, Oversight Hearing on Fiscal Year 1987 Budget, February 18, 1986.
7. Subcommittee on Interior Appropriations, Fiscal Year 1987 Appropriations, March 5, 1986.
8. Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, Director's Confirmation Hearing, March 7, 1986.
9. Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Interior and Related Agencies, Fiscal Year 1987 Appropriations, April 22, 1986.
10. House Government Operations Subcommittee on Environment, Energy and Natural Resources, June 26, 1986.

WORKLOAD STATISTICS

Press Releases: 36 (since 12/85).
Federal Register Notices: 14 (since 12/85).
Request for Information: 127 (since 11/85).
Briefings: 6 (since 1/86).
Meetings: 15 (since 1/86).●

● Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, H.R. 4515, as agreed to by the conferees, includes funds for a number of important programs which come under jurisdiction of the Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development, and Related Agencies.

The most urgently needed appropriation is $5.3 billion to reimburse losses of the Commodity Credit Corporation. On June 4, the Under Secretary of Agriculture notified the Congress that, as of the close of business that day, CCC would reach its $25 billion statutory limit on borrowing from the Treasury. The result of that situation is that local ASCS offices could no longer write checks to farmers for commodity loans, deficiency payments—including advance deficiency payments—and other activities for which CCC is responsible, as mandated by law. It is fully expected that this $5.3 billion will be sufficient for CCC operations for the remainder of the fiscal year.

A provision related to the CCC appropriation is the transfer of funds from CCC to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service [ASCS] for salaries and expenses. Without this transfer of $72 million, ASCS offices will be forced to close their doors in July.

This urgent supplemental bill also contains a provision which overturns the deferral of $700 million in rural housing loan funds. These funds will once again be available for loans for construction of single family and multifamily homes in rural America.

Another urgently needed appropriation is $9 million for the Dairy Indemnity Program. This will provide funds for indemnifying dairy producers and manufacturers for pesticide contaminated milk in Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri.

The conference agreement provides funds for the Citrus Canker Program in Florida, as well as for the National Soil Tilth Center at Ames, IA and $11.1 million is appropriated for the Citrus Canker Program, to be used only to the extent that the funds are matched on a 50-50 basis with State funds. In providing this appropriation, the conferees agreed to require the Secretary to restore to the Agricultural Research Service the $11.1 million for construction of the National Soil Tilth Center which had earlier been transferred to the Citrus Canker Program.

In addition, the conference agreement provides supplemental funding for several nutrition programs of the Department of Agriculture. There is $8.5 million for the Elderly Feeding Program which is administered by the Food and Nutrition Service, and $2.4 million for the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program which provides funding for storage and distribution of surplus commodities donated by the Department of Agriculture to needy individuals. For the feeding program for Women, Infants, and Children [WIC], the conferees agreed to include $20 million. As you may recall, the Senate had deleted funds for this program due to the fact that such funding would address problems brought about by improper planning on the part of a very few States. Since that time, it has become apparent that many States are having funding problems in the WIC Program due to unanticipated increases in the cost of infant formula which is a primary element in the WIC food package. Due to this occurrence, it became apparent that several States may have to reduce their programs. Therefore, the Senate receded to the House.

Under the agreement reached by the conferees, $3.7 million will be available for the Food Safety and Inspection Service [FSIS] to continue its meat and poultry inspection operations through the remainder of the fiscal year, without the necessity of furloughing any employees. This amount will also allow new and expanding plants to proceed with their plans of operation, with the assurance of adequate inspection by FSIS.

For Watershed and Flood Prevention Operations of the Soil Conservation Service [SCS] and the Emergency Conservation Program of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service [ASCS], the conferees agreed on a total of $41.7 million. this will alleviate flood damage in the Western United States, West Virginia, Mississippi, and other locations identified by the SCS and ASCS.

There are other provisions in the bill which are of interest to Senators. These include a $5-million contingency fund within the Commodity Credit Corporation for use in the event of an outbreak of avian influenza, and legislative provisions regarding advance deficiency payments, the exclusion of permafrost soils from the "swampbuster" provision of the farm bill, and the prepayment of Federal financing bank loans by rural electric cooperatives.

Mr. President, I stress the urgency of the approval of this conference report. As I said earlier, the Commodity Credit Corporation has not issued checks to farmers in several weeks. If this report is not approved this week, and with the July 4 recess upon us, delaying the passage of legislation that would be signed by the President would further delay payments to farmers for another month and would very likely cause ASCS offices to close their doors. I urge the Senate to approve the conference report.●

● Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am prepared to support the conference agreement on the urgent supplemental appropriations bill for fiscal year 1986 with one modification.

Mr. President, as reported by the conference committee, this urgently needed legislation contains a precedent-setting provision that will compel the President to veto the measure, further delaying enactment of funding to continue vital Federal activities.

I urge the Senate to support the modification to the objectionable REA refinancing provision, so that this measure can be enacted to the immediate benefit of our farmers, home buyers, and other beneficiaries of ongoing Federal programs.

The conference agreement on H.R. 4515 provides $1.8 billion in budget authority and $0.3 billion in outlays for many Federal agencies for the remainder of fiscal year 1986. These total reflect the net effect of new budget authority, rescissions, fees, and other collections.

When adjustments for entitlement and other mandatory items are taken into account, the conference agreement would reduce the aggregate current level by $1.8 billion in budget authority and $0.2 billion in outlays. The conference report now before us, and with the REA modification, will meet the deficit neutrality requirement under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act and is not subject to a section 311 point of order under the Budget Act.

I commend the distinguished chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and the Senate conferees for holding firm on having the House deferral language deleted from the final bill to allow the authorizing committees a chance to address this complex issue.

I am also pleased that the conferees have taken steps to make available all of the funds for the Department of Defense that were appropriated in the fiscal year 1986 continuing resolution, but that have been withheld from obligation for lack of authorization.

With a decline in defense appropriations of more than $5 billion between fiscal year 1985 and 1986, it is not prudent to allow billions of dollars to be withheld from use any longer.

Mr. President, I ask that tables showing the relationship of the conference agreement to the current level for fiscal year 1986, and to the maximum deficit amount for fiscal year 1986 under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act, be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

Finally, Mr. President, I would remind the Senate that the aggregate outlay totals for fiscal year 1986, when this last major spending bill is taken into account, remain at least $12.5 billion above the outlay ceiling established in the fiscal year budget resolution.

Spending is greater than anticipated inspite of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings sequester and other deficit reduction efforts, due to slower economic growth and other factors largely beyond our immediate control. The fiscal year 1986 deficit is again expected to approach $200 billion, which makes it all the more difficult for the Congress to reach the fiscal year 1987 maximum deficit amount of $144 billion.

I assure my colleagues that the budget conferees are making every effort to report back a fiscal year budget resolution that reaches the deficit reduction goal to which we are committed.

The tables follow:

CURRENT LEVEL SCORING OF H.R. 4515—URGENT SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR FISCAL YEAR 1986—CONFERENCE AGREEMENT

[Dollars in billions]

	Fiscal year 1986
	Budget authority	Outlays
Total current level as of June 23, 1986	1,075.1	980.3
H.R. 4515, conference agreement	1.8	0.3
Adjustments for entitlement and other mandatory items in bill: [1]
Veterans compensation	−0.3	−0.2
Veterans readjustment benefits	−0.1	−0.1
Compact of free association	−0.2	−0.2
Subtotal	−0.6	−0.5
Adjustment for assisted housing [2]	+2.2
Adjustment for CCC	−5.3
Total effect of H.R. 4515, conference agreement, on current level	−1.8	−0.2
Estimated current level	1,055.3	980.1
Fiscal year 1986 budget resolution S. Con. Res. 32	1,069.7	967.6
Current level over(+)/under(−) budget resolution targets [3]	−14.4	+12.5

CURRENT LEVEL SCORING OF H.R. 4515—URGENT SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR FISCAL YEAR 1986—CONFERENCE AGREEMENT—Continued

[Dollars in billions]

	Fiscal year 1986
	Budget authority	Outlays
Conference agreement over (+)/under (−)
Senate-passed bill	+0.1	+0.2
House-passed bill	−3.0	−1.3

[1] These are amounts for entitlements and other mandatories estimated to be required in fiscal year 1986 and already included in the current level.
[2] Adjustment for the rescission of assisted housing funds included in this bill in excess of $3.0 billion, the authority for which has been enacted in previous legislation, including the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (COBRA).
[3] As of June 23, 1986, the current level is under the budget authority ceiling by $12.6 billion and over the outlay target by $12.7 billion.
* Less than $50 million.

Note.—Details may not add to totals due to rounding.

Current level compared to maximum deficit amount

[Dollars in billions and fiscal year]	1986
Current level outlays, including H.R. 4515, conference agreement	980.1
Current level revenues	778.5
Current level deficit	−201.6
Gramm-Rudman-Hollings maximum deficit amount [MDA]	−171.9
Amount over MDA	29.7

Note.—Details may not add to totals due to rounding.●

SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATION IMPROVES TARGETING IN THE WIC PROGRAM

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, I am pleased to note the direction in which the appropriations bill moves with respect to targeting in the special supplemental food program for women, infants, and children [WIC]. The bill provides a modest first step in a necessary transition to target more effectively the Federal dollars spent in this program.

The need for improved targeting to States that focus their WIC programs on highest priority recipients has become increasingly evident.

Under existing practice, States serve recipients in six—or sometimes, seven—categories of eligibility. These categories are based primarily on categorical status and nature of nutritional risk condition as follows:

Priority I. Pregnant women, breastfeeding women, and infants at nutrition risk as demonstrated by hematological (blood-related) or anthropometric measurements, or other documented nutritionally related medical conditions, that demonstate the need of a person for supplemental foods.

Priority II. Infants, under 6 months of age, of women who were in the WIC program during pregnancy or whose mothers did not participate during pregnancy, but were at nutritional risk.

Priority III. Children at nutritional risk as demonstrated by anthropometric or hematological assessments or by related medical conditions.

Priority IV. Pregnant and breastfeeding women and infants at nutritional risk due to inadequate dietary patterns.

Priority V. Children at nutritional risk due to inadequate dietary patterns.

Priority VI. Nonbreastfeeding postpartum women at nutritional risk (for any of the above-mentioned reasons).

Note.—Regulations published February 13, 1985, allow state agencies the option of establishing a priority VII for risk of regression; expanding priorities III, IV, and V to include postpartum women; and setting subpriorities within a priority.

However, Mr. President despite the fact that priorities I and II represent those recipients for whom the benefits of the program are believed to be greatest, they are not the primary recipients of the present WIC Program.

The General Accounting Office, for instance, issued a report last year that included recommendations that targeting WIC benefits to the most vulnerable recipients needed more emphasis at all levels of program administration—Federal, State, and local. See "Need To Foster Optimal Use of Resources in the Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC)," GAO/RCED-85-105, September 27, 1985.

Specifically, the GAO found "that WIC benefits were not routinely being targeted on a priority basis to eligible individuals who program officials believed were inherently the most vulnerable and therefore stood to benefit most from WIC."

The GAO reported: "The categories considered to be most vulnerable (pregnant and breastfeeding women and infants) comprised a little less than half of the combined caseload of the sites we visited" (20 local agencies in 5 States).

A recent survey by the Department of Agriculture also points out the failure of targeting on a national basis. Less than 40 percent of the recipients in September 1984 were in the top two priority categories. See "Study of WIC Participant and Program Characteristics," Office of Analysis and Evaluation, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, April 1986. Over half the recipients in both studies were children between ages 1 and 5 (priority categories III and V). The GAO reported: "Virtually all program officials we talked with expressed the view that such need and potential benefit varied in inverse relation to a child's age."

The GAO recommended that the Department of Agriculture revise its funding allocations to emphasize incentives for improved targeting:

> What is needed, we believe, is an active shift in emphasis on the (Food and Nutrition) Service's part towards making WIC service to the most vulnerable groups an integral and essential part of WIC policy and operation. We believe that the Service has broad authority to do this. We further believe that, in addition to stressing the importance of targeting as a means of enhancing program effectiveness, the Service could make it clear that actual performance by WIC agencies in targeting to the most vulnerable individuals will be a major concern of management evaluations, a basis for requiring corrective actions, and an important factor in allocating program funds among state agencies.

Mr. President, under current practices, the priority categories outlined earlier are used only when a State or local agency program has achieved the maximum participation level consistent with available funding, commonly referred to as being "at maximum caseload." The GAO said:

> Targeting WIC benefits and giving priority to qualified pregnant women, breastfeeding women, and infants—and doing this continuously throughout the program year rather than sporadically and inconsistently as is currently done—represents, we believe, an optimal use of scarce budgetary resources and a way of maximizing WIC's beneficial impacts, whatever the program funding level the Congress decides on.

The Department of Agriculture distributes annual WIC allocations to the States based on two formulas devised by the Secretary of Agriculture. In general, the first formula provides funding to maintain each State's participation at stable operating levels. It is frequently called the stability formula. Put simply, this funding takes each State's grant from the prior year and, subject to increased appropriations, adds funds to cover the cost of food price inflation. If funds are available in excess of the requirements of the stability formula, additional funds are allocated to States based on a second formula, known as a growth formula. This formula targets the additional funding to States that serve a smaller portion of their estimated income eligible population than the national average based on several factors. There are three factors considered in the so-called growth formula. They are: First, the number of women, infants, and children estimated to have income below 185 percent of the poverty guideline; second, the rate of low weight births; and third, infant mortality rates.

Currently, 31 States, Puerto Rico, and Guam are defined as growth States. Inasmuch as the supplemental conference report provides that all of the $20 million in new funding is "to be distributed to the States under the existing fiscal year 1986 growth formula," only these States will receive a share of this supplemental appropriation.

The Department of Agriculture has done a preliminary calculation on how much each State can expect under this appropriation bill. I understand that the conferees were also furnished this calculation. The following table outlines the amount and percentage of funds each State might receive under this supplemental appropriations.

FISCAL YEAR 1986 WIC GROWTH UNDER SUPPLEMENTAL

	Growth funds
	Percent	Total due
Connecticut	0.00	0
Maine	0.47	94,533
Massachusetts	0.56	112,529
New Hampshire	0.00	0
New York	0.00	0
Rhode Island	0.00	0
Vermont	0.00	0
Delaware	0.43	86,856
Maryland	0.00	0
New Jersey	3.00	600,579
Pennsylvania	3.78	756,431
Puerto Rico	7.87	1,573,055
Virginia	2.22	443,832
Virgin Islands	0.00	0
West Virginia	0.73	146,959
District of Columbia	0.00	0
Alabama	2.86	572,631
Florida	9.81	1,961,364
Georgia	0.00	0
Kentucky	0.00	0
Mississippi	0.00	0
North Carolina	0.00	0
South Carolina	0.00	0
Tennessee	2.37	474,845
Arkansas	2.67	533,735
Louisiana	0.00	0
New Mexico	1.85	370,978
Oklahoma	0.80	159,239
Texas	13.00	2,600,341
Illinois	4.68	935,167
Indiana	4.87	973,838
Michigan	0.00	0
Minnesota	0.00	0
Ohio	0.00	0
Wisconsin	0.00	0
Colorado	1.72	344,478
Iowa	1.53	306,800
Kansas	2.51	501,080
Missouri	1.01	201,371
Montana	0.35	69,072

FISCAL YEAR 1986 WIC GROWTH UNDER SUPPLEMENTAL—Continued

	Growth funds
	Percent	Total due
Nebraska	1.70	340,178
North Dakota	0.00	0
South Dakota	1.12	223,648
Utah	3.58	716,844
Wyoming	0.00	0
Alaska	0.21	41,239
Arizona	3.33	666,797
California	13.70	2,739,097
Hawaii	2.42	483,289
Idaho	1.79	358,487
Nevada	0.00	0
Oregon	0.16	31,119
Washington	2.63	530,489
Guam	0.21	42,414
Indian Towns	0.00	0
Penobscot	0.00	0
Pleasant Pt	0.00	0
Seneca Nat	0.00	0
Seminoles	0.00	0
Miccosouk	0.00	0
Choctaw, MS	0.00	0
E Cherokee	0.00	0
ACL	0.00	0
8 No Pueblo	0.00	0
Isleta	0.00	0
San Domingo	0.00	0
Five Sandov	0.00	0
San Felipe	0.00	0
WCD Ent	0.00	0
Choctaw OK	0.00	0
Cherokee OK	0.00	0
Chickasaw OK	0.00	0
Tonkawa	0.00	0
Potawatami	0.00	0
Zuni	0.03	6,682
Shos/Arapah	0.00	0
Ute Mtn	0.00	0
Winnebago	0.00	0
Chey River	0.00	0
Rosebud	0.00	0
Stand Rock	0.00	0
Ft Berthold	0.00	0
ITCN	0.00	0

FISCAL YEAR 1986 WIC GROWTH UNDER SUPPLEMENTAL—Continued

	Growth funds
	Percent	Total due
Maniilaq	0.00	0
Navajo	0.00	0
ITCA	0.00	0
Total	100.00	19,999,999

Source: Department of Agriculture.

Let me be clear, Mr. President. The existing formula does not, in my judgment, nor that of the GAO, sufficiently target WIC funds based on those highest priority categories. However, I think it is significant to note that all 10 States that had the highest degree of targeting—and 15 of the top 16—are growth States that would receive funding under the supplemental. Similarly, six of the eight States with the poorest degree of targeting would not receive funding under the supplemental.

I ask unanimous consent to enter in the record at this point a table from the GAO report outlining the percentage of caseload by priority risk categories served in September 1984. The States are ranked by the percentage of their caseload in categories I and II:

There being no objection, the table was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

PERCENTAGE OF CASELOAD BY PRIORITY RISK CATEGORIES SERVED—SEPTEMBER 1984

	I	II	I&II	III	IV	V	VI	VII
GAO sample data	30.2	9.5	8.7	35.6	6.8	15.0	2.6
Service data:
Nationwide	28.3	11.8	40.1	83.3	4.5	12.0	5.0	0.1
New Mexico	54.3	21.5	75.8	24.3	0	0	0
Oregon	38.0	11.4	49.4	29.6	6.9	13.1	1.1
Washington	37.7	9.7	47.4	37.1	4.2	10.9	0.4
Oklahoma	30.2	22.5	52.9	35.5	4.5	7.1	0.03
Arizona	29.7	18.0	47.7	30.3	4.9	9.1	8.0
California	37.1	18.1	55.2	26.0	2.1	5.7	11.0
Delaware	23.1	16.3	39.4	41.4	3.6	6.8	1.3	7.5
Alaska	29.7	11.0	52.3	46.1	0.1	0.9	0.6
Illinois	34.3	13.7	48.0	34.5	5.5	9.8	2.2
Florida	32.5	18.1	50.6	35.3	2.7	5.3	6.2
South Carolina	35.5	16.1	51.6	39.7	4.7	3.4	0.7
Puerto Rico	37.1	9.8	46.9	49.3	0.6	2.3	0.8
Utah	26.5	13.3	39.8	41.3	1.9	11.8	5.1
Guam	21.4	6.8	28.2	42.3	6.2	19.2	4.2
Kansas	31.8	8.4	40.2	36.6	8.6	13.7	1.0
Nebraska	26.7	10.8	37.5	35.8	3.0	15.6	8.1
Missouri	24.1	14.7	38.8	35.7	8.3	15.2	2.1
Arkansas	24.1	6.6	30.7	30.0	12.2	27.1	0
Hawaii	30.9	7.4	38.3	29.5	11.4	15.0	5.7
Wisconsin	30.3	10.1	40.4	49.0	2.5	8.0	0
Texas	29.2	10.6	39.8	29.4	8.6	16.0	6.2
Tennessee	22.9	14.5	37.4	34.3	16.2	6.2	6.0
Colorado	25.0	7.5	32.5	34.6	6.1	24.6	2.1
North Carolina	28.2	10.7	38.9	44.4	2.7	7.7	6.3
Pennsylvania	23.2	6.7	29.9	55.6	2.0	5.7	6.8
South Dakota	27.3	8.5	35.8	39.2	5.9	19.2	0
Wyoming	28.9	7.0	35.9	40.9	3.0	15.0	5.2
Indiana	23.8	9.1	32.9	29.5	6.9	23.6	7.1
Kentucky	18.9	14.8	33.7	28.7	7.8	21.8	8.0
Virgin Islands	19.0	18.6	37.6	49.9	1.7	3.7	7.0
Ohio	23.4	8.5	31.9	45.3	2.8	13.8	6.2
Minnesota	25.7	8.8	34.5	47.2	3.1	13.3	1.9
Maine	20.5	8.7	29.2	33.0	8.2	23.1	6.4
Virginia	21.5	10.5	32.0	25.1	8.3	21.4	6.1	7.1
Idaho	19.8	10.3	30.1	18.6	16.5	34.5	0.3
District of Columbia	17.4	10.5	27.9	25.8	7.7	30.0	8.6
Connecticut	19.2	10.6	29.8	36.9	5.9	23.2	4.2
West Virginia	25.4	10.6	36.0	51.3	4.3	7.7	0.7
New Hampshire	19.2	8.3	27.5	33.9	5.8	26.4	6.4
Nevada	20.0	6.7	26.7	30.0	8.7	27.7	7.0
North Dakota	22.7	13.4	36.1	30.7	10.3	22.9	0
Iowa	18.2	10.4	28.6	19.2	10.3	42.1	0
Vermont	12.7	12.1	24.8	26.5	4.1	39.7	4.9

Note.—WIC regulations published on February 13, 1985, allow State agencies the option of establishing a separate priority VII for risk of regression. This priority category is reserved for previously certified participants who might regress in nutritional status without continued supplemental foods and nutrition counseling. As the table indicates, two State agencies reported data in this category for September 1984.

Source: General Accounting Office.

Mr. HELMS. At least the States that historically have targeted their programs more effectively are more likely to receive a fair share of this supplemental, and, for the first time in the WIC Program's history, some degree of targeting will be required legislatively.

Another point should be made to the States that will be receiving supplemental appropriations. They should be certain that they maintain and, indeed, improve the targeting in the program.

It is my hope that the Department will move in a direction that will provide future increases in State funding based on priority need. This could be done by targeting to either certain priority categories—such as the highest two priority categories—or, perhaps more easily, by simply targeting to women and infants. While some women and infants are in lower priority categories, the overwhelming majority are in the first two categories. Administratively the latter approach may be easier, and, though not as precise, would be a step in the right direction. Whatever the approach taken, I urge the Secretary to respond to the recommendations of the General Accounting Office and to act aggressively to target assistance in the WIC Program more effectively.

In anticipation of changes to emphasize targeting, all States would be well advised to ensure that their programs increasingly focus on recipients in these highest priority categories.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the conference committee has completed action on the fiscal year 1986 urgent supplemental appropriation bill.

Both the Soil Conservation Service and the Federal Emergency Management Agency have exhausted available funds for disaster assistance.

The bill provides $36.7 million for the Soil Conservation Service, $8 million of which is for stream-related work and repair of local flood protection projects in West Virginia.

This bill also provides $250 million in disaster assistance moneys for the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Also included is $1.7 million for flood recovery work in the Monongahela National Forest, the George Washington National Forest, the Thomas Jefferson National Forest, and the Parsons Forest Laboratory; and $3,420,000 for emergency rehabilitation costs to repair flood damage in the Harpers Ferry National Historical Park and the C&O Canal.

Aside from the disaster assistance moneys that are so vital to West Virginia, this bill provides funding for a number of other activities that are extremely important.

Without supplemental funding, the National Weather Service would be forced to furlough essential employees that are engaged in the forecasting of natural disasters attributable to tornado, hurricane, and flooding.

The U.S. Forest Service would be forced to curtail its fire fighting activities and the Customs Service its Drug Interdiction Program. The Immigration and Naturalization Service would not have the moneys to detain dangerous illegal aliens, and the Federal Aviation Administration would be forced to furlough air traffic control personnel.

This bill also raises the limitation on Federal Housing Administration [FHA] loan guarantees so that the FHA can begin processing loans again for families who want to buy a home at a time when they can take advantage of the low interest rates.

The conference report also provides sufficient funds to reopen the Library of Congress reading room for evening and weekend hours, as well as for acquisition of books and continuation of cataloging services.

The moneys provided in this bill are urgently needed.

A veto of this legislation will seriously jeopardize programs that we cannot afford to have interrupted or curtailed.

I strongly urge the President to sign this urgent supplemental as soon as possible.

Mr. President, I want to take this opportunity to thank Senators MARK HATFIELD and BENNETT JOHNSTON for the excellent job that they did in negotiating the supplemental appropriations bill, H.R. 4515, through the conference with the House and in managing the conference report on the Senate floor. Despite the additional pressure of meeting the Gramm-Rudman budgetary strictures, these dedicated Senators were able to craft a bill that meets the needs of many of our critical national programs and orders priorities in spending for the balance of this fiscal year.

I am especially grateful for the assistance that these Senators and Senator STENNIS gave me in continuing programs that are critical to my home State of West Virginia.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, again I wish to thank the Senator from South Dakota. Does he wish me to yield?

Mr. ABDNOR. Yes.

Mr. HATFIELD. I yield.

CONGRESSIONAL MAILING

Mr. ABDNOR. Mr. President, I thank the chairman for allowing me to have the floor here. I have one additional comment that I feel very important that I make. I probably should have made it earlier but it relates to the appropriations bill and once again when we had to withdraw our amendment I want to say a few words about it. Frankly it deals with congressional mailing.

Mr. President, I just want to call the public's attention to a very serious misuse of the congressional franking privilege. The frank itself is well-intentioned and has served a vital function of public information in our system of government. Only by the use of the frank have Members of the House and Senate been able to stay in touch directly with those they have been elected to represent. Constituents have a right to correspond directly with their Senators and Congressmen and to receive a response.

The frank is also important in allowing Members of Congress to advise constituents of important developments which would have a direct impact upon their lives. And Americans have a right to hear about such developments directly from those who write their laws rather than having to learn about such events secondhand in the media.

But in this time of serious Federal financing problems, it is essential that Members use the frank responsibly, and within reasonable limitations. Unfortunately, that is not happening. That is why the Senate appropriately agreed to limit its use of the frank.

Millions and millions of dollars worth of franked mail, much of it consisting of purely self-serving political mailings, continues to pour out of House offices without any consideration for the cost being imposed upon the American taxpayer who, of course, must pay for that mail.

For the 1986 fiscal year, Congress appropriated $95.7 million for franking privileges for its Members. This reflects a 4.3 percent cut as dictated by the new Gramm-Rudman-Hollings balanced budget law.

But it is downright shocking to realize that by May 21, Congress had already spent over $69 million of this amount. To deal with these runaway costs, the Senate passed Senate Resolution 374. In a nutshell, this resolution allotted half of the slightly more than $26 million left in the account between the House and Senate. And, in the Senate, we voted to make these caps binding on ourselves. Each Senator has been told right down to the dollar how much he can spend. And when he or she uses up that allotment, that's it—their mail operation must shut down.

□ 1930

But the House has refused to live under the same rules. Senate Concurrent Resolution 139, which was passed by the Senate, would make mail ceilings applicable to the House as well as the Senate. But it is just been twisting in the wind over in the House Administration Committee. And in the meantime, the House continues to mail merrily away at the taxpayers' expense.

While the Nation as a whole tightens its belt, the House fully intends to continue its current policy of over-spending the congressional mail budget to its heart's content and paying for its excesses a year later by slipping some extra money into an appropriations bill. In other words, the House of Representatives is willing to make everyone else abide by Gramm-Rudman-Hollings but wants to make its own mailing privileges a "sacred cow."

And as much as we try, the House simply refuses to do anything about mending its ways. Right here in the supplemental appropriations bill the Senate included a provision which would limit Congress to spending no more for mail that it has appropriated—just as every other Government agency and program must do. Without this provision, there is nothing to prevent Congress from overspending its own budget for mail and that is precisely what the House of Representatives is doing. But the House conferees absolutely refused to agree to this provision. Instead, all they would agree to is a study of the problem.

That is just great. All we need around here is another study. I do not need a study to know that the current situation is nothing less than a scandalous disregard for hard working, taxpaying, Americans. And while we sit around and study, the House of Representatives will continue to blow the lid off congressional mail costs.

On June 16, my colleague from Indiana pointed out the impact of the Senate's one-sided attempt at self-restraint. In the first quarter of 1986, before the Senate's self-imposed mail limitations took effect, the House accounted for 52 percent of the total cost of congressional franking privileges compared to 48 percent for the Senate. But, in the second quarter, the House increased its mail costs by almost $2 million and accounted for 61 percent of the total cost of congressional mailings while the Senate actually cut its mail tab by $2.8 million. And what has happened as we get closer to the 1986 elections? For the third quarter, up to May 21, the House outspent the Senate by more than 2 to 1.

In other words, while the Senate has been doing its best to save the taxpayers some money and comply with Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, the House of Representatives is more than eating up every dollar we save by increasing its own torrent of mail. And what has been the effect of this one-sided attempt at self-restraint?

Well, I have dramatically cut back on the mail I am sending out and I can tell you that some of my constituents are wondering why they have not heard from me. Some of them are wondering if I care what they think any more—especially when they keep hearing from their Congressman. The Senate has passed major pieces of legislation, such as the tax bill, which I am chomping at the bit to tell South Dakotans about. But I am not doing it through the mail because I feel that Congress should be willing to live under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings just as we expect the rest of America to do.

I would like to issue a challenge here to Members of the House of Representatives. I challenge them to live within the same limitations upon mailings that those of us in the Senate have imposed upon ourselves. I also challenge them to publicly disclose the amount they are spending upon mail, just as each of us in the Senate is required to do. That is only fair. The American taxpayers deserve to know which of their Washington representatives are willing to do more than just talk a good fight when it comes to cutting expenses. They deserve to know which of their Congressmen are willing to live within these limits and which want to see this self-serving multimillion-dollar disregard for Gramm-Rudman-Hollings continue unabated. If Members of the House really care about cutting the budget, if they really care about the American taxpayer, they will take me up on my challenge.

Gramm-Rudman-Hollings received overwhelming support in the House, as well as the Senate. The had an awful lot of rhetoric in the House on Gramm-Rudman-Hollings. I think it is only fair that the House do its part and live up to the requirements of this landmark legislation.

I would also like to add that it appears at least as of today that the House has not faced the issue. The June 21, 1986 issue of Congressional Quarterly that I hold here in my hand reports that the House Appropriations Subcommittee on the Legislative Branch has marked up its fiscal year 1987 bill. That markup was held June 19. The subcommittee has included $95 million for fiscal year 1987 mailing, but leaves unresolved the fiscal year 1986 shortfall which could total as much as $45 million. Unless Congress acts the Postal Service would have to eat the loss. In short, that means postal customers—the American public will be subsidizing this account.

Mr. President, I think that is unfortunate. I think it is a total disregard for the taxpayers of this Nation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an article out of a South Dakota newspaper covering this subject be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MAIL MUST GO THROUGH

(By Robert M. Andrews)

WASHINGTON.—Nothing, apparently, can stop a member of the House of Representatives who is bent on writing his or her constituents.

House members are churning out election-year newsletters to constituents as freely as ever despite righteous finger-pointing from the Senate and a polite reminder from the U.S. Postal Service that the congressional postage bill is overdue.

The Senate figures it is entitled to cry "shame" because it voted last month to impose curbs on the historic right claimed by members of Congress—the so-called franking privilege—to send unlimited amounts of mail at the taxpayers' expense.

So far, the House has refused to cooperate, and Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., says this means the Senate's exercise in self-restraint is an empty gesture.

Quayle inserted into the Congressional Record last week a report from the Postal Service to House Clerk Benjamin Guthrie which showed that as of March 31, halfway through the fiscal year, Congress was $6.4 million in arrears on its postal bill.

Quayle noted that the Senate halted its mass mailings effective May 14, and agreed to spend only what was left of its share of the $95.7 million congressional mail budget this year. That share, calculated as slightly more than $13 million, was divided among senators according to their state populations.

At the same time, the Senate left an equal $13 million share for the House and urged it to follow the Senate's example. But the House has shown no interest in cooperating. In fact, says Quayle, the House share of total congressional mailing costs since the fiscal year began Oct. 1 has risen from 52 percent to 67 percent as of late May.

By continuing to spend beyond its means on mass mailings, Quayle says, Congress is rendering "absolutely meaningless" the spending reductions required under the Gramm-Rudman budget balancing law.

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., is pushing a bill that would ban congressional newsletters altogether. He says they often are "nothing more than political advertisements cloaked under the false pretext of providing news to constituents."

House members, meanwhile, seem undeterred by the Senate's attempt to embarrass them into putting the brakes on escalating mail costs, which Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., calls a flagrant waste of the taxpayers' money.

Before the Senate imposed its own curbs, Mathias had predicted that without some voluntary restraints, the House and Senate would spend a record $146.2 million this year on government-paid postage.

Unsolicited newsletters account for the bulk of congressional mail, and the costs traditionally soar during an election year.

House members running for reelection in November apparently are shrugging off pressure from the Senate in their eagerness to stuff their mailbags with newsletters calling attention to their legislative achievements.

The rush is on, because, of congressional rules that forbid any mailings within 60 days of a primary election, a party convention, or a general election.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, before I yield the floor, I wish to take this opportunity to thank the entire Appropriations Committee who participated in this supplemental exercise, and particularly to the Senator from Mississippi, Senator STENNIS, for his leadership on that committee as the ranking member of our committee; and to Senator JOHNSTON, of Louisiana, who has handled the floor management of this bill; along with our very excellent staff.

Mr. President, I believe the Senator from Missouri asked me to yield. I would be happy to yield.

Mr. EAGLETON. Does the Senator from Louisiana have brief remarks he would like to make?

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Missouri. I would again like to say what a pleasure and honor it was to work with the distinguished Senator from Oregon, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, on this bill. He has done a very excellent job on a very difficult bill. I wish to commend him, as well as staff on both sides of the aisle.

Mr. EAGLETON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

□ 1940

COLLEGIATE JOCKCRACY

Mr. EAGLETON. Mr. President. A great deal of soul searching has occurred in recent days about the excruciatingly sad death of Maryland University basketball star Len Bias.

The whole scene is beset with tragedy. Tragedy in losing a fine young man at the peak of his skills and on the verge of a promising career in professional sports. Tragedy for his family and friends in losing one whom they cherished. Tragedy for the University of Maryland in seeing a superstar who proudly carried their sports emblem come to such a premature and untimely death.

Then there is the broader tragedy of what Len Bias' death signifies for sports as they are conducted at major colleges and universities which pursue aggressive athletic programs.

The Bias case illustrates what we have all known about big league university sports. Players are bought, rented, and hired by the university not to be students, but to be a commercial commodity for the university. The big league university hires its athletes the same way it hires an automobile or hires a paver to smooth out a driveway or hires a painter to spruce up the arena. There is little or no intent to see that he is equipped with intellectual or technical skills to compete in his postuniversity life, unless it be in professional sports.

The intent is to hire or rent a football or basketball team that can win games and gin up some money, gin up some publicity, and gin up some supposed prestige for the university.

Big league college sports is big money. If you fill the stadium and go to a postseason bowl game, that is big bucks for dear old alma mater. If you fill the basketball arena and go to the NCAA tournament, that is big bucks for dear old alma mater.

Of all young men in college football and college basketball, only a handful—a tiny handful—make the pros. Yet most every entering athlete hopes he may be the one.

If the school does not give a damn if he cuts classes or flunks courses, why should he care? If the school does not try to motivate him to acquire vitally needed educational skills, then how is he to be motivated?

The motto of today's sports-minded American universities is: "Ask not how his university can educate you; ask what sport you can play for this university."

Len Bias had, in essence, flunked out of the University of Maryland. Coach Lefty Driesell did not care because, one Len Bias was going to make millions in the pros, and two his playing time at the University of Maryland was over.

But what about all the other athletes at Maryland University who will not make the pros? What are they to do for the rest of their lives with a sham, nursemaided Maryland education and with a flunk out at that?

And Maryland is by no means the only culprit in this business of duping athletes. Scandals abound: University of Georgia, Clemson, Tulane, Texas Christian, University of Miami, University of Florida, and more.

Enticing, deceiving, and misdirecting athletes is a national collegiate disease and a disgrace. It is a huge, ugly, nefarious war of the university goliaths from coast to coast not to compete with Harvard or Stanford academically, but to compete with the University of Nevada at Las Vegas or the University of Houston in sleazy athletic programs.

In my own State of Missouri, some powerful alumni have expressed the view that a principal reason for trying to oust the chancellor of the University of Missouri—at Columbia—is the way she handled "the search for the football coach and athletic director."

It is the era of collegiate "jockcracy." Distinction in academics is secondary to "fight, team, fight."

So Len Bias' death should cause all of us to do lots of thinking—thinking about values, goals, and missions—thinking about what is first at a university and what's periperal—thinking about young people's minds and not about their height or bulk.

Some of the thinking must come from university presidents. I have talked to a few. They hate the athletic sleaze they know is going on. But they feel they are victims caught in the vise of alumni ego an the quest for athlectic cash and glory. As they see it, if other universities are doing it, they have to. That is the way the real world is.

Well, maybe one Robert Maynard Hutchins is not enough. But there is safety and comfort in numbers. If several university presidents could band together and say "no pass, no play" and say that athletes would be required to carry and complete a standard, unpampered course load, a beginning might be made. If the powerhouse athletic conferences would invoke and enforce standard rules of meaningful academic behavior, a beginning might be made.

Len Bias is dead. But lots of other noneducated, nongraduating jocks live in this country wondering what happened to them. The glory days are over and there is nothing to show for it. Life goes on and they are illequipped to cope. They have been used. They have been had. They were rented like the floor chairs in the arena and, like the chairs, they were folded up when the games were over.

Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Arizona.

Mr. DECONCINI. Mr. President, I want to compliment the Senator from Missouri for giving some thought about a subject which he obviously has spent some time on, and gave an excellent statement. I join him in the great frustration when he pointed out that athletes at least today are being used, and indeed, we need to change that. I thank the Senator for bringing that to the attention of this body, and to the American public. I think he is absolutely correct.

Mr. EAGLETON. I thank my colleague.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

(At this point Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. ROTH, and Mr. HUMPHREY were recognized.)

GRACE COMMISSION LEGISLATIVE PACKAGE

Mr. DECONCINI. Mr. President, last Tuesday was an important and historic day in the Senate as we passed perhaps the most dramatic tax reform bill in the past two decades. Today I am honored to be standing on the Senate floor with two of my distinguished colleagues to lay before the Senate a package of legislative proposals that could also make a significant, longterm contribution to the way the Federal Government does business.

Today Senator WILLIAM ROTH, chairman to the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee has joined Senator GORDON HUMPHREY and me, as cochairmen of the Senate Grace Caucus, in introducing a total of 15 bills that, if adopted, will put into effect many of the recommendations contained in the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, or "The Grace Commission Report."

On this same day, in the House of Representatives, the two cochairmen of the House Grace Caucus, Congressman BEAU BOULTER of Texas and Congressman BUDDY ROEMER of Louisiana, are introducing virtually the same package of bills as part of a bipartisan, House-Senate "Grace Commission Day."

Mr. President, let me say at the outset that some of the bills that will be introduced today will be controversial.

Some of them will mean major changes in the way Uncle Sam does its business; manages its programs; and obligates the taxpayers' scarce resources.

Frankly, I do not support several of the 15 bills that will be introduced and sponsored by my distinguished colleagues here on Grace Commission Day. Other caucus members will likewise not be in a position to sponsor each and every one of the bills that are introduced today.

Other caucus members will have similar feelings of support. They will support some but not all of them. But it is a move in the right direction.

However, that should not diminish nor detract from the significance of this day in the House and Senate as we put onto Congress' legislative platter a package of legislation that could save the American taxpayers at least $20.2 billion over the next 3 years.

Nor should my colleagues interpret reservations about some of these bills as diluting the common, united purpose of the House and Senate Grace Caucuses to put as many of the Grace Commission recommendations as possible before the Congress over the next several years.

Mr. President, the Grace Commission study was perhaps the most comprehensive evaluation of Government programs ever attempted in the history of this Nation.

It provided over 2,400 substantive recommendations on how we can save the beleaguered American taxpayers hundreds of billions of tax dollars; streamline Government operations, programs, and activities; and eliminate waste, fraud, and abuse.

We owe it to the American taxpayers to save the Grace Commission study from the proverbial "dusty shelf" and put as many of the Grace recommendations into effect as is practical.

And let there be no misunderstanding among my Senate colleagues.

As cochairman and cofounder of the Senate Grace Caucus, I am committed to working with my distinguished caucus cochairman and founder, Senator HUMPHREY, and the other 26 members of the Senate Grace Caucus, to move major elements of the Grace Commission proposals through Congress.

□ 1950

Mr. President, the Senate Grace Caucus, in concert with the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, is taking a major first step today in the war on waste in Government. Now it is up to the Legislative and Appropriations Committees in the House and Senate to pick up the Grace Commission ball and run with it. I hope that they will accept the challenge and act promptly on this package of legislation that is being introduced today, Grace Commission Day, June 26, 1986.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to speak briefly as if in morning business for the purpose of introducing what I consider to be perhaps the most important of the 15 Grace Commission Day bills, the Federal Credit Management and Debt Collection Improvements Act of 1986.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DECONCINI. Mr. President, I am today introducing a bill entitled the "Federal Credit Management and Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1986, June 26, 1986"—Grace Commission Day.

Mr. President, this bill deals with over $60 billion of outstanding debt but primarily with more than $24 billion of nontax debt that is owed the U.S. Government. A lot of Americans do not realize the significance of this huge delinquency balance. Roughly $35 billion of it is delinquent income taxes. The legislation that I have sent to the desk attacks the nonincome tax delinquencies.

It is hard to believe that so many Americans can be working and banking some of their paycheck and not paying their debt owed to the Federal Government. This bill will correct that, Mr. President.

Mr. President, the cosponsors of this legislation are myself, Senator HUMPHREY, Senator ROTH, Senator CHILES, Senator BRADLEY, Senator NUNN, Senator HELMS, Senator PROXMIRE, Senator GOLDWATER, Senator WILSON, and Senator ZORINSKY.

Mr. President, the bill that I am introducing today is perhaps the most comprehensive revision of our Debt Collection Act of 1982—a law that I sponsored along with our former colleague, Senator Percy of Illinois.

The bill that I am introducing today—the Federal Credit Management and Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1986—is a compilation of the best features of two other pending debt collection bills introduced in the House by Congressman JOHN KASICH of Ohio, and in the Senate by Senator ROTH, plus the legislative recommendation of the General Accounting Office following their comprehensive review, conducted at my request, of agency efforts to implement the Debt Collection Act of 1982 and improve debt collection Governmentwide.

Perhaps the cornerstone of this bill is the establishment of specific nontax debt collection targets for the Government as a whole and a mechanism for setting debt collection targets for the individual agencies and Departments with debt collection balances.

The bill establishes an overall target of $15 billion over 3 fiscal years for the collection of nontax delinquencies.

This figure represents the current balance of nontax delinquencies identified by the General Accounting Office in its May 1986 report to me, over 1-year old.

The bill also directs the Secretary of the Treasury and a newly created Under Secretary for Debt Collection and Credit Management to collaborate on establishing individual agency debt collection targets for each of the 3 fiscal years covered by the bill's aggregate collection targets.

Furthermore, for the first time, this bill would allow agencies that exceed their debt collection targets to keep 15 percent of the excess amount collected, while penalizing those agencies that do not meet their debt collection targets by reducing their annual appropriations by 15 percent of the shortfall.

These built-in incentives to aggressively pursue nontax delinquencies on the books and meet rigid targets will not only help the agencies involved, but also help reduce the Federal deficit as collections flow back into the Treasury.

According to GAO's report to me in May, nontax delinquencies grew by 55 percent over the past 4 years to a level of approximately $24 billion as of fiscal year 1985.

This bill will provide some tough new medicine for collecting a large portion of that debt owed to Uncle Sam.

Mr. President, this bill also contains some significant improvements in both debt management; credit administration; and Government accounting that will allow the Congress to finally receive a true picture of the level of nontax debt owed the Government and force agencies to manage, control, and eliminate debt in an efficient and effective fashion.

For example, the bill calls for the establishment of a comprehensive debt collection and credit management plan by each executive agency and department of the Federal Government, prepared in accordance with certain accounting practices, procedures, and automated management information systems that have been identified and adopted by the General Accounting Office. This will help to standardize the way agencies keep their books and report credit management and debt collection data to Congress and to the Secretary of the Treasury. It also calls for all legislative proposal for the enactment of new credit programs to identify the amount of Government subsidy contained in such direct or guaranteed loan programs. The bill also provides that the Government begin to use private sector market interest rates in setting interest rates for new direct loan programs and levies loan original and application fees to defray the cost of defaulted loans that currently fall squarely on the back of the American taxpayers.

Finally, Mr. President, this bill puts some real teeth into the existing Debt Collection Act by directing Government agencies witn large debt collection balances to use private sector collection agencies, credit bureaus, and salary offset to collect overdue, delinquent debts owed the Federal Government. The bill also calls for the executive agencies of the Federal Government to explore the feasibility of selling certain debts owed to the Government as another way of collecting delinquent nontax debts. These provisions will give the Federal Government virtually the same tools that the private sector currently has at its disposal to collect debts that are delinquent.

Mr. President, this is a good bill. At a time when we are desperately looking for ways to bring more revenue into the Treasury without raising taxes, a tough, aggressive debt collection bill is just what the doctor ordered. If we were to collect every dime owed Uncle Sam from both nontax and Federal income tax services, the deficit would be reduced by nearly one-third. And if you look at the GAO estimates for the total amount owed the United States from all sources, including foreign governments—$346 billion—it should be no surprise that the United States has not become a major debtor nation. This bill will not address all of the debt that is owed the United States, but it will, if enacted, make a major dent in the nontax debt side of our "Red Ink Ledger" and put some muscle into our Federal debt collection effort.

Mr. President, I hope that the Governmental Affairs Committee will promptly report out this important debt collection and credit management bill, either as free-standing legislation or as part of its response to the budget resolution's reconciliation instructions. It is a bill whose time has come.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD and a section-by-section analysis be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the bill and section-by-section analysis were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2620

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Federal Credit Management and Debt Collection Improvements Act of 1986".

CREDIT MANAGEMENT AND DEBT COLLECTION

SEC. 2. Title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after chapter 37 the following new chapter:

"CHAPTER 38—CREDIT MANAGEMENT AND FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION

"SUBCHAPTER I—GENERAL PROVISIONS

"Sec. 3801. Purpose.
"Sec. 3802. Definitions.
"Sec. 3803. Appointment of Under Secretary of the Treasury for Debt Collection and Credit Management.
"Sec. 3804. Functions of the Under Secretary.

"SUBCHAPTER II—CREDIT EXTENSION AND ADMINISTRATION

"3811. Subsidy statement.
"3812. Interest rates.
"3813. Loan origination and application fees.
"3814. Withholding of funds.
"3815. Prior default by applicant.
"3816. Default and acceleration clauses.
"3817. Notice to applicant.
"3818. Study on private sector participation.
"3819. Regulations and financial contract.

"SUBCHAPTER III—DEBT MANAGEMENT

"3821. Delinquency and default standards.
"3822. Audit of credit programs.
"3823. Regulation deadline.
"3824. Collection targets.

"SUBCHAPTER I—GENERAL PROVISIONS

"§ 3801. Purpose

"In order to strengthen the overall credit management and debt collection of the Federal Government, provide central direction to, and coordination of, Federal credit management and debt collection activities by consolidating such activities within a single organizational structure, and provide for the production of adequate, accurate, timely, and consistent financial data for the use of the executive branch and the Congress in the financing, management, and evaluation of Federal programs, this chapter establishes in the Department of the Treasury an Under Secretary of the Treasury for Debt Collection and Credit Management.

"§ 3802. Definitions

"As used in this chapter:

"(1) The term 'executive agency' has the meaning given to the term 'agency' in section 552(e) of title 5.

"(2) The term 'obligation' means any note, bond, debenture, or other evidence of indebtedness, but does not include Federal Reserve notes or stock evidencing an ownership interest on the issuing executive agency.

"(3) The term 'direct loan' means a disbursement of funds by an executive agency (not in exchange for goods or services) under a contract that requires the repayment of such funds with or without interest. Such term shall also include an obligation guaranteed by an executive agency and purchased by the Federal Financing Bank. Such term shall not include any commodity price-support loan made by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

"(4) The term 'subsidy' means, with respect to a direct loan, the difference between—

"(A) the costs (including interest) which would have been incurred by a borrower to obtain the loan from private sources, minus

"(B) the costs (including interest) which were incurred by the borrower to obtain the loan from the Government.

"(5) The term 'debt' means an amount of money or property that has been determined by an appropriate official of an executive agency to be owed to the United States by any person, organization, or entity except another agency.

"(6) The term 'loan guarantee' means contingent liability of an executive agency. A guaranteed loan is—

"(A) any agreement in which an executive agency pledges to pay part or all of the amount due to a lender or holder in the event of default by the borrower; or

"(B) a direct Federal loan that an executive agency sold under a guarantee or agreement to repurchase.

"(7) The term 'credit extension' means that portion of the credit management cycle involving review and approval of requests for short-term or long-term credit.

"(8) The term 'financial contract' means any agreement or contract made by an executive agency, the primary purpose or results of which is to make private credit available, or available on more favorable terms than in the absence of the contract, to a non-Federal entity by indirectly or directly assuming the risk involved. Such term includes financial contracts such as an agreement to pay all or part of the principal or interest on the debt obligation of a non-Federal entity (debt service payments), financial lease agreements for assets and project financing, and repayment arrangements.

"(9) The term 'creditworthy' means a favorable determination entitling an applicant to receive credit, which is based on—

"(A) the perceived ability and willingness of the borrower to repay the debt and the lending organization's level of acceptable risk; and

"(B) the consideration of other Federal obligations that could jeopardize, or be jeopardized by, the new debt under consideration.

"(10) The term 'receivables' means amounts owed the Government upon completion of the acts giving rise to claims, and includes amounts, such as amounts due for taxes, loans, sales of goods and services, fines, penalties, forfeitures, interest, overpayments, fees, duties, rents, royalties, claims, damages, audit disallowances, and travel advances.

"(11) The term 'account servicing' means that portion of the credit management cycle dealing with monitoring the status of accounts of indebtedness, maintaining records of current debts, billing for amounts due, collecting amounts due, collecting past due amounts, handling debtor correspondence, performing followup functions, and providing accurate reporting of debt portfolios.

"(12) The term 'debt collection' means that portion of the credit management cycle dealing with recovery of amounts due after routine followup fails, and includes the assessment of the debtor's ability to pay, the exploration of possible alternative arrangements to increase the debtor's ability to pay, and other efforts to secure payment.

"(13) The term 'delinquency' means the status of any account which is 30 days past due.

"(14) The term 'default' means the failure to meet any obligation or term of credit, grant, or contract agreement that causes the lender to accelerate demand on the borrower because of the severity of the borrower's breach of the agreement, and for purposes of this chapter, default occurs—

71-059 O-87-36 (Pt. 11)

"(A) in the case of a direct loan, when the account is past due over 180 days; and

"(B) in the case of guaranteed loan, when the Government repurchases the loan.

"(15) The term 'reschedule' means to establish new terms and conditions to facilitate repayment of a debt.

"(16) The term 'referral for litigation' means—

"(A) referral to the Attorney General for appropriate legal proceedings; or

"(B) in any case in which an executive agency has statutory authority to bring legal actions without referral to the Attorney General, referral to the organization within the executive agency that is responsible for litigation.

"(17) The term 'credit report' means any written or documented oral communication of information provided by a commercial or consumer credit reporting agency dealing with the creditworthiness or financial reliability of an applicant or debtor.

"(18) The term 'Under Secretary' means the Under Secretary of the Treasury for Debt Collection and Credit Management appointed under section 3803 of this title.

"(19) The term 'agency head' means, with respect to an executive agency, the chief executive of the agency.

"(20) The term 'function' includes any duty, obligation, power, authority, responsibility, right, privilege, activity, or program.

"§ 3803. Appointment of Under Secretary of the Treasury for Debt Collection and Credit Management

"There shall be in the Department of the Treasury an Under Secretary of the Treasury for Debt Collection and Credit Management, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the consent of the Senate.

"§ 3804. Functions of the Under Secretary

"(a) The Under Secretary shall—

"(1) be the principal advisor to the President with respect to Federal credit management and debt collection policy;

"(2) provide leadership, central direction, guidance, and monitoring of the executive agencies in credit management and debt collection and related financial reporting;

"(3) prepare and transmit to the Congress and the Comptroller General, within one year after the date of enactment of this chapter and in consultation with agency heads, comprehensive debt collection and credit management plans which comply with subsection (b) of this section;

"(4) review executive agency credit management and debt collection plans and policies in order to assure that—

"(A) such plans and policies are—

"(i) consistent with the overall objectives, structure, and information requirements of comprehensive debt collection and credit management plans prepared under paragraph (3) of this subsection; and

"(ii) applied uniformly across agencies to assure parity and consistency; and

"(B) in the case of any project for the development of new or improved financial management systems, such project does not duplicate efforts by other agencies;

"(5) ensure that the President and the Congress are kept fully and currently informed of the Federal Government's—

"(A) financial position and results of its operations;

"(B) financial management condition;

"(C) requirements for financial resources to correct deficiencies and improve the effectiveness of accounting systems, financial systems, and systems of internal controls;

"(6) identify and establish financial management objectives and information requirements in order to define the data requirements of standards established by the Comptroller General for the use by all executive agencies in the development and operation of their financial management systems;

"(7) require each executive agency to submit comprehensive records describing in detail debt status and collection efforts, by program, project, or activity;

"(8) provide an annual summary of the activities conducted under this chapter to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate, the Committee on Government Operations of the House of Representatives, and the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives, describing the progress made in improving debt collection and credit management, and recommending such changes in Federal law for the purpose of improving debt collection and credit management as the Under Secretary considers appropriate; and

"(9) promulgate such regulations as may be necessary to carry out this chapter.

"(b) The comprehensive debt collection and credit management plans required under paragraph (3) of subsection (a), shall, at a minimum—

"(1) establish credit management and debt collection practices, procedures, and regulations that implement and comply with this chapter and chapter 37 of this title, regulations of the Under Secretary, and all other relevant laws, regulations, rulings, and guidance;

"(2) define and assign debt collection and credit management responsibilities for each executive agency;

"(3) establish employee performance appraisal standards and bonus award programs that take into account employee contributions to improving the operation of credit management and debt collection programs;

"(4) establish accounting practices and procedures and automated management information systems to enable each executive agency to produce accurate financial reports on those programs that generate receivables, including reports such as operating statements, statements of financial position, and cash flow statements; and

"(5) require annual evaluations of credit management and debt collection operations and systems in order to identify areas in which such operations and systems could be improved and to initiate actions to correct any problems identified through such evaluations.

"(c) Within 60 days after receiving a plan under paragraph (3) of this subsection, the Comptroller General shall prepare and transmit to the Congress a report which contains the analysis and comments of the Comptroller General with respect to the plan and the progress being made by executive agencies to strengthen credit management and debt collection.

"Subchapter II—Credit Extension and Administration

"§ 3811. Subsidy statement

"Any proposal by an executive agency for legislation to enact new credit programs or to amend existing credit programs shall contain an explicit statement of any subsidies in the direct or guaranteed loan program with which such proposal is concerned.

"§ 3812. Interest rates

"Interest rates in all new direct loan programs shall be related to market rates for comparable private sector loan programs, and the interest rates in such direct loan programs shall be adjusted annually to reflect changes in comparable private sector rates.

"§ 3813. Loan origination and application fees

"Loan origination and application fees shall be assessed on all loan or loan guarantee programs to defray administrative costs and costs of defaulted loans.

"§ 3814. Withholding of funds

"No executive or legislative agency shall directly or indirectly make available to any person any funds of the United States if the agency has notice that such person is delinquent in the payment of a debt owed the United States unless such person demonstrates that the debt is no longer delinquent or that arrangements satisfactory to the United States have been made for the repayment of such debt.

"§ 3815. Prior default by applicant

"Federal loan or loan guarantee funds may not be made available to any applicant who defaults on a Federal loan or loan guarantee made after the date of enactment of this chapter, unless—

"(1) the new loan or loan guarantee is necessary to protect the Government's interests;

"(2) the debt in default was discharged under Federal bankruptcy laws; or

"(3) the default has been cured.

"§ 3816. Default and acceleration clauses

"Loan and loan guarantee contracts shall contain default and acceleration clauses. Default clauses shall provide for interest from the date of default and at the greater of the interest rate due under the existing loan or loan guarantee contract or the rate prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury under section 3717 of this title. Acceleration clauses shall provide that upon default the entire remaining principal balance shall be due and subject to collection at that time.

"§ 3817. Notice to applicant

"Each applicant for any extension of credit shall be provided a written notice specifying Federal debt collection policies and practices. Each such applicant shall be required to certify that such applicant has read and understands such policies and practices.

"§ 3818. Study on private sector participation

"The President shall provide for the conduct of a study to determine which existing Federal direct loan programs could be carried out, in whole or in part, by private lending institutions as direct loans without Government guarantees. Within one year after the date of enactment of this chapter, the President shall transmit to the Congress a report which describes the results of such study and contains such recommendations as the President considers appropriate, including recommendations for legislation.

"§ 3819. Regulations and financial contract

"(a)(1)(A) The Secretary of the Treasury shall establish Federal credit management policies and promulgate regulations implementing this subchapter. Such policies and regulations shall apply to—

"(i) direct loans, loan guarantees, loan insurance, financial contracts designed to support borrowing, and debts arising from contracts, grants, and other administrative arrangements; and

"(ii) all executive agencies and Government corporations unless specifically exempted from Federal control by other statutory authority.

"(B) The Secretary of the Treasury shall include regulations promulgated under this paragraph with respect to—

"(i) all credit practices necessary to make Federal credit practices substantially conform to the best established credit practices of the private sector;

"(ii) credit analysis of borrowers (including determinations with respect to creditworthiness, financial responsibility, financial statements, identification of collateral, and ability to repay);

"(iii) prescreening procedures (including the use of credit reports and records from the same or other executive agencies to identify applicants who are delinquent or in default on debt contracted under other Federal programs, projects, or activities);

"(iv) program eligibility;

"(v) alternative sources of credit;

"(vi) use of taxpayer identification numbers;

"(vii) establishment of regular repayment schedules;

"(viii) account servicing practices (including adequate recordkeeping and documentation, account review and loss estimates, followup procedures on delinquent accounts, and automation of loan servicing activities);

"(ix) debt accounting and reporting systems;

"(x) interest, penalties, and administrative costs;

"(xi) administrative offset;

"(xii) use of collection agencies;

"(xiii) referral for litigation;

"(xiv) calling guarantees;

"(xv) controlling and foreclosing on collateral;

"(xvi) Federal employee salary offset;

"(xvii) income tax refund offset;

"(xviii) rescheduling;

"(xix) writeoff and closeout procedures;

"(xx) portfolio sales;

"(xxi) management review; and

"(xxii) improvement plans.

"(2) Regulations promulgated under paragraph (1) of this subsection shall not apply to debt arising under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the Social Security Act, the tariff laws of the United States, or to debts owed by State or local governments.

"(b) The Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe minimum requirements for contracts for all loans or loan guarantees governed by this chapter.

"Subchapter III—Debt Management

"§ 3821. Delinquency and default standards

"Within one year after the date of enactment of this chapter, each executive agency operating credit programs shall—

"(1) develop delinquency and default rate standards for each loan and loan guarantee program; and

"(2) transmit a report to the Congress specifying such standards.

"§ 3822. Audit of credit programs

"(a) Within two years after the date of enactment of this chapter, the Comptroller General shall audit the credit management and debt collection systems and operating policies of each executive agency which administers credit programs.

"(b) Each audit conducted under subsection (a) shall determine whether the executive agency has complied with the requirements of the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended by the Debt Collection Act of 1982, the requirements of this chapter, and the related requirements of the Comptroller General, the Attorney General, and the Secretary of the Treasury. Copies of the audit report of each audit shall be provided to the Congress, the Under Secretary, and the agency head. With respect to any weaknesses disclosed by the audit, the agency head, within 60 days after receiving the audit report, shall furnish the Congress with an explanation of the reasons for such weaknesses and a plan of appropriate action to correct such weaknesses.

"§ 3823. Regulation deadline

"Within one year of the date of enactment of this chapter, each executive agency operating credit programs shall have promulgated all final executive agency regulations required by this chapter and the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended by the Debt Collection Act of 1982.

"§ 3824. Collection targets

"(a) The total amount of delinquent debts owed to executive agencies (other than debts arising under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954) shall be reduced by not less than $15,000,000,000 during the period beginning on October 1, 1986, and ending on September 30, 1989. For purposes of this section, the total amount of such debts shall be the total amount of such debts identified by the Comptroller General as of September 30, 1985.

"(b) The Secretary of the Treasury, after consulting with each agency head and receiving the proposals of each agency head for debt collection targets, shall develop and specifically establish debt collection targets for each fiscal year for each executive agency debt collection program. Such targets shall be established in conjunction with the provisions of the comprehensive debt collection credit management plans established pursuant to section 3804(a)(3) of this title and shall be designed to implement subsection (a).

"(c) To the extent that any debt collection targets established by the Secretary of the Treasury under subsection (b) of this section for an executive agency for a fiscal year are exceeded by such agency, 15 percent of the amount by which such agency exceeds the targets for such fiscal year shall be made available to the executive agency as additional program funding for the particular program or activities involved in the debt collection activity. The balance of the delinquent debts collected under this section shall be returned to the Treasury of the United States and shall be used to reduce the public debt.

"(d) To the extent that any debt collection targets established by the Secretary of the Treasury under subsection (b) of this section for an executive agency for a fiscal year are not met by such executive agency, the amounts that were appropriated for the programs or activities at the executive agency failing to meet such targets shall be reduced by an amount equal to 15 percent of the difference between the amount collected by the executive agency toward its debt collection target and the actual debt collection target established by the Secretary of the Treasury under subsection (b) of this section.

"(e) The Secretary of the Treasury shall promulgate regulations which prescribe standards for use by executive agencies in developing proposals for debt collection targets. Such standards shall require executive agencies to consider, for each program or activity, such factors as—

"(1) the characteristics of the debts and debtors involved;

"(2) the historical experience of the agency, other government agencies, and the private sector in the collection of similar types of debt;

"(3) the rates of delinquency and default;

"(4) planned improvements in the agency's debt collection programs; and

"(5) such other factors as the Secretary of the Treasury considers appropriate.

"(f) Officers and employees of executive agencies responsible for the management of debt collection programs shall be held accountable (as part of the performance standards to be established under section 3804 of this title) for establishing and periodically reviewing and revising procedures and targets that comply with the requirements of this section and the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury.

"(g) Any reductions to executive agency appropriations under this section shall be reported in detail to the Congress by the Secretary of the Treasury and shall be included in detail in all budget justifications presented by the executive agency to the Congress.".

USE OF CREDIT BUREAUS

SEC. 3. Section 3711(f) of title 31, United States Code, is amended by—

(1) striking out "may" after "legislative agency" in paragraph (1) and inserting in lieu thereof "shall"; and

(2) striking out "may" after "system" in subparagraph (A) of such paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof "shall".

DEBT COLLECTION CONTRACTORS

SEC. 4. Section 3718(a) of title 31, United States Code, is amended by—

(1) inserting "to augment agency collection efforts" after "appropriate";

(2) striking out "may" after "head of the agency" and inserting in lieu thereof "shall";

(3) striking out "; and" at the end of paragraph (1);

(4) striking out the period at the end of paragraph (2)(B) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and

(5) inserting after paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

"(3) the person will submit to the agency status reports on the success of such person in collecting such debts at least once every six months.".

ROUTINE ADJUSTMENTS OF PAY

SEC. 5. Section 5514(a) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraphs:

"(5) This subsection does not apply to intragency deductions for routine administrative overpayments which are the result of clerical or administrative error or delays in the processing of pay documents, and which are rarely controversial or disputed. With respect to these routine adjustments of pay, the agency should afford the individual reasonable opportunity to dispute the deduction. Such opportunity need not be provided prior to making the deduction.

"(6) No claim may be collected under the authority of paragraph (1) of this subsection at any time after 10 years after the claim first accrues.".

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE INFORMATION

SEC. 6. Section 6103(m)(2)(A) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended—

(1) by inserting before the period a comma and "or other statutory authorities granting agencies independent claims collection authority"; and

(2) by striking out "the Secretary may" and inserting in lieu thereof "the Secretary shall".

DEBT COLLECTION REPORTS IN THE BUDGET PROCESS

SEC. 7. (a) Section 3719 of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out "the Director of the Office of Management and Budget" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof "the Under Secretary of the Treasury for Debt Collection and Loan Management";

(2) by striking out "Director" each place it appears in subsections (a) and (b) and inserting in lieu thereof "Under Secretary";

(3) by striking out "and the Secretary at least once each year" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof "in accordance with regulations issued by the Under Secretary under section 3803 of this title";

(4) by striking out "and" at the end of subsection (a)(1)(E);

(5) by inserting "and" after the semicolon in subsection (a)(1)(F);

(6) by inserting after subparagraph (a)(1)(F) the following new subparagraph:

"(G) the agency's progress in implementing chapters 37 and 38 of this title, and the agency's monetary and programmatic goals for improving collections and reducing delinquencies and writeoffs;"; and

(7) by striking out "and shall report annually to Congress on the management of debt collection activities by the head of each agency" in subsection (b) and inserting in lieu thereof "and shall prepare (for inclusion in the budget submissions required by section 1105 of this title) a detailed statement of the Under Secretary's evaluation of each agency's implementation of its debt collection and loan management responsibilities for each debt collection and credit program administered by the agency".

(b) Section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(26) a separate statement for each agency and program contains the information specified in section 3719(b) of this title.".

SELLING DEBTS OWED TO THE GOVERNMENT

SEC. 8. Section 3711 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g)(1) The head of each agency shall investigate the feasibility and cost effectiveness of selling the debts which that agency is responsible for collecting (either before or after they become delinquent or in default), using competitive procedures, and shall establish procedures to facilitate such sales when it would be to the Government's advantage to do so.

"(2) Whenever feasible, sales of debt under this subsection shall be for cash and without recourse, repurchase, or other guaranty or warranty agreement by the Government.".

TIME LIMITATIONS FOR BRINGING LEGAL ACTIONS ON DEBTS OWED THE UNITED STATES

SEC. 9. Section 2415 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(j) No provision of State law that would set an earlier deadline for filing suit shall apply to a suit filed for collection of a debt owed to the United States.".

DEFINITION OF DEBT AND CLAIM

SEC. 10. Section 3701(b) of title 31, United States Code, is amended to read:

"(b) In subchapter II of this chapter, the terms 'debt' and 'claim' mean any amount owed to the Government, except that such term does not include any amounts owed by one agency to another agency, and except as otherwise provided by law.".

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE DEBT COLLECTION BILL

Section 2: Amends Title 31 U.S.C. by adding a new chapter on Credit Management and Federal Debt Collection.

Calls for the appointment of a new Under Secretary of the Treasury for Debt Collection and Credit Management who will have major new responsibilities for improving the Federal debt collection and credit management effort. Appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. He will be the President's chief adviser regarding Federal credit management and debt collection policy.

Subsidy Statement: Bill calls for identification of any subsidy contained in new proposed credit programs.

Interest Rates: Bill calls for interest rates on new credit programs be related to market rates for comparable private sector loan programs.

Loan Origination and Application Fees: Bill calls for loan origination and application fees to defray administrative costs and costs of defaulted loans.

Withholding of Loans: Bill calls for no loans to persons delinquent in paying back govenment loans unless he or she can prove loan payments are not delinquent or that they have taken steps to repay.

Also no loans to those who have defaulted on prior Government loans made after enactment of this bill, with certain exceptions.

Loans will contain default and acceleration clauses.

Study on Private Sector Participation: Bill directs President to conduct a study of private sector alternatives to Federal loan programs.

Regulations and other Matters: Bill calls for the Secretary of the Treasury to establish certain procedures and regulations to implement this chapter and to improve both debt collection and credit management.

Audit of Credit Programs: Bill calls for complete audit of credit programs by GAO two years after enactment of the bill.

Collection Targets: Bill calls for collection of $15 bilion over three years in non-tax debt delinquencies. Penalizes agencies who do not meet pre-determined debt collection targets (cuts their appropriations by 15% of the shortfall between actual collections and the target); and provides incentives for those agencies that exceed their pre-determined debt collection targets (15% of the excess over the target, agency can keep for programs.) Balance collected used to reduce the deficit.

Secretary of the Treasury sets the targets in consultation with executive agency heads.

Section 3: Use of Credit Bureaus: Mandates use of credit bureaus by executive agencies.

Section 4: Debt Collection Contractors: Mandates the use of private debt collection agencies by executive agencies.

Section 5: Routine Adjustments of Pay: Allows offset against salaries for debts owed and delinquent. Clarifies current law on this matter.

Section 6: Internal Revenue Service Information: Allows use of I.R.S. information to help in debt collection.

Section 7: Debt Collection Reports in the Budget Process: Directs that debt collection data be included in the Budget of the affected agencies and requires certain reports to Congress on debt collection performance by executive agencies.

Section 8: Selling Debts Owed to the Government: Calls for study of the feasibility of selling Government debts to the private sector as one means of debt collection.

Section 9: Time Limitations for Bringing Legal Actions on Debts Owed the U.S.: Addresses the issue of statute of limitations and conflict of laws with States that preclude collection action on Federal delinquencies.

Section 10: Definition of Debt and Claim: Clarifies definitions regarding debts and claims.

□ 2000

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, one of the most prevalent beliefs embedded in the mind of America is that Government wastes a lot of money. One recent survey, asking people how much of each tax dollar they think the Federal Government wastes, found the median response to be 48 cents.

While this figure appears a bit steep, and is in fact unrealistic, it should cause this distinguished body a little discomfort. Mainly because it does point to a problem that has been 210 years in the making. It points to mismanagement of public money—more than a venial sin in these days of deficit spending.

In fact, it's been reported that over a 3-year period, a total of $424 billion in savings could be obtained just from controlling waste—without harming social programs or even weakening our needed defense program. This dollar figure, along with 2,478 recommendations for reform, came packaged 18 months ago as the Grace Committee Report, following a sweeping survey by more than 2,000 of the best private-sector managers and executives this country has to offer.

Some of these recommendations have already been initiated. But much more remains to be done. For this reason I stand today, joined by a number of my colleagues, to introduce the omnibus Grace package of 15 separate bills. This package represents not only the commendable work of the Grace Commission, but also over 2 years of research and review by my committee on Governmental Affairs, assisted by the General Accounting Office.

I'm pleased to have it introduced in the wake of two significant events. One being the Governmental Affairs Committee vote to report another Grace-inspired bill, the Federal Management Reorganization and Cost Control Act of 1986, which passed Governmental Affairs unanimously and incorporates more than 50 of the Grace Commission's recommendations in the critical area of financial management. And the other being the historic tax reform bill—both of which lighten the burden on the taxpaying citizen and make sure the taxes that are paid are used effectively and efficiently.

This Grace package, introduced today, is a logical and most important follow-up. Just as the tax bill closed many of the loopholes that plagued our country's tax system. This Grace package will close the loopholes that have opened, with inequity and great expense, in our Government benefit and management systems.

Once passed, they will end wasteful duplication and consolidate Government efforts. They will streamline procedures, making them both efficient and cost-effective. And they will eliminate a great deal of fraud and abuse in our tax system and major programs.

For example, at the U.S. borders, we have customs officials and immigration officials who do the exact same jobs without sharing information or coordinating efforts. In our Defense Department we have depots and warehouses that are unnecessary. We have multiple and underutilized Army, Navy, and Air Force maintenance operations all set up to work on the same engines, the same equipment, and often only within miles of each other. We have dependents and survivors of military personnel who can't be treated in VA hospitals, and we have dependents and survivors of veterans who can't be treated in military hospitals. The bills are paid from the same pool, yet we waste hundreds of millions of dollars by sending these dependents away from the most appropriate and convenient medical centers—just as we waste money when our defense research laboratories don't share research data and findings, but duplicate effort and waste time and resources.

Of course, this not only cuts deep into our financial pocket, but threatens our national preparedness as well.

Mr. President, It's clear what a coordinated effort in this area could do both to end duplication and consolidate functions. But it's also amazing to see what money can be saved streamlining such Government procedures as livestock and poultry inspections. Both the Department of Agriculture and the General Accounting Office agree with the Grace Commission that periodic inspections, now possible through advanced technology in those industries, would be more effective than the continuous inspections now mandated by antiquated law. They would also save money.

It is amazing to see the savings possible if the Justice Department would use paralegals, where possible, to relieve their tremendous backlog of cases and allow our Federal attorneys more time to do litigative work.

There is also money to be saved by fighting fraud and abuse. And this Grace package will do just that by requiring social service applicants to submit Social Security numbers for income verification through computer cross-matching. Currently, 12 to 17 percent of applicants for housing benefits under section B falsify information to qualify for HUD benefits.

This package will also authorize the hiring of additional IRS staff to weed out underreporters and delinquent taxpayers who place an unfair burden on the backs of honest Americans. Currently, the IRS estimates that $100 billion in taxes is lost annually in underreporting—even more when we include delinquent taxes.

The package will also require and strengthen audits in a large number of Federal programs.

These represent only a few of over 80 Grace recommendations that are included in the 16 bills which make up this package and the Federal Management Reorganization and Cost Control Act.

Mr. President, the savings associated with these reforms—even with the most conservative estimates of GAO and CBO and including only half of the bills presented here today—total over $9 billion over 3 years. For this reason I urge prompt consideration and support of the entire Grace package of legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for the introduction in the RECORD of the following 12 bills of the Grace legislative package each to be preceded in the RECORD by a brief summary and a section-by-section analysis.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2619

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Tax Collection and Enforcement Improvement Act of 1986".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that the amount of underreported taxes is estimated at $100,000,000,000 annually, a noncompliance rate of 18 percent, and that delinquent unpaid taxes have substantially increased in the past 5 years, rising from about $16,000,000,000 to over $35,000,000,000. During this same period, the number of tax returns audited has dropped by over 50 percent, and the Internal Revenue Service has experienced staffing and other management problems.

(b) PURPOSES.—In order to increase the enforcement of tax laws and improve the collection of unpaid delinquent taxes, this Act—

(1) authorizes 1,500 additional tax collections staff and establishes a target for the reduction of delinquent unpaid taxes,

(2) authorizes 1,000 additional staff for the information returns (document matching) program,

(3) authorizes 2,500 additional tax return examination and enforcement staff in each of the next 3 fiscal years,

(4) requires the classification and reporting of delinquent accounts on a basis of specified characteristics,

(5) requires the inclusion of levy source information in closing agreements,

(6) authorizes the use of electronic fund transfer and payroll deductions in installment agreements with respect to which payments are delinquent, and

(7) prohibits liquor wholesalers from selling to retailers who have not paid the Federal occupational tax stamp and requires computer matching as an enforcement tool.

TITLE I—COLLECTIONS AND ENFORCEMENT STAFF ENHANCEMENT

SEC. 101. INCREASED COLLECTIONS STAFF.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Within 5 fiscal years of the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall reduce the level of delinquent debt by at least $5,000,000, through the strengthening of the collection activities of the Internal Revenue Service. For the purposes of the preceding sentence, the Secretary of the Treasury shall increase the tax collections staff by 1,500 employees in fiscal year 1987.

(b) COLLECTIONS PLAN.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall, within 180 days of the date of the enactment of this Act, submit to the Congress a plan to halt the growth of backlogged collections and maximize the collection of taxes imposed by the internal revenue laws. The plan shall—

(1) detail the allocation of staff among the national, regional, and district offices and Internal Revenue Service Centers, based on projected workload volumes,

(2) detail the allocation of additional staff, encompassing all aspects of the collections process, and

(3) include an estimate of any additional staff needs beyond the 1,500 additional staff authorized in this section which shall be used to prepare the budget estimates for the Internal Revenue Service, including staffing estimates for the following marginal rates of return (marginal yield to cost)—

(A) 20 to 1,
(B) 15 to 1,
(C) 10 to 1,
(D) 7 to 1,
(E) 5 to 1, and
(F) 2 to 1.

(c) AUTHORIZATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Internal Revenue Service such sums as are necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

SEC. 102. INCREASED INFORMATION RETURNS PROGRAM STAFF.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall increase by 1,000 in fiscal year 1987 the Internal Revenue Service staff allocated to the Information Returns (document matching) Program function.

(b) INFORMATION RETURNS PROGRAM PLAN.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall, within 180 days of the date of the enactment of this Act, submit to the Congress a plan to strengthen the Information Returns Program. The plan shall—

(1) detail the allocation of additional staff, and

(2) include an estimate of any additional staff needs beyond the 1,000 additional information returns staff authorized in this section, including staffing estimates for the same marginal rates of return required in section 101(b)(3) of this Act, to be used as a basis to prepare budget estimates for the Internal Revenue Service.

(c) AUTHORIZATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Internal Revenue Service such sums as are necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

SEC. 103. INCREASED ENFORCEMENT STAFF LEVELS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall increase by 2,500 the Internal Revenue Service staff positions in the tax return examination and enforcement function in each of the fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989.

(b) ENFORCEMENT PLAN.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall, within 180 days of the date of the enactment of this Act, submit to the Congress a plan to increase the number of tax returns audited. The plan shall include recommendations as to the staff needed by the Internal Revenue Service to increase the percentage of returns audited to at lease 2 percent within 5 years and to raise taxpayer compliance to 90 percent within 5 years, and shall be used as a basis to prepare budget estimates for the Internal Revenue Service.

(c) AUTHORIZATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Internal Revenue Service such sums as are necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

SEC. 104. REPORTING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Within 60 days after the end of fiscal year 1987, and each fiscal year thereafter, the Secretary of the Treasury shall submit to the Congress a report on the status of tax collections and on the level of delinquent debt that shall include—

(1) the value, age, stage of collection, and any other pertinent classification of all unpaid tax revenues owed the Federal Government,

(2) the level of delinquent debt at the end of such fiscal year,

(3) the amount of revenue raised as a result of collections of delinquent debt during such year,

(4) the number and value of tax accounts written off as uncollectible for the most current 3 fiscal years,

(5) the number of staff assigned to the collection function, and

(6) the relationships among the growth of—

(A) taxes paid,

(B) all receivables, and

(C) all delinquencies.

(b) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall also include, in the report to the Congress, the status of collection and enforcement enhancement of the Internal Revenue Service with respect to—

(1) the number of tax returns filed and the percentage audited for the current and preceding 2 fiscal years,

(2) the amounts of additional tax assessed and revenue collected as a result of such audits,

(3) an estimate of the amount of revenue indirectly attributable to the increased collection and enforcement functions,

(4) the rate of return and marginal cost for each dollar of expenditure by the Internal Revenue Service by function, and

(5) an estimate as to the future staff and computer support needs of the Internal Revenue Service to maintain an increasing level of revenue collection and taxpayer compliance.

TITLE II—IMPROVEMENT OF COLLECTION PRACTICES

SEC. 201. CLASSIFICATION OF DELINQUENT ACCOUNTS.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall maintain management information systems which, on an accurate and timely basis, classify the number of accounts and the value of delinquencies—

(1) at the various stages of collection (notice, taxpayer delinquent account, amounts currently not collectible, installment agreements, deferrals, and other stages as determined by the Secretary),

(2) by the type of taxpayer (individual or business),

(3) by the type of tax (income, employment, excise, and other types of tax as determined by the Secretary),

(4) by the source of delinquency (tax examination, non-filer, document match, and other sources as determined by the Secretary),

(5) by the delinquency history of the taxpayer (first-time delinquent versus repeater),

(6) by the age of delinquency (30, 60, 90, 120, and 180 days, over 1 year, over 2 years, and over 5 years); and

(7) by other such criteria as the Secretary determines proper in order to provide the Internal Revenue Service with better information with which to manage the collection processes.

SEC. 202. LEVY SOURCE INFORMATION INCLUDED IN CLOSING AGREEMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) of section 7121 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to closing agreements) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Such an agreement (or any other form or document closing an examination) shall include levy source information if the entire tax is not paid when such agreement is entered into.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to agreements entered into after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 203. COLLECTION UNDER INSTALLMENT AGREEMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter A of chapter 64 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to collection) is amended by inserting after section 6303 the following new section:

"SEC. 6304. COLLECTION UNDER INSTALLMENT AGREEMENTS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, the Secretary may provide for the payment of any tax delinquency by means of an installment agreement.

"(b) NONPAYMENT OF AGREED INSTALLMENT.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Such agreement shall authorize the Secretary to collect an installment not paid on or before the date set for its payment by payroll deduction or electronic fund transfer (as defined in section 5061(e)(2)).

"(2) LIMITATION.—Any payment under paragraph (1) shall be subject to the limitations under section 6334.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subchapter A of chapter 64 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 6303 the following new item:

"Sec. 6304. Collection under installment agreements.".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to agreements entered into after the date of the enactment of this Act.

TITLE III—COLLECTION OF ALCOHOLIC OCCUPATIONAL TAX

SEC. 301. PROHIBITED SALES BY WHOLESALE DEALERS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart D of part II of subchapter A of chapter 51 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to tax on distilled spirits, wines, and beer) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 5118. PROHIBITED SALES BY WHOLESALE DEALERS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—It shall be unlawful for any wholesale dealer in liquors or any wholesale dealer in beer to sell distilled spirits, wine, or beer to any retail dealer in liquors or retail dealer in beers unless such retail dealer has paid the special tax to cover the place where the business is conducted.

"(b) RECORDS.—Any wholesale dealer in liquors or wholesale dealer in beer shall keep, under such regulations as the Secretary shall prescribe, a record of the identification number appearing on the special tax stamp issued to each retail dealer in liquors or retail dealer in beer pursuant to section 5142(c)(2).

"(c) CROSS REFERENCES.—

"For penalties applicable to a violation of this section, see sections 5603 and 5687.".

(b) The table of sections for subpart D of part II of subchapter A of chapter 51 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new item:

"Sec. 5118. Prohibited sales by wholesale dealers.".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 302. DOCUMENT MATCHING TO IDENTIFY NONCOMPLIANT RETAILERS.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall match information on income tax returns with returns filed under chapter 51 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to ensure compliance with the tax imposed by section 5121 of such Code.

TITLE IV—EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 401. EFFECTIVE DATE.

Unless otherwise provided in this Act, the provisions of this Act shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

TAX COLLECTION AND ENFORCEMENT IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986

Problem.—The amount of underreported taxes is estimated at $100 billion annually, indicating a noncompliance rate of 18 percent. Delinquent unpaid taxes have substantially increased in the past 5 years, rising from about $16 billion to over $35 billion. During this same period, the number of tax returns audited has dropped by over 50 percent, and the Internal Revenue Service has experienced staffing and other management problems. The Grace Commission estimated a three-year cost savings of $6.6 billion as the result of reforms in this area; however, many of the Grace recommendations have been accomplished administratively. This legislation provides the means to require a reduction in tax delinquencies by $5 billion over 5 years.

The purpose of this bill is to improve tax law compliance, increase collections, and reduce tax delinquencies by:

Authorizing 1,500 additional collections staff and establishing a target for a $5 billion reduction in delinquent unpaid taxes over 5 years;

Authorizing 1,000 additional staff for the information returns (document matching) program;

Authorizing 2,500 additional tax return examination and enforcement staff in each of the next 3 fiscal years;

Requiring the Classification and reporting of delinquent accounts on a basis of specified characteristics;

Requiring the inclusion of information on taxpayer equity sources in audit closing agreements when any amount of tax payable is outstanding;

Authorizing the use of electronic funds transfers and payroll deductions in installment agreements where tax payments are delinquent; and Prohibiting liquor wholesalers from selling to retailers who have not paid the Federal Occupational Tax Stamp and requiring computer matching as an enforcement tool.

TAX COLLECTION AND ENFORCEMENT IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986—A Bill To Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control

Sec. 2. Findings and Purposes.—This Act is to strengthen efforts to recoup underreported and delinquent federal income tax revenue whose levels have risen rapidly in the last 5 years. In the same time period, audits have dropped significantly, and the IRS has had staffing and management problems. This Act:

Authorizes 1500 additional collections staff and establishes a target for the reduction of delinquent unpaid taxes;

Authorizes 1000 additional staff for the information returns processing program;

Authorizes 2500 additional tax return examination and enforcement staff in each of the next three fiscal years;

Requires the classification and reporting of deliquent accounts on a basis of specified characteristics;

Requires the inclusion of levy source information in closing agreements;

Authorizes the use of electronic funds transfer and payroll deductions in installment agreements where payments are delinquent; and

Prohibits liquor wholesalers from selling to retailers who have not paid for their Federal Occupational Tax Stamp and requires computer matching as an enforcement tool.

TITLE I.—COLLECTION AND ENFORCEMENT STAFF ENHANCEMENT

Sec. 101. Increased Collection Staff.—Within 5 fiscal years of the enactment of this Act, through strengthened collection activities, the Secretary of the Treasury is required to reduce the level of delinquent debt by at least $5 billion. An additional 1,500 staff is provided for this purpose.

The Secretary of the Treasury is required, within 180 days of enactment, to submit a plan to reduce the growth of backlogged collections and increase the collection of taxes. The plan is to detail the allocation of staff in all aspects of the collections process, based on projected workload, and to include an estimate of future staffing needs.

The Act provides there will be appropriated such funds as are necessary to carry out this section.

Sec. 102. Increased Information Returns Program Staff.—The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized an additional 1,000 staff in the information returns (document matching) function.

Within 180 days of enactment, the Secretary of the Treasury is required to submit a plan to strengthen the program which shall include an estimate of staffing needs.

The Act provides there will be appropriated such funds as necessary to carry out this section.

Sec. 103. Increased Enforcement Staff Levels.—The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized an additional 2,500 examinations and enforcement staff in each year for fiscal year 1987, 1988, 1989.

The Secretary is required, within 180 days of enactment, to submit a plan to increase the number of tax audits to at least 20% and taxpayers compliance to 90% within the next five years. The plan is to detail any additional staff needs.

The Act provides there will be appropriated such funds as are necessary to carry out this section.

Sec. 104. Reporting.—Within 60 days after the end of fiscal year 1987, and each year following, the Secretary will submit a report to the Congress on the status of tax collections and the level of delinquent debt. The Act delineates certain information to be included in the report.

TITLE II.—IMPROVEMENT OF COLLECTION PRACTICES

Sec. 201. Classification of Delinquent Accounts.—The Secretary of the Treasury is required to classify all delinquent accounts based on age, stage of collection, value, type of taxpayer, type of tax, source of delinquency, taxpayer collection history, and other such criteria as the Secretary deems necessary to better provide the Internal Revenue Service with information with which to manage the collection process.

Sec. 202. Levy Source Information Included in Closing Agreements.—Subchapter (a) of Section 7121 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended so that levy source information is required with closing agreements or any such document that concludes an examination where the entire tax is not paid.

Sec. 203. Collection Under Installment Agreements.—The Secretary is authorized to use electronic funds transfers or payroll deductions to collect taxes when payments under installment agreements are delinquent. To do this, subchapter (A) of chapter 64 of the Internal Revenue Code is amended by adding a new section after section 5103.

TITLE III.—COLLECTION OF ALCOHOLIC OCCUPATIONAL TAX

Sec. 301. Prohibited Sales by Wholesale Dealers.—Subpart D of part II of Subchapter A of chapter 51 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended to prohibit wholesale dealers in beer, wine, and distilled spirits from selling beer, wine, and distilled spirits to any retail dealer unless that retailer has paid the alcoholic occupational tax.

The wholesale dealer is required to keep records of their customers' compliance.

Penalties for not complying are stated in sections 5603 and 5687 of chapter 51 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Sec. 302. Document Matching To Identify Noncompliant Retailers.—To aid in enforcement, the Secretary of the Treasury is to match information on income tax returns filed under chapter 51 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to insure compliance with the tax imposed by section 5121 of such Code.

TITLE IV.—EFFECTIVE DATE

Sec. 401. Effective Date.—This Act takes effect on the date of enactment.

S. 2622

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Meat, Poultry, and Egg Products Inspection Improvement Act of 1986".

SEC. 2. FINDING AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDING.—Congress finds that periodic and unannounced inspections of meat, poultry, and egg processing plants would be less expensive and more effective than continuous inspections of such plants currently made.

(b) PURPOSES.—It is the purpose of this Act—

(1) to increase the flexibility of the Secretary of Agriculture in utilizing inspection resources and improve the efficiency of inspections at meat, poultry, and processing plants by authorizing the Secretary to conduct inspections of processing operations at individual establishments in such a manner and with such frequency as the Secretary determines necessary and in accordance with regulations; and

(2) to concentrate inspection resources on plants in which more intensive inspection is required by reducing the frequency of examinations at exemplary plants.

SEC. 3. MEAT INSPECTION.

(a) DEFINITION OF OFFICIAL INSPECTION LEGEND.—Section 1(t) of the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601(t)) is amended by inserting ", or prepared in an establishment inspected by the Secretary," after "passed".

(b) INSPECTORS OF MEAT FOOD PRODUCTS.—Section 6 of such Act (21 U.S.C. 606) is amended—

(1) by striking out "For" and all that follows through ": Provided, That subject" and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(a) For the purpose of carrying out this Act, the Secretary shall cause to be made, by inspectors appointed for such purpose, an examination and inspection of meat food products prepared for commerce in any slaughtering, meatcanning, salting, packing, rendering, or similar establishment.

"(b) Such examination and inspection shall be conducted in such a manner and with such frequency as the Secretary determines necessary and in accordance with regulations issued under this Act, based on—

"(1) the nature and frequency of the processing operations of the establishment;

"(2) the adequacy and reliability of the product monitoring system of the establishment;

"(3) the history of compliance of the establishment with inspection requirements imposed under this Act; and

"(4) such other factors as the Secretary considers appropriate.

"(c) All such products found not to be adulterated shall be marked, stamped, tagged, or labeled as 'Prepared in a USDA inspected establishment'.

"(d) All such products found to be adulterated shall be—

"(1) marked, stamped, labeled, or tagged as 'condemned'; and

"(2) destroyed for human food purposes in accordance with this Act.

"(e) The Secretary may remove inspectors from an establishment that fails to destroy such adulterated products in accordance with this Act.

"(f) For the purpose of an examination and inspection, such inspectors shall have access at all times, by day or night, whether the establishment in operating or not, to every part of the establishment.

"(g) Subject"; and

(2) in subsection (g) (as designated by paragraph (1)), by striking out "proviso" and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection".

(c) LABELING REQUIREMENTS.—Section 7 of such Act (21 U.S.C. 607) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by inserting "or 'prepared in a USDA inspected establishment'" after "and passed'" each place it appears; and

(2) in subsection (b), by striking out "inspected at any establishment under the authority of this title and found be not adulterated" and inserting in lieu thereof "inspected and passed, or prepared in an establishment inspected by the Secretary".

(d) REJECTION OF ADULTERATED MEAT OR MEAT FOOD PRODUCTS.—Section 8 of such Act (21 U.S.C. 608) is amended by striking out "passed.'" and inserting in lieu thereof "passed' or 'prepared in a USDA inspected establishment'.".

(e) REFUSAL TO LABEL.—Section 21 of such Act (21 U.S.C. 621) is amended by striking out ", or meat food product therefrom,".

SEC. 4. POULTRY PRODUCTS INSPECTION.

Section 6 of the Poultry Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 455) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (c) as subsection (d); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

"(c)(1) For the purpose of carrying out this Act, the Secretary shall cause to be made, by inspectors appointed for such purpose, an examination and inspection of processed poultry products prepared for commerce in each official establishment processing such poultry products.

"(2) Such examination and inspection shall be conducted in such a manner and with such frequency as the Secretary determines necessary and in accordance with regulations issued under this Act, based on—

"(A) the nature and frequency of the processing operations of the establishment;

"(B) the adequacy and reliability of the product monitoring system of the establishment;

"(C) the history of compliance of the establishment with inspection requirements imposed under this Act; and

"(D) such other factors as the Secretary considers appropriate.".

SEC. 5. EGG PRODUCTS INSPECTION.

Section 5 of the Egg Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 1034) is amended—

(1) by striking out subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the following new subsection:

"(a)(1) For the purpose of preventing the entry into or flow or movement in commerce of, or the burdening of commerce by, any egg product that is capable of use as human food and is misbranded or adulterated, the Secretary, whenever processing operations are being conducted, shall cause to be made, by inspectors appointed for such purpose, an inspection of the processing of egg products, in each plant processing egg products for commerce, unless exempted under section 15.

"(2) Egg breaking operations shall be continuously inspected.

"(3) Except as provided in paragraph (2), such inspection shall be conducted in such a manner and with such frequency as the Secretary determines necessary and in accordance with regulations issued under this Act, based on—

"(A) the nature and frequency of the processing operations of the establishment;

"(B) the adequacy and reliability of the product monitoring system of the establishment;

"(C) the history of compliance of the establishment with inspection requirements imposed under this Act; and

"(D) such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate.

"(4) Without restricting the application of paragraphs (1) through (3) to other kinds of establishments within its provisions, any food manufacturing establishment, institution, or restaurant that uses any eggs that do not meet the requirements of section 15(a)(1) in the preparation of any articles for human food shall be deemed to be a plant processing egg products, with respect to such operations."; and

(2) in the first sentence of subsection (d), by striking out "at least once each calendar quarter" and inserting in lieu thereof "at least once a year".

MEAT, POULTRY, AND EGG PRODUCT INSPECTION IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986

Problems: Federal law requires the Department of Agriculture (USDA) to inspect the slaughter and processing of livestock and poultry products, and the egg product processing plants on a continuous basis. The Grace Commission, the USDA, and the General Accounting Office have determined that periodic, unannounced inspections of meat, poultry, and egg processing plants would be less expensive and more effective than the currently used continuous inspections. The Grace Commission estimated a $27.7 million savings over three years, while the USDA estimated $20.4 million.

The purpose of this bill is to implement the findings of the Grace Commission and the USDA on inspecting of meat, poultry, and egg processing plants. The current legislation is interpreted to require continuous inspection at processing establishments. This bill would authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to conduct inspections in such a manner and frequency as he determines necessary based on specific criteria:

The nature and frequency of the processing establishment's operations;

The adequacy and reliability of the establishment's product monitoring system;

The history of the establishment's compliance with the pertinent Act's inspection requirements; and

Any other factors that the Secretary determines appropriate.

Sec. 2. Findings and Purpose. The Congress, the General Accounting Office, and the Department of Agriculture have all found that periodic, unannounced inspections of meat, poultry, and egg processing plants would be less expensive and more effective than current continuous inspections at processing establishments that use improved modern processing technology, have reliable quality control systems, and have a history of complying with inspection requirements. This Act increases the Secretary of Agriculture's flexibility to conduct inspections in such a manner and with such frequency as the Secretary determines necessary. This would allow inspection resources to be concentrated on those areas where intensive inspection is required.

Secs. 3, 4, & 5. Meat, Poultry, and Egg Inspection. The Federal Meat Inspection Act, the Poultry Products Inspection Act, and the Egg Products Inspection Act are amended to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to conduct examinations and inspections of meat, poultry, and egg product processing operations at individual establishments in such a manner and with such frequency as the Secretary deems necessary and in accordance with regulations issued under those Acts.

The specific criteria for those examinations and inspections are the nature and frequency of the establishment's processing operations, the adequacy and reliability of the establishment's product monitoring system, the history of the establishment's compliance with the pertinent Act's inspection requirements, and such other factors as the Secretary determines appropriate.

S. 2623

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Mail Management Improvement Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. In order to improve Federal agency management of mail operations and to reduce Government mail costs, this Act requires that executive agencies—

(1) evaluate their mail operations to identify and eliminate practices resulting in excessive mailing costs; and

(2) develop and implement plans and programs for making the necessary improvements in such operations.

MAIL MANAGEMENT

SEC. 3. (a) The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Administrator of General Services, shall within 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, issue a directive which requires each executive agency to—

(1) evaluate the mail operations of the agency in order to identify and eliminate practices resulting in excessive mailing costs;

(2) assign to an official designated by the head of the agency the responsibility for the development and implementation of mail management program for all offices and units of the agency;

(3) establish mail management objectives and responsibilities to be carried out by offices and units of the agency;

(4) within 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, develop and submit to the Director for approval a mail management plan which provides for—

(A) improving the measurement of agency costs, in conjunction with the United States Postal Service, including the consideration of the use of postage meters or stamps;

(B) the determination of the advantages to the agency of using mail pre-sorting programs;

(C) the determination of the lowest cost class of mail necessary to effectively accomplish individual agency functions;

(D) the evaluation of the most effectiveness of using alternatives to the United States Postal Service for the delivery of agency mail;

(E) the review and consolidation of mailing lists used by the agency to distribute publications and other materials issued by the agency;

(F) the provision of training to agency personnel regarding cost-effective mailing practices; and

(G) the implementation of the agency's mail improvement programs, in conjunction with the Administrator of General Services;

(5) establish programs to implement the plan prepared under paragraph (4), including standards for receipt, delivery, collection, and dispatch of mail;

(6) publish and disseminate mail management standards, guides, and instructions, and establish and implement procedures for monitoring compliance with such standards, guides, and instructions;

(7) periodically submit to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget for approval revisions of the plan required by paragraph (4), including an analysis of savings projected from the improvements in mail management provided for in such revised plan; and

(8) periodically report to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget on the progress of the agency in implementing the improvements in mail management contained in the most recent plan submitted to the Director under paragraph (4) or (7) and in achieving the savings projected in such plan.

(b) For purposes of this section, the term "executive agency" has the same meaning as in section 102 of title 31, United States Code.

"MAIL MANAGEMENT IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986"

A Bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.

SEC. 2. PURPOSE. To improve Federal agency management of mail operations and reduce Government mail costs, this Act requires agencies to evaluate their mailing operations and to eliminate practices resulting in excessive mailing costs.

SEC. 3. MAIL MANAGEMENT. The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Administrator of General Services is required, within 90 days of enactment, to issue a directive which principally requires each executive agency to:

Evaluate the mail operations of the agency to identify and eliminate practices resulting in excessive mailing costs;

Assign to an official, designated by the head of the agency, the responsibility for the development and implementation of mail management programs for that agency;

Develop, within 6 months of enactment and subject to approval by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, a plan to strengthen mail management; and Periodically report to the Director on progress of the agency in implementing mail management improvement and in achieving savings under that plan.

S. 2624

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act my be cited as the "Defense Select Consolidations Act of 1986".

TITLE I—CONSOLIDATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF DEPOT LEVEL MAINTENANCE

PURPOSE

SEC. 101. The purpose of this title is to improve the economy and efficiency of Department of the Defense depot maintenance operations by requiring the centralization of administrative decisionmaking responsibility and the consolidation of depot level maintenance facilities and operations.

DEFINITION

SEC. 102. As used in this title, "depot level maintenance facility" means a Department of Defense facility in which maintenance functions are performed (including inspection, test, repair, modification, alteration, modernization, conversion, overhaul, reclamation, or rebuilding of parts, assemblies, subassemblies, components, and weapons systems) and for which there is an extensive capital investment in fixed facilities, specialized tools, or complex test equipment for the performance of such functions.

DESIGNATION OF A DEPOT LEVEL MAINTENANCE FACILITIES MANAGER

SEC. 103. The Secretary of Defense shall, not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, designate a single manager in the Department of Defense to be responsible for the administration of depot level maintenance facilities.

CONSOLIDATION OF DEPOT LEVEL MAINTENANCE FACILITIES

SEC. 104. (a) Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the manager designated under section 103 shall develop and implement, consistent with the requirements of section 2687 of title 10, United States Code, a plan for the consolidation of (1) depot level maintenance facilities, and (2) the performance of management functions related to such facilities. The manager shall transmit such plan in writing to the Secretary of Defense and the Inspector General of the Department of Defense not later than the date which the Secretary of Defense, considering the requirements of this section, shall prescribe.

(b) In developing the plan under subsection (a), the designated manager shall determine and consider the potential mobilization requirements for depot level maintenance facilities and equipment and the total excess capacity in the present depot level maintenance system and shall identify those depot level maintenance facilities which should be deactivated or consolidated.

(c) The Inspector General of the Department of Defense shall review the plan required by subsection (a) and shall submit to the Secretary of Defense such comments and recommendations relating to the plan as the Inspector General considers appropriate.

(d) Not later than 90 days before the date on which the implementation of the plan required by subsection (a) commences, the Secretary of Defense shall submit the plan, together with the comments of the Inspector General under subsection (c), to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House.

MANAGEMENT OF DEPOT LEVEL MAINTENANCE FACILITIES

SEC. 105. (a) The manager designated under section 103 shall be responsible for establishing, modifying, maintaining, modernizing, and disposing of all depot level maintenance facilities and equipment and for reviewing and approving budget requests necessary to carry out such responsibilities.

(b) The resources available for the performance of depot level maintenance functions shall be under the overall control of the manager designated under section 103. The manager shall allocate such resources among the Department of Defense organizations involved in depot level maintenance operations.

(c) The Secretaries of the military departments shall consult with the manager designated under section 103 in developing budgets for the performance of the functions of depot level maintenance facilities and shall make requests for funds for such purpose through that manager.

TITLE II—CONSOLIDATION OF WHOLESALE DEPOT FACILITIES

PURPOSE

SEC. 201. The purpose of this title is to improve the economy and efficiency of the Department of Defense wholesale depot system by requiring the centralization of administrative decisionmaking responsibility for such system and the consolidation of wholesale depot facilities and operations.

DEFINITION

SEC. 202. As used in this title, "wholesale depot facility" means a Department of Defense facility that receives and stores material in bulk quantities and issues such material in bulk quantities to the ultimate user of the material. Such term does not include a facility for storage of material by the ultimate user pending use of the material.

DESIGNATION OF A WHOLESALE DEPOT FACILITIES MANAGER

SEC. 203. The Secretary of Defense shall, not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, designate a single manager in the Department of Defense to be responsible for the administration and operation of wholesale depot facilities.

CONSOLIDATION OF WHOLESALE DEPOT FACILITIES

SEC. 204. (a) Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the manager designated under section 203 shall develop and implement, consistent with the requirements of section 2687, title 10, United States Code, a plan for the consolidation of (1) wholesale depot facilities, and (2) the performance of the management functions related to such facilities. The manager shall transmit such plan in writing to the Secretary of Defense and the Inspector General of the Department of Defense not later than the date which the Secretary, considering the requirements of this section, shall prescribe.

(b) In developing the plan required by subsection (a), the designated manager shall determine and consider the potential mobilization requirements for wholesale depot facilities and the total excess capacity in the present wholesale depot system and shall identify those wholesale depot facilities which can most economically and effectively be deactivated. The manager should take into account transportation costs in determining the economy of deactivating wholesale depot facilities.

(c) The Inspector General of the Department of Defense shall review the plan required by subsection (a) and shall submit to the Secretary of Defense such comments and recommendations relating to the plan as the Inspector General considers appropriate.

(d) Not later than 90 days before the date on which the implementation of the plan required by subsection (a) commences, the Secretary of Defense shall submit the plan, together with the comments of the Inspector General under subsection (c), to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

TITLE III—CONSOLIDATION OF BASE SUPPORT OPERATIONS

PURPOSE

SEC. 301. The purpose of this title is to improve the economy and efficiency of the Department of Defense by promoting cooperation among the military departments in base support operations and reducing the redundant performance of functions relating to such operations at military installations located in close proximity of each other.

DEFINITION

SEC. 302. As used in this title, the term "base support operations" includes fire protection services, housing management and maintenance services, finance and accounting services, refuse collection services, civilian personnel management services, building and road maintenance services, security services, administrative services, logistical services, and supply and maintenance services.

PARTICIPATION IN THE DEFENSE RETAIL INTERSERVICE SUPPORT PROGRAM

SEC. 303. The military departments shall participate in the Defense Retail Interservice Support Program of the Department of Defense.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

SEC. 304. The Secretary of Defense shall—

(1) encourage consolidation of base support operations under the Defense Retail Interservice Support Program in all geographic areas in which there are 2 or more military installations located within a 50-mile radius of each other;

(2) utilize the Defense Retail Interservice Support Program—

(A) to carry out a test program to consolidate base support operations at 2 or more military installations located in close proximity to each other;

(B) to identify other military installations at which base support operations could be effectively consolidated and to determine the economic feasibility of contracting for the performance of such base support operations by private sector enterprises; and

(C) to develop, and monitor the implementation of, a plan which provides (i) for the consolidation of base support operations at military installations pursuant to subclause (B), and (ii) for the consolidation within 5 years after the date the installations have been identified pursuant to subclause (B);

(3) establish a timetable for the completion, within 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, of all interservice consolidations of base support operations for installations where opportunities for such consolidations have been identified under the Defense Retail Interservice Support Program before the date of enactment of this Act;

(4) ensure that each plan for consolidation of base support operations developed under this section—

(A) includes milestones for the accomplishment of budget reductions by month and by year; and

(B) assigns responsibility for the performance and management of the base support operations consolidated under the plan; and

(5) each year, at the same time as the President submits the budget to Congress under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, submit to Congress the cost of base support operations performed under contract and a summary of planned actions to consolidate base support operations and to reduce the cost of such operations.

TITLE IV—UNIFICATION OF TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT

PURPOSE

SEC. 401. The purpose of this title is to improve economy and efficiency in Department of Defense management of air, land, and sea transportation through the establishment of a single, unified traffic management command.

REQUIREMENT TO ESTABLISH A TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT COMMAND

SEC. 402. (a) The Secretary of Defense shall, not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, establish a unified traffic management command which shall assume all traffic management functions assigned to the Military Traffic Command, the Military Sealift Command, and the Military Airlift Command.

(b) Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall develop and transmit to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House of Representatives a plan to establish the unified traffic management command under subsection (a).

REPEAL OF A PROHIBITION RELATING TO CONSOLIDATION OF THE MILITARY TRANSPORTATION COMMANDS

SEC. 403. Section 1110 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1983 (Public Law 97-252; 96 Stat. 747) is repealed.

DEFENSE SELECT CONSOLIDATIONS ACT OF 1986

Problems.—Numerous studies of the Department of Defense show that DoD depots have excess capacity for the maintenance of a variety of weapons systems and for the wholesale distribution of military material. There is also duplication of base support services in locations with more than one military facility and severe fragmentation of military transportation services. While there is widespread recognition that consolidation is necessary to cost effectiveness, service parochialism has stymied efforts to introduce reforms. The Grace Commission estimated that DoD service consolidations in these areas will result in $1.8 billion in savings over 3 years. GAO agrees that it is reasonable to anticipate savings of this magnitude.

The purpose of this bill is to consolidate and improve the efficiency and coordination of depot-level maintenance and wholesale distribution operations, base support services, and military traffic and transport management by:

Designation of a single manager in DoD for the administration of depot-level maintenance facilities with authority to plan for and to implement the consolidation of such facilities.

Designation of a single manager in DoD for the administration of wholesale depot facilities and operations with authority to develop a plan for the consolidation of such depots, which plan is to be submitted to the House and Senate Armed Services Committees.

Directing the Secretary of Defense to identify military installations where base support operations could effectively be consolidated, and within 2 years of enactment, develop a timetable for implementation.

Directing the Secretary of Defense to develop a "unified traffic management command" to combine functions of the Military Traffic Command, the Military Sealift Command, and the Military Airlift Command for submission to the House and Senate Armed Services Committees for action.

(A Bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.)

TITLE I—CONSOLIDATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF DEPOT LEVEL MAINTENANCE

SEC. 101. PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is to improve economy and efficiency of Department of Defense depot maintenance by placing decision making in the hands of a single manager and requiring the establishment of plans for consolidation of depot level maintenance facilities and functions.

SEC. 102. DEFINITIONS.—For this Act, "depot level maintenance facility" means a facility in which maintenance functions are performed, and for which there are extensive capital investment in fixed facilities, specialized tools, or complex test equipment for the performance of such functions.

SEC. 103. CONSOLIDATION OF DEPOT LEVEL MAINTENANCE FACILITIES.—Within 180 days of enactment, the Secretary of Defense is to create a single manager for the administration of depot level maintenance facilities.

SEC. 104.—Within two years of enactment, the single manager is required to develop and implement a plan for the consolidation of depot level maintenance facilities, which considers the potential mobilization requirements for these facilities, determines the total excess capacity in the present system, and identifies the facilities that should be consolidated or deactivated.

The Department of Defense Inspector General is to review the plan and make comments and recommendations to the Secretary. Not later than 90 days before implementation of the plan, the Secretary is required to submit the plan and comments from the Inspector General to the Senate and House Armed Services Committees.

SEC. 105. MANAGEMENT OF DEPOT LEVEL MAINTENANCE FACILITIES.—The single manager is responsible for establishing, modifying, maintaining, modernizing, and disposing of all depot maintenance facilities and equipment. Funds needed to carry out these functions are to be reviewed and approved by the single manager.

The single manager also has overall control of the resources to carry out depot maintenance functions and is to allocate funds to individual defense activities involved in depot maintenance. The individual military departments are required to develop budgets and request funds through the single manager to carry out depot maintenance functions.

TITLE II—CONSOLIDATION OF WHOLESALE DEPOT FACILITIES

SEC. 201. PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is to improve the economy and efficiency of the Department of Defense's wholesale depot system by putting the decision making in the hands of a single manager and requiring the consolidation of the wholesale depot facilities and maintenance.

SEC. 202. DEFINITION.—For this title, "wholesale depot facility" means a facility that receives, stores, and issues material in bulk quantities to the ultimate user, not a facility for storage of material pending use of material.

SEC. 203. CONSOLIDATION OF WHOLESALE DEPOT FACILITIES.—Within 180 days of enactment the Secretary of Defense is required to designate a single manager for the administration of wholesale depot facilities and operations.

SEC. 204.—Within 2 years of enactment, the single manager is to develop and implement a plan for the consolidation of wholesale depot facilities and their management functions, which considers the potential mobilization requirements for wholesale depot facilities, determines the total excess capacity in the present system, and identifies the wholesale depot facilities which can most economically and effectively be deactivated.

The Department of Defense Inspector General is to review the plan and make recommendations and comments to the Secretary. Not later than 90 days before implementation, the Secretary is to submit the plan and the recommendations and comments of the Inspector General to the Senate and House Armed Services Committees.

TITLE III—CONSOLIDATION OF BASE SUPPORT OPERATIONS

SEC. 301. PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is to improve the economy and efficiency of the Department of Defense by requiring the military departments to participate in the Defense Retail Interservice Support Program to promote cooperation and reduce the redundancy of base operating support functions in those installations in close proximity to each other.

SEC. 302. DEFINITION.—For this Act "base support operations" means fire protection services, housing management and maintenance services, finance and accounting services, refuse collection services, civilian personnel management services, building and road maintenance service, security services, administrative services, logistical services, supply and maintenance services.

SEC. 303. PARTICIPATION IN THE DEFENSE RETAIL INTERSERVICE SUPPORT PROGRAM.—The military departments are required to participate in the Defense Retail Interservice Support Program. The Secretary of Defense is to encourage the consolidation of base support operations in places where there are 2 or more installations in 50 mile radius of one another.

SEC. 304. RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE.—The Secretary of Defense is required to carry out a test program for base support operations consolidations; to identify other bases where consolidations could be feasible, while determining whether contracting to the private sector would be cost effective; and to develop a plan for carrying out the base support consolidations within five years of their identification.

The Secretary of Defense is required to establish a timetable for consolidation, within 2 years of enactment, those consolidations already identified before the date of enactment.

Each plan for consolidation is to include milestones for budget reductions by month and by year, and assign responsibility for implementation. The Secretary of Defense is required to submit to Congress, as part of the budget request, the value of those base operations' costs contracted out and a summary of planned actions for cost reductions and to consolidate base support operations.

TITLE VI—UNIFICATION OF TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT

SEC. 401. PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is to improve the economy and efficiency of the Department of Defense's management of air, land, and sea transportation through the establishment of a single, unified Defense traffic management command.

SEC. 42. REQUIREMENT TO ESTABLISH A TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT COMMAND.—The Secretary of Defense is required to establish a unified traffic management command over all traffic management functions currently assigned to the Military Traffic Command, the Military Sealift Command, and the Military Airlift Command, within 1 year of enactment.

Within 180 days of enactment, the Secretary is required to develop a plan and submit it to the Senate and House Armed Services Committees to establish such a unified command.

SEC. 403. REPEAL OF A PROHIBITION RELATING TO CONSOLIDATION OF THE MILITARY TRANSPORTATION COMMANDS.—Section 1110 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1983 (Public Law 97-252; 96 Stat. 747), which presently prohibits the establishment of a unified traffic management command, is repealed.

S. 2625

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Federal Health Care Auditing and Quality Control Improvement Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. In order to strengthen oversight and quality control and to reduce administrative costs associated with the Medicare and Medicaid programs, this legislation—

(1) authorizes the Secretary of Health and Human Services to test and measure the cost effectiveness of using contractors to perform medicare audits; and

(2) requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to develop procedures and guidelines for the medicaid quality control program.

MEDICARE AUDITING AND MEDICAL REVIEW

SEC. 3. (a) Section 402(a)(1) of the Social Security Amendments of 1967 (42 U.S.C. 1395-1(a)(1)) is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of subparagraph (J);

(2) by striking out the period at the end of subparagraph (K) and inserting in lieu thereof"; and"; and

(3) by inserting after subparagraph (K) the following new subparagraph:

"(L) to test and measure the cost effectiveness of audit and medical review under title XVIII of the Social Security Act performed by contractors other than the fiscal intermediaries and carries claims under parts A and B of such title.".

(b) The Secretary of Health and Human Services, in order to improve the administration of the Medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act, shall, not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, prepare and report to the Congress a recommendation of the optimum level and type of audit expenditures for the Medicare program, taking into account the results of tests conducted pursuant to section 402(a)(1)(L) of the Social Security Amendments of 1967.

MEDICAID QUALITY CONTROL

SEC. 4. (a) The Secretary of Health and Human Services, in order to improve the quality control program under title XIX of the Social Security Act, shall undertake a thorough review of the program's sampling design, data collection, and reporting requirements. The review shall also address corrective action and the time lapse between case eligibility identification and the determination of the dollar amount of services erroneously provided. Based on such review, the Secretary shall, not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, develop procedures and guidelines for plans. Such procedures and guidelines shall, as a minimum, require the States to have in place (1) management information systems to prevent and detect errors and (2) corrective action plans meeting Federal standards.

(b) Notwithstanding section 1903(u) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396(u)) or any other provision of law, if a State does not conform to the Federal procedures and guidelines for the corrective action or for its quality control program, the Secretary shall reduce Federal reimbursement for State administrative costs under section 1903 of the Social Security Act by 5 percent for each quarter of State noncompliance.

FEDERAL HEALTH CARE AUDITING AND QUALITY CONTROL IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986

A Bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey On Cost Control

Sec. 2. Purpose.—To strengthen health care oversight and quality control and reduce administrative costs, the Act authorizes the Secretary of Health and Human Services to test and measure the cost effectiveness of contracting for Medicare audits; and requires the Secretary to develop procedures for a Medicaid quality control program.

Sec. 3. Medicare Auditing and Medical Review.—Section 402(a) of the Social Security Amendments of 1967 (42 United States Code 1395b-1(a)(1)) is amended to authorize the Secretary of Health and Human Services to test and measure the cost effectiveness of using contractors to perform Medicare audits.

The Secretary is required, within 12 months of the enactment of the Act, to recommend to the Congress the optimum level and type of audit expenditures for the Medicare Program taking into account the results of the test of using contractors.

Sec. 4. Medicaid Quality Control.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services is required to undertake a thorough review of the Medicaid quality control program, and within 1 year of enactment, to develop procedures and guidelines for the program. As a minimum, the States will be required to have in place management information systems to prevent and detect errors and to develop corrective action plans that meet Federal standards.

The Secretary is required to reduce the Federal reimbursement for State administrative costs by 5 percent for each quarter of non-compliance.

Problems: (1) Past audits of Medicare expenditures have revealed large volumes of paid claims that were not legitimate. Consequently, audits and related medical reviews are expected to yield a high return on investment (7-to-1 according to a GAO estimate). (2) Quality control improvements are needed to reduce error rates in program payments for Medicaid. The Grace Commission estimated a 3-year cost savings for Medicare auditing of $447 million. GAO estimated savings of approximately $315 million over 3 years. No estimate of quality control improvements in the Medicaid program was made.

The Purpose of this bill is to strengthen oversight and quality control and to reduce administrative costs associated with the Medicare and Medicaid programs by:

Authorizing the Secretary of Health and Human Services to test and measure the cost effectiveness of using contractors to perform Medicare audits and;

Requiring the Secretary of Health and Human Services to develop procedures and guidelines for the Medicaid quality control program.

S. 2626

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Border Management Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. In order to strengthen law enforcement at United States borders and ports of entry and to reduce costs of border management, this Act—

(1) requires the consolidation of border management functions presently carried out by the United States Customs Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service;

(2) requires the development of a comprehensive border management policy to eliminate overlap and duplication in the associated operating and support functions; and

(3) changes overtime laws for the United States Customs Service, Immigration and Naturalization Service, and Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service employees in accordance with the Federal Employee Pay Act to bring these employees pay entitlement in line with overtime pay provisions of other Federal employees.

TITLE I—BORDER MANAGEMENT CONSOLIDATION

SEC. 101. (a) The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Assistant to the President for Policy Development, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Attorney General, and the head of any other concerned agency, shall develop and submit to the Congress by no later than the date that is 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, a plan which—

(1) provides for the consolidation of the primary inspection functions performed by the United States Customs Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service at the borders of the United States and at ports of entry into the United States; and

(2) sets forth a comprehensive border management policy to eliminate overlap and duplication in the operating and support functions of all Federal agencies that carry out activities at borders and ports of entry into the United States, that shall address, among other issues—

(A) the consolidation or elimination of paperwork,

(B) the reduction of burdens placed on travelers and businesses,

(C) the reduction of space requirements of such Federal agencies,

(D) the sharing of facilities and equipment by such Federal agencies, and

(E) the cross-training of inspectors.

(b)(1) The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall begin implementation of the plan developed under subsection (a) on the date that is 60 days after the date on which such plan is submitted to the Congress. Implementation of such plan shall be completed by no later than the date that is 1 year after the date on which such plan is submitted to the Congress.

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the plan submitted to the Congress under subsection (a) shall not be implemented if a joint resolution described in paragraph (3) is enacted into law before the date that is 60 days after the date on which such plan is submitted to the Congress.

(3) The joint resolution referred to in paragraph (2) is a joint resolution of either House of the Congress the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That the plan submitted to Congress under section 101(a) of the Border Management Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1986 is disapproved and shall not be implemented.".

(4) Any joint resolution described in paragraph (3) which is introduced in either, or both, Houses of Congress—

(A) shall be jointly referred to the appropriate committees, and

(B) shall be considered to be a resolution described in section 152(a)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2192(a)(1)) for purposes of applying subsections (c), (d), (e), and (f) of section 152 of the Trade Act of 1974.

(5) The 60-day period described in paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be computed without regard to—

(A) the days on which either House of Congress is not in session because of an adjournment of more than 3 days to a day certain or an adjournment of the Congress sine die, and

(B) any Saturday and Sunday, not excluded under clause (A), when either House of Congress is not in session.

TITLE II—EMPLOYEE OVERTIME COMPENSATION AND REIMBURSEMENT

UNITED STATES CUSTOMS SERVICE

SEC. 201. (a) Section 5 of the Act of February 13, 1911 (36 Stat. 901; 19 U.S.C. 261, 267) and section 2 of the Act of June 3, 1944 (19 U.S.C. 1451a) are hereby repealed.

(b) Section 451 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1451) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 451. INSPECTIONAL SERVICES.

"(a) COMPENSATION.—

"(1) INSPECTIONAL SERVICES.—The provisions of this section shall apply to services rendered in connection with—

"(A) the boarding of aircraft, vessels, or vehicles,

"(B) the lading or unlading of cargo,

"(C) the lading of cargo or merchandise for—

"(i) transportation in bond,

"(ii) exportation in bond, or

"(iii) exportation with benefit of drawback,

"(D) the receiving or delivery of cargo on or from the wharf or airport, or

"(E) the examination of passengers' baggage arriving in, or departing from, the United States by water, land, or air.

"(2) OVERTIME.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term 'overtime' means hours of work officially ordered or approved in excess of—

"(i) 40 hours in an administrative workweek, or

"(ii) 8 hours per day.

"(B) SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS.—Regularly scheduled work on Sundays and holidays shall not be considered overtime and shall be compensated at a rate of pay equal to 1.25 percent of the hourly rate of basic pay of the employee. Work performed as overtime (as defined in subparagraph (A)) on Sundays and holidays shall be compensated as provided in paragraph (3).

"(3) RATES OF COMPENSATION.—Any employee of the United States Customs Service who is required to perform any of the services described in paragraph (1) as overtime shall be compensated for those services as follows:

"(A) Such services performed as overtime shall be compensated at a rate of pay equal to 1.5 percent of the hourly rate of basic pay of the employee, and shall be calculated and paid in 15-minute increments.

"(B)(i) For services performed as overtime that are part of any assignment which begins more than 2 hours before or after a regularly scheduled or previous overtime assignment, an employee shall receive—

"(I) 2 hours of overtime pay for any work up to 2 hours in duration, and

"(II) overtime pay for actual time worked for any work greater than 2 hours calculated in 15-minute increments.

"(ii) An employee receiving overtime pay under this subparagraph shall receive 2 hours overtime pay in addition to any other overtime pay provided under this paragraph.

"(iii) For services performed as overtime that are part of any assignment which begins within 2 hours before or after a regularly scheduled or previous overtime assignment, the amount of overtime earned shall be calculated as if the employee had worked continuously to the beginning, or from the end, of the regularly scheduled or previous overtime assignments.

"(4) LIMITATION.—Compensation provided under this section, other than that attributable to the hourly rate of basic pay, shall not be paid if payment would cause an employee's aggregate pay during any fiscal year to exceed the maximum rate of pay for GS-15 under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code.

"(5) EXCLUSIVITY OF THIS SECTION.—Compensation shall be paid for the services described in paragraph (1)—

"(A) solely in accordance with the provisions of—

"(i) this section, and

"(ii) to the extent not covered by this section, the applicable provisions of title 5, United States Code; and

"(B) without regard to the provisions of section 207 of title 29, United States Code; except that compensation provided under this section shall be in addition to, and not affected by, any holiday pay or premium pay for nighttime work authorized by law.

"(b) REIMBURSEMENT OF COMPENSATION.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in section 53 of the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970 (49 U.S.C. 1741), the master, owner, agent, or consignee of any aircraft, vessel, vehicle, or merchandise who has requested or required the rendering of any services described in subsection (a)(1) shall reimburse the Department of the Treasury for—

"(A) all overtime payable under subsection (a)(3), and

"(B) all amounts paid under subsection (a)(2)(B) in excess of the basic pay, which are paid in connection with such services. If a customs officer reports for duty to render such services, such reimbursement shall be required regardless of whether the inspection or examination actually takes place.

"(2) PROCEDURES.—Before granting any special license under section 450 or 452, and before accepting any application from a consignee of merchandise for the rendering of services described in subsection (a)(1) on a Sunday or holiday or at any time that would require customs officers to provide such services as overtime, an amount of money which is sufficient to pay the compensation and expenses of the customs officers and employees assigned to provide such services shall be deposited or a bond for such amount shall be posted. In lieu of such deposit or bond, the owner or agent of any aircraft, vessel, vehicle, or line of aircraft, vessels, or vehicles may execute a bond, in an amount to be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, to cover such compensation and expenses (including the costs of issuing such special licenses) for the unlading or lading of such aircraft, vessels, or vehicles for a period not to exceed one year.

"(3) EXCEPTIONS.—The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to—

"(A) the owner, operator, or agent of a highway vehicle, bridge, tunnel, or ferry, between the United States and Canada or between the United States and Mexico, or

"(B) the lading or unlading of merchandise, baggage, or persons arriving in, or departing from, the United States by motor vehicle, trolley car, on foot, or by other means of travel upon, over, or through any highway, bridge, tunnel, or ferry.

"(4) FERRY.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'ferry' means a passenger service operated with the use of vessels which arrive in the United States on regular schedules at intervals of at least once each hour during any period in which customs service is to be furnished without reimbursement under this subsection.

"(c) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.".

(c)(1) Section 450 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1450) is amended—

(A) by striking out ", a holiday, or at night" and by inserting in lieu thereof "or a holiday or at any time that would require customs officers to provide any services described in section 451(a)(1) as overtime (within the meaning of section 451(a)(2)(A))";

(B) by inserting ", aircraft," after "vessel"; and

(C) by striking out "AT NIGHT" in the heading and inserting in lieu thereof "AS OVERTIME".

(2) Section 452 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1452) is amended—

(A) by striking out "at night" and inserting in lieu thereof "at any time that would require customs officers to provide any services described in section 451(a)(1) as overtime";

(B) by inserting ", aircraft," after "vessel"; and

(C) by striking out "AT NIGHT" in the heading and inserting in lieu thereof "AS OVERTIME".

(d) Paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 5549 of title 5, United States Code, are amended to read as follows:

"(2) section 294 of the Immigration and Nationality Act;

"(3) sections 450, 451, and 452 of the Tariff Act of 1930;".

IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE

SEC. 202. (a) Paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 5549 of title 5, United States Code, are amended to read as follows:

"(2) section 294 of the Immigration and Nationality Act;

"(3) sections 1450, 1451, and 1452 of title 19;".

(b)(1) The Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by inserting after section 293 the following new section:

"PREMIUM COMPENSATION FOR OVERTIME; REIMBURSEMENT OF COMPENSATION

"SEC. 294. (a)(1) The provisions of this section shall apply to services in connection with the examination and landing of passengers and crews of steamships, trains, airplanes, or other vehicles, arriving in the United States from a foreign port by water, land, or air. The Attorney General may issue regulations to implement the provisions of this section.

"(2) An employee of the Immigration and Naturalization Service who is required to perform services under this section shall be compensated for those services as follows:

"(A) Hours of work officially ordered or approved in excess of 40 hours in an administrative workweek or in excess of 8 hours per day shall be considered overtime. Overtime shall be compensated at a rate of pay equal to one and one-half times the hourly rate of basic pay of the employee, and shall be calculated and paid in 15-minute increments.

"(B) For overtime work which begins more than 2 hours before or after a regularly scheduled or previous overtime assignment, the employee performing such work shall be paid the greater of—

"(i) the sum of overtime pay calculated for the period of overtime actually worked in 15-minute increments and 2 hours overtime pay; or

"(ii) 4 hours overtime pay.

All overtime under this paragraph shall be paid as provided in paragraph (A).

"(C) For overtime work which begins within 2 hours before or after a regularly scheduled assignment or within 2 hours after a previous overtime assignment, the amount of overtime earned shall be calculated as if the employee had worked continuously—

"(i) to the beginning of such assignment (in the case of overtime work which begins within 2 hours before a regularly scheduled assignment); or

"(ii) from the end of such assignment (in the case of overtime work which begins within 2 hours after the end of a regularly scheduled assignment or a previous overtime assignment).

Overtime earned under this paragraph shall be paid as provided in paragraph (A).

"(D) Regularly scheduled work on Sundays and holidays shall not be considered overtime, and shall be compensated at a rate of pay equal to one and one-quarter times the hourly rate of basic pay of the employee. Overtime work as defined in paragraph (A) performed on Sundays and holidays shall be compensated as provided in that paragraph.

"(E) Compensation provided for under this section, other than that attributable to the hourly rate of basic pay, shall not be paid if payment would cause an employee's aggregate pay during any fiscal year to exceed the maximum rate of pay for GS-15 under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code.

"(3) Compensation shall be paid for services covered under this section solely in accordance with the provisions of this section and, to the extent not covered by this section, the applicable provisions of title 5, United States Code, and without regard to the provisions of section 207 of title 29, United States Code, except that compensation provided for under this section shall be in addition to, and not affected by, any holiday pay or premium pay for nighttime work authorized by law.

"(b)(1) Except as provided in section 53 of the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970 (49 U.S.C. 1741), the master, owner, agent, or consignee of such aircraft, vessel, vehicle, or merchandise who has requested or required any of the services provided for in subsection (a)(1) shall reimburse the Service, as determined by the Attorney General and pursuant to the procedures in paragraph (2) of this subsection. Reimbursement shall be required for all overtime payable under subsection (a)(2)(A) and all pay in excess of the rate of basic pay payable under subsection (a)(2)(D), in connection with any of the services provided for in subsection (a)(1). Such master, owner, agent, or consignee shall reimburse the Service for such pay that has been paid to an employee who has reported for duty whether or not the actual inspection or examination takes place.

"(2) The master, owner, or agent of such aircraft, vessel, or vehicle shall obtain a special license for unlading or lading during overtime, Sunday, or holiday hours pursuant to sections 450 and 452 of this title. Before any such special license to unlade or lade shall be granted, or before any application from a consignee of merchandise for overtime services shall be accepted, there shall be deposited sufficient money to pay, or a bond shall be required in an amount to be fixed by the Attorney General conditioned to pay, the compensation and expenses of the customs officers and employees assigned to duty in connection with the activities described in subsection (a)(1). In lieu of such deposit or bond, the owner or agent of any aircraft, vessel, or line of vessels or vehicles may execute a bond, in an amount to be fixed by the Attorney General, to cover and include the issuance of special licenses for the unlading or lading of such aircraft, vessels, or vehicles for a period not to exceed one year.

"(3) The provisions of paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection shall not apply to the owner, operator, or agent of a highway vehicle, bridge, tunnel, or ferry, between the United States and Canada or between the United States and Mexico, nor to the lading or unlading of merchandise, baggage, or persons arriving in or departing from the United States by motor vehicle, trolley car, on foot, or by other means of highway travel upon, over, or through any highway, bridge, tunnel, or ferry. As used in this paragraph, the term 'ferry' means a passenger service operated with the use of vessels which arrive in the United States on regular schedules at intervals of at least once each hour during any period in which customs service is to be furnished without reimbursement as provided in this subsection.".

(2) The table of contents for the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 293 the following new item:

"Sec. 294. Premium compensation for overtime; reimbursement of compensation.".

(c)(1) The Act entitled "An Act to provide extra compensation for overtime service performed by immigrant inspectors and other employees of the Immigration Service", approved March 2, 1931 (8 U.S.C. 1353a-b) is repealed.

(2) The Act of August 22, 1940 (8 U.S.C. 1353d) is amended by striking out "the Act of March 2, 1931 (46 Stat. 1467)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 294 of the Immigration and Nationality Act".

ANIMAL AND PLANT HEALTH INSPECTION SERVICE

SEC. 203. The text of the Act entitled "An Act to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to furnish, upon a reimbursable basis, certain inspection services involving overtime work", approved August 28, 1950 (7 U.S.C. 2260), is amended to read as follows: "That this Act may be cited as the 'Agricultural Inspection and Quarantine Services Act of 1986'.

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 2. As used in this Act:

"(1) The term 'Secretary' means the Secretary of Agriculture.

"(2) The term 'Service' means the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service of the Department of Agriculture.

"INSPECTION AND QUARANTINE SERVICES

"SEC. 3. This Act shall apply to employees of the Service performing inspection or quarantine services relating to imports into and exports from the United States.

"RATES OF OVERTIME COMPENSATION

"SEC. 4. (a) An employee of the Service who is required to perform services referred to in section 3 shall be compensated for such services in accordance with this section.

"(b)(1) Hours of work officially ordered or approved in excess of forty hours in a workweek (as defined by the Secretary), or in excess of eight hours per day, shall be considered overtime.

"(2) Such overtime work of an employee shall be—

"(A) compensated at a rate of pay equal to one and one-half times the hourly rate of basic pay of the employee; and

"(B) calculated and paid in fifteen-minute increments.

"(c)(1) In the case of overtime work which begins more than two hours before or after a regularly scheduled or previous overtime assignment, an employee shall receive—

"(A) two hours of overtime compensation for any work up to two hours in duration; and

"(B) overtime compensation for actual time worked for any work greater than two hours calculated in fifteen-minute increments.

"(2) An employee receiving overtime under this subsection shall receive two hours overtime compensation in addition to any other overtime compensation required under this section.

"(3) Any overtime compensation referred to in paragraph (1) shall be paid as provided in subsection (b).

"(d)(1) In the case of overtime work which begins within two hours before or after a regularly scheduled or previous overtime assignment, the amount of overtime compensation earned shall be calculated as if the employee had worked continuously to the beginning, or from the end, of the regularly scheduled or previous overtime assignment.

"(2) Any overtime compensation referred to in paragraph (1) shall be paid as provided in subsection (b).

"(e)(1) Regularly scheduled work on a Sunday or holiday by an employee—

"(A) shall not be considered overtime; and

"(B) shall be compensated at a rate of pay equal to one and one-quarter times the hourly rate of basic pay of the employee.

"(2) Overtime work referred to in subsection (b) which is performed on a Sunday or holiday shall be compensated as provided in such subsection.

"(f) Compensation under this section, other than compensation attributable to the hourly rate of basic pay of an employee, shall not be paid to an employee if such compensation would cause the aggregate pay of the employee during any fiscal year to exceed the maximum rate of pay for grade GS-15 prescribed under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code.

"(g)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), compensation for services covered under this section shall be paid—

"(A) solely in accordance with this section and, to the extent not prescribed by this section, the applicable provisions of title 5, United States Code; and

"(B) without regard to section 207 of title 29, United States Code.

"(2) Compensation for services covered under this section shall be in addition to, and not affected by, any holiday pay or premium pay for night work authorized by law.

"REIMBURSEMENT FOR SERVICES

"SEC. 5. (a) Except as provided in section 53 of the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970 (49 U.S.C. 1741), a person, firm, or corporation having ownership, custody, or control of a plant, plant product, or other commodity subject to inspection, laboratory testing, certification, or quarantine requiring the services of an employee of the Service shall reimburse the Secretary for such services in such amount and in such manner as is determined by the Secretary in accordance with section 4.

"(b) Reimbursement for any services referred to in section 3 shall be required for—

"(1) all overtime work referred to in section 4(b); and

"(2) all work compensated under section 4(e) in excess of the rate of basic pay of an employee.

"(c) If an employee reports for duty to a person, firm, or corporation to conduct an inspection or examination, such person, firm, or corporation shall reimburse the Secretary for compensation paid to such employee for such inspection or examination whether or not the actual inspection or examination takes place.

"REGULATIONS

"SEC. 6. The Secretary may issue such regulations as are necessary to carry out this Act.".

TITLE III—EFFECTIVE DATE

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 301. The provisions of this Act, and the amendments made by this Act, shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

BORDER MANAGEMENT CONSOLIDATION AND IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986

Problem: The Grace Commission study, like many others in the past, concluded that there is a costly and unnecessary duplication of effort undertaken at the nation's borders by the Customs Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). Six other Federal agencies perform functions in this area as well. In addition, the Commission found that overtime provisions for Customs and INS officials were far more liberal than those for other Federal employees. The Grace Commission estimated that consolidation and overtime pay structure reforms will save $13.5 million over 3 years.

The Purpose of this bill is to strengthen law enforcement at the United States borders and ports of entry and to reduce costs of border management by:

Requiring the Office of Management to submit a plan for the consolidation of border management functions now carried out by the Customs Service and INS, and having such plan take effect within 60 days from submission to Congress unless disapproved during that period by a joint resolution;

Requiring development by OMB of a comprehensive border management policy to eliminate overlap and duplication among the associated operating and support functions performed by the several agencies involved; and Changing overtime laws for Customs Service, Immigration and Naturalization Service, and Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service employees in accordance with the Federal Employee Pay Act to bring employees pay entitlement into line with overtime pay provisions of other Federal employees.

S. —

BORDER MANAGEMENT CONSOLIDATION AND IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986

A bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control

SEC. 2. PURPOSE.—To strengthen law enforcement at the borders and ports of entry of the United States and reduce the costs of border management, that Act (1) requires the consolidation of border management functions carried out by U.S. Customs Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service; (2) requires the development of a comprehensive policy to eliminate duplication in associated operating and support functions; and (3) brings the overtime pay provisions for Customs Service, Immigration and Naturalization Service, and Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service employees in line with pay provisions for other Federal employees.

TITLE I—BORDER MANAGEMENT CONSOLIDATION

SEC. 101. BORDER MANAGEMENT CONSOLIDATION PLAN.—Within 180 days of the enactment of this Act, the Director of OMB, in consultation with the Office of Policy Development of the Executive Office of the President, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Attorney General and the head of any other concerned agency, is required to submit to Congress a plan which

(1) provides for the consolidation of the primary inspection functions of the U.S. Customs Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and

(2) sets forth a comprehensive border management policy to eliminate overlap and duplication in the associated operating and support functions to include the consolidation or elimination of paperwork, the reduction of burdens placed on travelers and businesses, the reduction of space requirements, the sharing of facilities and equipment, and the cross-training of inspectors.

The plan is to take effect within 60 days from submission to Congress unless disapproved during that period by a joint resolution.

The Director of OMB is to oversee the consolidation which is to take place within one year of the plans effective date.

TITLE II—EMPLOYEE OVERTIME COMPENSATION AND REIMBURSEMENT

SEC. 201. U.S. CUSTOMS SERVICE.—Section 5 of the Act of February 13, 1911 (36 Stat. 901; 19 U.S.C. 261, 267), section 2 of the Act of June 3, 1944 (19 U.S.C. 1451a) and an Act entitled, "An Act to provide extra compensation for overtime service performed by immigrant inspectors and other employees of the Immigration Service" are repealed. Section 451 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1451) is then amended so that overtime compensation and reimbursement provisions for U.S. Customs Service employees are brought in line with overtime pay provisions for other Federal employees.

SEC. 202. IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE.—Similar to section 201 above, section 5549 of title 5, United States Code, is amended so that the overtime compensation and reimbursement provisions for Immigration and Naturalization Service employees are brought in line with overtime pay provisions for other Federal employees.

SEC. 203. ANIMAL AND PLANT HEALTH INSPECTION SERVICE.—Similar to sections 201 and 202 above, "An Act to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to furnish, upon a reimbursable basis, certain inspection services involving overtime work", approved August 28, 1950 (7 U.S.C. 2260), is amended so that overtime compensation and reimbursement provisions for Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service employees are brought in line with overtime pay provisions for other Federal employees.

TITLE III—EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 301. EFFECTIVE DATE.—This act takes effect on the date of enactment.

S. 2627

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, this Act may be cited as the "Federal Hospital System Sharing Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. The purpose of this Act is to improve the efficiency and reduce the costs of Veterans' Administration and Department of Defense hospitals by expanding the authority to share health-care resources.

SHARING VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION AND DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE HEALTH-CARE RESOURCES

SEC. 3. (a) Section 5011(d)(1) of title 38, United States Code, is amended by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Under any such agreement, an individual who is eligible to receive direct health care in a facility at one agency that is a party to such a sharing agreement may be furnished health care at a facility of another such agency that is a party to the sharing agreement.".

(b) Section 5011(d)(3) of such title is amended by striking out "individuals who are not primary beneficiaries of" and inserting in lieu thereof "beneficiaries of an agency other than".

(c) Section 5011(g)(1) of such title is amended to read as follows:

"(1) The term 'beneficiary' means a person who is entitled by law to receive direct health care furnished by the Veterans' Administration or the Department of Defense.".

FEDERAL HOSPITAL SYSTEM SHARING ACT OF 1986

Problem: The Grace Commission study found that increased sharing of hospital resources between the Department of Defense and the Veterans Administration (VA) would reduce costs. In 1982, the Congress enacted the Veterans Administration and Department of Defense Health Resources Sharing and Emergency Operations Act (P.L. 97-174) which provides for sharing of hospital resources. The 1982 Act, however, extends sharing authority to cover primary beneficiaries and does not cover Defense dependents, retirees, or survivors of deceased military members. This has impeded sharing agreements between Defense and the Veterans Administration. The Commission gave no specific savings estimate in this area. GAO agreed that savings cannot be accurately quantified but believed they could be substantial.

The purpose of this bill is to improve efficiency and reduce costs of the Department of Defense and the Veterans' Administration hospitals through broadened sharing authority. The bill provides that all persons eligible to receive direct health care from the Department of Defense or the Veterans' Administration, such as Department of Defense dependents, military retirees, and survivors of deceased military members, may be provided care in another agency's facility.

A bill to implement certain recommendations of the President's private sector survey on cost control.

SEC. 2. PURPOSE.—To improve efficiency and reduce costs of the Department of Defense and Veterans' Administration hospitals, this Act broadens existing sharing authority. The Act provides that all persons eligible to receive direct health care from the Department of Defense or the Veterans' Administration, such as Department of Defense dependents, military retirees, and survivors of deceased military members, may be provided care in another agency's facility.

SEC. 3. SHARING VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION AND DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE HEALTH-CARE RESOURCES.—Section 5011 of title 38, United States Code, is amended so that a person eligible for health care in one agency's facility may be provided care in another agency's facility. This extends existing sharing authority, currently limited to primary beneficiaries, to dependents as well.

S. 2628

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Housing Eligibility Verification Improvement Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. In order to strengthen verification of eligibility and the proper determination of benefits for housing programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, this Act authorizes the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development—

(1) to require the applicant or participant to disclose his social security or employee identification number, with necessary safeguards to protect the individual; and

(2) to obtain access to wage and other information from State employment records maintained under the Social Security Act.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 3. For purposes of this Act:

(1) The terms "applicant" and "participant" shall have such meanings as the Secretary by regulations shall prescribe. Such terms shall not include persons whose involvement is only in their official capacity, such as State or local government officials and officers of lending institutions.

(2) The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

(3) The term 'public housing agency' means a public housing agency, as defined in section 3(b)(6) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, that is responsible for determining eligibility or level of benefits for housing assistance.

DISCLOSURE OF SOCIAL SECURITY AND EMPLOYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBERS

SEC. 4. As a condition of initial or continuing eligibility for participation in any program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development involving loans, grants, interest, or rental assistance of any kind, or mortgage or loan insurance, and to assure that the level of benefits provided under these programs is proper, the Secretary may require that an applicant or participant (including members of an applicant's or participant's household) disclose his or her social security number or employer identification number to the Secretary.

APPLICANT CONSENT AND SAFEGUARDS

SEC. 5. (a) As a condition of initial or continuing eligibility for participation in any program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development involving initial and periodic review of an applicant's or participant's income, and to assure that the level of benefits provided under the program is correct, the Secretary may require that an applicant or participant (including members of an applicant's or participant's household) sign a consent form approved by the Secretary authorizing the Secretary, or the public housing agency or owner responsible for determining eligibility or level of benefits, to verify household income, including salary and wage information of current or previous employers, pertinent to the applicant's or participant's eligibility or level of benefits.

(b) All applicants for and participants in programs covered by this section (other than those under section 235 of the National Housing Act) shall be notified at the time of application, and periodically thereafter, that the Secretary may conduct a computer match against records of State employment security agencies, and that the information authorized to be made available under this section will be used to determine eligibility or level of benefits for housing assistance.

(c) Any individually identifiable information received by the Secretary under this section shall be subject to the requirements of section 552a of title 5, United States Code, and the Secretary may release any such information to a public housing agency or owner only if the agency or owner agrees that the information is subject to these requirements.

(d) To protect applicants for and participants in programs covered by this section—

(1) no Federal, State, or local agency or owner receiving such information may terminate, deny, suspend, or reduce any benefits of an individual, until the agency or owner has taken appropriate steps to independently verify information relating to—

(A) the amount of the assets or income involved;

(B) whether the individual actually has (or had) access to the assets or income for his or her own use; and

(C) the period or periods when the individual actually had the assets or income; and

(2) before any termination, denial, suspension, or reduction of benefits is taken on the basis of information received under this section, an applicant or participant shall have the right to obtain, examine, and correct available documents and information which the Secretary, public housing agency, or owner responsible for determining eligibility or level of benefits has received under this section.

ACCESS TO STATE EMPLOYMENT RECORDS

SEC. 6. (a) Section 303 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsections:

"(g) The State agency charged with the administration of the State law—

"(1) shall disclose, upon request and on a reimbursable basis, to officers or employees of the Department of Housing and Urban Development responsible for oversight and review in housing assistance programs of the Department, any of the following information contained in the records of the State agency with respect to individuals applying for or participating in any such program—

"(A) wage information (not including return information as defined in section 6103(b)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954),

"(B) whether an individual is receiving, has received, or has made application for, unemployment compensation, and the amount of any such compensation being received (or to be received by the individual), and

"(C) the current (or most recent) home address of the individual; and

"(2) shall establish such safeguards as are necessary (as determined by the Secretary of Labor in regulations) to ensure that information disclosed under subparagraph (1) shall be subject to the requirements of section 552a of title 5, United States Code, and shall be used only for the purpose of determining an individual's eligibility for benefits, or the amount of benefits, under the programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"(h) The Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, shall prescribe appropriate sanctions to be imposed for failure to comply substantially with the requirements of subsection (g).".

(b)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) If a State agency charged with the administration of a State unemployment compensation law approved under title III of the Social Security Act demonstrates, to the satisfaction of the Secretary of Labor, that it cannot, by reason of State law, comply with the requirements of the amendment made by subsection (a), the Secretary may prescribe that, in the case of such State, the amendment made by subsection (a) will become effective beginning with the first month beginning after the close of the first session of such State's legislature ending more than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term "session of a State's legislature" includes any regular, special, budget, or other session of a State legislature.

Housing Eligibility Verification Improvement Act of 1986

Problem.—The Inspector General of HUD has estimated that between 12 and 17 percent of the tenants receiving Section B subsidy benefits falsify income information in order to obtain benefits. Benefit eligibility is certified by local housing authorities, not HUD, using income information supplied by the tenants. The Grace Commission found that HUD verification guidance, procedures, and other efforts were insufficient to prevent significant numbers of ineligible families from receiving benefits. The Grace Commission estimated that the institution of a computer matching system based on Social Security and employee identification numbers would result in 3-year savings of $1.9 billion. GAO could not comment on the accuracy of this estimate.

The purpose of this bill is to strengthen the verification of eligibility and the proper determination of benefits for housing programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development by:

Requiring applicants or participants to disclose their Social Security or employee identification numbers, with necessary safeguards to protect the individuals; and Authorizing the Department to obtain access to wage and other information from state employment records maintained under the Social Security Act.

(A Bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.)

Sec. 2. Purpose. To strengthen verification of eligibility and the proper determination of benefits for housing programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary is authorized to (1) require the applicant or participant to disclose their Social Security or employee identification numbers, with necessary safeguards to protect the individual, and (2) obtain access to wage and other information from state employment records maintained under the Social Security Act.

Sec. 3. Definitions. The terms "applicant" and "participant" have the same meaning as defined by the Secretary by regulation; but do not include persons whose involvement is only in their official capacity, such as State or local government officials and officers of lending institutions.

Sec. 4. Disclosure of Social Security and Employer Identification Numbers. As a condition of eligibility for participation in any program of the Department involving loans, grants, interest or rental assistance of any kind, or mortgage or loan insurance, and to assure that the level of benefits provided under these programs is proper, the Secretary may require that the applicant or participant (including members of the household) disclose their social security or employer identification number.

Sec. 5. Applicant Consent and Safeguards. The Secretary is also permitted to require that the applicant or participant (including members of the household) in any HUD program involving initial and periodic review of income as a basis of eligibility or entitlement (meaning the rental assistance program) sign a consent form authorizing the Secretary, the public housing agency, or the owner responsible for determining eligibility or level of benefits to use any information pertinent to the applicant or participant's eligibility or level of benefit.

All applicants for and participants in programs covered by this Act are to be notified at the time of application, and periodically thereafter, that the Secretary may conduct a computer match against records of State employment security agencies, and the information authorization to be made available under this section will be used to determine eligibility of level of benefits for housing assistance.

Any individually identifiable information received by the Secretary under this section is subject to the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974 (section 552a of title 5, United States Code), and the Secretary may release this information to the public housing agency or owner only if the agency or owner agrees that the information is subject to these requirements.

To further protect applicants and participants by assuring that actions that adversely affect them are based on reliable and validated information:

(1) No Federal, State, or local agency or owner receiving information under this section may terminate, deny, suspend, or reduce any benefits until the agency or owner has taken appropriate steps to independently verify information relating to the amount of assets or income involved and whether and when the individual actually had access to the assets or income for his or her own use;

(2) Applicants and participants have the right to obtain, examine, and correct available documents and information which the owner, the public housing agency, or the Secretary has received under this section before any termination, denial, suspension, or reduction of benefits takes place on the basis of this information.

Sec. 6. Access to State Employment Records. Section 303 of the Social Security Act is amended to require that State agencies administering State unemployment laws provide access to their data bases upon request of the Secretary and on a reimbursable basis. This authority would permit computer matching to facilitate eligibility and entitlement verification. (Similar access to this data is currently required in law for the AFDC and Food Stamp programs.)

Information obtained by the Secretary under this section would be subject to the Privacy Act and may only be used for the purposes of this Act.

The Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the Secretary of HUD, is to prescribe appropriate sanctions for failure to comply substantially with the requirements of this section.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Defense Transportation Bill Audit Improvement Act of 1986".

FINDING AND PURPOSE

Sec. 2. Auditing Government transportation bills to identify areas of cost recovery has long been recognized as highly cost effective. In order to strengthen the transporation bill audit process, this Act—

(1) delegates to the Department of Defense the authority to audit its own transportation bills; and

(2) directs the Secretary of Defense, whenever practicable and cost effective, to contract with private firms for such audits.

TRANSPORTATION BILL AUDITS

Sec. 3. Section 3726 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(e)(1) The Administrator of General Services shall delegate to the Secretary of Defense the authority of the Administrator to audit bills for transportation of individuals and property ordered by the Department of Defense.

"(2) The Secretary of Defense shall, whenever practicable and economically desirable, enter into contracts with private firms to audit transportation bills pursuant to this subsection.

"(3) The authority of the Secretary of Defense to enter into contracts under paragraph (2) of this subsection shall be to such extent or in such amounts as are provided in appropriation Acts.".

Defense Transportation Bill Audit Improvement Act of 1986

Problem: Auditing transportation bills to find areas of cost recovery has long been recognized as a highly cost effective practice. The Grace Commission found, however, that there is a 14 to 22 month backlog of transportation bill audits and that resources dedicated to this function had decreased substantially since 1975. The Commission also noted that, while GSA is responsible for all government transportation bill auditing, almost 80% of government transportation expenses were being incurred by the Department of Defense. Grace believed that Defense could do a better job in this area and called for GSA to delegate to Defense the authority to audit its own transportation bills. Also, Grace recommended that this function should be contracted out whenever possible. Grace believed that, since private transportation auditing firms operate on a commission basis, their auditors would have more incentive to identify billing errors and make recoveries, while at the same time government overhead would be limited and the audit backlog reduced. The Grace Commission estimated a savings of $217 million over a 3-year period, including a one time savings of $72 million by eliminating the backlog. While agreeing with the Commission's findings and recommendations, GAO believed the 3-year savings would be $90 million.

The purpose of this bill is to strengthen the transportation bill audit process. The bill requires that GSA transfer to the Department of Defense the authority to audit its own transportation bills, and directs the Secretary, whenever practicable and cost effective, to contract with private firms for these audits.

(A Bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey On Cost Control.)

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.—Auditing government transportation bills to identify areas of cost recovery has long been recognized as cost effective. To strengthen the transportation bill audit process, this Act transfers to the Department of Defense the authority to audit its own transportation bills and directs the Secretary, whenever practicable and cost effective, to contract with private firms for these audits.

SEC. 3. TRANSPORTATION BILL AUDITS.—Section 3726 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding a new subsection which requires that the Administrator of General Services delegate to the Secretary of Defense the authority to audit bills for the transportation of individuals and property ordered by the Department of Defense. The Secretary is required, whenever practicable and cost effective, to contract with private firms for these audits, and is granted the authority to enter into such contracts to the extent of amounts provided in appropriation Acts.

S. 2631

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Defense Industrial Reserve Improvement Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. The purpose of this Act is to improve the financial management of the Defense Industrial Reserve by requiring certain reimbursements of the Department of Defense by Federal Government agencies that use property transferred from such Reserve.

REIMBURSEMENT FOR TRANSFERRED DEFENSE INDUSTRIAL RESERVE EQUIPMENT

SEC. 3. Section 4 of the Defense Industrial Reserve Act of 1948 (50 U.S.C. 453) is amended—

(1) by striking out clause (4) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(4) direct the transfer of such property to other Government agencies with the consent of such agencies and with reimbursement as provided under clause (5);";

(2) by redesignating clauses (5), (6), and (7) as clauses (6), (7), and (8), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after clause (4) the following new clause (5):

"(5) prescribe general policies and fee schedules for reimbursement of the Department of Defense by other Government agencies for the full cost (including direct and indirect costs) of storage, repair, maintenance, and allocated overhead of property transferred to such agencies from the defense industrial reserve;".

DEFENSE INDUSTRIAL RESERVE IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986

Problem: When Government-owned industrial plant equipment used by the military services or defense contractors is idled, it is referred to the Defense Industrial Plant Equipment Center which selects some of the equipment to store in a general reserve. Defense maintains this reserve in case of mobilization and to avoid having to buy a new machine in peacetime. Defense regulations require that before buying new equipment that the military services and Defense contractors determine if general reserve equipment is available.

Currently, repaired equipment in the general reserve is free to the ultimate user. This is where Grace identified a problem. The users view the equipment as cheaper than it actually is because they do not share in the $28 million in annual costs to repair, store and maintain reserve equipment. Also, users often have to wait several months to determine whether equipment is available. To place Defense industrial plant equipment purchases on a sounder economic footing, the Grace Commission, supported by GAO, recommended that users of equipment from the Defense Industrial Reserve be required to pay the full cost of storage, repair, and maintenance of the equipment. The Grace Commission estimated a 3-year savings of $30.2 million which the GAO found to be realistic.

The purpose of this bill is to place Defense industrial plant equipment purchases on a sound economic footing by requiring that users of the reserve equipment pay the "full cost"; that is, all costs incurred, both direct and indirect, of storage, repair, maintenance, and allocated overhead. The Secretary of Defense would prescribe the general policies and fee schedules for reimbursement for the full cost of reserve equipment transferred to users.

(A Bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.)

SEC. 2. PURPOSE. To place Defense industrial plant equipment purchases on a sounder economic footing, the Act requires that users of this equipment pay the full cost of storage, repair, maintenance, and allocated overhead. Presently, the equipment is provided free of charge.

SEC. 3. REIMBURSEMENT FOR TRANSFERRED DEFENSE INDUSTRIAL RESERVE EQUIPMENT. Section 4 of the Defense Industrial Reserve Act of 1948 (50 U.S.C. 453) is amended, and new section 5 is added to require the Secretary of Defense to prescribe general policies and fee schedules for reimbursement to the Department of Defense by other Government agencies (which includes the military services) for the full cost of storage, repair, maintenance, and allocated overhead of the industrial plant equipment transferred to them.

S. 2632

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Paralegal Coordination and Activities Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. In order to increase the productivity and cost-efficiency in the Department of Justice, this Act—

(1) establishes an Office of Paralegal Coordination and Activities to coordinate Justice's utilization of paralegals in the areas of legal research, litigation, legal support, and other legal activities.

(2) directs such office to study the potential for greater use of paralegals in Justice; and

(3) requires the Attorney General to report to Congress and the President the findings of the study to include recommendations to increase the efficient utilization of paralegals within the Department of Justice.

USE OF PARALEGALS

SEC. 3. (a) Chapter 31 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"§ 530A. Use of paralegals

"(a) According to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Attorney General of the United States, there shall be established within the Department of Justice an Office of Paralegal Coordination and Activities. The principal purposes of such Office shall be—

"(1) to coordinate efforts to increase utilization of paralegals in the areas of legal research, litigation support, and other legal activities within the Department not requiring the skill of an attorney, and

"(2) to coordinate paralegal training programs within the Department.

"(b) The Office established in subsection (a) shall study the possibility of increasing the use of paralegals within each legal division or office in the Department. Within one year after the date of the enactment of this section, the Attorney General of the United States shall report to the Congress and to the President of the United States on the findings of such study. The report shall include the following information for each legal division or legal office within the Department—

"(1) a summary of the division's or office's current utilization of paralegal services and the current job description for paralegal positions;

"(2) a description of the nonlitigative functions and responsibilities currently performed within each division or office by attorneys which could be performed successfully by trained paralegals, the extent of additional training and attorney supervision that may be required if paralegals are to assume such new duties, and corresponding job descriptions;

"(3) as dictated by the individual needs of each division or office, an estimate of the optimal ratio of paralegals to attorneys in terms of productivity and economy, including the potential cost savings which could be achieved from adoption of these ratios;

"(4) an estimate of the extent to which the optimal ratios determined in paragraph (3) could be achieved through administrative action by the Department without compromising the quality and quantity of legal service provided by the Department's legal staff, and if such administrative action would be insufficient to achieve these ratios, the extent to which the Department must raise its personnel ceilings by making application to the Office of Management and Budget;

"(5) an evaluation of the benefits and problems associated with the current methods used to fill paralegal positions within the Department and any recommendations the Attorney General believes would facilitate the hiring of qualified personnel in a timely manner; and

"(6) any additional recommendations which the Attorney General believes would be useful in increasing efficient utilization of paralegals within the Department.".

(b) The table of sections for such chapter is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new item:

"530A. Use of paralegals.".

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 4. This Act and the amendments made by this Act shall become effective on the date of enactment.

PARALEGAL COORDINATION AND ACTIVITIES ACT OF 1986

Problem.—The Grace Commission found that the Department of Justice had a much lower ratio of paralegals to attorneys than the private sector. The Commission saw that increased use of paralegals in legal research, litigation support, and other legal activities not requiring the skill of a lawyer would increase productivity and cost-efficiency in the Department of Justice. GAO supports the Grace findings and has recommended that Justice expand paralegals' responsibilities, where possible, to allow attorneys to spend more time on litigative functions and less time on nonlitigative work. GAO's recent review of Justice's management practices highlighted that legal divisions and offices of U.S. attorneys generally lack sufficient work measurement data and have no explicit criteria for utilizing paralegals and for setting paralegal-to-attorneys staffing ratios which will enable the Department to make the best and most cost effective use of paralegals. The Grace Commission estimated the increased use of paralegals by Justice will save $13.4 million over 3 years.

The purpose of this bill is to increase the productivity and reduce costs in the Justice Department by establishing an Office of Paralegal Coordination and Activities to organize and coordinate efforts to increase utilization of paralegals and to coordinate paralegal training programs in the Department. The legislation requires that the new office study the increased use of paralegals to determine the proper ratio and best use of paralegals in Justice's legal divisions and offices. The Attorney General is to report the findings of this study to the Congress and President within 1 year.

"PARALEGAL COORDINATION AND ACTIVITIES ACT OF 1986"

(A Bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey On Cost Control.)

SEC. 2. PURPOSE.—To increase the productivity and cost effectiveness in the Justice Department, this Act establishes an Office of Paralegal Coordination and Activities to organize and coordinate the utilization of paralegals by the Justice Department and study the potential for greater use of paralegals. The results of the study will be reported to the Congress and the President along with recommendations for more efficient use of paralegals.

SEC. 3. USE OF PARALEGALS.—Chapter 31 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by adding a new section which establishes within the Department of Justice, the Office of Paralegal Coordination and Activities. This office is to coordinate efforts to increase utilization of paralegals in legal research, litigation support, and those legal activities not requiring the skill of an attorney, and coordinate paralegal training programs in the Department.

The new office is to study the potential for increased use of paralegals in the Department of Justice's legal divisions and offices. Within one year of enactment the Attorney General is required to report the study findings to the Congress and the President.

The Act also delineates certain information that must be included in the report such as (1) a description of those nonlitigative functions and responsibilities currently performed by attorneys which could be performed by the training and attorney supervision of paralegals and (2) an estimate of the optimal ratio of paralegals to attorneys in terms of productivity and economy and the potential savings where these ratios to be adopted.

SEC. 4. EFFECTIVE DATE.—The Act takes effect on the date of enactment.

S. 2633

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Rural Electrification Credit Assistance Improvement Act of 1986".

SEC. 2. PURPOSES.

It is the purpose of this Act to place the rural electrification insured and guaranteed loan programs on a firmer economic footing and to recognize the changing conditions that enable rural electrical cooperatives to obtain credit without Federal assistance and subsidized Federal interest rates—

(1) by increasing the interest rate on new insured rural electrification loans to the cost of Treasury borrowing;

(2) by instituting "credit elsewhere" tests when considering whether additional Federal financial assistance will be extended;

(3) by collecting a fee for each new insured loan or loan guarantee; and

(4) by requiring loan applicants to develop a goal and plan for obtaining an amount of equity that will be sufficient to obtain credit from other sources in the future.

SEC. 3. INSURED LOANS.

Section 305 of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C. 935) is amended—

(1) in subsection (b), by striking out "5 percentum per annum" and inserting in lieu thereof "the cost of borrowing to the Treasury, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield of obligations of the United States having maturities comparable to loans made under this section, as adjusted quarterly"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new subsections:

"(d) To be eligible to obtain an insured loan under this title, a borrower must demonstrate, on the basis of critiera established by the Administrator, that the borrower—

"(1) is unable to obtain credit elsewhere at reasonable rates and at terms consistent with the objectives of this Act; and

"(2) has developed a goal and plan for obtaining an amount of equity (net worth as a percentage of assets) that is sufficient to obtain such credit in the future.

"(e)(1) To be eligible to obtain an insured loan under this title, a borrower must pay a fee to the Administraor.

"(2) The amount of such fee shall be determined by the Administrator, except that such fee may not exceed 1 percent of the loan amount.

"(3) Such fee shall be payable at such time and under such conditions as the Administrator determines.".

SEC. 4. GUARANTEED LOANS.

Section 306 of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C. 936) is amended—

(1) by inserting "(a)" after the section designation;

(2) by striking out the second and third sentences; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new subsections:

"(b) To be eligible to obtain financial assitance under this section, a borrower must demonstrate, on the basis of criteria established by the Administrator, that the borrower—

"(1) is unable to obtain credit elsewhere at reasonable rates and at terms consistent with the objectives of this Act; and

"(2) in the case of the guarantee of a loan for the construction or expansion of facilities for the generation and transmission of electric power, has considered and evaluated all other reasonable alternatives for the meeting of power requirements of the borrower, including the purchase of power from other sources.

"(c)(1) To be eligible to obtain financial assistance under this section, a borrower must pay a fee to the Administrator.

"(2) The amount of such fee shall be determined by the Administrator, except that such fee may not extend an amount estimated by the Administrator to be necessary to cover administrative expenses and probable losses arising from such assistance.

"(3) Such fee shall be payable at such time and under such conditions as the Administrator determines.

"(d)(1) If the guaranteed loan under this section is not available from a private legally organized lending agency, a borrower may apply to the Federal Financing Bank for such loan.

"(2) If a borrower applies for such loan and meets the eligibility requirements for such loan and loan guarantee, the Federal Financing Bank shall make, and the Administrator shall guarantee, such loan under this section."

SEC. 5. LOANS FROM OTHER CREDIT SOURCES.

Section 307 of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C. 937) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 307. OTHER FINANCING.—If it appears to the Administrator that an applicant for financial assistance under section 305 or 306 is able to obtain a loan for part of the credit needs of the applicant from a responsible cooperative or other credit source at reasonable rates and at terms consistent with the ability to pay of the applicant and the achievement of the objectives of this Act, the Administrator shall request the applicant, in accordance with criteria established by the Administrator, to apply for and accept such a loan concurrently with such assistance.".

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986

Problem: Since 1936, the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) has been lending money to utilities in rural areas. In 1973, Congress established two interest rates for REA borrowers, depending on need, 2% and 5%. The Grace Commission found that total interest expense for the REA will exceed income and interest paid to it from previous borrowers. Most of the credit needs of the borrowers are met through loans financed by the Federal Financing Bank (FFB), with a guarantee from the REA, which in effect converts the guaranteed loan into direct Federal loans. Grace believes that this should be phased out in favor of private sector participation and that a "credit elsewhere" test should be implemented to preclude any financially sound borrower from receiving an REA guaranteed loan when credit is available from other sources. GAO has reported that many of the cooperatives borrowing from REA have the financial strength to borrow elsewhere. The Grace Commission also recommended a fee for each new loan or loan guarantee to help offset mounting REA obligations. The Commission, GAO, and REA agree that plans are needed to encourage and promote borrower self-sufficiency. The Commission estimated 3-year savings of $142 million from charging loan fees, and $3-4 billion in outlay reductions over 3 years if annual loan guarantee levels were reduced by 40%. GAO estimated that, for each $1 billion in new insured loans, increasing the interest rate from 5% to 8% would increase interest income by $30 million annually.

The Purpose of this bill is to place REA insured and guaranteed loans on a sounder economic footing and to recognize changing conditions which enable rural electrical cooperatives to obtain credit without federal assistance and subsidized interest rates.

Interest rates on insured loans would be changed to cover the cost of Treasury borrowing, and the borrower must demonstrate that it is unable to obtain credit elsewhere. The borrower must also develop a plan for being in a position in the future to obtain credit elsewhere, and pay a fee not to exceed 1% of the loan amount. This would not effect existing loans.

A loan fee would also be required for new loan guarantees, and interest rates charged by FFB for guaranteed loans would no longer be limited to the rate charged on similar loans it makes and purchases. The borrower would be required to look at all other alternatives for meeting power requirements and to accept a loan concurrently from some other credit source in cases where it appears that the borrower is able to obtain a loan for part of its credit needs.

(A Bill to Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.)

SEC. 2. PURPOSES.—To place rural electrification insured and guaranteed loans on a sounder economic footing and to recognize changing conditions which enable rural electrical cooperatives to obtain credit without federal assistance and subsidized federal interest rates, this Act (1) increases the interest rate on new insured loans to the cost of Treasury borrowing; 2) institutes "credit elsewhere" tests when considering whether additional federal financial assistance will be extended; 3) establishes a fee for each new insured loan or loan guarantee; and 4) requires loan applicants to develop a goal and plan for obtaining an amount of equity that will enable them to obtain credit from other sources at some time in the future.

SEC. 3. INSURED LOANS.—Section 305 of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C. 935) is amended, to change the interest rate for all new insured loans, from the present 5% per annum, to the cost of Treasury borrowing as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury. This change would not effect existing loans.

To obtain an insured loan in the future, the borrower must demonstrate that it is unable to obtain credit elsewhere at reasonable rates and comparable terms. The borrower must also develop a plan for being in a position in the future to obtain credit elsewhere, and pay a fee not to exceed 1% of the loan amount.

SEC. 4. GUARANTEED LOANS.—Section 306 of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C. 936) is amended, to delete the prohibition against assessing fees or charges for guaranteeing loans (or for accommodating or subordinating liens or mortgages). Also deleted are provisions requiring the Federal Financing Bank, on the request of the borrower, to make loans guaranteed by the Administrator, and limiting the interest rate charged by the Federal Financing Bank to not more than the rate charged on similar loans it makes or purchases.

Three new sections are added to section 306. The first provides that, to obtain a loan guarantee, a borrower must demonstrate that it is unable to obtain credit from other sources at reasonable rates and comparable terms. In the case of loan guarantees for constructing or expanding facilities for generating and transmitting electric power, the borrower is required to have considered and evaluated all other reasonable alternatives for meeting its power requirements, including the purchase of power from other sources.

The second new section requires that to be eligible to obtain a loan guarantee (or accommodation or subordination of a lien or mortgage), the borrower must pay a fee to the Administrator at such time and under such circumstances as the Administrator determines. The amount of the fee is to be determined by the Administrator, but may not exceed an amount that the Administrator estimates to be necessary to cover administrative expenses and probable losses.

The third new section provides that, if a guaranteed loan is not available from a private legally organized lending agency, the borrower may apply to the Federal Financing Bank for such loan, and requires that, if the borrower applies and meets the eligibility requirements for the loan and loan guarantee, the Federal Financing Bank make, and the Rural Electrification Administration Administrator guarantee, the loan.

SEC. 5. LOANS FROM OTHER CREDIT SOURCES.—Section 307 of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C. 937) is amended to require, rather than permit, the Administrator to request an applicant for financial assistance under sections 305 and 306 to apply for and accept a loan concurrently from another credit source. This is to be done in accordance with criteria established by the Administrator, in cases where it appears to the Administrator that the applicant is able to obtain a loan for part of its credit needs from a responsible cooperative or other credit source at reasonable rates and consistent with the applicant's ability to pay and achievement of the objectives of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936.

The amendment expands this requirement to not only insured loans under section 305, which are presently covered under section 307, but also financial assistance under section 306. The amendment also deletes a provision requiring that the Administrator's request that concurrent loans be applied for and accepted would be subject to the Administrator's full use of the funds made available to the Rural Electrification Administration for insured loans.

SEC. 6. EFFECTIVE DATE.—This Act takes effect on the date of enactment.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, a year ago this month Senator DECONCINI and I formed the Senate Grace Caucus. We have now been joined by an additional 26 Members of this body, that is, we have a total membership of 28. The purpose of the Grace Caucus is very straightforward, to stop talking about the Grace Commission recommendations to cut Government costs and to start doing something about it in the way of concrete legislation. For the past 6 months the members of the Grace Commission Caucus and their staffs have toiled away finding the most likely reforms that we could undertake as our initial effort, and during the last 2 months the Grace Commission Caucus joined forces with the members of the Government Affairs Committee under Senator ROTH, who were also working in a like direction, and together we have produced a package of 15 bills which we are introducing today, 15 bills designed explicitly to implement the provisions of the Grace Commission recommendations.

Mr. President, ever since the Grace Commission completed its study in 1983, people have been wondering, "whatever happened to the Grace report?" There was much ballyhoo back in 1983, as it became known that billions upon billions of Federal dollars could be saved simply by increasing the efficiency of Federal operations. But then it seemed as though this 21,000 page study was put on the shelf, to collect dust. It took the Grace Commission 10 man-years to get a handle on this waste problem, and it came up with 2,478 recommendations to save $425 billion over 3 years. Three-quarters of those recommendations need congressional action. Some of the recommendations were acted upon administratively, and, in isolated cases, legislatively.

But today, Mr. President, the Grace Commission report is being taken off the shelf. The 15 bills which are being introduced encompass 78 separate recommendations. This is a small percentage of the total number of recommendations in the 47-volume study. But it is only a start. The opportunities are limited only by the imagination and our determination to bring spending under control.

This initial legislative package, if enacted in its entirety, would save $32.8 billion over the next 3 years, according to the Grace Commission report. And this is just the tip of the iceberg, Mr. President. The total savings which could be achieved with the implementation of the Grace report are in the hundreds of billions of dollars, why should the Federal Government continue to use antiquated methods of debt collection which are demonstrably inadequate? Why should we gobble up more taxpayer dollars to pay the Federal Government for goods and services that the private sector could provide less expensively? Why should the Department of Justice pay attorneys to do the work of paralegals? I believe this package addresses these questions and many others in a responsible and reasonable manner.

Mr. President, we have a long way to go, indeed. Cutting the budget will take discipline and resolve, in great proportions. If we are to succeed in this regard, we must take the first step. This legislative package, I believe, is a significant first step. The time has come to act. I would urge all of my colleagues to join us in this effort.

Mr. President, I want to take just a few moments of my remaining time to discuss two of the bills which the Senator from New Hampshire is introducing. The first of the two bills has to do with contracting out, that is, looking to the private sector to perform many of the services which today are performed by Government employees.

In March of 1983, President Reagan said that, "The role of Government should not include peforming services and activities that can effectively be carried out by the private sector." Examples of services that can be contracted out are janitorial and maintenance work, data processing, and food services. In fact, the General Accounting Office has determined that there are thousands of activities within the Federal Government that could be contracted out without affecting the services rendered.

Why then, isn't the Government moving in this direction? The A-76 program was instituted to encourage such movement, yet there has been little. A-76 requires agencies to carry out cost comparisons in order to determine whether certain services should be contracted out. Yet a study done by OMB shows that "of 22 agencies reporting, 50 percent did not award any service contracts as the result of an A-76 review; they did not complete any cost comparison studies during fiscal year 1982 through fiscal year 1985."

□ 2010

In other words, they did not do anything they were supposed to under A-76; fully half of the 22 agencies reporting did nothing. So you can see the urgent need for this legislation, to get us moving and on schedule toward achieving cost savings through contracting to Government services.

But the agencies themselves are not solely to blame, Mr. President. Congress, too, is responsible for the lack of progress in this area. In recent years, Congress has enacted over 20 different prohibitions on contracting out. For example, GSA is prohibited from contracting out guard, elevator operator, messenger, and custodian services. This prohibition costs taxpayers $32 million each year. Because of such restrictions, only about 30 percent of the $20 billion to $30 billion spent on services is eligible for contracting out.

Mr. President, if we in Congress are to ask Americans to sacrifice in order to get the deficit under control, I do not see how we can allow this situation to continue. The legislation which I am introducing today would implement the Grace Commission recommendations concerning Government contracting to the private sector. The bill addresses the lack of progress on the part of Federal agencies, by requiring cost comparisons and setting a timetable and outline for accomplishing these goals. It has been estimated that it would take the Government 100 years, at its current pace, to complete cost comparisons of all its commercial activities. Under this bill, agencies would be required to complete the task in 5 years and to report to the Congress each year the savings being achieved.

The bill also addresses the problem within Congress itself. Federal agencies would be required to procure supplies and services necessary to carry out their duties from private sector sources, regardless of any other Federal statute, except under certain circumstances. Exemptions from the provisions of the bill are cases in which national security interests require a Government supplier, in which the agency function is so closely related to the public interest that a Government supplier would be required, and in which no private sector source is able to furnish the supplies or services at less cost than a Government supplier.

The legislation would go a long way toward resolving the problems of Government contracting to the private sector. It will do so in a responsible manner, stressing quality and reliability.

Mr. President, at this time I ask unanimous consent that the bill and the bill summary be printed into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2621

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Federal Performance of Commercial Activities Improvement Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. It is the purpose of this Act to increase, where cost effective, the Federal Government's use of private sector sources to provide goods and services necessary for the operation and management of Government agencies.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 3. As used in this section:

(1) The term "agency" means—

(A) an executive department as defined in section 101 of title 5, United States Code;

(B) a military department as defined in section 102 of such title;

(C) an independent establishment as defined in section 104(1) of such title;

(D) the United States Postal Service; and

(E) a wholly owned Government corporation as defined in section 9101(3) of title 31, United States Code.

(2) The term "Director" means the Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

(3) The term "governmental function" means a function with is so closely related to the public interest as to require performances by Government employees and includes those activities which require either the exercise or discretion in applying Government authority or the use of value judgments in making decisions for the Government.

GOVERNMENT COMPETITION WITH THE PRIVATE SECTOR

SEC. 4. (a) Notwithstandiang any other provision of law which does not supersede this section by specific reference to this section, an agency shall procure from private sector sources the supplies and services necessary for or beneficial to the accomplishment of the agency's authorized functions unless—

(1) the supplies or services are required to be provided by the agency or another agency under a provision of law which supersedes this section by specific reference to this section;

(2) the provision of the supplies or services is a governmental function; or

(3) the head of the agency determines and certifies to the Congress, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Director, that—

(A) it is necessary in the interest of the national security for the Federal Government to have the capability to produce, manufacture, or otherwise provided the supplies or services;

(B) there is no private sector source capable of furnishing the supplies or services to the agency at a cost that is lower than the cost at which an agency can provide the same supplies or services, determined after a comparison of the costs;

(C) without regard to cost, there is no private sector source capable of furnishing the supplies or services to the agency; or

(D) the use of a private sector source would cause unacceptable delay or disruption of a program of the agency.

(b)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), if, under an exception prescribed in subsection (a), an agency is permitted to provide supplies or services other than by procurement from a private sector source, the head of the agency shall determine, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Director, the most efficient method of providing such supplies or services at specified levels of quality and timeliness. That method shall be used to provide such supplies or services.

(2) If, under the exception prescribed in subsection (a)(3)(B), an agency is permitted to provide supplies or services other than by procurement from a private sector source, the agency shall provide such supplies or services by the method used to establish the agency's cost for the purpose of such exception.

(c) Cost comparisons for the purpose of subsection (a)(3)(B) shall be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Director.

ANNUAL REPORT ON COST SAVINGS

SEC. 5. At the same time that the President submits the budget to Congress each year under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, each agency shall submit to Congress a report containing—

(1) an estimate of the amount that the agency will save during the fiscal year in which the budget is submitted as a result of the provision of supplies and services by procurement from private sector sources instead of the provision of such supplies and services by an agency;

(2) an estimate of the amount that the agency will save during such fiscal year as a result of the provision of supplies and services by the methods required by section 4(b) instead of the procurement of such supplies and services from private sector sources;

(3) an estimate of the amount that the agency will save as a result of the provision of supplies and services as described in clauses (1) and (2) for the fiscal year for which the budget is submitted; and

(4) the amounts actually saved by the agency as a result of the provision of supplies and services as described in clauses (1) and (2) for the fiscal year ending before the fiscal year in which the budget is submitted.

STUDY

SEC. 6. (a) Not later than one year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director shall transmit to the Congress a report on the study required by subsection (b). The report shall include a list of all cases identified under the study and the schedules prescribed under section 7.

(b) The Director shall—

(1) conduct a study for the purpose of identifying—

(A) those cases in which supplies or services provided by an agency can be procured from a private sector source;

(B) those cases in which supplies or services are provided under an exception prescribed in section 4(a); and

(C) those cases in which supplies or services procured from private sector sources were formerly provided by an agency; and

(2) determine whether the agency intends, in such cases—

(A) to conduct cost comparisons for the purpose of section 4(a)(3)(B); or

(B) to determine a method of providing the supplies or services under section 4(b).

(c) Each agency shall maintain records of the costs of providing supplies and services (whether procured from private sector sources or provided by an agency) for the cases identified for such agency under subsection (b).

COST COMPARISON SCHEDULE AND COMPLIANCE REVIEW

SEC. 7. (a)(1) For all cases which have been identified by the Director pursuant to section 6(b)(1)(A) and are not covered by an exception prescribed in paragraph (1), (2), (3)(A), (3)(C), or (3)(D) of section 4(a), the Director shall prescribe a schedule for the completion of cost comparisons for the purpose of subsection (a)(3)(B).

(2) The schedule prescribed pursuant to paragraph (1) shall require completion of the cost comparisons not later than 5 years after the date of the report required by section 6.

(b) At the end of each of the 5 years included in the schedule pursuant to paragraph (2), the Director shall—

(1) review the activities of each agency during such year for the purpose of determining the extent to which the agency is carrying out cost comparisons as provided in such schedule and is complying with the requirements of section 7;

(2) take any additional actions that the Director consider appropriate on the basis of such findings to ensure that the agency complies with the schedule each such year; and

(3) transmit to the Congress a report containing (A) the Director's findings for each agency as a result of such annual review, and (B) a description of any additional actions taken by the Director on the basis of such findings.

FEDERAL PERFORMANCE OF COMMERCIAL ACTIVITIES ACT OF 1986—PPSS THREE-YEAR SAVINGS: $3.3 BILLION

ISSUE

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Circular A-76 directs government agencies to contract with the private sector where it is possible and economical to do so and where it does not interfere with national security or critical government functions such as money, entitlements or exercising authority.

PPSS found that contracting out more federal government functions to private sector firms could save billions of dollars and result in more efficient services to the public.

Although the Reagan Administration has accelerated the use of contracting out, more could be done if Circular A-76 were law instead of a regulation.

PPSS RECOMMENDATION—PER 12

Codify the basic provision of OMB Circular A-76 to give contracting out the force of law.

PROPOSED BILL

The bill codifies OMB Circular A-76 by requiring federal agency procurement of goods and services from the private sector whenever cost effective unless; national security interests necessitate a government supplier; or private sector supply is more expensive or would cause unacceptable delay; or could not supply such goods and services.

Each agency shall report anticipated and actual savings from cost comparisons and efficiency reviews and shall keep records on costs of obtaining supplies from both private sector and government sources.

The OMB Director shall conduct a study to identify areas where goods and services could be procured from the private sector; prescribe a schedule to require the completion of cost comparisons of these areas within 5 years; and report to Congress annually on each agency's level of compliance.

Mr. HUMPHREY. The other bill deals with increasing cooperation and coordination between Department of Defense research laboratories. There are, I think, 36 such laboratories. Often they duplicate other's research simply because they do not know that another laboratory is doing the very same kind of research. In other cases, they are unable to take advantage of research done in another lab simply because they are not aware of it, as incredible as that may seem. This bill will attempt to correct that problem and will achieve a saving over a 3-year period of about $1½ billion.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill and the bill summary be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill and bill summary were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2629

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Defense Technology Data Exchange Improvement Act of 1986".

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. It is the purpose of this Act to strengthen coordination among Department of Defense reseach facilities and other organizations in the Department of Defense.

FINDINGS

SEC. 3. The Congress finds that centralized coordination of the collection and dissemination of technological data among research facilities and other organizations within the Department of Defense is necessary (1) to ensure that personnel of the Department are currently informed about emerging technology for defense systems, and (2) to avoid unncecessary and costly duplication of research staffs and projects.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 4. For purposes of this Act:

(1) The term "Defense research facility" means any Department of Defense facility which performs or contracts for the performance of (A) basic research, or (B) applied research known as exploratory development.

(2) The term "milestone 0 decision" means a decision made within the Department of Defense that there is a mission need for a new major weapon system and that research and development is to begin to meet such need.

(3) The term "milestone I decision" means a selection by an appropriate official of the Department of Defense of a new major weapon system concept and a program for demonstration and validation of such concept.

(4) The term "milestone II decision" means approval by an appropriate official within the Department of Defense for the full-scale development of a new major weapon system.

COORDINATION OF DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE TECHNOLOGICAL DATA

SEC. 5. The Secretary of Defense shall—

(1) promote, monitor, and evaluate programs for the communication and exchange of technological data—

(A) among the Defense research facilities, combat forces, and other organizations that are involved in developing for the Department of Defense the technological requirements for new items for use by combat forces; and

(B) among Defense research facilities and other offices, agencies, and bureaus in the Department that are engaged in related technological matters; and (2) ensure, to the maximum extent practicable—

(A) that Defense research facilities are assigned broad mission requirements rather than specific hardware needs;

(B) that appropriate personnel of such facilities are assigned to serve as consultants on component and support system standardization;

(C) that the managers of such facilities have broad latitude to choose research and development projects;

(D) that technology position papers prepared by Defense research facilities are readily available to all military commands and to contractors who submit bids or proposals for Department of Defense contracts; and

(E) that, in order to promote increased consideration of technological issues early in the development process, any position papers prepared by Defense research facilities on technological issues relating to a major component in a proposed major weapon system and any technological assessments made by such facilities in the case of such component are made a part of the records considered for the purpose of making milestone 0, I and II decisions.

REPORT

SEC. 6. The Secretary of Defense shall submit to the Congress, within one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, a written report containing a description of (1) the actions taken by the Secretary for the purpose of implementing this Act, and (2) any other actions taken by the Secretary for the purpose of improving the management and utilization of Defense research facilities.

DEFENSE TECHNOLOGY DATA EXCHANGE IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1986

Problem: About 75 Department of Defense laboratories provide technical support to research and development (R&D) activities in the weapons acquisition process. At present only basic research and exploratory development have visibility among all services. Knowledge of other research is not shared among the labs. A centralized coordinated effort to disseminate technology data among DoD labs is needed to provide operational forces with a better understanding of emerging technology for defense systems and to avoid unnecessary duplication of lab staff and projects. The Grace Commission estimated savings achieved by effective coordination in this area of $1.6 billion over 3 years. GAO could not verify this estimate but did anticipate that savings could be substantial.

The purpose of this bill is to strengthen coordination among Department of Defense research facilities by directing the Secretary of Defense to:

Ensure that personnel of the Department are currently informed with regard to emerging technologies for defense systems;

Take specific organizational steps to avoid unnecessary and costly duplication of research staffs and projects among the services; and

Report to Congress within one year on actions taken in the effort to implement the act and to improve the management and utilization of Department of Defense research facilities.

(A Bill To Implement Certain Recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.)

SEC. 2 and 3. PURPOSE AND FINDINGS.—Centralized coordination of the collection and dissemination of technological data from research facilities within the Department of Defense is necessary (1) to ensure that personnel of the Department are currently informed with regard to emerging technology for defense systems, and (2) to avoid unnecessary and costly duplication of research staffs and projects. The purpose of this Act is to strengthen the coordination between the Department of Defense research facilities.

SEC. 4. DEFINITIONS. For the purposes of this Act:

"Defense research facility" means any Department of Defense facility which performs or contracts for basic research of applied research (also called exploratory development) under the Department of Defense's research, development, test and evaluation budget categories 6.1 (basic research) and 6.2 (exploratory development).

"Decision milestone 0" means the Department of Defense mission need determination, which provides official sanction for a major system new start.

"Decision milestone I" means the Department of Defense concept selection, which provides the authority to proceed with the demonstration and validation phase.

"Decision milestone II" means the Department of Defense program go ahead and approval to proceed with full scale development.

SEC. 5. COORDINATION OF DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE TECHNOLOGICAL DATA.—The Secretary of Defense is required to promote, monitor, and evaluate communications and data exchange programs between the Department's research facilities, the combat forces served, and the combat user representative organizations involved in establishing requirements for new material.

The Secretary is required to promote, monitor, and evaluate such programs among Department of Defense research facilities, offices, agencies, and bureaus working on related technologies and products.

The Secretary is also required to ensure that:

(1) research facilities of the Department of Defense are assigned broad mission requirements rather than specific hardware needs;

(2) the appropriate personnel of the facilities are assigned to serve as consultants on component and support system standardization;

(3) managers of the research facilities have latitude to choose research and development projects;

(4) research facility technology position papers are readily available to all military commands and to contractors who submit bids or proposals on Department of Defense contracts; and

(5) the technology position papers and assessments, applicable to each major component technology in a proposed system, be part of the record at the service and at Department of Defense milestones O, I, and II, to promote greater consideration of technology issues "up-front" in the developmental process.

SEC. 6. REPORT.—The Secretary of Defense is required, within a year of enactment, to submit to the Congress a report on any actions taken to implement the requirements of this section, and any other action that the Secretary has taken in an effort to improve the management and utilization of Department of Defense research facilities.

Mr. BRADLEY. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senators ROTH, DECONCINI, HUMPHREY and others in introducing a package of cost savings measures developed by the Senate Grace Caucus, of which I am a member, and the Senate Government Affairs Committee. These management improvement bills are an outgrowth of the recommendations of the Grace Commission. While I do not support all 16 pieces of legislation being introduced today, I do support the general thrust of the legislative package.

Two years ago, the President's private sector survey on cost control, better known as the Grace Commission, undertook an 18-month study at the directive of President Reagan to identify and suggest remedies for waste and abuse in the Federal Government. The Commission, headed by 161 executives and staffed by over 2,000 professionals, submitted almost 2,500 recommendations for cost control and revenue enhancement.

Most of the report's recommended reforms are concerned with management issues, such as financial and procurement practices. Most recommendations can be implemented by administrative action, and many have been implemented. But some Grace recommendations require congressional action. The bills being introduced today include several Grace Commission proposals that must be enacted by Congress to take effect.

Mr. President, I am a cosponsor of 11 of the bills being introduced today. A brief description of the bills that I am cosponsoring is as follows:

The Federal Credit Management and Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1986 is aimed at strengthening credit management and debt collection, increasing collection, and reducing delinquencies. The bill establishes within the Treasury and Under Secretary for Debt Collection and Credit Management, requires the development of comprehensive improvement plans and mandates a number of credit management and debt collection practices.

The Federal Health Care Auditing and Quality Control Improvement Act of 1986 is aimed at strengthening oversight and quality control and reducing administrative costs associated with the Medicare and Medicaid Programs by authorizing the Secretary of Health and Human Services to test and measure the cost effectiveness of using contractors to perform Medicare audits, requiring the Secretary of Health and Human Services to develop procedures and guidelines for the Medicaid quality control program and repealing the Railroad Retirement Board's present authority to administer Medicare claims separately for its beneficiaries.

The Tax Collection and Enforcement Improvement Act of 1986 is aimed at improving tax law compliance, increasing collections, and reducing tax delinquencies by authorizing 1,500 additional collections staff and establishing a target for a $5 billion reduction in delinquent unpaid taxes over 5 years, authorizing 1,000 additional staff for the information returns program and authorizing 2,500 additional tax return examination and enforcement staff.

The Federal Hospital System Sharing Act of 1986 is aimed at improving efficiency and reducing costs of the Department of Defense and the Veterans' Administration hospitals through broadened sharing authority. The bill provides that all persons eligible to receive direct health care from the Department of Defense or the Veterans' Administration, such as Department of Defense dependents, military retirees, and survivors of deceased military members, may be provided care in another agency's facility.

The Housing Eligibility Verification Improvement Act of 1986 is aimed at strengthening the verification of eligibility and the proper determination of benefits for housing programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development by requiring applicants or participants to disclose their Social Security or employee identification numbers, with necessary safeguards to protect the individual. The bill also authorizes the Department to obtain access to wage and other information from State employment records maintained under the Social Security Act.

The Defense Transportation Bill Audit Improvement Act of 1986 is aimed at strengthening the transportation bill audit process. The bill requires that GSA transfer to the Department of Defense the authority to audit its own transportation bills, and directs the Secretary, whenever practicable and cost effective, to contract with private firms for these audits.

The Paralegal Coordination and Activities Act of 1986 is aimed at increasing the productivity and reducing costs in the Justice Department by establishing an Office of Paralegal Coordination and Activities to organize and coordinate efforts to increase utilization of paralegals and to coordinate paralegal training programs in the Department. The legislation requires that the new office study the increased use of paralegal to determine the proper ratio and best use of paralegals in Justice's legal divisions and offices.

The Mail Management Improvement Act of 1986 is aimed at improving Federal agency management of mail operations and reducing Government mail costs by requiring agencies to evaluate agency mail operations to identify and eliminate practices resulting in excessive mailing costs and to develop, within 6 months of enactment and subject to approval by the Director of OMB, a plan to strengthen mail management.

The Defense Technology Data Exchange Improvement Act of 1986 is aimed at strengthening coordination among Department of Defense research facilities by directing the Secretary of Defense to ensure that personnel of the Department are currently informed with regard to emerging technologies for defense systems and to take specific organization steps to avoid unnecessary and costly duplication of research staffs and projects among the services.

The Defense Select Consolidations Act of 1986 aims to consolidate and improve the efficiency and coordination of depot-level maintenance and wholesale distribution operations, base support services, and military traffic and transport management. The bill designates a single manager in DOD for the administration of depot-level maintenance facilities and directs the Secretary of Defense to develop a Unified Traffic Management Command to combine functions of the Military Traffic Command, the Military Sealift Command, and the Military Airlift Command. In addition, the Secretary of Defense is directed to identify military installations where base support operations could effectively be consolidated, and within 2 years of enactment, develop a timetable for implementation.

The Defense Industrial Reserve Improvement Act of 1986 is aimed at placing defense industrial plant equipment purchases on a sound economic footing by requiring that users of the reserve equipment pay the full cost; that is, all costs incurred, both direct and indirect, of storage, repair, maintenance, and allocated overhead. The Secretary of Defense would prescribe the general policies and fee schedules for reimbursement for the full cost of reserve equipment transferred to users.

Mr. President, these bills, if adopted, will reduce the deficit by several billion dollars. We know that deficits must be reduced. We know that programs must be cut back and taxes raised. But, before we decimate programs, we should do whatever we can to improve the efficiency of Government. That is what these bills are all about. I urge serious consideration of these matters by my colleagues.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. President, I rise to recognize "Grace Legislation Day" and to urge timely consideration of the 16 initiatives which are being introduced today by the Grace Caucus and Government Affairs Committee to eliminate waste in Government and help reduce the Federal deficit. This legislation incorporates 70 Grace Commission recommendations which attack the foundation of inefficiencies in the Federal Government.

The time has come, Mr. President, to address the Federal deficit head on. Congress must have the backbone to act now. The 16 Grace Legislation Day bills offer the rare opportunity to reduce the Federal deficit without raising taxes, without weakening America's defense and without harming necessary social welfare programs.

Real deficit reduction must not be accomplished by simply raising taxes. To this end, these revenue-enhancing Grace recommendations will lower the Federal deficit by combating waste and mismanagement in Government. I support the principles and directions of many of the Grace legislation bills because they go to the root of Government waste by addressing system failures, personnel mismanagement and program waste.

Mr. President, I believe that balancing the Federal budget is the single most important domestic issue facing the United States today. Failure to address this critical issue will certainly affect the vitality of the economic surge that the country is enjoying today.

While I do not support each recommendation that is being offered by the Grace Caucus, I wholeheartedly support the objective to bring efficiency back to the Federal Government. I share the caucus objectives and urge Congress to recognize that the time has come to find areas of agreement and bring a comprehensive package of cost-saving measures to the Senate floor before the end of the 99th Congress.

Mr. President, I commend my distinguished colleagues, Senators HUMPHREY, DECONCINI and ROTH and their staffs for making Grace Legislation Day a reality. I look forward to continuing to work with them to bring timely action on these proposals and to restoring fiscal responsibility to the Federal Government. We cannot let waste and inefficiency in Government swallow America's future.

THE CONGRESSIONAL GRACE CAUCUS LEGISLATIVE PACKAGE

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, as a member of the Congressional Grace Caucus, I am pleased with the introduction of a legislative package which contains several bills that are designed to reduce wasteful Federal spending, and to increase Government efficiency.

Mr. President, the reduction of Government waste is an especially important goal in light of the enormous budget deficit our past fiscal irresponsibility has wrought. Reducing the budget deficit through streamlining Government practices is indeed preferable to eliminating worthwhile Government programs.

President Reagan recognized this fact when he established his private sector survey on cost control, the Grace Commission, in 1982. Under the leadership of J. Peter Grace, chief executive officer and chairman of W.R. Grace & Co., the Grace Commission found almost 2,500 ways to cut waste and enhance revenues, at no cost to the taxpayer.

The purpose of the Congressional Grace Caucus, founded in October 1985, is to legislatively implement those recommendations, thereby reducing our budget deficit. Since October, the members of this caucus, along with "Citizens Against Government Waste," have been involved in the difficult task of drafting specific legislation to implement these suggestions. The bills which have been introduced today represent a positive step in the continuing effort to reform wasteful Government practices.

I urge the chairman of the respective committees to which these bills are referred to expedite committee consideration of these measures. Furthermore, all Members of Congress should carefully examine these bills and work toward the elimination of Government waste.

RECOGNITION OF SENATOR SASSER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee is recognized.

THE DRUG SMUGGLING PROBLEM IN BORDER STATES

Mr. SASSER. Mr. President, I wish to address a subject that has been troubling me for some time, that is the increasing volume of drugs pouring across our borders.

Over the past few years, the Federal Government has intensified drug enforcement efforts along the coast of the Gulf of Mexico. This program has been highly successful—it has resulted in increased arrests and confiscation of illicit drugs. This success, however, has spawned a whole range of new problems.

Drug dealers—looking for new ways to smuggle their deadly cargo into the United States—are leap-frogging the coastal States and landing their drugs farther inland. States like my State of Tennessee are becoming prime targets for drug smuggling.

Tennessee is easily within range of the aircraft commonly used by drug smugglers flying from South America. It contains many small, rural airports and airstrips that are particularly vulnerable to use by drug smugglers. Law enforcement officials in my State have identified over 30 airports which need additional surveillance.

These airports and airstrips are a particular problem. Many are operated only in the daytime. At night they are unattended and unmonitored.

The lights are simply turned off at night. The airport operator goes home and the airport is deserted for the entire night. It is a simple matter to have somebody in an automobile or two drive up to the airstrip at both ends of the strip, lighting up the landing strip. Then the illicit drug smuggler flies in, unloads the drugs and nobody knows the difference.

State and local law enforcement agencies simply do not have the manpower to monitor these airports and airstrips on anything approaching a regular basis at night or on weekends.

I believe we must allocate increased resources to denying these landing places to drug smugglers.

While anyone who reads the newspapers and listens to the news knows of the continuing wave of drug trafficking in Tennessee, the numbers are still staggering. In 1981 a raid in Sevier County, TN seized 600 pounds of pure cocaine with an estimated street value of $200 million.

In July 1982, in Cleveland, TN, law enforcement agents confiscated 1,200 pounds of pure cocaine worth nearly $600 million. Also seized were vehicles, weapons, and $450,000 in cash. This was the second largest cocaine seizure in U.S. history, and law enforcement officials believe the drugs were flown into Tennessee directly from Colombia.

The investigation of what has become known as the "Southern Comfort Gang" revealed that this one gang had smuggled 3,000 pounds of cocaine into the same Tennessee airport over a 3-month period. The resulting convictions broke the largest cocaine ring ever prosecuted in the United States.

This alarming trend has continued and drug dealers have become bolder and bolder.

Last September a drug smuggler flying over Tennessee set his plane on automatic pilot and bailed out with 80 pounds of cocaine strapped to his body. Luckily, his plane crashed in a wooded area. It could just as easily fallen on a residential area, a shopping center—or a school.

Unhappily for the drug smuggler, his parachute failed to open and he ended up in the backyard of a law-abiding citizen in Knoxville, who opened his back door the next morning to find a drug smuggler lying there dead, with cocaine strapped to his body.

More recently, law enforcement officers chased a drug-smuggling plane as it headed for the Chattanooga area. Realizing agents were closing in, the smugglers started dumping bales of cocaine overboard. They were finally captured outside Chattanooga with about 70 pounds of cocaine still on the plane.

Still, officials say they only know of a fraction of the illegal drugs coming into Tennessee and estimate that cocaine alone is a $500 million a year business in east Tennessee. And that is in an area where a vigorous effort is being made to apprehend drug smugglers and dealers.

This being the case, I was extremely disappointed to read the recommendations in Attorney General Meese's letter to the Congress last week which totally ignores the problems that States such as Tennessee are experiencing. The Attorney General's report calls for increased resources to be allocated to the Southwest border area—and certainly we need increased surveillance there.

But States such as Tennessee also need assistance. Not all the drugs are being intercepted along the coast. Inland States are now trying to cope with the drugs that are evading capture along the gulf coast. State and local officials are simply stretched to their limits. I believe that the Federal Government must focus on this problem and allocate increased resources to it.

In the weeks ahead, I will be offering a number of statements highlighting aspects of drug enforcement and prevention which are receiving less attention than they deserve.

One will be the need to improve and increase drug education efforts. As I travel around my State and visit schools, I talk to parents, students, and teachers who are concerned by the use of drugs among students—and drug use at a younger and younger age.

The need for drug education was vividly brought home by the tragic death of Maryland basketball star Len Bias. Here was a young man with his whole life ahead of him—and had fulfilled his every dream. And yet it was all gone in a few minutes.

Len Bias by all accounts a fine young man—who took his responsibility as a role model for others seriously. And yet, he died from what may well have been his first use of a deadly drug.

There is clear evidence that younger and younger students are trying drugs for the first time. We need to make a concerted effort to reach these young people before drug pushers do.

I shall be speaking on this subject again. I invite my colleagues to join me in exploring new strategies for combating drug trafficking and abuse.

□ 2020

Mr. SASSER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LET FREEDOM RING DAY

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House Joint Resolution 664, to designate July 3, 1986, as "Let Freedom Ring Day," and to request the President to issue a proclamation encouraging the people of the United States to ring bells on such day immediately following the relighting of the torch of the Statue of Liberty.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The joint resolution will be stated by title.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A joint resolution (H.J. Res. 664) to designate July 3, 1986, as "Let Freedom Ring Day", and to request the President to issue a proclamation encouraging the people of the United States to ring bells on such day immediately following the relighting of the torch of the Statue of Liberty.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, on July 4, 1986, Americans will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty. This is a celebration of our heritage as Americans. One way to take part in the celebration is to "Let Freedom Ring."

Today, the Senate will pass a joint resolution designating July 3, 1986, as "Let Freedom Ring Day." The resolution requests the President to issue a proclamation encouraging that bells across the country ring simultaneously at 10:53 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. The bell ringing would immediately follow President Reagan's lighting of the torch at the Statue of Liberty.

The Statue of Liberty symbolizes traditional values we Americans believe in—liberty, justice, freedom and opportunity. These were the basic values our ancestors came to America in search of. Many of our ancestors made the trek to America on boats via New York harbor and their first glance of the United States was the Statue of Liberty.

It is difficult to imagine a world without the values that have become part of our everyday lives. What if we were not allowed to practice our own religions, or say what we felt, or write what we thought? America became a melting pot of races, religions, ideas and dreams. Our ancestors came in search of what they could not find in their native countries.

As the 100th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty draws near, let us reflect on what it means to be an American. One way to take part in the celebration is to "Let Freedom Ring." The sound of bells ringing in every State across this great land of ours reminds us that we are Americans and we do enjoy the values of liberty, freedom, justice and opportunity.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise in support of House Joint Resolution 664, calling on all Americans to celebrate the relighting of the torch of the Statue of Liberty by ringing bells throughout the Nation on July 3, 1986.

It is my hope that every town hall, courthouse, and church steeple, or wherever bells symbolically commemorate important events, will ring out together in a truly nationwide salute to Lady Liberty and all the promise and hope that she has come to represent to the world.

From 1974 to 1976, I was privileged to work in each of the 50 States to assist communities in planning their individual commemorations. The capstone of those thousands of events took place with the parade of tall ships in New York harbor. On the deck of the U.S.S. Forrestal, I stood beside President Gerald R. Ford as he rang the bell of freedom signifying the historic event of our Nation's 200th birthday. As the President struck the first note, bells across America pealed in unison.

With the cherished memory of that successful bicentennial event in mind, I join with my colleague from Colorado, Mr. ARMSTRONG, in calling for this simple but meaningful demonstration to honor our Nation's monument to individual freedom.

Earlier today I spoke by telephone with Mr. David Wolper. Tonight, he is putting the finishing touches of genius on an American extravaganza which will begin to unfold July 3.

During the 1976 Bicentennial of our Nation, Mr. Wolper worked tirelessly and unselfishly, as he is doing today. Americans will always be proud of his unique contributions capturing the true spirit of our patriotic heritage.

The inspiration for "Let Freedom Ring Day 1986" came from Mr. Clarence "Sandy" Sandstrom of Mount Morris, IL, as voiced to Congresswoman LYNN MARTIN (Ill.-16). Following the leadership of Representative MARTIN, the U.S. House of Representatives has unanimously approved this resolution.

I am pleased to join with such patriots as David Wolper and Sandy Sandstrom in urging the Senate to adopt House Joint Resolution 664. In so doing we send a message to all Americans to "ring-in" the Centennial Celebration of the Statue of Liberty.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the third reading and passage of the joint resolution.

The joint resolution (H.J. Res. 664) was ordered to a third reading, was read a third time, and passed.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was passed.

Mr. BYRD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

MOMENT OF SILENCE FOR AMERICAN CAPTIVES IN LEBANON

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 362.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The concurrent resolution will be stated by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 362) to express the sense of the Congress that a moment of silence be held during the official ceremonies for the Statue of Liberty for the return of the American captives in Lebanon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the concurrent resolution?

Mr. BYRD. There is no objection, Mr. President.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. EVANS. Mr. President, I rise to support this resolution. The resolution calls for a moment of silence for the American hostages in Lebanon during the ceremonies celebrating the Statue of Liberty.

Mr. President, while I am a cosponsor of this resolution, I believe it can be improved. There are others who remain captive in Lebanon in addition to the five Americans noted in the resolution. There are a total of 11 hostages of different nationalities still held in Lebanon; of these, 7 are French.

I ask to have printed in the RECORD, at the conclusion of my remarks, the names of the other hostages held in Lebanon.

One hundred years ago, the country of France and the French people generously donated to America and the American people a wonderful symbol of the freedom and promise of our new land—the Statue of Liberty. The statue symbolized the commitment to freedom not only of the American people, but of the people of France as well. They have stood with us for liberty and equality since the birth of our Nation. We do not salute the past 100 years of Liberty alone—we are joined by all the free peoples of the world. Most of all we are joined in our Liberty celebration by France and the French people. I believe we would be remiss if we did not pay tribute to their captive countrymen. It is only fitting that we remember the French hostages during our celebration.

This resolution faces a tight schedule if it is to pass both Houses before we recess. I would like to offer an amendment to change the text of the resolution to include the seven Frenchmen and the other hostages. Mr. President, I will not offer such an amendment because I do not want to jeopardize the resolution's passage. I would strongly urge, and would ask my colleagues to join me in urging, that in calling for the moment of silence the names of all the hostages still captive in Lebanon also be included.

Our Liberty celebration and the relighting of the statue's torch will be a joyous occasion. The moment of silence affords us the opportunity to reflect on our freedoms and to remember those who cannot join our celebration because they are not free. The statue's torch has from the beginning been a beacon of hope and liberty. After 100 years, its light shines clearer and more brightly than ever. Let us hope that somehow its light will reach half way around the globe to all those in captivity to let them know they are not forgotten and to give them hope.

The names requested to be printed in the RECORD are as follows:

Marcel Fontaine, French.
Marcel Carton, French.
Jean-Paul Kaufmann, French.
Michel Seurat, French.
Aurel Cornea, French.
Jean-Louis Normandin, French.
Camille Sontag, French.
Alec Collett, British.
John McCarthy, British.
Brian Keenan, Irish.
Chae Sung Do, Korean.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I rise today in full support of this resolution.

Two weeks ago, I received a call from Sue Franceschini, sister of Father Lawrence Martin Jenco, one of the five Americans held hostage in Lebanon. Her request was a simple one that came as a result of that family's weekly Monday evening meeting. She said that the family had thought it would be appropriate, given the special nature of the Statue of Liberty celebration and the anguishing loss of freedom of the hostages, to hold a moment of silence for the captives at the Independence Day ceremony.

It is frankly a good idea. It is a good idea for us to reflect for at least a moment on the value of freedom. It is a good idea for us to keep this issue on the front burner. It is a good idea for this Nation to continue to do everything we can to secure the safe release of our countrymen.

It is my sincere hope that the sense of this resolution will become a reality during our Nation's commemoration of freedom.

I would like to make special note of the comments of the Senator from Washington. It is my sense that in those comments he has clarified the principles of freedom, justice, and dignity. These are rights which we as a nation believe should exist for all people. The right to freedom should not be limited to Americans, but is something for which we must continue to struggle for our international neighbors as well. We share a particularly poignant bond with the French on this occasion. I thank my colleague from Washington for his leadership and support his suggestion for the inclusion of all of the hostages in this moment of silence.

Finally, I would like to insert the names of those colleagues who have extended their support to this effort and thank them and their staff members for their responsiveness and concern for the hostages in Lebanon.

I ask unanimous consent that these names and this statement be inserted into the RECORD.

Mr. DIXON, Mr. D'AMATO, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KERRY, Mr. WILSON, Mr. DURENBERGER, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. ARMSTRONG, Mr. HART, Mrs. HAWKINS, Mr. SASSER, Mr. MITCHELL, Mr. NUNN, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. CRANSTON, Mr. GORE, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. MATTINGLY, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. BOSCHWITZ, Mr. HATCH, Mr. ZORINSKY, Mr. EVANS, Mr. PRYOR, Mr. RIEGLE, Mrs. KASSEBAUM, Mr. SYMMS, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. ANDREWS, and Mr. BRADLEY.

INDEPENDENCE DAY—NOT EVERYONE IS FREE

Mr. DIXON. Mr. President, this resolution calls for a moment of silence to be held on the Fourth of July. This time of reflection would take place during the official ceremonies for the rededication of the Statue of Liberty. It will be a time to remember the five Americans who are still being held hostage in Lebanon by the Islamic Jihad.

Father Lawrence Martin Jenco is from Joliet, IL. I have met with his family on several occasions. They continue to have faith in the humanity of the captors and the strength of Father Jenco, Terry Anderson of Florida, David Jacobson of California, Thomas Sutherland of Colorado and William Buckley of Massachusetts.

The American people must not forget that for 515 days, Father Jenco has been a prisoner. The others, too, have all been held for over a year.

The Fourth of July is traditionally a day which signifies freedom and happiness for most Americans. Our joy is greatly diminished, however, when we think about our fellow Americans being held as captives. Ironically, most of these victims had gone to Lebanon to help rebuild that torn nation and to ease the suffering of its citizens. Innocently, they were kidnaped from the streets of Beirut and forced into a dark and isolated world.

Thankfully, two of the hostages are now home—Jeremy Levin and Benjamin Weir. Their reports of the treatment of the others have been shocking. More recent reports indicate that they are no longer in isolation and are no longer being tortured. We can only hope that is the case. Yet, we must not forget these courageous and innocent Americans, victims of a much larger struggle, especially on our day of independence. I ask my colleagues therefore, to support this resolution for a moment in which our Nation can pray together for the release of the hostages so that they may return to their families and friends and enjoy the liberty that we all take advantage of each and every day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the concurrent resolution.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 362) was agreed to.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the concurrent resolution was agreed to.

Mr. BYRD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

□ 2030

TAX REFORM ACT OF 1986

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the text of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 (H.R. 3838) as amended and passed by the Senate on June 24, 1986.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the bill (H.R. 3838), as amended and passed by the Senate, will be printed in a subsequent edition of the RECORD.)

UNITED STATES SENTENCING COMMISSION

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from further consideration of H.R. 4801, a resolution to amend the United States Code to clarify certain duties of the U.S. Sentencing Commission, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, there is no objection to the discharge by the committee of this resolution and there is likewise no objection to moving to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill will be stated by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4801) to amend section 994 of title 28, United States Code, to clarify certain duties of the United States Sentencing Commission.

There being no objection the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is before the Senate and open to amendment. If there be no amendment to be offered, the question is on the third reading and passage of the bill.

The bill (H.R. 4801) was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

REFERRAL OF S. 1696 OR H.R. 1246

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when S. 1696, or the companion H.R. 1246, is reported from the Committee on Environment and Public Works, it then be sequentially referred to the Energy Committee for a period not to exceed 15 calendar days, and that the Energy Committee be automatically discharged at the expiration of the 15-day period if it has not reported the legislation.

Mr. BYRD. The request has been cleared on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

REFERRAL OF S. 1767

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Energy Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. 1767, Michigan Wilderness, and it be referred to the Agriculture Committee.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the request for discharge of the bill, S. 1767 and for its further referral to the Agriculture Committee, has been cleared on this side, and there is no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CALENDAR

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I inquire of the distinguished minority leader if he is in a position to pass any or all of the following calendar items:

Calendar No. 659, H.R. 237; Calendar No. 687, S. Res. 404; and Calendar No. 698, H.J. Res. 429.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the three items identified by the distinguished majority leader have been cleared by all Members on this side, and there is no objection to the request.

Mr. DOLE. I thank the minority leader.

I ask unanimous consent that the calendar items just identified be considered en bloc and passed en bloc and all committee-reported amendments be considered agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COLLECTION OF CERTAIN ATTORNEY'S FEES

The bill (H.R. 237) to amend the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act to provide that any attorney who collects debts on behalf of a client shall be subject to the provisions of such act, was considered, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DESIGNATING THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY AS THE U.S. REPRESENTATIVE TO THE TERCENTENARY CELEBRATION OF THE GLORIOUS REVOLUTION

The resolution (S. Res. 404) to designate the College of William and Mary as the official U.S. representative to the Tercentenary celebration of the Glorious Revolution was considered.

TERCENTENARY CELEBRATION OF THE GLORIOUS REVOLUTION AND THE REIGN OF KING WILLIAM III AND QUEEN MARY II

● Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, today the Senate is considering Senate Resolution 404, which would designate the College of William and Mary the official U.S. representative to the Tercentenary Celebration of the Glorious Revolution. This resolution was unanimously reported out of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It is not controversial.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank my esteemed colleagues on the Foreign Relations Committee for recognizing the importance of this legislation to the Nation. I would also like to thank my distinguished colleague from Virginia for his fine stewardship of this resolution during committee deliberations.

In 1988 celebrations begin for the Tercentenary of the Revolution, which marked a fundamental change in the relationship between man and government. The accession of King William III and Queen Mary II to the English throne in 1688 with the revolution, produced the bill of rights and the philosophical and political foundations upon which our forefathers built these great United States.

To celebrate this historical triumph, the Governments of the Netherlands and the United Kingdom have established the William and Mary Tercentenary Committee. The Tercentenary Committee has invited the College of William and Mary in Virginia to join the celebration as the new world representative because the college was chartered by King William and Queen Mary in 1693.

Mr. President, I believe it only appropriate for the Senate to designate the College of William and Mary as the official U.S. representative to the Tercentenary celebration.

A year-long program is planned to fully investigate the ramifications of the Glorious Revolution and to educate the public of its importance to our Nation. Programs are being planned to make our citizens aware of the values England and the Netherlands held in the 17th century. Additionally, an international conference may address such areas as the proper extent of governmental authority, the colonial impact of the events in England, American perceptions of constitutionalism, the role the English bill of rights played in the adoption of the Bills of Rights in America, and the impact of 17th century philosophers on the formation of colonial attitudes.

The United States will also begin celebrating the Bicentennial of its Constitution in 1989. Opportunities to hold joint events with the Bicentennial Committee will enhance the celebrations of both our Constitution and the Glorious Revolution. The potential for public participation in these events is great.

Such a designation for the College of William and Mary will demonstrate to other participating nations America's strong support of this celebration. The College of William and Mary's enhanced ability to raise private funds would allow the United States to make a meaningful contribution to this event at no cost to Federal taxpayers. The required trans-Atlantic logistics and communications network demand substantial private resources. This resolution will help William and Mary raise the funds to fulfill these demands. Furthermore, I am not aware of any other organization seeking such a designation, nor of any objections to this resolution.

Mr. President, as a Virginian with a deep respect for history, I would like to remind my colleagues how the Glorious Revolution is rooted in our history and the principles we cherish. Through English history, and at the time of the Glorious Revolution, the concepts of property right, privilege and immunity, due process, and the limitation of governmental power, were subject to the political expediency of the throne, and the self-sufficing control of the Parliament. Freedom or persecution, for many individuals, depended on the whim and conscience of the throne and the majority party in Parliament.

In 1688, the accession of William and Mary set into motion great changes, establishing a pattern of events leading directly to the American Constitution. For the first time, the laws governing individuals and the Parliament's relationship with the monarchy—the Bill of Rights—were codified in written form. Its existence eventually led to the belief that individuals conducted themselves according to written laws, and not according to the changing desires of the monarch. The Parliament learned to limit executive authority and abuse by directly controlling the Government's revenues and limiting the size of the army and its ability to abuse power.

Parliamentary laws further diluted the crown's omnipotence. The Triennial Act of 1694 asserted the freedom of Parliament to assemble and ensured frequent elections, making permanent a crude system of checks and balances. Religious persecution was inhibited by the 1689 Toleration Act. Its implementation eventually helped erode the belief that the state should sanction certain religions. Freedom of the press flourished after the lapse of the Licensing Act in 1695, which the church had used to censor divergent views.

The personalities of King William and Queen Mary complemented the actions of Parliament: supporting moderation and pluralism in religious beliefs; breaking the long precedent of pressuring judges, thus promoting the idea of an independent judiciary; and, administering the electoral and legal systems as the Parliament wished, contrasting with their predecessors, who perverted those systems for personal gain. In short, no other event introduced or strengthened so many principles we now hold so dear—the written Constitution, individual rights, freedom of speech and assembly, and the limitation of Government power—than did the Glorious Revolution.

The accession of William and Mary moved John Locke to publish Two Treatises of Government, in which he analyzed the characteristics of the accession and laid out a concise theory of government. John Locke's works were available to students at William and Mary, including Thomas Jefferson. Many of Jefferson's beliefs originated and were shaped during his years of higher education—at the College of William and Mary. The masters at the college were of the liberal spirit embodied in the enlightenment, and Locke's philosophy was taken for granted, so it is hardly a coincidence that Jefferson's beliefs closely mirrored Locke's. Locke's philosophy is deeply imbedded in the declaration of independence and our Constitution. For this, our great Nation is indebted to the Glorious Revolution.

Mr. President, it is my hope that my colleagues will support this admirable endeavor. Our forefather's education in the roots of democracy, as exemplified in the Glorious Revolution, proved indispensible for democracy. As our forefathers turned man's hopes into reality, so may these oppressed people realize their dreams of democracy. It is to these aspirations the Glorious Revolution's tercentenary celebrations are ultimately dedicated.

I urge my colleagues to support this resolution and ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of these remarks.●

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution and the preamble are as follows:

S. RES. 404

Whereas the years 1988-1989 signify the three hundredth anniversary of the accession of King William III and Queen Mary II to the throne of England; and

Whereas the Governments of the Netherlands and the United Kingdom have established a William and Mary Tercentenary Committee for the purposes of celebrating this event in all appropriate ways, including historical, educational, horticultural, maritime, artistic, scientific, and performing arts activities; and

Whereas the Tercentenary Committee has invited the College of William and Mary in Virginia, founded by their joint majesties under a royal charter granted in 1693, to be the New World representatives of the William and Mary Tercentenary celebration;

Whereas the historical and cultural ties of the 1688-1689 period to the constitutional history of the United States of America are profound, including the beginnings of the limited and constitutional government and the establishment of the English Bill of Rights; and

Whereas the College of William and Mary desires to organize and participate in celebrations relating to the Tercentenary in this country and in the Netherlands and United Kingdom as appropriate: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the College of William and Mary in Virginia is hereby designated as the coordinating body for the 1988-1989 celebrations relating to the world of William and Mary and its relationship to the former British colonies now known as the United States of America.

NATIONAL LITERACY DAY

The joint resolution (H.J. Res. 429) to designate July 2, 1986, as "National Literacy Day", was considered, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the various measures were agreed to or passed en bloc.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

ATLANTIC STRIPED BASS CONSERVATION ACT AMENDMENTS

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now turn to Calendar No. 647, S. 1813, a bill to extend the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Kansas?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, there is no objection on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be stated by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1813) to amend and extend the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, with an amendment to strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert the following:

SECTION 1. DEFINITIONS.

Paragraphs (3), (4), and (7) of section 3 of the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 1851 note) are amended to read as follows:

"(3) The term 'coastal waters' means—

"(A) for each coastal State referred to in paragraph (4)(A)—

"(i) all waters, whether salt or fresh, of the coastal State shoreward of the baseline from which the territorial sea of the United States is measured; and

"(ii) the waters of the coastal State seaward from the baseline referred to in clause (i) to the inner boundary of the exclusive economic zone;

"(B) for the District of Columbia, those waters within its jurisdiction; and

"(C) for the Potomac River Fisheries Commission, those waters of the Potomac River within the boundaries established by the Potomac River Compact of 1958.

"(4) The term 'coastal State' means—

"(A) Pennsylvania and each State of the United States bordering on the Atlantic Ocean north of the State of South Carolina;

"(B) the District of Columbia; and

"(C) the Potomac River Fisheries Commission established by the Potomac River Compact of 1958.".

"(7) The term 'Plan' means the Interstate Fisheries Management Plan for the Striped Bass, dated October 1, 1981, prepared by the Commission and all amendments thereto related to fishing, including application of the time table for size limits to all 1982 year class females and females of all subsequent year classes of Chesapeake Bay stocks taken in the coastal waters of each coastal state, as approved by the Commission's Striped Bass Board in October 1985, whether or not such language was formally adopted as an amendment to the Plan.".

SEC. 2. COMMISSION FUNCTIONS.

Section 4 of the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 1851 note) is amended by—

(a) striking subsections (a) and (c) and redesignating subsections (b) and (d) as (a) and (b) respectively.

(b) amending subsection (a), as so redesignated, to read as follows:

"(a) MONITORING OF IMPLEMENTATION AND ENFORCEMENT.—

"(1) During December of fiscal year 1987, and of each fiscal year thereafter, the Commission shall determine:

"(A) whether each coastal State has adopted all regulatory measures necessary to fully implement the Plan in its coastal waters; and

"(B) whether the enforcement of the Plan by each coastal State is satisfactory. Enforcement by a coastal State shall not be considered satisfactory by the Commission if, in its view, the enforcement is being carried out in such a manner that the implementation of the Plan within its coastal waters is being, or will likely be, substantially and adversely affected.

"(2) The Commission shall immediately notify the Secretaries of each negative determination made by it under this subsection.".

(c) amending subsection (b), as so redesignated, by—

(1) striking "subsection (c)" and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (a)";

(2) striking "Secretary shall determine" and inserting in lieu thereof "Secretaries shall determine jointly";

(3) striking "Secretary shall declare" and inserting in lieu thereof "Secretaries shall declare jointly"; and

(4) striking "the Secretary shall carefully consider and review the comments of the Commission, that coastal State in question, and the Secretary of the Interior" and inserting in lieu thereof "the Secretaries shall carefully consider and review the comments of the Commission and the coastal State in question".

SEC. 3. MORATORIUM.

Section 5(a)(2) of the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 1851 note) is amended by striking "Secretary" and inserting in lieu thereof "Secretaries".

SEC. 4. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

Section 7 of the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 1851 note) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 7. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

"For each of fiscal years 1986, 1987, and 1988, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out this Act.".

SEC. 5. EFFECTIVE PERIOD.

Section 9 of the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act is amended by striking "18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act." and inserting in lieu thereof "at the close of September 30, 1988.".

SEC. 6. FUNDING OF STRIPED BASS STUDIES.

Section 7(d) of the Anadromous Fish Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 767g(d) is amended by striking "and September 30, 1986" and inserting in lieu thereof "September 30, 1986, September 30, 1987, and September 30, 1988".

AMENDMENT NO. 2197

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk in behalf of Senator CHAFEE, an amendment to the committee substitute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Kansas [Mr. DOLE] for Mr. CHAFEE and Mr. STAFFORD, Mr. BENTSEN, Mr. MITCHELL, and Mr. BAUCUS, proposes an amendment numbered 2197.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 5, line 18, insert "(2)," immediately after "Paragraphs", strike the comma between "(3)" and "(4)" and insert in lieu thereof "and", and strike "(7)".

On page 5, after line 20, insert a new paragraph as follows:

"(2) The term 'Atlantic striped bass" means members of stocks or populations of the species Morone saxatilis, which ordinarily migrate seaward of the waters described in paragraph (3)(A)(i).".

On page 6, strike lines 21 through 25, and on page 7, strike lines 1 through 6.

On page 8, strike lines 9 through 25, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(c) amending subsection (b), as so redesignated, to read as follows:

'(b) SECRETARIAL ACTION AFTER NOTIFICATION.—

Upon receiving notice from the Commission under subsection (a) that a coastal State has not taken the actions described in that subsection, the Secretaries shall determine jointly, within 30 days, whether that coastal State is in compliance with the Plan and, if the State is not in compliance, the Secretaries shall declare jointly a moratorium on fishing for Atlantic striped bass within the coastal waters of that coastal State. In making such a determination, the Secretaries shall carefully consider and review the comments of the Commission and that coastal State in question.'.".

On page 9, strike lines 2 through 4 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 5 of the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 1851 note) is amended by—

(a) striking '(4)(d)' and inserting in lieu thereof '(4)(b)'.

(b) striking 'Secretary' and inserting in lieu thereof 'Secretaries'.".

On page 9, after line 22, insert a new section as follows:

"SEC. 7. TRANSFER OF MILES CITY NATIONAL FISH HATCHERY

Notwithstanding any other law, the Secretary of the Interior shall convey to the State of Montana, without reimbursement to the United States and no later than 30 days following enactment of this legislation, all of the rights (including all water rights), title, and interest of the United States in and to the fish hatchery property located south of Miles City, Montana, and known as the Miles City National Fish Hatchery, consisting of 168.22 acres, more or less, of land, together with any improvements and related personal property thereon. The property conveyed shall be used by the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks as part of the Montana fishery resources management program. If the property conveyed is ever used for other than these purposes, title to such property shall revert to the United States.".

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 2197) was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is open to further amendment. If there be no further amendments to be proposed, the question is on agreeing to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

● Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, the legislation before us today concerns a topic that I have been working on since 1979—saving the Atlantic striped bass.

The 1984 Annual Report to Congress on the Emergency Striped Bass Research Study concluded that striped bass stocks are continuing to decline as a result of contamination, habitat degradation, and fishing. The relative contribution of these factors to the decline is still unknown. But recent studies published this past year indicate that management measures to reduce fishing mortality, if stringent enough, would reverse the downward trend in striped bass numbers even if the principal cause for that decline is environmental degradation of spawning areas and not fishing pressure.

Now, I do not want to suggest that habitat preservation and control of environmental contaminants are not important. In the long run they are essential if we are to have a commercial and recreational striped bass fishery. In the meantime, we must do everything possible to reverse the decline of striper stocks by placing tight interstate controls on fishing.

In 1983 the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission amended their interstate fishery management plan for the striped bass to reduce fishing mortality by an additional 55 percent. The problem was that the Commission had no means of ensuring that the States actually adopted the regulations necessary to comply with these new requirements. We recognized that problem and that's why we enacted the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act in 1984. What we did there was direct the Commission to report on how well the plan was being implemented by the various States. The Federal Government, then, was authorized to impose a moratorium on the taking of striped bass in any State that the Commission found was not in compliance with the interstate plan.

However, in hearings this past July, which I chaired in the Environmental Pollution Subcommittee, we heard that there was disagreement with the Commission's finding that all States had taken sufficient action to achieve the 55-percent reduction in fishing mortality called for more uniform management actions by the States and for a clear-cut way of determining whether a State had complied with the plan's requirements.

Because of the shortcomings of the plan and the controversy surrounding the Commission's decisions on State compliance with that plan, I introduced the legislation before us today, which would have allowed the Interior and Commerce Departments to make a decision independent of the Commission's on whether a State had complied with the plan.

Since that time, however, the Commission's State representatives, who recognized the shortcomings of the plan, adopted yet another amendment in October of last year. I am encouraged by this. It may do the trick. It is designed to ensure that 95 percent of all female stripers hatched in the Chesapeake Bay in 1982, and every year since then, have a chance to reproduce at least once before being caught.

Of even greater significance is that the States approved, with no dissent, a timetable for putting some tough limits on the minimum-size striped bass that can be kept by commercial fishermen and recreational anglers alike. By summer of next year, the smallest Chesapeake Bay-reared striper that may be taken legally will have to be at least 33 inches in length. I believe that this timetable for imposing size limits over the next 1½ years will provide uniformity in the State's approaches to complying with the plan and that it also will provide a straightforward means for the Commission to make decisions on State compliance.

The Commission's State representatives have made the hard decisions that may be unpopular with some but that are clearly required to protect the striped bass. What I am proposing we do here today is amend and extend the current act, which expired April 30, to make sure that the States stick by their commitment to protect the Chesapeake Bay stocks of striped bass.

The Environment and Public Works Committee has approved a bill—S. 1813—that will ensure the proper protection for stripers. This legislation is supported by the other Senate committee concerned with management of the striped bass, the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, chaired by Senator DANFORTH.

The House already has approved similar legislation to amend and extend the 1984 Striped Bass Act. Like the Senate bill it gives the States a choice of either following through with what their representatives on the Commission approved or of having the Federal Government impose a moratorium on fishing in their coastal waters.

Both bills largely retain the present act's procedure of imposing and lifting moratoriums. Our legislation, however, requires that Federal decisions in this regard be made jointly by the Interior and Commerce Secretaries. Now, I understand that the Commerce Department objects to this shared role with the Interior Department. But full and equal participation by the Interior Secretary in these decisions is appropriate because Federal responsibilities, expertise, and participation in striped bass management are shared by the Commerce Department's National Marine Fisheries Service and the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Largely because the Commission adopted size limits, both the House and Senate bills would continue to give the Commission sole responsibility for determining whether a State is complying with the plan or enforcing it satisfactorily. In our bill these determinations would have to be made annually.

The amendments to the act in the Senate bill are intended to provide for coherent, continuing management of the stocks of striped bass that migrate through the waters of the Atlantic coast States, while retaining traditional State-Federal roles and responsibilities for fisheries management.

Mr. President, the committee does have a number of changes to make in the bill which we reported, and I now send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senators STAFFORD, BENTSEN, MITCHELL, BAUCUS, and myself, for the purpose of making clarifying and technical improvements to S. 1813 and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

Mr. President, our bill amended the definition of the term "plan", as used in the Striped Bass Act, to clarify that it includes the timetable for size limits approved by the Commission's striped bass board. That clarification has since been made in the report not only of our committee, but more importantly, in the report of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries. Consequently, the amendment by the leadership of the Environment and Public Works Committee would delete the clarifying amendment made by S. 1813 in the act's definition of the term "plan".

The committee amendment to S. 1813 also transfers the Miles City National Fish Hatchery from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to the State of Montana. If the property conveyed to Montana is ever used for something other than fishery resources management, the title to the property reverts to the United States.

Finally, the amendment makes a number of technical and clarifying changes.

I understand that the leadership of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation has no objection to these changes to S. 1813.

I move adoption of the amendment.●

● Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, I would like to express my support for reauthorization of the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act. The striped bass has been called the aquatic equivalent of the American bald eagle. These fish spawn in rivers from Florida to Canada, although a great portion of their lives is spent migrating along the North American coast of the Atlantic Ocean. This magnificent creature is a delectable tablefish as well as a prized game fish.

For a number of reasons striped bass stocks have been in severe decline over the past 15 years. Because they cross through the jurisdiction of many different States, no one State can effectively manage this valuable resource. To assure that the striped bass remain for future generations, an interstate conservation regime is the only alternative to a coastwide moratorium on all harvesting of this fish. The Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act allows for the implementation of just such an agreement. The Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission, which is comprised of representatives from all States on the Atlantic coast, develops management plans for striped bass. Under the Striped Bass Conservation Act, individual States have the choice of either complying with the plan or having a moratorium on fishing for striped bass in their waters.

The amendments we are proposing today extend and strengthen the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act. The definiton of coastal waters is amended to include waters of the Potomac River and the District of Columbia. The Commission is required to determine on an annual basis whether each coastal State has adopted measures necessary to fully implement the plan. If a State is not in compliance with the interstate plan, the Secretaries of Commerce and Interior would jointly declare a moratorium on fishing in that State.

I applaud Senator CHAFEE for his efforts with respect to this legislation. The Senator from Rhode Island has a longstanding interest in the health and management of striped bass. The Commerce Committee and the Environment and Public Works Committee share jurisdiction over this bill. We appreciate the cooperation that Senator CHAFEE and the Environment and Public Works Committee staff have shown throughout the deliberations on this measure.●

● Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, Atlantic striped bass have long been a prized gamefish and major commercial catch. In early American history striped bass was found as far north as the St. Lawrence River in Canada and as far south as the St. Johns River in Florida. South Carolina's Santee-Cooper lakes harbor fresh water striped bass stocks that are treasured by our recreational fishermen. They have been as popular in South Carolina as in the States of my northern neighbors, and we have also had to take firm management measures to avoid overfishing. In acknowledgment of its importance to South Carolina's anglers, the striped bass has been designated the official State fish. I support the reauthorization of the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act in order to check the recent disastrous decline in striped bass stocks.

Striped bass stocks have been in decline for a number of years due to pollution, habitat destruction, and heavy fishing pressure. The fish know no boundaries, however, and no one State has been able to restrain the decline. Each of the States from Maine to North Carolina has had different policies regarding striped bass, but due to the migratory nature of the fish this incoherent management scheme has been ineffective.

To remedy this problem, the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission, comprised of representatives from each of the Atlantic States, put forth an interstate management plan for striped bass in 1981. The Striped Bass Conservation Act originated shortly thereafter as a companion to the Commission's fisheries management plan. Under the act, the Commission evaluates the compliance of each State with the goals and policies stated in the striped bass plan and reports on the status of management to the Secretary of Commerce. If a State is not in compliance, a moratorium may be imposed by the Secretary on that State's striped bass fishery.

The amendments proposed in S. 1813 extend and strengthen the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act. The definition of coastal waters is amended to include waters of the Potomac River and the District of Columbia. This will allow the act to cover the full range of the important Chesapeake Bay striped bass stocks. The Commission will determine States' compliance with the striped bass plan goals on an annual basis. If a State is not in compliance, the Secretaries of Commerce and Interior will jointly declare a moratorium on fishing in that State.

The Senate Commerce Committee and the Environment and Public Works Committee shared jurisdiction over S. 1813. It has been a pleasure to work with the Environment Committee on this issue. I urge passage of this bill.●

TRANSFER OF THE MILES CITY NATIONAL FISH HATCHERY TO THE STATE OF MONTANA

● Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I rise in support of the committee amendment, which I requested, to transfer the Miles City National Fishery Hatchery to the State of Montana. Both the State and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service have endorsed this transfer.

For over 40 years, the hatchery was operated by the Federal Government. But in 1983, the Federal Government decided to pull out. Since 1983, the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks has operated the hatchery under a lease agreement with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Under the States direction, production at the hatchery has increased dramatically. The State-managed hatchery produced in its first year almost eight times as many walleye fry, three times as many walleye fingerlings, five times as many northern pike fingerlings and twice as many smallmouth bass as had been produced in the average of the last 3 years' production under Federal operation. The hatchery also began production of crappie, which had not been reared recently at Miles City.

Despite the improved production under State management, more fish need to be produced at the hatchery for eastern Montana waters. A significant portion of the hatchery's production also is needed for the Fort Peck Reservoir, a Federal impoundment.

To meet these goals, the State has proposed to invest $4.9 million to improve and expand production at the Miles City Fish Hatchery.

But the lease between the State and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is a year-by-year lease and can be broken on a short-term notice. Under this type of arrangement, the State cannot reasonably invest in the facility.

The Fish and Wildlife Service no longer needs this facility. The Service no longer plans to operate the hatchery.

Yet, without improvements, the hatchery doesn't meet the States needs. Montana needs an expanded facility. The Federal fish hatchery was constructed with public moneys. It should continue to be available to meet a public need.

This amendment would meet both needs. The Miles City Fish Hatchery would be transferred to the State of Montana. A public resource would be used for public benefit.

This transfer would be accomplished without any cost to the Federal Government. The amendment would ensure the continued use of the property for fish conservation and for maintaining the legendary sport fishing of Montana.

The amendment also specifies that the property would be used as part of the Montana Fishery Resources Program, and if ever used for other than these purposes, ownership would revert to the United States.

In short, all parties are anxious to see ownership of the Miles City Fish Hatchery transferred to the State of Montana. The State has demonstrated its ability to manage the facility. The facility would continue to be used for resource conservation.

The State has completed plans for $4.9 million in improvements. Work will begin on these improvements as soon as the State gains title to the property. Congress needs to act swiftly, so that this year's construction season will not be lost.

I strongly urge your support of this amendment.●

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment and the third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and was read the third time.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now turn to Calendar No. 637, H.R. 3358, the House companion bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be stated by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 3358) to reauthorize the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senate will proceed immediately to the consideration of the bill.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to strike all after the enacting clause and insert the text of S. 1813, as amended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Kansas.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment of the amendment and the third reading of the bill.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall it pass?

The bill (H.R. 3358) was passed.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that, if conferees are appointed to consider H.R. 3358, legislation to reauthorize the Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act, the Chair shall be authorized to appoint two members of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, one majority and one minority, as conferees for the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Calendar No. 647 be indefinitely postponed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I inquire of the distinguished minority leader if he is in a position to confirm any of the following nominations on the Executive Calendar.

Calendar No. 908, Robert B. Helms;

Calendar No. 909, Ronald F. Docksai;

Calendar No. 910, Michael R. Darby;

Calendar No. 912, Joyce Doyle;

Calendar No. 913, Diana D. Denman;

Calendar No. 914, James S. Rosebush;

Calendar No. 916, Under the Air Force;

Calendar No. 917-918, Under the Army;

Calendar No. 919-920, Under the Navy;

Calendar No. 921, Edward V. Hickey, Jr.;

Calendar No. 922, Evelyn E. Crawford Queen.

All nominations placed on the Secretary's desk, with the exception of Edwin Corr.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, all of the calendar numbers identified by the distinguished majority leader have been cleared by all Members on this side and so we are ready to proceed.

Mr. DOLE. I thank the distinguished minority leader.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I, therefore, ask unanimous consent that the Senate go into executive session to consider the nominations just identified and that they be considered en bloc and confirmed en bloc.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The nominations will be stated.

The nominations are considered en bloc and confirmed en bloc.

The nominations considered en bloc and confirmed en bloc are as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Robert B. Helms, of Maryland, to be an Assistant Secretary of Health and Human Services.

Ronald F. Docksai, of Virginia, to be an Assistant Secretary of Health and Human Services.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

Michael R. Darby, of Texas, to be an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

FEDERAL MINE SAFETY AND HEALTH REVIEW COMMISSION

Joyce Doyle, of New York, to be a member of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission for a term expiring August 30, 1992, reappointment.

NATIONAL FOUNDATION ON THE ARTS AND THE HUMANITIES

Diana D. Denman, of Texas, to be a member of the National Museum Services Board for a term expiring December 6, 1990, vice Liles B. Williams, term expired.

James S. Rosebush, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the National Museum Services Board for a term expiring December 6, 1989.

IN THE AIR FORCE

The following-named officers for appointment in the Reserve of the Air Force to the grade indicated, under the provisions of sections 593, 8218, 8373, and 8374, title 10, United States Code:

To be major general

Brig. Gen. Gene A. Budig, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Brig. Gen. Wayne O. Burkes, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Brig. Gen. Charles W. Harris, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

To be brigadier general

Col. Patrick S. Boab, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. John D. Campbell, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. Wallace P. Carson, Jr., [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. Robert J. Dwyer, [redacted] FG, Air Natioal Guard of the United States

Col. Timothy T. Flaherty, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. Frank B. Holman, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. Harvey D. McCarty, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. Edward E. Parsons, Jr., [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. Edward J. Philbin, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. Thomas J. Quarelli, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

Col. LeRoy Thompson, [redacted] FG, Air National Guard of the United States.

IN THE ARMY

The following-named officer to be placed on the retired list in grade indicated under the provisions of title 10, United States Code, section 1370:

To be lieutenant general

Lt. Gen. Donald M. Babers, [redacted], age 54, U.S. Army.

IN THE NAVY

The following-named officer, under the provisions of title 10, United States Code 601, to be reassigned to a position of importance and responsiblity designated by the President under title 10, United States Code, section 601:

To be vice admiral

Vice Adm. Daniel L. Cooper, [redacted] 1120, U.S. Navy.

FEDERAL MARITIME COMMISSION

Edward V. Hickey, Jr., of Virginia, to be a Federal Maritime Commissioner for the term expiring June 30, 1991, reappointment.

THE JUDICIARY

Evelyn E. Crawford Queen, of the District of Columbia, to be an associate judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia for a term of 15 years, vice George H. Revercomb.

NOMINATIONS PLACED ON THE SECRETARY'S DESK IN THE AIR FORCE, ARMY, MARINE CORPS, SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE

Air Force nomination of Ervin J. Rokke, which was received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 16, 1986.

Army nominations beginning Abraham A. Ghiatas, and ending Joey C. Dobbins, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 16, 1986.

Army nomination of Michael D. Mantooth, which was received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 16, 1986.

Marine Corps nominations beginning William H. Alley, Jr., and ending William R. Young, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 19, 1986.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the various nominations were confirmed en bloc.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the President be immediately notified of the confirmation of these nominations.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate return to the consideration of legislative business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

□ 2040

PROHIBITING CERTAIN ACTIVITIES WITH RESPECT TO SOUTH AFRICA

Mrs. KASSEBAUM. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation that I had hoped would never become necessary. However, events in South Africa in recent weeks have forced me to conclude that it is essential for us to take a much tougher stand on that Government's repressive policies. Therefore, today I am introducing a bill to add new restrictions on American economic and other links with South Africa.

I had hoped that the Government of South Africa would come to grips with the realities that confront it and take significant steps to produce peaceful change. However, 5 years of cooperative, conciliatory American policy to encourage such a process has now reached a dead end.

The Government of South Africa now has adopted an attitude of defiance and confrontation. It has become so intransigent that our policies appear to be entirely irrelevant. The Government simply does not care about what we think or do, and goes out of its way to tell us so.

Given this state of affairs, there are few good options available to us. I believe it is vital, however, that the United States respond forcefully to the present trend of events in South Africa. It is for that reason that I offer this legislation.

The bill does three main things. First, it puts into law the President's Executive order on South Africa, which otherwise would expire this September.

Second, it mandates additional restrictions on new bank loans and new investments in South Africa and on landing rights of South African Airways in the United States. These provisions are similar to those contained in legislation introduced by Senators KENNEDY and WEICKER.

Third, it sets guidelines for American stockpiling of South African strategic minerals and aid to black South Africans.

This bill is intended to send a strong message to the Government of South Africa that its policies of repression are unacceptable, and to clearly establish the consequences for the South African Government's continuing refusal to embark on a course of negotiation with black South Africans.

The Government's recent efforts to control black unrest by force are not only morally objectionable; they also will not work. Black disaffection and insistence on change are growing inexorably. If the South African Government does not begin negotiations for political change soon, it may find that that option is lost forever to a violent alternative.

I believe that the United States has a responsibility to convey this reality to the South African Government, and to convey that message in very tangible terms.

I am well aware that South Africa often sees outside pressure as an attempt to coerce or impose a solution.

But the growing feeling in the West that economic pressure is needed does not reflect willful interventionism. Rather it has been prompted by the actions of the South African Government itself, which have convinced many that South Africa is on a road to ruin.

I am also aware that Western pressure, no matter how skillfully applied, cannot solve the problems in South Africa. I am very concerned that many in the United States and in South Africa have unrealistic expectations about what outside pressure can accomplish, which could lead to disappointment.

Nevertheless, with all the limitations and problems, I think that the time has come for tangible actions to put pressure on the South African Government. I believe that the measures in this bill represent a reasonable balance between the need for pressure and the costs that inevitably must be paid by those we are trying to help.

I think it is very important that the United States coordinates its actions toward South Africa with other Western countries, and that the West present a united front to South Africa. Accordingly, I offer these proposals with the hope that, if enacted, they would be implemented in close cooperation with other Western governments.

I hope that this bill can form the basis for a constructive debate about our South Africa policy, which can lead to a consensus that reflects our common purposes in opposing apartheid and seeking peaceful change in that important nation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2636

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "South African Restrictions Act of 1986".

SEC. 2. PROHIBITIONS ON LOANS TO, NEW INVESTMENT IN, AND OTHER ACTIVITIES INVOLVING SOUTH AFRICA.

(a) PROHIBITIONS.—No United States person may, directly or through another person—

(1) make any loan or other extension of credit to, or provide funds for the purpose of making a loan or other extension of credit to, the Government of South Africa or any corporation, partnership, or other organization which is owned or controlled by the Government of South Africa, as determined under regulations which the President shall issue; or

(2) otherwise make any investment in South Africa.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—

(1) The prohibition contained in subsection (a)(1) shall not apply to any loan or extension of credit for which an agreement is entered into before June 1, 1986.

(2) The prohibition contained in subsection (a)(2) shall not apply to an investment which consists of earnings derived from a business enterprise in South Africa established before June 1, 1986, and which is made in that business enterprise.

SEC. 3. PROHIBITION ON LANDING RIGHTS OF SOUTH AFRICAN AIRCRAFT.

(a) PROHIBITION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, including any international agreement, the Secretary of Transportation shall prohibit the takeoff and landing of any aircraft by an air carrier owned, directly or indirectly, by the Government of South Africa, by South African nationals or, in the case of an aircraft which is scheduled to land in or which has taken off from South Africa, an air carrier owned, directly or indirectly, by United States nationals.

(b) EXCEPTIONS FOR EMERGENCIES.—The Secretary of Transportation may provide for such exceptions from the prohibition set forth in subsection (a) as the Secretary considers necessary to provide for emergencies in which the safety of an aircraft or its crew or passengers are threatened.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section, the terms "aircraft" and "air carrier" have the meanings given those terms in section 101 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (49 U.S.C. App. 1301).

SEC. 4. LABOR PRACTICES OF UNITED STATES FIRMS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

(a) It is the policy of the United States to encourage strongly all United States firms in South Africa to adhere to fair labor principles which have benefited those in South Africa who have been disadvantaged by the apartheid system.

(b) Accordingly, no department or agency of the United States may intercede with any foreign government regarding the export marketing activity in any country of any national of the United States employing more than 25 individuals in South Africa who does not adhere to the principles stated in subsection (c) with respect to that national's operations in South Africa. The Secretary of State shall promulgate regulations to further define the employers that will be subject to the requirements of this subsection and procedures to ensure that such nationals may register that they have adhered to the principles.

(c) The principles referred to in subsection (b) are as follows:

(1) Desegregating the races in each employment facility;

(2) Providing equal employment opportunity for all employees without regard to race or ethnic origin;

(3) Assuring that the pay system is applied to all employees without regard to race or ethnic origin;

(4) Establishing a minimum wage and salary structure based on the appropriate local minimum economic level which takes into account the needs of employees and their families;

(5) Increasing by appropriate means the number of persons in managerial, supervisory, administrative, clerical, and technical jobs who are disadvantaged by the apartheid system for the purpose of significantly increasing their representation in such jobs;

(6) Taking reasonable steps to improve the quality of employees' lives outside the work environment with respect to housing, transportation, schooling, recreation, and health;

(7) Implementing fair labor practices by recognizing the right of all employees, regardless of racial or other distinctions, to self-organization and to form, join, or assist labor organizations, freely and without penalty or reprisal, and recognizing the right to refrain from any such activity.

(d) It is the sense of the Congress that United States nationals referred to in subsection (b) should take reasonable measures to extend the scope of their influence on activities outside the workplace, by measures such as supporting the right of all businesses, regardless of the racial character of their owners or employees, to locate in urban areas, by influencing other companies in South Africa to follow the standards specified in subsection (c), by supporting the freedom of mobility of all workers, regardless of race, to seek employment opportunities wherever they exist, and by making provision for adequate housing for families of employees within the proximity of the employee's place of work.

SEC. 5. LABOR AND PROCUREMENT PRACTICES OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT IN SOUTH AFRICA.

(a) The Secretary of State and the head of any other department or agency of the United States carrying out activities in South Africa shall promptly take, to the extent permitted by law, the necessary steps to ensure that the labor practices described in section 2(c) are applied to their South African employees.

(b) The Secretary of State and the head of any other department or agency of the United States carrying out activities in South Africa shall, to the maximum extent practicable and to the extent permitted by law, in procuring goods or services in South Africa, make affirmative efforts to assist business enterprises having more than 50 percent beneficial ownership by persons in South Africa disadvantaged by the apartheid system.

SEC. 6. PROHIBITION ON THE IMPORT OF MILITARY ARTICLES.

No arms, ammunition, or military vehicles produced in South Africa or of any manufacturing data for such articles may be imported into the United States.

SEC. 7. ECONOMIC SUPPORT FOR DISADVANTAGED SOUTH AFRICANS.

Chapter 4 of part II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 535. ECONOMIC SUPPORT FOR DISADVANTAGED SOUTH AFRICANS.—(a) Not less than $25,000,000 of the funds authorized to be appropriated to carry out this chapter for the fiscal year 1987 and each fiscal year thereafter shall be available for assistance for disadvantaged South Africans. Assistance under this section shall be provided for activities that are consistent with the objective of a majority of South Africans for an end to the apartheid system and the establishment of a society based on non-racial principles. Such activities may include scholarships, assistance to promote the participation of disadvantaged South Africans in trade unions and private enterprise, alternative education and community development programs.

"(b)(1) Not less than $1,500,000 of the amounts provided in each fiscal year pursuant to subsection (a) shall be available to carry out with respect to South Africa the human rights purposes described in section 116(e)(2)(A) of this Act, of which not less than 35 percent shall be used for direct legal and other assistance to political detainees and prisoners and their families and for support for actions of black-led community organizations to resist, through non-violent means, the enforcement of apartheid policies.

71-059 O-87-37 (Pt. 11)

"(2)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), grants under this subsection may not exceed $10,000.

"(B) Of the amounts allocated to carry out this subsection, $100,000 shall be available each fiscal year only for grants to organizations which have available for their use resources whose value is at least equal to the amount of the grant under this subsection. Grants of up to $30,000 may be made to organizations. For purposes of this subparagraph, the term "resources" includes, in addition to cash assets, in-kind assets and contributions such as equipment, materials, and staff and volunteer time.

"(c) Assistance provided pursuant to the section shall be made available notwithstanding any other provision of law and shall not be used to provide support to organizations or groups which are financed or controlled by the Government of South Africa. Nothing in this subsection may be construed to prohibit programs which are consistent with subsection (a) and which award scholarships to students who choose to attend South African-supported institutions.

"(d) In providing assistance pursuant to this section, priority shall be given to working with and through South African nongovernmental organizations which are community-based and whose leadership and structure represent and have the support of the disadvantaged communities being served. Private organizations not based in the community, but which provide needed services to disadvantaged South Africans, may also receive assistance if such organizations and their programs have the demonstrable support of the disadvantaged communities being served.".

SEC. 8. NUCLEAR TRADE BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND SOUTH AFRICA.

(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law—

(1) no license may be issued for the export to South Africa of goods or technology which are to be used in a nuclear production or utilization facility, or which, in the judgment of the Secretary of State, are likely to be diverted for use in such a facility;

(2) no authorization to engage, directly or indirectly, in the production of any special nuclear material in South Africa may be given;

(3) no license may be issued for the export to South Africa of component parts or other items or substances especially relevant from the standpoint of export control because of their significance for nuclear explosive purposes; and

(4) no retransfer to South Africa of any goods, technology, special nuclear material, components, items or substances described in paragraph (1), (2), or (3) may be approved.

(b) Nothing in this section precludes assistance for International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) safeguards or IAEA programs generally available to the member countries of the IAEA, or for technical programs for the purpose of reducing proliferation risks, such as for reducing the use of highly enriched uranium and activities envisaged by section 223 of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act (42 U.S.C. 10203) or for exports which the Secretary of State determines are necessary for humanitarian reasons to protect the public health and safety.

(c) The Secretary of State, the Secretary of Energy, the Secretary of Commerce, and the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section.

SEC. 9. EXPORTS TO SOUTH AFRICAN GOVERNMENT.

(a) No computers, computer software, or goods or technology intended to service computers may be exported, directly or indirectly, to or for use by any of the following entities of the Government of South Africa:

(1) The military.

(2) The police.

(3) The prison system.

(4) The national security agencies.

(5) ARMSCOR and its subsidiaries or the weapons research activities of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research.

(6) The administering authorities for the black passbook and the book of life systems.

(7) Any apartheid enforcing agency.

(8) Any local, regional, or homelands government entity which performs any function of any entity described in paragraphs (1) through (7).

(b)(1) Computers, computer software, and goods or technology intended to service computers may be exported, directly or indirectly, to or for use by an entity of the Government of South Africa other than those set forth in subsection (a) only if a system of end use verification is in effect to ensure that the computers involved will not be used for any function of any entity set forth in subsection (a).

(2) The Secretary of Commerce may prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section.

(c) For purposes of this section, the term "computer" includes any computer that is the direct product of technology of United States origin.

SEC. 10. REGULATORY AUTHORITY.

The President shall issue such regulations, licenses, and orders as are necessary to carry out this Act. The President shall issue such regulations not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 11. ENFORCEMENT AND PENALTIES.

(a) AUTHORITY OF THE PRESIDENT.—Subject to subsection (b), the President shall take the necessary steps to ensure compliance with this Act and any regulations, licenses, and orders issued to carry out this Act, including establishing mechanisms to monitor compliance with this Act and such regulations, licenses, and orders. In ensuring such compliance, the President may conduct investigations, hold hearings, administer oaths, examine witnesses, receive evidence, take depositions, and require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of all books, papers, and documents relating to any matter under investigation.

(b) PENALTIES.—

(1) FOR PERSONS OTHER THAN INDIVIDUALS.—Any person, other than an individual, that knowingly violates the provisions of this Act or any regulation, license, or order issued to carry out this Act shall be fined not more than $500,000.

(2) FOR INDIVIDUALS.—Any individual who knowingly violates the provisions of this Act or any regulation, license, or order issued to carry out this Act shall be fined not more than $250,000, or imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

(c) ADDITIONAL PENALTIES FOR CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Whenever a person commits a violation under subsection (b)—

(A) any officer, director, or employee of such person, or any natural person in control of such person who willfully ordered, authorized, acquiesced in, or carried out the act or practice constituting the violation, and

(B) any agent of such person who willfully carried out such act or practice, shall be fined not more than $250,000, or imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

(2) RESTRICTION ON PAYMENT OF FINES.—A fine imposed under paragraph (1) on an individual for an act or practice constituting a violation may not be paid, directly or indirectly, by the person committing the violation itself.

(d) SEIZURE AND FORFEITURE OF AIRCRAFT.—Any aircraft used in connection with a violation of section 3 or any regulation, license, or order issued to carry out that section shall be subject to seizure by and forfeiture to the United States. All provisions of law relating to the seizure, forfeiture, and condemnation of articles for violations of the customs laws, the disposition of such articles or the proceeds from the sale thereof, and the remission or mitigation of such forfeitures shall apply to the seizures and forfeitures incurred, or alleged to have been incurred, under this subsection, insofar as such provisions of law are applicable and not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act; except that all powers, rights, and duties conferred or imposed by the customs laws upon any officer or employee of the Department of the Treasury shall, for purposes of this subsection, be exercised or performed by the Secretary of Transportation or by such persons as the Secretary may designate.

SEC. 12. SOUTH AFRICAN STRATEGIC MINERALS.

The President shall review existing stockpile and contingency plans for ferrochrome, ferromanganese, platinum, and vanadium, to ensure that United States Government stockpiles of these minerals, together with domestic production and conservation capabilities, are adequate to meet defense and commercial needs in the event of a cutoff of supply of these minerals from South Africa for a period of up to three years.

SEC. 13. REPORTING REQUIREMENT.

(a) Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall prepare and transmit to the Congress a report on the value, in terms of dollar amount and military significance, of American military technology transferred to South Africa, including any such technology transferred through third countries.

(b) Not later than twelve months after the transmittal of a report under subsection (a), and every twelve months thereafter, the President shall prepare and transmit to the Congress a report setting forth the value, in terms of dollar amount and military significance, of such technology transferred during the preceding twelve months.

SEC. 14. PROHIBITION ON THE IMPORTATION OF KRUGERRANDS.

(a) No person, including a bank, may import into the United States any South African krugerrand or any other gold coin minted in South Africa or offered for sale by the Government of South Africa.

(b) For purposes of this section, the term "United States" includes the States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and any territory or possession of the United States.

SEC. 15. CONSULTATION AMONG GOVERNMENT AGENCIES.

In carrying out their respective functions and responsibilities under this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Commerce shall consult with the Secretary of State. Each such Secretary shall consult, as appropriate, with other government agencies and private persons.

SEC. 16. POLICY TOWARD FRONTLINE STATES.

It is the sense of the Congress that the President should discuss with the governments of the African "frontline" states the effects on them of disruptions in transportation or other economic links through South Africa and of means of reducing those effects.

SEC. 17. TERMINATION OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS.

The provisions of sections 2, 3, 6, 8, 9, 12, and 14 and all regulations, licenses, and orders issued to carry out such provisions shall terminate upon the certification by the President to the Congress that the Government of South Africa—

(1) has freed Nelson Mandela and all political prisoners, and has entered into good faith negotiations with truly representative leaders of the black majority for a new political system; or

(2) has totally dismantled the apartheid system.

SEC. 18. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this Act—

(1) UNITED STATES PERSON.—The term "United States person" means any United States resident or national and any partnership, corporation, or other entity organized under the laws of the United States or of any of the several States, of the District of Columbia, or of any commonwealth, territory, or possession of the United States.

(2) INVESTMENT IN SOUTH AFRICA.—The term "investment in South Africa" means—

(A) a commitment of funds or other assets (in order to earn a financial return) to a business enterprise located in South Africa or owned or controlled by South African nationals, including—

(i) a loan or other extension of credit made to such a business enterprise, or security given for the debts of such a business enterprise;

(ii) the beneficial ownership or control of a share or interest in such a business enterprise, or of a bond or other debt instrument issued by such a business enterprise; or

(iii) capital contributions in money or other assets to such a business enterprise; or

(B) the control of a business enterprise located in South Africa or owned or controlled by South African nationals, in cases in which subparagraph (A) does not apply.

(3) SOUTH AFRICA.—The term "South Africa" includes—

(A) the Republic of South Africa;

(B) any territory under the administration, legal or illegal, of South Africa; and

(C) the "bantustans" or "homelands", to which South African blacks are assigned on the basis of ethnic origin, including the Transkei, Bophuthatswana, Ciskei, and Venda.

(4) BUSINESS ENTERPRISE.—The term "business enterprise" means any organization, association, branch, or venture which exists for profitmaking purposes or to otherwise secure economic advantage, and any corporation, partnership, or other organization which is owned or controlled by the Government of South Africa, as determined under regulations which the President shall issue.

(5) BRANCH.—The term "branch" means the operations or activities conducted by a person in a different location in its own name rather than through a separate incorporated entity.

(6) SOUTH AFRICAN NATIONAL.—The term "South African national" means—

(A) a citizen of South Africa; and

(B) any partnership, corporation, or other entity organized under the laws of South Africa.

(7) CONTROL BY SOUTH AFRICAN NATIONALS.—South African nationals shall be presumed to control a business enterprise or foreign bank if—

(A) South African nationals beneficially own or control (whether directly or indirectly) more than 50 percent of the outstanding voting securities of the business enterprise or bank;

(B) South African nationals beneficially own or control (whether directly or indirectly) 25 percent or more of the voting securities of the business enterprise or bank, if no other person owns or controls (whether directly or indirectly) an equal or larger percentage;

(C) the business enterprise or bank is operated by South African nationals pursuant to the provisions of an exclusive management contract;

(D) a majority of the members of the board of directors of the business enterprise or bank are also members of the comparable governing body of a South African national;

(E) South African nationals have the authority to appoint a majority of the members of the board of directors of the business enterprise or bank; or

(F) South African nationals have the authority to appoint the chief operating officer of the business enterprise or bank.

(8) CONTROL BY UNITED STATES PERSONS.—A United States person shall be presumed to control a business enterprise in South Africa if—

(A) the business enterprise is operated by the United States person pursuant to the provisions of an exclusive management contract;

(B) a majority of the members of the board of directors of the business enterprise are also members of the comparable governing body of the United States person;

(C) the United States person has the authority to appoint a majority of the members of the board of directors of the business enterprise; or

(D) the United States person has the authority to appoint the chief operating officer of the business enterprise.

(9) LOAN.—The term "loan" includes an extension of credit as defined in section 201(h) of the Credit Control Act (12 U.S.C. 1901(h)).

(10) BANK.—The term "bank" means—

(A) any depository institution as defined in section 19(b)(1)(A) of the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. 461(b)(1)(A));

(B) any corporation organized under section 25(a) of the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. 611 et seq.);

(C) any corporation having an agreement or undertaking with the Federal Reserve Board under section 25 of the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. 601 et seq.); and

(D) any bank holding company as defined in section 2(a) of the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956 (12 U.S.C. 1843(a)).

SEC. 19. APPLICABILITY TO EVASIONS OF ACT.

This Act and the regulations issued to carry out this Act shall apply to any person who undertakes or causes to be undertaken any transaction or activity with the intent to evade this Act or such regulations.

SEC. 20. CONSTRUCTION OF ACT.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed as constituting any recognition by the United States of the homelands referred to in section 18(a)(3)(C).

ROUTINE MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there be a period for the transaction of routine morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 9:15 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak therein for 5 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

IMPEACHMENT TRIAL

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, on behalf of the distinguished majority leader and myself, I am about to submit a Senate resolution for appropriate referral to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

Mr. President, by way of explanation of the reasons for the resolution, on June 3 the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives, Mr. RODINO, introduced House Resolution 461, a resolution calling for the impeachment of Judge Harry E. Claiborne, chief judge of the U.S. District Court for the District of Nevada.

If impeachment is voted by the House with respect to Judge Claiborne, the Senate could be faced this year with conducting the first impeachment trial in 50 years. The last instance involved the impeachment trial of Judge Halstead L. Ritter, U.S. district judge for the southern district of Florida, in 1936.

The last time the Senate rules and precedents applicable to impeachment trials were examined in depth was in 1974, in anticipation of a possible impeachment trial of President Nixon. In my capacity at that time as assistant majority leader, I cosponsored a leadership resolution—Senate Resolution 370—that was adopted by the Senate, which directed the Rules Committee to review the existing rules and precedents that apply to impeachment trials, with a view to recommending to the Senate "any revisions, if necessary, which may be required if the Senate is called upon to conduct such a trial." The Rules Committee, acting at several executive sessions pursuant to the direction of Senate Resolution 370, conducted a thorough review and study of the impeachment trial rules and practices. I chaired certain of those executive sessions in my capacity as chairman of the Subcommittee on Standing Rules of the Senate and I participated extensively in the committee's work. As a result of our deliberations, the committee concluded that certain amendments to the present "rules of procedure and practice in the Senate when sitting on impeachment trials" were desirable. Those proposed amendments were embodied in Senate Resolution 390, which the Rules Committee ordered reported to the Senate as an original resolution on August 21, 1974. No further action was taken by the Senate on that resolution.

Mr. President, the Senate Resolution 390 which was reported by the Rules Committee in 1974 contained some very significant proposed amendments to the rules. Those proposals should again be considered by the Rules Committee, and soon, especially in view of the possibility that there might be an impeachment trial in the Senate before the end of this year.

Parenthetically, may I state that I called the Speaker of the House of Representatives today to inquire as to how soon the House of Representatives would take up the impeachment resolution in the event that that resolution is reported out by the Judiciary Committee. The Speaker informed me that it would be the intention of the House leadership to take the matter up before the House very soon following the recess for the Independence Day holiday.

So this would mean that, in the event the House acts on that resolution promptly, as the Speaker indicated that it would do, and in the event that the matter comes over to the Senate, the Senate then would be confronted with the immediate prospects of—it could be immediate, and certainly before the end of the year—with the prospects of conducting a trial of Judge Claiborne in accordance with the Constitution.

In order to prepare for such eventuality, then, I have offered the resolution on behalf of the distinguished majority leader and myself, which will direct the Rules Committee to "review any and all existing rules and precedents that apply to impeachment trials with a view to recommending any revisions, if necessary, which may be required if the Senate is called upon to conduct such a trial." The resolution instructs the committee to report back to the Senate "no later than August 1, 1986." This is the same manner by which this process was initiated in 1974.

I have also discussed with the distinguished majority leader the submission of a resolution authorizing the printing of additional copies of a document entitled "Procedure and Guidelines for Impeachment Trials in the United States Senate," which was prepared at my request and direction in 1974.

I will shortly send that resolution to the desk on behalf of the distinguished majority leader and myself.

I thank the distinguished majority leader for his cosponsorship of these resolutions. I now send them to the desk and, of course, they will be referred appropriately.

I ask unanimous consent that they also be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the resolutions were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. RES. 438

Resolved, That the Committee on Rules and Administration is directed to review any and all existing rules and precedents that apply to impeachment trials with a view to recommending any revisions, if necessary, which may be required if the Senate is called upon to conduct such a trial.

Resolved further, That the Commmittee on Rules and Administration is instructed to report back no later than August 1, 1986.

S. RES. 439

Resolved, That Senate Document 93-102, 93rd Congress, 2nd Session, entitled "Procedure and Guidelines for Impeachment Trials in the United States Senate" be reprinted as a Senate document and that there be printed, in addition to the usual number of copies of such document, such additional copies as are allowed to be printed under the limitations imposed by section 703 of title 44, United States Code.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished majority leader and I yield the floor.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, let me thank the distinguished minority leader for taking the initiative. I think it is well that we be prepared because, as I understand the conversation with the Speaker, in addition to a brief comment I had with the Republican leader in the House, BOB MICHEL, if it is going to be over here, we might as well be brought up to date and be prepared.

So I wish to thank the distinguished minority leader for taking this initiative.

Mr. BYRD. I again thank the majority leader.

THE BUDGET CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, let me also indicate that at 8:30 the House and Senate budget conferees went back to see if they could agree on a budget conference document. I am not certain how long that will take and I am not certain how long it will take the House to act if there should be an agreement.

□ 2050

But we would like to complete action on the budget conference report before we leave here this weekend. I hope that we can do it without a RECORD vote. A number of our colleagues on each side I do not think will find it too convenient to come in here at midnight or after to vote. I think the only other alternative is to decide the fact it will happen and we will put it off until a reasonable hour tomorrow.

So I hope that my colleagues who have indicated they wanted a RECORD vote will take a careful look at the document, if it is agreed to by the House and Senate budget conferees, and perhaps we can avoid a rollcall vote. I think some of us are willing to stay here most of the night to await the budget conference report but I am not certain that it would be fair to many of our colleagues to call them out of bed to come back for a RECORD vote. It would seem to me the better thing to do would be come back in tomorrow morning or sometime before noon and take it up at that time.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I share with the distinguished majority leader the hope that this matter can be disposed of by voice vote. Nonetheless, recognizing the right of any Senator to ask for a rollcall vote, I am not in position at this moment to say that there will be no such request on this side.

As a matter of fact, I am informed of two Senators on this side of the aisle who have indicated that they may wish to have a rollcall vote on the matter.

Nevertheless, discussions are continuing with those two Senators, and it may be that I can inform the distinguished majority leader shortly as to whether or not they will request a rollcall vote. At that point, then the distinguished majority leader may act accordingly.

Mr. DOLE. Let me indicate that so far on this side there has been no request for a record vote. It does not mean one will not jump up. But so far there has been no request. And we hope that, in fact, the budget conference can reach agreement, and we can complete action before the recess.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I have two additional requests, if the distinguished majority leader will bear with me.

I ask unanimous consent that a statement which I wish to make commending the managers of the supplemental appropriations conference report appear in the RECORD.

I also wish in that statement to not only commend those managers, but also to thank them for the support that they gave to me with respect to certain provisions and amendments carried in the bill that pertain in particular to West Virginia. I make that request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The statement appears earlier in today's RECORD.)

THE BOREN CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM AMENDMENT

Mr. BOREN. Mr. President, let me express to the distinguished majority my appreciation for the good faith discussions we have had about bringing S. 655, with my amendment cosponsored by 12 others on campaign finance reform, back to the floor of the Senate. As my colleagues will recall, the Senate failed to table the amendment by a vote of 84 to 7, demonstrating an overwhelming feeling that campaign finance reform should be addressed by the Congress. In discussions late last year in December, it was agreed that the other provisions of S. 655 would be inserted in another bill by unanimous consent in return for a commitment by the majority leader that S. 655 would be called up in time for full Senate and subsequent House consideration prior to the election this year. Mr. President, the distinguished majority leader has shown his willingness to keep that commitment by indicating his intention to move Calendar Order 300—S. 655 with the pending Boren amendment—sometime between the August 4 and 15. The distinguished majority leader has also agreed to allow at least two legislative session days to consider the proposal, with the understanding that the term "session days" includes Fridays and Mondays and, if the majority leader so desired, the measure could be called up on a Friday or Monday, but that if a vote occurs, it would occur on a subsequent day of the week, after a reasonable period for additional debate on the day of the vote.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, as my distinguished colleague from Oklahoma has indicated, it would be my intention—barring any unforeseen necessity to bring up some other time-sensitive matter—to move to proceed to S. 655, with the pending Boren amendment on campaign finance reform, in early August, but no later than the 15th, when we recess for Labor Day.

As my colleague, Senator BOREN, has stated, I have made a commitment to bring S. 655, with the Boren amendment, back to the Senate for consideration, and it would be my hope that we will be able to dedicate 2 days—and perhaps a little longer—to this matter. Let me just say that there are a number of other pressing legislative measures which must be acted upon before we adjourn this year, and it may indeed be necessary to schedule this measure on a Friday and a Monday, with the expectation that any vote which might occur would take place on a subsequent day, after allowing a reasonable period of time for additional debate on the date of the vote. Allow me also to take this opportunity to express the hope that some common ground may be reached in the negotiations on this topic, which are currently taking place among members of the special task forces appointed by the two leaders. However, should those negotiations fail to produce any such result, our legislative agenda simply does not permit me to allocate an unlimited amount of time to debate this subject with no hope of a mutually satisfactory resolution. In any event, if for any reason some unforeseen development or time-sensitive legislation prevents my moving to proceed on S. 655 by the first week in August, I would intend to move to it as soon as possible thereafter, and in any case, before the Labor Day recess begins.

Mr. BOREN. Mr. President, again let me thank my colleague, Senator DOLE. I well realize the many constraints under which he must work and the difficulties in setting the Senate schedule, and I appreciate the courtesy and understanding which he has extended to me and the other cosponsors of this particular piece of legislation. I realize that should some unforeseen emergency prevent the leader from the sequence that he intends, that he would move to S. 655 at the earliest possible date thereafter.

Again, I express my appreciation to the distinguished majority leader.

Mr. DOLE. I thank the Senator from Oklahoma. We will do everything we can to meet this schedule. I also, as I have indicated in the statement, want to extend it. I do not want to get confused. We are attempting to work it out. We have a number of people. The Senator from Oklahoma met, I think, with Senator BOSCHWITZ and there are others on our so-called task force. The minority leader has appointed a number of Members on his side. It may be that we can reach some agreement. If that is the case, it would certainly simplify the problem.

Mr. BOREN. I thank the distinguished majority leader for his remarks. I certainly hope we can. He has been eloquent on this subject himself many, many times. I think all of us realize that there is a real need for campaign reform and to bring the way in which we finance elections into line with the basic American principles, and also to try to get some sort of movement in the right direction on getting campaign costs under control. It is a very serious problem and one which I know many of us share.

I thank the majority leader.

Mr. BYRD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. KASSEBAUM). The minority leader.

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, as a cosponsor of S. 655, may I say that the distinguished majority leader has made a very strong and firm commitment with respect to this measure.

Having formerly been majority leader, I know what some of the constraints are upon the majority leader. I know what some of the uncertainties and the imponderables are as he attempts to look down the road.

So, looking at it from that viewpoint, I do not see how the distinguished majority leader could have made a more reasonable and clear commitment than he has just stated.

May I say, Madam President, one further thing: That is, when the majority leader states his clear understanding and his commitment on a matter of this kind, I have always found him to keep that commitment. I think of one very clear instance which just comes to my mind at this point. That was the commitment that the distinguished majority leader gave to me with respect to calling up the resolution governing television coverage of the Senate debates. He never deviated from that commitment. He kept it. I commented on it at the time.

So, I have found this majority leader a man of his word, as I have found his predecessor. They are men of their word.

I do not know how one could say more than the distinguished majority leader has said.

Mr. DOLE. Madam President, I want the RECORD to reflect my appreciation for the kind remarks. Certainly, as the distinguished minority leader knows, having been the majority leader, all you really have around here is your word. If you fail in that, maybe you can get away with it one time, but that would be all. Sometimes it is nigh impossible to keep it. But I think if we all respect the rights of our colleagues on both sides, in the long run it is a happy place.

We will be working with the Senator from Oklahoma. I do not feel that anybody feels that the present campaign financial laws are perfect and could not be changed. I would hope we could find some common ground.

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, is the Senate in morning business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is in morning business.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the Chair.

EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION TO MS. JEANIE BOWLES

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, I send to the desk a Senate resolution on behalf of myself and the distinguished majority leader [Mr. DOLE], and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 440) expressing appreciation to Mrs. Jeanie Bowles.

S. RES. 440

Whereas, Ms. Jeanie Bowles has performed in an exemplary manner all of the duties of her position of Assistant Editor in the office of the Official Reporters of Debates, which position she has held since she was appointed to it on February 2, 1981; and

Whereas, Senators and staff with occasion to work with Ms. Bowles admire her helpfulness and respect the high quality of her work; and

Whereas, the work of the Senate has been aided immeasurably by Ms. Bowles' commitment to fulfill the responsibilities of her position in an exemplary manner; and

Whereas, Ms. Bowles has been appointed to the position of Superintendent of Documents of the United States Senate, in recognition of the conscientious way in which she performs all tasks assigned to her and the consistent superior quality of her work—

Therefore, be it resolved, that the United States Senate expresses its appreciation to Ms. Jeanie Bowles for her years of dedicated service as Assistant Editor in the Office of the Official Reporters of Debates, and extends its best wishes for success in her new position of Superintendent of Documents for the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senate will proceed to its immediate consideration.

The Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution (S. Res. 440) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

Mr. DOLE. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was agreed to.

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

A WORTHY HONOR

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, an annual rite of spring at most colleges and universities is the awarding of honorary degrees—a ceremony in which many of our Senate colleagues have been privileged to participate and often an occasion for warm and enjoyable encounters with the academic community.

Most such awards are gracious recognitions of the achievements, contributions, and/or talents of outstanding men and women.

That is certainly the case of one honorary Doctor of Laws degree that Stetson University in Florida granted last month to Dr. Floyd M. Riddick, Parliamentarian Emeritus of the United States Senate.

Dr. Riddick for many years served with distinction, unselfishness, and brilliance, first as the Assistant Senate Parliamentarian, and then as the Senate Parliamentarian. Beginning his duties in those capacities in 1951, Dr. Riddick worked at the elbows of Vice-Presidents Alben Barkley, Richard M. Nixon, Lyndon B. Johnson, Hubert H. Humphrey, Spiro Agnew, Nelson Rockefeller, and, for a time, Gerald Ford. During that period, he was also the advisor and friend of countless distinguished Senators.

Since his official retirement in 1974, Dr. Riddick has continued to serve the Senate whenever needed or asked, and he has updated his authoritative book Senate Procedure, which he co-authored in 1951 and 1964 editions with former Senate Parliamentarian Charles Watkins.

I congratulate Dr. Riddick on the receipt of this most recent honor, and I commend Stetson University for its wisdom in singling out an especially qualified scholar and exemplary American on whom to bestow its degree.

Madam President, I also want to call attention to the fact that Dr. Riddick, during all of the years of his retirement and continuing up to this day, has continued to serve the United States Senate without pay. He works with the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration. He works in the office of that committee. He is there for any Senator who may wish to inquire about the rules of the Senate or who has questions about the history and precedents of the Senate.

He faithfully attends committee meetings of that committee. Here is a man sui generis, one of his kind, one who is so dedicated to the service of the U.S. Senate that he continues to serve without salary unstintingly, giving of his time, his talents, and his strength to the service of this institution which he so dearly loves.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the degree conferred upon Dr. Riddick be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, a copy of the degree was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STETSON UNIVERSITY
HEREBY CONFERS UPON
FLOYD MILLARD RIDDICK
THE HONORARY DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAWS

In testimony whereof the seal of the university and the signatures authorized by the board of trustees are hereunto affixed, given at Deland, Florida on the eighteenth day of May nineteen hundred and eighty-six.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I want to associate myself with the remarks of the distinguished minority leader with reference to Dr. Riddick.

Mr. President, certainly, the minority leader has worked more closely with Dr. Riddick than has this Senator, but all of us on both sides of the aisle have great respect and admiration for his service to the U.S. Senate, which is continuing without any remuneration. We appreciate very much his continued efforts.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished majority leader for his thoughtful and kind remarks. I am sure that Dr. Riddick will appreciate them.

□ 2110

Mr. HATFIELD. Madam President, I only wish I had been here on the floor when the Democratic leader was paying his tribute to Dr. Floyd Riddick, whom I also consider to be a very good friend. I was fortunate not only to be here in the Senate during the time he was Parliamentarian but now to be on the Rules Committee, and to have the continued service of Dr. Riddick as consultant to the Rules Committee is indeed a very fortunate situation for both the committee and the Senate to be in. I commend the Democratic leader for his appropriate tribute to Dr. Riddick.

URGENT SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1986—CONFERENCE REPORT

The Senate continued with consideration of the conference report.

Mr. HATFIELD. Madam President, I believe the House of Representatives has returned the supplemental appropriations bill to the Senate having not concurred with the amendment offered by the Senate to No. 175. Am I correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct. It has been returned.

Mr. HATFIELD. Madam President, I ask that the Chair lay before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives on H.R. 4515.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the House of Representatives:

Resolved, That the House disagree to the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 175 to the bill (H.R. 4515) entitled "An Act making urgent supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1986, and for other purposes.".

Mr. HATFIELD. Madam President, this is the amendment that had been offered by Senator JOHNSTON of Louisiana. Senator JOHNSTON and I discussed the possibility of this occurring. Senator JOHNSTON understood that if it did occur, we would then move to recede from that amendment. Therefore, at this time, I do make the motion that the Senate recede from amendment No. 175.

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, I am authorized by the distinguished Senator from Louisiana [Mr. JOHNSTON] who is the ranking member on this side, to state that he is aware of the circumstances and that he is aware of the motion that has been made by the distinguished chairman. We regret the necessity for the motion but we do understand.

Mr. HATFIELD. I thank the Democratic leader. Let me indicate that I, with great reticence and reluctance and sadness, offer this motion. I did support the effort of the Senator from Louisiana to be helpful to the oil and gas workers not only in Louisiana but in all the States that do have oil and gas workers.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further comment? If not, the question is on agreeing to the motion to recede from the Senate amendment to the House amendment to the Senate Amendment No. 175.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was agreed to.

Mr. BYRD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. Madam President, I thank the distinguished minority leader.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the distinguished Senator.

RAY "MIKE" LARKIN

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I wish to comment on the passing of a distinguished West Virginian, Mr. Ray Larkin—better known as "Mike"—of Paw Paw in Morgan County, on Saturday, June 21, 1986.

Ray was born on November 2, 1925, in Cumberland, MD. After graduating from Paw Paw High School in 1940, he served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. Following his discharge from the Navy, he traveled to Capitol Hill to begin a career that spanned 27 years. Ray served on the U.S. Capitol Police Force and as a senior doorkeeper for the Senate.

Just to the right of where I am standing, at the door, Senators daily, over the years, spoke to Ray Larkin, who was at that door at his post of duty, faithful always.

He was well liked by all Senators, and especially do I have a feeling of loss at his passing.

I should also say that during those years, he ably served West Virginia Senators: Harley M. Kilgore; Matthew M. Neely; my former colleague, Jennings Randolph; and myself, as well as having served my staff and me and many other West Virginians through us.

When Ray retired in 1982 in order to spend more time managing his farm in Morgan and Hampshire Counties, he left many friends here at the Capitol. In his service to the Senate he never forgot the people of West Virginia. Upon returning to Paw Paw, Ray established a friendship with the town's young people. He provided many of them with jobs after school on his farm and in his small furniture business.

During the floods of last November in West Virginia Ray contributed countless hours of his time and his own resources to help those stricken even though his own home and farm were partially destroyed.

Ray is survived by his mother, Mrs. Beulah Larkin; three daughters, Mrs. Janice Ireland, Mrs. Brenda Bagley, and Mrs. Peggy Lake; and four grandchildren. His wife, also a former Senate employee, Virginia Hardy Larkin preceded him in death in 1984.

Mr. President, I will miss him, as I know that his many friends here in the Senate will miss him.

Our prayers go out to his mother and others of his family and to his many friends in Morgan and Hampshire Counties and throughout all of West Virginia.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

□ 2130

Mr. DOLE. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. DOLE. Madam President, I understand that the budget conferences have now reached an agreement, and they may vote in the House about 10:15, and then it will be transmitted to the Senate.

I still hope there will not be a request for a rollcall vote in the Senate, because by the time we get it here, it will be 11 o'clock, and it will be after 11 before we have a vote; and I think many of our Members may have gone home for the evening.

RECESS UNTIL 10:20 P.M.

Mr. DOLE. Madam President, I move that the Senate stand in recess until 10:20 p.m.

The motion was agreed to, and at 9:38 p.m., the Senate recessed until 10:20 p.m.; whereupon, the Senate reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer [Mr. TRIBLE].

□ 2220

THE BUDGET RESOLUTION CONFERENCE REPORT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I thank the distinguished Presiding Officer.

Mr. President, the budget conference report for fiscal year 1987 will momentarily be considered on the floor, I thought that in the interest of both time and understanding I would make my comments now. Those who will be discussing and explaining the budget, particularly our distinguished chairman, the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. DOMENICI] and the ranking member, the distinguished Senator from Florida [Mr. CHILES], have heard from me on this particular score because we have just left the conference committee whereby the House and Senate conferees have joined in agreement. The budget conference report is now being considered and we are told it will pass the House in a moment or so and then be considered here in the Senate.

I wanted to make these comments in explaining my objection to the budget conference report and why I did not sign it to record that particular objection. I think that the body should know it is my feeling that the votes are here to adopt the conference report. But be that as it may rather than hold up the Senate until later with a detailed rollcall or otherwise losing credibility, which a Senator can lose at this late hour, I hope to gain some credibility for the budget process by registering this comment and objection.

Specifically, Mr. President, where we are now is practically where we were in August of last year when we adopted the 1986 budget. You will hear both the distinguished chairman and the ranking member say that this budget conference will be in conformance with the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings directive to keep the 1987 deficit to the amount of $144 billion. That it more than complies in that regard by drawing it down to $142.5 billion deficit, and having complied they in general have a very, very good budget.

All budgets have differences. All budgets are not agreed upon in every item, but I am only speaking to the importance of the discipline that we began to set and have continued to set, perhaps up until now during this calendar year.

I should be honest in my observation of the leadership given by both Senators DOMENICI and CHILES. They have worked around the clock. I have been in the conference with them when we have had the open conferences. They have done a masterful job by way of persistence. There has been no lethargy or indolence or lack of concern. I know conscientiously, for example, both would agree to a higher defense amount. Senator DOMENICI and I would particularly agree that a budget figure for the national defense function, function 050 of $301 billion in budget authority and some $282 billion in outlays would be more in order for the defense and security of this country.

So there are some fundamentals we have all agreed on and they have worked very hard for them. But they have not been able to effect the complete discipline of deficit reduction due to the President of the United States. And I say that most respectfully. The President of the United States endorsed Gramm-Rudman-Hollings and with his help and leadership we passed it in both Houses and he signed it into law. But he immediately began hedging. He hedged before his signature.

I remember meeting with Jim Miller, at that time the Director of the Office of Management and Budget designate, during a Sunday afternoon session and he said that the President had to have his defense figures. He said Gramm-Rudman-Hollings would not touch defense and there also would not be any revenues to bring the deficit down. As one of the principal authors of the act I said, "Well, then count me out, because I represented it otherwise to my colleagues; I do not think I could go along with an approach unless it is across the board, balanced, and impartial with respect to programs. I also stated unequivocally that the Congress and the President both be allowed to consider expenditures and revenues in a balanced fashion, and defense and domestic spending in a balanced fashion." So they began to hedge and said they would have to look carefully at what we included.

Gramm-Rudman-Hollings included a balanced approach whereby you could have revenues or you could have spending cut on a combination of both. But you had to reduce the deficit and balance the budget. Otherwise, you would flip the trigger and require across-the-board cuts. Bluntly put, Gramm-Rudman-Hollings did not increase anybody's budget. It did not decrease anybody's budget. It said, "Let's have truth in budgeting." And on that particular point, to be extreme so as to be understood, you could give all the money to the Pentagon and eliminate the domestic side of Government and as long as you paid for it there was no trigger. Or you could eliminate the Pentagon and give it all to food stamps and as long as you paid for it there was no trigger. The trigger measure was in a lesser amount each year over a 5-year period to draw down on the $200 billion deficits that we have been running, bringing Government back into the black by the end of fiscal year 1990.

The President understood it. He signed it. He said, "It is great and we are still working for it, but there just can't be any revenues."

Well, that might be polemic or political strategy to squeeze every bit of spending cuts that the President may feel necessary, but this view did not begin this particular year, 1986. That started in 1981 and we have been on a course now for some 5 years of squeezing the budget. But as to his Republican colleagues and leadership in this Congress they don't agree with him. I can sit with Senator STAFFORD, the distinguished Republican chairman of the Education Committee, and he says, "We are not going to cut education any more."

I can sit with Senator MCCLURE, the Republican chairman of the Energy Committee, and he says, "We are not going to do away with the Energy Department, we are not cutting that. The President might think so but we are not going to do it." In 5 years running we have not done it. And the President continues to red-line certain programs that are not going to be red-lined. He tried 44 of them this year. I understand a man though convinced against his will is of the same opinion still. And so the President insists on his position, but in doing so he destroys a complete discipline that we could have at this particular hour on the budget process itself.

Let me emphasize the good of the process. The good is the discipline that we set in February. We immediately cut some $11.7 billion from last year's budget under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings. And we did it without a peep in either body of the Congress. Rumblings in the back aisles, yes. There are many who still will not agree. But they could have put in resolutions, they could have put in alternatives. No resolutions, no motions, no amendments, no alternatives. Again, on a late evening at approximately this same hour in March we made a point of order and saved $1 billion on an agriculture bill that had not been included in either body.

The conferees just stuck it in under an old habit knowing that we could plead about the great need of farmers, but, of course, farmers are suffering from the deficit as well as any. And so we held and saved that billion dollars.

We then had the reconciliation bill in April saving some $18 billion. And now the discipline set with respect to the 1987 budget. We now have both the House and the Senate acting in a historical fashion, history at least for the past 5 years, whereby instead of increasing budgets we cut the deficit some $38 billion in both Houses.

□ 2230

The discipline extended to tax reform. I am confident that had we not made the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings point of order with respect to tax reform, we would not have had the requirement for the revenue-neutral amendments. And we would have had many more amendments. We could have broken into extravagant spending and provided for more loopholes and more shelters. I am confident that Senator PACKWOOD, the leader, would agree in a flash that Gramm-Rudman-Hollings helped in the enactment of the historic tax reform bill we passed this week in the U.S. Senate.

Back to where we were in August 1985: At that particular time, when the 1986 budget conference was talking about a $171 billion deficit, I said no, the deficit is nearer $200 billion; and right now, CBO is going to give it to us as $210 billion or higher. So I was conservative.

Now I am back, and I have the same objection to this particular budget conference report. I see the very same predicament now as then whereby the leadership will tell you that we have reduced the deficit below the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings target to $142.5 billion, and CBO will be out by the middle of August and tell you it is nearer $165 billion, and we will have a sequester.

These leaders are of good judgment. They are judging a different thing than I am. I am trying to hold that discipline, and they are trying to be realists and say: "Look, like Kansas City, we have gone as far as we can go." Is it better that we take this particular budget and sequester from it or sequester from the 1986 budget, which would be the case with Gramm-Rudman-Hollings come October 1. If we sequester from Gramm-Rudman-Hollings on October 1—namely, the 1986 budget—you would be looking for $20 billion to $30 billion from a baseline deficit of $160 to $175 billion.

Now, under this particular one that the conferees have agreed to and presented to the Senate, yes, I think they are right; they would say maybe $10 billion and I would say nearer $20 billion for a sequester.

We had a $10 billion cushion built into the $144 billion deficit target for 1987, so we look at it in terms of $154 billion. Let me stress that particular point.

I wanted us, as conferees, to not look to the outside limit but look to the limit itself of $144 billion. But since the President was adamant and since he sat there and would not give at all, there was not much for the conferees to do.

The House Members had been burned. In 1982, the President of the United States asked the distinguished chairman, Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI, of the House Ways and Means Committee, for a tax increase. Chairman ROSTENKOWSKI and the House Members responded and went home and were blamed for it in the election by the President.

There is no education in the second kick of a mule. So they have sat there, like a mule, and said: "Wait a minute. We're not going forward with these revenues, with the President ready to give us that second kick."

We had Senator DOMENICI, Senator DOLE, and the entire Republican leadership, BOB MICHEL and everybody else we could, to plead rhyme and reason.

They came back in a delegation—the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Chief of Staff—and they said: "Let's have an auction sale. Let's sell the assets of the Government."

Winston Churchill said: "I did not come to preside over the demise of the British Empire." In this budget work, I certainly have not come to preside over the fire sale of the Government during the particular few years of tenure that we are allowed by the grace of the American people to serve in the Senate. But back to my major point, before I go into the details that give me the misgivings.

We are back to the same point again on what the real deficit estimate should be. They will tell you, that if you watch their language and you understand what they describe. Rather than $142.5 billion, it is going to be nearer $165 billion. I object to these kinds of soft figures. We know this minute, using the February estimate of CBO of 3.1-percent growth, under the GNP, that that has been on the optimistic side. CBO will come in August and tell us it is going to be nearer 2 percent or less; and under that particular prediction, we are going to lose some $15 billion, which is going to increase the deficit even this year. That is to be added on, because it is not to be triggered now.

We know, in addition, that the oil overcharge, was supposed to take effect in 1987; perhaps it will not. As Jimmy the Greek would give you a bet, or like a weather report, there is an 80-percent chance of it not happening and a 20-percent chance of it happening. In that case, that is $2 billion over and above that can be added to the deficit.

Take the matter of Conrail: No one really believes the sale is going to occur, and we have $1.9 billion in the budget for the Conrail sale. It could occur, but I have found Congressman DINGELL, the chairman in the House a pretty tough fellow. He has made known his opposition to the sale.

We have the loan assets I mentioned and some other soft figures—and there are the things I object to.

I also object to the defense figure, I say to the Senator from Michigan, because he is particularly interested in it.

If you take the national defense figure of $292 billion in budget authority and $279 billion in outlays under the 1987 proposal that will be before us, you will find that the $269 billion in outlays for defense for 1986, has been reestimated by CBO to be $275 billion. Therefore it will only be increasing by $4 billion from fiscal year 1986 to fiscal year 1987.

The distinguished Presiding Officer [Mr. TRIBLE] is a very active Member regarding defense issues. He would understand that if I, as an appropriator, have to fashion my outlays to $292 billion in budget authority. The only way I can do that, is to cut into operations and maintenance, and readiness. I do not think any of us in this body want to make those cuts.

So, I have resisted on those particular points.

A unique approach is in here that should be noted. I give Senator DOMENICI credit for establishing a reserve fund. It is more or less what the President said when I first proposed the budget freeze. He was in Indianapolis. The distinguished former majority leader, Senator Baker, came to me and said: "Fritz, if you will present your budget freeze tomorrow morning, I will be on the Senate floor with Senator DOLE, of the Finance Committee, and others, and let's see if we can get a bipartisan movement for a budget freeze."

□ 2240

That was 4 years ago.

That night in Indianapolis, President Reagan was rather annoyed, and he said, "If you don't like my particular budget then give me an alternative. Put up or shut up."

The next morning when I put up, President Reagan and TIP O'NEILL said, "Shut up." Speaker O'NEILL wanted more for social programs; the President wanted more for defense programs.

So what the distinguished chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, has done, is given us a put-up-or-shut-up reserve fund here. If you really want these amounts in defense, and I hope you do, then you will have to put up the revenues. The reserve fund could be used for deficit reduction or as well as increasing domestic programs. The reserve fund contains $9.9 billion in budget authority and $4.8 billion in outlays for fiscal year 1987.

There was a provision that limited the defense amount provision to $299 billion in budget authority and $282 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987. So the President could increase the defense number from $292 billion to $299 billion in budget authority as well as increasing the outlay number from $279 billion to $282 billion if it passed the Congress. We thought $299 billion was a realistic budget authority number and $282 billion was a realistic outlay number for 1987 when we passed the Domenici-Chiles budget here in the U.S. Senate.

I think that is forthright. The President has put us in this sort of untenable position. No budgeteer likes to write contingency provisions. We like to be as accurate as possible. We like to be clear and understood. But we just cannot get President Reagan to budge on this issue. He has better credibility with the public on this score than we have.

No one, including the ranking Republican Member on the House side—DEL LATTA, says "I endorse this approach: I am taking it to my Republican colleagues. We have done the best we can do and we are going to have to fence this amount."

So, the reserve fund is a good idea and it puts the President to the task. Maybe it will bring into focus the difficulty that we have had because each year Congress has been willing to lead. I remember last year the Republicans here in the U.S. Senate put in a freeze proposal and it called for revenues. In September the President and Speaker O'NEILL got together, and then all of that discipline that had been set under their leadership went right down the drain.

We have tried again. We continue to knock on the door. We want a budget. And the budget conference, yes, will provide a better sequester basis than the fiscal year 1986 baseline but it is not the level of discipline that we wanted. No one can get total discipline. That is fanciful for anyone to suggest that.

But I feel a consciousness. You could see the Members in the conference, on both sides, had a little give and take on certain items. People parry back and forth to get their views a greater weight and a greater acceptance. But when you come right down to it, we held the line. And if we did not have Gramm-Rudman-Hollings working against the $212 billion deficit for 1986 and we had no requirement whatsoever to draw down on that deficit to the $144 billion target, heaven knows it would be up to $240 or $250 billion.

So I am a realist and I accept that. But somewhere and sometime in this debate on the budget it should be explained to the Members what we have done, and the soft figures that had to be accepted.

I do not want to take any more of the Senate's time at this particular late hour.

I do appreciate the leadership allowing me to present my views now, I see Senator DOMENICI and others are on the floor.

So unless there is further comment, Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

□ 2250

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for a quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER [Mr. SIMPSON]. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT OF THE TWO HOUSES OVER THE INDEPENDENCE DAY HOLIDAY

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate turn to consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 364, the adjournment resolution, with recall language.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 364) providing for a conditional adjournment of the two Houses from June 26 or 27 until July 14, 1986.

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the House adjourns on Thursday, June 26, 1986, or on Friday, June 27, 1986, pursuant to a motion made by the Majority Leader, or his designee, in accordance with this resolution, and that when the Senate adjourns on Thursday, June 26, 1986, or on Friday, June 27, 1986, pursuant to a motion made by the Majority Leader, or his designee, in accordance with this resolution, they stand adjourned until 12 o'clock meridian on Monday, July 14, 1986, or until 12 o'clock meridian on the second day after Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution whichever comes first.

SEC. 2. The Speaker of the House and the Majority Leader of the Senate, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the House and the Minority Leader of the Senate, shall notify the Members of the House and the Senate, respectively, to reassemble whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Kansas?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the concurrent resolution. The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 364) was agreed to.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the concurrent resolution was agreed to.

Mr. BYRD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

THE BUDGET RESOLUTION CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, it is my understanding that we have the principals here, members of the Budget Committee, and others who would like to speak on the budget. The House is now voting on the conference report and it should be over here briefly. Maybe we could save a little time if we hear some of the debate now.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I understand that we will have the budget resolution over here from the House shortly and that, even though it is not formally before us, some Senators would like to begin to debate the issue or ask questions.

I have brief remarks before we come to that point when we are ready to vote, but at this point I yield the floor. If there are any questions of the Senator from New Mexico, obviously, I will try to answer them.

I yield the floor at this time.

□ 2300

Mr. GLENN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, I voted against the budget resolution when it first came before this body last month because I did not believe the budget would deliver what its sponsors said it would deliver. I thought the numbers were not as solid as they should be. In fact, I believe the sponsors of the bill themselves said they gave them much more credit for what they did than they deserved, and that it probably could not deliver. In other words, the numbers were somewhat loose, and the American taxpayers were being misled by how much they would have to pay in extra taxes to support the budget.

Mr. President, the budget resolution has now been reported out of conference. Let me first be complimentary to those who have led this effort: Senator DOMENICI and Senator CHILES. No one around this whole Congress has labored longer, harder, or tried to work out the differences between ourselves and the House than they—indeed between ourselves within our own Chamber here, and then with the House.

□ 2310

They have spent nights here and mornings here and vacations here trying to get through this. They have tried to preserve some of these essentials of Embassy protection, air traffic safety, and some of those things that we see endangered if we have to go into a sequester type situation.

But I think we must look at this, the Federal budget, as one of the most important items to come before the Congress. So I deplore the fact that only a couple of us this evening have had a hold on whether we were going to have a rollcall vote on the budget resolution or not. It came down to where I was the last one left, so we are saying we are not going to have a rollcall vote on this. I have just withdrawn my requirement for a record rollcall vote on this tonight.

Here we are about to have what I view as one of the most important votes that we will cast because it sets the tone, in fact it sets the levels, at which we will be able to spend, which we will place on budget authority and budget outlays, and so on.

I say it is so important because we are talking about $1 trillion of budget authority. We have votes in this Congress all the time and votes on this Senate floor that involve tiny amounts, comparatively speaking, a few hundred thousand dollars or a few million. But here we are, in the middle of the night; in the interest of all getting out of here for this Fourth of July break, we are going to pass the conference report without questioning anything about it to any degree; we are going to pass a budget that has $1 trillion in budget authority and $995 billion, almost $1 trillion, in budget outlays.

So I say this is one of the most important votes of the session and it is going to go on a voice vote. We have yet to have any discussion on the Senate floor about the assumptions that were made with regard to inflation or gross national product; with regard to whether we are going to have to have taxes or not; whether we have to sequester or not; what the employment assumptions are, the inflation assumptions, the gross national product assumptions.

Will a sequester be likely under this budget? Will we get into huge figures on sequestering where we are forced to cut across the board on life and death items like airlines safety, the Food and Drug Administration, checking up new drugs? Are we setting up a new thalidomide situation?

The sequester under Gramm-Rudman is one where there is no choice. Under a sequester we give up our right to make decisions about priorities for Government spending. Yet we are to pass this on a voice vote this evening, without even really fully understanding what we are voting for, and just in the last few minutes, as a matter of fact, even having a hard copy of what we are voting for.

So I say while I voted against this when it went to conference because I was very concerned about some of the assumptions, I would like to go ahead and explain this just a little further.

My colleagues will recall that in an effort to meet the Gramm-Rudman targets the budget that we voted out at that time called for $13.2 billion in new taxes. That sounds like a lot of money and it is.

I would like to remind my colleagues of how we in the Senate reached that number.

Originally, the number in the budget resolution was a lot higher, totaling $18.5 billion. During the course of debate we added another $3 billion, approximately. We then faced the prospect of having to tell the American taxpayers that their taxes would go up by more than $21 billion.

Then it seems a funny thing happened on the way to final passage. The Senate "found" $8 billion. We found that simply by making some different assumptions about how the economy would affect the budget.

Would it not be nice if we could only balance the budget this way every time? How easy it would indeed be. Instead of worrying about how we could pay for essential programs without big tax hikes we could simply call on some bright economist or somebody with a different econometric model to tell us the budget will balance itself. We could avoid all the pain of trying to rein in spending and maybe we could even do without Gramm-Rudman-Hollings.

Mr. President, I was and still am opposed to a budget resolution that misleads us this way.

I know it is not the intent of the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee to deliberately mislead anyone. Indeed, they brought out the figures at that time and we went ahead and voted them anyway. But the figures were cooked.

I do not think Julia Child could have done a better cooking job. The budget resolution we voted for was basically a tax-and-spend budget.

If we want to get a little technical, it might be worth looking at how the Senate found the $8 billion. The $8 billion came from the fact that the rate of inflation has come down in recent months. Interest rates have come down; the cost of goods and services have not risen as much as predicted. This, of course, means that the Government does not have to pay as much interest on its debt. We can save some money on some of the things we buy. This is where the $8 billion comes from.

That sounds simple, doesn't it? However, there is a catch. If prices do not rise by as much as we predict, then the gross national product does not rise by as much either. If GNP falls short of projections, then so do tax revenues.

So we do not get as much tax revenues as we originally planned. In fact, I am informed that in the short run taxes go down by more than the amount we save. So what does that do to the $8 billion we thought we had saved?

Well, I have been asking myself that question ever since the Senate voted to pass the budget resolution.

So we could go on with this. I do not plan to give a lengthy speech tonight, other than these short remarks. But I guess I could ask the sponsors of the legislation, the ranking minority member and the chairman of the committee, a general question as to whether they can assure us that with this budget they feel that it is sequester-proof, considering the problems I have just described and all the other problems of slippage in this budget.

Mr. President, I would ask the floor managers of this bill if they could respond to a couple of short questions on this. I will not get into a lot of technical discussions this evening. I know that later on they will discuss details of this budget that is coming out of conference. I would ask a general question: Can the floor managers assure the Senate that this budget is sequesterproof? Can you say that we are guaranteed that with this budget it is our best estimate that we will not get into a sequester-type situation?

I mentioned a number of problems that I thought the bill had when it went to conference. I think it still has those and perhaps more coming out of conference. What is the prognosis for a sequester under this budget?

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I assume the distinguished Senator from Ohio is asking that question of me, and perhaps also of the senior Senator from Florida, the ranking member.

I will answer the question this way: The Senator asks whether I can assure the Senate that there will be no sequester. The answer is very simple, one word: No.

Mr. GLENN. Would the Senator answer as to whether he thinks there is more likelihood of sequestering under this budget that came out of conference than the one that the Senate sent into conference?

Mr. DOMENICI. I do not think there is any doubt. In spite of the defense number being significantly higher in the budget the Senate passed, the chances of avoiding sequester under the Senate-passed budget resolution were significantly higher.

Mr. GLENN. Avoiding sequestering?

Mr. DOMENICI. Yes; I say if you have to have some probability, the probability of a sequester occurring if this budget is totally implemented are higher than the probability that there would have been a sequester had the Senate-passed resolution been totally implemented.

Mr. GLENN. I say to the distinguished chairman who has worked so long and hard on this and from private conversations we had in the Cloakroom, I assumed that would be the answer. I know he is a very honest and straightforward person on this. I am sorry he could not come out with something that would render us perhaps more sequester-proof, hopefully. If we get into sequestering, we get into automatic cuts, we get into safety, airline safety, food and drug, and all the things we are familiar with. That is one of the dangers we face with Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, the likelihood of sequestering.

Mr. DOMENICI. I might say to my friend from Ohio, one can answer another way, however.

There is a sequester that could be very large. There is a sequester that could be of less size. I would assume that since the sequester is applied evenly and defined already in the law as to what it hits, with a high degree of probability, that the sequester, if it occurs, will probably be less in amount if we adopt and implement this budget than if we did not have it.

□ 2320

Mr. GLENN. Would the distinguished Senator from Florida comment on that?

Mr. CHILES. I think the distinguished Senator from Ohio asked two questions. One was could we assure him that there would not be a sequester under this budget.

Second was, do we think the chances of having a sequester under this budget are higher than they were under the budget passed out of the Senate.

In the vernacular of Senator Mansfield, the answers would be "nope" and "yup."

Mr. GLENN. Could the Senator tell me what inflation assumptions were used in the resolution we are considering?

Mr. CHILES. We were using an inflator of about 3.5 percent, going to 4.1 percent in 1987, 4.1 percent in 1988, 4.1 percent in 1989.

Mr. GLENN. Are those figures different from the inflation assumptions that came with the original resolution we passed out of here?

Mr. CHILES. The economic assumptions were prepared by CBO for the February budget projections. Both the House and our resolutions were based on those economic assumptions.

This was the old inflation assumption.

Mr. GLENN. Did the conference consider the revenue as well as the spending effects of its inflation assumptions?

Mr. CHILES. That would be part of the CBO economic forecast.

Mr. GLENN. Would either of the floor managers care to comment on whether they feel we are going to have to have a tax increase if we go this route and pass this resolution?

Mr. CHILES. I say to my good friend from Ohio that we did take the COLA part of reducing the COLA's down to the 2 percent. We did take that. We did take the savings or the resulting economic savings from that.

Mr. DOMENICI. Would the Senator from Florida yield on that?

Mr. CHILES. Yes; I yield.

Mr. DOMENICI. Let me say to the Senator from Ohio that we did not change the basic macroeconomic assumptions from those made by CBO when we started this budget, which were used by both Houses.

On the other hand, there are certain programs within the budget that are directly affected by the cost-of-living index as an add on. Social Security cost of living and the other costs of living are prime examples of that.

We did, instead, say it would be, if we were going to assume 3.5 percent for the COLA, we would have left the spending even higher than it really was going to be because we know at this moment, just a short few weeks away from the time that it will be trigged, that the inflation rate CPI is down. So we used 2 percent for those kinds of programs, thus reducing the expectation from automatic increase, thus reducing the expenditures.

Mr. GLENN. Is it the opinion of the chairman of the committee that we are going to have to have a tax increase?

Mr. DOMENICI. Let me say that if the Senator is asking the question, to avoid a sequester would we need a tax increase, all I can say is that I have already said the chances of a sequester, even with this budget resolution, are still there. I am not here giving the Senator assurance that we will avoid a sequester.

If the Senator wants to be assured that the sequester would be avoided, absolutely and unequivocally, you have to do one of two things: Significantly reduce expenditures or raise revenues. I do not think we are going to significantly reduce revenues but I do not believe we are going to put on any taxes either. That is why we are saying that, indeed, you are apt to have a sequester.

Mr. GLENN. The Senator said reduce revenues. I believe he meant reduce expenditures.

Mr. DOMENICI. Reduce expenditures, excuse me.

In this budget resolution, defense numbers are lower than we reported out.

I do not recall, and I apologize if I should know, the Senator's position on defense, whether he thought our figure in the budget on defense was too high, too low, or about right. But most of us feel it has to be about where the Senate had it—some felt it should be higher, some felt it should be lower, but that it should be substantially about where it is. If you are going to have higher defense numbers as you move through the years because you are going to become aware, through the dynamics of living with the bill, that you cannot live with these numbers—what we are saying with the budget resolution is you are going to break this budget unless you find some additional revenues to pay for any additional defense. That is the essence of the reserve.

You have a reserve set up into which new revenues or new resources would go to be held there in abeyance, on call, if you need it for an emergency like—not exclusively but like—an add on to defense. In that event, however, if you drew on that, you would not necessarily be avoiding a sequester because presumably, if you use $3 billion for defense, you would have $3 billion in revenues, which is neutral. If you had all the revenues we expect in that reserve and do not spend them all, you do reduce the deficit somewhat.

But I remind everyone that if you had them all in the first year, you would only reduce the deficit by $4.8 billion.

Mr. GLENN. It is my understanding that while we do not like what we have here—I know particularly the floor managers are not overly fond of what has been brought back either—that without this resolution, we could be faced with a sequestering of perhaps as much as $50 billion, as opposed to perhaps a $10 billion sequestering or something of that order, if we pass the resolution. Is that correct?

Mr. CHILES. I think the Senator is correct. We actually have reduced expenditures about $40 billion in this resolution.

Now, if all of the savings that we have projected in here do not materialize—and again, I think neither the Senator from New Mexico nor I is trying to say they will all materialize—we wanted to reconcile much more of those savings and were unable to get the House to do that. We had a much higher reconciliation as we left the Senate than we came back with. Outside of taxes, we had about $32 billion and ended up with about $24 billion in this proposal.

We also are concerned about the fact that it looks like the anticipated revenues are not going to be as high as we thought and when the next estimate comes out, we think they might be lower. Those are the reasons—we have about $142 billion in this budget, so we have a $10 billion cushion before the sequester takes effect. That means we have about $11.5 billion that we play with, so to speak; with those revenues $10 billion lower if all our savings do not materialize, we could have a sequester and that sequester could be $5 to $10 billion—in that range. I guess it could be higher, could be lower. But let us say it is within that range.

I think what the Senator needs to look at and certainly what the Senator from Florida and the Senator from New Mexico had to look at, is would we be better to take a sequester of $5 to $10 billion off a base that Congress has set having to do something with setting those priorities the Senator from Ohio talked about—FAA, Coast Guard, some other things that we considered to be very important. There are all kinds of programs in here that Congress has worked its will on. Or do we want to see what could be a $50 billion sequester more or less on the side off of the base that we had last year, which is not set some of the priorities that we think are more important this year.

□ 2330

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, it is late and I will not belabor this. The House has already voted, and as I understand it has voted overwhelmingly in favor of this. A short time ago I withdrew my requirement for a record rollcall vote on this because I have no doubt what the result would be here in the Senate tonight. Very blessed few of us here this evening are even concerned with this. I do not know whether we could get a quorum or not even to have a vote, but I see this as a very important issue.

I am very concerned that we have worked ourselves into such a process here when we are making assumptions about our budget now—$1 trillion budget in authority, an outlay budget of $995 billion, almost a trillion—that here we are setting this up without having a good debate on this and without questioning underlying economic assumptions. We are going ahead and passing this on a voice vote in the middle of the night. I think that is not the way to do the business for the great American people.

I do not think we are doing right by them. When we have assumptions that are made to sort of fit the answers that we wish to get, that is the wrong way to go at it, and I say that with all due respect for the tremendous effort that has been put forward by both of the floor managers of this bill. They have done an outstanding job. I know they seem somewhat frustrated at what they were able to get with our colleagues over in the House. I share their disappointment in that.

When the floor managers stand up on this floor tonight and say we have a bill which they think is less than we went out of here with, the American people are the lesser for it, as I see it, because we have now placed ourselves in greater jeopardy of sequestering of funds; we have placed ourselves in greater jeopardy of having to go to a tax increase to have a viable economy. That is not the way to do business for the United States of America, as I see it. So I do not like the process we are following. I feel rather helpless to do anything about it. But I felt that it was important to at least stand on the floor this evening and make my concerns known.

I yield the floor.

Mr. GORTON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Ohio has expressed frustrations on his own behalf which quite obviously are shared by the two distinguished managers of this bill and by this Senator as well.

One of the high points of this year's session of the Senate was the magnificent performance of the distinguished Senators from New Mexico and Florida in crafting a budget resolution which was so overwhelmingly passed by this Senate 2 months ago. That resolution dealt courageously and effectively not only with the challenges of the Gramm-Rudman bill but with the perceived necessity for fiscal responsibility in this country and for fairness and balance in both our spending and in our taxing policies.

It is quite clear, both from the answers of the two distinguished managers and from the observations of this Senator, that the resolution which has been reported by the conference committee is neither so courageous nor so effective that the chances that there will be a sequestration are far greater than they were under the resolution as it originally passed the Senate.

Nevertheless, the members of the conference committee, and particularly its two leaders, have done the best they possibly could do with a House of Representatives which was not willing to face the problems which are facing this country squarely and courageously. If there is a sequester, it will be smaller as a result of the passage of this resolution and its enforcement than would otherwise be the case.

□ 2340

This resolution at least moves us haltingly in the right direction, if not decisively in the right direction. It does include at least an appropriate balance among various defense and domestic accounts. It does leave it up to the administration and future agreement between the two Houses as to whether or not there will be somewhat more money for defense or for vital social policies if Congress and the President agree, somehow or other, to pay for them and not further increase our deficits.

It is therefore, in those circumstances, worthy of support by members of the Senate. It is worthy of support with many caveats and with many cautions and with much disappointment after the proposal which was originally passed by the House.

These two managers have done a magnificent job. They have done the best job which possibly could have been done under the circumstances. They deserve the gratitude of the other Members of the Senate and of their fellow citizens in the 50 States.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I have two main objections to the conference report. First, the process under which the report is being brought up is not responsible. There are few members here, and even fewer who have a detailed grasp of what is in the conference report. This is not an inconsequentional matter we are considering here. It is the budget of the United States. It deserves to be fully debated, but, in fact, it is not even fully known. It should be both fully known and debated, but given the procedure in place, both are impossible. The Congress is anxious to go on its Fourth of July recess, but it is doing so in a way that does no honor to our forefathers.

Second, from the information available, this budget appears to be an unrealistic plan for deficit reduction based on unrealistic economic assumptions, unrealistic assumptions about the sale of Government assets, and a continuing refusal to look at the need for new revenues. The need for substantial defict reduction and the obligation to meet the Gramm-Rudman targets remain. Unfortunately, this budget will not achieve those targets.

Earlier this week, the Senate passed a tax reform bill that used the revenues generated from loophole closing and an effective minimum tax for some uneven tax cuts. We should have used most of those revenues for deficit reduction. If we had, we would be here now with a real budget which will bring about real and substantial deficit reduction.

Also earlier this week, we passed a tax reform bill which was designed to increase the bond of trust between the Government and the people. Only a few days later we are about to pass a budget resolution conference report which will erode that trust.

So, let this statement make clear what would have been clear if there had been a recorded voted. The junior Senator from Michigan votes "no."

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, I made my remarks a few moments ago and had a colloquy with the floor managers of the bill.

I just wish to add that if we were to have a rollcall vote tonight, I would be recorded as voting against this.

I am under no illusions as to what the vote would be. It would be overwhelmingly in favor of the conference report. I would vote against this for all the reasons I have given in the last half hour or so. But I did not finish up my statement by saying that I would be voting against this, as when I went to conference.

I think we are misleading the American people with this. It is a shame, and I do not like that. I know that the floor managers of the bill are not overly proud of this. It was what they came back with.

As to the likelihood of sequester, the requirement for that has become greater, not less. It is that or a tax increase, neither of which is very good, and that is the outcome of the conference report.

I want to make it clear that if we were to have a rollcall vote this evening, I would record my vote against the conference report. I say that with all due respect to the floor managers, who have worked hard and long on this. I wanted to make that clear before I left the Chamber this evening.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I think we will be able to get consent shortly to bring up the conference report.

First of all, there is nothing at all misleading about this. The Senator from New Mexico and the Senator from Florida are not standing before the Senate misleading anyone, nor will there be any written statements that we will put in the record that will mislead anyone.

I am not here tonight, as I have been on perhaps three of the five budgets I have managed on the floor—I am not here tonight extremely proud of this product, but I am satisfied.

Basically, I have concluded, after looking at it: No budget resolution at all, no budget resolution tonight, because we would say to our conferees on the House side, "We want to talk 2 or 3 more days." We have a big recess in between, and we would come back and start working.

I had to analyze what I am going to get that I have not already gotten from the House in all these days and nights. I am already tired—2 nights until 2 o'clock in the morning and 5 or 6 days before that, in the normal spirit, where you are arguing, wrangling, pushing, and shoving, and we are here. We have already exceeded the time we are allotted under the Budget Act to be in conference, and we are not going to do much better.

So I concluded that we did not have the greatest budget resolution when we passed it here. It was good. The House, in my opinion, had a much inferior budget in terms of the effect on deficits and realism. It was fairly good if you assumed that you could get by with the defense numbers they had, but I did not believe we would go through this thing with those defense numbers, and we have come up somewhat—$6 billion in budget authority and halfway on outlays, about $3 billion. That provides a substantial add on to the appropriators as they handle the defense budget.

However, if you take that out, they were too low in defense to be realistic, in my opinion. Our budget was only a good budget, not one that was nearly that good to be proud of, but one that could get the job done. We went to conference with a House budget that was less good, so to speak, and we came out with a budget that is somewhere in between.

Consequently, the decision here tonight is not misleading. The reason there are not a lot of Senators here is simple. We are somewhat between the House budget and the Senate budget, and these are targets but for the reconciliation part.

I do not say we will come in within the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings totals using all these economic assumptions. Most Senators know that we have a big problem with defense, at least those who voted for the high numbers. They know this is the best we will get from the House at this point. Those who think we need more see an outside fighting chance that you might be able to get some additional defense under this reserve.

Let me tell Senators what I have been doing for the last 3 years. In a tax debate, I stood back there and told them there is no way that a budget process can perform miracles. There is no way you can go to conference with the House and insist that you get everything you went there with. And we did not, either. We performed no miracles, and we did not get everything we went there with.

So I am not going to spend a lot of time here this evening explaining this budget.

There is some reconciliation here. Some committees have been ordered to do some things. This Senator is not going to stand by and watch a reconciliation bill—I am saying right now, on record tonight, front and center—with a whole bunch of junk in it.

We passed the Byrd amendment. With majority support, it finally got through here. We are not going to have extraneous material in this reconciliation.

We go to these committees, and they make these cuts that are prescribed; and if they do that by adding in 15 new programs so that we start some new things in the name of savings, I guarantee, from this Senator's standpoint, I will be down here and be saying: "Let's not pass that reconciliation bill. Let's add to this gamble of a sequester, but let's quit playing games."

We are still going to have a big deficit; and if luck is not with us, we will make a little bit of a stride this year. But until we are ready to face up to the realities of the entitlement programs, which we do not want to change—and on this very budget we could not get the entitlement changes in the Medicare field that the Senate voted for overwhelmingly, which I believe the leading senior citizen organizations in this country would support, because we ran into a House that said, "That's just one we won't pass."

So we could have said: "If you don't want it, we'll go home and come back and negotiate again."

We elected not to do that. We thought that is all we could get. We think that would have been modest reform at best, and we could not get it. That is a couple of billion dollars over the 3 years. And so it went.

Now let me talk about defense. Frankly, I do not believe that we are going to find ourselves able to adequately appropriate for the national defense under the numbers in this budget. But neither do I believe that we can continue to say that there is going to be a significant military buildup, no revenues, and we are going to meet Gramm-Rudman-Hollings totals with some kind of magic, the magic of unexpected growth, unexpected revenues that are going to come down here from heaven instead of from the taxpayers. I just do not believe that. I have said it before and I will say it again.

The third point is that we are not going to get it out of domestic spending, when we leave out of the budget, for domestic change and reform and cuts, 40 percent of the entire budget, which are the major entitlement programs in this country.

If those decisions are made, then do not blame the Senator from Florida, LAWTON CHILES, or the Senator from New Mexico, PETE DOMENICI, and do not blame the budget process, because we cannot do any more than the U.S. Congress lets us do and that the President of the United States will support. That is basically it.

So I do not mind anything said here tonight, except that I do not like anybody to say it is misleading. There is nothing misleading about this. If every economic assumption holds true, and that is what we are expecting here—we cannot change them every 2 weeks—if every program is funded precisely as we assume in this budget, and if the outlays in defense are as low as we assume in this budget, with absolutely no changes, then there is nothing misleading. You will be at the end of this year under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings.

On that score, I will say that is the case. If I am wrong, I am wrong, but I believe that is the case.

□ 2250

But the truth of the matter is that you cannot believe that all of those are going to stay that way. We had hoped that we would make enough permanent changes that even if we were off a bit we would not have a sequester. It is that part that we are not sure of. Gramm-Rudman-Hollings gives you a $10 billion buffer between the $144 billion and sequester time. It is that portion we are talking about, at least I am, when I answer the question that I do not believe I can say with certainty that there will not be a sequester.

But I nonetheless believe that we ought to have a set of guidelines, sort of a master plan, and I will take $24 billion in reconciled savings, even if some of them are asset sales, if we can get them. We surely do not want to throw those away, and there is no way to get those without a budget resolution.

We have reached the point, I say to my friend from Florida, when $24 billion in reconciled savings or revenues are nothing. I can remember being on the Budget Committee when if you could get $5 billion in reconciled savings that were real, I mean you had to almost pull teeth for it. But we have gotten to the point where clearly the deficits are so mammoth that even with $24 billion over 3 years we cannot stand here and tell you that we are certain we are going to get the job done.

FIRST CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee of conference on Senate Concurrent Resolution 120 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be stated.

The legislative clerk road as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 120) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for the fiscal years 1987 1988, and 1989, having met, after full and free conference, have been unable to agree.

(The conference report is printed in the House proceedings of the RECORD of today, June 26, 1986.)

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the chairman and ranking minority member of the Senate be permitted to file on July 14, 1986, the allocations required by section 302(a) of the Budget Act with respect to the statement of the managers accompanying this conference report and that such allocations be considered to be allocations required by section 302(a) of the Budget Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to file remarks analyzing this budget if I desire to do so and that they be made a part of the RECORD as if stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CHILES. Mr. President, I would like to ask the chairman of the Budget Committee a question, if I may, about the reporting date for the Finance Committee's response to reconciliation and the chairman's understanding with respect to the form in which the Finance Committee may meet its reconciliation instructions.

Mr. DOMENICI. Yes; of course, I would be pleased to respond.

Mr. CHILES. First, with respect to the total reconciliation instruction, I understand that the Finance Committee is instructed to reduce spending by $0.850 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1987, $1.495 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $1.790 billion in outlays in fiscal year 1989. In addition, the Finance Committee is instructed to raise $3.5 billion in revenues and fiscal year 1987, $2.6 billion in fiscal year 1988, and $2.4 billion in fiscal year 1989. Finally, I note that the language of the resolution contains the same reporting date for both of these reconciliation instructions—July 25. Is this all correct?

Mr. DOMENICI. Yes; the Senator is correct in his precise statement of the language. But let me make the Budget Committee's position very clear with respect to the conditions under which the Finance Committee will be considered to be in compliance with the instruction, particularly with respect to revenues.

The reconciliation instruction clearly intends that the Finance Committee comply with the instruction as to spending under its jurisdication on the date specified in the resolution—July 25. As the chairman knows, Gramm-Rudman-Hollings requires that an estimate of the fiscal year 1987 deficit be made on August 10. It is essential to enact as much deficit reducing legislation as possible before the so-called August "snapshot."

However, the resolution is not intended to be similarly binding on revenues. First, as the distinguished chairman well knows, the Senate has passed a historic tax bill, H.R. 3838 which the Finance and Ways and Means Committees will begin to conference after the recess. It would be a difficult task for the committees to finish this conference and originate a separate tax bill for the purposes of reconciliation.

Second, the Budget Committee is well aware that the Finance Committee can not consitutionally originate revenue legislation here in the Senate. This is important because the reconciliation instruction for the Ways and Means Committee is specified in terms of deficit reduction rather than in separate instructions for revenues and outlays. This means that the Ways and Means Committee may not originate any revenue legislation at all, which would leave the Finance Committee without an appropriate vehicle.

Therefore, though the resolution includes a specific reporting date, the Budget Committee intends to provide the Finance Committee with as much flexibility as possible in meeting its revenue instruction.

Mr. CHILES. Does this mean that the Finance Committee can either report a revenue bill under the normal reconciliation date or use the revenues from H.R. 3838 to meet its reconciliation instruction?

Mr. DOMENICI. That is correct. The committee can originate a separate bill if it wishes by July 25. The committee can also raise some revenues in the context of the tax reform bill, as long as the revenues represent a net increase in revenues above the baseline over the 3 budget years—fiscal year 1987 through fiscal year 1989. In this regard then, the Budget Committee will consider the Finance Committee to have complied with its reconciliation instruction if H.R. 3838 is enacted by the time of the second "snapshot" if it raises the required amount of revenues over the budget period, and the Finance and Ways and Means Committees indicate that they intend that this revenue satisfy their reconciliation instruction.

Mr. CHILES. The Budget Committee's position is clear and I thank the Senator

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. CHILES. Mr. President, I stand with my colleague from New Mexico, the chairman of the Budget Committee, to urge the passage of the conference report.

Mr. President, we have damned this conference report with feign praise for a while and I guess we could go on with that a little bit longer.

It is pretty obvious that we do not feel that this plan is as good as we went out of the Senate with, a plan that we have 70 Senators, a majority of the Republicans and a majority of the Democrats, support, a plan that we thought went much farther in deficit reduction, a much stronger bill in the reconciled savings, savings that you know that you would probably get.

But it was not to be that we were able to get that plan adopted.

I think that we were faced in that condition of whether we were going to come out with a plan like this or whether we were just going to say we would have the conference, we would not have a budget, or we would go over.

I agree with the remarks of the Senator from New Mexico that waiting 3 more weeks until after the recess would not have accomplished anything or given us the opportunity to make much more in savings.

Our problems were not simply the House. Our problems were the whole dynamics of where the President was on revenues, the fact that in the House the Republican Members would not support the proposition to reconcile the revenues, in effect to tell the Committee on Ways and Means and the Finance Committee that they had to raise the taxes. We would be willing to do that in the Senate. We had passed that in the Senate. The House Republicans would not support this and, therefore, the House Democrats said, "We are not going to put that provision in and have the President be able to say that we are the tax and spend guys. We will only do that with the support of the President."

That was not forthcoming. There were some negotiations or some invitations. They were not accepted.

Then the President later said that he was not going to do that.

That put us in a situation in which it was impossible to get what the Senate felt was necessary to put a modicum of new taxes in to be able to get a better plan, be able to use that to actually get more in the way of spending and more in the way of deficit reduction.

Right now I feel that I am kind of like Indiana Jones running down through the jungle with that boulder kind of coming after me, and the question I guess that we had to determine is are we going to be knocked over, bowled over by the boulder, or do we want to run down the path and feel like we are going to be chased by a rock.

There is an old saying that you are between a rock and a hard place. I think we were between the rock and the boulder.

I think we have selected the rock and said that we cannot guarantee to the Senate, and we do not, that there will not be a sequester. I think that there is a danger, a strong danger that we will have a sequester. If the revenues are turned down, if we do not get the savings, we certainly probably will have one.

But the question is whether we would be better off to work off a small sequester or one that we know would be certain to be $50 billion plus if we do nothing.

When you put the choices to us like that the answer is fairly simple.

Mr. President, there are a lot of other things I could talk about this plan that I am concerned about. One of them is asset sales. It seems that every time we turned around with the House and tried to seek some savings, the only thing that we could get was that we will sell off something else.

Mr. President, I rue the day that we started selling assets. I think we are selling the birthright of the country. I think we are selling that birthright for a bowl of porridge and I guess we will keep doing that now until we sell off all of the assets, but it is much like the kind of fellow who starts going to the pawnshop and starts carrying the furniture and the jewels and everything else of the household items to go to the pawnshop, and he just goes and goes, until there is nothing else to carry to the shop.

I wonder what is going to happen the rest of this year, if we get in trouble, as the chairman has said next year when we are still going to have budget problems. Is the only thing that we are going to do is to take some of our assets to the pawnshop and how long will we do that?

Someday, Mr. President, the public is going to understand that not having any taxes and borrowing more money is just as devastating or more so perhaps than if you had the taxes.

If you have to raise the taxes, there is some restraint on spending the money because there is some responsibility to go home and explain to people why you had to raise the taxes and why you thought that spending is necessary. If you can spend the money by borrowing or selling an asset you do not have to explain that. You can go back and say, "Look at this budget; we didn't have to raise your taxes, no new taxes, hallelujah, hallelujah."

Someday, and I hope it is not very long off, Mr. President, the public is going to understand that that is a tax just as sure and it is going to reflect itself in higher interest rates and higher inflation, it is going to reflect itself in the loss of will as we continue to see here as if we had raised these taxes.

Mr. President, having said all this, I know we are going to pass this. I think it is the best thing that we can do tonight.

I thank the distinguished chairman from New Mexico for his efforts in this regard. He has been tireless. He has been patient and more patient I think than the Senator from Florida has displayed in this process.

Mr. President, I also thank the staff on both sides of the aisle. They have worked longer and harder than the Senator from New Mexico and myself and they will be working longer and harder tonight, as we go home, as they try to put the pieces together for this. But I offer them my thanks as well.

□ 2400

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I, too, want to thank the staff. For every hour we spend, they spend 25 or 30. I particularly want to thank Bill Hoagland, the staff director on the majority side, and Rick Brandon, the staff director on the minority side. The staff works for them and, in thanking the two, we are thanking all of those that helped us.

Mr. President, I have nothing further tonight that I want to say on this matter.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DOMENICI. I am pleased to yield.

Mr. DOLE. Could I just ask one question about Conrail?

Mr. DOMENICI. Yes.

Mr. DOLE. I may be asked by the Secretary of Transportation whether or not that is going to be reconciled. [Laughter.]

Are we really going to sell it this year?

Mr. DOMENICI. It is not going to be reconciled.

Mr. DOLE. Is it close?

Mr. DOMENICI. You see, any time I talk with the House in conference about can we do this or can we do that, well, we have to wait until somebody is talked to over there in the House. So, frankly, I was holding out for reconciliation on Conrail. I told the chairman of the House group, "Well, I think I will go talk to Chairman John Dingell," because his committee says whether we sell Conrail or not.

I talked to him about what he thought was going to happen in the next 10 or 12 months. What I concluded was that he wanted to get rid of Conrail and get it out of the public sector. He just wanted to do it a different way. I, frankly, thought he was just as committed as many of the Senators here on the floor, including the chairman of the committee that proposed it and carried the bill. It is just that it is going to take a while, because there is a difference of opinion as to how.

We have, therefore, in this budget, the moneys for Conrail added in as if we had received the $1.9 billion. It went up to $1.9 billion because the appraisals of the sale price are going up.

But I, frankly, feel better about that than some of the other items we did not reconcile. I think that is going to happen during the fiscal year and I think it is going to be realized.

Mr. DOLE. I thank the Senator.

Mr. President, we leave for the fourth of July recess having completed the tax reform bill and a fiscal 1987 budget, bad as it is, that meets the deficit targets contained in the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Balanced Budget Act.

We still have a way to go on both issues. The conference on the tax reform bill will take a while. But I am confident that we will have the tax reform bill on the President's desk by Labor Day.

As for the budget, we have to implement it. That means passing the appropriations bills and getting reconciliation savings through as well.

I must be honest about the specifics of this budget agreement. It is not nearly what I hoped it to be. My biggest disappointments, and I believe the administration's as well, are the defense number and the small amount that we will be asked to cut from domestic spending. It is not what Congress should be committing to its national security next year nor does it go nearly far enough in reducing spending.

The minimum test of this budget is that it meets the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings targets. It does not, however, make as many major program reforms in areas that cry out for restraint.

I am, however, pleased that the budget does not impose a tax increase on the American people.

Before leaving, Mr. President, I want to offer my special thanks to the Chairman of the Budget Committee, Senator DOMENICI. Without PETE's dedication and persistence, we would not be at this point. I know what an enormous burden it is for him, but PETE bears it like a soldier. And I sincerely appreciate it, and, I am sure the rest of the Senate does as well. I also want to acknowledge the contributions made by the ranking Democrat on the committee, Senator CHILES, and all the hardworking members of the Budget Committee, and the committee staff led by Bill Hoagland and Rich Brandon.

Mr. President, I intend to support this conference report, but must again reiterate my concerns that it falls far short of the goals we all had in mind early in the year. Deficit reduction means just that, reducing the deficit. This conference report arguably meets that definition, but not nearly to the degree that it should.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, as we move out for the recess, and there are very few of us remaining in the Halls of Congress at this late hour, I want to personally thank first the majority leader and the minority leader for the cooperation and understanding that I had from both of them with regard to the passage today of the urgent supplemental appropriations. I felt this Senator was in their hair a few times on that, but, as usual, both of these outstanding U.S. Senators were generous with their time, consoling at times. They did not move quite as fast as this Senator would have liked at times. But they have additional responsibilities in this Senate over and above that of the Senator from Nebraska. I thank both of them for their understanding.

Mr. BYRD. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. EXON. I am happy to yield.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the distinguished Senator for his kind remarks. He is a good Senator. He takes his duties seriously. I admire him for that.

Mr. EXON. I thank my distinguished colleague, the distinguished minority leader, the Senator from West Virginia.

Without delaying things any further, I would like to salute the truly outstanding work of the chairman of the Budget Committee and the ranking minority member thereof.

Certainly, I feel that Senator PETE DOMENICI, of New Mexico, and Senator LAWTON CHILES, of Florida, the ranking Democrat on that committee, really went beyond the call of duty in the most difficult budget negotiations that I expect we have ever had. They were outstanding in their efforts and I want to compliment them as a member of that Budget Committee.

I would simply say, Mr. President, that I suspect that no one is totally satisfied with the budget. I have never seen a budget that everyone is totally satisfied with.

I would also say that I suspect that some of the numbers that came out is that budget will, in the end, be proven not accurate. But that is the situation with every budget that we have ever acted upon here in the U.S. Senate.

I am particularly concerned about the questions that we have in this budget with regard to the numbers. It is a highly unusual situation where we are forced to come to the floor of the U.S. Senate and approve a budget which is pretty iffy, especially with regard to the defense numbers.

I also serve, as you know, Mr. President, on the Armed Services Committee. Earlier this week the Armed Services Committee finished their markup on the defense budget and we marked to a figure of $301 billion, which was the figure authorized previously by the U.S. Senate.

I hope that the President would listen very carefully to the learned words from the chairman and the ranking minority member on the Budget Committee, because if he does not then I suggest we are going to have much more difficulty in fitting the essential national security needs of the United States of America into the very tight budget shoe with which we are working.

Having said those things, I am just pleased at least we have protected the budget process. As infallible as that budget process is, I think it is fundamental if we are ever going to get deficit spending under control and ever begin hopefully at some time in the future to reduce the national debt. It is quite obvious by the budget that we have just adopted that that number is going to be billions of dollars below that $301 billion figure. I suspect that this will require the Armed Services Committee to go back into markup once again to authorize the reduction from the total that will eventually emerge as far as the 1987 fiscal year budget is concerned, and after the President makes his wishes known now that the budget matter has gone to his desk for his proper action. I hope that the President would sign this budget.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor. I thank my colleagues for giving me this time for these brief remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate? If not, the question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment in disagreement.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House recede from its amendment to the resolution of the Senate (S. Con. Res. 120) entitled "Concurrent resolution setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for the fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989", and concur therein with the following amendment:

Strike out all after the resolving clause, and insert:

That the Congress hereby determines and declares that the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1987 is established and the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 1988 and 1989 are set forth.

(a) The following levels and amounts are set forth for purposes of determining, in accordance with section 301(i) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, as amended by the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, whether the maximum deficit amount for a fiscal year has been exceeded, and as set forth in this concurrent resolution shall be considered to be mathematically consistent with the other amounts and levels set forth in this concurrent resolution:

(1) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $852,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $929,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $1,001,100,000,000.

(2) The appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $1,093,350,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $1,166,450,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $1,215,850,000,000.

(3) The appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $995,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $1,045,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $1,079,000,000,000.

(4) The amounts of the deficits are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $142,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $115,650,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $77,900,000,000.

(b) The following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1986, October 1, 1987, and October 1, 1988:

(1) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $638,850,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $627,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $732,250,000,000.

and the amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be increased are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $5,950,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $6,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $7,350,000,000.

and the amounts for Federal Insurance Contributions Act revenues for hospital insurance within the recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $55,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $60,150,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $64,250,000,000.

(2) The appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $879,800,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $924,350,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $952,800,000,000.

(3) The appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $799,150,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $139,850,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $862,500,000,000.

(4) The amounts of the deficits in the budget which are appropriate in the light of economic conditions and all other relevant factors are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $160,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $152,100,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $124,250,000,000.

(5) The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987: $2,322,800,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988: $2,530,650,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989: $2,713,300,000,000.

(6) The appropriate levels of total Federal credit activity for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1986, October 1, 1987, and October 1, 1988, are as follows:
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New direct loan obligations, $34,550,000,000.
(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $100,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New direct loan obligations, $30,300,000,000.
(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $91,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New direct loan obligations, $32,050,000,000.
(B) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $93,500,000,000.

(C) The Congress hereby determines and declares the appropriate levels of budget authority and budget outlays, and the appropriate levels of new direct loan obligations, and new primary loan guarantee commitments for fiscal years 1987 through 1989 for each major functional category are:
(1) National Defense (050):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $292,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $279,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $304,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $285,400,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $316,700,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $297,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(2) International Affairs (150):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $17,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $14,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,350,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,753,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $17,700,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $13,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,400,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $16,600,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $13,200,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $7,500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $71,700,000,000.
(3) General Science, Space, and Technology (250):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $9,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $8,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $9,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $9,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $9,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $9,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.

(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(4) Energy (270):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $4,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $3,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $2,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $5,350,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $4,750,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,950,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(5) Natural Resources and Environment (300):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $12,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,600,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $12,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $12,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $12,650,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(6) Agriculture (350):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $23,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $23,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $14,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $26,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $24,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $12,100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,500,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $25,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $21,600,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $11,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $8,500,000,000.
(7) Commerce and Housing Credit (370):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $10,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,450,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $53,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $10,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,350,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $43,250,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $8,200,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $4,600,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $44,150,000,000.
(8) Transportation (400):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $25,350,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $25,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $26,800,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $400,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $26,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $200,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $50,000,000.
(9) Community and Regional Development (450):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $6,200,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,050,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,550,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,600,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,700,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,100,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments $300,000,000.
(10) Education, Training, Employment, and Social Services (500):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $33,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $30,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $10,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $30,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $31,450,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,400,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $10,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $30,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $30,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $11,000,000,000.
(11) Health (550):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $38,600,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $38,300,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $40,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $40,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $42,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $42,400,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $50,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $300,000,000.
(12) Medicare (570):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $83,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $73,250,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $91,400,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $21,450,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $101,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $90,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(13) Income Security (600):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $163,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $121,750,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,800,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $175,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $128,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,800,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $179,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $132,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $700,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(14) Social Security (650):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $5,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $5,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,150,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(15) Veterans Benefits and Services (700):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $27,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,550,000,000.

(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $16,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $27,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,500,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $16,950,000,000.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $27,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $1,300,000,000.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $17,550,000,000.
(16) Administration of Justice (750):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $7,200,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,150,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $7,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $7,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(17) General Government (800):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $5,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $5,450,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $6,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,000,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $6,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $6,100,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(18) General Purpose Fiscal Assistance (850):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $1,950,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,750,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $1,950,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $1,950,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $2,050,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(19) Net Interest (900):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $148,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $148,300,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $158,850,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $158,850,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $160,050,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $160,050,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(20) Allowances (920):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, $900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$50,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, $3,450,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,550,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, $4,750,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $3,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
(21) Undistributed Offsetting Receipts (950):
Fiscal year 1987:
(A) New budget authority, −$30,700,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$36,900,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1988:
(A) New budget authority, −$40,350,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$40,350,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.
Fiscal year 1989:
(A) New budget authority, −$42,500,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$42,500,000,000.
(C) New direct loan obligations, $0.
(D) New primary loan guarantee commitments, $0.

RECONCILIATION

SEC. 2. (a) Not later than July 25, 1986, the committees named in subsections (b) through (t) of this section shall submit their recommendations to the Committees on the Budget of their respective Houses. After receiving those recommendations, the Committees on the Budget shall report to the House and Senate a reconciliation bill or resolution or both carrying out all such recommendations without any substantive revision.

HOUSE COMMITTEES

(b) The House Committee on Agriculture shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $55,000,000 and outlays by $555,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $49,000,000 and outlays by $549,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $43,000,000 and outlays by $543,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(c) The House Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other that as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: increase budget authority by $642,000,000 and decrease outlays by $1,658,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease outlays by $523,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and increase budget authority by $164,000,000 and decrease outlays by $546,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(d) The House Committee on Education and Labor shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays ; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $25,000,000 and outlays by $604,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $150,000,000 and outlays by $449,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $250,000,000 and outlays by $141,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(e) The House Committee on Energy and Commerce shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $1,125,000,000 and outlays by $1,867,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $500,000,000 and outlays by $1,721,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $500,000,000 and outlays by $2,012,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(f) The House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $100,000,000 and outlays by $100,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(g) The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries shall repoort (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority other than as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $50,000,000 and outlays by $50,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

(t) The Senate Committee on Small Business shall report (1) changes in laws within its jurisdiction which provide spending authority, as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays; (2) changes in laws within its jurisdiction other than those which provide spending authority as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Act, sufficient to achieve savings in budget authority and outlays; or (3) any combination thereof, as follows: decrease budget authority by $438,000,000 and outlays by $343,000,000 in fiscal year 1987; decrease budget authority by $399,000,000 and outlays by $55,000,000 in fiscal year 1988; and decrease budget authority by $223,000,000 and outlays by $14,000,000 in fiscal year 1989.

CONTINGENCY FUND FOR DEFICIT REDUCTION AND UNMET CRITICAL NEEDS

SEC. 3. (a)(1) Budget authority and outlays for unmet critical needs of amounts not to exceed the amounts specified in subsection (c) for fiscal year 1987 shall be allocated to the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate, and the aggregates for fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989 in section 1 of this resolution shall be adjusted accordingly, when—

(A) legislation has been enacted which would ensure that any legislation providing for such additional funding would not increase the deficits for fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989 set forth in section 1 of this resolution;

(B) the President submits a request pursuant to paragraph (2); and

(C) the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives or the Senate have reported legislation as requested by the President that will, if enacted, make funds available for such unmet critical needs,.

(2) If the President determines that additional funding is necessary for unmet critical needs, the President shall submit to the Congress a message or messages—

(A) requesting specific amounts of additional funding to meet such needs; and

(B)(i) requesting the enactment of legislation to ensure that the deficits set forth in section 1 of this resolution are not increased as a result of any additional funding provided to carry out such request; or

(ii) identifying legislation enacted before the date of such submission which would result in such additional funding not increasing the deficits set forth in section 1 of this resolution.

(b) The Committees on the Budget of the House of Representatives and the Senate are authorized and directed to report to their respective Houses revised allocations pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, consistent with legislation reported pursuant to subsection (a)(1)(C), and revised budget aggregates to carry out this section. Upon the reporting of such revised allocations, the appropriate committees of such Houses shall report revised allocations pursuant to section 302(b) of such Act to carry out this section. Such revised allocations and budget aggregates shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c)(1) The amounts of budget authority and outlays available for allocation under subsection (a)(1) for funding unmet critical needs shall not exceed amounts as follows:

Fiscal Year 1987:

(A) New budget authority, $9,950,000,000;

(B) Outlays, $4,800,000,000;

of which not to exceed $6,850,000,000 in budget authority and $3,000,000,000 in outlays shall be available for additional defesne spending.

Fiscal Year 1988:

(A) New budget authority, $15,450,000,000;

(B) Outlays, $11,450,000,000;

of which not to exceed $8,100,000,000 in budget authority and $6,400,000,000 in outlays shall be available for additional defense spending.

Fiscal Year 1989:

(A) New budget authority, $12,850,000,000;

(B) Outlays, $10,800,000,000;

of which not to exceed $10,500,000,000 in budget authority and $7,250,000,000 in outlays shall be available for additional defense spending.

(2) Amounts described in paragraph (1) may be used to provide funding for additional defense spending and additional nondefense funding in excess of functional levels set forth in section 1 of this resolution.

(d) Nothing in this section shall preclude the President requesting or Congress initiating legislation—

(1) to reduce the deficits for the fiscal years specified in subsection (a)(1) to levels below those set forth in section 1 of this resolution; or

(2) to ensure that such levels are not exceeded by reason of changing economic conditions or estimates.

Upon enactment of deficit reduction legislation of the type described in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the aggregates in section 1 of this resolution shall be adjusted accordingly.

GENERAL REVENUE SHARING EXTENSION

SEC. 4. Budget authority and outlays for funding an extension of general revenue sharing under the State and Local Assistance Act of 1972 through the end of fiscal year 1989 would be allocated to the appropriate committees of the Houe and Senate and the aggregates in section 1 of this resolution would be adjusted accordingly if—

(1) legislation ensuring that the funding would not increase the deficits set forth in section 1 of this resolution has been enacted into law;

(2) an authorization for such funding has been enacted into law; and

(3) such committee has reported legislation to provide such funding.

(b) The Committees on the Budget of the House of Representatives and the Senate are authorized and directed to report to their respective Houses revised allocations pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 and revised budget aggregates to carryout this section. Upon the reporting of such revised allocations, the appropriate committees of such Houses shall report revised allocations pursuant to section 302(b) of such Act to carry out this section. Such revised allocations and budget aggregates shall be considered for purposes of such Act as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c) This section shall not apply to the extent that additional funding for general revenue sharing is provided for within the section 302(a) allocations of budget authority and outlays to the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate made in the joint explanatory statement accompanying this resolution.

REPORT ON DOD INFLATION FUNDING

SEC. 5. (a) It is the sense of the Congress that the Secretary of Defense should transmit a report to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate setting forth a full and complete accounting of all moneys appropriated to the Department of Defense for fiscal year 1986 in excess of sums needed to cover inflation. Such report shall be referred to the Committee on Appropriations and Committee on Armed Services of each House. The Committee on the Budget of each House shall be notified upon the transmittal of such report.

(b) It is further the sense of the Congress that the report described in subsection (a) shall also be submitted to the General Accounting Office which shall report to the Congress within a period of 14 days on its findings as to that report, and that upon receipt of the General Accounting Office report the Committees on Armed Services of the House and Senate shall take appropriate action to ensure that only the appropriate levels of funding for inflation are provided.

(c) It is further the sense of the Congress that for fiscal years 1988 and 1989, the Secretary of Defense shall, within 90 days of the close of each such fiscal year, issue to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate, a report accounting for any moneys appropriated for each respective prior fiscal year to cover inflation, which have not been obligated for such purposes.

GNP DEFLATOR

SEC. 6. It is the sense of the Congress that the Committees on Armed Services of the House and Senate should consider legislation prohibiting the Department of Defense from using an arbitrary deflator (one not based on historical or factual data) for major weapons systems which would provide funding for major weapons systems inflation in excess of the GNP deflator.

FEDERAL CREDIT PROGRAM REFORM

SEC. 7. (a) The Congress finds that:

(1) The Federal Government is a major lender and allocator of capital through direct loan and loan guarantee programs.

(2) The creation of the Federal Financing Bank was a major step in streamlining and reducing the cost of these programs.

(3) Despite the improvements in funding brought about by the Federal Financing Bank, however, serious shortcomings remain in the allocation and management of Federal credit programs.

(4) Current allocation decisions for a loan and loan guarantee programs do not adequately reflect economic costs and, because cost calculations are not uniform across programs, they do not allow accurate comparisons among programs.

(5) Current Federal credit program controls provide little incentive for sound credit management practices or timely debt collection.

(b) It is therefore the sense of the Congress that the appropriate committees of the Congress should review proposals to change the Federal credit budget, including use of mechanisms which would—

(1) provide uniform budget treatment of Federal credit programs based on their subsidy cost;

(2) permit accurate comparison of credit and spending programs based on their true economic cost;

(3) promote effective management of Federal credit programs, providing accurate and comprehensive data on Federal credit activity and encouraging timely debt collection; and

(4) undertake accounting and management reforms for Federal credit programs as appropriate.

OIL AND GAS EMPLOYEES

SEC. 8. Since in the last six months the Government of Saudi Arabia has more than doubled its export of petroleum and petroleum products; and

Since these increased export volumes have resulted in a surplus of petroleum and petroleum products within the world marketplace; and

Since this surplus has directly resulted in a dramatic reduction of the weighted average price of international crude from $27.10 on January 7, 1986, to $13.08 on April 15, 1986; and

Since the United States has increased its importation of petroleum and petroleum products by 26 percent over the comparable period last year;

Since this dramatic reduction in price and the increased level of imports has resulted in a corresponding reduction in domestic petroleum exploration activities, including a reduction in the number of active rotary drilling rigs in the United States from 4,797 in 1981, to 865 as of April 21, 1986; and

Since the increase in petroleum imports and the reduction in domestic exploration efforts have resulted in a loss of jobs for individuals who are employed by the oil and gas industry and oil and gas service industry; and

Since American firms and employees that are injured by increased imports are eligible for temporary assistance under the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act; and

Since the Administration is narrowly interpreting the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act so as to exclude employees of the oil and gas industry and oil and gas service industry from receiving the benefits of this Act.

It is therefore the sense of the Congress that—employees of the United States oil and gas industry and oil and gas service industry have been directly injured by a dramatic increase in imported petroleum and petroleum products and by the resulting decline in domestic oil exploration efforts; and the Administration should immediately broaden its interpretation of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act so as to allow employees of the United States oil and gas industry and oil and gas service industry to qualify for certification under the Act; and if the Administration does not act immediately to resolve this matter, the Congress will address this issue on the first appropriate vehicle to be considered by the Congress.

STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE

SEC. 9. It is the sense of the Congress that the policy to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to an ultimate capacity of 750 million barrels be reaffirmed. It is also recommended that the Federal Government purchase oil for the Reserve in a way designed to help domestic stripper oil well producers so as to minimize the shutting-in of stripper production.

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE

SEC. 10. It is the sense of the Congress that Federal funds for the Cooperative Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture should be maintained at a level sufficient to carry out fully the vital services it is providing to rural America during a time of extreme stress. It is further assumed that this funding will be used especially to support and strengthen such core programs as 4-H Youth Development, Home Economics and Family Living, Natural Resources and Community Development, and services that provide agricultural financial analysis and farm management instruction.

FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL INVESTMENT REFORM

SEC. 11. It is the sense of the Congress that the use of foreign aid funds for financing the foreign production for export use of agricultural commodities already in surplus on world markets is a counter-productive use of American tax dollars as well as devastating to the American farmer who loses export markets from the unfairly subsidized competition.

SOCIAL SECURITY COLAS

SEC. 12. It is the sense of the Congress that legislation should be enacted to provide that social security cost-of-living adjustments, and COLAs in other programs linked to those adjustments, will be paid at the actual rate of inflation, whether it is above or below 3 percent.

SECTION 302 (a) ALLOCATIONS

SEC. 13. The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives may file, not later than July 9, 1986, a report in the House containing the allocations required to be made pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974. The report shall be printed as, and considered to be, a report of the Committee on the Budget and such allocations made in that report shall be considered to be the allocations required to be in the joint explanatory statement accompanying this resolution.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was agreed to.

Mr. DOLE. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, let me congratulate the managers and members of the staff on each side. They have done an outstanding job. This is always a very difficult process. There was a lot of bipartisan support this time around on the budget.

I know many, including many members of the committee, are disappointed at the final outcome. But, nonetheless, at least technically, we have met the provisions and conditions of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings. Whether or not there will be a sequester remains to be seen. I hope not.

But, in any event, I personally want to thank both the distinguished chairman, Senator DOMENICI, and the distinguished ranking member, Senator CHILES, for their getting it done before the recess. In my view, had they waited until after the recess, it would have been even more difficult.

I share their view that, as imperfect as it is, it is better to do it now and get on with it. We have plenty of work to do when we come back. We have got a mountain of it. This will be just one less hill to climb when we return.

MORE ON POLITICAL HUNGER

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, Dr. Larry Brown of Harvard University School of Public Health recently issued yet another in his installments of political commentaries on "Hunger in America" under the guise of academically credible research.

Dr. Brown and his Physician Task Force have attempted to play on the genuine concerns that Americans have for the poor by using their reports as a basis to criticize, indeed, lambaste the Reagan administration's overall economic policy.

Thus far, the news media seem to have accepted at face value the "findings" of Dr. Brown's various reports. Under careful examination, it is clear that Dr. Brown uses a hit-and-run approach, making outlandish claims which, after his press conferences, are demonstrated to be without foundation. Meanwhile, however, his charges have received considerable media attention.

This Senator keeps hoping that the liberal news media will prove itself not to be so liberal. However, my view is reinforced when the press permits Dr. Brown's charges to be printed and broadcast without the same degree of scrutiny and examination that certainly occurs when administration officials make statements on almost any subject.

The time has long since come when more critical analysis should be made about Dr. Brown's charges and about the blatantly political basis for those charges.

The latest report, issued May 21, marks the third in a series of diatribes by Larry Brown against the Reagan administration. The first, entitled "Hunger in America: The Growing Epidemic," was released in 1985 following an election year (1984) tour of eight States—seven of which, including my own State of North Carolina, had U.S. Senate elections. The 1985 report was the culmination of individual "reports" that were made in at least most of the individual States. For instance, his report on the North Carolina situation was released the week of the November 1984 elections. In a truly nonpartisan fashion, certain comments by Brown, not favorable to this Senator from North Carolina, were included in news stories on the morning of the election.

The charges he made in May against the President are similar to those he leveled against me in 1984. His North Carolina report charged that "widespread hunger" that he claimed to find in my State was being fostered amid a "climate of meanness" created, he said, by leaders who are more interested in catching welfare cheaters than feeding undernourished people. His singular example—again, on the morning of the election—was the senior Senator from North Carolina.

The latest accusation from Dr. Brown is that "barriers which knock people off the rolls" have been placed in the "path of local programs trying to reach American households eligible for and in need of food stamps".

Dr. Brown finds that 20 to 22 million Americans participating in the Food Stamp Program each month is not enough, and believes that taxpayer-financed recruiting schemes should be implemented to encourage even greater food stamp participation. Indeed, while the monthly number of recipients is around 20 to 22 million, the Department of Agriculture estimates that roughly 35 million Americans—or 1 out of 7—participate in the Food Stamp Program at least 1 month during the year. Yet, Dr. Brown thinks this is not enough.

Dr. Brown's report criticizes the elimination of Federal funding for federally required outreach activities which, prior to 1981, were used to recruit individuals to participate in the Food Stamp Program. The Carter administration's obsession with outreach was well documented, and led to bipartisan attempts to curtail the excesses of federally imposed requirements for outreach activities.

Attempts to reform the process were initiated in 1980. Representative BERKLEY BEDELL proposed an amendment to S. 1309, a bill to increase the food stamp authorization, to prohibit the Federal Government from imposing time requirements relating to outreach activities upon local food stamp administrators. Representative BEDELL noted:

> The purpose of this amendment is to correct a problem that at least exists in my State and may exist in other States.
>
> In a recent visit to my district, I found that food stamp personnel were being required to spend several hours per month in outreach efforts to try to get more people to come and take food stamps at the same time that our food stamp program is running out of money and threatens to be completely eliminated.
>
> Mr. Chairman, the amendment * * * is an attempt to inject a degree of reason and common sense into the matter in which the food stamp program is administered.* * *

Regardless of the level of support which one has for the Food Stamp Program, I think that most of us will agree that it makes absolutely no sense for the States to set mandatory "outreach" requirements when program personnel could better spend their time reviewing applications and cases in an effort to reduce fraud or error in the program. Also, as I just mentioned, this effort seems even more ridiculous when required at a time when the Food Stamp Program is threatened to be shut down for lack of funds.

The Bedell amendment was agreed to by a voice vote. Subsequently, Representative NORMAN D. SHUMWAY attempted to reverse Federal policy by prohibiting Federal funding of outreach activities. Said Representative SHUMWAY:

> It is increasingly obvious to me that the outreach aspect of the Food Stamp Program is no longer necessary. We all know now that participation is at an all-time high. I believe very strongly that Americans know what this program is. They know what is available to them and what their needs indicate, and they know how to have access to the program.
>
> I think particularly at a time when we are trying to streamline the operation of this program, to continue to reach out and to spend scarce tax dollars to advertise a program of this sort is a mistake for us to perpetuate. I think the unprecedented number of Americans now receiving food stamps certainly points to this conclusion.

Representative TOM FOLEY then the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, offered a substitute amendment to the Shumway amendment to eliminate the Federal requirement for outreach activities, but maintain Federal funding of outreach activities that States carried out. Chairman FOLEY stated:

> What my amendment does is simply say that the requirement in the present State plan that States must conduct outreach activities is stricken, leaving it up to every State to decide whether information should be given to potential or real food stamp recipients.

The Foley substitute was adopted by voice vote and replaced both the pending Shumway amendment and the earlier Bedell amendment. However, the provision was dropped in conference with the Senate, and was not included in the final version of the bill adopted by the Congress.

In 1981, the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry adopted, as a provision in S. 1007, the food stamp reauthorization bill, the Shumway amendment eliminating the Federal requirement for outreach and Federal funding. The Senate committee report outlined succinctly the reasons for the action:

> Present law requires States to conduct "outreach" by informing low-income households of the availability of the food stamp program and its eligibility requirements and benefits. Information includes notification, distribution of applications and instructions on completing them.
>
> Almost without exception, local and State administrators who testified before the Committee, cited the mandatory outreach requirements as burdensome, onerous, and/or unnecessary. Each county within a State is required to conduct specific and reported outreach in the food stamp program outlined in meticulous detail in nine full pages of regulations. Among the many provisions currently mandated by regulation:
>
> State agencies shall contact the news media on a regular basis to provide current information on the Program, including announcements regarding the semi-annual and annual changes in allotments and eligibility standards.
>
> State agencies shall develop and conduct special outreach efforts designed to reach specific groups of low-income people. At a minimum, these efforts shall be directed toward participants in AFDC, SSI, general assistance and unemployment compensation programs who are eligible for food stamp benefits but who are not participating in the Program; toward applicants for HUD Section 8 housing assistance; toward Indians living on reservations where the State agency is running the Program on the reservation; and toward migrant households that periodically reside in a State.
>
> State agencies shall actively attempt to recruit volunteers to assist outreach staff in achieving the outreach program's objectives. Volunteers shall be sought from other government agencies, private agencies, organization, groups, and from the public.
>
> In addition, State agencies shall monitor participation rates and direct special outreach efforts toward groups that have comparatively low rates of participation. These groups may include the elderly, disabled, various ethnic groups, minorities, and the working poor.
>
> State agencies shall develop and conduct special outreach efforts directed toward low-income residents of specific geographic areas such as all or parts of cities, counties or regions of the State.
>
> In certain areas, radio and television public service announcements have been used to "advertise" the food stamp program. Bus placards, posters in grocery stores, pamphlets, press release have all been used in various States to encourage greater food stamps participation.
>
> The Committee believes that now with 23 million recipients on the program—one in every ten Americans—the American people, as a whole, are well-informed about the availability of food stamps and that aggressive Federal requirements for outreach are wholly inappropriate.
>
> All outreach activities are funded 50 percent by the Federal Government. While the direct Federal expenses for outreach is small—around $4 million annually—this cost is multiplied many times over if the outreach is "successful", as new receipients swell the caseload and subsequently the expenses of the program. Indeed, one eligibility worker Jeff Peterson, from Alexandria, Virginia, noted, in testimony before the Committee, the irony of the outreach requirement at the same time the food stamp program was running out of money during fiscal year 1980:
>
> Last June, as the program was running out of funds, Congress mandated further outreach to publicize the program. So, while Congress was contemplating ending direct benefits to all recipients by not refunding the program, it was mandating increased expenditures in indirect projects that benefited no one. In view of President Reagan's desire to reduce the budget, it seems senseless to spend money advertising the availability of the program, which we want reduced anyway.

Responding to the outreach mandate, the State of Wisconsin recently printed 2,000 copies of a "Food Stamp Nursery Rhyme Coloring Book", which included "rhymes" along with illustrations designed for small children to color.

The Committee eliminates both the Federal requirements for outreach and Federal funding of outreach activities. States that feel the need to continue outreach may do so, but with no Federal funding. However, the prohibition on Federal funding of outreach should not be construed to inhibit informing food stamp applicants and recipients of their rights and responsibilities.

This prohibition on funding should not unduly restrict the State from providing (with 50 percent matching Federal funds) information to potential recipients who are inquiring about participation in the food stamp or other Federal or general assistance programs. However, the Committee does not intend, for Federal funding to be used to continue soliciting or recruiting recipients to the program. * * *

The provision was also included in the Senate and House reconciliation bills and was adopted as a part of Public Law 97-35.

The reasons for the elimination of outreach are just as valid in 1986 as they were in 1980 and 1981. The President is absolutely right when he says that most people are aware of food stamps. There is no greater confirmation of that fact than by the continuingly high participation in the program—one in 12 Americans every month, and more than 1 in 7 in the course of a year.

Not only are poor Americans aware of the existence of the Food Stamp Program but also they are, in many instances, keenly aware of the details of eligibility loopholes and special rules. This has been mentioned repeatedly by witnesses testifying before the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

It should also be stressed that there is no limitation on informing potential recipients who are inquiring about participation in the food stamp or other Federal or general assistance programs. Food stamp applicants and recipients continue to be informed about their rights and responsibilities under present law.

The Food Stamp Program now costs $12.5 billion annually. Quality control reviews of the Department of Agriculture indicate that almost $1 out of every $10—8.64 percent during fiscal year 1984, for example—spent in the program now goes to someone who is either not eligible for food stamp benefits at all or has been overissued benefits for a total of approximately $900 million in misappropriated benefits. Rather than not enough people receiving benefits, the historical problem has been that quite a few recipients are not entitled to what they have already received.

Indeed, Dr. Brown's real complaint seems to be with verification procedures which have been implemented to curtail fraud, waste, and abuse in the Food Stamp Program. I am frankly astounded by his recommendation that one of the answers to what he sees as remedying this supposedly low participation is to allow recipients to receive benefits without the necessary verification of their income and other household circumstances that determine appropriate benefit levels. Such lax administration, termed "self-declaration," would permit food stamp participation without even the minimal verification procedures that exist today. He apparently wants to return to the days when the Federal Government essentially hung out a sign saying "come and get 'em," with little verification of eligibility.

If we have almost 10 percent rates of overissuance with the current degree of verification, there is no telling how much more fraud we would have without it. In past years, estimates of overissuance have often hit 20 percent or more of total program costs. A system which eliminated verification of the accuracy of household income information would make matters far worse. Of course, Dr. Brown's plan, according to his May report would be to eliminate the Federal error rate system, so that States could make unlimited overpayments, without ever having to reimburse Federal taxpayers. Such a course of action is, in my judgment, outrageously irresponsible, costing taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars in the next several years.

Another of Dr. Brown's recommendations is to increase by 4½ times the assets test that applies in the Food Stamp Program. Currently, households may have up to $2,000 in liquid assets and remain eligible for the Food and Stamp Program. Households with elderly recipients may have up to $3,000 in liquid assets. Dr. Brown recommends that these income ceilings be increased to $9,000. He also recommends that the allowance for automobiles be increased to $6,500, from the present level of $4,500. Dr. Brown's report states that food stamp families should not have to "sell or use up most assets—cars, household items—as a condition of help when they are in economic distress." Dr. Brown's task force apparently does not understand how the assets test works. Neither the value of a family's home nor any household items are included in determining the household's asset levels. Countable assets are liquid, primarily cash, assets—including checking accounts, savings accounts or certificates, stocks, and bonds. What the increase in assets would permit would be for households receiving food stamps to have as much as $9,000 in the bank and still be eligible for food stamp benefits. These liberations of the assets test would increase food stamp costs by hundreds of millions of dollars.

The legislative recommendations made by Dr. Brown in May would likely increase Food Stamp Program costs by billions of dollars over the next few years. This is above and beyond the $5 to $7 billion in increased costs that Dr. Brown estimated would result from the recommendations of his 1985 report in the Food Stamp Program, and an array of other Federal programs, including Medicaid, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, and various child nutrition programs.

I have previously examined some of Dr. Brown's charges from the 1985 report, so I shall not revisit those now. However, perhaps it would be useful to focus on other analyses which contradict Dr. Brown's interpretation of the current status of the nutritional health of poor people in this country, and to examine his January 1986 report on 150 so-called hunger countries.

The President's Task Force on Food Assistance concluded in January 1984 that the Food Stamp Program had become more targeted as a result of the 1981 reconciliation changes.

The 1981 changes have "not caused a decline in participation within the poverty population, the Food Stamp Program's primary target population.

Specifically, the task force stated:

These participation trends suggest that households in poverty continue to have access to the Food Stamp Program and the available food stamp resources have become more effectively targeted towards the poverty population in recent years.

The task force found that food stamp participation had shifted toward those below poverty as follows:

FOOD STAMP TARGETING

[In percent]

	Share of recipients in families with income below
	100 percent of poverty line	130 percent of poverty line
1979	59.3	72.6
1980	63.1	76.8
1981	65.4	78.3
1983	71.3	83.7

Many of the task force findings have been substantiated by another, more recent report released last summer by the Department of Agriculture. (See "The Effects of Legislative Changes in 1981 and 1982 on the Food Stamp Program," prepared by the Urban Institute for the Office of Analysis and Evaluation, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, May 1985.)

The report was required by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1982. Among other things, the study found that:

The legislation of 1981 and 1982 had a perceptible impact on food stamp caseloads, average benefits, and total costs, but far less than was previously expected.

The composition of the caseload did not change as a result of the legislation.

While cost of living delays decreased the purchasing power of benefits for a temporary period, subsequent adjustments restored the value of maximum benefits to previous levels.

The average incomes of food stamp recipients were virtually unchanged over the period in which the legislation was implemented.

While the recession affected the number of program participants to some degree, the impact on caseloads and costs was far lower than expected because the relationship between the Food Stamp Program and the unemployment rate is far more complex than previously thought.

The study concluded:

The findings of this study support the conclusion that the changes enacted in 1981 and 1982 did not fundamentally change the basic structure of the Food Stamp Program. As a result, the effects of the legislative changes on the number of participants, average benefits, and total program costs were smaller than originally expected.

Let me stress that finding, Mr. President. Contrary to Larry Brown's charges, the Urban Institute study concluded that "the changes enacted in 1981 and 1982 did not fundamentally change the basic structure of the Food Stamp Program." This Senator believes we needed to restructure the program, but that did not happen.

The study also noted that savings from the reconciliation bills were overstated:

The study found that the legislative changes—independent of changing economic conditions and demographic characteristics—reduced program costs in fiscal year 1982 by about $450 to $650 million, a reduction of about 4 to 6 percent. These savings are well below the level of savings expected at the time of enactment of the 1981 and 1982 legislation. Several factors tended to reduce the actual savings relative to the original projections. Most notably, the projections were based on assumptions about the performance of the economy—particularly about the course of food increases—that were not borne out.

The study's conclusions with regard to lower savings from differences in actual food price inflation thus confirmed an earlier CBO analysis that had indicated the 1981 budget savings to be overstated. (See "Revised Estimates of Effects of Legislation Enacted during 1981 affecting the Food Stamp and Child Nutrition Programs," pages 45-55 of hearing on "Administration's Budget Proposals for the Food and Nutrition Service Programs," Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, April 11, 1983.)

CBO found the 3-year savings from the 1981 reconciliation bill overstated by $700 million, and the overestimate from the 1981 farm bill to be $500 million over 3 years. Both overestimates were because food price inflation had been considerably lower than assumed in the original CBO effects of cost-of-living adjustments for several program changes enacted in 1981.

The Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, has heard discussion in committee testimony regarding the impact of food stamp spending on the "safety net" of Federal programs available to the poor.

Mr. John C. Weicher, F.K. Weyerhaeuser Scholar in Public Policy Research at the American Enterprise Institute, testified before the Nutrition Subcommittee on June 14, 1985, with regard to the Food Stamp Program and the safety net:

Clearly there has been a change in the momentum of policy, if not the direction. The growth of safety net programs has been slowed if not halted, and the safety net has not been extended further

But the effects of this change in direction on the welfare of most households have probably been small. The changes in the income maintenance programs turn out to be less significant than much of the public discussion would suggest. The safety net has probably been maintained, particularly for the poorest people.

Even Robert Greenstein, director of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities and former Administrator of the Food and Nutrition Service under President Carter, came to a similar conclusion at the same hearing:

For some time, there was a fair amount of debate between those who argued that cuts in the food programs had caused a large upsurge in hunger and those who denied that a hunger problem existed. I think the evidence increasingly indicates that both of these positions were mistaken. The program of hunger is real, but it is caused by many factors. Federal budget cuts in food programs probably were not the principal cause here.

The Agriculture Committee has monitored the performance of the Federal food assistance programs closely since the adoption of the 1981 and 1982 legislative changes, and will continue to maintain oversight of the program. The committee believes the Food Stamp Program continues to respond appropriately to the food needs of poor Americans.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an article by economist Warren T. Brookes be printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

URBAN INSTITUTE DEBUNKS HARVARD'S HUNGER HYPE

(By Warren T. Brookes)

Hunger is far too important a subject to be trivialized by gimmick promotions or phony "studies." But that, unfortunately, is what both Harvard and Hollywood are now doing.

Last May, the Urban Institute—one of the nation's most prestigious social research organizations—presented its congressionally mandated study on the effects of the Reagan 1981-82 changes in the food stamp program.

The exhaustive 250-page, two-volume study (which included month-by-month, 13-year longitudinal studies of food stamp case and benefit levels, modified by similarly detailed analysis of economic factors), concluded that the Reagan changes "did not fundamentally change the basic structure of the food stamp program," and that they "probably did not have a significant impact . . . on the number of recipients or average benefits. . . ."

The study also showed that "the real value of food stamp benefits [in the 1981-84 period] was unchanged, indicating the purchasing power of the benefit was largely maintained."

It also confirmed the fact that since 1978, constant dollar benefits per household had risen 18 per cent, while the actual percentage of the poverty population receiving food stamps had risen from 49 to 59 per cent, because of greater targeting, with 95 per cent now going to poverty level, up from 83 percent in 1978.

Curiously, none of the major networks even mentioned this extraordinary independent study. They simply ignored it.

Compare this total silence with the elaborate CBS hype on January 14 of a new 35-page "study" by Harvard University's "Physician Task Force on Hunger in America." It purported to show "the 150 worst 'hunger counties' in America," and concluded that since 1977, "our nation has lost significant ground in its battle to end domestic hunger . . . [and] regressed in its commitment to see that its people are adequately fed."

Hyperbolic language like this led CBS' Dan Rather to devote an unprecedented seven full minutes, or nearly one-third of his "Nightly News Broadcast," to this "study," including on-location reports from some of the "hunger counties" and a highly emotional interview with the study's chief author, Dr. Larry Brown.

What the public was never told is that neither Rather nor Dr. Brown in his study bothered to interview or consult either the Urban Institute nor the U.S. Department of Agriculture to confirm its "findings."

Fortunately, ABC and NBC did call the USDA, and downplayed the Harvard study, while the "McNeil-Lehrer News Hour" got John Bode, assistant secretary for food and consumer services (nutritional programs), to publicly debate Dr. Brown.

Bode called Brown's study "a worthless sham," and cited as evidence the Urban Institute findings, with good reason.

"Worthless sham" is too kind a characterization for the Harvard study. It was done "in the office," taking 1979 Census data on poverty by county, "up-dating" those county poverty numbers by the blunt instrument of regional poverty changes, 1980-84. It then compared those contrived numbers with the actual number of food stamp recipients, county by county in a single month, July 1984, which Brown knew is the lowest annual participation month in the food stamp program.

Using this fatuously silly personal computer exercise, Brown then defined as "hunger counties" those where poverty was above 20 per cent, and where food stamp recipients constituted less than 33 per cent of the total "poverty population."

Not surprisingly, Brown came up with a high percentage of the nation's most heavily agricultural counties, concentrated in Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Texas and Missouri, where poverty analysis, based solely on cash income, is most likely to ignore the existence of home-grown food as "inkind" income—something that would destroy their whole "hunger-county" thesis.

When NBC and AP news reporters went to these counties, they were told that "these Eastern academics simply don't know what they are talking about." True enough.

Brown's researchers admitted they had not made any field studies. They never took classes in statistical logic, either.

In their report, they cited the famed 1977 Field Foundation study which had concluded that food stamps had conquered hunger.

Yet, in 1977, less than 49 per cent of America's poor were receiving food stamps, and there was no Women's Infant Children (WIC) food supplement program, and less than 15 million Americans received benefits worth 18 per cent less (in purchasing power) than in 1984.

Today, nearly 60 per cent of all poor people receive food stamps (over 72 per cent in "constant terms" if the Labor Department had properly adjusted the '77-'83 consumer price index) and we're spending a huge 58 per cent more, in constant food dollars, than we spent in 1977, when the Field Foundation said hunger was no longer widespread.

Remember this, when listening to the Harvard hype, and the "USA for Africa's" plans for the May "Hunger Chain" across the U.S.

GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE ASSESSMENT OF PHYSICIAN TASK FORCE JANUARY 1986 REPORT

Mr. HELMS. The General Accounting Office recently undertook a review of the methods used in the Physician Task Force Report issued in January, 1986, entitled "Hunger Counties 1986." The report was requested by Representatives BILL EMERSON and TOM COLEMAN, both of Missouri, which, according to the task force report, had 17 of the 150 hunger counties in the Nation. The GAO report is entitled, "Hunger Counties: Methodological Review of a Report by the Physician Task Force on Hunger," GAO/PEMD-86-7BR, March 18, 1986.

The General Accounting Office report "found major limitations in the approach taken by the Physician Task Force." Indeed, the limitations were of such a magnitude as to vitiate the overall integrity and credibility of the report, according to the GAO. The task force devised its own methods for measuring hunger and describing the distribution of hunger across the country, methods which the GAO has noted are woefully inadequate. In layman's terms, the task force compared apples and oranges.

The January 1986 Physician Task Force report purported to identify the geographic areas of the country where food need is greatest and to show that the Federal Food Stamp Program is at least partially responsible for needs not being met in those areas. The task force identified what it termed "150 hunger counties" in the United States, counties in which large numbers of citizens experience hunger and high risk of nutritional deprivation, according to the task force. However, the GAO questioned whether the report showed the real distribution of the number of persons experiencing hunger or nutritional deprivation.

Even if one accepts, as the GAO did not, Brown's assumption that low food stamp participation in high poverty counties was a predictor of food need, the task force report fails to identify those counties with the largest absolute number of nonparticipants. The GAO stated:

A consequence of using a relative participation indicator is that the task force method does not account well for counties where participation rates are high but, nevertheless, large numbers of people do not participate, as in counties with large numbers of eligible persons. A county of 250,000 residents eligible for food stamps with a participation rate of 85 percent would have 37,500 nonparticipants. In contrast, the estimated number of nonparticipants in Eureka, Nevada (the county with the lowest participation rate on the list, 1.71 percent), was 585 persons. This means that the characterization by the task force of counties with low participation must be used cautiously. There may be large numbers of nonparticipants in counties with high participation rates.

We may put the effect described above somewhat into context by noting that the average population of the 150 counties was 12,000 while the average population in counties across the nation was 70,000. It could be argued that the greatest need for reducing hunger is in counties that have large numbers of people who do not participate in the food stamp program, counties where the participation rate is not necessarily low. Using a relative indicator, as the task force did, would not produce the 150 counties with the largest absolute number of nonparticipants.

The number of persons eligible for food stamp participation in the task force report was not based on a direct determination of the number of county residents actually eligible for food stamps, but rather was derived from indirect factors that were estimated by the task force. Indeed, most of the task force methodology is based on indirect means and estimates. There have not been facts or figures on any direct measures of hunger in the physician task force reports.

In identifying its "hunger counties," the task force used two surrogate measures. The GAO found major problems in both.

First, the task force picked out counties in which 20 percent or more of the population was below 125 percent of the poverty level in 1979; then the task force adjusted for regional changes in the poverty population through 1984. The task force found that 716 counties met this criteria. The 20-percent figures was an arbitrary determination, and it should be noted that slight variations in the figure chosen would make major differences in the subsequent calculations.

The GAO found a basic flaw in this procedure for identifying the high poverty counties of 1984. In effect, the task force assumed that poverty figures for individual counties could be projected from 1979—for which county-by-county data was available—to 1984 through the use of poverty estimates for the four Census Bureau regions. The GAO noted:

It is not obvious that all counties, if any, within a region had a change in poverty rate from 1979 to 1984 identical to the regional average. Counties within a region are anything but homogeneous. It seems unreasonable to expect that changes in poverty in Navajo County, Arizona, would be same as changes in Los Angeles County, California (both in the West), or that poverty rate changes in Alachua County or Dade County, Florida (both in the South), would be the same. The application of broad regional adjustments to produce county estimates introduced unknown, but real, errors in the task force estimates. . . .

Dr. Brown asserts that his methodology was similar to that used in two previous studies, from 1968 and 1973—studies which, I might add, were also subject to criticism with respect to their accuracy. However, as the GAO notes, the methodology was not precisely the same. Indeed, if he had used the earlier methods, between 80 and 132 of his 150 counties would no longer be considered high poverty counties.

Next, the task force measured food stamp participation for one month, July, of 1984 in the 716 counties it had identified as high poverty counties, as compared to the number of persons in those counties that it estimated to be eligible for food stamps. Counties in which fewer than 33 percent of those eligible for food stamps participated in the Food Stamp Program were judged the 150 hunger counties. Here again, the 33-percent figure was an arbitrary cutoff selected by the task force. The GAO found further, and more serious, problems with this methodology.

The task force compared food stamp participation to a number of eligible persons in each county using its adjusted 1984 count of persons with incomes below 125 percent of the Federal poverty levels—based on the regional projections of 1979 data—as a surrogate for any specific data on the number of those actually eligible for food stamps. However, the GAO noted that this produces a serious overestimate of eligible persons—and therefore an underestimate of food stamp participation among eligible people—because of a failure to consider the food stamp eligibility test for assets:

We think the task force seriously overestimated the number of eligible participants because data were not available with which to adjust for persons who were eligible for food stamps by the income test but not by the assets test. Because information on assets is not available county by county, it is impossible to estimate the effect of applying an assets test to the county data. However, it is know that approximately 25 percent of food stamp applicants who are eligible by income on the national level are ineligible when an assets test is applied. If the national figure were applied uniformly to the task force calculations, 52 of the 150 'hunger counties'—that is, more than a third—would no longer . . . [meet the task force definition for inclusion as a "hunger county"].

Moreover, the task force compared food stamp participation in 1 month in 1984 to a number of potentially eligible persons, as determined on an annual basis. The GAO considered this comparison of monthly and annual data to be a major limitation on the task force report's accuracy, producing inaccurate and probably low participation rates.

The total number of persons who participated in the Food Stamp Program at any time in 1984 was approximately 34 million, according to GAO, but, during the year, some number went on and off the rolls; thus, the participation in a given month was significantly less than total yearly participation. In 1984, the average monthly number of food stamp recipients was aboaut 20 million persons. The GAO concluded:

We consider it a major limitation to compare monthly participation with annual eligibility; the result of the comparison is serious inaccuracy in the distribution of counties.

Perhaps more fundamental to the failure of the task force was the underlying assumptions about the presumed correlation between lack of food stamp participation and hunger. The GAO concluded:

It is not clear that the fundamental relationship between hunger and food stamp program participation underlying the task force report can produce an accurate estimate (no matter how methodologically sound the procedure), since this relationship has not been demonstrated.

The GAO reported:

Aside from the problem of "hunger counties" as a concept, we have difficulty believing that the task force method accurately depicted the distribution of hunger in the United States. Several of the limitations in its participation indicator apply also to the calculations of the distribution of hunger. Our main concern is that the method the task force used for determining the distribution of hunger did not measure hunger directly, in the sense of estimating the degree of chronic underconsumption of food and other nutrients.

The usual recourse in this situation would be to seek a combination of factors that were highly correlated with the variable that could not be directly measured (in this case, hunger), and this is what the task force attempted to do. It equated hunger to the shortfall in food stamp participation in high-poverty counties. In other words, the task force assumed that poverty and food stamp participation were related to hunger and devised a method for indirectly estimating its distribution.

Our difficulty is with the strength of the assumed relationship. If the relationship was somewhat weak and if other factors were also related to hunger, then the distribution of counties calculated by the task force was inaccurate. Two examples will illustrate our point: alternative sources of food and the purchasing power of the dollar. County-to-county variation in either of these factors could help account for county-to-county variation in hunger.

People who are poor by income standards may have enough to eat, even though they do not use food stamps. For example, farmers who depend on their crops and students who depend on their parents may show low income but have sufficient food. Some people may have access to private food donation or other programs that provide funds for food—Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the Child Care Food Program, the School Lunch and School Breakfast programs, the Summer Food Service Program, Supplemental Security Income, or the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children. As a consequence, using poverty and food stamp participation as indicators may overstate hunger in some counties.

County-to-county variations in purchasing power also could account for variations in the degree of hunger. If purchasing power varies while the sources of food are held constant, persons with low purchasing power will tend to be more hungry than those with high purchasing power."

. . . Overall, we have serious doubts about the method used to determine the geographic distribution of hunger that was reported in 'Hunger Counties 1986'. We are not convinced that the method reveals the country-level distribution of persons who chronically experience underconsumption of food and other nutrients. Therefore, we doubt whether the 150 "hunger counties" represent the areas of most extreme need.

Mr. President, I commend to my colleagues who are interested in the subject—and to members of the media who have chosen to believe Dr. Brown's charges without examining the facts—that they reveiw the GAO report, entitled "Hunger Counties: Methodological Review of a Report by the Physician Task Force on Hunger," GAO/PEMD-86-7BR, March 18, 1986.

POLITICAL ACTIVISTS WITH A POLITICAL AGENDA

Mr. President, perhaps it might provide insight to understand the perspective of the task force reports if more attention had been focused on the composition of the task force.

I was somewhat amused to find some considerable understatement in one of the comments made by the Physician Task Force on Hunger in America in the first installment of its reports. It is surely one of the few understatements in task force documents generally noted for considerable overstatement.

"Admittedly, we are not politicians."

Such is the caveat included in the foreword to the first—1985—segment of several task force reports. This comment and countless others like it are apparently intended to convey an image that members of the task force are interested health professionals free from politically tainted motivations or biases.

In reality, the 1985 report—and, for that matter, the January and May 1986 reports—described existing Federal food assistance programs through an interpretation that was clearly and unmistakenly both liberal and political. The first task force report was, by any reasonable measure, a political document from front to back. That interpretation is being continued this year through additional task force pronouncements.

I have already cited my own experience with the nonpolitical sense of timing. Inasmuch as this is an even-numbered year, I suppose we should expect more charges from politically-motivated groups.

Perhaps it would be appropriate to examine more closely the political credentials of this supposedly nonpolitical group. The original—1984-85—task force was composed of 22 members—18 medical doctors, 2 ministers, and 2 Ph.D.s, one of whom served as chairman. The January 1986 study had a slightly revised composition, but with the same characteristics. The May 1986 report had one less medical doctor.

The image cultivated by the task force seems to be one of truly concerned physicians banning together to search in earnest for the causes of hunger which they believe to exist. I have no quarrel with the academic and medical credentials of the members of the task force. However, I am concerned that while holding themselves out as impartial citizens, many of the members are, in fact, liberal activists, some of whom has been deeply involved in Democratic Party politics. In some respects, the task force seems to be composed of a Democratic administration in exile rather than simply a group of concerned, nonpartisan physicians. Because of these political connections, one must view with the greatest caution the extreme, at times abusive, appraisal which the group makes of the hunger situation under the present, Republican, administration.

Dr. Julius B. Richmond served as a member of the task force. He is the director, division of health policy, research and education at Harvard Medical School. Dr. Richmond is also a former Assistant Secretary of Health and Surgeon General—1977-81—under President Jimmy Carter. During the administration of President Lyndon Johnson, between 1965 and 1966, he served as Director in the Office of Health Affairs at the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The task force also lists Joyce C. Lashof, M.D., dean of the School of Public Health, at the University of California at Berkeley. This is the same Joyce R. Cohen Lashof, M.D., who served as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Health Programs between 1977-78 in the administration of President Jimmy Carter.

Dr. George Pickett, associate dean and professor of the University of Alabama School of Public Health, was also included as a task force member. Between 1964-65, during the Johnson administration, Dr. Pickett served as Assistant Chief of the Special Projects Section in the Cancer Control Program of the U.S. Public Health Service within the Department of Health and Welfare. Who's Who in America—43d edition, 1984-85—also notes that Dr. Pickett is a Democrat.

Dr. Victor Sidel, a member of the physician task force, is a member of the New York State Public Health Council, having been appointed by New York's Democratic Gov. Mario Cuomo. Dr. Sidel has also been active in Physicians for Social Responsibility, a group urging U.S. disarmament. The political action committee of the Physicians for Social Responsibility primarily supports Democratic candidates.

Rev. Kenneth Dean was one of the nonphysicians included in the task force. He is listed as pastor of the First Baptist Church of Rochester, NY. Reverend Dean is a Democrat who ran, unsuccessfully, for Congress in 1974 in the Fourth District of Mississippi against Representative, now-Senator, THAD COCHRAN, Republican of Mississippi.

Rev. Craig Biddle was another nonphysician task force member. As the director of a liberal church advocacy group—IMPACT [National Interreligious Network]—he champions a number of liberal causes. He and his wife have visited Nicaragua in support of the Marxist Sandinista government and in opposition to the Reagan administration's efforts to support the Contras opposed to that government.

Dr. C. Arden Miller is the chairman and professor of the department of maternal and child health at the University of North Carolina School of Public Health in Chapel Hill, NC. Dr. Miller has been a consultant to the Department of Health and Human Services during the administration of President Jimmy Carter. He has also been a member of the advisory committee on national health insurance for the Ways and Means Committee in the House of Representatives.

Quite a few members of the physician task force served on the select panel for the promotion of child health, a panel proposed and appointed during the Carter administration. This panel, appointed by President Carter's then-HEW Secretary Joseph Califano, issued a report entitled "Better Health for Our Children: A National Strategy" on December 2, 1980. The report called for, among other things, national health insurance, and an expansion in both the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children [WIC] and Aid to Families with Dependent Children [AFDC] Programs. Even though the Food Stamp Program was already costing an unprecedented amount of $10 billion, the panel also urged that the Food Stamp Program be expanded both in numbers of individuals served and in the benefit levels for program recipients.

Dr. Richmond, as Assistant Secretary of Health, served on the panel. Other panel members who also serve on Larry Brown's physician task force were Dr. John C. MacQueen, who served as vice-chairman of the panel, and Dr. Aaron Shirley. Listed as contributors to the panel were Dr. Miller and Dr. Pickett, previously cited.

Perhaps most enlightening, Mr. President, is the fact that Larry Brown, the chairman of the supposedly nonpartisan band of academicians, I am informed, worked under liberal activist Sam Brown at ACTION during the Carter administration—hardly the haven of detached, nonpartisan research in those years.

Thus, it seems clear, Mr. President, that these members of the physician task force have longstanding, clearly delineated views which would lead them to oppose the efforts of the present administration. Efforts to reduce Federal spending, no matter how well-targeted or how successful, would invariably be opposed by those who not only resisted such efforts but spearheaded the Carter administration efforts to increase spending for such programs even further.

In the name of "advocacy for children," these individuals have established political credentials clearly at odds with the present, Republican, administration. It is no wonder that they are willing to step forward to label the administration's efforts as causing "epidemic hunger in America." Such accusations are more appropriately seen as liberal political epithets than any reasonable or objective assessment of our Nation's present food assistance programs, which, I might add, cost far more today than they did under the administration of President Carter.

Additionally, Mr. President, it is abundantly clear that at least some participants in the task force study had clearly preconceived ideas of what they would find and what they would recommend before they finished their research—and, in some cases, before they even started it.

Dr. J. Larry Brown, the chairman of the task force, testified at a Senate Nutrition Subcommittee hearing on April 6, 1983 a full year before the task force began its work. Dr. Brown had theorized that Federal Food Assistance Program cutback had prompted what he saw, even then, as hunger in America caused by the Reagan administration policies. At the Senate hearing, Dr. Brown stated:

> Our data is not sufficient to draw a cause and effect relationship between OBRA (Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act) cutback and the rise of the emergency food pantries, but their temporal relationship certainly in my mind places the burden on those who say that those are unrelated phenomena or events.

In a followup question I asked Dr. Brown to clarify this charge. Part of his response follows:

> In our research, we did not ask families coming to soup kitchens and food pantries whether they do so because of OBRA-mandated cuts in nutrition programs, which otherwise would have enabled them to eat. This is why we cannot say conclusively that there is a cause-and-effect relationship between the two. But the fact that the Reagan Administration initiated the most massive cuts in nutrition programs in the history of our country, and the fact that the number of families coming to soup kitchens and food pantries dramatically increased following those cuts, indicates that they are temporally related.
>
> While it is theoretically conceivable that some factor(s) other than the OBRA cuts forced these families into the soup lines, their temporal relationship and common sense would indicate that the cuts caused these Americans to resort to this means of feeding their families. Clearly the burden of proof now rests on those who would deny such a relationship.

Dr. Brown's espousal of a temporal relationship has evolved into an unequivocal statement by the task force that "Hunger has returned to our Nation primarily due to governmental failure." As outlined earlier, his charges are not supported by other analysts.

The thin veneer of the supposed scientific inquiry by the physician task force can be seen from the pronouncements made by Dr. Brown long before the task force concluded its first report. After visiting three of the eight States to be visited, Dr. Brown indicated to reporters on May 5, 1984 that he would recommend a 25-percent increase in the Food Stamp Program. Needless to say, when the principal author of a report makes known his views before the investigation is complete it raises considerable question about the objectivity of the remainder of the investigation and the thoroughness of that investigation. Sure enough, the final physician task force report recommended a 25-percent increase in the Food Stamp Program—at a cost, I might add, of over $4.5 billion annually.

Dr. C. Arden Miller's views were clear before the physician task force was formulated. On January 11, 1984, Dr. Miller criticized the findings of the President's Task Force on Food Assistance in a news conference sponsored by the American Public Health Association. Drs. Miller and Pickett are former presidents of the American Public Health Association. Dr. Sidel is the current president.

Dr. Brown and at least three other physicians who would become members of the task force—Drs. Lattimer, Sidel, and Shirley—testified before the House Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing, Consumer Relations, and Nutrition during 1983. Their preconceived views, like Dr. Brown's, were readily apparent. Dr. Lattimer, for instance specifically called for increased spending for Medicaid, AFDC, WIC, and title XX social services.

This is not a record of independent physicians. Rather, Mr. President, it is one in which a preponderance of the membership have had clearly identifiable views opposing the philosophy of the Reagan administration.

The three installments by the physician task force have been political documents, hardly the objective, or scientific study the task force seeks to portray to the American people. They should be reviewed in that context.

PHYSICIAN PAYMENT REVIEW COMMISSION

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, 2 weeks ago, the Senate received notice that the Office of Technology Assessment [OTA] had selected the 11-member Physician Payment Review Commission [PHYSPRC]. Congress established the formation of this Commission to advise both the Congress and the administration on the complex area of Medicare physician reimbursement policy. This advisory body has been enthusiastically awaited by many Members of Congress, particularly those of us with a longstanding interest in the area of physician payment reform.

While it is a certainly challenging task to put together a broadly representative panel on such a diverse subject, one requirement stands out to those of us who recognize the unique concerns of our rural constituents. We must be sure that those who live and serve in rural America will have their concerns adequately represented. In the recent past, we recognized this need in the area of hospital payment when we added rural representation to the Prospective Payment Assessment Commission. The same need is equally compelling in the area of physician payment.

Fortunately, the Office of Technology Assessment has responded rapidly to the request made by the Senate Rural Health Caucus and has agreed to appoint a Commissioner-designate from a rural area to serve for 1 year in a consulting capacity. That individual will, at the end of that year become a full voting member for a 3-year term commencing May 1987. I complement OTA for being both flexible and timely in their response to our request and I am personally looking forward to the contribution of PHYSPRC as we continue our efforts in Medicare physician payment reform.

COCAINE CRIMES

Mr. BUMPERS. Mr. President, I am pleased to join as a cosponsor of three bills recently introduced by my distinguished colleague from Florida Senator CHILES, which would help law enforcement stop the epidemic spread of rock cocaine across this country. The recent tragic death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias as a result of cocaine intoxication has focused the attention of the Nation on the abuse of this potent drug. So it is an especially appropriate time to consider ways to attack this terrible problem. Senator CHILES' bills would toughen current laws on the manufacture and sale of this most potent type of cocaine, and would place the stiffest penalties on manufacturers and distributors of the drug who make or sell it near schools or with the help of school-age children.

The use of cocaine, which is the most addictive and powerful of all narcotic drugs, has become an epidemic in our society. Rock cocaine is a relatively new form of cocaine. It is made by a freebasing procedure which entails the heating of cocaine with water and baking soda, thus removing the hydrochloride base in the drug and leaving an almost pure narcotic substance. The heating procedure leaves a sticky residue which is allowed to dry and is then cut into chunks (rock) or slivers (crack) and sold. Because the residue is almost pure narcotic, it is very potent, very addictive, and can be lethal.

It is estimated that there are 4 to 5 million cocaine users in this country, and one out of every six high school seniors has tried cocaine at least once. The majority of cocaine users are turning to this new, more potent form of the drug, which is now widely available in 17 of this countries largest cities. The traffic in rock cocaine has grown immensely over the last year and is spreading a new crime wave through cities and towns across the Nation. This is a situation in which street traffic in drugs has gotten ahead of the law. Senator CHILES' bills would amend several provisions within the Controlled Substances Act to create new penalties needed to cover the use and manufacture of this newly developed drug.

The first bill, S. 2560, would list rock cocaine under schedule I of the Controlled Substances Act, which indicates that the narcotic has a high potential for abuse, has no known medical use, and can be deadly. Rock cocaine is without any medical use and should certainly be listed among the most dangerous types of drugs, and its users and makers should be subject to the severest penalties.

The bill would place the toughest penalties, a 20-year prison term and $250,000 fine, on those who manufacture, distribute, or possess 1 gram or more of rock cocaine. The penalty currently applies to those in possession of 1 kilogram of cocaine hydrochloride. However, 1 kilogram of rock cocaine would amount to over 15,000 doses, much more than any one dealer would likely possess, so the amount was lowered to indicate the potency of a very small amount of the drug.

Senator CHILES' other two measures would increase the penalties against rock cocaine manufacturers and dealers who employ minors under 21 years of age in their drug enterprise or who manufacture drugs near our children's schools. One bill, S. 2561, would make it a felony to employ a person under 21 years of age to distribute any controlled substance and impose a penalty on any violator double that imposed on makers and sellers of rock cocaine, that being a maximum 20-year term or $250,000 fine. Repeaters could receive a penalty three times that amount. As Senator CHILES has pointed out, young children are often indispensable to rock dealers and are used as deliveries, customer hustlers, and police lookouts. They are paid for their work with a dose of rock or crack and soon become hard addicts themselves. Thus our children are being victimized by these ruthless cocaine dealers, and it is time we put a stop to this deplorable situation before these children's lives are completely destroyed.

The other bill, S. 2562, would expand current law prohibiting the distribution of any controlled substance within 1,000 feet of a primary or secondary school by including the manufacture of controlled substances under the coverage of that law. The above penalties would also apply under this provision, and any repeater could receive a life sentence.

Mr. President, I believe these three bills make several sorely needed changes in our drug laws, which have fallen behind the times. The recent development of rock cocaine makes these changes imperative, for without them the cocaine epidemic will certainly spread out of control. I commend Senator CHILES for introducing this legislation and for his continued efforts at eradicating the drug abuse problem in this country.

I am also a strong supporter of his amendments placed on the supplemental appropriations bill which direct the Attorney General to call an emergency meeting of the National Drug Enforcement Policy Board to address the rock and crack cocaine issue and require the Board to develop a plan to promote effective law enforcement efforts to search out and prosecute cocaine traffickers, including agreements with our Latin American neighbors to reduce the importation of cocaine into this country. It is only through such an all-out effort that Congress can expect to tackle the drug problem in the United States.

RHODE ISLAND RESOLUTION ON NUCLEAR TESTING

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, the Rhode Island General Assembly recently passed a resolution urging the President and the Congress of the United States to respond immediately to the Soviets' unilateral halt of nuclear testing.

I share the assembly's view that we should respond to Mr. Gorbachev's offer. We must not allow the Soviets to claim the high road on arms control issues. Instead, Congress and the executive branch should cooperate in devising a viable, concrete proposal to enhance our security through effective arms control.

The strong interest in and support for a moratorium expressed by Rhode Island legislators was of particular interest in the light of a joint resolution which Senator DANFORTH and I have introduced and which has gained 20 other cosponsors. Our legislation, Senate Joint Resolution 252 urges the President, at the earliest possible date, to:

Endorse and request Senate consent to ratification of the Threshold Test Ban Treaty and the peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty, signed in 1974 and 1976 respectively;

Call upon the Soviet Union to join in a further agreement reducing the permitted yields of explosions, as specified in the Threshold Test Ban Treaty and the Peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty, to the lowest possible verifiable levels which advances in seismic detection and other verification capabilities will allow;

Express to the Soviet Union and Great Britain the desire of the United States to resume negotiations to conclude an agreement leading immediately or in balanced steps to a mutual and verifiable ban on nuclear explosions to which all nations would be invited to become party; and Seek Soviet agreement to facilitate negotiations by declaring at the earliest practicable date a mutual moratorium of finite duration on nuclear explosions.

In the course of recent hearings held by the Committee on Foreign Relations at my request, the concepts in Senate Joint Resolution 252 received enthusiastic support from several expert witnesses.

Mr. President, I think the resolution passed by the General Assembly of Rhode Island is indicative of the strong sentiment for effective arms control. I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the resolution be printed in the RECORD immediately following my remarks.

There being no objection, the resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

HOUSE RESOLUTION

Whereas, A nuclear war would result in death, injury and disease on a scale unprecedented in human history; and

Whereas, Spending for the arms race is contributing to record budget deficits that threaten our nation's economic security while programs providing essential assistance to communities throughout the country are being cut back; and

Whereas, A ban on nuclear testing would promote the security of the United States by constraining new developments in the U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms competition and by strengthening efforts to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons to non-nuclear countries; and

Whereas, A ban on testing would be a concrete and easily achievable first step towards a complete halt to the nuclear arms race and deep reductions of ever-expanding nuclear arsenals; and

Whereas, A ban on nuclear testing can be verified with high confidence by a worldwide network of seismic monitors, satellites, and other verification technology operated by the United States and other nations; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That this house of representatives of the state of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations hereby memorializes the President and the congress of the United States to respond immediately to the Soviets' unilateral halt of testing by joining them in a mutual and verifiable suspension of testing as a first step toward freezing and reversing the arms race; and further memorializes the members of the Rhode Island congressional delegation to support legislation that would enact a moratorium on nuclear testing to be continued as long as the Soviets do not test; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the secretary of state be and she hereby is authorized and directed to transmit duly certified copies of this resolution to the President of the United States and to the members of the Rhode Island congressional delegation.

LIBERTY WEEKEND

Mr. MATHIAS. Mr. President, about a month ago my wife, Ann, asked a question that is typical of her and of her concern for people. She asked "Who is going to attend the ceremonies at the rededication of the Statue of Liberty?" I did not know the answer so I addressed the question to Lee Iacocca who has been the chairman of the committee for the restoration of the statue.

Ann's question was especially pertinent in the light of Emma Lazarus famous poem in which she attributes to the Statue of Liberty the moving words of "The New Colossus:"

"Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore, send these, the homeless, tempest-tossed, to me: I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

These are words not only inscribed upon the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty, they are words inscribed on the hearts and woven into the hopes and dreams of millions of people around the world. One reason that these lines have had such an appeal is that they have been proven to be true and neither an idle boast nor a hollow promise. It is the work of each generation of Americans to maintain this credibility.

Thus Ann was worried when she saw the press reports that only those affluent and influential enough to buy a $5,000 ticket would be admitted to the ceremonies rededicating the Statue of Liberty. There would indeed be an irony if the tired and the poor were to be ousted entirely by the sleek and the rich. It would erode the perception of America in a significant way.

Our responsibility is not only to protect our own good name, but also to honor the spirit and traditions of the Statue of Liberty. When Edward deLaboulaye conceived the idea of presenting Liberty to the United States as the gift of the French people it was more than a generous impulse. The proposal for the gift was made at a significant moment in French history. The French people had recently abolished the Second Empire and established a republic. In so doing they had isolated themselves from their neighbors in Europe where every other country was governed by a monarchy with the exception of the Swiss Confederation. The gift of the Statue of Liberty was an expression not only of friendship, but also of solidarity in support of the ideal of liberty and justice. With the gift we accepted a trust and we must not casually or carelessly violate it. We do still aspire to a free and just society and we should not behave in a way that gives any other impression.

For all of these reasons I thought Ann's question was not only reasonable but important. I submit at this point in the RECORD my letter of May 30 to Mr. Iacocca and the response received from Mr. David L. Wolper, Chairman of Liberty Weekend.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, May 30, 1986.

Mr. LEE IACOCCA,
Chrysler Corp.
Detroit, MI

DEAR MR. IACOCCA: The nation is impressed with the progress being made in the restoration of the Statue of Liberty and with the plans for its rededication. You have earned both our thanks and our congratulations.

One aspect of the program has not come to my attention in the press and I am therefore asking you directly about it. That is the question of how many seats will be provided for the public free of charge and how they will be allotted.

It would be a travesty if a monument that is a symbol of welcome to the tired, the poor, the homeless and the tempest tossed, should not offer a place for them on this occasion. I am confident that you will not let this happen and I look forward to hearing of the arrangements that you have made.

Sincerely,

CHARLES MCC. MATHIAS, Jr.

LIBERTY WEEKEND,
New York, NY, June 12, 1986.

Hon. CHARLES MCC. MATHIAS, Jr.,
U.S. Senator,
Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR MATHIAS: In answer to your letter to Lee Iacocca on May 30th regarding our plans for the Statue of Liberty celebration. You asked a question, about how many seats are provided for the public free of charge and how they will be allotted. Let me give you the breakdown each day.

On July 4th, we have Operation Sail, on this day there is literally millions of areas available free to the public all the way from the Verrazano Bridge in New York Harbor to the George Washington Bridge, both on the New York and the New Jersey shoreline. There are parks, highways, freeways, docks, etc., that are open to the public by the city of New York, State of New Jersey, State of New York and cities along the Hudson River.

In the evening for the fireworks display, on July 4th, you can see it free from anywhere in Brooklyn, the lower part of Manhattan. The fireworks display circles around the bottom of Manhattan from the Brooklyn Bridge to the World Trade Center. It was designed that way so the largest amount of people could see the event free.

Also on the 4th of July is the Americana Concert at Liberty State Park in New Jersey. Here we have the Boston Pops Orchestra conducted by John Williams as well as a host of 10 popular American stars performing in a free concert for the public. The State of New Jersey expects around 15,000 to 20,000 people to attend.

The next day on the 5th of July, we have a concert in Central Park in New York with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Zubin Mehta. There are eight international classic stars performing from 8 to 10 p.m. The city of New York expects between 250,000 to 500,000 to view these ceremonies free.

On the 5th and 6th of July, we have the Liberty Conference, where major political figures, journalists, historians and educators gather together to discuss Liberty the next fifty years. This will be a two day conference, in which there is seating which is all free for approximately 400 people each session in the three sessions.

Of course, during the 5th and 6th, all the tall ships and the Naval ships that sailed in the harbor on the 4th, are open free to the public to visit. The ships will be tied up throughout New York, New Jersey, Brooklyn and Staten Island.

Practically the entire weekend is free. It has been paid for, by selling tickets just to the Opening and Closing Ceremonies and the sale of certain television rights. I think we have an excellent opportunity for the public in this area and for anybody who is visiting from around the country to have a terrific free weekend.

Best personal regards,

DAVID L. WOLPER.

Mr. MATHIAS. As I read Mr. Wolper's letter, and as I understand my several conversations with his staff and with the Department of the Interior, not one free ticket will be available to new immigrants or to older Americans nor to any of the members of the American community that make up the uncomplaining and stalwart backbone of this great land. Mr. Wolper's suggestion that they watch from the Verrazano Bridge and the shoreline of New Jersey and New York may be fine for the tall ships, but will surely be of little value for the ceremonies that express the essence of the occasion, the rededication of the Nation to liberty as well as the rededication of the Statue of Liberty. I am sure that Mr. Wolper would not have intended to imply that they were the same thing any more than Marie Antoinette would actually have said "Let them eat cake."

I have therefore answered Mr. Wolper's letter with a plea to invite representative Americans to attend the ceremonies as the guests of Liberty Weekend. I submit a copy of my letter for the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, June 25, 1986.

Mr. DAVID L. WOLPER,
Chairman/Executive Producer, Liberty Weekend, New York, NY.

DEAR MR. WOLPER: Thank you for responding to my letter addressed to Lee Iacocca inquiring whether the general public would have access to the principal ceremonies.

I understand your point that millions of people will be able to view the scene from the shore line and from the Verrazano and George Washington Bridges. But it is not the same thing as being present at the event.

It is my strong recommendation that you invite, as guests of Liberty Weekend, some representative citizens. Selection of the individuals to be invited will not be easy, but I suggest that the choices come from groups such as senior citizens, handicapped children, and the large number of new citizens who will be naturalized on July Fourth.

I believe that the ceremonies will be more meaningful, both substantively and symbolically, if the attendance is expanded in this way.

Sincerely,

CHARLES MCC. MATHIAS, Jr.,
U.S. Senator.

Mr. MATHIAS. Mr. President, I urge the Festival of Liberty to open its arms to less affluent Americans so that all the people who make up this country can share in the celebration. The statue may be more tarnished by an exclusive ceremony than by the years of natural elements that have buffeted her exterior. We must allow representatives of those for whom she has issued the invitation to attend the ceremony.

CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER AND THE COMMISSION ON THE BICENTENNIAL OF THE CONSTITUTION

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I have had the pleasure during the last several months of working with Chief Justice Burger on the planning of the bicentennial of our Constitution. I must say I was caught off guard by the announcement that he will retire as Chief Justice of the United States. However, knowing of his personal commitment to the success of the celebration of this bicentennial, it comes as no surprise that he has decided to devote his full attention to bringing it home to the people of the United States.

The Chief Justice explained in his comments this afternoon that he was logging over 100 hours a week between his responsibilities on the Court and his efforts to prepare for the bicentennial. Some of our colleagues mention from time to time the quality of life in the Senate, but it seems to me that we have it easy compared to the Chief Justice.

I have been impressed since the first meeting of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution—of which I am pleased to be a member—with the time and effort he has devoted to thinking about and planning for the bicentennial of the Constitution. The members of the Commission were not selected until last year, even though it was established in 1983. He, however, has been preparing for this for years. We held our first meeting at the end of July. During those meetings the Chief reminded us that time was short, and the job we have to do is very large. He has set us a fine example for the members of the Commission, the Members of this body, and for the people of this country.

He is devoted to the success of the celebration of this 200th anniversary of our Constitution. He has defined success as reaching every person we can—both in the United States and across the world—with what has been called the miracle at Philadelphia—the concepts embodied in the U.S. Constitution. Two things should happen during this bicentennial: we should encourage people to think about the meaning of the Constitution, and we should celebrate the anniversary of its creation.

This is an occasion truly worth celebrating. The craftsman and tradespeople of Philadelphia celebrated the ratification of the Constitution by having a Grand Federal Procession on the Fourth of July in 1788. They were not just having a good time: they were making a point. The support of the people for this new form of government was proved by their participation. These processions occurred throughout the new States as additional States ratified the Constitution. Every Federal procession in 1788 had more marchers in line when the parade ended than when it began.

The people of the new United State's then, knew the importance of the Constitution—it was a shield to protect their precious independence. We know the importance of the Constitution—and we can point to its success over the last 200 years. Celebrating the bicentennial is more than a happy occasion: it is a reaffirmation of our faith in the Constitution.

I have a speech here which the Chief Justice made in September of 1983 at the International Conference on Constitution Writing. I want to insert this speech in the RECORD, and I hope that each of my colleagues will take the time to read it. It should serve to remind us all of how fortunate we are to be a part of the government which the Constitution established.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of Chief Justice Burger's speech be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the text was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

WELCOMING REMARKS OF WARREN E. BURGER, CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE UNITED STATES, AT THE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON CONSTITUTION WRITING

This morning—given the occasion and the approach of the 1987 Bicentennial of our own Constitution—rather than discussing contemporary constitutional problems, I ask you to indulge me in some historical reminiscences—to look back with me at the struggles which took place in our country nearly two centuries ago leading to our Constitution.

I do not mean to discuss the contents of that document but rather to ask: how did it come about that 55 men in a country of barely four million were cast by history to take actions that led to one of history's greatest experiments in government of a free people under a written Constitution?

Since it was a wholly new experiment in government, it is not surprising that the Constitution was under attack from the moment it was signed in Philadelphia. The delegates had labored through four hot months to produce the document, but on that cool Autumn morning—Monday, September 17—42 delegates were present, and as we know, three of them refused to sign their names to the draft. Others signed reluctantly.

At that final meeting in Philadelphia, Benjamin Franklin, one of the wisest of all the Founding Fathers, and the most senior made some observations, and his words are so filled with wisdom that it is worth recalling them. He said this:

"Mr. President, I confess that there are several parts of this Constitution which I do not at present approve, but I am not sure I shall never approve them: For having lived long, I have experienced many instances of being obliged by better information or fuller consideration, to change opinions even on important subjects, which I once thought right, but found to be otherwise. It is therefore that the older I grow, the more apt I am to doubt my own judgment, and to pay more respect to the judgment of others."

Other men had less moderate things to say about the new Constitution. Some of them were very harsh indeed. For example in the following year, at the Massachusetts Ratification Convention, one delegate had this to say:

"Mr. President, . . . some gentleman have called on them that were on the stage in the beginning of our troubles, in the year 1775. I was one of them. And I say that if anybody had proposed such a constitution as this in that day, it would have been thrown away at once. It would not have been looked at. . . . Does not this constitution . . . take away all we have—all our property? Does it not [have power to] lay all taxes, duties, imposts, and excises? And what more have we to give?"

Then another delegate, Mr. Smith, answered him saying:

"Mr. President, I am a plain man and get my living by the plow. I am not used to speaking in public, but I beg your leave to say a few words to my brother plowjoggers in this house. I have lived in a part of the country where I have known the worth of good government by the want of it."

The delegate then explained that he had been a member of the convention that formed his own state Constitution and that he had learned something of the need for checks and balances of governmental power. He concluded, saying that as to the Constitution drafted at Philadelphia:

"I did not go to any lawyer to ask his opinion. We have no lawyer in our town and we do well enough without. I formed my own opinion and [I] was pleased with this Constitution."

To secure the ratification of our Constitution by the states was no easy task, for there were articulate and popular heroes like Patrick Henry in Virginia opposing it. We know, too, that it was only the great prestige of George Washington and James Madison, buttressed by a rising young public leader, John Marshall, who out-debated that great orator Patrick Henry in the Virginia Convention, that brought about Virginia's ratification. Without Virginia's ratification there would have been no Constitution—at least at that time.

I have always found it difficult, and I suspect others may share that difficulty, really to understand how separate and how independent were the 13 sovereign states that made up the Confederation preceding the Constitution. We know, of course, that the people of Massachusetts Bay regarded themselves as allies—allies of 12 other states. They thought themselves quite different from the people of Virginia or Maryland or New York. This confusion of allegiances is illustrated in the circumstances surrounding President Lincoln's offer in 1860 to Robert E. Lee of the command of all the Union armies at the outbreak of our Civil War.

Lee loved the Union and was distressed at the idea of any states seceding from that Union. He hated slavery but was so much a product of the colonial age of his father, General Harry Lee, one of Washington's generals, that instead of accepting Lincoln's offer, he resigned from the Army. He went immediately to Richmond to offer his services to the Governor for the defense of Virginia—not for the support of secession, not for the defense of slavery, not for the dissolution of the Union, but simply in the 18th century tradition of men who were Virginians first and Americans second. This episode has always helped me understand the enormous difficulty of getting the Constitution ratified.

Now let me take you back from this digression to the year 1787 when even the word "constitution" was not a familiar one. Americans of that day had a great fear of central governments stemming from the fact that our Revolution had been fought to escape from the clutches of a distant and strong central government in London. When the Continental Congress met in New York early in 1787 to consider convening what we now know as the Constitutional Convention, the authorizing resolution was carefully circumscribed. The delegates to that meeting in Philadelphia were to be sent there as members of a committee . . . for the sole and express purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation.

There was no hint of drafting a new Constitution, but rather a study of the existing articles which, of course, created no real central government at all. Patrick Henry had refused to be a delegate from Virginia, because, as he put it, he "smelled a rat." The "rat" Patrick Henry apparently referred to was that there was a risk of something more than a "committee" to "revise" the existing Articles.

Those Articles reveal how jealous each of the states was about its own sovereignty. The language used in the charter of the Confederation reads in the familiar terms of a treaty between sovereigns. The words are these, and we must marvel as we recall them: The said states hearby severally enter into a firm league of friendship with each other.

"Severally"! A "firm league"! "Friendship"! These are the words used by 13 states speaking to each other! Of course it is clear that the bonds between the 13 states were very loose indeed. The terrible privations, and the needless deaths from starvation and freezing suffered by Washington's troops, at Valley Forge only a few miles from where the Constitution was later to be drafted, attest to the looseness of that Confederation. That looseness caused those men at Valley Forge to suffer through a terrible winter, because the states had no binding duty to provide the promised food, the material and the money necessary to support the Revolution and its armies. There was no central power to levy and collect taxes or to raise armies. We were not yet truly a nation.

The Continental Congress was indeed a loose confederation without the attributes of sovereignty and it is nothing short of a miracle that the Revolution was successful, or that there was any occasion to convene what we now describe as the Constitutional Convention. It was our good fortune that King George III and his ministers sitting in London had to keep a good deal of their powder dry to deal with adversaries more powerful and more dangerous than the 13 erstwhile colonies.

One state, for example, paid nothing in the way of taxes or contributions to the Confederation for at least five years before the meeting in Philadelphia. The State of Rhode Island declined even to send delegates to Philadelphia in 1787! As a result of this lack of central authority, soldiers under Washington often furnished their own clothing, their own guns, even their own gunpowder at times. Hamilton, the financial genius of the Confederation, and later of the new government under the Constitution, was described in the war period as "Receiver of Continental Taxes"—the "receiver," not "collector"! The "taxes" were gifts like contributions to a church—purely voluntary.

These terrible experiences not only dictated Washington's strategy of evading contact with British troops by keeping his armies on the run, but also shaped his political philosophy, that a strong central or federal government was imperative. John Marshall, a young captain in Washington's army, spent that terrible winter at Valley Forge, and his political and constitutional views took shape in terms of the need for a strong central government. Those views later found their way into opinions of the Supreme Court when that young Captain became Chief Justice 20 odd years later. The justly famous opinions of the Court in Marbury v. Madison, McCulloch v. Maryland and Gibbons v. Ogden bear the imprint of that harsh winter at Valley Forge. Thus did Valley Forge help shape our constitutional jurisprudence.

The ambivalence and fears of the people of some of these 13 states toward a central government very nearly cost us the victory in the Revolution—and came close to frustrating the ratification of the Constitution as well. Our leaders learned that without strength there can be neither independence nor freedom.

Hamilton surely had it impressed upon him that if the payment of taxes by the people and by states was purely a matter of choice, there would never be a nation. He said that what was needed was the kind of structure that appealed not to ". . . the narrow colonial sphere in which we have become accustomed to move," but rather to ". . . that enlarged kind suited to the government of an independent nation."

When we realize that nearly a century later so great an American as General Robert E. Lee could not shake off the "narrow colonial" attitude of the 18th century, it is not surprising that Hamilton did not succeed in persuading the Continental Congress in 1787 to enact the proposed resolution in express terms calling for a Constitutional Convention. He had to compromise for a "committee" to review the old Articles of Confederation. Madison and Hamilton, like Washington, knew that the structure created by the Articles of Confederation, including the Continental Congress, was what we call today a "paper tiger"—a multi-lateral "treaty" among 13 sovereign states agreeing to cooperate and collaborate for limited purposes.

Robert E. Lee's attitude of state sovereignty was still shared in one way or another by millions of his fellow Southerners in 1860—all fine Americans. But it was rejected by even more millions of Americans in the North who shared President Lincoln's conviction that the preservation of the Union was the "paramount object" of the Civil War—because the Constitution and its values were worth saving even at the cost of the terrible war. Alexis de Toqueville took note of this belief when he observed that although Maine, our northernmost state, was about 1000 miles from Georgia, then our most southerly state, the habits, language and civilization were less different than those between Normandy and Brittany.

We remember, of course, that there were rigid limits on commerce in 1787. The 13 states printed their own money. One thing which merchants and businessmen hoped for was a system that would open up the channels of commerce. Imperative to commerce would be a common currency, a central revenue system, a central banking system, a central authority to deal with other nations—and no trade barriers between the states. Our Constitution gave our 13 separate and sovereign states a "common market" nearly two centuries before those words entered our vocabulary.

Madison, who is often called the "father of the Constitution," had been a close student of the history of governments. Before going to Philadelphia he had immersed himself deeply in study. One of his early writings can be read as a foreshadowing of what emerged in Philadelphia and later in Marshall's opinions for the Supreme Court. Madison had written:

"Let the national Government be armed with a positive and complete authority in all cases where uniform measures are necessary . . . . Let it have a negative, in all cases whatsoever, on the legislative acts of the States [and] [l]et this national supremacy be extended also to the judiciary department."

Those final 12 words foreshadowed Marbury v. Madison.

Madison could not match the eloquence of his fellow Virginians, Thomas Jefferson or Patrick Henry, but he was a profound thinker, a craftsman, an engineer in terms of political science. It was the great good fortune for our country—and for the very idea of human freedom—that Madison became the principal draftsman, if not the principal architect, of the Constitution. Philosophically, he was then more attuned to the ideas of Washington, Hamilton, and Adams concerning the needs of the new country than he was to the thinking of his close friend and political ally Thomas Jefferson. Given Jefferson's visions of a nation of farmers, artisans, strong yeomen, and his fear of a strong central government, perhaps it was just as well that Madison arrived in Philadelphia in advance of the formal meetings and that Thomas Jefferson, like Patrick Henry, did not attend at all.

It surely must be clear that a loose federation of 13 sovereign states such as we had during the conflict with England would have doomed us to a balkanization that would have made us easy conquests of those great powers who were anxious to maintain a foothold in North America.

It is difficult to recreate the atmosphere that must have existed in Philadelphia in that summer of 1787. In terms of 18th century travel and communications, our 13 states were very distant from each other, stretching farther than Morocco to Copenhagen, and spread the length of the Atlantic Coast from New England to Spanish Florida. We were hemmed in by British to the North and by Spain and France to the South and West with continuing interest in Florida, Louisiana and control of the Mississippi River.

Perhaps it was something of these concerns, these fears, that moved Benjamin Franklin, who was not known to be dedicated to orthodox religious institutions, to offer a motion that the Convention should be opened every morning with a prayer. However, there were no funds available to pay a chaplain!

One thing many delegates shared, because of what they had suffered as colonists, was a feeling that a government with built-in checks and balances was imperative. A constant theme underlying the debates and discussions during those hot weeks in Philadelphia revolved around the need for, and the states' objections to, the surrender of some state authority and sovereignty to a new, and as yet unknown and undefined national or central government.

James Wilson, one of the ablest men at the Convention, and Pennsylvania's first Justice on the United States Supreme Court, at one point put his finger on this problem, arguing that:

"If no state will part with any of its sovereignty, it is in vain to talk of a national government."

"I do not see the danger of the states being devoured by the national government. On the contrary, I wish to keep them from devouring the national government."

The fear of central power, and the need for central power permeated the debates throughout the convention. The tensions that these conflicting ideas developed were revealed in the rather bitter comments of two prominent leaders, James Wilson and John Dickinson. Dickinson at one point said:

"If the general government should be left dependent upon state legislatures, it would be happy for us if we had never met in this room."

As with any deliberative body, small or large, when the issues are of great consequence, and especially when they probe into the unknown, feelings grow tense and utterances occasionally can become harsh. The Constitutional Convention was a process of give and take in the highest tradition of open democratic discourse among free people. On the main proposition, that is the system of checks and balances, with three coequal and independent departments, it is our good fortune—and perhaps that of all free people—that Madison, Hamilton, Morris and Wilson would not yield.

The day after the Convention on September 18, 1787, the delegate from New Hampshire wrote to a member of his family, saying:

"It was done by bargain and compromise, yet notwithstanding its imperfections, on the adoption of it depends whether or not we shall become a respectable nation, or a people torn to pieces by intestine commotions, and rendered contemptible for ages."

Franklin's closing speech perhaps said it as well as could have been said:

"In these sentiments sir, I agree to this constitution with all its faults if they are such."

When asked at the close of the sessions what the Convention had created, Benjamin Franklin answered: "A republic, if you can keep it."

The delegates left Philadelphia exhausted but rightly entitled to be elated, but the document produced had yet to run the gauntlet of the states' ratification processes.

The outcome was largely determined by the action of Virginia, then the largest of the states. There the debate was long and heated. The revolutionary hero, Patrick Henry, was the chief spokesman against ratification. John Marshall, at that time a rising young lawyer 32 years of age, was the chief spokesman for the ratification. His victory over the formidable Patrick Henry brought him into national prominence. Fourteen years later he became Chief Justice of the United States.

Historians have never reached any firm agreement as to why the subject of judicial review of the actions of the political branches were not made express in the Constitution. One view is that this authority was taken for granted and, of course, that view is well supported. The other more tragic matter is the failure to come to grips with the institution of slavery. There the unarticulated compromise was to let that issue await future developments. There is general agreement that had the men in Philadelphia tried to resolve that question there probably would have been no Constitution at that time. Nearly a century later it took a terrible Civil War to terminate that institution and we are still living with some of the social consequences of the institution of slavery and working to redress them.

In the history of our country two great documents stand out: the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. One, the Declaration, is a statement of principles and aspirations; the other, the Constitution, was directed at the means to achieve ordered liberty through government and subject to change only by consent of those governed.

We have survived for two centuries because our strength was not simply in the concepts of those two documents—great as they are—but because of the strengths of people who are free, of personal integrity, of individual responsibility and accountability, of the traditions of home and family—and of strong religious beliefs.

Today, the importance of the rule of law and concepts of human freedom are far more widely understood and accepted than in 1787. At least two centuries of human history confirm that those values can, with rare exceptions, best be served by means of written constitutions.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, with the departure of the Chief Justice a new era will begin for the Supreme Court. William Rehnquist has been an outstanding Justice during his 15 years on the Supreme Court and will make an equally outstanding Chief Justice. The President is to be commended for selecting Judge Scalia as the new Associate Justice. I look forward to seeing his influence on the opinions of the Court.

DEBTOR NATION STATUS FOR THE UNITED STATES

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, the June 25, 1986, edition of the Washington Post reported further ill consequences resulting from the ever increasing level of foreign goods entering our country. The bad news is that the United States now holds the dubious distinction of being the No. 1 debtor nation in the entire world. Last year marked the first time since 1914—over 70 years ago—that our country owed foreign interests more than they owed us. This is particularly disturbing in light of the fact that as recently as 1982 the United States was the largest creditor nation in the world.

Mr. President, as the top debtor in the world, the debt of the United States exceeds $107 billion. Yes, we owe more money than debt-ridden countries such as Brazil, Mexico, and Argentina. Essentially what has happened is that foreign nations have received more and more American dollars as they increased exports to our Nation. They have then turned around and invested those dollars in a larger and larger chunk of our economy. The huge debt is a unhealthy development which drains income from our country because we have to pay interest and dividends on overseas investments located here. This large and growing debtor status casts a shadow over the economic viability of the United States and threatens our position as a world power.

Mr. President, it is unlikely that the huge debt of the United States will decrease until we curb our ever growing merchandise trade deficit. In 1985 we imported $158.5 billion more than we exported, resulting in the fourth straight record setting annual deficit. Over $20 billion of this deficit can be attributed to textile trade. Unfortunately, the textile trade deficit continues to grow as imports continue to flood our markets. For the first 4 months of 1986, textile and apparel imports are up 26 percent over the first 4 months of 1985. As a result, plants are forced to close and workers lose their jobs. On June 25, 1986, the Daily News Record reported that Levi Strauss & Co. will close three domestic sewing plants and permanently lay off about 1,200 employees. These workers will join more than 350,000 others that have lost their jobs to textile imports over the last 5 years.

It is my hope that the administration will finally realize the gravity of our Nation's trade problems and begin taking strong steps to improve the situation. Vital industries such as textiles, which the Defense Department ranks second only to steel in importance to national defense, must be given a fair chance to compete against foreign imports. The jobs and economic well being of thousands of Americans depend on it.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the previously mentioned articles from the Washington Post and the Daily News Record appear in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the articles were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, June 25, 1986]

U.S. BECOMES WORLD'S No. 1 DEBTOR NATION

(By Stuart Auerbach)

The United States leapfrogged Brazil and Mexico last year to become the world's largest debtor nation, with foreign interests owning $107.4 billion more in the United States than Americans own overseas, the government reported yesterday.

The deficit resulted from a $111.8 billion swing from the year before, when the United States registered a $4.4 billion surplus in its financial position with the rest of the world. As recently as 1982, moreover, the United States was the world's largest creditor nation.

"It's amazing to go from a small net creditor to the biggest debtor in one year," said C. Fred Bergsten, director of the Institute for International Economics and a Treasury Department official in the Carter administration.

He cited the "breathtaking pace of deterioration" as a major economic problem for the United States. "It shows how enormous the momentum is in the wrong direction" and how hard it will be to turn around, he said.

The debt is believed to have grown by $30 billion in the first three months of this year, and Bergsten predicted it will hit $500 billion before it levels off. Further, if the value of the dollar fails to continue falling, he said the debt could reach $1 trillion in the 1990s.

"That's levying a pretty big cost to the economy. That's the price of neglecting the problem for five years," he said.

A strong stock market surge late last year accelerated America's foreign debt, as the value of stocks owned by overseas investors gained in value. As recently as last Tuesday, when the Commerce Department released the broadest measure of U.S. international transactions, economists predicted that this country had ended 1985 as the No. 3 debtor nation, behind Brazil and Mexico.

Brazil, which until last year had been the world's leading debtor nation, owes $100 billion. Mexico owes $95 billion.

President Reagan has brushed off the significance of growing foreign debt as a problem for the economy, asserting that it shows the strength of America because so many foreigners want to invest their money here.

But many economists disagree. They say the large and growing debtor status of the United States casts a shadow over its economic viability, even though America is not in the position of Mexico, Brazil and other Third World nations of being unable to pay its large international debts.

"It is unsustainable and undesirable," said Bergsten.

"It's a very unhealthy development," agreed Larry Chimerine, chairman and chief economist of Chase Econometrics.

He said the debt drains income from the country because the United States has to pay interest and dividends on overseas investments in this country. "Fundamentally, what we are doing is importing goods and exporting bonds, or IOUs, if you will," said Chimerine.

The problem could worsen if the overseas investors decided to sell their holdings and the United States had to repay capital, as Mexico and Brazil are being asked to do in paying off their loans, instead of meeting only interest and dividend requirements.

Chimerine added that there won't be a turnaround until the United States curbs its merchandise trade deficits, which have set records for four straight years and reached $158.5 billion in 1985.

This is the first time the United States has been a debtor nation since 1914, when it owed foreign interests $2.2 billion more than they owed this country.

[From the Daily News Record, June 25, 1986]

LEVI'S CLOSES THREE SEWING PLANTS, LAYS OFF 1,200 IN CONSOLIDATION

SAN FRANCISCO.—Levi Strauss & Co. will close three domestic sewing plants—including two basic men's jeans facilities—and permanently lay off about 1,200 employes.

The company said the move was part of an ongoing effort to consolidate production and eliminate excess manufacturing capacity.

The two men's jeans plants are located in Blackstone, Va., and Tyler, Texas. The Blackstone unit employs 265, while the Tyler facility has 556 workers. The third Levi plant, located in Corpus Christi, Texas, produces women's polyester pants and skirts and has a work force of 376. Following the closings, Levi will have 41 plants in the United States.

Production at these three facilities will be "absorbed" by other Levi plants, according to a company spokesman.

"We are announcing these closures at a time when the company's business is strong," said Thomas W. Tusher, chief operating officer of Levi's. "The momentum of earnings improvement which started in 1985 continues due to the sustained strength of our men's jeans business in the United States and the turnaround in the company's international division."

He added that "the closures are necessary in order for Levi to continue to be successful in marketing quality products in our competitive environment. Through increased productivity and the addition of second shifts at other facilities, we can control costs by consolidating our men's jeans production."

He noted that the closing of the women's plant in Corpus Christi "is the result of a decrease in demand for polyester pants and skirts, reflecting the softness of the overall women's polyester market."

Tusher said the decision to close the three plants was made "after careful and thoughtful review process. We deeply regret the impact the closures will have on our employees and their communities."

According to company policy, Levi is providing employes a minimum of 13 weeks notice, or equivalent pay, plus severance. The company will also extend full medical coverage for three to six months and provide outplacement services at each facility.

WITH ARMS CONTROL GONE, THE BUDGET MAY STOP THE ARMS RACE

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, what happens to military spending if we abandon the SALT Treaty? Military experts including the Joint Chiefs of Staff have told us that the Soviets could and very likely would rapidly increase their nuclear arsenal buildup. For a year or two at least they would be in a far better position than the United States to add missiles and warheads at a relatively modest cost. Does anyone doubt that if the United States proceeds to violate the SALT treaty at the end of the summer the Soviets will build up their nuclear force? I don't. What do our intelligence agencies tell us? They tell us that the Soviets can, if they wish, gain a swift and definite military advantage if we terminate the SALT agreement. What did the Joint Chiefs of Staff tell us before they were muzzled? They told us our national security will diminish if both countries proceed without the restraint of the SALT Treaty.

Now, of course, all of this is in the short run, over the next year or two, How about in the longer run? Doesn't this country have the superior economy? It does. Don't we have the technological advantage? We do. So why be concerned about an all out, no-holdbarred nuclear arms race? Wouldn't we win world military dominance and certainly domination over the Soviet Union in such a race? Mr. President, the answer to this one is easy and certain. We wouldn't win such a race. Why? Because no one would win such a race. Oh sure, we might end up with a bigger and better nuclear arsenal than the Soviets. But so what? What would we do with it? The National Academy of Science, our most prestigious scientific body, has told us that if only 1 percent of the present, I repeat, the present Soviet nuclear arsenal, should strike American cities we would instantly have between 35 and 55 million dead Americans. I repeat, again 1 percent. Our cities would be devastated. Our Nation would be utterly destroyed as an organized society. Does any competent person believe that we could under any circumstance prevent anything like 99 percent of Soviet missiles from striking our cities? Of course not.

After years of building up both nuclear arsenals the United States might eventually have a 2 to 1 or 3 to 1 advantage. Would that make us more secure than we are now? No way. The Soviets could destroy us and we would destroy them just as surely then as now.

Could that kind of mutual buildup, with the United States deploying the larger number make us less secure? Very possibly. Here's how. As the arms race speeds ahead, nuclear weapons would take many unpredictable forms. The variety as well as the number of weapons would increase. We could expect the velocity of weapons to leap ahead. Instead of a missile requiring one-half hour to travel over the pole to the continental United States it could shorten the time to a minute or two. Some weapons might be able to travel at the speed of light—which means in a small fraction of a single second they could cover the distance from the Soviet Union to any and every American city. The vast array of offensive and defensive weapons would require complex computer coordination and instant literally split-second reaction by the President and his commanders and by their opposite numbers in the Soviet Union. With this complexity and sharply increased reliance on new technology, the possibility of a devastating nuclear accident that could destroy civilization would be enormously increased.

The cost of the arms race to both nations would surely be extraordinarily heavy. Once neither super power has any arms control inhibition, the incentive to match or surpass the other side in numbers and lethal quality will explode by leaps and bounds. In veiw of the monopoly of power in the hands of Soviet leaders and the feebleness of public opinion in the Soviet Union, the military could and would commandeer every bit of human, material, and technological resource that was not essential to the subsistence of the people of the Soviet Union. But how about the United States? In this fifth year of triple digit deficits, this year of Gramm-Rudman's first bite, this year with a President of the United States who reacts to every proposal of a tax increase with "Make my day," how will the United States react to the end of arms control and the onrushing Soviet nuclear buildup? Would the President very likely call on the Congress to throw our great economic resources sled-length into the military competition? Would the Congress agree? With an election never more than 2 years away, and with military spending increases—even modest increases already opposed by a majority of the American people—the answer isn't easy. The general American opinion that both superpowers already have an enormous excess of nuclear weapons would probably prevent the Congress from giving the President anything like the all-out, full-steam-ahead request he would require to match the Soviets' buildup, let alone exceed it.

The hawks in the administration who have considered arms control their principal problem in "winning" an arms race with the Soviet Union may very well find another reason why they cannot "win" such a race. They may find that it's not arms control, it's a public unwillingness to pay for what it takes to "win" such a race with the Soviet Union that will prevent the big nuclear buildup they so fervently advocate.

MYTH OF THE DAY—NONBANK BANKS ARE GOOD FOR THE ECONOMY

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President the myth of the day is that nonbank banks are good for consumers and the economy. In fact, Mr. President, nonbank banks are the greatest threat to safe banking since Willie Sutton.

A nonbank bank is essentially a loophole discovered by clever attorneys. It allows any company to own and operate a bank in spite of a 200 year-old policy of keeping banking separate from commerce and industry.

How is this possible? It is possible because of a loophole in the Bank Holding Company Act. Under that act, a bank is defined as an institution that accepts demand deposits and makes commercial loans. If a Bank does not do both, it is not a bank in the eyes of the Bank Holding Company Act. Hence the name, nonbank bank.

The practical significance of this loophole is that it allows any company to own a nonbank bank without being regulated as a bank holding company. In order to preserve the separation between banking and commerce, the Bank Holding Company Act requires that any company that owns a conventional bank can only engage in businesses that are closely related to banking. However, a large, diversified company can acquire a bank without being regulated as a bank holding company by simply stopping the bank from making commercial loans or accepting demand deposits.

There are those who think this loophole is just fine. In fact, they want to dress it up and make it legitimate by calling it a consumer bank or family bank. Who can be against consumers or families?

Others want to continue the nonbank as nonthrift thrifts. They would let any company into the banking business as long as the bank were run as a savings and loan association.

Mr. President, all of these proposals spell serious trouble for our financial system. I would like to discuss just two of these problems today.

First, nonbank banks by whatever name impose an intolerable burden on our system of bank regulation. Because the activities of the parent are unregulated, we will have more bank failures at great cost to our deposit insurance funds.

Second, nonbank banks expand and intensify competitive inequities in our financial system. The nonbank bank allows large conglomerate companies to offer a variety of packaged financial services under one roof while real banks are confined to a much narrower market sphere. If we wanted to deliberately weaken the strength of our banking system, I couldn't think of a better method.

BANK SAFETY UNDERMINED

Because of the nonbank loophole, any company is now able to set up banking subsidiaries called nonbank banks. These subsidiaries are like regular banks in that they enjoy access to the Federal Reserve payment system and discount window. They also have their deposits federally insured. However, unlike their bank holding company counterparts, the owners of nonbank banks are not regulated by the Federal Reserve and are free to engage in any activity they choose, however risky.

Advocates of nonbank banks claim that these unregulated holding companies are not a threat to the Federal Reserve System. They say that the legal corporate walls that separate affiliates within a holding company can effectively insulate the bank from the misfortunes of the parent or its other subsidiaries.

Unfortunately, Mr. President, this theory doesn't hold water. Studies indicate that the financial health of any unit within a holding company structure directly affects the financial health of the other units. Consumers, encouraged by the joint marketing and sales techniques that make diversified business dealings so attractive in the first place, are unlikely to appreciate the legal separateness of the affiliated units. A scandal in Sears' securities division, for example, could easily rock consumer confidence in the banking unit and set off a run on deposits.

Investors, faced with poor earning reports of holding company affiliates, may react as if it is the bank that is ailing. Indeed, investors would be wise to look beyond the financial condition of the bank to the entire holding company. Since management within holding companies tends to overlap. If one unit in the company is mismanaged, it may be reasonable to expect poor decisionmaking in the bank affiliate as well. Even if the bank is properly run, investors may not want to do business with an organization whose reputation has been tarnished.

Finally, holding company managers may use bank assets to aid the troubled affiliate and thereby cause the failure of the bank. Although current laws are designed to protect banks from such abuse, managers may feel inclined, and history is full of examples, where managers have violated these statutes in time of financial crisis. And the OFT cited reason for violating these laws is the fear that the failure of one subsidiary could jeopardize the entire conglomerate.

Mr. President, now that we have debunked the myth that legal corporate walls protect banking subsidiaries, it becomes obvious that we have a potentially disastrous situation on our hands. The Federal Reserve Board is charged with providing for a safe and sound banking system. A likely catalyst of instability, the commercial owners of nonbank banks, are outside the reach of the Board's regulatory control. Thus, the nonbank bank loophole has rendered the Federal Reserve incapable of fulfilling its important mandate.

COMPETITIVE INEQUITIES

Another problem caused by commercial ownership of banks is that traditional bank holding companies are unable to compete with their unregulated, commercial counterparts. Companies like Sears want to own nonbank banks because checking accounts are the perfect bait with which to lure consumers into buying a wide variety of products and services as one neat package. Since traditional bank holding companies are restricted by Federal Reserve regulations, they cannot offer the same diversity of services. The obvious consequence is that banks will lose their customer base to the Sears-type supermarkets. Mr. President, by not closing the nonbank bank loophole, Congress has created an uneven playing field on which banks, and therefore the public at large, are the inevitable losers.

Congress must not abdicate its responsibility to shape the financial services marketplace. All holding companies that own banking subsidiaries of any type must be regulated by the Federal Reserve and subject to restrictions now imposed upon traditional bank holding companies. We must not allow an unintended loophole in the law to create a haphazard and eventually unsafe banking system.

U.S. FOREST SERVICE GETS FLEECE OF THE MONTH

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, I am giving my Fleece of the Month for June jointly to the U.S. Forest Service for spending $51 million preparing for Alaska timber sales and to Congress, which makes them do it. Over the last 5 years the Forest Service offered for sale 2.36 billion board feet of timber in Alaska's Tongass National Forest but sold only 43.7 percent; spent $116 million building 255 miles of new roads to service the sales, and lost on average 83 cents on the dollar for every sale they made.

Talk about a classic case of logrolling. The taxpayers get rolled while the timber companies get the logs.

Why did the Forest Service spend millions on roads for timber that no one wants to cut, or which gets harvested only at giveaway prices?

The answer is simple. Under a last-minute amendment to the 1980 Alaska Lands Act, the Forest Service must offer for sale 450 million board feet of timber each year in Alaska's southeastern panhandle. The law sets up a separate fund immune from congressional review which must pay out, at a minimum, $40 million each year in subsidies for these sales. Yet, even with the enormous subsidies, only 39.5 percent of the timber offered for sale last year attracted buyers.

According to the Forest Service's own figures, the agency could lose as much as $6 billion over the next 50 years by continuing the Tongass program.

Only the Federal Government could defy the laws of nature by planting a pinecone and growing a deficit. These sales prove the Government has truly gone nuts.

What about the specific practices which run up the program's price tag? Here are just a few:

At Couverden in 1984 and 1985 the Forest Service spent over $5½ million putting in almost 30 miles of road and eight bridges in advance of a sale which drew no bidders. While the Department of Agriculture intends to reoffer the sale, their minimum acceptable bid for the area will bring in just $266,233, a loss of 95 percent.

Even worse, cutting the timber in the Couverden area could harm the region's rich natural resources, rated by the State of Alaska as in the top 8 percent of all fish and wildlife habitat in all southeast Alaska.

In Yakutat, the Forest Service built a "bridge to nowhere" across the Dangerous River where no timber sales have been offered or planned for in the near future. No road connects to the far end of the bridge. From the taxpayer's viewpoint this river certainly deserves its name.

At Berners Bay, only a successful lawsuit by environmental groups stopped a 26-mile road costing $5 million for a timber sale even the Forest Service admits it could not sell. The road would have jeopardized one of the most popular recreational areas in the region.

Why did the Forest Service run up large bills for unneeded roads? Because in Alaska, unlike the rest of the United States, forest roads are not paid for by timber purchasers but are built and paid for in advance by the U.S. Government with Joe Taxpayer footing the bill.

The values of fish and wildlife in the spectacular Tongass Forest far outweigh in both dollar and spiritual value the entire Alaska Timber Program. The forest contains the largest habitat for bald eagles and grizzly bear and the richest salmon fishery in the world.

It's time to reform the Tongass Program. Therefore, I am asking the General Accounting Office for an investigation of the management of the Tongass Timber Supply Program.

SDI AND NUCLEAR TECHNOLOGY

Mr. McCLURE. Mr. President, recently the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory held a first-of-a-kind conference on the strategic defense initiative and nuclear technology in Idaho Falls. A speech delivered there by James W. Vaughan, Jr., carried a theme that reached far beyond the assembled audience of the SDI experts. Mr. Vaughan, who has been Acting Assistant Secretary for Nuclear Energy for the Department of Energy for the past 2 years, spoke of the lessons that must be learned from the Challenger and Chernobyl accidents by those who work in the space and nuclear technologies.

Mr. Vaughan charged all concerned to rededicate themselves to the pursuit of excellence in their technical endeavors and never waiver from the premise of "safety first."

"Safety," he noted, "is not something that is simply a matter of oversight or something you can inspect into a complex piece of equipment after it is designed and built. Safety must be designed and built into the device from the beginning. Safety must become an inherent part of our thinking and commitment to excellence."

Mr. Vaughan said the nuclear energy programs to support SDI and other defense applications are new and exciting technical challenges. They represent evolutionary—even revolutionary improvements in this country's application of nuclear energy technology. Some tough design and operation decisions are ahead as well as major safety considerations. He noted it was appropriate that the conference was held at the INEL, which has a firm commitment to excellence and the assurance of safe and reliable design and operation on nuclear energy sources for both commercial and military applications. Fifty-two reactors have been built at the INEL, once called the National Reactor Testing Station. A number of safety-related tests have been conducted there, such as the EBR-II breeder reactor loss-of-coolant test this spring that showed the walk-away safety of the liquid metal breeder reactor, the loss of fluid test last summer, when DOE intentionally and safely demonstrated the meltdown of nuclear fuel, and the ongoing experiments in the advanced test reactor that serves the Navy's nuclear propulsion program.

It is from the naval nuclear power program that Vaughan believes the United States will find the principles to direct this grand new SDI venture—principles such as technical competence, responsibility, willingness to face the facts and make tough decisions, conservatism of design and learning and applying lessons from mistakes.

Vaughan, who spent 28 years with Admiral Rickover in the Navy program, concluded that no technology, including nuclear power is perfect, but the laboratories, the agencies, and the industries must continue to assure it remains an acceptable risk. I want to thank Mr. Vaughan for his statement, and to commend him for the excellent job he has done the past 2 years as he led the country's nuclear energy program.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my remarks and Mr. Vaughan's speech be printed as read in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

"SDI & NUCLEAR TECHNOLOGY: LESSONS FROM CHALLENGER AND CHERNOBYL"

(Remarks by James W. Vaughan, Jr.)

INTRODUCTION

It is an honor and a pleasure for me to be with you tonight. The Department's Office of Nuclear Energy is pleased to have joined the Idaho Operations Office and the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL) in sponsoring this symposium. The programs and future directions which are the topics of discussion during these two days are of importance to our Nation and represent a significant cooperative effort between the Department of Energy and the Department of Defense, through its SDI office, as well as some cooperative efforts with NASA.

In keeping with the theme "SDI and Nuclear Technology" I thought it would be appropriate to focus tonight on "lessons from Challenger and Chernobyl".

ACCIDENTS AND LESSONS

These two tragic events in 1986—the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger off Cape Canaveral and the nuclear reactor accident at Chernobyl in the Soviet Union—have captured worldwide public attention. These accidents—both of which surely could have been avoided—send a clear and distinct message to all of us as we consider the growing reliance on nuclear energy to enable new and exciting space missions and other defense applications. The basic message is that we must continue to pursue our designs and applications on a sound technical and management basis and maintain the pre-eminence of safety in everything we do. This is not a new message, but it has been starkly reinforced by these two dramatic events which took their toll in human life, destroyed expensive technical machines, and signaled significant negative impacts for ongoing programs.

The lessons that are emerging from these disasters are relatively simple and clear cut:

(1) Don't assume everything is safe and reliable just because a strongly-supported national program has a good operating record and a series of successes.

(2) Don't put off resolution of true safety issues in the name of expediency or budget constraints, and

(3) As you navigate down narrow channels in tough waters, watch for the red flags and warning buoys as they start to appear, listen to these signals—be they from your engineers, your contractors, or your test data—and take action before you run the ship aground.

Many of you may also know that Challenger's next scheduled mission was to include the launch of NASA's Gallileo space probe powered by two radioisotope thermoelectric generators—called RTG's—each of which contain about 8 kilograms of plutonium 238 and convert the long lived decay heat to electricity.

At the time of the Challenger accident we had already completed a significant amount of safety analysis work related to potential accident scenarios. We assessed a very low probability of plutonium dispersal that could have adverse effects on public health and safety in the event of an accident. However, the Challenger explosion appropriately has caused us to re-evaluate our analyses. How realistic are the accident scenarios and assumptions? Have we done all the testing we need? Have we included enough protective factors to provide even greater assurance of public health and safety in the event of an accident?

The fact that we have flown 22 missions with RTG's without incident or mishap is not enough. Even though, in hindsight, the Challenger accident was one that could have been avoided by more attention by engineers and senior management to details and by correction of known problems affecting flight safety and reliability, we must not make "band-aid" fixes and then adopt the premise of "that can't happen again."

The Chernobyl nuclear reactor accident is an even more complex situation. We do not yet fully know whether human errors, design deficiencies or a combination of these were the principal cause of the accident. We do know that the reactors at Chernobyl are uniquely a Russian design, built to Russian standards, and operated to their procedures. They are very different from nuclear power reactors used in this country and the rest of the free world. We believe that they would not have been licensable here or in other free world countries. We believe that safety considerations may have taken a back seat to costs. But a serious nuclear accident did happen and we must heed the lessons that are evolving as more facts become known.

The Challenger and Chernobyl accidents exacerbate our already difficult task of ensuring public understanding of nuclear power's benefits, safe operating record, and emphasis on protecting public health and safety. But, this task is not impossible if we do not waver from the premise of "safety first." We face a tough challenge in establishing our credibility with the American people and dispelling their misconception about nuclear power. An informed and educated public is essential to our ability to continue to safely deploy nuclear energy sources on land and in space. We must not lose sight of our responsibility to articulate to the public our many accomplishments and plans for the future—and about our concern for the same things they are concerned about when it comes to nuclear power—costs, reliability, and, most importantly of all, safety. I urge each of you in your various roles to do your share in accomplishing this objective.

OUR NUCLEAR ENERGY PROGRAMS

The nuclear energy programs to support SDI and other defense applications that are being discussed in this symposium are new and exciting technical challenges. They represent both evolutionary and somewhat revolutionary improvements in our application of nuclear energy technology. In the years ahead, we will face some very tough design and operational decisions. The nearer term SP-100 program to prove out the design of a 300 kilowatt electric propulsion system requires a thorough testing of advanced reactor fuels and materials, integration of these reactor and power conversion systems, confirmation of heat dissipation capabilities, and many other features.

Major safety considerations for this space platform with a nuclear reactor power source include: first, the ability to protect against adverse affects during a launch accident by bringing the reactor critical only after it is in orbit, and second, the desirability of maintaining the platform safe orbit for hundreds of years in case something goes wrong or after its useful life is expended. The fact that the DOD and the DOE have committed over $500M to an SP-100 ground engineering test program is a reflection of our commitment to do it right and do it safely. We will not waver in that commitment.

The extension of these reactor technologies to achieve power levels in the multimegawatt range for space applications are equally exiting and demanding efforts. We are beginning to examine very innovative design concepts which will stretch and challenge our technical capabilities to develop and apply higher temperature fuels and materials to achieve the power levels demanded by future missions within their size, weight and reliability constraints.

As we consider new approaches for meeting SDI mission needs through nuclear technology, it is important to note the vital contribution of all of DOE's laboratories, facilities, and industrial infrastructure to the President's SDI objectives. The collection of government and industrial expertise that many of you here represent, plus the facilities at our national laboratories, are a vital part of the overall SDI effort. This setting in Idaho is particularly appropriate for us to reflect on nuclear safety.

The Idaho National Engineering Laboratory emerged from the early days of the Atomic Energy Commission when we labeled this area of the desert the National Reactor Testing Station, with a firm commitment to excellence and assuring the safe and reliable design and operation of nuclear energy sources for both commercial and military applications. To date some 52 reactors have been built here. It has been my privilege over the last 28 years to be personnally involved in a number of INEL activities.

The importance placed by the Department on reactor safety, and its central role in our space reactor program can be graphically illustrated by recalling the unique SNAPTRAN-3 experiment performed here in 1964. In that test an actual SNAP reactor core was immersed in water to determine the maximum consequences of a water impact and flooding accident. The small energy and fission product release served to demonstrate the very limited risk from launching the SNAP 10A reactor into space. SNAPTRAN-3 was only one of many safety-related tests conducted here at the INEL, even up to the present time.

For example:

Recall the recent series of tests at the EBT-II reactor here at Argonne-West where we ran a series of loss of coolant tests and demonstrated the inherent safe shutdown of a sodium cooled reactor design without operator action. This is a valuable building block for some of our future advanced reactor designs.

Recall the "Loss of Fluid Test" completed here last summer by an international consortium, with U.S. leadership, where we purposefully and safely demonstrated the meltdown of nuclear fuel to understand the dispersal and deposition of fission products, so that in the unlikely event of a reactor accident we would have the technical understanding to continue to assure protection of the public health and safety through our "defense in depth" concepts.

Recall also the specialized facilities here that serve our Navy's nuclear propulsion program. The work done in the Advanced Test Reactor thoroughly verifies fuels and materials properties and behavior before we even commit them to reactor designs. And the Naval reactor prototypes, further to the West, were the pioneers of both our nuclear submarine and surface ship programs. They continue to be used to improve reactor concepts and provide an invaluable service to the Nation to assure that the Navy's operating personnel are thoroughly trained to carry out their awesome responsibility of safely operating shipboard reactors to provide a vital component of our Nation's defense.

ASSURING SAFETY AND RELIABILITY

How can we capitalize on what we have learned from these experiences to continue to assure safe and reliable operation of our nuclear energy sources and their space platforms?

In looking for lessons from Challenger and Chernobyl, many tend to recall the Three Mile Island nuclear accident in 1979. Shortly after that event, Admiral Rickover and I prepared testimony for the Congress in which we attempted to summarize some of the principles that helped make the Navy nuclear power program successful. Many of these principles have also been translated into the commercial nuclear power program and I believe these principles form the basis for some of the things we need to keep in mind as we move forward with new applications of nuclear energy for SDI and other space and defense programs.

Let me briefly summarize some of these key principles.

The underlying principle is that design and operation of safe and reliable nuclear reactors requires adherence to the concept of integration, wherein all elements of a system are recognized as important and reliable performance of each must be constantly reinforced. Technical problems cannot be solved by specifying compliance with one or two simple procedures.

The specific principles I want to touch on with you tonight are: technical competence, responsibility, willingness to face the facts and make tough decisions, conservatism of design, and learning and applying lessons from mistakes.

Designers, builders, operators, and managers of nuclear projects must all possess the requisite technical competence for their task. A sophisticated technical program requires a fundamental understanding of, and commitment to, the technical aspects of the job and a willingness to pay infinite attention to the technical details. This can only be done by those who understand the details and their implications. Remember, the Devil is in the details.

Responsibility is a unique concept. It resides and inheres in key individuals at various levels of engineering and management. An individual may share it with others, but his portion is not diminished. He may delegate it, but it remains with him. He may disclaim it, but he cannot divest himself of it. Even if he does not recognize it or admit its presence, he cannot escape it. If responsibility is rightfully his, no evasion, or ignorance or passing the blame can shift the burden to someone else. Unless we can point our finger at the man who is responsible when something goes wrong, then we have never had anyone really responsible.

A third principle for successful application of a sophisticated technology is to resist the human inclination to hope that things will work out despite evidence or suspicions to the contrary. This may seem obvious, but it is a human factor we must be conscious of and actively guard against. It can affect you in subtle ways, particularly when you have spent a lot of time and energy on a project and feel personally responsible for it, and thus somewhat possessive. If conditions require it, you must be willing to face the facts and brutally make the tough decision needed to effect changes despite potential cost and schedule delays. There have been a number of times in successful programs where hard decisions were made to stop work and redesign or rebuild equipment to provide the needed high degree of assurance of satisfactory performance. The person in charge must personally set the example in this area and require his subordinates to do likewise.

In any engineering endeavor, and particularly in an advanced field such as nuclear power, conservatism of design is necessary so as to allow for possible unknown and unforeseen events. This conservatism must be built into the design from the very beginning. If the basic design is not conservative before it is committed to hardware, it quickly becomes impractical to build in the needed conservatism. It becomes necessary to add complexities to the system in an attempt to compensate for the inadequacies of the basic design. These complexities, in turn, may serve to complicate operation and impact reliability.

Because we are dealing with sophisticated machines conceived and created by man, it is important to believe and be constantly mindful that mistakes can and will be made. We must make accommodations for inevitable mistakes and renew our commitment to apply the lessons learned from them.

CONCLUSION

The lessons from Challenger and Chernobyl are clear. Safety and the protection of the public and environment must remain pre-eminent. Safety is not something that is simply a matter of oversight or something you can inspect into a complex piece of equipment after it is designed and built. Safety must be designed and built into the device from the beginning, be it a nuclear energy device or a conventional mechanical device. And safety must be an inherent part of our thinking and commitment to excellence. No technology—including nuclear power—is perfect. But we must continue to assure it remains an acceptable risk.

In closing let me again emphasize the importance of an informed and educated public as the key to assuring acceptance of these space and nuclear technology activities. Those of you here are among the best informed in the country. You have worked and lived with nuclear power for most of your lives and you understand the true commitment to safety and the protection of the public and environment. We need to transfer that level of appreciation and commitment to the public. Each of us in this room has a personal and professional responsibility to do so. Let us all heed this responsibility as we proceed through the next decade meeting the challenges of developing innovative and imaginative techniques to use the atom in enabling our growing space and defense activities.

THE CONTINUING PERSECUTION OF BAHA'IS IN IRAN

Mr. HEINZ Mr. President, the world's attention is now focused on the chaos and repression in South Africa, where the Government has dropped a curtain of silence over its deeds. But there is another country, Iran, equally cut off from outside scrutiny by its government's actions, where great injustices are also being committed.

Earlier this month, the Iranian Government executed Farid Behmardi, a leader of the Iranian Baha'i community. Mr. Behmardi was tortured before he was hanged. What were Mr. Behmardi's crimes? He committed the crime of hewing to a faith that is considered heresy in fundamentalist Islamic Iran. He died for holding his own religious beliefs, one of the bedrock human rights that the United States and all civilized nations hold dear.

Information is difficult to get on Iranian persecution of religious minorities. But we now know that two other Baha'is who had been imprisoned for their religious beliefs were hanged in May. And this official murder of good Iranian citizens is not all that has happened in Iran. Also last month, a 15-year old Baha'i boy was stoned to death by a mob that was incited against a faith that is not recognized in Iran as legitimate.

Islam is a great religion, which respects the other great religions. The Iranian people are a dignified people, with a civilization thousands of years old. But the current Iranian Government, which garbs its hate and mayhem in an extreme and intolerant version of Islam, is barbarous and uncivilized. It is murderous. It practices genocide of its own loyal citizens not on the basis of race, but of belief.

Mr. President, our leverage against the murderous mullahs of Iran is limited. But we do know that there are more Baha'is in prison, at least five of whom may face execution in the near future. I ask the Senate to join me in condemning the barbaric, murderous persecution of the Baha'i segment of the Iranian people by their own government.

And I call on the other governments of the Middle East and Africa, which find in Islam a guide to public policy, to practice the tolerance that is part of Islam's great traditions. The Baha'i faith pays tribute in its doctrine to several of the world's great religious traditions. It is no threat to Islam, nor to any other creed. Baha'is should be respected as the good citizens of their countries that they are.

Mr. President, the Iranian Government may try to hide its crimes from the world. Like South Africa today, or the Soviet Union in Afghanistan, or the tyranny of Stalin, or the genocide of the Nazis, the murderers of Iran's current regime will try to cover their tracks. But they will not succeed. We will not let them. The world will know, and the world will remember.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. LOREN GARY, JR.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I would like to call to the attention of my colleagues the truly outstanding contributions and service of a very close friend of mine, Dr. Loren Gary, Jr., who is from my hometown of Tuscumbia, AL.

Dr. Gary has been doctor to many, many people in Tuscumbia for almost 40 years. He is originally from Georgetown, GA, where his father was also a doctor and served for several years in the Georgia State Senate. We were fortunate, indeed, when, in 1947, Dr. Gary moved to Tuscumbia, acquired his Alabama's medical license, found an office, and set up practice with brother Robert. The type of medicine he practiced seems to be nearly extinct today. I suppose it can best be described as "country doctoring."

Dr. Gary has provided every aspect of health care to the people of his community. He is the only doctor which many people in Tuscumbia have ever had. He has delivered them as babies, cared for them as they grew through childhood, and then delivered their babies. He has spent many a long night at the bedside of his patients. Many people in Tuscumbia will tell you that they have seen Dr. Gary asleep in his car, after a house call had kept him awake all night. I imagine that he's vaccinated nearly every baby, child, and adult in the entire Tuscumbia area. However, I hear that he, himself, has a certain needlephobia, a fear of needles. He doesn't mind giving shots, he just doesn't like to have them stuck in his hide. His deep concern and great care have saved many lives. People have shown their gratitude and thanks by naming their children for him. "Gary" and "Loren" are both very popular names in Tuscumbia.

In addition to the care he has provided to the health of the citizens of Tuscumbia, Dr. Gary has also served as chairman of the Tuscumbia Housing Authority since 1949. He was the first and has been the only housing authority chairman. Several years ago I had the honor of serving the housing authority. Dr. Gary was great to work with. At that time, I was struck by the realization of the many wonderful ways in which Dr. Gary has cared for the community of Tuscumbia. Not only has he provided for their health and well-being, but he has also helped provide for their shelter. Thus, he has been instrumental in providing two of the three basic needs which all human beings attempt to attain—health and shelter. He also did a little farming. This makes him a complete provider.

For his 36 years of outstanding service with the housing authority, the Department of Housing and Urban Development has recently honored Dr. Gary with a proclamation. In Tuscumbia he was honored by having the new public housing subdivision named in his honor. It is called "Gary Courts."

I feel that these honors only begin to express the appreciation of the many whom Dr. Gary has helped and supported. His contributions to medicine and to the livelihood of the Tuscumbia Area are immense. His example is one which all should emulate. I wish to congratulate my friend, Dr. Loren Gary, for his tremendous achievements and contributions, as well as acquiring the love and affection of the people of Tuscumbia and Colbert County, AL.

TRIBUTE TO CHIEF JUSTICE WARREN E. BURGER

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate Warren E. Burger for his outstanding accomplishments and contributions to our Nation's judicial system during his tenure as Chief Justice of the United States.

When most individuals are nominated to become judges, many believe that their sole function will be to decide cases. Chief Justice Burger was well aware that his position would not only be that of Chief Justice of the United States but also as chief administrator of our judicial system. During his confirmation hearing in 1969, Warren Burger, then a judge on the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, was asked about the duties of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. He answered that he conceived those duties to be, first of all, "Basically the same as they have been as a member of the U.S. Court of Appeals—deciding cases." But, he went on to say that ". . . the Chief Justice of the United States is assigned many other duties, administrative in nature. I would think it was the duty of the Chief Justice . . . to make our system work better. And I would expect to devote every energy and every moment of the rest of my life to that end should I be confirmed."

Chief Justice Burger has clearly fulfilled both of these duties in his stewardship of the Supreme Court.

First, as Chief Justice for 17 of this Nation's most tumultuous years, Warren Burger has decided the hard cases. Equally as important, however, Chief Justice has worked tirelessly to improve the organization and efficiency of Federal and State Courts. He has modernized our judicial structure and has reformed or replaced some of the most outdated judicial practices and systems. Even before his appointment as Chief Justice, Warren Burger advocated the use of court administrators, and soon after taking office in 1969 was instrumental in creating the institute for court management, an organization to train court administrators. Today there are over 1,000 court administrators at different levels of our judicial system. The Chief Justice also successfully urged Congress to create the position of "Circuit Executive." This circuit executive assists the Chief Judge of each of the Federal circuits in an administrative capacity. Furthermore, the Chief Justice was responsible for Congress's creation of the position of administrative assistant to the Chief Justice of the United States. This position has been extremely successful in providing a liaison with other judicial administrators and in fostering public education concerning the judicial system.

In addition to the above administrative positions, the Chief Justice has made major strides in helping the Federal district and circuit courts cope with their increased case loads which have more than doubled in the 17 years that the Chief Justice has been in office. He created the Conference of Metropolitan Chief Justices to help with the administrative problems in the larger Federal district courts. The Chief Justice has sponsored wider use of Federal magistrates and encouraged the use of six-member juries in civil cases which has saved millions of dollars and simplified and expedited jury selection. Additionally, Chief Justice Burger urged the Congress and the public to increase personnel and budgets for all facets of the judicial system. During his tenure, the budget of the judicial branch has increased to over $1 billion and the number of Federal and circuit judges has increased from 468 to 761. Because of his efforts, the Chief Justice has been appropriately described as the single most effective, innovative, and significant figure in the country in the area of judicial improvement.

An unresolved goal which the Chief Justice noted was his effort to alleviate the ever increasing case load which faces the Supreme Court. He has been a strong advocate of the creation of an intercircuit panel between the court of appeals and the Supreme Court. The legislation creating this panel which will alleviate this problem will soon be before this body.

No Chief Justice in recent history has more readily assumed the role of chief administrator of our Nation's judiciary. In this role, Chief Justice Burger has helped to bridge the administrative gaps between the Federal and State courts. The Chief Justice has stated that "The two systems of State and Federal courts are 'different pews' in the same church." In this area he was the prime motivator in the creation of a State-Federal council consisting of State and Federal judges to help in the administration of justice in each State. As of today, over 40 States have created such councils.

Chief Justice Burger has devoted his energies to modernizing the judiciary and encouraging improvements in what once was an inefficient administrative structure. Nowhere have the Chief Justice's efforts been more visible or successful than in the State courts of this country.

Chief Justice Burger has always recognized the importance and vital role of the State courts in our judicial system. He understands that it is in the State courts that most of our citizens will first confront the scales of justice. Accordingly he has always sought to maintain an equal balance ensuring that the quality of justice in the State courts is equal to the quality received in the Federal courts. In 1971, the Chief Justice proposed that a national center for State courts be created. The center has become a "clearinghouse" and think-tank for innovations in court administration and an effective voice for all State courts.

The leadership of the Chief Justice was also instrumental in the creation of the State Justice Institute. The institute will provide a vehicle through which State courts as a collective body can formulate and foster programs that will benefit the State court systems nationwide and thereby the Federal system as a whole. The institute will provide opportunity for the education and training programs for judges and other court personnel and will focus on programs directed at providing better mechanisms for managing and monitoring case loads.

In my home State of Alabama we have made substantial progress in improving the machinery, structure, and administration of justice. Chief Justice Burger was a source of great encouragement and inspiration to those involved in the judicial reform movement in Alabama. His counsel, advice, as well as his visits, proved to be of immense value to Alabama judicial system.

This July will bring a close to the fine career of Warren E. Burger as Chief Justice of this Nation's highest court. Since the Senate will not return until after his departure. I would now like to congratulate Chief Justice Burger for an outstanding tenure as the Chief Justice. His improvements in both Federal and State courts has vastly improved the system of justice for all Americans.

I wish the Chief Justice well in his job as Chairman of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution. It seems only fitting that such a Commission should be headed by a man who has devoted his entire life to making our justice system work better.

In taking the oath of office in 1969, Chief Justice Burger declared that "I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich, and I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States according to the best of my abilities and understanding, agreeable to the Constitution and laws of the United States."

The Chief Justice has, indeed, honorably fulfilled his oath on every day of the last 17 years.

I LOVE THIS COUNTRY: I HAVE NO OTHER

Mr. MATHIAS. Mr. President, on July 4 of this year, our country will welcome thousands of permanent resident aliens as new U.S. citizens. Five hundred people will take the oath of citizenship at a special ceremony on Ellis Island, and a record 12,000 will become naturalized at the Orange Bowl.

While this day will be one of celebration and fulfillment for thousands, to others it will bring frustration and disappointment. A recent Wall Street Journal article tells the story of Jose Rodriguez. This 79-year-old immigrant from Cuba, who has lived here since 1980, was bitterly disappointed when told he cannot become a citizen unless he can demonstrate that he has mastered the English language. He shouted in Spanish, "I love President Reagan; I'd give my life for him. I love this country, I have no other."

Scenes like this are not uncommon in the offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Elderly people who are qualified in every other way are barred from U.S. citizenship because they have difficulty in mastering the English language. Some, like Jose and Manuela Broche of Rockville, MD, study English for years but die before mastering the language requirement for citizenship.

To remedy this situation, 10 Senators have introduced S. 1296, which would add an additional exemption from the English language requirement. Current law exempts those who are physically unable to learn English and those who are over 50 years old and have been permanent resident aliens living in this country for at least 20 years. S. 1296 would extend this exemption to elderly individuals over 65 years of age who make a diligent effort to learn the English language and have been lawful permanent resident aliens living in the United States for at least 5 years. These individuals must still meet the education requirement, demonstrating an adequate knowledge of U.S. history and Government.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates this legislation would only affect about 3,200 of the approximately 166,000 persons who become naturalized citizens each year. In addition, S. 1296 would have no significant budgetary impact because permanent resident aliens are eligible for the same benefits as citizens. What this legislation would do is give those elderly people who value U.S. citizenship the chance to achieve it.

S. 1296 reaffirms a basic precept of our immigration policy: welcoming those who are qualified to be U.S. citizens and who would cherish that status. I urge my colleagues to add their names as cosponsors of this legislation and to join in reaffirming this principle as we near the centennial celebration of the symbol of American immigration—the Statue of Liberty.

RETIREMENT OF CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER

Mr. MATHIAS. Mr. President, one of my first duties as a member of the Committee on the Judiciary was to consider the nomination of Warren Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States. Not only because of the importance and historic significance of the appointment, but also because it was for me a case of first impression, I took a special interest in the process of confirmation. Having begun that aspect of our careers at the same time, it now appears that we shall each leave public service to take up different responsibilities also at the same time.

I voted to confirm Chief Justice Burger's nomination with the confidence that he brought to the Supreme Court solid legal competence, broad experience in government and a strong commitment to the traditions shaped by American history. That confidence has been justified by Chief Justice Burger's record in the Supreme Court and by his leadership beyond the court room.

The inevitable monument of a Chief Justice is the body of judicial opinion and case law he has produced. There is no need to embellish that, nor would I be able to do so. Suffice it to say that Chief Justice Burger's work touches the critical historical issues of his time.

But some of Warren Burger's important contributions will not be found in the reports of the Supreme Court. His exhortation to the bar to meet its responsibilities merits the thanks of every lawyer. His advocacy with Congress of judicial administrative improvement and adequate judicial compensation merits the thanks of every judge of both Federal and State courts. His attention to the lessons to be learned from history is an example for every citizen and an inspiration to those who dedicate themselves to the preservation of the American spirit.

I feel a debt of gratitude to Warren Burger and I hope that he and Mrs. Burger will be able to enjoy many years of a less arduous life. His work on the commemoration of the bicentennial of the Constitution will further attest to his devotion to that great contract and to the rule of law that it embodies.

THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE NATIONAL SYSTEM OF INTERSTATE AND DEFENSE HIGHWAYS

Mr. SYMMS. Mr. President, last month we passed a resolution designating this day, June 26, 1986, as "National Interstate Day," marking the 30th anniversary of the Interstate and Defense Highway System. In fact, it was on June 29, 1956, that President Eisenhower signed the legislation that brought to fruition his long-held dream of creating a modern, efficient network of highways connecting the Nation from coast to coast and between our northern and southern borders.

Today, that Interstate System—some 42,500 miles of highway—is more than 97 percent complete with a total Federal expenditure of $99.9 billion. The Interstate System is easily the largest and most important public works project in the Nation's history. The best thing about this tremendous Federal expense, Mr. President, is that the Interstate System has been built on a pay-as-you-go basis with moneys paid in advance by the Nation's highway users.

The same act that established the Interstate System also created the Highway Trust Fund for the collection of highway user fees and the subsequent distribution of those funds to construct and maintain our highways. The lion's share of the money apportioned from the Highway Trust Fund—nearly $100 billion out of a total $160 billion expenditure—has been spent on the highway system of greatest national significance, the Interstate System. As chairman of the Environment and Public Works Subcommittee on Transportation, I am pleased with the Senate's continued support for the Federal-aid highway program and the efforts to complete this great public works project.

WHAT THE INTERSTATE SYSTEM MEANS TO THE NATION

I want to turn to the Interstate System's tremendous impact on the political, social, and economic lives of Americans. I'm sure many would think first of the economic importance of a modern highway system to transport goods from producers to consumers. Without doubt, the Interstate System is the Nation's preeminent means of transportation. Construction of the interstate has significantly increased safety and efficiency in the cross-country movement of goods and people.

Today, the Interstate System and other highways on and off the Federal-aid system carry the vast majority of the Nation's goods either all or part of the way to market. Over 90 percent or our textile mill products, 89 percent of our fresh fruits and vegetables, 84 percent of our furniture and fixtures, and 81 percent of our meat and dairy products are transported all or part of the way to market on highways. Obviously, the economic value of a safe and modern network of interstate highways is tremendous.

Aside from its economic value, the Interstate System has affected our lives in another very important way, the value of which is incalculable. I'm talking now about freedom, Mr. President, the freedom of mobility which has become so deeply ingrained in our national character, so much a part of our lives, that many of us fail to recognize and appreciate its value.

The 42,500 miles of interstate highways allow the American people greater personal mobility and, hence, more individual freedom than can be enjoyed by any other people in any other country in the world. It is this connection—the bond between mobility and freedom—which has long been the basis of my strong support for the Federal-aid highway program and my commitment to the completion of our Interstate System.

Yesterday, the Washington Post reprinted an article by Robert J. Samuelson in which Mr. Samuelson makes the following observation: "To understand America, you must understand highways." He argues that our devotion to President Eisenhower's grand plan for an Interstate Highway System reflects the great love of freedom and mobility which is intrinsic to our character as a people.

In the last paragraph of his article, Mr. Samuelson quotes from a passage in David Brodsly's "L.A. Freeway," where Mr. Brodsly writes:

Every time we merge with traffic, we join our community in a wordless creed: belief in individual freedom, in a technological liberation from place and circumstance, in a democracy of personal mobility. When we are stuck in rush-hour traffic, the freeway's greatest frustration is that it belies its promise . . . [The] archeologists of some future age will study [the freeway] . . . to understand who we were.

I believe the ideas expressed in the Samuelson article are an accurate portrayal of the impact of highways, and particularly the Interstate System, on the private and public lives of Americans. They have, as Mr. Samuelson says, "reshaped American culture . . . and strengthened common life styles."

Our Interstate Highway System stands today as a powerful tribute to the vision of President Eisenhower. On the occasion of the 30th anniversary of the Interstate System, I wanted to acknowledge President Eisenhower's lasting contribution to the cause of freedom.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the article to which I have referred be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

WE ARE OUR HIGHWAYS

(By Robert J. Samuelson)

Flip on the radio any weekday morning and you will hear something like this: Traffic on the Beltway is slow at the intersection with Rte. 50. Big problems on Rte. 123. We have an accident. Southbound traffic is backed up two miles."

To understand America, you must understand highways. In the past half century, these masochists marvels have—along with telephones, television and jet planes—reshaped American culture. They have shrunk the nation, homogenized the landscape and strengthened common life styles. Freeways are not a place but a stage of our history. Driving them, passing office complexes and listening to commuter reports, you could be in Any City, U.S.A.

It's an apt moment for these musings, because the modern-highway era dawned 30 years ago. On June 29, 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed a law creating the highway trust fund to pay for 90 percent of the Interstate Highway System; the states paid the rest. Although the 42,500-mile system (97 percent complete) constitutes only 1 percent of our highways, it carries a fifth of the traffic. More important, it has "reconfigured economic geography," as urban scholar James Hughes of Rutgers University argues. It hastened suburbanization and spurred rapid truck transportation that brought the low-wage South into the national economy. It allowed, as Hughes says, "Frank Perdue to feed the entire Northeast from eastern Maryland."

There are those who see highways as a wellspring of vulgarity that produced suburban sprawl, strip development, decrepit central cities and smog. In turn, highways were created by the "highway lobby" of road builders, auto companies, truckers and oil companies. But this story is backwards. The impulses that, after World War II, caused Americans to buy more cars and to move to suburbia—which created pressure for more highways—reflected deeper longings for space and status. In the 1950s, narrow, congested two-lane roads were seen as driving hazards and obstacles to economic growth. The Hearst newspapers had a full-time editor supervising stories on the need for better highways. Between 1952 and 1955, these stories would have filled 1,229 newspaper pages.

Even without the interstates, there would have been huge expressways, Los Angeles' early freeway, the New York State Thruway, the Pennsylvania Turnpike all predated the interstate system. But Eisenhower accelerated the building and gave it coherence. According to his biographer, Stephen Ambrose, the interstate system was his "favorite" domestic program. Writes Ambrose: "Eisenhower was often called . . . a 'Whig President,' with the implication that he was a 'do-nothing' leader. But by advocating a highway program on a gigantic scale, he embraced the strongest tradition of 19th-century American Whigs, John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay . . . had all been advocates of internal improvements paid for by the federal government."

Some dreams have been fulfilled. As our vast vacation migrations attest, we are more mobile than ever. The interstates are one reason (along with better cars, the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit and seat belts) for improved driving safety. In 1956, there were 39,628 highway deaths. In 1985, there were 45,700, despite roughly a tripling of registered vehicles and of travel. But no one envisioned that highways would be catalysts for huge social disruptions—the decline of central cities, the maiming of railroads, the eclipse of the Northeast. The 1950s' illusion was that government created only benign social change.

The reality is that the interstate system always has had huge unintended consequences. Once it entered cities, as opposed to connecting them, it aroused outrage from neighborhoods that objected to being carved up by concrete. "We said to the highway engineers. 'You can't just make these decisions and plow through cities,'" recalls Ben Kelley, a Department of Transportation official in the 1960s. Hearings and appeals were required. Some cities halted the interstates at their borders. In San Francisco, the stub of an incomplete roadway simply stopped in midair.

The beltways have been the latest upheaval. Originally designed to speed long-distance travelers around crowded cities, they have anchored developments of offices and shopping centers. According to Hughes and his colleague George Sternlieb, two-thirds of office construction now occurs in the suburbs. The beltway is Main Street, and congestion moves farther into the suburban fringes. There's a Parkinson's Law of urban highways; cars expand to fill available concrete. We are condemned to endless searches for relief through more car pools, new bypasses, enlarged ramps. One government forecast predicts that urban-freeway delays may quintuple by 2005.

Was there an alternative? Probably not. In a country that cherishes mobility and freedom, strict land controls are anathema. America is too big, and we want to live and work in too many places to make mass transit viable. Even with big subsidies, mass transit carries only one-twentieth of commuters, less than half the 1960 share.

Americans seem willing to tolerate delay and inconvenience. Commuting times may have changed little since the late 1800s, when most urban workers lived within a mile of work and they walked. Today, the average American spends 20 minutes driving to work and he lives 10 miles away.

For better or worse, we are our highways. As David Brodsly writes in "L.A. Freeway": "Every time we merge with traffic, we join our community in a wordless creed: belief in individual freedom, in a technological liberation from place and circumstance, in a democracy of personal mobility. When we are stuck in rush-hour traffic, the freeway's greatest frustration is that it belies its promise . . . . [The] archeologists of some future age will study [the freeway] . . . to understand who we were."

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mrs. Emery, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session, the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 3:17 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Berry, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House agrees to the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate No. 3 to the bill (H.R. 3511) to amend title 18, United States Code, with respect to certain bribery and related offenses.

The message also announced that the House has passed the following bill, without amendment:

S. 1625. An act to permit the use and leasing of certain public lands in Nevada by the University of Nevada.

The message further announced that the House has passed the following joint resolution, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.J. Res. 664. Joint resolution to designate July 3, 1986, as "Let Freedom Ring Day", and to request the President to issue a proclamation encouraging the people of the United States to ring bells on such day immediately following the relighting of the torch of the Statute of Liberty.

The message also announced that the House has agreed to the following concurrent resolutions, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H. Con. Res. 362. Concurrent resolution to express the sense of the Congress that a moment of silence be held during the official ceremonies for the Statue of Liberty for the return of the American captives in Lebanon; and

H. Con. Res. 364. Concurrent resolution providing for a conditional adjournment of the two Houses from June 26 or 27 until July 14, 1986.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

At 7:28 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Goetz, one of its reading clerks, announced that the Speaker has signed the following enrolled bills:

S. 2180. An act to authorize appropriations for activities under the Federal Fire Prevention and Control Act of 1974;

S. 2414. An act to amend title 18, United States Code; and

H.R. 4841. An act to amend the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act with respect to State allotments under the act.

At 9:08 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Berry, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House disagrees to the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 175 to the bill (H.R. 4515) making urgent supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1986, and for other purposes.

At 11:33 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Berry, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses of the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4420) to amend title 10, United States Code, to revise the retirement system for new members of the uniformed services, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the House agrees to the amendment of the Senate to the following bill:

H.R. 5036. An act to make technical corrections to the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities Act of 1965.

The message further announced that the House recedes from its amendment to the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 120) setting forth the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1987, 1988, and 1989, and concurs therein, with an amendment, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were laid before the Senate, together with accompanying papers, reports, and documents, which were referred as indicated:

EC-3357. A communication from the Assistant Secretary of State (Legislative and Intergovermental Affairs), transmitting, pursuant to law, a report with respect to AWACS Delivery to Saudi Arabia; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

EC-3358. A communication from the Director of the Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on the provision of emergency military assistance to Honduras; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

EC-3359. A communication from the President of the United States, transmitting, pursuant to law, a plan for the provision of assistance to Nicaragua; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. DANFORTH, from the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, with amendments and an amended preamble:

S. Con. Res. 137: Concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that the Federal Government take immediate steps to support a national STORM progam (Rept. No. 99-328).

By Mr. ANDREWS, from the Select Committee on Indian Affairs, without amendment:

H.R. 3247: A bill to amend the Native American Programs Act of 1974 to authorize appropriations for fiscal years 1987 through 1990 (Rept. No. 99-329).

By Mr. LUGAR, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, without amendment:

S. 2610: An original bill to authorize supplemental economic and military assistance for the Philippines, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 99-330).

By Mr. LUGAR, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, without amendment and with a preamble:

H. Con. Res. 325: A concurrent resolution to commend the government and people of Berlin for keeping alive the spirit of equality, freedom, and human dignity through their solemn commemoration of the 50th anniversary of Jesse Owens' victories at the 1936 Berlin Olympic Games.

H. Con. Res. 326: A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that the existence of the Berlin Wall after twenty-five years is a visible indictment of the communist system and that the continued vitality of the Western Sectors of the city is a testament to the Berliners' courage and devotion to freedom.

By Mr. LUGAR, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, without amendment:

S. 2538: To authorize the distribution within the United States of the USIA film entitled "The March".

By Mr. THURMOND, from the Committee on the Judiciary, without amendment and with a preamble:

S.J. Res. 354: A joint resolution to designate the week of October 5, 1986, through October 11, 1986, as "National Drug Abuse Education and Prevention Week".

S.J. Res. 360: A joint resolution to designate July 20, 1986, as "Space Exploration Day".

By Mr. LUGAR, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, without amendment and with a preamble:

S. Con. Res. 143: A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Congress on the resumption of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees Orderly Departure Program for Vietnam.

EXECUTIVE REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following executive reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. THURMOND, from the Committee on the Judiciary:

Saundra Brown Armstrong, of Virginia, to be a Commissioner of the United States Parole Commission for a term of six years.

By Mr. LUGAR, from the Committee on Foreign Relations:

Mary Kate Bush, of the District of Columbia, to be United States Alternate Executive Director of the International Monetary Fund for a term of two years.

Harry W. Shlaudeman, of California, a Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service, Class of Career Minister, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Federative Republic of Brazil.

Contributions are to be reported for the period beginning on the first day of the fourth calendar year preceding the calendar year of the nomination and ending on the date of the nomination.

Nominee: Harry W. Shlaudeman.

Post: Ambassador to Brazil.

Contributions, amount, date, donee.

1. Self, none, Harry W. Shlaudeman.

2. Spouse, none, Carol Jean Dickey Shlaudeman.

3. Children and spouses, none, Karl Frederick Shlaudeman, Katherine Estelle Shlaudeman, Harry Richard Shlaudeman.

4. Parents, deceased, Karl Whitman and Florence Pixley Shlaudeman.

5. Grandparents, deceased, Harry and Margaret Shlaudeman, Walter and Estelle Pixley.

6. Brothers and spouses, none.

7. Sisters and spouses, none, Herbert and Marcia Jepson (sister and brother-in-law).

Jonathan Moore, of Massachusetts, to be United States Coordinator for Refugee Affairs and Ambassador-at-Large while serving in this position, vice Howard Eugene Douglas, resigned.

Contributions are to be reported for the period beginning on the first day of the fourth calendar year preceding the calendar year of the nomination and ending on the date of the nomination.

Nominee: Jonathan Moore.

Post: Ambassador-at-Large and U.S. Coordinator for Refugee Affairs.

Nominated, January 16, 1986.

Contributions, amount, date, donee.

1. Self, Jonathan Moore, $250 "Richardson Salute" December 1984, Elliot L. Richardson fund-raising dinner, U.S. Senate nomination campaign.

2. Spouse, Katherine Andres Moore, none.

3. Children and Spouses, Joan, none; Jennifer, none [1]; Jocelyn, none; Charles, none [2]

---

[1] NOTE.—Jennifer Moore may have contributed a maximum of three donations to political candidates of no greater than $15.00 each during June-August 1983; her checkbook and stubs covering this period were stolen and never found.

[2] NOTE.—Charles Moore worked as full-time volunteer in Richardson-for-Senate campaign for 2 months June-August, 1984.

4. Parents, Mrs. A.N. Moore, $5.00 "Studds for Congress Committee"; Charles F. Moore, Jr. (deceased November 10, 1985).

5. Grandparents (all deceased prior to 1960).

6. Brothers and Spouses, Benjamin Moore (divorced; remarried), none; Barbara Moore, none.

7. Sisters and Spouses, Lydia Dupentuis (divorced), none; Deborah Geithner, none; Peter Geithner, none.

Robie Marcus Hooker Palmer, of Vermont, a Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service, Class of Minister-Counselor, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to Hungary.

Contributions are to be reported for the period beginning on the first day of the fourth calendar year preceding the calendar year of the nomination and ending on the date of the nomination.

Nominee: Robie M.H. Palmer.

Post: Ambassador, Hungary.

Contributions, amount, date, donee.

1. Self, none.
2. Spouse, none.
3. Children and spouses, none.
4. Parents, none.
5. Grandparents, N/A, deceased.
6. Brothers and spouses, N/A, none.
7. Sisters and spouses, none, Alex Palmer; Georgie and George Cheney.

(The above nominations were reported from the Committee on Foreign Relations with the recommendation that they be confirmed, subject to the nominees' commitment to respond to requests to appear and testify before any duly constituted committee of the Senate.)

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, for the Committee on Foreign Relations, I also report favorably two Foreign Service lists which appeared in their entirety in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 5, 1986, and, to save the expense of reprinting them on the Executive Calendar, I ask unanimous consent that they lie at the Secretary's desk for the information of Senators.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second time by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. NICKLES (for himself and Mr. BOREN):

S. 2601. A bill to amend the Trade Act of 1974 to make the oil and natural gas industry eligible for trade adjustment assistance; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. PRYOR (for himself, Mr., BUMPERS, Mr. BENTSEN, Mr. BAUCUS, and Mr. BURDICK):

S. 2602. A bill to provide for two additional members of the Physician Payment Review Commission; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. DOMENICI (for himself and Mr. GORE):

S. 2603. A bill to establish the National Clearinghouse for the Homeless; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

By Mr. HEINZ (for himself and Mr. GLENN):

S. 2604. A bill to amend the Social Security Act with respect to the standards for participation of skilled nursing facilities and intermediate care facilities under the Medicare and Medicaid programs, to amend the Older Americans Act of 1965 with respect to the ombudsman program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. SYMMS (for himself, Mr. ABDNOR, Mr. BOREN, Mr. HECHT, Mr. MATTINGLY, and Mr. NICKLES):

S. 2605. A bill to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to facilitate the use of economic support fund assistance for commodity import programs; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. EAGLETON:

S. 2606. A bill for the relief of Francis Aditola; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. DANFORTH:

S. 2607. A bill to extend the suspension of duties on certain small toys; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. GORE (for himself and Mr. MOYNIHAN):

S. 2608. A bill to prevent homelessness and to provide a comprehensive aid package for homeless individuals; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. DANFORTH (for himself, Mr. ABDNOR, Mr. ANDREWS, Mr. BOSCHWITZ, Mr. BUMPERS, Mr. DURENBERGER, Mr. EXON, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. KASTEN, Mr. MATTINGLY, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mr. NICKLES, Mr. PRESSLER, and Mr. PRYOR):

S. 2609. A bill to provide for the establishment of rural enterprise zones, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. LUGAR, from the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. 2610. An original bill to authorize supplemental economic and military assistance for the Philippines, and for other purposes; placed on the calendar.

By Mr. STEVENS:

S. 2611. A bill to improve efforts to monitor, assess, and reduce the adverse impacts of drift nets; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

By Mr. MATTINGLY (for himself and Mr. GARN):

S. 2612. A bill to amend the Export Administration Act of 1979 to authorize controls on exports, including the export of capital, from the United States, to countries supporting terrorism, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

By Mr. MOYNIHAN:

S. 2613. A bill to suspend for a 4-year period the duty on certain parts of indirect process electrostatic copying machines; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. CHAFEE (for himself, Mr. ROTH, and Mr. RUDMAN):

S. 2614. A bill to provide for parallel imports in order to continue to provide savings for U.S. consumers; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. GLENN:

S. 2615. A bill to suspend for 2 years the duty on 1-(3-Sulfopropyl) pyridinium hydroxide; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. GLENN:

S. 2616. A bill to amend the Tariff Schedules of the United States to extend suspension of duties on umbrella frames; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. RIEGLE:

S. 2617. A bill to establish within the Department of Agriculture an Office of Emergency Aid for Farm Families to provide grants to States for emergency services to farm families, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

By Mr. DANFORTH (for himself, Mr. MOYNIHAN, and Mr. EAGLETON):

S. 2618. A bill to amend the Tariff Schedules of the United States to change the classification of certain prefabricated bitumen roofing membranes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. PROXMIRE, Mr. MATSUNAGA, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. ZORINSKY, and Mr. CHILES):

S. 2619. A bill to increase Government economy and improve efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control regarding improved collection of tax revenue and enforcement of the internal revenue laws, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. DECONCINI (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. ROTH, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. NUNN, Mr. HELMS, Mr. PROXMIRE, Mr. CHILES, Mr. GOLDWATER, Mr. WILSON, and Mr. ZORINSKY):

S. 2620. A bill to improve the Government's debt collection and credit management practices, to implement certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

By Mr. HUMPHREY (for himself, Mr. ROTH, Mr. SYMMS, Mr. WILSON, Mr. ZORINSKY, and Mr. MCCLURE):

S. 2621. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control relating to reduced Government competition with the private sector to provide goods and services; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. WILSON, and Mr. MCCLURE):

S. 2622. A bill to amend the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the Poultry Products Inspection Act, and the Egg Products Inspection Act to increase economy and efficiency in the Federal Government and to reduce the Federal budget deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control concerning the examination and inspection of meat, poultry, and egg products processing operations, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. HELMS, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. GOLDWATER, Mr. WILSON, Mr. ZORINSKY, and Mr. CHILES):

S. 2623. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control regarding the improvement of executive agency mail management, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. PROXMIRE, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. ZORINSKY, and Mr. CHILES):

S. 2624. A bill to increase Government economy and improve efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control relating to the consolidation of certain Department of Defense operations; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. GOLDWATER, Mr. WILSON, and Mr. ZORINSKY):

S. 2625. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the budget deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control regarding improvements to Medicare auditing, medical review and administration, and Medicaid quality control, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. HELMS, Mr. EAST, Mr. ZORINSKY, Mr. SYMMS, and Mr. MCCLURE):

S. 2626. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control regarding the consolidation of border management and the revision of overtime laws for inspectors, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. ZORINSKY, Mr. WILSON, and Mr. CHILES):

S. 2627. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing a recommendation of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control relating to the sharing of Veterans' Administration and Department of Defense health care resources; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. HELMS, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. GOLDWATER, Mr. EAST, Mr. WILSON, Mr. ZORINSKY, Mr. SYMMS, Mr. CHILES, and Mr. MCCLURE):

S. 2628. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control to aid in verification of housing eligibility, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. PROXMIRE, Mr. MATSUNAGA, Mr. MATTINGLY, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. ZORINSKY, and Mr. CHILES):

S. 2629. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control relating to improved coordination between Department of Defense research facilities; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. PROXMIRE, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. ZORINSKY, and Mr. CHILES):

S. 2630. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control to strengthen the auditing of Department of Defense transportation bills, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. PROXMIRE, Mr. MATSUNAGA, Mr. ZORINSKY, and Mr. CHILES):

S. 2631. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control relating to reimbursements of the Department of Defense for the use of Defense Industrial Reserve property by Federal Government agencies; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. DECONCINI, Mr. WILSON, Mr. ZORINSKY, Mr. CHILES, and Mr. MCCLURE):

S. 2632. A bill to increase Government economy and efficiency and to reduce the deficit by implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control regarding the increased use of paralegals by the Department of Justice, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. HUMPHREY, and Mr. WILSON):

S. 2633. A bill to amend the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 to increase economy and efficiency in the Federal Government and to reduce the Federal budget deficit implementing certain recommendations of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control concerning rural electrification credit assistance, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

By Mr. BYRD:

S. 2634. A bill for the relief of John H. Wolff; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MCCLURE (for himself and Mr. SYMMS):

S. 2635. A bill to protect the integrity and quality of certain reaches of the Henry's Fork of the Snake River, ID, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

By Mrs. KASSEBAUM:

S. 2636. A bill to prohibit loans to, other investments in, and certain other activities with respect to, South Africa, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. LONG:

S. 2637. A bill relating to the application of the drawback provisions of section 313 of the Tariff Act of 1930 to certain imports of cane sugar; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. DECONCINI:

S.J. Res. 370. A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States regarding judges appointed pursuant to article III; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DECONCINI (for himself, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. PELL, Mr. EXON, Mr. METZENBAUM, Mr. SYMMS, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mr. D'AMATO, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. HEINZ, Mr. LONG, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. HATCH, Mr. KERRY, Mr. DODD, Mr. RIEGLE, Mr. WILSON, and Mr. DOLE):

S.J. Res. 371. A joint resolution to designate August 1, 1986, as "Helsinki Human Rights Day"; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (or acted upon), as indicated:

By Mr. MOYNIHAN:

S. Res. 435. A resolution to recognize Mr. Eugene Lang for his contributions to the education and the lives of disadvantaged young people; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. KERRY:

S. Res. 436. A resolution expressing the sense of the Senate regarding the establishment of an international trade and financing development program; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. DECONCINI:

S. Res. 437. A resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that the Government of Mexico should open its one-party system to greater democratic freedoms in the upcoming election; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. BYRD (for himself and Mr. DOLE):

S. Res. 438. A resolution directing the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration to study the Senate rules and precedents applicable to impeachment trials; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

S. Res. 439. A resolution to authorize the reprinting of Senate Document 93-102, 93d Congress, 2d session; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

S. Res. 440. A resolution expressing appreciation to Ms. Jeanie Bowles; considered and agreed to.

S. Res. 441. A resolution to modify the provisions of S. Res. 28, relating to television in the Senate, to continue television coverage of the Senate until such time as the Senate votes on the question of continuing such coverage; ordered held at the desk by unanimous consent.

By Mr. SIMON (for himself, Mr. DIXON, Mr. D'AMATO, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KERRY, Mr. WILSON, Mr. DURENBERGER, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. ARMSTRONG, Mr. HART, Mrs. HAWKINS, Mr. SASSER, Mr. MITCHELL, Mr. NUNN, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. CRANSTON, Mr. GORE, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. MATTINGLY, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. BOSCHWITZ, Mr. HATCH, Mr. ZORINSKY, Mr. EVANS, Mr. PRYOR, and Mrs. KASSEBAUM):

S. Con. Res. 153. A concurrent resolution to express the sense of the Congress that a moment of silence be held during the official ceremonies for the Statue of Liberty, for the return of the American captives in Lebanon; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. D'AMATO (for himself and Mr. DECONCINI):

S. Con. Res. 154. A concurrent resolution concerning the Soviet Union's persecution of members of the Ukrainian and other public Helsinki Monitoring Groups; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

STATEMENT ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION

By Mr. NICKLES (for himself and Mr. BOREN):

S. 2601. A bill to amend the Trade Act of 1974 to make the oil and natural gas industry eligible for trade adjustment assistance; to the Committee on Finance.

OIL AND GAS WORKERS EQUITY ACT

● Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I am today introducing the Oil and Gas Workers Equity Act of 1986. This legislation will correct an inequitable situation by making all oil, gas, and service industry workers eligible for the Trade Adjustment Assistance Program benefits under the Trade Act of 1974. This will put oil and gas workers on a par with the workers in other industries who are adversely affected by imports.

As you know, excess production capacity by the Government of Saudi Arabia, the so-called swing producer of OPEC, doubled that Government's production to over 4.5 million barrels per day. The stated purpose of such production is to increase the Saudi market share by creating a petroleum surplus in the market in order to lower prices and drive other production out of business.

As U.S. imports of crude and refined products have risen, American oil and gas exploration and production have declined precipitously leaving thousands of workers unemployed and threatening our energy security. An example of the devastating influence these imports have had on the industry is evidence by the fact that the national rotary rig count, one of the major indices of industry health, has dropped from a high of 4,530 in 1981 to a low of 720 today. In fact, we had more rigs in operation in Oklahoma alone 4 years ago than are operating in the entire United States today! The Oklahoma rig count has dropped from almost 900 to about 100 rigs today.

As you might expect, this drop in activity has had a devastating effect on employment in the industry. In Oklahoma alone, it is estimated that more than 60,000 energy industry and related jobs have been lost in the last few years, with 5,600 lost in the first 3 months of this year. Unemployment is over 20 percent in some counties and the unemployed number more than 120,000 in our State.

Most of these workers are unemployed because of the intentional efforts of those in the Middle East cartel. OPEC is using predatory pricing to flood the market with petroleum, undercut U.S. prices, and recapture the Arab market share. We believe that fairness dictates that these oil and gas workers be treated just the same as any other worker who losses his or her employment due to imports.

Mr. President, the bill we are introducing today amends the Trade Act of 1974 to clarify that when duly certified under section 222 of the act, workers from oil, gas, and oil service firms are eligible to apply for adjustment assistance. Under this provision, oil and gas workers are eligible to apply for benefits when a significant number or proportion of workers have lost their jobs or have had their jobs threatened and the sales of their companies have decreased absolutely due to price declines or imports.

The bill also amends section 251(c) of the act of provide that oil and gas firms which have a significant number of their workers and sales affected by imports or a decline in prices are also eligible for adjustment assistance. The amendments made by the act shall apply to petitions for certification that are pending on, or filed on or after the date of enactment of this act.

Mr. President, you will recall that the Senate has twice approved the concepts embodied in this bill. In addition to approving the extension of the term of the Trade Assistance Program in general, in the budget resolution we passed a specific resolution urging that the inequities in interpretation of the act for oil and gas workers be remedied. Later, we amended the urgent supplemental appropriations bill to provide for oil and gas worker benefits. Unfortunately, that provision was stripped from the bill by Members of the other body.

Mr. President, we submit that this bill is needed to combat the effect of oil imports attributable to other governments. The bill is essential to promote adjustment to trade competition. Its tightly crafted provisions will equalize the treatment of oil and gas workers. This legislation is desperately needed by the citizens of Oklahoma and the other oil and gas producing States. I urge you to adopt this provision.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2601

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Oil and Gas Workers Equity Act of 1986".

SEC. 2. (a) Section 222 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2272) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 222. GROUP ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS.

"(a) The Secretary shall certify a group of workers (including workers in any agricultural firm or subdivision of an agricultural firm) as eligible to apply for adjustment assistance under this chapter if the Secretary determines that—

"(1) a significant number or proportion of the workers in such workers' firm, or an appropriate subdivision of the firm, have become totally or partially separated, or are threatened to become totally or partially separated,

"(2) sales or production, or both, of such firm or subdivision have decreased absolutely, and

"(3) increases of imports of articles like, or competitive with, articles which are produced by such workers' firm, or appropriate subdivision thereof, contributed importantly to such total or partial separation, or threat thereof, and to such decline in sales or production.

"(b) For purposes of this section—

"(1) The term 'contributed importantly' means a cause which is important but not necessarily more important than any other cause.

"(2) Natural gas shall be considered to be competitive with crude oil and refined petroleum products.

"(3) Any firm, or subdivision of a firm, which—

"(A) engages in the exploration for oil or natural gas,

"(B) produces or extracts oil or natural gas,

"(C) processes or refines oil or natural gas, or

"(D) provides essential parts, or essential services, to another firm that conducts activities described in any of the preceding subparagraphs and such parts or services are uniquely suited to such activities, shall be considered to be a firm producing such oil or natural gas and producing the processed or refined products of such oil or natural gas.

"(4) The requirements of subsection (a)(3) shall not apply in the case of workers of a firm, or subdivision of a firm, that produces oil or natural gas, or any processed or refined product of oil or natural gas, if a decline in the average world price of crude oil or natural gas contributed importantly to—

"(A) the total or partial separation, or threat thereof, described in subsection (a)(1), and

"(B) the decline in sales or production described in subsection (a)(2).".

(b) Subsection (c) of section 251 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2341(c)) is amended to read as follows:

"(c)(1) The Secretary shall certify a firm (including any agricultural firm) as eligible to apply for adjustment assistance under this chapter if the Secretary determines that—

"(A) a significant number or proportion of the workers in such firm have become totally or partially separated, or are threatened to become totally or partially separated,

"(B) sales or production, or both, of such firm have decreased absolutely, and

"(C) increases of imports of articles like, or competitive with, articles which are produced by such firm contributed importantly to such total or partial separation, or threat thereof, and to such decline in sales or production.

"(2) For purposes of this subseciton—

"(A) The term 'contributed importantly' means a cause which is important but not necessarily more important than any other cause.

"(B) Natural gas shall be considered to be competitive with crude oil and refined petroleum products.

"(C) Any firm which—

"(i) engages in the exploration for oil or natural gas,

"(ii) produces or extracts oil or natural gas,

"(iii) processes or refines oil or natural gas, or

"(iv) provides essential parts, or essential services, to another firm that conducts activities described in any of the preceding clauses and such parts or services are uniquely suited to such activities.

shall be considered to be a firm producing such oil or natural gas and producing the processed or refined products of such oil or natural gas.

"(D) The requirements of paragraph (1)(C) shall not apply in the case of a firm that produces oil or natural gas, or any processed or refined product of oil and natural gas, if a decline in the average world price of crude oil or natural gas contributed importantly to—

"(i) the total or partial separation, or threat thereof, described in paragraph (1)(A), and

"(ii) the decline in sales or production described in paragraph (1)(B).".

SEC. 3. The amendments made by this Act shall apply to petitions for certification that are pending on, or filed on or after, the date of enactment of this Act.●

By Mr. PRYOR (for himself, Mr. BUMPERS, Mr. BENTSEN, Mr. BAUCUS, and Mr. BURDICK):

S. 2602. A bill to provide for two additional members of the Physician Payment Review Commission; to the Committee on Finance.

ADDITIONAL MEMBERS OF THE PHYSICIAN PAYMENT REVIEW COMMISSION

● Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation on behalf of myself, Senator BUMPERS, Senator BENTSEN, Senator BAUCUS and Senator BURDICK to expand the membership of the Physician Payment Review Commissions.

As my colleagues will recall, the recently enacted Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 mandated the establishment of this Commission. Pursuant to that law, the Commission is to make recommendations to the Congress by March 1 of each year regarding adjustments to the reasonable charge levels for certain physicians' services, as well as changes in the methods for determining the rates of payment for such services. The Commission is also empowered to collect and assess information on medical and surgical procedures and services and to advise the Health and Human Services Secretary on the development of a relative value scale for physician payment.

To appreciate the purpose of the legislation being introduced today it must be viewed in the context of what has come to be known as the crisis in rural America. We cannot talk about the plight of the farmer or the threatened collapse of America's rural economy without also recognizing the difficulties and challenges confronting our entire system of health care in rural America. Access to affordable, appropriate health care in rural areas has been a continuing problem which has only been exacerbated by inequitable payment policies. In addition, fully one-quarter of our Nation elderly reside in these small, rural communities, and that number is rising steadily.

Mr. President, this new Commission promises to play a critical role in one important aspect of our health care system—that part which pertains to practicing physicians. The Commission's work will hold particular relevance for physicians practicing in rural areas because, traditionally, these individuals have been underpaid for their services. These historical imbalances in the physician payment mechanism have reduced incentives for physicians to practice in rural areas, and every effort must be made to rectify these policies.

On June 11, 1986, the Office of Technology Assessment announced the names of the 11 individuals which had been chosen as members of the new Physician Payment Review Commission. Unfortunately, not one of the 11 individuals chosen was a representative of rural America. A number of my colleagues in the Senate were greatly concerned, and it is now my understanding that OTA has agreed to appoint a commissioner-designate to represent rural America. This individual would be a nonvoting member of the Commission, but would be in line to assume the first opening on the Commission—which is expected in May of 1987).

Although OTA has made a good-faith effort to respond to the concerns of my colleagues, I believe it is essential that the Congress, the Secretary of HHS, and the Commission itself should have the benefit of full input from rural America throughout deliberations on this important health care matter. For this reason, I am introducing which would expand the Physician Payment Review Commission by two members—from 11 to 13—with the intention that one of the new slots would be filled by a rural primary care physician.

As I see it, this is the only way of assuring that the deliberations of the Commission will adequately reflect the concerns and problems encountered by rural Americans. I urge my colleagues to join me in this effort.●

● Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my colleague from Arkansas [Mr. PRYOR] in introducing legislation to provide for two additional members on the Physician Payment Review Commission.

This fall, the Physician Payment Review Commission [PhysPrc] will begin an important study on ways to reform Medicare payments for physicians' services. I expect that the work of the Commission will guide Medicare policy for many years to come.

So, it is very important that the Commission has diverse membership. It is important that the Commission represents a full range of opinions and expertise as it prepares reports to Congress and to the Secretary of Health and Human Services on changes in the reimbursement for physician services.

I am particularly concerned that the Commission is sensitive to the problems that rural America faces in preserving quality health care. Wide payment differences exist between rural and urban physicians. And there are often wide disparities in the amounts paid to physicians with different specialties providing the same services. These differences have contributed to the difficulties that many small rural communities face in attracting and retaining qualified medical professionals.

Appointments to the Commission are the responsibility of the Director of the Office of Technology Assessment [OTA]. I have discussed the importance of having a rural representative on PhysPrc with the Director of OTA, Dr. John Gibbons, and with the newly designated Chairman of PhysPrc, Dr. Phil Lee. And I know that they strongly agree that a rural perspective is needed on the panel.

In response to the concerns expressed by the entire Senate Rural Health Caucus, the Director of OTA has made a commitment to appoint a rural physician to PhysPrc as a Commissioner-designate prior to the panel's first meeting this fall. The Commissioner-designate will then take his place on the panel as a full voting member at the first available opportunity.

This arrangement will help to make sure that a rural voice is heard from the start when the Commission begins its work. The Director of OTA has worked closely with all of us who are concerned about improving rural health care. And his responsiveness to our concerns gives me confidence that PhysPrc will start out on the right foot.

The main purpose for the legislation we are introducing today is to establish a permanent seat for a rural representative on the Commission so that any questions about constraints on the appointment authority of the Director of OTA are removed. This legislation will also give the Director of OTA the flexibility that we believe he needs to structure a more balanced panel overall.

I commend the Senator from Arkansas for this legislation, which I believe will make the Commission better able to fulfill its mission.

Finally, I want to recognize the efforts of my distinguished colleague from Texas [Mr. BENTSEN], a cosponsor of this legislation and a strong advocate for improving the quality and access of health care for rural Americans.

The Senator from Texas has worked hard to ensure that the health care needs of rural Americans are no longer overlooked in the development of national health policy. And, I have been pleased to work with my colleague and with the entire Senate Rural Health Caucus to make sure that the interests of those who live in rural communities are properly represented on the Physician Payment Review Commission.

The Senate Finance Committee will soon be considering health legislation. And I look forward at that time to working with my colleagues on the committee as well as the 34 members of the Rural Health Caucus to guarantee that the health needs of 60 million rural Americans are fully represented throughout the deliberations of the

Physician Payment Review Commission.●

By Mr. DOMENICI (for himself and Mr. GORE):

S. 2603. A bill to establish the National Clearinghouse for the Homeless; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

NATIONAL CLEARINGHOUSE FOR THE HOMELESS ACT

● Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, today I most pleased to be joined by my most able colleague, Senator ALBERT GORE of Tennessee to introduce a bill to establish a National Clearinghouse for the Homeless. As a nation of great resources, we can do a better job of finding shelter and providing needed services for the homeless individuals and families of America. As Senator GORE and I become involved with the problem of homelessness in America, and particularly, the mentally ill homeless, it occurred to us that we are able to help match missing children with their parents. If we could focus our efforts in a similar way for the homeless then those who want to help can be more effective and those who need the help will benefit.

The more we learned about the efforts of Americans to help the homeless, the more we became convinced that the clearinghouse tool was missing from the toolbox of public and private efforts on behalf of the homeless people of America. We wondered how we might shape the missing tool so that all the other available tools would be more effective. This bill is the result of that thinking.

In November 1983, Secretary of Health and Human Services [HHS] Margaret M. Heckler announced the creation of a task force headed by the director of the Office of Community Services. This task force had representation from the U.S. Departments of Labor, Defense, Agriculture, Interior, Housing and Urban Development [HUD], Transportation; the General Services Administration, Federal Emergency Management Agency, Veterans' Administration, Action and the Postal Service to "ensure a united Federal effort" to help the homeless. Regional working groups were also established "under the auspices of the HHS regional directors in 10 cities from Boston to Seattle to expedite Federal help and integrate our effort with State, municipal, and private efforts."

On December 20, 1984, Secretary Heckler announced another initiative. "To better focus our efforts," she said, "I am strengthening the Federal Interagency Task Force on Food and Shelter for the Homeless that I established last year." She appointed Under Secretary Charles Baker to oversee the work of the task force and the regional offices. The Secretary charged the chairman of the task force, Dr. Harvey Vieth of the Office of Community Services, "with developing general policy on the homeless and identifying usable resources within HHS" and coordinating with "private sector, philanthropic organizations, as well as appropriate trade associations, to share information and develop partnerships to aid the homeless."

By this time, there had been 10 interagency agreements made to coordinate services for the homeless. The major innovations were: First, the leasing of vacant Federal facilities to shelter projects; second, donation of surplus property to food banks and shelter projects; third, the leasing of HUD-held single-family homes to mayors or local organizations that support homeless projects; fourth, the linking of Department of Defense [DOD] commissaries with HHS-approved food banks to make use of DOD nonmarketable surplus foodstuffs; fifth, the leasing of Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) single-family homes as shelters; and sixth, and agreement with the Department of Energy [DOE] to make shelters for the homeless eligible for weatherization grants.

This bill, Mr. President, builds upon the experience of the Federal Interagency Task Force on the Homeless. Our intent is to continue to improve Federal responsiveness; further encourage private donations; improve our knowledge about the plight of the homeless; use this new knowledge to better serve the needs and attack the causes of homelessness; improve our ability to blend Federal, State, local, and private resources; and provide easy access to the complicated system of support.

While the HHS Task Force on the Homeless has become a center of information and coordinated assistance, much remains to be done to improve available services. This bill adds several ingredients to make some necessary improvements. We propose first, the addition of a toll-free national hotline for the homeless; second, an advisory council to guide the clearinghouse functions; third, a national incidence study to help us understand the full scope of the problem and address its root causes; fourth, annual reports to the Congress on outstanding unmet needs and recommendations for action to help the homeless; fifth, better training of shelter workers to handle mental illness symptoms, alcohol and drug abuse, and special health problems; sixth, a computerized system to improve referrals and to match resources with needs; seventh, a more active effort to tap private resources; eighth, exploration of innovative ways to finance shared apartments and housing to bring shelter to those who are more able to live independently; and ninth, an authorization of $20 million per year for the first 3 years to implement these changes and additional activities.

The mental illness factor is a special focus of the clearinghouse. Among studies that determine causes of home lessness, a consistent finding is that the so-called deinstitutionalization of mentally ill persons has played a clear role in the increase of homelessness among those mentally ill persons who did not find support from community-based activities. Deinstitutionalization came about as a result of new court rulings on "involuntary commitment rules," new psychotropic drug therapies that encouraged more outpatient treatment, and the promise of successful treatment in community based mental health centers.

The General Accounting Office [GAO] report, April 9, 1985, says that between "1955 and 1980, the population of State mental institutions decreased by more than 75 percent, from 559,000 to 138,000. * * * Starting in 1963 (the President Kennedy Plan), a system of federally supported community mental health centers was initiated to serve the mentally ill, including those being deinstitutionalized. However, less than 800 of the originally estimated 2,000 community mental health centers needed to provide community care were established."

The new clearinghouse would clearly have the responsibility of determining the validity of such as an estimate and recommending proper action to alleviate the conditions brought about by deinstitutionalization. Similar responsibilities would be applicable to the other commonly cited causes of homeless—unemployment, personal crises, reductions in public assistance, declining supplies of housing for low-income people, and alcohol and drug abuse problems.

To meet our goal of improved coordination of existing services, Mr. President, it will be important for the National Clearinghouse for the Homeless to monitor the actual application of Federal resources from existing programs. We would expect the clearinghouse to improve the targeting of available resources and to promulgate rules changes to simplify this task. The fact that we cannot now give solid estimates of Federal participation of programs for the homeless indicates the necessity of better monitoring and better information for the administration and the Congress.

In closing, we would like to mention a few attributes of the National Clearinghouse for the Homeless that we believe are essential if we are to do a better job of mobilizing our national resources to help the homeless. First of all, we establish an advisory council of 18 members, 12 appointed by the President and 6 appointed by the Congress—3 each from the Senate and the House of Representatives. This council elevates the visibility of homelessness at the Federal level. It also provides for an independent assessment of Federal efforts to help the homeless.

Next, the clearinghouse would establish a national computerized data base with the capacity to match private contributions to shelters and other programs of assistance to the homeless. Third, we would establish a national toll-free telephone line to provide individual referrals to shelters, to serve as an initial contact point for groups to learn of the resources available to them—including the experiences of other shelter operators—and to provide a national central point of contact for individual and group contributions for the homeless.

The National Clearinghouse would also become a center of national efforts to improve the ability of shelter workers to identify and effectively handle mental health, alcohol abuse, drug abuse, and other health problems. Finally, I would like to stress the new informational responsibilities of the clearinghouse. For the first time, we will, as a nation, have better information about the problem of homelessness and the efforts to alleviate the problem. This will be an important planning tool for the Congress, State legislatures, and local city councils.

The National Clearinghouse for the Homeless would not be the provider of food stamps, temporary shelter, or counseling and health services. The clearinghouse would function as the overseer of the many Federal efforts for the homeless. It would encourage more private participation by demonstrating that private donations and gifts would be used for direct services and needs. It would elevate the participation of the Federal Government by accepting responsibility for being the visible contact point for those who want to help and for those who need the help.

Mr. President, I suspect that we have a lot to learn about ways to help the homeless and to provide avenues of recovery and assistance for those who are beyond helping themselves. The potential of our many existing Federal programs is great. I would like my colleagues to see the wide array of potential assistance, and for this reason I am attaching two key background documents for the RECORD. The first is Secretary Margaret M. Heckler's memorandum of December 20, 1984, to strengthen the task force; the second is a draft memorandum from the Federal Task Force on the Homeless to the Homeless Provider Community dated April 1986, summarizing the Federal programs available to help the homeless, and I ask unanimous consent that they be printed in the RECORD.

We encourage our colleagues to review this material. We hope that careful thought about the benefits of doing a better job with our existing resources and the potential for improved coordination will lead to support for the clearinghouse concept. The National Clearinghouse for the Homeless goes beyond the current efforts of our Federal Government in the many important ways I have described to help the homeless people of America.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES,
Washington, DC, December 20, 1984.

Memorandum for: Charles D. Baker, Under Secretary; Dixon Arnett, Deputy Under Secretary for Intergovernmental Affairs; Harvey Vieth, Chairman, Federal Task Force on the Homeless; Assistant Secretaries; StaffDiv, OpDiv.

Subject: HHS Actions to Help the Homeless.

My commitment to help feed and shelter the homeless remains strong. The need is still there and our efforts must increase.

Several HHS programs can and are being used to help the homeless. By providing them with necessary support services, such as medical care or alcohol and drug abuse assistance, we are attacking the underlying causes of homelessness. I believe we can do even more with our existing resources, and I am asking your help in accomplishing this. Existing resources, adequately targeted towards the needs of the homeless, can help alleviate the problems facing this fragile group.

To better focus our efforts, I am strengthening the Federal Interagency Task Force on Food and Shelter for the Homeless that I established last year. Attached is a paper discussing the problem of homelessness, summarizing the Task Force's accomplishments during the past year, redefining the role of the Task Force, and laying out its agenda for the coming year.

Under Secretary Charles Baker will oversee the work of the Task Force and the regional offices.

The Chairman of the Task Force, Dr. Harvey Vieth, is charged with developing general policy on the homeless and identifying useable resources within HHS, as well as maintaining liaison and coordinating with the other federal agencies who are members of the Task Force. He will also coordinate with private sector, national philanthropic organizations, as well as appropriate trade associations, to share information and develop partnerships to aid the homeless.

Dixon Arnett, Deputy Under Secretary for Intergovernmental Affairs, will work closely with Dr. Vieth to ensure that the Department's policies are implemented by the regional offices. The regional offices will be the day-to-day coordinator of HHS activities on behalf of the homeless and will deal directly with shelter and food bank operators and local government.

I cannot impress upon you enough my commitment to use HHS's resources to help the homeless. Please give the Task Force any help they request. The Task Force telephone number is 254-6004.

MARGARET M. HECKLER,
Secretary.

THE FEDERAL TASK FORCE ON THE HOMELESS

INTRODUCTION

In October 1983, Margaret M. Heckler, Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) met with the National Citizens' Committee for Food and Shelter, a private organization which encourages public and private cooperation to obtain housing and food for the homeless. At the meeting, the Secretary offered to take the lead in coordinating a federal effort to work with the Citizens' Committee and on October 31, 1983, she announced the creation of the Federal Task Force on Food and Shelter for the Homeless.

The Task Force, unique as the first interagency unit dealing with the homeless to be established by a departmental initiative rather than by statute, is chaired by HHS and includes representatives from thirteen other federal agencies: the Departments of Agriculture, Defense, Energy, Interior, Labor, Housing and Urban Development, and Transportation, as well as the General Services Administration, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, ACTION, the Census Bureau, the Veterans Administration and the postal Service. The Task Force is supported by a small central staff at HHS headquarters and by HHS regional staff assigned by Regional Directors to deal with the problems of the homeless.

The purpose of this paper is to (1) briefly review the activities and accomplishments of the Task Force during the first year of its existence, (2) redefine the role of the Task Force and (3) outline an agenda for the Task Force's support staff at HHS headquarters and in the HHS regional offices. Before doing this, however, it might be useful to describe once more both the problem that gave rise to the Task Force—the problem of homelessness—and the response to this problem on the part of federal, state and local agencies and the private sector.

WHAT IS A HOMELESS PERSON?

A homeless person is someone who lacks the financial resources or community ties needed to provide for his or her own adequate shelter. Homeless persons live in public and private emergency shelters, in the streets, under bridges, in subways, bus terminals, airports, railroad stations, parks and abandoned buildings or in temporary voucher hotels, motels or apartments, or in jails or hospitals which they enter with the underlying purpose of seeking shelter.

HOW MANY HOMELESS ARE THERE?

No one has done a thorough census of the homeless population in the United States. In the absence of one, some advocates for the homeless have claimed that the national total is as high as two million persons and this estimate has achieved fairly wide currency. In May 1984, Secretary Samuel R. Pierce, Jr., of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), released a systematic national study of those homeless on any one night, which concluded that "as best as can be determined from all available data, the most reliable range is 250,000 total number of people, nationally, who were homeless on an average night in December 1983 or January 1984." This number includes both the chronically homeless and those who are temporarily without shelter. Because of the large turnover among the temporarily homeless, the cumulative annual count could well range between two and three times the daily total.

Some commentators have dismissed the argument over numbers as pointless since even the HUD report's lower figure indicates there is a serious problem, given the fact that only one-fourth to one-third of the homeless population can be accommodated in existing shelters. As Philadelphia Mayor

William Goode put it: "Let's not waste our time arguing numbers."

WHO ARE THE HOMELESS?

Studies indicate that around 66% of the homeless are single men, 13% single women and 21% family members. Looked at from another perspective, the homeless generally fall into three categories: people who have suffered recent economic setbacks or eviction, people who have experienced severe, personal crises and people who are chronically disabled by mental illness and/or alcohol and drug abuse (estimated to be from one-half to two-thirds of the homeless population).

In respect to the first group, the so-called "new homeless", the problem is diminishing as a result of the continuing economic recovery which has already created 6.5 million new jobs. The personal crises that are responsible for the second group of homeless—divorce, domestic violence, release from a jail or hospital with no place to go, being stranded while traveling etc.—are usually temporary in nature, and a large turnover is common among this group.

It is the third group—the chronically mentally ill and the substance abusers—who are not only the most numerous among the homeless, but the most difficult to help. Through the mid-60's, most of the homeless were the so-called skid row alcoholics. After the passage of the 1963 Community Mental Health Centers Act, large numbers of mentally ill persons were released from, or ceased being admitted to, state mental institutions. Nationally, the number in mental hospitals declined from 505,000 in 1963 to 125,000 in 1981 and this resulted in a significant increase in the homeless population. A growing number of States are moving to remedy this situation by providing more money for community-based mental health centers.

Another factor which exacerbated the problems of the homeless was "gentrification"—the rehabilitation of downtown housing for new affluent purchasers and the demolition of low-cost residential hotels and boarding houses in urban renewal projects. The result was a decline in the supply of single room occupancy (SRO) units lived in by low-income persons.

HOW ARE THE HOMELESS NOW BEING HELPED?

The vast majority of the efforts to assist the homeless are being undertaken by the private sector, including businesses, local non-profit groups, churches and synagogues, and other voluntary organizations. For example, 54 percent of shelters are operated by non-religious private groups, 40 percent by religious groups, and 6 percent by city and county governments. A variety of private sources provided 63 percent (or $138 million) of the 1983 operating expenses for all shelters. In addition, an average of four volunteer staff hours per bed per night was donated to shelters.

In the area of food assistance, in 1983, of the 300-odd food banks in the United States, the 79 which belong to the Second Harvest network distributed to organizations serving the poor some 118 million pounds of food donated by the food industry and other private givers. The dollar value of this food was estimated to be $197 million. Forty percent of this amount (or $78 million worth of food) went to soup kitchens and congregate feeding sites patronized by many homeless persons. In addition under an agreement negotiated by the Task Force, some twenty food banks received around 500,000 pounds of surplus food from vendors serving military commissaries.

Local governments also play a major role in the provision of food, shelter and other services for the homeless. According to the HUD report, about 80 percent of local governments (cities and counties) do at least one of the following: operate shelters; give money to private groups to operate shelters or other services; lease or rehabilitate buildings for private shelter providers; and furnish vouchers to homeless persons for use in hotels, motels and apartments.

States have provided services mostly by "passing through" to local goxernments monies from federal sources such as the Federal Emergency Management Agency, HHS (through the Community Services and Social Services Block Grants), and HUD (through the Community Development Grant). Recently, a few States (Maryland, New Jersey, California, Massachusetts and New York) appropriated substantial sums to provide either social services or shelter for the homeless. For example, New York has committed $21 million for construction during FY 1985. In addition, a commission appointed by Governor Cuomo has just recommended allocating $330 million in additional state funds over the next five to eight years for community-based services for the mentally ill. The commission also urged establishment of a system of financing to assure that mental health funds "follow the patient" from the institutions, with each local agency being held accountable for care in its area. Due to the economic upturn, the majority of states are registering a sizeable surplus in state revenues, making it likely that more state funds will be available in the future to help the homeless.

With respect to the Federal Government, there is a mistaken perception on the part of some advocates for the homeless that the Federal Government's assistance has been limited to the $210 million for emergency food and shelter distributed during the past two years by the Federal Emergency Management Agency. In point of fact, the Federal Government has applied many millions of additional dollars to the problems of the homeless, through such programs as USDA's Emergency Feeding Programs ($1 billion in surplus commodities since 1982. $50 million a year to help pay for the cost of distributing excess foods and $75 million to emergency feeding stations), HUD's Community Development Block Grant ($34 million in FY 1983), HHS's Community Services Block Grant ($62 million in FY 1983 for emergency food and shelter), HHS' Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Block Grant ($1.3 million for research grants in FY 1984) and HHS' Program for Runaway and Homeless Youth ($23 million in FY 1984). In the case of the Community Development and Community Services Block Grants, the amounts were not earmarked by Congress but were set by the states administrating the block grants. Other block grants which can be utilized by state and local governments for assistance to the homeless include the Preventive Health and Health Services Block Grant, the Social Services Block Grant and the Primary Care Block Grant (also known as Community Health Center Program). It is the prerogative of the states and municipalities to set priorities and determine the percent of these resources that will be directed to the homeless.

In addition, there is a wide range of Federal entitlement programs from which about 20-35% of the homeless are deriving some help. These include Medicaid, Medicare, Food Stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Social Security Disability Insurance, Supplemental Security Income and Veterans Cash and Medical Benefits (The total dollars received by the homeless under these programs is not known).

Finally, there is the contribution which has been made during the past year by Federal Task Force on Food and Shelter for the Homeless. The accomplishments of the Task Force to date include ten agreements with federal agencies to support local food and shelter projects. These major sharing agreements consist of the following:

1. An agreement with General Services Administration (GSA) to make vacant Federal facilities, not targeted for other immediate disposition, available for lease to shelter and shelter-related projects. An example of this was the transfer of a vacant federal building at Second and D Streets, NW, to the District of Columbia Government for use as a shelter for 800 homeless people.

2. Another agreement with GSA to donate surplus property to food banks and shelter projects. Food banks and shelter operators can now apply through county or city governments to State Property Offices to requisition surplus property, such as refrigerators, medical equipment, heaters, kitchen supplies, furniture and clothing. To date, approximately 400 community-based providers across the country have requested information from the Task Force on how to gain access to this property.

3. An agreement with the Department of Defense to renovate and lease appropriate facilities to homeless shelter projects at the lowest possible coat. Six such shelters are currently in use, and several others in the final stages of negotiation. Secretary Weinberger has just reiterated, in a strongly worded memorandum to all military commanders, his commitment to providing more unused military facilities to organizations serving the homeless.

4. An agreement with the Department of Housing and Urban Development that authorizes HUD Regional Administrators to lease single-family homes in HUD-held inventory to mayors and/or local organizations that support homeless projects. Under this agreement a model project is operating in Memphis, Tennessee, which uses 10 HUD's single-family units to provide interim housing at $1.00 a year to homeless families. The local provider is the Metropolitan Interfaith Association. Several days ago, Secretary Pierce directed his staff to take administrative action to expand the use of single-family acquired properties as emergency family shelters, through intensified publicity and outreach efforts by HUD's regional officials. In the same memorandum, the Secretary ordered the following additional steps to be taken: (1) encourage the preservation of single-room occupancy (SRO) housing through use of several Section 8 programs; (2) provide priority for admission to assisted housing for those who are, or are about to be, homeless, including battered spouses; (3) expand the use of small, vacant Public Housing Authority units by homeless persons and (4) encourage greater use of Community Development Block Grant funds for rehabilitating shelters and providing shelter services.

5. An agreement with the National Guard to make armory facilities or manpower services available to local food bank and shelter operators.

6. An agreement with the Department of Defense under which food banks are linked through HHS with military commissaries and may obtain nonmarketable, surplus foodstuffs through commisary vendors. To date, approximately 120 food banks have been linked with approximately 190 Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps installations. DoD commissaries, like other supermarkets, at times have food that they cannot sell, but that is still edible. This program is designed to get that food to people who will eat it rather than let it go to waste. HHS' ten Regional Directors are responsible for overseeing the day-to-day workings of the agreement.

7. An agreement with the Department of Transportation for Coast Guard commissaries to make nonmarketable surplus foodstuffs available to food banks.

8. A further agreement with DoD to make warehouse space on military bases available, where appropriate, to food banks for the storage of food.

9. An agreement with the Department of Agriculture that authorizes Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) county supervisors to lease single-family homes to community non-profit organizations for use as shelters. FmHA initially will establish pilot projects in four states.

10. An agreement with the Department of Energy to make shelters for the homeless eligible for DOE grants for weatherization of dwelling units.

In addition, the Task Force conducted a workshop for operators of 30 successful soup kitchens and shelters around the country, and based on this, has just published a "how-to-do-it" guide summarizing various model programs. The guide, the first of its kind to be produced under federal auspices, will be distributed to interested states, localities, institutions and local organizations serving the homeless.

WHAT IS THE FUTURE ROLE OF THE TASK FORCE?

The original charter of the Task Force was based on the following assumptions:

1. Homelessness is essentially a local problem. The problem originates at the community level and the focus of efforts to resolve it must be at this same level. The needs of the homeless are best assessed at the local level and it is only there that the appropriate support and assistance can be pulled together and delivered creatively and with caring. More and more communities are beginning to realize this and are taking the lead by organizing partnerships between businesses, churches, private individuals, care providers and state and local service agencies to establish shelter and rehabilitation facilities for the homeless.

2. New federal programs for the homeless are not the answer. There is a considerable array of existing resources at the federal level which have not yet been fully utilized. These resources include benefit programs for which the homeless are eligible and surplus building space, supplies, equipment and foodstuffs, etc. There are also more resources at the state and local level which can be applied to the problems of the homeless, thanks to budget surpluses generated by the economic upturn.

3. Knowledge of strategies used in many communities to help the homeless needs to be transferred to other communities. The various kinds of things that need to be done to meet the needs of the different categories of homeless persons are all being done now somewhere in the country; what is needed is a systematic effort to document and disseminate what is happening, so that other communities can benefit from this knowledge.

In the light of these assumptions, the role of the Task Force can be summed up as follows:

1. Identifying potential resources controlled by federal agencies.

2. Cutting red tape and helping to remove impediments so that these resources can be more effectively targeted to the homeless.

3. Acting in general as a facilitator or broker between local governments and shelter providers on the one hand and federal agencies on the other, but only when such assistance is requested by a local group and/or local officials.

4. Serving as an information source on homeless issues for the White House, Congress and the provider community.

5. Assisting in identifying examples of successful local approaches to the problem of homelessness and assisting in the dissemination of this information throughout the provider community.

This approach reflects President Reagan's emphasis on community initiative and responsibility, in partnership with federal technical and material assistance.

HOW WILL THE TASK FORCE CARRY OUT THIS ROLE IN THE COMING MONTHS?

While solid groundwork has been laid and much has been accomplished, a great deal remains to be done to target existing federal resources more directly toward the homeless. The Task Force will be focusing on the following priorities in the coming months:

1. Work with the Social Security Administration (SSA), the states and localities, and shelter operators to identify those shelter residents who qualify under existing law for social security disability or supplemental income benefits. These residents could then provide for their own housing, which could in turn qualify them for other existing programs that require recipients to have a fixed address.

SSA has established, in cooperation with state and local officials, a pilot outreach program in New York city in which claims examiners visit various shelters to counsel residents on their rights, accept benefit applications, and advise residents of the outcome of the application process. Expanding such an outreach program to other areas could significantly reduce the homeless population through the use of existing resources.

2. Continue to identify existing resources that can be used to help the homeless and produce interagency agreements to make these resources available to organizations serving the homeless. Existing programs for job training, mental health care, alcohol and drug abuse assistance, and other support services could be used to attack the underlying causes of homelessness. The Task Force will also review existing interagency agreements and revise them where necessary.

3. Continue to develop working relationships with national organizations such as The National Citizens Committee for Food and Shelter, the National Mental Health Association, the American Psychiatric Association, the American Institute of Architects, veterans' organizations, etc. These organizations can be of great assistance in mobilizing private sector support throughout the nation.

4. Respond to state and local requests for help by cutting red tape and by furnishing guidance on resources availaole through HHS' Regional Directors and through other regional and national networks. By acting as a broker between local providers and federal agencies, the Task Force can speed up the application process and, where appropriate, obtain a waiver of restrictive practices.

5. Work with the private sector to ensure that information on resources, methods, and potential problems (and how to deal with them) are available to those who want to set up food banks or shelters. Much of this information is currently available only in a piecemeal fashion from private sector or government computer banks. Access to a central information retrieval system will significantly aid the Federal Government's management of homeless programs and provide a ready source of information for inquiries from Congress, the White House and the press.

6. In concert with other agencies, organize conferences, workshops and regional meetings for shelter operators, service providers and state and local officials, with a view to producing more "how-to-do-it" guides for local use. A case in point is a suggestion that a workshop be held to produce a simplified, easy-to-use reference manual containing brief descriptions of all programs, resources and facilities, both public and private, available to homeless persons and to organizations serving the homeless—a kind of "catalog of domestic assistance" for the homeless.

7. Designate the HHS Regional Directors as the frontline coordinators and implementers of the various interagency agreements negotiated by the Federal Task Force in Washington. These officers of the Regional Directors are the logical places in which to center the efforts of the Task Force. These are much closer to the problem than the national office and they are in regular contact with state and local officials who are dealing with the problem. Each Regional Director will be asked to establish and chair a regional task force for the homeless, comprising representatives from GSA, HUD, DOD and other federal agencies where appropriate. The regional task force will go into action only when a local community has determined its need and requests assistance from the task force. Local requests for help reaching the Federal Task Force in Washington directly will be referred to the Regional Directors. The Task Force in Washington will continue to take the lead in establishing general policy and resolving issues affecting more than one region.

FEDERAL TASK FORCE ON THE HOMELESS,
Washington, DC, April 1986.

MEMORANDUM

To: Homeless Provider Community.
From: Harvey R. Vieth, Chairman.
Subject: Summary of Federal Programs Available to Help the Homeless.

Attached is a listing of Federal programs that can be used to help the homeless, along with their budget authority for fiscal year 1985. While we have attempted to use a broad perspective in identifying applicable Federal programs, this listing should not be considered as exhaustive.

In many cases, these programs are block grants that can be used for a wide variety of purposes, including feeding and sheltering the homeless. The decisions on how to spend these funds are often the responsibility of the states and/or localities. In some cases, the funds go directly to an individual or institution, not a state or local government.

Most of these programs were not designed specifically with the homeless in mind, but they can be used for that purpose. Some of these programs may be eliminated or scaled back as a result of budget reductions.

ACTION PROGRAMS TO HELP THE HOMELESS

VISTA Volunteers

1985 Funds/Services—330 volunteers working on 72 homeless projects

First established in 1964 by the Economic Opportunity Act, the VISTA Program has been asked to provide qualified Volunteers to thousands of community and neighborhood organizations. Wherever malnutrition, inadequate housing, poor education, and limited opportunities can be found in this country, VISTA Volunteers are enlisted to change these conditions.

The Volunteer's role in the poverty problem-solving process is focused toward mobilizing community resources and increasing the capacity of the target community to solve its own problems. While VISTA Volunteers serve as important links between the local sponsor and the people being helped, it is crucial to the concept plan for the performance of the Volunteer's functions by local citizens.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM

1985 Funds-Services—$10.8 billion in benefits; $974 million for administrative costs.

Food stamps are available to all applicants who qualify based on income levels and other criteria, whether or not they have a fixed address or have resided in a city or county for a certain period of time. Consequently, the homeless can qualify for food stamps, although we have no estimates of how many homeless are actually getting this assistance. Food stamps are available within five days to those with very low assets ($100 or less) and either very low income ($150/month or less) or destitute migrant status. Other eligible applicants receive benefits within 30 days.

The Food Distribution Program distributes surplus food and purchases additional foodstuffs for distribution to needy persons.

The Charitable Institutions portion of this program gives away food to hospitals, nursing homes, and other nonprofit organizations that provide nutrition services for needy persons. Soup kitchens, shelters, and similar groups that feed the homeless qualify for this assistance if they serve meals on a regular basis.

1985 Funds/Services—$165 million worth of food

The Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP). This food intended for individuals; much of it is distributed through food banks and may feed homeless persons or they may be served in soup kitchens and shelters.

1985 Funds/Services—$978 million worth of food

Child Nutrition Programs. Various programs provide assistance to children. All children in participating schools can receive the benefits of school lunch and school breakfast. The Child Care Food Program, the Summer Feeding Program and Special Milk Program also provide food assistance to children.

1985 Funds/Services—$4.4 billion

Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC). WIC provides vouchers for nutritous food supplements, nutrition education, and access to health services.

1985 Funds/Services—$1.5 billion

SHELTER PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—3 Houses leased at $1 per year for use as shelters

USDA has authorized Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) county supervisors to lease, at the lowest possible cost, single-family homes in FmHA-held inventory to local housing authorities or to community non-profit organizations for use as shelters for homeless persons. Single-family homes in FmHA-held inventory, not otherwise targeted for immediate disposition, are available under this agreement.

Anyone interested in starting a shelter program using a FmHA single-family home, should contact the HHS Regional Representative or the local FmHA county supervisor. They will work with the State housing authority and the Department of Agriculture to arrange for housing to lease to an organization or to a local official to shelter the homeless.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

EMERGENCY SHELTER PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—DOD offered 600 excess Defense facilities to states/localities. Only 10 shelters are currently operating

The Department of Defense (DOD) has agreed to make available appropriate military facilities to be used as homeless shelters or for use as warehouse space for food banks. When necessary, such facilities will be renovated at DOD expense. Vacant DOD facilities can be used to shelter small or large numbers of homeless individuals.

EXCESS PERSONAL PROPERTY, EQUIPMENT, AND CLOTHING

1985 Funds/Services—$2.4 million worth of property

The Department of Defense (DOD) has agreed to donate excess bedding (e.g., cots and blankets) and other excess property to shelters for the homeless. For information on obtaining such excess property, contact the HHS Regional Representative for the Homeless for your area.

SURPLUS MILITARY FOOD—HHS/DOD/DOT JOINT PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—2.1 million pounds of food donated to food banks from 2/83-9/85, largely in the last year

The Department of Defense (DOD) and Department of Transportation (Coast Guard) have agreed to link food banks through HHS with military commissaries to allow the food banks to obtain non-marketable, surplus food stuffs. DOD and Coast Guard commissaries, like other supermarkets, at times have food that they cannot sell, but that is still edible. These agreements with DOD and DOT are designed to direct food to persons in need rather than let it go to waste. Food banks assume the responsibility for final inspection and distribution of the food and must bear any costs associated with food pick up and distribution.

NATIONAL GUARD SERVICES

1985 Funds/Services to D.C.—Figure not available

The National Guard (NGB) has agreed to make its facilities or manpower services available, within the mission of the NGB training operations, to support food and shelter operations.

The National Guard primarily helps organizations that feed or shelter the homeless by transporting food, clothing, or other surplus property. They may also be able to provide other manpower services or allow the use of armories for storage, depending on the specific unit involved.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

WEATHERIZATION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM [WAP]

1985 Funds/Services—$191 million

A dwelling unit is eligible for weatherization assistance if it is occupied by a "family unit" and if it can meet certain income requirements. DOE has clarified that a "family unit" includes all persons living in the dwelling, regardless of relationship. Shelters for the homeless therefore may qualify for the grants. In general, the combined income for all the residents of the dwelling may not exceed 125% of the poverty level, which is adjusted for the number of residents of the dwelling, or the family unit must contain a member who has received certain cash assistance payments defined in the program regulations. States also have the option under certain conditions of using the eligibility criteria for HHS's Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP).

To apply for weatherization assistance, an organization must submit an application to the local agency designated in the State's WAP Plan as the subgrantee for the area in which the organization is located. Generally, DOE weatherization funds are channelled through local Community Action Agencies.

FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY

EMERGENCY FOOD & SHELTER PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—$90 million

Grant awards from this program are designed to provide emergency food and shelter to needy individuals through local private voluntary organizations as well as local units of government. Services received under this program should not reduce or affect assistance an individual receives under any other Federal, State, or local assistance program. This program is not intended to address or correct structural poverty or long-standing problems. Rather, this appropriation is for the purchase of food and shelter, to supplement and extend current available resources, and not to substitute or reimburse ongoing programs and services.

A National Board chaired by FEMA and consisting of representatives of the United Way of America; the Salvation Army; the National Council of Churches; the National Conference of Catholic Charities; the Council of Jewish Federations, Inc.; and the American Red Cross, determines the amount and distribution of funds to those areas having the highest need for food and shelter assistance.

Each area designated by the National Board to receive funds is required to constitute a Local Board with representatives to the extent practicable including, but not limited to, the same organizations represented on the National Board, except that the Mayor (or his/her designee) or appropriate head of government (or his/her designee) will replace the FEMA member. Many Local Boards include representatives from the business and provider communities.

The Local Boards are responsible for determining which private voluntary organizations and/or public organizations in an area should receive grants and recommending the amount of the grants.

GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION

SURPLUS FEDERAL PERSONAL PROPERTY, EQUIPMENT, AND CLOTHING

1985 Funds/Services—Figure not available

The GSA program for the donation of Federal surplus personal property is administered through a nationwide network of State Agencies for Surplus Property. From time to time, items such as refrigerators, blankets, clothing, kitchen equipment, medical supplies and furniture, which could be used by homeless and needy people, become available through this program. State, county, and municipal agencies which have the responsibility for providing services for these people can establish eligibility to participate in the donation program. Having done so, such agencies can acquire federal surplus personal property, retain accountability for it, and loan it to nonprofit organizations that serve the homeless and needy but that are unable to establish program eligibility on their own.

USE OF EXCESS OR SURPLUS FEDERAL REAL PROPERTY

1985 Funds/Services—3 facilities

GSA has agreed to make appropriate vacant Federal facilities, not targeted for other use or immediate disposition, available for shelter-related projects. If any appropriate GSA facilities are available, they can be used to store food or property, or to shelter homeless individuals, where State or local facilities cannot meet the need.

Also, temporarily unneeded space which is retained in GSA's public buildings inventory is periodically advertised for sealed-bid leasing. Through this bidding process, a charitable agency can lease excess Federal space for a set period of time.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

OFFICE OF HUMAN DEVELOPMENT SERVICES [OHDS]

Older Americans Act (Title III, Section 303 as amended).

1985 Funds/Services—$669 million

Under this legislation, funding is provided to State Agencies on Aging to initiate local community projects to provide social services to older persons. Assistance to the elderly homeless is an eligible activity. These services, which are carried out primarily through (local) area agencies on aging, provide numerous benefits. Among them are nutrition services to the elderly. These projects are designed to provide persons aged 60 and older with at least one hot nutritious meal five or more days a week. Most meals are served at congregate sites, although 28% are home delivered. During FY 1984, a total of 383,599,000 meals were served.

Runaway and Homeless Youth Program. (Runaway Youth: Title III, Part D, Section 341 of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Act of 1974 as amended).

1985 Funds/Services—$23 million

The purpose of the program is to provide financial assistance to establish and strengthen community-based centers designed to address the needs of runaways and homeless youth and their families. While most frequently thought of on a national scale, runaways and homeless youth remain largely a State and local program and should be treated first and primarily with State and local resources. Funding for fiscal year 1985 supports approximately 170 runaway and homeless youth projects as well as the national toll-free runaway youth hotline.

OHDS Coordinated Discretionary Grants. (Section 426 other than subsection a, 1, C and 110 of the Social Security Act; the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act other than section 4b; and Title II of P.L. 95-266).

1985 Funds/Services—$43 million to public and private groups

These grants, awarded yearly, are intended to fund innovative approaches to meeting human service needs. It is possible that a private or public agency may apply for a grant supportive of a food or shelter program, if that is innovative and satisfies one of the priority areas in the Program Announcement.

Social Services Block Grants. (Title XX of the Social Security Act as amended by P.L. 97-35).

1985 Funds/Services—$2.7 billion

These block grants, awarded to the States, are designed to furnish a variety of social services best suited to the needs of individuals residing within a State. Emergency food and shelter may be among the programs conducted by each State.

OFFICE OF COMMUNITY SERVICES [OCS]

Community Services Block Grant (CSBG) Program.

1985 Funds/Services—$372 million

The CSBG Program is a block grant program under which assistance is provided by a statutorily established formula to states and territories to help alleviate the causes of poverty. States and territories receiving CSBG funds are required to comply with a number of assurances designed to insure that the funds are used for the benefit of the low-income or poor as defined in the Federally established poverty income guidelines. The states are required to provide a wide range of services and activities designed to assist low-income people in areas of employment, education, housing, and emergency assistance.

HEALTH CARE FINANCING ADMINISTRATION [HCFA]

Medicaid.

1985 Funds/Services—$23 billion

Indigent people who are 65 years of age or older, or who are members of families with dependent children, or who are disabled and blind are eligible for Medicaid. In all States, persons on AFDC rolls are automatically eligible for Medicaid. In around 30 States, persons on SSI rolls are automatically eligible for Medicaid. Homeless persons, therefore, who are receiving SSI or AFDC benefits are automatically eligible for Medicaid benefits in the majority of States. Homeless persons who are not receiving SSI but are medically needy may qualify for Medicaid in 36 States, if they meet the income and age or the disability requirements.

ALCOHOL, DRUG ABUSE, AND MENTAL HEALTH ADMINISTRATION [ADAMHA] OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

ADAMHA is made up of three parts: the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA), and the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA). Some of the major ADAMHA programs that can be used to help the homeless are summarized below. In addition, there are several smaller research, training or demonstration programs that may be useful.

ADAMHA BLOCK GRANTS

1985 Funds/Services—$490 million

These block grants can be used for alcohol and drug abuse programs and for mental health programs. The mental health funds are used mainly for Community Mental Health Centers (CMHC). CMHCs must provide the following services to be eligible for block grant funds:

outpatient services for the chronically mentally ill, children and the elderly;

24-hour emergency care services;

day treatment of psycho-social rehabilitation services;

screening of patients for admission to state mental health facilities;

consultation and education services.

No statistics are available for homeless clients of CMHCs. They are, however, eligible for the services.

PROGRAM FOR THE HOMELESS MENTALLY ILL

1985 Funds/Services—$430 million from several research, training and demonstration programs, some of which were directed to the homeless

The Program for the Homeless Mentally Ill coordinates ADAMHA research, training, and technical assistance initiatives pertaining to the homeless with serious alcohol, drug abuse, and mental health problems. The program achieves its objectives through ongoing NIMH, NIDA, and NIAAA programs. The program also works directly with national organizations.

COMMUNITY SUPPORT PROGRAM (CSP)

1985 Funds/Services—$6.6 million

CSP assists States and localities in developing comprehensive Community Support Systems to stimulate improved Community-based Care for the chronically mentally ill. The program is designed to avert homelessness among the population. Additionally, in FY 1983 money was set aside to study the demographics and characteristics of the homeless mentally ill. In FY 1985, grants will be made to develop innovative city-based demonstrations of service delivery to the homeless mentally ill. Grants are made to State mental health authorities, who often subcontract with local governments.

CENTER FOR STATE HUMAN RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT

1985 Funds/Services—$4 million

The Center provides grant funds to State Departments of Mental Health to develop their capacity to conduct systematic human resource development activities and to develop and implement demonstration program to address human resource development issues including but not limited to: planning and evaluation; workforce management (i.e. recruitment, selection, distribution, utilization, redevelopment, retraining, and education); and training (i.e. curriculum development for target priority populations like the homeless and implementation of short-term skills development, continuing education, etc.).

HEALTH RESOURCES AND SERVICES ADMINISTRATION [HRSA] OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

MATERNAL & CHILD HEALTH SERVICES & PRIMARY CARE BLOCK GRANT [MCH]

1985 Funds/Services—$478 million

MCH Block Grant funds are allocated by formula to State health authorities. Since the State programs have an orientation toward high-risk persons, and the homeless may be so described, it is likely that State programs provide services to this segment of the population. However, a survey of 1982, 1983 and 1984 State applications revealed no specific data relating to the homeless. States must apply for block grant funds annually. State health agencies are required to operate the block. States must prepare a report to the Secretary of HHS describing intended use of funds plus a description of their compliance with eight assurances of quality, fairness and appropriateness of expenditures. They must also prepare annual post-expenditure reports on how funding was used. States must match every four Federal dollars with three state dollars for the MCH Block grant.

COMMUNITY HEALTH CENTERS [CHC]

1985 Funds/Services—$375 million

Community Health Centers (CHCs) provide health services to medically underserved populations in both urban and rural areas. In FY 1984, nearly 600 community health centers provided services to approximately 4.7 million people. CHCs are required to provide services regardless of an individual's ability to pay. Since many of the nation's homeless may be located in medically underserved areas where CHCs are situated, it is expected that a large number of them may be making use of these resources. Proposals must be designed to improve availability, accessibility and organization of health care within medically underserved communities. Services should be consistent with plans of local Health Systems Agencies and State Health Planning and Resources Development Agencies. A needs/demand assessment is required. The applicant must assume part of the project costs, determined on a case by case basis.

MIGRANT HEALTH PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—$44 million

The Migrant Health Program is a discretionary grant program which awards funds to support the development and operation of migrant health centers and projects which provide primary ambulatory and inpatient health services, supplemental health services, and environmental health services for migrant and seasonal agricultural farm workers and their families as they move and work. Migrant health "centers" must serve as a "high impact area" (not less than 4,000 migratory agricultural workers and seasonal workers for more than two months in any calendar year). Migrant health "programs" may be in areas where there is no migrant health center and in which not more than 4,000 migratory agricultural workers and their families reside for more than two months.

NATIONAL HEALTH PLANNING & RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT

1985 Funds/Services—$58 million

The National Health Planning program funds state and local health planning agencies whose principal functions include development and implementation of plans and review of capital expenditures for the purposes of: improving health; increasing access, acceptability, continuity and quality of health services; restraining increases in costs of services provision; and preventing unnecessary duplication of health resources. One of their principal priorities is provision of primary care services for medically underserved populations, especially those located in rural or economically depressed areas. Many agencies have worked for the improvement of health services for the indigent. However, the agencies do not themselves provide services. Some of the health planning agencies have recently focused on meeting the needs of new immigrants, both legal and illegal. The State Health Planning and Development Agencies are organizations of State government, usually the State health department. Health Systems Agencies are private non-profit or public regional planning bodies. All applicants file applications for designation and funding in return for performing certain planning, resource development and regulatory activities prescribed by law. States must match 25 cents per $1.00 Federal. HSAs receive additional Federal funding of 19.5 cents on the dollar for local funds.

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE CORPS

1985 Funds/Services—$60 million

The National Health Service Corps provides loans to communities and to medical practitioners to assist in establishing and maintaining health care services in Health Manpower Shortage Areas. They are required to provide services to all without regard to ability to pay. These health personnel may be an important resource in meeting health care needs of the homeless. Communities may apply for designation as a Health Manpower Shortage Area and assignment of Corps personnel. Designation and assignment, however, are at the discretion of the Secretary. There are no set funding matching requirements. The Government pays medical, dental and other health personnel while the community usually provides a medical facility, support personnel, and assumes responsibility for managing the practice.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION [SSA]

SSA Outreach:

SSA has undertaken a nationwide effort to identify and help serve those many hard-to-reach homeless people who may be entitled to Supplemental Security Income (SSI), or Social Security Retirement, Survivors, or Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits. SSA field offices maintain current information about providers of services to the homeless. They establish and maintain liaison with service providers to ensure that program information is available to providers' staffs, and request the providers' assistance in identifying homeless people who may be eligible for benefits. In some cases, especially in areas with large homeless populations, this may involve taking claims at the facilities (such as shelters and soup kitchens) that provide services for the homeless.

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS

1985 Funds/Services—$165.5 billion (paid directly to retirees and their survivors)

A fixed address is not required in order to receive Social Security benefits. Consequently, homeless persons who meet the other program requirements may qualify for retirement benefits, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), or Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI). Under these Social Security programs, monthly benefits may be paid to disabled people, as well as to retired workers and their dependents, and to suvivors of deceased workers.

Once a homeless person's eligibility for payments is established, the Social Security office can make special arrangements for delivering checks and notices. Checks and notices can be delivered to a shelter or other third party address, or even to the Social Security office, if necessary. In cases where a person is incapable of handling his or her own money—because of an impairment, for example—SSA can appoint a representative payee to receive checks and notices on his or her behalf. A shelter or other organization can serve as the payee, if there are no relatives or friends who can do so.

SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME (SSI)

1985 Funds/Services—$11 billion (paid directly to individuals)

The SSI program makes monthly payments to people who are 65 or older, disabled, or blind and have little or no income and assets. Most States supplement the Federal SSI payments and provide Medicaid. States also may offer a variety of social services. Also, under a 1983 change in the law, some people who are residents of public emergency shelters can now receive SSI payments for up to 3 months during any 12-month period. This includes homeless people. Prior to the change, people who lived in public emergency shelters were not eligible for SSI.

SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY INSURANCE [SSDI]

1985 Funds/Services—$19 billion (Paid directly to individuals)

Under the SSDI program, SSA pays monthly disability benefits to:

1. Disabled workers under 65 and their families;

2. Unmarried people disabled before 22. These checks are payable based on the work record of a parent (or grandparent under certain circumstances) who receives Social Security retirement or disability checks or dies; and

3. Disabled widows and widowers (and, in some cases, disabled surviving divorced wives and husbands) of workers who were insured at death. These checks are payable as early as age 50.

Disabled workers must have worked long enough and recently enough under Social Security to be insured under this program. The work requirement varies depending on the age of the worker. Under Social Security, you're considered disabled if you have a severe physical or mental condition which:

1. Prevents you from working, and

2. Is expected to last (or has lasted) for at least 12 months, or is expected to result in death.

Your checks can start for the 6th full month of your disability. Once checks start, they will continue as long as you are disabled and unable to perform substantial gainful work. Cases are reviewed periodically to make sure the person remains disabled.

AID TO FAMILIES WITH DEPENDENT CHILDREN [AFDC]

1985 Funds/Services—$8 billion in benefits

Money payments are made directly to eligible needy families with dependent children to cover costs for food, shelter, clothing, and other items of daily living.

EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—$78 million in benefits for the federal share

This program provides temporary financial assistance in the form of money or vendor payments to assist needy families with children in emergency or crisis situations to avoid destitution or to provide living arrangements. It has been used to prevent homelessness among families. This is an optional State program in which 28 States (including the District of Columbia) currently participate. The program is operated by the States, which have a great deal of flexibility in defining the emergency situations they will cover. The federal government provides a 50 percent matching share, which is available only for one period of 30 consecutive days in any 12 month period for each eligible family.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

HUD-OWNED SINGLE FAMILY HOMES

1985 Funds/Services to—25 homes currently being used

HUD will lease HUD-owned single-family homes in the General or Special Risk Insurance funds to cities for shelter use, for a nominal amount. Cities or shelter providers are eligible lessees and must bear the cost of any required repairs. Leases are limited to no more than one year, but may be renewed at the end of the lease period at the option of the city or shelter provider if the properties are still needed for shelter use.

EXISTING HOUSING AND MODERATE REHABILITATION PROGRAM (SECTION 8)

1985 Funds/Services—New budget authority of $3 billion to be spent over a 15 year period. Also, new vouchers (to be used in renting units in the private market) were allocated, with a budget authority of $769 million to be spent over a 5 year period. In addition, units allocated in previous years continued in 1985

The Section 8 Housing Assistance Payments Program for Low Income Families (known as Section 8 Existing Certificates) provides housing assistance payments to participating private landlords on behalf of eligible tenants to provide decent, safe and sanitary housing for lower and very low income families at rents they can afford. Housing assistance payments are used to make up the difference between the approved rent due to the owner for the dwelling unit (which must be reasonable in relation to rents for comparable units) and the occupant family's required contribution toward rent. Assisted families are required to contribute up to 30 percent of their adjusted family income toward rent. Administering Public Housing Authorities may provide an "emergency" priority for admission to the program for homeless families or individuals who are otherwise eligible to participate. Cities or shelter providers should contact the local public housing agency administering the Section 8 program to discuss the possibility of making this assistance available to homeless families or individuals who are otherwise eligible for Section 8 assistance.

HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED (SECTION 202)

1985 Funds/Services—New budget authority of $1.5 Billion in 1985. Most housing for the elderly and handicapped is now handler under the Section 8 program. Units allocated in previous years continued in 1985

The Section 202 Program provides direct loans that may be used to finance the construction or rehabilitation of rental or cooperative detached, semidetached, row, walk-up or elevator-type structures. Purchase of an existing structure without rehabilitation or moderate rehabilitation is eligible only for group homes for the non-elderly handicapped. The program may be used to provide housing with supportive services for the chronically-mentally ill, who constitute a large proportion of the homeless population.

The nonprofit sponsor and borrower must receive certification of eligibility for the Section 202 program from HUD. A general announcement of Fund Availability is published in the Federal Register early in each fiscal year announcing the availability of funds to HUD Field Offices. A borrower proposing housing for the chronically-mentally ill must provide evidence of funding for the services portion of the proposed program, since HUD does not fund services.

PUBLIC AND INDIAN HOUSING

1985 Funds/Services—New budget authority of $2.9 billion to develop or rehabilitate housing units, amortized over a 20-30 year period. In addition, $1.5 billion in new budget authority was provided for the operation of existing public housing units. Units provided in earlier years continued in 1985

This program is designed to assist public housing agencies (PHAs) in providing lower-income housing by (1) acquiring existing housing from the private market (acquisition); (2) procuring construction by competitive bidding where the public housing agency acts as the developer (conventional); or (3) letting contracts to private developers (turnkey). Annual contributions are made to public housing agencies to provide debt service payments, to assure the lower-income character of the projects, and to achieve and maintain adequate operating and maintenance service and reserve funds. PHAs may provide an "emergency" priority for admission to the program for homeless families or individuals who are otherwise eligible to participate. Cities or shelter providers should contact the local public housing agency to discuss the potential for using PHA vacant units to house homeless families or individuals who are otherwise eligible for the public housing program.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS (CDBG)—ENTITLEMENT GRANTS

1985 Fund/Services—$2.4 billion. Between FY 1983 and FY 1985 $77 million was targeted to homeless projects by local governments

Under the CDBG entitlement grant program, localities may undertake a wide range of activities directed toward neighborhood revitalization, economic development, and provision of improved community facilities and services. Entitlement communities develop their own programs and funding priorities (after holding public hearings and otherwise receiving citizen input) as long as program/activities conform to the applicable standards and program regulations. In addition, block grant funds are available to pay for public services within certain limits. Units of local government may contract with other local agencies or nonprofit organizations to carry out part or all of their programs. Shelter acquisition, shelter rehabilitation and shelter operations may be funded by the entitlement community as eligible activities under the block grant program.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION PROGRAMS TO HELP THE HOMELESS

The Veterans Administration (VA) is required by law to provide benefits and services only to persons who qualify as a result of prior military service under other than dishonorable conditions. A recurring problem concerning determination of eligibility lies in the unwillingness or inability of some of the homeless to provide the VA with basic background information, such as name, Social Security number, date of birth and dates of military service.

VA PENSION AND COMPENSATION BENEFITS

1985 Funds/Services—$10 billion (paid directly to the veteran or his survivors)

Veterans who meet certain age and service requirements or who have a service connected disability are eligible for pension and/or compensation.

COMMUNITY RESIDENTIAL CARE PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—12,000 residents took advantage of this program

Although the VA does not provide free shelter for indigent veterans, some homeless veterans receiving VA pension or compensation, Social Security, or other funds may qualify to participate in the Residential Care Home Program, the largest of the VA's extended care programs. This program provides residential care, including room, board, personal care and general health care supervision to veterans who do not require hospital or nursing home care, but who, because of mental or physical health conditions, are not able to resume independent living and have no suitable family resources to provide the needed care. Care is provided mainly in private homes and is paid for by the veterans from VA compensation/pension benefits, SSI, etc., at an average cost of $340 per month. All homes are inspected by a VA multi-disciplinary team prior to incorporation into the program and annually thereafter. Veterans receive monthly follow-up visits from VA social workers and other health care professionals, are are outpatients of local VA facilities. Currently, over 12,000 veterans are receiving care in over 3,000 homes.

DOMICILIARY CARE PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—$92 million

This program served an estimated 12,200 veterans in 16 centers with an average of 400-500 beds (average daily census of 6,000). This program provides a group living arrangement for those with minimal medical and rehabilitation needs. The beneficiaries must have an income of less than $415 per month.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—$830 million

State employment security agencies operate within each State through local Job Service offices which serve both job seekers and employers. The assistance offered includes interviewing, testing, counseling, referral to training and other employability development resources, and placement in jobs. Specialized services for various groups (such as veterans, youth, women, older workers, and the handicapped) are also provided.

SENIOR COMMUNITY SERVICE EMPLOYMENT PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—$326 million

This program provides, fosters, and promotes useful part-time work opportunities (usually 20 hours per week) in community service activities for low income persons who are 55 years old and older, and who have poor employment prospects.

JOB TRAINING PARTNERSHIP ACT FOR DISADVANTAGED YOUTH AND ADULTS

1985 Funds/Services—$3.8 billion

This program provides job training and related assistance to economically disadvantaged individuals, and others who face significant employment barriers. The ultimate goal of the Act is to move trainees into permanent, self-sustaining employment. This includes $10 million for veterans employment programs.

EMERGENCY VETERANS JOB TRAINING PROGRAM

1985 Funds/Services—$76 million

This program provides employers 50 percent of the starting wage, up to $10,000 per veteran, when they hire and train veterans in a growth industry or a technology-based or demand occupation. The intent of the program is to help industry fill permanent positions that involve significant training of at least six months to Korean and Vietnam-era veterans, and is run in cooperation with the Veterans Administration.

Targeted groups are Korean and Vietnam-era veterans who have been out of work for 15 of the preceding 20 weeks. They must have served for at least 180 days and been honorably discharged.

Training will be funded for between 6 and 9 months, and in some cases may be approved by the VA for between 3 to 15 months. Actual training can take place on the job, in a vocational or educational institution, or in a specialized training center.●

● Mr. GORE. Mr. President, I want to join my colleague, Senator DOMINICI, in introducing the National Clearinghouse for the Homeless Act of 1986.

Clearly, the problem of homelessness is complicated, widespread, and growing at an alarming rate. It is generally accepted that the structural causes of homelessness are inadequate low-cost housing, medical care, mental health treatment, educational, and unemployment. In addition, there is widespread agreement among Federal, State, local officials and charitable organizations serving the homeless that the services that are currently designed to serve the poor and malnourished—and that often describes the homeless—are not well coordinated.

The National Clearinghouse for the Homeless would be a major step toward improving that coordination. The clearinghouse would serve to better target Federal policy actions and proposals to ensure that we are not exacerbating already tragic conditions for the homeless by making budget cuts or issuing regulations which actually produce little savings and create monstrous, even more costly problems in their wake.

As Senator DOMINICI has noted, the clearinghouse would not be the direct provider of emergency shelter, food stamps, or other relief for the homeless. Instead, it would function as a coordinator of many public and private efforts to slow the dramatic increase in homelessness by better managing the programs that now exist.

Mr. President, I favor a broad, comprehensive approach to deal with the long-term structural causes of homelessness. Toward that end, today I also introduced the Homeless Persons' Survival Act, which improves targeting of existing programs and increases funding for a variety of critical, safety net programs that must be improved if we are to begin addressing this program.

That legislative initiative will be lengthy and face numerous challenges. The bill Senator DOMINICI and I are introducing today, to establish an efficient clearinghouse to monitor Federal programs for the homeless, is a sound, immediate start toward the goal we all support: ending the tragic national problem of homelessness.●

By Mr. HEINZ (for himself and Mr. GLENN):

S. 2604. A bill to amend the Social Security Act with respect to the standards for participation of skilled nursing facilities and intermediate care facilities under the Medicare and Medicaid Programs, to amend the Older Americans Act of 1965 with respect to the ombudsman program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

NURSING HOME QUALITY REFORM ACT

● Mr. HEINZ. Mr. President, thousands of our oldest and sickest citizens live in nursing homes which fail to provide care adequate to meet even their most basic health and safety needs. The problem of poor quality nursing home care has been exposed and examined many times and in great detail over a period of years, most recently through a 2-year investigation conducted by the Senate Special Committee on Aging, which I chair. And yet the remedies have always seemed to be just out of reach.

Today, I am introducing legislation which will finally give us the Federal and State muscle to protect America's most vulnerable citizens, those who must reside in nursing homes.

The legislation I am introducing today is based on the findings of the committee's hearing and investigation into the current status of quality of care in nursing homes and on recommendations made by the Institute of Medicine on improving nursing home quality of care. This bill will help us achieve two important goals: First, to improve the quality of care and quality of life in nursing homes, and second, to create a strong, effective enforcement system to ensure that substandard care is met with appropriate and swift penalties.

This legislation is necessary to meet our promise to older Americans that, at least to the extent that Medicare and Medicaid pay the bills, they will be cared for with respect, allowed to live with dignity, treated as individuals, and be able to live with their frailties and physical difficulties as independently as possible.

Unfortunately, many barriers prevent the fulfillment of those promises. First, the Federal and State governments have not fulfilled their responsibility to ensure that nursing home residents are provided proper care. While we have come a long way in improving the physical facilities in nursing homes, thousands of patients still suffer from poor nutrition, inadequate nursing care, and general neglect that we hoped had been corrected long ago by State and Federal reforms. Existing Federal and State enforcement policies are so seriously lacking that, in 1984, over one-third of the Nation's skilled nursing facilities failed to comply with even the most essential health, safety, and quality standards of care. Nearly a thousand of these homes fail to meet these basic standards year after year, providing clear evidence that no effective penalties exist to sanction nursing homes that provide poor quality care.

Second, payment for nursing home care, especially under the Medicaid Program, has been pitifully small in many areas of the country for years. To some degree, you get what you pay for. The Federal and State governments have been asking for high-quality care at bargain basement prices. As a result, some nursing homes have been forced to cut corners, including hiring untrained or inadequately trained staff.

To address these problems, the legislation I am introducing today will establish effective and uniform standards of nursing home care, a range of penalties for unacceptable nursing home care, reliable methods of inspection, proper resources for inspection and enforcement actions, penalties for States that do not adequately protect nursing home residents, and increased consumer and community involvement in protecting nursing home residents.

To remedy the problem of inadequate standards and poor Federal enforcement, this bill will mandate that all nursing homes that participate in Medicare and Medicaid meet the same high quality standards, that patients' rights are made a condition of Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement, and that Federal intermediate sanctions are used to penalize nursing homes found in violation of quality care standards.

Today, regulations provide for two types of nursing homes—skilled nursing facilities [SNF's] and intermediate care facilities [ICF's]—and require much less stringent standards for the latter than for the former. In reality, very little difference exists between the types of patients who reside in those facilities. This legislation would mandate that all participating nursing homes would have to meet a single set of high standards now applied only to SNF's.

This bill would require that Medicare and Medicaid participation could be revoked from nursing homes that violate the rights of nursing home residents. Currently, while nursing homes are required to respect patients' rights, violation of these rights is considered too small an infraction to warrant revocation of Medicare and Medicaid participation. These rights—such as the right to privacy, the right to clean and safe living arrangements, and the right to freedom from abuse—are clearly a major part of the care picture. This bill will put the patients first by requiring that their rights are respected.

This bill would also reform the nursing home inspection process, which was originally designed to provide frequent, random, unannounced inspections, followed by swift sanctions for violators, but which has been marred by inspections that are anything but random and unannounced and by poorly designed penalties that are unusable, and so are unused.

At present, the only Federal sanction available is to require that a substandard nursing home be closed and patients moved to other settings. This penalty is rarely used, however, because in most parts of the country, there are no available nursing home beds. This bill will mandate surprise, random inspections and will create a set of intermediate sanctions that can be used against nursing homes that violate good quality care standards. In this way, the Federal Government will be able to impose civil fines, restrict further admission of patients to the facility, and place substandard facilities under receivership. These intermediate measures will allow patients to continue receiving care while the Federal and State governments monitor required improvements.

To remedy the problem of inadequate payments to Medicaid nursing homes, this bill proposes the implementation of a case mix reimbursement system for Medicare and Medicaid nursing homes. Case mix reimbursement would allow the Federal and State governments to more closely tie reimbursement to the level of care each patient needs and would help ensure that nursing home residents will receive high quality care.

Taken together, the provisions of this bill will help fashion a comprehensive reform of our long-term-care system that has become an alternative of last resort to most, and a nightmare too many older Americans. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and help put the care back into nursing home care.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in its entirety at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2604

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Nursing Home Quality Reform Act of 1986".

TITLE I—MEDICARE AND MEDICAID PROGRAMS

SEC. 101. REQUIRING MEDICAID INTERMEDIATE CARE FACILITIES TO MEET MEDICARE SKILLED NURSING FACILITY REQUIREMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The first sentence of section 1905(c) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396d(c)) is amended by striking "which (1)" and and inserting in lieu thereof "which meets the requirements of section 1861(j) for a skilled nursing facility, except that with respect to an institution for mental diseases such term means an institution which (1)".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to intermediate care facility services furnished on or after September 30, 1987.

SEC. 102. CHANGES IN CONDITIONS OF PARTICIPATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1861(j) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(j)) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(2) provides for the establishment, adherence to, and periodic review of adequate policies and procedures for the management of the facility, which assure that—

"(A) an overall plan and budget that meets the requirements of subsection (z) is in effect,

"(B) all nurse aides or nurse assistants providing direct patient care have completed a State-approved training program in a State-accredited institution,

"(C) except as required by a State case management or preadmission screening program, no different standards are applied to the admission, transfer, discharge, and service on the basis of any patient's source of payment,

"(D) all employees providing direct patient care have cleared an appropriate criminal background check,

"(E) patients regularly participate in decisionmaking in the facility's operations and have a mechanism for the presentation of patient concerns, and

"(F) representatives of the State office of long-term care ombudsman (established under section 307(a)(12) of the Older Americans Act of 1965) have access to the facility and its residents, and, with the permission of a patient or patient's legal guardian, have access to review the patient's medical and social records;";

(2) by striking paragraph (5) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(5)(A) maintains clinical records on all patients, and

"(B) provides for accurate assessments of each patient—

"(i) that are performed—

"(I) upon admission, periodically, and whenever there is a change in patient status, and

"(II) by a professional registered nurse who has received appropriate training for this purpose, and

"(ii) the results of which are recorded and maintained in a standard format in the clinical records of the patient;";

(3) by striking paragraphs (8) and (10);

(4) by redesignating paragraphs (9), (11), and (12) as paragraphs (8), (9), and (10), respectively;

(5) by redesignating paragraphs (13), (14), and (15), as paragraphs (17), (18), and (19), respectively;

(6) by inserting after paragraph (10) and before paragraph (17), as so redesignated, the following new paragraphs:

"(11) cares for patients in such a manner and in such an environment as will promote maintenance or enhancement of the patient's quality of life, including—

"(A) providing a supportive, comfortable, homelike environment in which patients have a choice over their surroundings, schedules, health care, and activities,

"(B) treating patients with dignity and respect, and

"(C) affording patients opportunities to interact with others in and outside the facility;

"(12) assures that each patient regularly receives high quality care to meet individual physical, mental, and psychosocial needs which is designed to maintain or improve each patient's mental and emotional well-being;

"(13) assures the protection of each patient's civil and legal rights, including (but not limited to) the right—

"(A) to be fully informed, as evidenced by the patient's written acknowledgment, before or at the time of admission and during his or her stay, of these rights and of all rules and regulations governing patient conduct and responsibility;

"(B) to be fully informed, and given a written statement before or at the time of admission and during his or her stay, of services available in the facility and of related charges for such services, including any charges for services not covered under this title or under a State plan approved under title XIX, or not covered by the facility's basic per diem rate;

"(C) to be informed in writing at least 30 days in advance of any changes in the availability of services or in the charges for these services;

"(D) to nondiscrimination on the basis of the patient's source of payment or disability;

"(E) to be fully informed by a physician of his or her medical condition, unless medically contraindicated for a specified and limited period of time (as documented, by a physician, in the patient's medical record), and to be afforded the opportunity to participate in the planning of his or her medical treatment;

"(F) the right to inspect freely his or her medical and social records upon request to the facility;

"(G) to receive prior notice—

"(i) at least 3 days before an intrafacility transfer of the patient,

"(ii) at least 3 days before lapse of bed-hold days for the patient, and

"(iii) at least 20 days before the patient's discharge from the facility;

"(H) to receive sufficient preparation and orientation to ensure safe and orderly transfer or discharge from the facility and to have this preparation and orientation documented in the patient's medical record;

"(I) to appeal transfers and discharges to a State hearing officer before they occur;

"(J) to full access to an representative of the State office of long-term care ombudsman (established under section 307(a)(12) of the Older Americans Act of 1965);

"(K) to be assisted, throughout his or her stay, in the exercise of his or her rights as a patient and as a citizen, and to this end his or her right to file complaints under this section, voice grievances, and recommend changes in policies and service to the staff of the facility and to outside representatives of his or her choice (including long-term care ombudsmen and representatives of governmental agencies administering the programs under this title and title XIX) free from restraint, interference, coercion, discrimination, or reprisal;

"(L) to organize, maintain, and participate in resident advisory and family councils, the meetings of which shall be afforded privacy and facility space;

"(M) to manage his or her personal financial affairs or be given, at least quarterly, an itemized accounting of financial transactions made on his or her behalf whenever the facility accepts his or her written delegation of this responsibility for any period of time in conformance with State law;

"(N) to a clean and safe living environment;

"(O) to be free from mental and physical abuse;

"(P) to be free from chemical and physical restraints, except—

"(i) as authorized in writing by a physician for a specified and limited period of time, or

"(ii) in emergencies when necessary to protect the patient from injury to himself or herself or to others (in which case notice of the use of such restraints, and an explanation of the circumstances thereof, shall be promptly provided to the attending physician and noted in the patient's medical record);

"(Q) to meet with visitors from inside and outside the facility during at least 12 hours of each day;

"(R) to associate and communicate privately with persons of the patient's choice;

"(S) to send and receive mail unopened;

"(T) to be treated with dignity and respect by the staff of the facility;

"(U) to be free from forced labor or experimentation of any type;

"(V) to be assured confidential treatment of his personal and medical records;

"(W) to approve or refuse the release of such records to any individual outside the facility, except in the case of a transfer to another health care institution or as required by law or third-party payment contract;

"(X) to maintain personal clothing and possessions as space permits and to be provided security in storing possessions;

"(Y) to participate freely in social, religious, and community activities; and

"(Z) if the patient is married, to private visits from his or her spouse and to share a room if both are patients in the facility;

"(14) assures that no retaliation or reprisal is made with respect to any patient or employee by reason of his or her filing of a complaint with the State office of long-term care ombudsman (established under section 307(a)(12) of the Older Americans Act of 1965), the State survey agency, or the Secretary with respect to the quality of care, environment, or services provided by the facility;

"(15) makes information with respect to its policies and procedures regarding the rights of patients available to the public, patients, and guardians and relatives of patients, and to any relative or other person serving as a representative payee of a patient pursuant to section 205(j) of this Act; and

"(16) trains and involves the staff of the facility in the implementation of such policies and procedures."; and

(7) by adding at the end thereof the following:

"The assessments required by paragraph (5)(B) shall include (but not be limited to) the identification of medical problems, the measurement of physical functioning (such as mobility and the ability to conduct daily activities), and the measurement of mental and psychosocial functioning.

"For purposes of paragraph (14), any action that is taken by a representative of a facility within 120 days of the filing of a complaint described in such paragraph by a patient or employee and that has an adverse effect upon the patient or employee shall raise a rebuttable presumption that the action was taken in retaliation or reprisal for the filing of the complaint. Unless such presumption is successfully rebutted (as determined by the Secretary), the Secretary shall impose and collect (by withholding from amounts otherwise payable to the facility under this title or by any other method deemed appropriate by the Secretary) a civil penalty of not less than $1,000 and not more than $10,000 for each retaliation or reprisal.

"In the case of a patient adjudicated incompetent in accordance with State law, the rights set forth in paragraph (13) shall devolve upon the person to whom the patient (before being rendered incompetent) has assigned a durable power of attorney, or, in the absence of an effective durable power of attorney, to the patient's guardian, next of kin, or relative or other person (other than the facility) serving as representative payee under section 205(j)(1). In the case of a patient who has been rendered (but not adjudicated) incompetent, such rights shall devolve upon the person to whom the patient (before being rendered incompetent) has assigned a durable power of attorney.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—(1) Section 1905(c) of such Act is amended by striking "1861(j)(14)" and inserting in lieu thereof "1861(j)(18)".

(2) Sections 1863 and 1883(f) of such Act are each amended by striking "1861(j)(15)" and inserting in lieu thereof "1861(j)(19)".

SEC. 103. CHANGES IN CERTIFICATION PROGRAM AND PROCESS.

(a) SEPARATING SURVEYS AND CONSULTATIVE SERVICES.—Section 1864(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395aa(a)) is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the fourth sentence the following: "and such consultative services shall be separate from the survey process and shall not be performed by those individuals conducting the survey".

(b) POSTING SURVEY RESULTS.—Such section is further amended by inserting, after "readily available form and place" in the fifth sentence, the following: ", and require (in the case of skilled nursing facilities) the posting in a place readily accessible to patients (and patients' representatives),".

(c) DISCLOSURE OF INSPECTION REPORTS.—Section 1106(e) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1306(e)) is amended—

(1) by striking "60" the first place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "30",

(2) by striking "report; nor" and inserting in lieu thereof "report. Nor",

(3) by striking "(e) No report" and inserting in lieu thereof "(e)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), no", and

(4) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) Notwithstanding the first sentence of paragraph (1), the Secretary may release a report described in subsection (d) to a State long-term care ombudsman (established under section 307(a)(12) of the Older Americans Act of 1965) or a designee before the end of the 30-day period described in such sentence.".

(d) DETERMINATION OF SKILLED NURSING FACILITY COMPLIANCE.—(1) Section 1864 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

"(d) Any agreement under subsection (a) entered into by the Secretary to determine whether an institution is in compliance with the conditions of participation applicable to a skilled nursing facility shall include the following provisions:

"(1) Certification surveys conducted with respect to a facility—

"(A) shall not be announced in advance,

"(B) shall be conducted by a multidisciplinary team of professionals (including at least a registered professional nurse, a registered dietician, and a registered sanitarian) who have passed a standardized, State-administered competency examination approved by the Secretary,

"(C) shall focus on the quality of care provided to patients,

"(D) shall include a private meeting between patients and survey personnel to discuss patients' experiences within the facility with respect to patients' rights and compliance with the standards applicable to the facility under this title,

"(E) shall be conducted, with respect to each facility and except as provided in subparagraph (F), between 9 and 15 months after the previous survey for the facility, with such surveys being conducted, on a Statewide average, 12 months apart, and

"(F) may be conducted less often than annually with respect to a facility only if the facility is fully in compliance with each of the minimum standards established by the Secretary under section 1861(j).

"(2) The State shall provide comprehensive initial and continuing training for the professionals described in paragraph (1)(B), including at least 40 hours of continuing training each year.

"(3) In addition to surveys described in paragraph (1), the State shall provide for an abbreviated survey of a facility within 45 days after a change in ownership of the facility, a change in the facility's administrator, or a change in the facility's director of nursing.

"(4) The State agency responsible under the agreement must maintain and utilize a specialized survey team for the purpose of identifying, surveying, gathering and preserving evidence, and carrying out any enforcement action against chronically substandard facilities and any other facility that poses an immediate threat to the health, safety, or well-being of its patients. Such a team shall include (or have prompt access to, an attorney, physician, registered professional nurse, investigator, and other health professionals and shall be available for providing enforcement training and technical assistance to regular survey staff of the State.

"(5) In accordance with specific procedures developed by the Secretary, the State agency shall provide for investigation of complaints respecting skilled nursing facilities.

"(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no agreement under this section shall apply with respect to determining whether an institution owned by a State is in compliance with the conditions of participation applicable to a skilled nursing facility. Such determination shall be made, for purposes of this title and title XIX, by the Secretary.

"(f) The Secretary shall develop and implement criteria and procedures for the evaluation of plans of correction submitted by institutions seeking compliance with the standards for skilled nursing facilities. Such criteria and procedures shall be designed—

"(1) to maximize specificity in the plans,

"(2) to require on-site evaluation of the implementation of plans dealing with deficiencies relating to patient care, and

"(3) to emphasize the need for correction to provide for permanent compliance with the standards.

Any institution that fails to submit an acceptable plan of correction shall be subject to sanctions under section 1866(f)(4).".

(e) REIMBURSEMENT OF STATES FOR SURVEY COSTS.—Subsection (b) of section 1864 of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "Payments under this subsection shall include full reimbursement for any State expenditures associated with carrying out subsection (d).".

(f) EXERCISE OF MEDICAID LOOK-BEHIND AUTHORITY.—Section 1902(a)(33)(B) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396a(a)(33)(B)) is amended by striking the comma after "except that" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "(i) the Secretary shall annually validate State determinations regarding a random sample of 5 percent of skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities, and (ii)".

SEC. 104. INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS; RECEIVERSHIP AUTHORITY.

(a) MEDICARE PROGRAM.—

(1) Section 1866(f) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395cc(f)) is amended—

(A) by striking "health and safety" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "health, safety, and well-being", and

(B) by adding at the end the following new paragraphs:

"(4) The Secretary shall develop and implement a range of intermediate sanctions to apply to facilities which have been determined to meet the conditions described in (1)(B). Such sanctions shall include (at a minimum) civil fines and penalties and suspension of vendor payments. The Secretary shall develop and implement specific criteria as to when and how each of these intermediate sanctions is to be applied, the amounts of any fines, and the severity of each of these penalties. These criteria shall be designed so as to minimize the time between identification of violations and final imposition of these sanctions and shall provide for the imposition of incrementally more severe fines for repeated or uncorrected deficiencies. In accordance with such criteria, the Secretary may impose any such sanction in lieu of, or in addition to, imposing the sanction otherwise provided under paragraph (1).

"(5) In addition to any other action which the Secretary may take pursuant to this title, the Secretary may fine such facility $50 per day for any day on which such facility does not substantially meet the requirements of section 1861(j) or of the provider agreement.

"(6) For purposes of reimbursement under this title and any State plan approved under title XIX, any amount paid by a facility under paragraph (4) or (5) shall not be taken into consideration as a cost incurred by the facility.

"(7)(A) In any case where the Secretary determines that a skilled nursing facility is chronically failing to meet substantially the requirements of section 1861(j) or of the provider agreement, or determines that the facility's deficiencies immediately jeopardize the health and safety of its patients—

"(i) the Secretary shall give public notice of such determination, and

"(ii) in the case of a skilled nursing facility that is not in a period of State-ordered receivership (as defined in subparagraph (C)), the Secretary may appoint a receiver to—

"(I) oversee the operation of the facility;

"(II) establish and oversee the implementation of a correction plan to bring the facility into compliance with the applicable requirements of the State plan, this title, title XIX, and State licensing requirements by a date set forth in the correction plan; and

"(III) assure the health and safety of the facility's patients during the receivership period.

"(B) Subject to paragraph (1), payment shall be made under this title with respect to any services furnished by any such facility to patients who remain in such facility during any period of receivership ordered by the Secretary or the State with respect to such facility.

"(C) For purposes of this paragraph, a period of State-ordered receivership with respect to a facility is a period during which—

"(i) the State has appointed a receiver to oversee the operation of the facility;

"(ii) the State has in effect a correction plan to bring the facility into compliance with the applicable requirements of the State plan, this title, title XIX, and State licensing requirements by a date set forth in the correction plan; and

"(iii) the State has taken measures to assure the health and safety of the facility's patients during the period.

"(D) Public notice shall also be given in any case in which such deficiencies are determined to be rectified.

(2) APPEAL RIGHTS.—Paragraph (2) of section 1869(f) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2) Each facility which is aggrieved by a determination under paragraph (1) is entitled to notice and opportunity for a hearing with respect to the determination. Such hearing shall not occur until after the determination has been implemented.".

(b) MEDICAID PROGRAM.—

(1) Section 1902(i) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraphs:

"(4) In addition to any other action which the State or the Secretary may take pursuant to this title, the Secretary may fine a facility $50 per day for any day on which such facility does not substantially meet the requirements of section 1861(j) or 1905(c) or other requirements of the State plan.

"(5)(A) In any case where the Secretary determines that a skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility is chronically failing to substantially meet the provisions of section 1861(j) or 1905(c) or other requirements of the State plan, or determines that the facility's deficiencies immediately jeopardize the health and safety of its patients—

"(i) the Secretary shall give public notice of such determination, and

"(ii) in the case of a facility that is not in a period of State-ordered receivership, may, in lieu of decertifying the facility, appoint a receiver (as described in section 1866(f)(7)) with respect to such facility.

"(B) Subject to paragraph (1), payment shall be made under this title with respect to any services furnished by any such facility to patients who remain in such facility during any period of receivership ordered by the Secretary or the State with respect to such facility.

"(C) Public notice shall also be given in any case in which such deficiencies are determined to be rectified.".

(2) Section 1902(a)(31) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396a(a)(31)) is amended—

(A) by striking "and" at the end of subparagraph (B),

(B) by adding "and" at the end of subparagraph (C), and

(3) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(D) with respect to a facility which the State or the Secretary determines no longer substantially meets the provisions of section 1861(j), but which has deficiencies that do not immediately jeopardize the health and safety of its patients, for intermediate sanctions pursuant to the criteria developed under section 1866(f)(4);".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall become effective one year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall develop and implement the range of sanctions described in section 1866(f)(4) of the Social Security Act by not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2)(A) The amendments made by subsection (b) shall apply (except as provided under subparagraph (B)) to payments under title XIX of the Social Security Act for calendar quarters beginning on or after the first day of the first calendar quarter that begins more than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, without regard to whether final regulations to carry out such amendments have been promulgated by such date.

(B) In the case of a State plan for medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act which the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines requires State legislation in order for the plan to meet the additional requirement imposed by the amendments made by subsection (c), the State plan shall not be regarded as failing to comply with the requirements of such title solely on the basis of its failure to meet the additional requirement before the first day of the first calendar quarter beginning after the close of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 105. PRIVATE RIGHT OF ACTION AND ACTION FOR CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

Title XI of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after section 1129 the following new section:

"CAUSES OF ACTION RESPECTING FAILURE OF SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES AND INTERMEDIATE CARE FACILITIES TO MEET STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS

"SEC. 1130. (a) Any individual who—

"(1) is entitled to benefits under part A of title XVIII or under a State plan approved under title XIX with respect to inpatient services in a skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility which is required to comply with the requirements of section 1861(j), and

"(2) is adversely affected by the failure of a facility to meet such requirements, may bring an action in an appropriate Federal district court to enforce such requirements with respect to the facility. Such action may be brought not later than 180 days after the date of the alleged violation and may be brought without exhausting administrative remedies. In such an action the court may award appropriate compensatory and injunctive relief, including actual and punitive damages, attorney fees, and court costs.

"(b) Any institution which has an agreement in effect under section 1866 or with a State under title XIX to provide services under title XVIII or XIX as a skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility and which exercises gross negligence in the care provided to a patient for which payment may be made under either such title shall be fined not to exceed $200,000 or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both.".

SEC. 106. EFFECTIVE DATES.

Except as otherwise specified in this title, the amendments made by this title shall take effect 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

TITLE II—ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO LONG-TERM CARE

SEC. 201. ELIMINATION OF POST-HOSPITAL REQUIREMENT FOR EXTENDED CARE SERVICES.

(a) ELIMINATION OF 3-DAY RULE.—(1) Section 1812(a)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2) extended care services for up to 100 days during any spell of illness;".

(2) Subsection (i) of section 1861 of such Act is repealed.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—(1) Section 1812 of such Act is amended by striking subsection (f), and redesignating subsection (g) as subsection (f).

(2) Sections 1812(b)(2), 1812(e), 1813(a)(3), 1813(b)(2), 1814(a)(6), 1861(v)(1)(G)(i), 1861(v)(2)(A), 1861(v)(3), 1861(y), 1866(b)(3), 1866(d), 1883(d), and 1883(f) of such Act are each amended by striking "post-hospital" each place it appears.

(3) Section 1814(a)(2)(B) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking "post-hospital"; and

(B) by striking "for any of the conditions" and all that follows, and inserting in lieu thereof a semicolon.

(4) Section 1861(y) of such Act is amended by striking "POST-HOSPITAL" in the heading thereof.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to items and services furnished after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 202. STUDY OF CASE-MIX APPROACH FOR NURSING HOMES.

The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct a study of the feasibility of eliminating separate categories of facilities providing long-term care for purposes of the programs under titles XVIII and XIX of the Social Security Act, and replacing such categories with a single designation of long-term care facility which would provide and be reimbursed for various levels of long term care. The Secretary shall report the results of the study to the Congress not later than January 1, 1988.

TITLE III—AMENDMENTS TO THE OLDER AMERICANS ACT OF 1965

SEC. 301. OMBUDSMAN PROGRAM.

(a) AUTHORITY AND IMMUNITY OF OMBUDSMAN.—

(1) AUTHORITY OF OMBUDSMAN TO DESIGNATE REPRESENTATIVES.—Section 307(a)(12)(B) of the Older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3027(a)(12)(B)) is amended by inserting ", or any individual designated by the ombudsman to be the representative of the ombudsman," after "ombudsman".

(2) IMMUNITY OF OMBUDSMAN AND DESIGNEES.—Section 307(a) of the Older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3027(a)) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) No ombudsman appointed under subsection (a)(12), and no individual designated under such subsection by the ombudsman to be a representative of the ombudsman, shall be liable under any State or Federal law for carrying out any function, duty, or activity authorized or required under this section if such ombudsman or such individual exercises due care in carrying out such function, duty, or activity.".

(b) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND TRAINING FOR OMBUDSMEN AND DESIGNEES.—The Older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3001 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 313 the following new section:

"TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND TRAINING FOR OMBUDSMEN

"SEC. 314. (a) The Secretary shall provide technical assistance and training to ombudsmen appointed under section 307(a)(12), and to individuals designated under such section by ombudsmen to be representatives of such ombudsmen, in order to enable such ombudsmen and such individuals to carry out the ombudsman program effectively.

"(b) There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out subsection (a) $2,000,000 for fiscal year 1987 and $1,000,000 for each of the succeeding fiscal years.".

SEC. 302. ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL LONG-TERM CARE OMBUDSMAN PROGRAM ADVISORY COUNCIL.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF COUNCIL.—There is hereby established in the Department of Health and Human Services the National Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program Advisory Council (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "Council") which shall advise the Secretary of Health and Human Services with respect to the development, administration, and priorities of the ombudsman program carried out under the Older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3001 et seq.).

(b) APPOINTMENT OF MEMBERS TO COUNCIL.—The Council shall consist of 9 members who shall be appointed from among individuals described in subsection (c) as follows:

(1) APPOINTMENT BY PRESIDENT.—One member shall be appointed by the President.

(2) APPOINTMENTS BY SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—Four members shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

(3) APPOINTMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE OF THE SENATE.—Four members shall be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate.

(c) INDIVIDUALS ELIGIBLE FOR APPOINTMENT.—Any individual who is—

(1) an ombudsman appointed under section 307(a)(12) of the Older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3027(a)(12)),

(2) a representative of a State or area agency on aging designated under section 305 of such Act,

(3) a long-term care provider,

(4) a representative of individuals who are residents of long-term care facilities,

(5) a representative of a State agency responsible for the certification of long-term care facilities,

(6) a health care professional, or

(7) a person involved in advocacy with or on behalf of nursing home residents, is eligible to be appointed as a member of the Council.

(d) TERM AND CONDITIONS OF SERVICE.

(1) TERM OF APPOINTMENT.—Members of the Council shall be appointed for a term of 4 years, except that any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring before the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed only for the remainder of such term.

(2) COMPENSATION.—Members of the Council shall serve without compensation.

(3) EXPENSES.—While serving away from their homes or regular places of business, on the business of the Council, members of the Council shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, in the same manner as expenses are authorized by section 5703(b) of title 5, United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

(e) PERMANENCY OF COUNCIL.—Section 14 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall not apply with respect to the Council.

SEC. 303. ANNUAL REPORT TO THE CONGRESS.

Not later than January 15 of each year, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate a report—

(1) summarizing and analyzing the data collected under section 307(a)(12)(C) of the Older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3027(a)(12)(C)) in the then most recently concluded fiscal year,

(2) identifying significant problems revealed by such data, and

(3) making recommendations regarding appropriate legislation to resolve such problems.

SEC. 304. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect October 1, 1986.●

● Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, today I am introducing with my distinguished colleague, Senator JOHN HEINZ, legislation to improve the quality of life for elderly and disabled Americans who reside in nursing homes. There should be no debate over need for a national commitment to protect nursing home residents from poor care; to guarantee their civil and legal rights; and to see that they are treated with respect and dignity. This simply is common decency. That is why I believe, as the senior Democratic member of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, we need to enact the Nursing Home Quality Reform Act of 1986.

This much-needed legislation addresses a wide range of serious quality problems identified by our committee, the prestigious Institute of Medicine [IOM] and many others. I would like to provide a brief background as to why this bill is necessary.

Early in its tenure, the Reagan administration attempted to deregulate and reduce Federal oversight of nursing homes. As a result of fierce opposition from Congress, advocates for the elderly and the public, the Health Care Financing Administration [HCFA] contracted with the IOM, which is part of the National Academy of Sciences, for a 2-year study of nursing home quality and the Federal role.

The IOM issued its seminal report—"Improving the Quality of Care in Nursing Homes"—early this year, concluding that there is a clear need for a stronger and improved Federal role in the regulation of nursing home care. The IOM report reflects the findings and recommendations from several recent major initiatives of our committee.

Last fall, we conducted a series of hearings on quality of care issues associated with Medicare's prospective payment system. The hearings identified critical issues associated with posthospital care services, including problems with beneficiaries access to nursing home care and weaknesses in Federal and State oversight of quality. In May, we conducted a hearing entitled "Nursing Home Care: The Unfinished Agenda," which revealed that an alarming number of nursing homes are chronically deficient and repeatedly provide substandard care. It is clear that the Federal Government, and far too many States, lack adequate inspection and sanction authority. Furthermore, HCFA appears unwilling to use the authority it has and to implement the laws that Congress has passed. For example, HCFA has yet to release a final rule for implementing the intermediate sanction which Congress authorized in 1980.

Mr. President, I must stress that the majority of America's nursing homes are honest and above board—many of them provide excellent care. The enforcement provisions of the Nursing Home Quality Reform Act are not aimed at them. Rather, these provisions are aimed at those who insist on providing poor care and violating the rights of nursing home patients, who are among our society's most vulnerable and powerless citizens.

The legislation we are introducing today is comprehensive and addresses many of the critical issues raised by the IOM, our committee, and others. It would move us toward a reimbursement system based upon the individual needs of residents and the elimination of artificial distinctions between levels of care. All nursing homes would be required to meet skilled nursing facility requirements. We would require the Secretary to prepare for transition to a case-mix reimbursement system. My home State of Ohio has already done this and it ought to done nationally.

Patients' rights would be elevated to a condition of participation and prohibitions against discrimination of Medicaid patients would be strengthened, as would the Federal and State nursing home inspection system, including requiring unannounced inspections. To improve the ability of the Nation's network of 600 State and local ombudsman programs to solve the problems of nursing home residents, ombudsmen, many of whom are older volunteers, would be guaranteed access to nursing home residents and their records. This critical program would also receive greater support for training and technical information.

The legislation would broaden the range of sanctions available to use against poor nursing homes as alternatives to closing facilities and abruptly moving the residents to new settings, sometimes many miles away from their families and friends. This act would also require that nurses' assistants who provide an estimated 80 percent of the direct patient care, be trained to perform their critical tasks.

In closing, Mr. President, I would like to also mention an important event that took place earlier today. This morning, Senator HEINZ and I participated in a press conference with several House Members, some 14 national senior citizens' organizations and the well-known actor, Kirk Douglas. This press conference kicked off a national grassroots effort—the "Campaign for Quality Care in Nursing Homes"—to implement the IOM report. Spearheaded by the National Citizens Coalition for Nursing Home Reform and chaired by Mr. Douglas, this effort will play a crucial role in improving nursing homes. We here in the Congress can do our part by enacting the Nursing Home Quality Reform Act of 1986. I urge my colleagues to support us in this timely and essential effort.●

By Mr. SYMMS (for himself, Mr. ABDNOR, Mr. BOREN, Mr. HECHT, Mr. NICKLES, and Mr. MATTINGLY):

S. 2605. A bill to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to facilitate the use of economic support fund assistance for commodity import programs; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

FOREIGN AID COMMODITY INCENTIVE ACT

● Mr. SYMMS. Mr. President, the trade status of the United States has also been the focus of a great deal of concern in recent months. Our position as a net importer has caused Americans to be frustrated and lose confidence in our ability to compete in the world marketplace.

I have always believed that these problems are largely our own fault. Our foreign aid program provides an example of this. As a generous and prosperous nation, we dedicate a portion of the resources of our Nation to aiding friends, allies, and those people around the world less fortunate than we. Our foreign aid programs, however, are not always designed with the interests of the United States in mind.

Clearly, the most desirable foreign aid program would be one which efficiently aided the people of other nations, while also providing markets and employment for American citizens.

My bill, which is a companion to my FAIR bill, S. 1810, is intended to reform some aspects of our foreign aid program to increase the benefit from these programs, both to the people of the beneficiary nation and to American businesses, workers, and taxpayers.

My bill will require the Agency for International Development to conduct an indepth study of the needs of each of the nations to which we give foreign aid under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. The bill then directs U.S. AID to determine whether the needs of that nation can be met by providing American goods and services, agricultural and otherwise, instead of direct cash grants. Those nations which receive cash would be directed to spend as much of that cash on American goods and services as practically possible. An audit of the expenditure of these funds would then be conducted by the GAO to ensure that the cash grants were spent in an appropriate way.

In many cases, the money which we provide to other countries in foreign aid is used to buy products which are in direct competition with those produced in our town country. Now, I continue to support free trade and a free market atmosphere among the nations of the world, and I do not wish to bully any nation into buying American products, but it seems strangely self-defeating for us to actually give nations money to buy our competitor's products.

The motive behind my bill is simple: To ensure that American foreign aid money is used appropriately, for the purposes which we intended its use, and to encourage the use of our foreign aid dollars in a way which benefits the American farmer, businessman, and taxpayer.

Of course, there will be times when it is not logistically feasible for U.S. goods to be provided in time or at reasonable cost to a nation in need. Because of cases like this, my bill remains flexible enough so that U.S. AID can make these determinations based on the reality of each different situation. My goal is to require that the "buy America" option be considered, first by U.S. AID before they grant the aid, and second, by the recipient nation before they spend the aid money. The auditing procedures will give us a feel for the prudence with which these decisions are made.

The example of the Philippines remains all too vivid in most of our minds. Such tales of waste and abuse of American foreign aid funds do great damage not only to the people of the affected nation, but to the U.S. foreign aid program and American prestige as well. Cash is inherently harder to trace and control than are our agricultural commodities and manufactured goods, which are needed in these nations in any case.

If the Philippines can be used as an example of how not to manage an aid program, then Israel may be used as an example of how bilateral foreign aid can be used to maximize the benefits to both nations. Although all of the aid Israel receives from us is in cash grants and loans, the Israelis have managed that aid money effectively and have voluntarily imposed a "buy America" condition on themselves. As a result, American citizens reap a great deal of benefit from our Government's aid to the people of Israel.

Indeed, my bill can be seen as an attempt to impose—on the other nations which receive our foreign aid—conditions similar to those the Israelis have imposed on themselves.

A large part of my motivation, I admit, is the plight of the American farmer. They suffer the damage caused by huge surpluses, while we continue to give cash to nations which are literally dying for food. In many cases this cash is used to bolster the agricultural competition which our farmers increasingly face from abroad. The result is more surpluses, lower prices, and more bankrupt American farmers.

I think that this bill, like my Foreign Agricultural Investment Reform Act, is fair. It will benefit everyone except our economic competition and those who scheme to abuse and squander our foreign aid dollars.●

● Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, it is my pleasure to once again join my distinguished colleague from Idaho, Senator SYMMS, in introducing legislation aimed at correcting an atrocious use of U.S. tax dollars that is working against the American farmer.

Currently, through direct cash tranfers, U.S. tax dollars are being granted to foreign nations to purchase goods that they need. The problem is that this money, our money, is often used by beneficiary nations to purchase from other nations goods and services that are readily available from American industry.

While our grain bins are busting out all over the country, American tax dollars are buying grain from foreign producers. Counter to domestic agriculture policy goals, this process increases surpluses and decreases sales. We must take corrective measures to combat this problem.

The legislation we are introducing today, the Foreign Aid Commodity Incentive Act, amends the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to require foreign economic assistance to be provided with commodities rather than cash transfers when it will best meet the needs of the beneficiary nation. A country that receives a cash transfer is required, to the extent practicable, to purchase goods produced or grown in the United States.

It has been reported that during fiscal year 1987, 61 percent of the economic support funds of $4.183 billion is earmarked for cash transfers. According to General Accounting Office reports on the Philippines and Central America, such transfers result in loss of control by AID leaving no assurance that goods and services purchased will be of U.S. origin. Consequently, the use of cash transfers, while providing foreign exchange to purchase needed products, can result in U.S. tax dollars being used to directly benefit the competition of U.S. industry.

This measure is similar in nature to a bill Senator SYMMS and I introduced last fall, S. 1810, the Foreign Agricultural Investment Reform [FAIR] Act, which curbs the ability of lenders such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund [IMF] to make low-interest loans to foreign nations so they can produce low-priced farm exports. It infuriates me that American tax dollars funneled through international lenders, and now we find out through the Agency for International Development, have helped foreign nations compete with American farmers in export markets.

The legislation that we are proposing requires that when determining the specific needs of recipient nations, the needs of American agriculture and other industry will be considered first and foremost. By using the simple auditing procedure prescribed in this measure, the farmer and the taxpayer in America can be assured that their needs are given proper consideration.

For far too long the agriculture producers of our Nation have been the object of our own Government's bad policies involving foreign aid. It is one thing to assist a neighbor, but it is an entirely different thing when we help our neighbors at our own expense. By adopting this and similar measures, such as the Foreign Agricultural Investment Reform, or FAIR Act, many of the holes in our agricultural economy can be plugged up.

Through this proposed legislation we can monitor the purchases of lender nations, and instead of giving those nations direct cash grants we can give them finished goods and products that will benefit both nations. The Foreign Aid Commodity Incentive Act will require nations that receive U.S. assistance through the Agency for International Development to explore the "buy American" option first.

To summarize, we have an opportunity to correct a serious problem. This legislation will certainly not erase the dilemma faced by the American farmer. It will, however, along with the FAIR Act, cause substantive changes in the current foreign aid system and will return some equity to the American farmer and taxpayer in the world market.●

By Mr. GORE (and Mr. MOYNIHAN):

S. 2608. A bill to prevent homelessness and to provide a comprehensive aid package for homeless individuals; to the Committee on Finance.

HOMELESS PERSONS' SURVIVAL ACT

● Mr. GORE. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation which proposes a comprehensive solution to the tragedy of homelessness in our country. I want to take this opportunity to outline the bill, and urge my colleagues to join me in this initiative.

Recent studies are unanimous in their conclusion that homelessness is growing at a rate not seen since the Great Depression. Estimates from the most well-informed relief agencies place the number of homeless people in the millions. In 1985, a U.S. Conference of Mayors survey found that the homeless population annually increases by 25 percent.

No longer limited to chronic alcoholics and "bag people," homelessness in America now affects as diverse a population as can be found in our country—families with children, the elderly, recently unemployed, mentally and physically disabled, and members from a range of minority groups. These individuals can be found in all regions of the country and in both urban and rural areas.

However strong their commitment, local governments and charities alone cannot meet the alarming, increasing need for more low-cost housing, more effective mental health care, complicated educational placement needs, and other needs of those now or about to become homeless.

The Homeless Persons' Survival Act of 1986 is an effort to address not only the emergency requirements for shelter, but the deeper, structural problems that have made homelessness a national disgrace. The bill is based on the work of a coalition of national organizations with expertise in related areas of homelessness. The bill proposes Federal action to provide emergency relief, preventive measures and long term solutions to the plight of homeless Americans.

This long-term solution realistically addresses the widely recognized primary cause of homelessness: scarcity of low-income housing. The bill attacks this cause by increasing the number of subsidized housing certificates and public housing units now available, and by preserving existing units. In addition, the act provides for the special housing needs of the mentally ill.

If decisive action is not taken, the homeless crisis will continue to grow at an astronomical rate and at large expense. Preventive measures and long-term solutions are inherently more cost-effective in the long run than emergency relief shelters and hotels.

As the number of homeless persons in our country grows uncontrollably, the need for a comprehensive national response intensifies. Mr. President and distinguished Senators, I urge you to seriously consider this legislation and help initiate a responsible, cost-effective solution to a growing problem that is tragic in both human and economic terms.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2608

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Homeless Persons' Survival Act of 1986".

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—

Sec. 1. Short title and table of contents.
Sec. 2. Findings and purposes.
Sec. 3. Definitions.

TITLE I—EMERGENCY RELIEF FOR THE HOMELESS

Subtitle A—Emergency Shelter for the Homeless

Sec. 101. National right to shelter; requirement that emergency assistance be provided, both for needy families with children and for homeless individuals.

Subtitle B—Social Security Assistance to the Homeless

Sec. 111. Outreach to homeless individuals who may be eligible for benefits under OASDI and SSI programs.
Sec. 112. Extension of SSI eligibility for s. 'lter residents.

Subtitle C—Hc_.th and Mental Health Care for the Homeless

Sec. 121. Health services for the homeless.

Subtitle D—Emergency Food for the Homeless

Sec. 131. Food stamp outreach to homeless individuals.
Sec. 132. Meals served to homeless individuals.
Sec. 133. Authorization of appropriations for food storage and distribution costs.

Subtitle E—Emergency Assistance to Homeless Families and Children

Sec. 141. Education for homeless children.
Sec. 142. Temporary shelter for runaway and homeless youth.
Sec. 143. Shelters for homeless parents and infants.

Subtitle F—Job Training for the Homeless

Sec. 151. Amendments to the Job Training Partnership Act.

Subtitle G—Entitlements Eligibility for the Homeless

Sec. 161. Clarification of residency requirement under certain entitlement programs.

TITLE II—PREVENTION OF HOMELESSNESS

Subtitle A—Prevention of Evictions

Sec. 201. Prevention of unnecessary evictions from public and subsidized housing; provision for relocation; demolition or other disposition of public housing.
Sec. 202. Prevention of unnecessary evictions from private rental housing.

Subtitle B—Preservation of Low Income Housing

Sec. 211. Preservation of single room occupancy buildings.
Sec. 212. Continuation and expansion of rural housing programs.

Subtitle C—Prevention of Homelessness of Disabled and Institutionalized Persons

Sec. 221. Eligibility of mentally ill persons for HUD-assisted housing.
Sec. 222. Immediate SSI payments to chronically mentally ill individuals.
Sec. 223. Continuation of full SSI benefits through third month of institutionalization.
Sec. 224. Pre-release procedures for institutionalized persons.
Sec. 225. Single application for SSI and food stamp benefits by SSI pre-release individuals.

Subtitle D—Prevention of Homelessness of Families and Children

Sec. 231. Modification of AFDC deeming rules for dependent children in extended families.
Sec. 232. Foster care maintenance program.

TITLE III—INCREASED LOW INCOME HOUSING

Sec. 301. Increased funding for section 8 existing housing and moderate rehabilitation programs.
Sec. 302. Expansion of newly constructed or substantially rehabilitated public housing units.
Sec. 303. Increase availability of tax-foreclosed property to house the homeless.
Sec. 304. Residential alternatives for the mentally ill homeless.

TITLE IV—EFFECTIVE DATE

Sec. 401. Effective date.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) homelessness in the United States has reached alarming proportions and has become a national emergency;

(2) not since the Great Depression has homelessness in the United States reached the epidemic proportions that it now has among major segments of the population;

(3) in 1984, the Department of Housing and Urban Development estimated that the average annual increase in the homeless population is 10 percent;

(4) in 1985, the United States Conference of Mayors conducted a survey which revealed that the homeless population annually increases by 25 percent;

(5) the homeless population includes growing numbers of families, single men and women, children, and teenagers;

(6) a significant minority of the homeless are mentally disabled and require specialized shelters and housing;

(7) the dimensions of the homelessness crisis have grown, both in numbers and in scope, beyond the capacity of State and local governments to handle without Federal participation;

(8) the range of needs of the homeless require the coordination of specialized services to be provided to them;

(9) it is in the national interest to strengthen existing programs and to create new Federal, State, and local cooperative programs to meet the needs of the homeless population, and to enact measures specifically designed to prevent additional homelessness;

(10) assistance to the homeless should—

(A) be community-based;

(B) include emergency shelter and sustenance;

(C) provide comprehensive support including, but not limited to—

(i) clinical treatment,

(ii) social support services, and

(iii) help in securing entitlements; and

(D) seek to provide lasting solutions to the problems which beset the homeless in the United States, such as arranging for transitional and long-term housing;

(11) the homeless have the right to be free from discrimination on account of transiency or homeless status; and

(12) every Federal agency and every agency or organization which receives Federal financial support is under a duty to ensure that the homeless are accorded the full protection, opportunities, and services guaranteed to them by law.

(b) STATEMENT OF PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to alleviate and eradicate homelessness through short-term emergency relief and long-term preventive measures.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this Act:

(1) HOMELESS INDIVIDUAL.—The term "homeless individual" means any individual who lacks a fixed and adequate nighttime residence, and such term includes any individual whose primary nighttime residence is—

(A) in a publicly or privately operated shelter which provides temporary shelter of any type;

(B) in a street;

(C) in a transportation station;

(D) in an abandoned building;

(E) in a park; or

(F) in any other public or private place not designed for, or ordinarily used as, a regular sleeping accomodation for human beings.

(2) AT RISK OF BECOMING HOMELESS.—The term "at risk of becoming homeless" means, as applied to an individual, that the individual—

(A) lacks a regular and permanent nighttime residence;

(B) lives in temporary makeshift arrangements in the accommodations of others;

(C) lives in institutions of any type without a fixed and adequate place to live upon discharge; or

(D) lives in grossly substandard or grossly inadequate accommodations.

(3) SHELTER.—The term "shelter" means any supervised public or private facility designed to provide temporary living accommodations.

TITLE I—EMERGENCY RELIEF FOR THE HOMELESS

Subtitle A—Emergency Shelter for the Homeless

SEC. 101. NATIONAL RIGHT TO SHELTER; REQUIREMENT THAT EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE BE PROVIDED, BOTH FOR NEEDY FAMILIES WITH CHILDREN AND FOR HOMELESS INDIVIDUALS.

(a) DECLARATION OF ENTITLEMENT.—Every homeless individual is entitled as a matter of right to decent overnight shelter. Programs to effectuate this right, most particularly the emergency assistance program under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act, shall be primarily administered by State governments either directly or through delegation to local governments, utilizing both public facilities and nonprofit providers; and both State and Federal courts shall have jurisdiction to enforce this right in private actions brought by or on behalf of homeless individuals.

(b) EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE MADE MANDATORY.—Section 402(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (38);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (39) and inserting "; and"; and

(3) by inserting immediately after paragraph (39) the following new paragraph:

"(40) provide that the State will furnish emergency assistance to needy families with children and to individuals who are homeless in accordance with section 406(e).".

(c) SCOPE OF ASSISTANCE TO HOMELESS INDIVIDUALS.—Section 406(e) of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(3) Emergency assistance under this subsection shall also be provided to all individuals in the State who are homeless without regard to the durational and eligibility requirements set forth in paragraph (1). Emergency assistance to such individuals may be in any form specified in or under subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1), except that it shall in any event include the provision of adequate food and shelter and counseling concerning social services, including child care, job search assistance, and location of permanent housing; and such assistance shall be furnished in accordance with standards and reimbursement schedules established and prescribed in regulations by the Secretary.".

(e) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 406(e)(1) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "and to homeless individuals" immediately after "needy families with children";

(2) by inserting ", or furnished under subsection (e)(3) in the case of homeless individuals" immediately after "training for employment" in the matter preceding subparagraph (A); and

(3) by striking the semicolon at the end of subparagraph (B) and all that follows and inserting a period.

Subtitle B—Social Security Assistance to the Homeless

SEC. 111. OUTREACH TO HOMELESS INDIVIDUALS WHO MAY BE ELIGIBLE FOR BENEFITS UNDER OASDI AND SSI PROGRAMS.

Part A of title XI of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"OUTREACH TO HOMELESS INDIVIDUALS WHO MAY BE ELIGIBLE FOR OASDI OR SSI BENEFITS

"SEC. 1138. (a) The Secretary shall establish and conduct an ongoing program designed to provide information about benefits under title II and title XVI (including federally administered State supplementary benefits) to homeless individuals.

"(b) In conducting the program under this section, the Secretary shall—

"(1) seek to identify all homeless individuals (not already receiving benefits) who may qualify for any of the benefits referred to in subsection (a);

"(2) ensure that such individuals fully and clearly understand their rights under the programs involved;

"(3) assist such individuals in applying for any benefits for which they may be eligible and in obtaining and providing the information and supporting documents which may be necessary for that purpose; and

"(4) take any and all other actions which may be necessary or appropriate to ensure that all homeless individuals receive the benefits to which they are entitled.

"(c) In recognition of the particular difficulties which homeless individuals experience in understanding their rights and obtaining benefits to which they may be entitled under the programs involved, the Secretary shall require that all district offices of the Social Security Administration schedule regular hours, for the conduct of the activities described in subsection (b), at shelters and local programs that serve the homeless.

"(d) The Secretary shall—

"(1) periodically review the procedures of the Social Security Administration in order to identify and remove any bureaucratic barriers which homeless individuals may face when they file claims for benefits;

"(2) establish procedures to ensure that claims filed by homeless individuals are not dismissed merely because such individuals are unable to provide sufficient or correct information; and

"(3) establish accountability procedures designed to evaluate the performance by the district offices of the Social Security Administration of their functions under this section.

"(e) In carrying out the program under this section, the Secretary shall take such steps as may be necessary to ensure that all forms, notices, pamphlets, and other materials used under such program are written and arranged in a manner which is clear, readable, and suited to the needs of the homeless individuals involved, and that such materials will be distributed where homeless individuals are to be found and will fully and fairly provide such individuals with the information necessary to enable them to assess and understand their rights and to know what if any action is required.

"(f) The Secretary shall from time to time (not less often than annually) submit to the Congress a full and complete report on the program under this section, together with such recommendations as may be deemed appropriate.".

SEC. 112. EXTENSION OF SSI ELIGIBILITY FOR PUBLIC SHELTER RESIDENTS.

Section 1611(e)(1)(D) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "or halfway house" after "public emergency shelter"; and

(2) by striking "; except" and all that follows and inserting a period.

Subtitle C—Health and Mental Health Care for the Homeless

SEC. 121. HEALTH AND MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES FOR THE HOMELESS.

(a) GRANTS.—From the funds appropriated under subsection (h), the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall make grants to qualified entities of the purpose of enabling those entities to deliver outpatient health care, mental health, case management, and advocacy services to homeless individuals and families.

(b) QUALIFICATIONS OF GRANTEES.—In order to receive a grant under this section, an applicant must be a public or private non-profit entity, and must have entered into a contract and qualified to receive payments, under the appropriate State plan approved under title XIX of the Social Security Act. In making grants, the Secretary shall give preference to qualified applicants that have experience in delivering health care or mental health services to medically underserved populations (as defined in section 330(a)(3) of the Public Health Service Act) or to individuals who are chronically mentally ill.

(c) SERVICES FURNISHED UNDER GRANT.—Entities receiving grants under this section must:

(1) provide outpatient health care, mental health, and case management services in locations that are accessible to homeless individuals and families, including shelters and other appropriate community residences;

(2) provide, or make arrangements for the provision of, 24-hour-a-day emergency health and mental health services to homeless individuals and families;

(3) make referrals of homeless individuals or families to hospitals for necessary inpatient services, and assist such individuals and families in obtaining funding for such services through Federal, State, or private sources;

(4) make referrals of homeless individuals diagnosed as having communicable diseases to appropriate local public health agencies for treatment;

(5) provide outreach services to inform homeless individuals and families of the availability of health care and mental health services; and

(6) advocate on behalf of homeless individuals and families to assure that health care resources are made available from public and private sources to meet the health and mental health needs of such individuals.

(d) LIMITATION ON CHARGES FOR SERVICES.—Entities receiving grants under this section must provide health care and mental health services, within the limits of its capacity, to any homeless individual or family regardless of ability to pay for such services. If any entity receiving grants under this section imposes charges for health care services furnished under the grant, such charges—

(1) must be pursuant to a public schedule of charges;

(2) may not be imposed with respect to homeless individuals or families whose income is below the nonfarm income official poverty line defined by the Office of Management and Budget (and revised annually in accordance with section 673(2) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981); and

(3) must be adjusted to reflect the income and resources of the homeless individual or family provided the services.

(e) USE OF GRANT FUNDS.—Funds provided under a grant under this section may not be used for any of the following purposes:

(1) to provide services other than outpatient health care, mental health care, case management, and advocacy;

(2) to make cash payments to homeless individuals or other intended recipients of services;

(3) to purchase or improve land, purchase, construct, or permanently improve (other than minor remodeling) any building or other facility, or purchase major medical equipment, unless the Secretary finds, based on a showing of exceptional circumstances, that a waiver of the requirement in this paragraph will is essential to carrying out the purposes of this section; and

(4) to satisfy any requirement for the expenditure of non-Federal funds as a condition for the receipt of Federal funds.

(f) REQUIREMENT FOR NON-FEDERAL MATCHING.—A grant to an entity under this section may not exceed 75 percent of the cost of the services for which the grant is made. Non-Federal contributions required by this paragraph may be in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated, including plant, equipment, or services, but not including amounts provided by the Federal Government or services assisted or subsidized by the Federal Government.

(g) OTHE TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF GRANT.—No grant may be approved under this section unless an application therefor has been submitted to, and approved by, the Secretary. Such application shall be in such form, be submitted in such manner, and contain and be accompanied by such information as the Secretary may specify. No such application may be approved unless it contains assurances that—

(1) the applicant will use the funds provided only for the purposes specified in the approved application;

(2) the applicant will establish such fiscal control and fund accounting procedures as may be necessary to assure proper disbursement and accounting of Federal funds paid to the applicant under this section;

(3) the applicant will establish an ongoing quality assurance program respecting services furnished under the grant and will maintain the confidentiality of patient records;

(4) in the case of an applicant for a project which will serve a homeless population including a substantial proportion of individuals of limited English-speaking ability, the applicant has (A) developed a plan and made arrangements responsive to the needs of such population for providing services to the extent practicable in the language and cultural context most appropriate to such individuals, and (B) identified an individual on its staff who is fluent in both that language and in English and whose responsibilities shall include providing guidance to such individuals and to appropriate staff members with respect to cultural sensitivities and bridging linguistic and cultural differences; and

(5) the applicant will report to the Secretary annually on the utilization, cost, and outcome of services furnished under the grant.

(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For grants under subsection (a), there are authorized to be appropriated $140,000,000 for fiscal year 1987.

Subtitle D—Emergency Food for the Homeless

SEC. 131. FOOD STAMP OUTREACH TO HOMELESS INDIVIDUALS.

(a) OUTREACH PERMITTED.—Section 11(e)(1)(A) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2020(e)(1)(A)) is amended by inserting after "Act" the following: ", except food stamp outreach activities directed at households that do not reside in permanent dwellings and households that have no fixed mailing addresses".

(b) ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—The first sentence of section 16(a) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2025(a)) is amended by striking "and (4) fair hearings" and inserting "(4) fair hearings, and (5) outreach activities directed to the homeless".

SEC. 132. MEALS SERVED TO HOMELESS INDIVIDUALS.

(a) DEFINITION OF FOOD.—Section 3(g) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2012(g)) is amended—

(1) in clause (1), by striking "and (8)" and inserting "(8), and (9)";

(2) by striking "and" at the end of clause (7); and

(3) by inserting before the period at the end the following: ", and (9) in the case of households that do not reside in permanent dwellings and households that have no fixed mailing addresses (including residents in temporary shelters), meals prepared for and served by public or private nonprofit establishments (eating or otherwise) that feed such individuals, by private establishments that contract with the appropriate State agency to offer meals to such individuals at concessional prices, and by public or private nonprofit shelters in which such households temporarily reside and that do not require such households to pay more for such meals than other individuals are required to pay for such meals".

(b) DEFINITION OF HOUSEHOLD.—The last sentence of section 3(i) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 2012(i)) is amended by inserting after "battered women and children," the following: "individuals who do not reside in permanent dwellings or have no fixed mailing addresses,".

(c) DEFINITION OF RETAIL FOOD STORE.—Section 3(k)(2) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 2012(k)(2)) is amended by striking "and (8)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(8), and (9)".

(d) REDEMPTION OF COUPONS.—The first sentence of section 10 of such Act (7 U.S.C. 2019) is amended—

(1) by striking "and" after "battered women and children,"; and

(2) by inserting after "blind residents" the following: ", and public or private nonprofit establishments, private establishments that contract with the appropriate State agency, or public or private nonprofit shelters that feed individuals who do not reside in permanent dwellings and individuals who have no fixed mailing addresses".

SEC. 133. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR FOOD STORAGE AND DISTRIBUTION COSTS.

Section 204(c)(1) of the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Act of 1983 (7 U.S.C. 612c note) is amended by striking "$50,000,000 for each of the fiscal years ending September 30, 1986, and September 30, 1987," and inserting "$50,000,000 for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1986, and $100,000,000 for each of the fiscal years ending September 30, 1987, through September 30, 1989,".

Subtitle E—Emergency Assistance to Homeless Families and Children

SEC. 141. EDUCATION FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN.

Subpart 3 of part C of the General Education Provisions Act is amended by inserting after section 436 the following new section:

"EDUCATION FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN REQUIRED

"SEC. 436A. (a) No State or local educational agency may receive assistance under any applicable program unless such State or local educational agency has complied with the requirements of this section with respect to providing free public education to homeless children.

"(b)(1) Each State educational agency shall adopt and implement a plan to ensure that each homeless child within the State is provided full and equal educational opportunities.

"(2) Each local educational agency shall ensure that school social workers, attendance workers, or other qualified personnel interview families and children in shelters or other temporary housing within the school district of such agency in order to determine the educational needs of homeless children.

"(c)(1) No State or local residency requirement may be applied so as to bar any homeless child from attending school.

"(2) The local educational agency of each homeless child shall either—

"(A) continue the child's education in the school district of origin for the remainder of the school year; or

"(B) enroll the child in the school district where the child is actually living; whichever is in the child's best interest.

"(3) The choice required by paragraph (2) shall be available regardless of whether the child is living with the homeless parents or has been temporarily placed elsewhere by the parents.

"(d) Each homeless child shall be provided adequate transportation to the school selected according to the provisions of subsection (c).

"(e) The records of each homeless child shall be maintained—

"(1) so that the records are immediately available when a child enters a new school district; and

"(2) in a manner consistent with section 438 of this Act.

"(f) Each local educational agency shall ensure that each homeless child may participate in all educational programs and services, including special programs for handicapped, disadvantaged, and for students with limited English proficient; programs in vocational education; programs for the gifted and talented; and school meals programs.".

SEC. 142. TEMPORARY SHELTER FOR RUNAWAY AND HOMELESS YOUTH.

(a) DEFINITION OF "PROVIDING TEMPORARY SHELTER".—Section 312(a) of the Runaway and Homeless Youth Act is amended by adding at the end the following: "For purposes of this subsection, 'providing temporary shelter' means providing shelter until permanent shelter can be provided elsewhere.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect on October 1, 1986, and shall not apply with respect to assistance provided before such date under the Runaway and Homeless Youth Act.

SEC. 143. SHELTERS FOR HOMELESS PARENTS AND INFANTS.

The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall make grants to private, nonprofit organizations for the establishment or expansion of shelters for homeless parents and their newborn infants.

Subtitle F—Job Training for the Homeless

SEC. 151. AMENDMENTS TO THE JOB TRAINING PARTNERSHIP ACT.

(a) DEFINITION OF ECONOMICALLY DISADVANTAGED TO INCLUDE HOMELESS.—Section 4(8) of the Job Training Partnership Act (29 U.S.C. 1503(8)) is amended—

(1) by striking "or" at the end of subclause (D); and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of subclause (E) the following: "; or (F) is a homeless individual".

(b) SERVICE LOCATIONS TO BE CONVENIENT TO HOMELESS.—Section 107(a) of such Act (29 U.S.C. 1517(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following: "Proper consideration shall also be given to the extent to which the service provider will provide services in locations that are convenient to homeless individuals.".

(c) INCLUDING HOMELESS AMONG THOSE ENCOUNTERING BARRIERS TO EMPLOYMENT.—Section 203(a)(2) of such Act (29 U.S.C. 1603(a)(2)) is amended by inserting "homeless individuals," after "veterans,".

Subtitle G—Entitlements Eligibility for the Homeless

SEC. 161. CLARIFICATION OF RESIDENCY REQUIREMENT UNDER CERTAIN ENTITLEMENT PROGRAMS.

(a) UNDER AFDC PROGRAM.—Section 402 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(f) The lack of a permanent address shall not prevent any individual or family from being eligible for aid under the State plan or from receiving such aid. The State agency shall provide a method of receiving applications for aid under the plan, processing such applications and any claims which may arise in connection therewith, and making payments of such aid with respect to eligible individuals and families who do not reside in permanent dwellings or have fixed mailing addresses.".

(b) UNDER SSI PROGRAM.—Section 1611 of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"Lack of Permanent Address Not To Affect Eligibility

"(i) The lack of a permanent address shall not prevent any individual from being eligible for benefits under this title or from receiving such benefits. The Secretary shall provide a method of receiving applications for benefits under this title, processing such applications and any claims that may arise in connection therewith, and making payments of such benefits with respect to eligible individuals (and eligible spouses) who do not reside in permanent dwellings or have fixed mailing addresses.".

(c) UNDER MEDICAID PROGRAM.—Section 1902(b)(2) of such Act is amended by inserting before the semicolon the following: ", regardless of whether or not the residence is maintained permanently or at a fixed address"

(d) UNDER VETERANS' PENSION PROGRAMS.—Section 3020(a) of title 38, United States Code (relating to payment and delivery of veterans' benefits), is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "The Veterans Administration shall design and implement a plan for transmittal or delivery of benefit checks to veterans who have no fixed or permanent address.".

(e) UTILIZATION OF SHELTER PERSONNEL.—In developing a method of receiving and processing the applications of homeless individuals pursuant to sections 402(f), 1611(i), and 1502(b)(2) of the Social Security Act and section 3020(a) of title 38, United States Code, the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs shall give consideration to training and utilizing the personnel of shelters and other entities serving the homeless to receive and process such applications.

TITLE II—PREVENTION OF HOMELESSNESS

Subtitle A—Prevention of Evictions and Foreclosures

SEC. 201. PREVENTION OF UNNECESSARY EVICTIONS FROM PUBLIC AND SUBSIDIZED HOUSING; PROVISION FOR RELOCATION; DEMOLITION OR OTHER DISPOSITION OF PUBLIC HOUSING.

(a) CONDITIONS TO BE MET BEFORE EVICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Before any owner or manager of any federally assisted rental housing project in any State may institute an eviction action for nonpayment of rent against any tenant in such housing project, the local public housing authority shall—

(A) review the tenant's situation and verify that the tenant's rent has been accurately computed and assessed;

(B) notify the tenant of any rental payment or relocation assistance which may be available through the State or local office of public assistance, or other sources such as the program of emergency assistance to needy families with children under section 406(e) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 606(e)), and the Federal Emergency Management Agency; and

(C) after performing the duty imposed under subparagraph (A), take reasonable steps to assist the tenant in relocating the tenant in emergency shelter if the tenant would otherwise become homeless.

(2) REGULATIONS.—Within 30 days after the effective date of this Act, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall issue such regulations as may be necessary to ensure compliance with paragraph (1) with respect to any housing assisted by the Secretary under the United States Housing Act of 1937, section 236 of the National Housing Act, or section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

(b) DEMOLITION OR OTHER DISPOSITION OF PUBLIC HOUSING.—

(1) Section 18(a)(1) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking "or " after "purposes," and inserting "and".

(2) Section 18(b) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended—

(A) by striking "and " at the end of paragraph (1);

(B) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting "; and"; and

(C) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(3) the public housing agency has developed a plan for the addition of public housing dwelling units in an aggregate number equal to the number of such units proposed to be demolished or disposed under such application, and the Secretary has agreed to provide funding for such plan if necessary, except that (A) such 1-for-1 replacement requirement shall not apply if there is no local need for low-income housing as determined by the agency and the Secretary, after notification of and comments from the tenant and other interested parties; and (B) if necessary funding for public housing dwelling units is not available, project-based dwelling units assisted under section 8 may be substituted.".

SEC. 202. PREVENTION OF UNNECESSARY EVICTIONS FROM PRIVATE RENTAL HOUSING.

(a) GRANT PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall, to the extent approved in appropriation Acts, contract to make, and make, grants available to local governmental units for the purpose of providing emergency rent relief payments to landlords on behalf of tenants who face eviction due to temporary financial difficulties.

(b) RENTAL ASSISTANCE PAYMENTS.—

(1) AUTHORITY OF LOCAL GOVERNMENTAL UNITS TO MAKE RENT PAYMENTS TO LANDLORDS ON BEHALF OF CERTAIN TENANTS.—Any local governmental unit which receives any grant under subsection (a) shall use such grant to make emergency rent relief payments in accordance with paragraph (2), to landlords on behalf of tenants who meet the requirements of subsection (c) and who apply for such assistance. Not to exceed 5 percent of such grants may be used to cover administrative costs.

(2) AUTHORITY OF LOCAL GOVERNMENTAL UNITS TO DETERMINE PAYMENTS.—Local governmental units may determine the amounts necessary to be paid to any landlord under paragraph (1) on behalf of any tenant, beyond the amounts, if any, that the tenant is able to contribute toward rent payments, subject to the following conditions and limitations:

(A) MAXIMUM OF TOTAL RENT DUE.—The total amount of any payment shall not exceed the total amount of rent due the landlord from the tenant.

(B) INITIAL PAYMENT NOT TO EXCEED 3 MONTHS RENT.—The initial payment may include an amount necessary to make the payments of such rent current, except that such amount may not exceed an amount equal to 3 monthly rent payments of the tenant.

(C) MINIMUM AMOUNT TO BE PAID.—Payments are to be designed to ensure that the total monthly housing expense of the tenant does not exceed 30 percent of the monthly net effective income of the tenant.

(D) MAXIMUM OF 12 CONSECUTIVE MONTHLY PAYMENTS.—Payments are not to be made for a continuous period of more than 12 months.

(E) MAXIMUM OF 20 MONTHLY PAYMENTS OVERALL.—Payments are not to be made for an aggregate of more than 20 months.

(F) TERMINATION OF PAYMENTS.—Payments are to be terminated when the local governmental unit determines that changes in the financial circumstances of such tenant render such payments no longer necessary to prevent eviction of the tenant.

(3) EXPEDITIOUS PROCESSING OF APPLICATIONS.—Any local governmental unit which receives any grant under subsection (a) shall, within 21 days after the receipt of any application for rental assistance under subsection (b), notify the tenant and landlord involved of its determination to approve or disapprove the application. If the processing takes longer than 21 days, the application shall be automatically approved.

(4) ACCEPTANCE OF RENTAL ASSISTANCE PAYMENT BY LANDLORD IS A WAIVER OF CLAIMS AGAINST TENANT FOR NONPAYMENT OF RENT.—Any landlord who accepts any payment of assistance under paragraph (1) which covers the outstanding claims of the landlord waives the right to institute or continue eviction proceedings that are based on a claim of nonpayment of rent for any period before the date of the payment.

(5) REPAYMENT OF ASSISTANCE BY TENANTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Payments made under paragraph (1) on behalf of any tenant shall be repayable to the Secretary by the tenant on terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary consistent with this subsection.

(B) MAXIMUM AMOUNT.—Any local governmental unit which receives any grant under subsection (a) shall ensure that the monthly repayment amount for any tenant making repayments under subparagraph (A) is calculated so that the sum of the monthly repayment amount and the total monthly housing expense of the tenant is at most 30 percent of the monthly net effective income of the tenant.

(C) INTEREST CHARGES.—

(i) ESTABLISHED BY SECRETARY.—The Secretary may establish interest charges on payments made under paragraph (1), taking into consideration the average interest rate on all interest-obligations of the United States then forming a part of the public debt, computed at the end of the month preceding the month in which the initial payment is to be made on behalf of the tenant.

(ii) ACCRUAL.—Interest charges on any payments made under paragraph (1) shall not begin to accrue until termination of the payments.

(6) DEPOSITED IN EMERGENCY RENT RELIEF FUND.—Amounts received by the Secretary from any local governmental unit as repayments under paragraph (5) or as interest on assistance payments made under paragraph (1), shall be deposited in the account of the local governmental unit in the Emergency 71-059 O-87 20 ?

Rent Relief Fund established in subsection (h).

(7) MONITORING OF TENANT'S ABILITY TO PAY.—The Secretary shall establish procedures for any tenant on whose behalf payments are made under paragraph (1), and any tenant who is to make repayments under paragraph (5), to inform the local governmental unit making such payments, or receiving such repayments, of any significant increase or decrease in the income of the tenant.

(8) PERIODIC REVIEW OF TENANT'S FINANCIAL CIRCUMSTANCES.—The Secretary shall establish procedures to be followed by local governmental units for reviewing, not less frequently than annually, the financial circumstances of any tenant on whose behalf payments are to be made under paragraph (1), and any tenant who is to make repayments under paragraph (5), to determine whether such payments or repayments should be adjusted or terminated.

(c) ELIGIBILITY FOR ASSISTANCE.—Any local governmental unit which receives any grant under subsection (a) shall make rental assistance payments under subsection (b) to any landlord on behalf of any tenant if it has determined that all of the following requirements have been met:

(1) LANDLORD HAS NOTIFIED TENANT OF INTENT TO EVICT TENANT FOR NONPAYMENT OF RENT.—The landlord has notified the tenant that the landlord intends to evict the tenant for nonpayment of rent.

(2) RENTAL PROPERTY IS TENANT'S PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE.—The rental property involved is the principal residence of the tenant.

(3) RENT IS AT MOST THE MEDIAN RENT FOR UNITS IN THE AREA OF SIMILAR SIZE RENTED IN LAST 2 YEARS.—The monthly rent payable by the tenant is at most the median rent paid for rental units of the same size by tenants who moved into or within the area in which the local governmental unit is located during the most recently completed period of at most 24 months for which such data is available.

(4) RENT IS DELINQUENT DUE TO EVENTS OUTSIDE CONTROL OF TENANT.—Events outside the control of the tenant have rendered the tenant unable to—

(A) correct a rent payment delinquency within a reasonable time, and

(B) resume full rent payments.

(5) PAYMENT IS NECESSARY TO PREVENT EVICTION.—The payment is necessary to prevent eviction of the tenant.

(6) PAYMENTS WILL PROBABLY BE TEMPORARY.—There is a reasonable likelihood that the tenant will resume full rent payments—

(A) within 12 months after the beginning of the period for which payments under subsection (b) are to be provided, or

(B) on termination of assistance under such subsection.

(7) TENANT INCOME OR HOUSING CHARACTERISTICS.—The tenant—

(A) has an income not to exceed 80 per centum of the median income for the area, as determined by the Secretary with adjustments for smaller and larger families;

(B) has suffered a precipitous loss of income beyond the tenant's control; or

(C) is likely to become homeless, as determined by the Public Housing Agency.

(d) APPLICATIONS FOR ASSISTANCE BY TENANTS.—

(1) LANDLORDS MUST NOTIFY QUALIFIED TENANTS.—Each landlord shall before instituting eviction proceedings against any tenant who meets the requirements of subsection (c)(2) provide actual notice to the tenant of the availability of assistance under subsection (b).

(2) LANDLORDS CANNOT BEGIN EVICTION PROCEEDINGS UNLESS LOCAL GOVERNMENTAL UNIT DISAPPROVES APPLICATION.—Eviction proceedings may not proceed against any tenant who meets the requirements of subsection (c)(2) and submits an application for assistance under subsection (b), before the landlord has been notified by the local governmental unit involved that the tenant's application has been disapproved.

(3) SUBMISSION OF APPLICATION STAYS EVICTION PROCEEDINGS UNTIL LOCAL GOVERNMENTAL UNIT DISAPPROVES APPLICATION.—The submission of an application for assistance by any tenant who meets the requirements of subsection (c)(2), after eviction proceedings have begun shall automatically stay the proceedings until receipt of notification of disapproval of such application.

(e) EFFECT OF LANDLORD NONCOMPLIANCE.—

(1) ENJOINMENT OF EVICTION PROCEEDINGS.—Any eviction proceeding in any State shall be enjoined on proof of failure to comply with paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (d).

(2) PROHIBITION ON JUDICIAL APPROVAL OF EVICTION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), in any State which requires judicial approval of eviction, compliance with paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (d) shall be pleaded and proved before such approval may be given with respect to any tenant eligible for assistance under subsection (b).

(B) EXCEPTION IN CASE OF TENANTS REFUSING TO APPLY FOR ASSISTANCE.—Proof of the refusal of any tenant eligible for assistance under subsection (b) to submit an application for such assistance shall satisfy the burden of proof established in subparagraph (A).

(f) ALLOCATION OF GRANTS TO LOCAL GOVERNMENTAL UNITS.—

(1) ALLOCATION FORMULA.—The Secretary shall allocate the amounts to be made available under subsection (a) so that the aggregate amount allocated to local governmental units in any State shall be equal to the sum of—

(A)(i) the ratio of the number of unemployed persons in the State to the number of unemployed persons in the United States, multiplied by

(ii) ⅓ of the amount appropriated under the authority established in this section;

(B)(i) the ratio of the population of the State to the population of the United States, multiplied by

(ii) ⅓ of the amount so appropriated; and

(C)(i) the ratio of the extent of poverty in the State to the extent of poverty of the United States, multiplied by

(ii) ⅓ of the amount so appropriated.

(2) APPLICATION FOR GRANTS.—Applications for grants under subsection (a) shall be made by local governmental units in such form, and according to such procedures, as the Secretary shall prescribe.

(3) RULES FOR CONSIDERATION OF APPLICATIONS.—In considering applications for grants under subsection (a), the Secretary shall take into account—

(A) the degree of demonstrated need in the local governmental unit; and

(B) the capacity of the local governmental unit to administer the program of assistance under this section.

(4) PROCESSING OF APPLICATIONS.—The Secretary shall process applications for grants under subsection (a) as expeditiously as possible, and shall make such grants within 60 days after the effective date of the regulations issued by the Secretary under subsection (g).

(g) AUTHORITY OF THE SECRETARY.—Within 90 days after the effective date of this Act, the Secretary shall issue such regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section.

(h) EMERGENCY RENT RELIEF FUND.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is hereby established in the Treasury of the United States a revolving fund, to be known as the Emergency Rent Relief Fund.

(2) COMPOSITION OF FUND.—The Fund shall consist of—

(A) any amount approved in appropriation Acts for purposes of carrying out this section;

(B) any amount received by the Secretary as repayment for payments made under subsection (b);

(C) any amount collected by the Secretary under subsection (g)(2)(A); and

(D) any amount received by the Secretary from investments made under paragraph (4).

(3) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Amounts in the Fund by reason of subsection (b)(6) or (g)(2)(A), or by reason of investments made under paragraph (4), shall, to the extent provided in appropriation Acts, be used by the Secretary to make grants to local governmental units—

(A) for the making of emergency rent relief payments to landlords on behalf of tenants under subsection (b); and

(B) for the administrative expenses associated with the making of such payments not to exceed 5 percent of the funds authorized for this section.

(4) INVESTMENT OF SURPLUS FUNDS.—Any amount in any account of the Fund determined by the Secretary to be more than the amount required to be in such account during the next 12 months to carry out this section shall be invested by the Secretary in obligations of, or guaranteed as to both principal and interest by, the United States or any agency of the United States.

(i) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Within 60 days after the effective date of this Act, and not less frequently than every 90 days thereafter, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress a report on—

(1) the then current rate of rent payment delinquencies and evictions in the rental housing market areas of the Nation of immediate concern if the purposes of this section are to be achieved; and

(2) actions taken and actions likely to be taken with respect to making assistance under this section available to alleviate hardships resulting from any serious rates of delinquencies and evictions.

(j) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section:

(1) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

(2) LOCAL GOVERNMENTAL UNIT.—The term "local governmental unit" means any borough, city, county, parish, town, township, village, or other general purpose political subdivision of a State.

(3) TOTAL MONTHLY HOUSING EXPENSE OF THE TENANT.—The term "total monthly housing expense of the tenant" means the sum of—

(A) the monthly rent payment due by the tenant; and

(B) the average monthly utility costs of the tenant with respect to the tenant's dwelling unit.

(4) INCOME OF THE TENANT.—The term "monthly net effective income of the tenant" means the the tenant's adjusted income, as defined in section 3(b)(5) of the United States Housing Act of 1937.

(5) STATE.—The term "State" means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and any other territory or possession of the United States.

(6) FUND.—The term "Fund" means the Emergency Rent Relief Fund established in subsection (h).

(k) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—To carry out this section there is authorized to be appropriated $250,000,000 for fiscal year 1987. Any amount so appropriated shall be deposited in the Fund and shall remain available until expended.

(l) BORROWING AUTHORITY.—To carry out the purposes of this section, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may issue to the Secretary of the Treasury notes or other obligations to the extent approved in appropriation Acts, in such forms and denominations, bearing such maturities, and subject to such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. Such notes or other obligations shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the average interest rate on all interest-bearing obligations of the United States then forming a part of the public debt, computed at the end of the fiscal year next preceding the date on which the loan is made. The Secretary of the Treasury shall purchase any notes and obligations issued hereunder and for that purpose the Secretary of the Treasury may use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under chapter 31 of title 31, United States Code; and the purposes for which securities may be issued under such chapter are extended to include any purchase of such notes or other obligations. The Secretary of the Treasury may at any time sell any of the notes or other obligations acquired by the Secretary of the Treasury under this section. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes or other obligations shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may not issue notes or other obligations to the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to this section except as approved in appropriation Acts.

Subtitle B—Preservation of Low Income Housing

SEC. 211. PRESERVATION OF SINGLE ROOM OCCUPANCY BUILDINGS.

(a) RECEIPT OF CERTAIN FEDERAL FUNDS CONDITIONED ON PRESERVATION OF SRO'S.—

(1) COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS.—Section 104(c) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 is amended by inserting "and the number of properties in which some or all of the units lack bathroom or kitchen facilities suitable to meet the needs of homeless individuals and families" after "abandoned dwelling units" in paragraph (1)(A).

(2) URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACTION GRANTS.—Section 119 of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(s) No assistance may be provided under this section for projects which would result in the closing or removal from service or demolition of residential property in which some or all of the dwelling units lack bathroom or kitchen facilities.".

(b) ADDITIONAL ALLOCATION OF SECTION 8 CERTIFICATES.—

(1) EXISTING HOUSING PROGRAM.—In addition to the amount of budget authority provided for section 8(b)(1) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 in appropriation Acts for fiscal year 1987, the Secretary may reserve authority to enter into contracts for annual contributions obligations aggregating not more than $25,710,000 for the preservation of private residential property in which some or all of the dwelling units lack bathroom or kitchen facilities.

(2) MODERATE REHABILITATION PROGRAM.—In addition to the amount of budget authority provided for section 8(e)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 in appropriation Acts for fiscal year 1987, the Secretary may reserve authority to enter into contracts for annual contributions aggregating not more than $30,750,000 for the preservation of private residential property in which some or all of the dwelling units lack bathroom or kitchen facilities.

(3) ELIGIBILITY FOR SECTION 8.—The second sentence of section 3(b)(3) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting ", except units assisted under section 8" before the period.

SEC. 212. CONTINUATION AND EXPANSION OF RURAL HOUSING PROGRAMS.

(a) FUNDING.—Section 513(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"(c) The Secretary may, to the extent approved in appropriation Acts, enter into rental assistance contracts under section 521(a)(2)(A) aggregating not more than $300,000,000 during fiscal year 1987."

(b) RESTRICTIONS ON DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY IN FmHA INVENTORY.—Section 510(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting before "unless (1)" the following: "on the private housing market unless the Secretary first offers such property to persons eligible for assistance under this title, and, if any such property remains available after such offering, offers such property for sale to public or private nonprofit organizations for rehabilitation with financing under this title or through other public or private financing, on the condition that only low income families or persons or very low-income families or persons will be thereby assisted, and, if any such property still remains available, makes such property available for use as shelter for the homeless to the extent there is a need for such shelter, and".

Subtitle C—Prevention of Homelessness of Disabled and Institutionalized Persons

SEC. 221. ELIGIBILITY OF MENTALLY ILL PERSONS FOR HUD-ASSISTED HOUSING.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall withdraw regulations, proposed before the date of enactment of this Act, under section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794), and issue revised rules under such section consistent with the nondiscrimination policy of such section.

SEC. 222. IMMEDIATE SSI PAYMENTS TO CHRONICALLY MENTALLY ILL INDIVIDUALS.

Section 1631(a)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end (after and below subparagraph (B)) the following: "For purposes of subparagraph (B), any individual who is chronically mentally ill, as determined in accordance with regulations of the Secretary on the basis of definitions prescribed by qualified medical and mental health experts, shall be considered to be presumptively disabled and shall be so certified by the Secretary. Any such certification shall be effective for a period of 6 months from the date it is issued.".

SEC. 223. CONTINUATION OF FULL SSI BENEFITS THROUGH THIRD MONTH OF INSTITUTIONALIZATION.

Section 1611(e)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A), by striking "and (D)" and inserting "(D), and (E)";

(2) in subparagraph (B), by inserting "(subject to subparagraph (E))" after "throughout any month"; and

(3) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(E) A person may be an eligible individual or eligible spouse for purposes of this title, and subparagraph (B) shall not apply, with respect to any particular month throughout which he or she is in a hospital, extended care facility, nursing home, or intermediate care facility or community residence receiving payments (with respect to such individual or spouse) under a State plan approved under title XIX, if—

"(i) such person (upon his or her admission to the institution involved) may reasonably be expected to be institutionalized for a period of 3 months or less, as determined on the basis of a physician's certification;

"(ii) the particular month involved is one of the first 3 months throughout which such person is in the institution during a continuous period of institutionalization;

"(iii) such person is chronically mentally ill (as defined by the Secretary in regulations); and

"(iv) such person (alone or with his or her spouse), throughout the particular month involved, continues to maintain and provide for the expenses of a personal residence to which he or she may return upon discharge from the institution.".

SEC. 224. PRE-RELEASE PROCEDURES FOR INSTITUTIONALIZED PERSONS.

Section 1631 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"Pre-Release Procedures for Institutionalized Persons

"(j)(1) The Secretary shall provide for the establishment, maintenance, and improvement of procedures designed to ease the transition of institutionalized persons from medical, penal, and other institutions to the community, and to prevent homelessness, by permitting such persons to apply for benefits under this title prior to their discharge or release from such institutions and thereby assuring that essential support (such as housing, food, and clothing) is available to them upon such discharge or release.

"(2) Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, the procedures described in paragraph (1) shall—

"(A) require that personnel of the district offices of the Social Security Administration, and of the appropriate State disability determination services, make regular visits to all institutions of the types involved to receive and process applications for benefits under this title;

"(B) provide for the development of descriptive materials on such procedures for use by such district offices and by social service departments in such institutions;

"(C) provide training for employees in such district offices; and

"(D) establish time limits within which State agencies must complete their processing of applications filed pursuant to such procedures.".

SEC. 225. SINGLE APPLICATION FOR SSI AND FOOD STAMP BENEFITS BY SSI PRE-RELEASE INDIVIDUALS.

Section 11 of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2020) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(p) The Secretary and the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall develop a system under which an individual applying for supplemental security income benefits under title XVI of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1381 et seq.) prior to the discharge or release of the individual from a public institution under the pre-release program established under section 1635 of such Act shall also be permitted to apply for participation in the food stamp program by executing a single application.".

Subtitle D—Prevention of Homelessness of Families and Children

SEC. 231. MODIFICATION OF AFDC DEEMING RULES FOR DEPENDENT CHILDREN IN EXTENDED FAMILIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 402(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) in paragraph (31)—

(A) by striking all beginning with "(or such" through "the month");

(B) by striking "(B)" and inserting "(C) 185 percent of";

(2) by adding "and" at the end of paragraph (36);

(3) by striking "; and" at the end of paragraph (37) and inserting a period; and

(4) by striking paragraphs (38) and (39).

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 402(a)(7) of such Act is amended by striking "or (31)" in the matter preceding subparagraph (A).

SEC. 232. FOSTER CARE MAINTENANCE PROGRAM.

Section 472 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(i) Foster care maintenance payments may be made under this part on behalf of any child otherwise qualified for such payments, up to the age of 21, so long as such child meets the requirements of subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of section 406(a)(2) (as applied in the State involved) or is participating in an independent living program established under section 477 or in another supervised independent living program approved by the Secretary for purposes of this section.".

TITLE III—INCREASED LOW INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 301. INCREASED FUNDING FOR SECTION 8 EXISTING HOUSING AND MODERATE REHABILITATION PROGRAMS.

(a) EXISTING HOUSING PROGRAM.—Section 5(c) of the Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(8) Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection and in addition to any authority to enter into contracts contained in any other provision of this subsection, the Secretary may, to the extent provided in advance in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts under section 8(b)(1) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 to assist 100,000 additional families occupying existing dwelling units each year for 15 years. The authority contained in the preceding sentence shall cease to be effective on the expiration of 15 years after the effective date of the Homeless Persons' Survival Act of 1986.".

(b) MODERATE REHABILITATION PROGRAM.—Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(9) Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection and in addition to any authority to enter into contracts contained in any other provision of this subsection, the Secretary may, to the extent provided in advance in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts under section 8(e)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 to assist 40,000 additional families occupying existing dwelling units each year for 15 years. The authority contained in the preceding sentence shall cease to be effective on the expiration of 15 years after the effective date of the Homeless Persons' Survival Act of 1986.".

(c) MANAGEMENT AND PRESERVATION OF HUD-OWNED MULTIFAMILY HOUSING PROJECTS.—

(1) GOALS.—Section 203(a) of the Housing and Community Development Amendments of 1978 is amended by striking "(a)" and all that follows through the semicolon at the end of paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

"(a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereinafter in this section referred to as the 'Secretary') shall manage and dispose of multifamily housing projects that are owned by the Secretary, or whose mortgages are held by, assigned to, or being foreclosed upon by the Secretary, in a manner that is consistent with the National Housing Act and this section and that will, in the least costly fashion among the reasonable alternatives available, further the goals of—

"(1) preserving so that they are available to, and affordable by, low- and moderate-income persons—

"(A) all units in multifamily housing projects that are formerly subsidized projects; and

"(B) in all other multifamily housing projects, at least those units that are, on the date of assignment, occupied by low- and moderate-income persons or vacant;".

(2) MANAGEMENT SERVICES.—Section 203(b)(2) of such Act is amended by striking ", owned by the Secretary" and inserting "to which subsection (a) applies".

(3) MAINTAINING OF PROJECTS.—Section 203(c) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(c) The Secretary shall—

"(1) to the greatest extent possible, maintain all occupied multifamily housing projects to which subsection (a) applies in a decent, safe, and sanitary condition;

"(2) to the greatest extent possible, maintain full occupancy in all such projects; and

"(3) maintain all such projects for purposes of providing rental or cooperative housing for the longest feasible period.".

(4) FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—Section 203 of such Act is amended—

(A) by redesignating subsections (d) through (g) as subsections (e) through (h), respectively; and

(B) by inserting after subsection (c) the following new subsection:

"(d) In carrying out the goals specified in subsection (a)(1) the Secretary shall, to the extent provided in appropriation Acts, take one or both of the following actions:

"(1) Enter into contracts under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 with owners of multifamily housing projects that are acquired at foreclosure or after sale by the Secretary. Such contracts shall be attached to the project involved for a period of not less than 15 years and shall be sufficient to assist all units that are occupied by lower income families eligible for assistance under such section 8 at the time of foreclosure or sale, as the case may be, or that are vacant at such time (which units shall forthwith be made available for such families). In order to make available to families any units that are occupied by persons not eligible for assistance under such section 8, but that subsequently become vacant, the contract shall also provide that when any such vacancy occurs the owner involved shall apply to the Secretary for additional assistance to the project involved under the same terms as the original assistance. The Secretary shall provide such contracts at fair market rents that, consistent with subsection (a), provide for the rehabilitation of such project and do not exceed the most recently adjusted fair market rents for substantially rehabilitated units published by the Secretary in the Federal Register. Such contracts shall not be subject to section 16 of the United States Housing Act of 1937.

"(2) Provide purchase-money mortgages to the owners of multifamily housing projects that are acquired at foreclosure or after sale by the Secretary on terms that will ensure that the project will remain available to and affordable by low- and moderate-income persons for a period of not less than 15 years.".

(5) PARTIAL CLAIM PAYMENTS.—Section 203(e)(1) of such Act, as so redesignated by this subsection, is amended by striking "owned by the Secretary" and inserting "to which subsection (a) applies".

(6) LIMITATIONS ON CERTAIN TRANSFERS.—Section 203 of such Act is amended—

(A) by redesignating subsections (g) and (h), as so redesignated by this subsection, as subsections (h) and (i); and

(B) by inserting before such subsection (h) the following new subsection:

"(g)(1) The Secretary may not approve the transfer of any mortgage insured by the Secretary on any formerly subsidized project unless such transfer is made as part of a transaction that will ensure that such project will continue to operate at least until the maturity date of such mortgage in a manner that will provide rental housing on terms at least as advantageous to existing and future tenants as the terms required by such mortgage.

"(2) The Secretary may not approve a transfer of the physical assets of any formerly subsidized project subject to a mortgage held or insured by the Secretary unless the proposed owner agrees to maintain the low- and moderate-income character of such project for a period of not less than the remaining term of such mortgage.".

(7) FORMERLY SUBSIDIZED PROJECTS.—Section 203(h) of such Act, as so redesignated by this subsection, is amended—

(A) by inserting "(1)" after the subsection designation; and

(B) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(2) For the purpose of this section, the term 'formerly subsidized project' means a multifamily housing project receiving any of the following assistance immediately before the assignment of the mortgage on such project to, or the acquisition of such mortgage by, the Secretary:

"(A) below market interest rate mortgage insurance under the proviso of section 221(d)(5) of the National Housing Act;

"(B) interest reduction payments made in connection with mortgages insured under section 236 of the National Housing Act;

"(C) rent supplement payments under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

"(D) direct loans at below market interest rates, made under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 or section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964; or

"(E) housing assistance payments made under section 23 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (as in effect before January 1, 1975) or section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (other than subsection (b)(1) of such section).".

(b) ACQUISITION OF INSURED MULTIFAMILY HOUSING PROJECTS.—Section 207(k) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after the second sentence the following new sentence: "In determining the amount to be bid, the Secretary shall act consistently with the goal established in section 203(a)(1) of the Housing and Community Development Amendments of 1978.".

SEC. 302. EXPANSION OF NEWLY CONSTRUCTED OR SUBSTANTIALLY REHABILITATED PUBLIC HOUSING UNITS.

(a) CONSTRUCTION AND REHABILITATION.—Section 5(c) of the Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(10) Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection and in addition to any authority to enter into contracts contained in any other provision of this subsection, the Secretary may, to the extent provided in advance in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts for the construction or rehabilitation of 40,000 additional public housing units each year for 15 years. The authority contained in the preceding sentence shall cease to be effective on the expiration of 15 years after the effective date of the Homeless Persons' Survival Act of 1986.".

(b) PERFORMANCE FUNDING SYSTEM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 9(a) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking the last sentence of paragraph (1); and

(B) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(3)(A) For purposes of making payments under this section, the Secretary shall utilize a performance funding system that is substantially based on the system defined in regulations and in effect on November 30, 1983 (as modified by this paragraph), and that establishes standards for costs of operation and reasonable projections of income, taking into account the character and location of the project and the characteristics of the families served, in accordance with a formula representing the operations of a prototype well-managed project. Such performance funding system shall be established in consultation with public housing agencies and their associations, be contained in a regulation promulgated by the Secretary prior to the start of any fiscal year to which it applies, and remain in effect for the duration of such fiscal year without change.

"(B) Under the performance funding system established under this paragraph—

"(i) changes to the allowable expense level shall be made annually to reflect actual inflation rates for the most recent year for which data is available;

"(ii) in the first year that the reductions occur, any public housing agency shall share equally with the Secretary any cost reductions due to the differences between projected and actual energy rates attributable to actions taken by the agency which lead to such reductions;

"(iii) funds received by any public housing agency from sources other than tenant rents or other tenant payments, investment income, or income earned from commercial leases or receipts, including any amounts recovered through litigation, shall not be counted as income in computing the allowable subsidy nor shall prior receipt of any such funds affect the allowable expense level;

"(iv) payments to public housing agencies may only be ratably reduced if sufficient funds are not available, and, if excess funds are available, they shall be retained by the Secretary for use in the next fiscal year;

"(v) there shall be a formal review process for the purpose of providing such increases to the allowable expense level of a public housing agency as necessary—

"(I) to correct inequities and abnormalities that exist in the base year expense level of such public housing agency;

"(II) to reflect changes in operating circumstances since the initial determination of such base year expense level; and

"(III) to ensure that the allowable expense limit accurately reflects the higher cost of operating the project in an economically distressed unit of local government;

"(vi) public housing agencies shall be reimbursed for costs incurred that were beyond their control and the full extent of which were not taken into consideration in the original distribution of funds for the fiscal year involved;

"(vii) subsidy eligibility shall be calculated on the basis of 97 percent occupancy rate, except that a lower occupancy rate shall be permitted if—

"(I) it is due to vacant units in projects funded for modernization activity that is on schedule; or

"(II) it is acceptable to the Secretary as part of the plan of the public housing agency to achieve not less than a 97 percent occupancy rate over a reasonable period of years;

"(viii) public housing agencies shall maintain reasonable operating reserves similar to those established by well-managed, privately owned rental property;

"(ix) the estimate of the rental income for the next fiscal year of a public housing agency shall be based on the actual rent for the fourth, fifth, or sixth month prior to the beginning of the new fiscal year of the public housing agency;

"(x) any revenues resulting from rental income or other income (excluding investment income) in excess of estimated revenues from such items may not be recaptured, used, or computed to reduce assistance provided under this section, unless such estimate—

"(I) was unreasonable according to regulations in effect when the estimate was made; or

"(II) was fraudulent and deceptive; and

"(xi) estimated investment income may be recomputed and appropriate adjustments may be made at the end of the fiscal year to reflect actual average cash availability and average interest rates during such year.".

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 9(c) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking "not" the first place it appears and all that follows through ", and by"; and

(B) by inserting before the period at the end the following: ", and, for fiscal year 1987, the same amount as was authorized to be appropriated for fiscal year 1986 (of which amount not more than $100,000,000 shall be made available for purposes of clauses (v) and (vi) of subsection (a)(3)(B))".

(3) TIME OF PAYMENT.—Section 9 of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) Assistance to be provided to any public housing agency under this section for any fiscal year of such agency shall commence not later than the 1st month of such fiscal year, and shall be paid in equal monthly or quarterly installments or in accordance with such other payment schedule as may be agreed upon by the Secretary and such agency.".

(c) MODERNIZATION OF VACANT UNITS.—Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(11) Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection and in addition to any authority to enter into contracts contained in any other provision of this subsection, the Secretary may, to the extent provided in advance in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts for the modernization of 70,000 additional vacant public housing units each year for 15 years. The authority contained in the preceding sentence shall cease to be effective on the expiration of 15 years after the effective date of the Homeless Persons' Survival Act of 1986.".

SEC. 303. INCREASE AVAILABILITY OF TAX-FORECLOSED PROPERTY TO HOUSE THE HOMELESS.

Section 104(b)(4) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 is amended by inserting before the semicolon the following: "and it has adopted the necessary ordinances and administrative procedures to ensure that vacant properties which are taken through in rem proceedings, held by the grantee, and suitable for housing or related services, are conveyed to public or private nonprofit agencies serving the homeless which can demonstrate a sound plan for rehabilitating (if necessary) or operating such properties, subject to the agency's use of the property for the homeless".

SEC. 304. RESIDENTIAL ALTERNATIVES FOR THE MENTALLY ILL HOMELESS.

(a) COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS.—Section 103 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 is amended by inserting after the second sentence the following new sentence: "There is authorized to be appropriated for purposes of assistance under sections 106 and 107, $4,000,000,000 for fiscal year 1987. The Secretary shall assure that 13.275 percent of such funds are used nationally to provide group living arrangements and other community residence programs to homeless individuals who are mentally ill.".

(b) HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED.—Section 202(a)(4) of the Housing Act of 1959 is amended by adding after subparagraph (C) the following new subparagraph:

"(D) For assisting projects which provide group living arrangements for mentally ill individuals at risk of becoming homeless and for providing technical assistance to community groups desiring to expedite development of projects to house homeless individuals, there are authorized to be appropriated $125,000,000 for fiscal year 1987.".

TITLE IV—EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 401. EFFECTIVE DATE.

Except as otherwise provided, this Act and the amendments made by this Act shall take effect on October 1, 1986.●

Mr. DANFORTH (for himself, Mr. ABDNOR, Mr. ANDREWS, Mr. BOSCHWITZ, Mr. BUMPERS, Mr. DURENBERGER, Mr. EXON, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. KASTEN, Mr. MATTINGLY, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mr. NICKLES, Mr. PRESSLER, and Mr. PRYOR):

S. 2609. A bill to provide for the establishment of rural enterprise zones, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

RURAL ENTERPRISE ZONE ACT

● Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, on behalf of myself and Senators ABDNOR, ANDREWS, BOSCHWITZ, BUMPERS, DURENBERGER, EXON, GRASSLEY, KASTEN, MATTINGLY, MOYNIHAN, NICKLES, PRESSLER, and PRYOR, I am today introducing the Rural Enterprise Zone Act of 1986. Our bill would authorize establishment of enterprise zones in America's neediest rural communities, giving a much-needed boost to State and local development efforts.

On June 16, 10 cosponsors joined me in introducing this legislation as an amendment to the Tax Reform Act. Though our strong support for the Senate Finance Committee's tax reform package prompted us to withdraw the amendment, we are committed to seeking Senate approval of this proposal. I look forward to working with my colleagues toward that end.

Rural America is today experiencing an upheaval as severe as any since the Great Depression. Families are losing farms they have worked for generations. Storeowners in many small towns can no longer hold out for better times. As tax revenues diminish, schools, libraries, and roads suffer, making decline even more difficult to reverse. Rural America's brightest young people are leaving their homes because they see no hope for the future. With businesses closing, there are fewer jobs available, yet more and more rural families need to find work which will allow them to keep their farms and homes. Unless Congress acts to help rural communities help themselves, it may soon be too late to reverse the decline that threatens our small towns.

Drawing on legislation which has twice been approved by the Senate, our bill would authorize the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to designate up to 45 depressed rural areas as Federal enterprise zones. Only severely distressed areas—as measured by urban development action grant criteria, as well as unemployment, poverty, and population loss—would qualify for Federal incentives under this program. Businesses which locate or expand within the designated zones would be eligible for limited Federal tax and regulatory benefits, in addition to substantial benefits offered by State and local governments. Together, these commitments would give community leaders a powerful tool in their efforts to attract and keep needed jobs.

Thirty States have initiated enterprise zone programs, and the concept is already an integral part of economic development in many areas. Missouri's enterprise zone program assisted in attracting 4,600 new jobs during its first 2½ years. Nationally, State enterprise zone initiatives are credited with attracting $6.6 billion in new investment to depressed areas.

The Rural Enterprise Zone Act of 1986 would build on this success to address rural America's increasingly desperate plight. I am confident that this legislation will make a real contribution to the recovery of needy communities throughout the country, and I look forward to its enactment into law.●

● Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. President, I am delighted to cosponsor this important piece of legislation with Senator DANFORTH and others.

We are experiencing a crisis in rural America of immense proportions.

And every day it is getting worse.

In my State of North Dakota, our two major industries—agriculture and oil—are both suffering severe depression.

Far too many farmers have been holding out for the hope of getting just 1 good year so they can start to get back on their feet.

However, they can only hold out for so long.

Of those who have been able to avoid bankruptcy or foreclosure, many have already left the farms in search of employment elsewhere.

And too many who stay on the farm often need an outside job to supplement their income.

Some have already lost their farms and are seeking new occupations.

The farm crisis has had a crippling effect not only on the farmers themselves, but also on the communities of rural America.

As we know well in North Dakota, when the farmer has a bad year, the Main Street merchants have a bad year too.

When the farmers have several bad years, you have many small businesses which must severely cut back or close down entirely.

This results in additional lost jobs and further damage to our rural economy.

Although the farm crisis has been building for several years, my State has more recently been hit with an additional depression in the oil industry.

When you add the problems in the oil industry to that of the farm crisis, the result is major economic uncertainty in several of the Midwestern States, including North Dakota.

Some of the counties in our State have unemployment rates ranging as high as 17 percent.

In addition, these numbers do not reflect the fact that many of our talented young people have had to leave the State to find jobs elsewhere.

North Dakota's largest export is not wheat or oil, but tragically it is our dedicated, well trained young people.

Although many would like to remain in the State, job opportunities are limited.

The people in North Dakota and rural America have a strong work ethic.

They're dedicated, productive workers.

They just want the opportunity to provide a good living for themselves and their families.

All we need to do is to give incentive for business to locate in our rural areas.

I think this bill is a vital step toward achieving that goal.

We have a strong labor force in rural America, willing and waiting for job opportunities.

However, they can only wait so long.●

● Mr. DURENBERGER. Mr. President, I rise today to join my distinguished colleague from Missouri as cosponsor of the Rural Enterprise Zone Act of 1986. I have long been a supporter of the enterprise zone concept as an innovative approach to promote new jobs and industry in distressed areas. Typically, enterprise zones are envisioned as a response to economic decline in urban areas. In the bill we are introducing today, this promising concept is now adapted to the specific needs of rural America.

Mr. President, those needs have never been greater. My Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations recently explored a dimension of the farm crisis that has been largely overlooked thus far—the growing threat which that crisis, coupled with simultaneous cuts in Federal and State aid, poses to the future financial viability of rural governments in America.

Many Members of this body are already familiar with the grim reality of the farm crisis. A few figures tell the story:

Real net farm income declined from $14.9 billion in 1979 to just $5.4 billion in 1983.

In some States, farmland values have plummeted by as much as 44 percent over the past 5 years.

Total farm debt has soared to over $200 billion.

The farm crisis is not only a personal tragedy for thousands of farmers but also for small businesses. In one nine county area in southwestern Minnesota, we found that there are 3,650 fewer commercial sector jobs—about 15 percent—than there would have been had the relatively high income years of the mid-1970's continued. Without a healthy farm economy to support them, local businesses are forced to close, jobs are lost, and commercial property values decrease.

Together, these economic consequences of the agricultural recession threaten to create yet another victim of the farm crisis: rural States and local governments. As farmland and commercial property values decline, assessed property tax valuations—the cornerstone of the local tax base—will also decline. And with property taxes comprising up to 48 percent of local own source revenues in some farm States, this devaluation places a severe strain on local governments' capacity to raise very basic public services like education, public safety, and health.

Nor are States often able to fill the gap. Half of the agriculturally dependent States examined in the subcommittee's study experienced revenue growth significantly below the national average in fiscal year 1985 or 1986, and some experienced actual declines in one of those years. As a result, three-fourths of these States were forced to make midyear budget reductions during the past year.

The bottom line of these trends is bleak. If a response is not made now, while there is still time, local governments in rural areas are in danger of losing one-fifth of their per capita revenues due to falling land values and cuts in Federal and State aid. That amounts to $1,000 per family of four.

At the same time local revenues are being squeezed, service demands on rural governments are increasing. More and more farmers and their families are seeking stress and financial counseling from public agencies and applying for AFDC and State and local general assistance programs.

In short, Mr. President, if we do not act now we may bear witness to a permanent decline in the quality of life in rural America.

The farm crisis does not lend itself to easy quick-fix solutions. The subcommittee's report suggests that action by all levels of government is needed to ease the financial squeeze felt by farmers, businesses, and rural government.

At the national level, tax policy offers one important avenue for addressing the long-term needs of rural America. The bill we are introducing today to establish rural enterprise zones utilizes one approach to using tax policy to aid distressed rural communities. Our proposal to provide special tax incentives for businesses locating or expanding in rural enterprise zones will create new job opportunities and strengthen the economic base of small rural towns.

Rural enterprise zones are especially attractive as a supplement to other tools in the revenue code which help diversify distressed rural economies. As we approach the home stretch in our drive to enact tax reform, one of the most critical decisions we can make is to preserve the full deductibility of State and local taxes. This deduction is the single most important national policy tool for enabling rural State and local governments to address their own public service and economic development needs. Without this deduction, State and local revenues may decline by as much as 20 percent over the long term.

The ability of State and local governments to issue tax-exempt bonds is another important tax policy which we in Congress must protect. The tax-exempt treatment of municipal bonds directly supports public infrastructure needs and lays a foundation for diversifying the economy.

Still, tax policy is only half the story. We must look at all the tools available to us in addressing the complex and difficult problems of rural development. In recent years, we at the national level have expressed concern about the rural crisis, but our budget decisions have sometimes made the rural decline more precipitous. Among the 85 agricultural counties studies by my subcommittee, Federal aid declined by 18 percent between 1982-84, compared to a national average increase of 0.1 percent. And the scheduled elimination of GRS will hit towns and counties in rural America twice as hard as the average locality.

Yet I believe there is a way to balance our growing budget constraints with our responsibility to aid rural communities in need. Over the coming weeks, I will be urging my colleagues to consider a streamlined program of general purpose grants targeted to our most distressed communities—in both rural and urban areas. The program, called targeted fiscal assistance [TFA], will serve as a fiscal safety net for needy communities, guaranteeing that they will be able to provide their citizens with a minimum level of basic services like police and fire, public health and sanitation, roads and bridges.

Can rural communities survive the farm crisis? I think they can, but only if government at all levels act swiftly and creatively. We, in Congress, must accept our part of the responsibility. We must seek innovative and effective solutions that balance our fiscal responsibilities with our responsibilities to communities in need. Rural enterprise zones meet this challenge, and I believe the Targeted Fiscal Assistance Program does as well. I urge my colleagues to support them.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a summary of my subcommittee's report "Governing the Heartland: Can Rural Communities Survive the Farm Crisis?" be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the summary was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

GOVERNING THE HEARTLAND: CAN RURAL COMMUNITIES SURVIVE THE FARM CRISIS?

By the end of this decade, entire communities risk falling victim to the farm crisis unless federal and state policies are fashioned which respond to their growing needs. In the absence of appropriate policy responses, local government revenues in many rural states may fall 20% below the amounts needed to continue current services. At the same time, many rural communities will face increased service demands as financial and emotional stress takes its tolls among farmers and main street businessmen. Left alone, such communities will have little choice but to hasten their own decline by raising taxes from a dwindling tax base and by cutting the services needed to promote longterm economic development.

Can rural communities survive the farm crisis? Yes, but only if federal and state governments act creatively to address this growing revenue and service squeeze and help rural America cope with the transition to a more stable agricultural economy.

INTRODUCTION

For three years ominous headlines describing an expanding farm crisis have filled the nation's newspapers. The public has learned of the serious financial problems facing America's farmers, and of the massive drops in farm income and farm land values which have occurred during this decade. Attention has been focused on the direct, often dramatic impacts on individual farmers, their families, and on small businesses in rural communities throughout America.

Another dimension of the farm crisis has been largely overlooked—the growing threat to the financial viability of rural local governments. Declining farm incomes and farm property values erode the local tax base. At the same time, demands for many publicly provided services increase, creating a squeeze between falling revenues and higher costs. In many communities, the financial vise is being tightened further by cuts in federal and state aid.

If these trends continue, rural local government cannot avoid cutting services and raising taxes. In the absence of such actions, local government revenues will fall short of existing expenditure levels by an average $106 per capita in the eight multi-county regions examined. (figure 1) Under more pessimistic assumptions about further drops in land values and cuts in intergovernmental aids, per capita revenue shortfalls of $250 or more were estimated for some areas. (figure 18) The higher taxes and reductions in services necessary to overcome such shortfalls have the potential to permanently change the quality of life in the rural America.

THE TROUBLED AGRICULTURAL ECONOMY

Since 1980, net farm incomes have fallen precipitously. From 1980 through 1984, real farm incomes averaged only $25 billion in 1982 dollars, down nearly 40 percent from the average of the seventies and down more than 25 percent from the average of the sixties.

When farm incomes decline, main street spending also falls, eliminating jobs and reducing incomes in the local commercial sector. The size of the scope of those impacts was estimated for a nine-county region in southwestern Minnesota. Assuming that the average farm income levels of the early 1980s continue, there are 3650 fewer commercial sector jobs (about 15 percent) than there would have been had the relatively high-income years of the mid-1970s continued.

VANISHING HEALTH

The decline in agricultural income since 1981 has produced an enormous drop in the value of farm land. (figure 4) Nationwide, agricultural land values fell by more than 30 percent, or $227 per acre, during the past four years. Farm land values declined only one other time in the postwar period, in 1954, when they fell by one dollar.

When viewed in constant dollars, the results are even more sobering. Nationwide, between 1982 and 1985, farm land values fell by $146 billion—a loss of wealth for farm land owners equal to the combined assets if IMB, GE, Kodak, Proctor & Gamble, 3M, Dow Chemical, McDonald's, RCA, Upjohn, Weyerhauser, and CBS.

IMPACTS ON LOCAL PROPERTY TAXES

Over time, this massive devaluation in farm assets will significantly erode the local tax base of rural communities. The impacts are already evident in Minnesota where taxable valuations dropped about 25 percent between 1983 and 1985. In other states, agricultural assessed values have remained relatively stable when measured in current dollars because assessment systems based on agricultural productivity are slow to adjust to changes in market values. Nevertheless, taxable valuations have already dropped an average of 20 percent since 1981 in inflation adjusted dollars. (figure 8) With land values continuing to fall, it is only a matter of time before declines in assessed valuations in current dollars are observed.

Dramatically increased rates of property tax delinquencies are a leading indicator of future problems. Between 1980 and 1985, annual delinquencies jumped severalfold in the Nebraska localities examined—rising from $.75 million to over $5.5 million. Delinquencies also more than doubled in the Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, and Montana communities surveyed. (figure 10)

THE SERVICE SQUEEZE

Rural governments are being squeezed by increased service demands as well as falling revenues. Many of the new demands for services are a direct response to increasing unemployment in the agriculturally dependent regions. Although national unemployment rates fell 9 percent from January, 1985, to January, 1986, unemployment rose an average of 10 percent in five of the states studied and fell in only two.

Rising unemployment and financial stress are taking their toll on rural Americans and straining social service facilities. A regional mental health center in southwest Minnesota reports outpatient services up 30 percent since 1984; 24-hour crisis intervention activities are up over 300 percent; and substance and family abuse consultations are up 67 percent. Similarly, overall social service demands are up 30 percent in northern Iowa, despite declining population.

DIM PROSPECTS FOR STATE AID

Rural local governments can expect little immediate assistance from their states. State tax bases also depend on the health of the agricultural economy, and many states are under serious budgetary stress. Six of the eight study states had tax revenues grow more slowly than the national average in fiscal 1985, 1986, or both. There were absolute declines in revenues in four of the eight states in one of those two years. Six of the eight states surveyed were forced to take the extreme step of making mid-year reductions in their fiscal 1986 budgets.

FEDERAL AID CUTS COMPOUND THE FISCAL SQUEEZE

Federal aid reductions, past and prospective, are compounding the effects of the farm crisis on rural governments. Between 1982 and 1984, federal aid to general purpose local governments, excluding General Revenue Sharing, rose by .1 percent nationwide. In the eight agriculturally dependent regions examined in this study, federal aid actually declined by 18 percent during that same period.

The proposed elimination of revenue sharing will hit rural local governments twice as hard as the average locality. Revenue sharing comprised 44.5 percent of all federal aid received by agriculturally dependent local governments, but only 21.8 percent of the federal aid received by all general purpose local governments.

POLICY RESPONSES: COPING WITH CHANGE

The fiscal bind confronting rural governments is both immediate and long term. In the short run, the difficulties stem from the rapid rise in property tax delinquencies. The resulting cash flow problems are being compounded by reductions in state and federal aid.

Ultimately, the most serious problems are posed by the dramatic declines in farm land values. But, because assessed values in most states have only begun to reflect the steep fall in market values, serious long-term erosion in public services can still be avoided if prompt actions are taken at all levels of government. For local governments, this means continuing efforts to "do more with less," although there is evidence that many have already exhausted the efficiency gains from cutback management. For state governments, it means diversifying and broadening the tax base and attempting to maintain a constant level of state aids through tough fiscal times. For the federal government, it means preserving a leaner, more targeted version of general aid to local governments and maintaining those portions of the tax code that support local economic development and self-help.

The farm crisis ranks among the most severe regional economic recessions since the 1930s. If left unchecked, it has the potential to seriously—and in some cases permanently—undermine the fiscal foundations of many rural communities. But intelligent policy decisions, made before the situation worsens, can ease the impacts of transition to a more stable agricultural economy, and rural local governments can avoid becoming another victim of the farm crisis.●

By Mr. STEVENS:

S. 2611. A bill to improve efforts to monitor, assess, and reduce the adverse impact of driftnets; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

DRIFTNET IMPACT MONITORING, ASSESSMENT, AND CONTROL ACT

● Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, the discharge of plastics in the ocean environment is posing an increasing threat to the marine life which is so important to our Nation's citizens. The debris is produced from a wide variety of sources, but many of the problems facing marine life in the North Pacific are caused by the high seas fishing fleets of Japan, Taiwan, and the Republic of Korea.

Last year, I chaired a National Ocean Policy Study oversight hearing on the impact of the foreign pelagic driftnet fleets on salmon, marine mammal, and seabird populations. The nets create a devastating curtain of death for all living marine resources, a condition which I labeled "the AIDS of the North Pacific" during the hearing.

The total driftnet fishery fleets of Japan, Republic of Korea, and Taiwan number approximately 1,700 vessels, each of which sets a 9- to 20-mile-long net each night for a total of more than 1 million miles per year. The driftnet fishery contributes as much a 1,000 miles of lost and discarded netting a year. These "ghost nets" continue to create havoc for the living marine resources of the high seas for many years after they have been cut loose or lost by the high seas fishing fleets.

The 172-vessel Japanese mothership salmon fleet constitutes only 10 percent of the total number of vessels in the North Pacific. These vessels alone kill approximately 5,000 Dall's porpoise and 500,000 to 750,000 seabirds each year. If this kill is at all representative of the total fleet, the kill of marine mammals and seabirds is staggering.

The Japanese mothership and land-based salmon fleets also harvest 8 million salmon of North American origin each year. Moreover, the high loss rate for all salmon caught in driftnets results in substantial "noncatch mortality." In 1983, for example, 3 million salmon were entangled in driftnets but fell from the nets before they were hauled.

In response to concerns raised by Alaskans and various environmental organizations, I am today introducing legislation which will lay the groundwork for an eventual resolution of this environmental problem.

Section 3 provides for a definition of driftnet which excludes nets less than 1.5 miles in length. Though I have my doubts about the propriety of domestic driftnets of this length, I wish to avoid fisheries which are appropriately regulated under State law.

Section 4 requires a U.S. observer to be on all foreign fishing vessels which fish in U.S. waters, including Japanese salmon vessels fishing in accordance with the International North Pacific Fisheries Convention. This section prohibits fishing permits for those vessels which are deemed unsafe for the carriage of U.S. observers.

The legislation also requires the Federal Government to carry out a series of investigations into impacts of the high seas driftnet fishery, and submit recommendations to Congress on potential solutions. Section 4 requires the Secretary of State to negotiate scientific agreements with various foreign governments designed to develop cooperative monitoring programs and accurate assessments of the impact of the driftnet fishery on living marine resources. Section 5 requires the Secretary of Commerce to undertake an independent report on this matter. Section 8 requires the Secretary of Commerce to develop recommendations on a net marking and identification system. Part of this study will include a detailed analysis of the application of biodegradable plastics to the driftnet fishery.

The Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act currently imposes a fee on foreign fleets which fish in the U.S. EEZ. This fee is based on the costs of enforcement attributable to foreign fishing activity. Section 6 of my legislation provides that the costs of conducting an effective Coast Guard enforcement program relating to the International North Pacific Fisheries Convention be incorporated into the foreign fishing fee calculation.

Section 7 directs the Secretary of Commerce to create a "bounty" system for the retrieval of the ghost nets which plague salmon, seabird, and marine mammal populations.

Finally, section 9 creates a 60-mile "Seabird Protection Zone" around the Aleutian islands. All driftnet fisheries defined under this legislation would be prohibited within the confines of the zone. The Aleutians are an important breeding ground for Alaska's seabirds. Testimony at the October 9 oversight hearing highlighted the need for the creation of this zone.

The use of high seas driftnets is destructive and should be discontinued. Until such time, our Nation must convince other nations of the need to employ degradable plastics in their high seas fisheries. Concerned nations are already beginning to take action. It is my understanding that the Government of Australia has recently prohibited the Taiwanese high seas fleet from operating in its Exclusive Economic Zone.

However, Americans also discharge plastics into the ocean environment. I would like to submit an article from the June edition of Time which puts into perspective the impact of plastics on marine life, and ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The impact of plastic pollution in general, and high seas driftnets in specific, will become the most important environmental issue facing Congress in the coming years. I urge my colleagues to follow the issue closely, and will welcome cosponsors to the bill I have introduced today.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2611

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Driftnet Impact Monitoring, Assessment, and Control Act of 1986".

FINDINGS

SEC. 2. The Congress finds that—

(1) the use of long, plastic driftnets is a wasteful, indiscriminate and destructive fishing technique that results in the entanglement and death of enormous numbers of target and non-target fish, marine mammals, seabirds, and other living marine resources off the coasts of the United States;

(2) there is a pressing need for detailed and reliable information on the number of fish, marine mammals, seabirds and other living marine creatures that become entangled and die in actively fished driftnets and in netting that is lost, abandoned or discarded; and

(3) increased efforts are necessary to monitor, assess and reduce the adverse impacts of driftnets.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 3. As used in this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the term—

(1) "driftnet" or "drift gillnet" means a gillnet composed of a panel of plastic webbing one and one-half miles or more in length that is placed in the water and allowed to drift with winds and currents for the purpose of entangling fish in the webbing in the course of commercial fishing operations; and

(2) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Commerce, or the Secretary's designee.

MONITORING

SEC. 4. (a) Section 201(i)(2) of the Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1821(i)(2)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A), by inserting immediately after "vessels" the following: ", other than vessels harvesting anadromous species under the International Convention for the High Seas Fisheries of the North Pacific Ocean, and the North Pacific Fisheries Act of 1954 (16 U.S.C. 1021 et seq.),";

(2) in subparagraph (B)—

(A) by striking "zone—"and inserting in lieu thereof "zone,";

(B) by striking "(i)";

(C) by striking "impractical, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "impractical; or" and

(D) by striking clause (ii).

(b) Section 204(b)(6) of the Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1824(b)(6)) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(C) The Secretary shall not approve any permit for a vessel aboard which the facilities for quartering of a United States observer (pursuant to section 201(i)) or for carrying out the functions of such observer are determined by the Secretary to be so inadequate that the health, safety or welfare of such observer can not be assured.".

(c) The Secretary shall—

(1) immediately initiate, through the Secretary of State, negotiations with each foreign government that conducts, or authorizes its nationals to conduct, driftnet fisheries in waters off the coasts of the United States, for the purpose of arranging for reliable cooperative monitoring and assessment of the numbers of fish, marine mammals, seabirds and other living marine creatures killed and retrieved, discarded, or lost by that government's driftnet fishing vessels in waters beyond the jurisdiction of the United States;

(2) not issue any permit under section 204(b) of the Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1824(b)) to any vessel of any foreign government that fails, within one year after the date of enactment of this Act, to enter into an arrangement under paragraph (1) that is determined to be adequate by the Secretary; and

(3) provide to the Congress by not later than one year after the date of enactment of this Act a full report on the results of the Secretary's efforts under this section.

IMPACT REPORT

SEC. 5. The Secretary shall provide to the Congress within one year after the date of enactment of this Act, and every 12 months thereafter, a report identifying the nature, extent, and impact upon living marine resources of all driftnet fisheries off the coasts of the United States, both within and beyond the fishery conservation zone of the United States (as defined in section 3(8) of the Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1802(8)). The report shall include the best available information on the number and flag state of vessels involved, the areas fished, the length, width, and mesh size of driftnets used, the target species, and the number of fish, marine mammals, seabirds, and other living creatures killed by such fishery, as well as any other information the Secretary considers appropriate. The Secretary, through the Secretary of State, shall request such information for inclusion in such report from the relevant foreign governments and shall include in such report an evaluation of the adequacy and reliability of the data and estimates received from such governments or other sources.

ENFORCEMENT AND FOREIGN FISHING PERMIT FEES

SEC. 6. Section 204(b)(10) of the Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1824(b)(10)) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(G) The Secretary shall include in the determination of the total costs of carrying out the provisions of this Act the costs of an effective enforcement program for the exercise of exclusive management authority and, in particular, to ensure the conservation and management of all anadromous species throughout their migratory range, consistent with section 102 of this Act. The Secretary shall consult at least annually with the Secretary of the department in which the Coast Guard is operating to determine the costs of an optimally effective enforcement program so that it can be reflected in and fully recovered through the schedule of fees established pursuant to subparagraph (A).".

NET BOUNTY SYSTEM

SEC. 7. The Secretary shall promulgate regulations to implement a net bounty system to pay persons who retrieve from the marine waters of the United States and deposit with the Secretary, or the Secretary's designee, lost, abandoned, of discarded driftnet or other plastic fishing net material. The Secretary shall make such payments for this purpose as the Secretary determines to be appropriate from the Fishing Vessel and Gear Damage Compensation Fund established under section 10 of the Fishermen's Protective Act of 1967 (22 U.S.C. 1980) to the extent and in such amounts as are provided in advance in appropriation Acts.

NET MARKING, REGISTRY, AND IDENTIFICATION SYSTEM

SEC. 8. (a) The Secretary shall, in consultation with officials of other Federal agencies and such other persons as may be appropriate, develop recommendations for the establishment of a driftnet marking, registry, and identification system to provide a reliable mechanism for the determination of the origin by vessel, if possible, of lost, discarded, or abandoned driftnets and fragments of driftnets. The Secretary shall also evaluate the feasibility of and develop recommendations for the use of biodegradable or other materials in a portion or all of the driftnet that would accelerate the decomposition of driftnets left to float at sea and thereby reduce the hazards such driftnets pose to living marine resources.

(b) The Secretary shall provide to the Congress, not later than six months after the date of enactment of this Act, a report setting forth—

(1) the recommendations developed under subsection (a) of this section;

(2) the most effective and appropriate means of implementing the recommendations;

(3) the need, if any, for further research and development efforts and the estimated cost and time required for completion of such efforts; and

(4) the need, if any, for legislation to provide authority to carry out such recommendations.

SEABIRD PROTECTION ZONE

SEC. 9. (a) There is established a seabird protection zone surrounding the Aleutian Islands off Alaska within which no driftnet fishing is permitted. The inner boundary of the zone is a line coterminous with the high water line on the shore of each of the Aleutian Islands and the outer boundary of the zone is a line drawn in such a manner that each point on the line is no less than 60 miles from the inner boundary line, except to the extent that such outer boundary would extend beyond waters or territory subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

(b) The Secretary, in cooperation with the Secretary of the department in which the Coast Guard is operating, shall enforce the prohibition against driftnet fishing in the seabird protection zone established under section (a) of this section. Any such driftnet fishing within the zone shall constitute, be treated as, and deemed to be a prohibited act under section 307 (16 U.S.C. 1857) and subject to sections 307 through 311 (16 U.S.C. 1857-1861) of the Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act relating to enforcement and penalties for such prohibited acts.

THE PERILS OF PLASTIC POLLUTION

Biologist Stewart Fefer and three colleagues from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service had eagerly anticipated their assignment: a trip to Laysan, a 960-acre island about 1,000 miles northwest of Honolulu. They were to study some of the 14 million seabirds that nest there, and they looked forward to their stay on what they assumed would be an island paradise with pristine beaches. What they discovered came as a shock. The sands of Laysan were strewed with an unbelievable variety of plastic trash. While doing his birdwatching chores, Fefer cataloged thousands of pellets as well as toy soldiers, disposable lighters and one toy Godzilla—all made of plastic. "This is one of the most remote islands in the world," he says. "I expected it to be just idyllic."

The debris that despoiled Laysan's beaches had been washed ashore by the waters of the Pacific, which like other oceans is becoming increasingly fouled by plastic flotsam. But while the floating and beached plastic is unquestionably an eyesore, the problem goes far beyond aesthetics. At the Sixth International Ocean Disposal Symposium in Pacific Grove, Calif., last month, scientists reported that plastic trash is causing injury and death to countless marine animals that feast on it or become ensnared in it. Says Ecologist David Laist, of the Marine Mammal Commission: "Plastics may be as great a source of mortality among marine mammals as oil spills, heavy metals or other toxic materials."

Prime contributors to the growing tide of plastic pollution are the world's merchant ships, which, according to a study by the National Academy of Sciences, dump at least 6.6 million tons of trash overboard every year. Some 639,000 plastic containers and bags are tossed into the oceans every day. Commercial fishermen are also major offenders. Estimates of the plastic fishing gear lost or discarded at sea every year range as high as 150,000 tons. Boaters and beachgoers add to the marine litter with six-pack yokes, picnic utensils, sandwich bags and Styrofoam cups. Cities and industries discharging waste directly into the water or dumping it at sea are also to blame. On some East Coast beaches near sewage outlets, so many plastic tampon inserters have washed ashore that residents refer to them as "beach whistles."

Perhaps the most ubiquitous form of plastic trash is the tiny polyethylene pellets used in the manufacture of plastic items. In one survey, researchers calculated that, on average, a square mile of the Sargasso Sea, southeast of Florida, contained between 8,000 and 10,000 bobbing pellets. Says Al Pruter, a fishery biologist and partner in a Seattle-based natural-resources consulting firm: "Almost without exception, surveys show plastic to account for over one-half the man-made products on the ocean surface."

The plastic is taking a heavy toll on marine life, particularly on seals, sea lions, turtles and seabirds. By one estimate, as many as 50,000 northern fur seals in the Pribilof Islands die each year after becoming enshrouded in netting. "Young seals get their heads or flippers caught in it," says Laist. "Then they either become exhausted from toting it or their ability to catch food is restricted."

Smaller plastic items are frequently mistaken for prey by turtles and birds, often with fatal results. Leatherback turtles, which feast on jellyfish, are particularly attracted to plastic bags. Says University of Florida Zoologist Archie Carr, an authority on sea turtles: "Any kind of film or semi-translucent material appears to look like jellyfish to them." Trouble is, the bags—or other plastic items like golf tees—can form a lethal plug in the turtles digestive tract.

At least 42 species of seabirds are known to snack on plastic. Of 50 albatrosses found ill or dead on the Midways Islands, 45 had eaten some form of the substance. In several, the plastic had either obstructed the digestive tract or caused ulcers. Says James Coe, program manager for the Marine Entanglement Research Program at the National Marine Fisheries Service in Seattle: "We have found everything from toy soldiers to pens, fishing bobbers and poker chips in the birds stomachs." A study of wedge-tailed shearwaters, which breed on central Pacific islands, showed that 60% of the adults surveyed had ingested plastic. Even sea gulls, which are able to disgorge disagreeable foods, are not immune to the plastic threat. They have been strangled by sixpack yokes.

Efforts to reduce the amount of plastic jettisoned into the oceans have been largely unsuccessful. Although the U.S. and 59 other nations agreed in 1972 to outlaw the dumping of durable plastics, among other substances, into the oceans, the treaty failed to address the discharge or ordinary garbage, which contains large quantities of plastic items. Ten states are trying to do their part; they have passed legislation requiring that six-pack yokes be made of treated plastic that degrades rapidly in sunlight. Nonetheless, concludes Zoologist Carr: "the junk is growing in abundance year by year. It is just getting outrageous."—By Jamie Murphy, Reported by Andrea Dorfman/New York and Jon D. Hull/Los Angeles.●

By Mr. MATTINGLY (for himself and Mr. GARN):

S. 2612. A bill to amend the Export Administration Act of 1979 to authorize controls on exports, including the export of capital, from the United States, to countries supporting terrorism, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

TERRORIST SUBSIDY PREVENTION ACT

Mr. MATTINGLY. Mr. President, today I am introducing, with the chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, Senator GARN, legislation that provides the President with discretionary authority to control the flow of financial transfers from U.S. banks to countries that support international terrorism—the so-called 6(j) countries, as defined under the provisions of section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act. Currently, the countries so designated are Syria, Libya, Southern Yemen, Iran, and Cuba.

In an article which appeared in the June 22, 1986 edition of the Washington Post, former national security staff member Roger W. Robinson, Jr., details Western deposits to the Libyan Arab Foreign Bank [LAFB]. I ask unanimous consent that the article appear in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks. The LAFB had $2.63 billion in total assets at the end of 1984, certainly enough to help ease Libya's desperate need for cash in the wake of falling oil prices and more than likely helping to finance Libyan acts of international terrorism. Where did these funds come from? The possibility of United States funds being used directly or indirectly to finance acts of terrorism directed against innocent civilians is part of the much larger problem of Western financial transfers to adversaries such as the Soviet Union, Soviet bloc nations, and others.

Legislation has been introduced—S. 812—that would allow the President to control financial transfers to the Soviets and to the controlled Eastern bloc countries as well as Vietnam, Kampuchea, North Korea, and Cuba. I am a cosponsor of S. 812, but S. 812 does not address financial transfers to countries that have been designated under section 6(j) provisions as supporting international terrorism. The legislation I am introducing today would make certain that the President could regulate financial flows to these 6(j) countries, just as S. 812 attempts to regulate bank loans and other transfers to the Soviet Union and the other controlled countries.

Mr. President, this legislation is necessary. The President does not now have the authority to intervene in such transactions unless a national state of emergency has been declared. Specific information regarding commercial loans made by U.S. banks to the 6(j) countries is not publicly available because it is proprietary information. My proposal would not necessarily change that, but it would provide the President with the authority to consider a wider range of policy options than he is currently empowered to do. It would also enable him to require the appropriate regulatory bodies to gather from U.S. commercial banks more comprehensive and detailed information surrounding such financial transfers. Three bank regulatory agencies—the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and the Federal Reserve System—already collect certain country exposure data from most of the 215 U.S. banks involved in international lending activities. This reporting requirement has since been codified under the International Lending Supervision Act and does provide some information. For instance, for the five 6(j) countries, United States banks are owed a total of $102.2 million by three of these nations: Iran, Libya, and Syria. But information about new loans being made to these countries is not publicly available. More importantly, should the President wish to intervene in any such transaction, after he obtains such knowledge, he would have very limited authority.

Existing authority that would allow the control of such transfers is inadequate. Currently, the President could act only in time of war, under the Trading With the Enemy Act, or in the case of a national emergency as declared under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act. My legislation would allow the President, at his discretion, to take any action he deems appropriate to regulate or control U.S. financial exports or transfers to countries identified by the Secretary of State pursuant to section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act as countries supporting international terrorism. In addition, the legislation would clarify existing law by authorizing the President to control exports of goods and services that will likely support or be used to commit an act of terrorism against U.S. citizens or will benefit a person committing such acts, or will benefit a country identified by the Secretary of State as a country supporting terrorism. This authority would be exercised by the Secretary of Commerce, in consultation with the Departments of Defense and State. Finally, the appropriate agencies would be responsible for conducting negotiations with other countries regarding their cooperation with any controls imposed as a result of this amendment to the Export Administration Act.

Mr. President, U.S. commercial banks cannot expect to continue to operate in a vacuum with regard to their overseas loans. We must pull their heads up out of the sand. We cannot have commercial banking interests working against U.S. policy interests or goals. This country needs to adopt more realistic lending practices and principles when lending to the countries who are actual or potential adversaries. I believe that our long term security depends, in part, on the development of a comprehensive and thorough picture of how our adversaries fund their activities. The Terrorist Subsidy Prevention Act will provide the means for the United States to begin to develop a response to this sort of international financial activity. This will allow us to act more efficiently to regulate potentially harmful financial flows to countries supporting international terrorism. I ask my colleagues to support this effort to eliminate a source of potential funding of international terrorism.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of my legislation appear in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2612

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Terrorist Subsidy Prevention Act".

SEC. 2. Section 3 of the Export Administration Act of 1979 is amended—

(1) in paragraph (2)(B), by striking out "and" after the semicolon;

(2) in paragraph (2)(C), by striking out the period and inserting in lieu thereof a semicolon;

(3) by adding at the end of paragraph (2) the following:

"(D) to restrict the export of capital, the extension of credit, the making of loans, or the transfer of financial resources to destinations or persons outside of the United States in order to combat terrorism and thereby promote the national security interests of the United States; and

"(E) to restrict the export of goods and technology where the President determines that such export (i) will likely support or be used to commit acts of terrorism against United States citizens, (ii) will likely benefit persons committing such acts, or (iii) will benefit countries supporting international terrorism, as defined pursuant to section 6(j) of this Act.".

SEC. 3. The Export Administration Act of 1979 is amended by inserting after section 8 the following new section:

"ANTI-TERRORISM EXPORT CONTROLS AND CAPITAL CONTROLS

"SEC. 8A. (a) FINANCIAL CONTROLS.—

"(1) AUTHORITY TO CONTROL.—In order to carry out the policy set forth in section 3(2)(D) or section 3(2)(E) of this Act, the President may prohibit, curtail, monitor, or otherwise regulate the export or transfer, or participation in the export or transfer, of money or other financial assets, including the making of a loan or the extension of credit, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States or exported or transferred by any person subject to the jurisdiction of the United States to the government of any country designated pursuant to section 6(j) as a country supporting international terrorism, or to any political subdivision thereof or any organization or association owned by or acting for or on behalf of such government or political subdivision thereof.

"(2) EXERCISE OF AUTHORITY.—The authority conferred by this subsection shall be exercised by the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Commerce, and such other departments and agencies as the Secretary of the Treasury shall consider appropriate.

"(3) NEGOTIATIONS.—The Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Secretaries of State, Defense, and Commerce, and the heads of other appropriate departments and agencies, shall be responsible for conducting negotiations with other countries regarding their cooperation with controls imposed pursuant to this subsection.

"(b) CONTROL OF EXPORTS FOR TERRORIST PURPOSES.—

"(1) AUTHORITY.—In order to carry out the policy set forth in section 3(2)(E) of this Act, the President may prohibit, curtail, monitor, or otherwise regulate the export or transfer, or participation in the export or transfer, of goods and technology subject to the jurisdiction of the United States or exported or transferred by any person subject to the jurisdiction of the United States if the President determines that—

"(A) such export will likely support or be used to commit an act of terrorism against the person or property of a United States citizen,

"(B) will likely benefit persons committing such an act, or

"(C) will benefit countries defined pursuant to section 6(j) of this Act as countries supporting international terrorism.

"(2) EXERCISE OF AUTHORITY.—The authority conferred by this subsection shall be exercised by the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, and such other departments and agencies as the Secretary considers appropriate, and shall be implemented by means of export licenses issued by the Secretary.

"(3) NEGOTIATIONS.—The Secretary of State, in consultation with the Secretary of Commerce, the Secretary of Defense, and the heads of other appropriate departments and agencies, shall be responsible for conducting negotiations with other countries regarding their cooperation with controls imposed pursuant to this subsection.".

SEC. 4. Section 10 of the Export Administration Act of 1979 is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(1), by striking out "All export license applications" and inserting in lieu thereof "Except as provided in subsection (p), all export license applications";

(2) in subsection (j)(1), by inserting before the period ", except in the case of any license that may be required pursuant to section 8A(a) of this Act, in which case the Secretary of the Treasury shall establish such procedures"; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(p)(1) Any export license applications required pursuant to section 8A(a) of this Act shall be submitted by the applicant to the Secretary of the Treasury. All determinations with respect to any such application shall be made by the Secretary of the Treasury.

"(2) To the extent necessary, the Secretary of the Treasury shall seek information and recommendations from the Government departments and agencies concerned with aspects of the United States domestic and foreign policies and operations having an important bearing on the policy set forth in section 3(2)(D) of this Act.".

SEC. 5. Section 12 of the Export Administration Act of 1979 is amended—

(1) in the second sentence of subsection (c)(1), by inserting before the period the following: ", or in the case of information obtained with respect to section 8A(a) of this Act, unless the Secretary of the Treasury so determines"; and

(2) in subsection (e), by striking out "The Secretary" and inserting in lieu thereof "Except with regard to the authority provided under section 8A(a), the Secretary".

SEC. 6. Section 14(a) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (19);

(2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (20) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(21) actions taken by the President and the Secretary of the Treasury to carry out the policies set forth in section 3(2)(D) of this Act, as described by the Secretary of the Treasury in a report submitted for inclusion as a part of the Secretary's annual report required by this section.".

SEC. 7. Section 15 of the Export Administration Act of 1979 is amended by inserting "and the Secretary of the Treasury" after "Secretary".

SEC. 8. Section 16 of the Export Administration Act of 1979 is amended—

(1) in paragraph (7), by striking out "and" after the semicolon;

(2) in paragraph (8), by striking out the period and inserting in lieu thereof a semicolon; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(9) the term 'extension of credit' includes loans, credit sales, the supplying of funds through the underwriting, distribution, or acquisition of securities, the making or assisting in the making of a direct placement, or otherwise participating in the offering, distribution, or acquisition of securities; and

"(10) the term 'loan' includes any type of credit, including credit extended in connection with a credit sale.".

[From the Washington Post, June 22, 1986]

LIBYA'S CASH FLOW—WESTERN DEPOSITS HELP GADHAFI SURVIVE

Western bank deposits with the Libyan Arab Foreign Bank are easing Libya's financial crunch—and may be helping to finance Libya's questionable activities abroad.

Libya needs cash to help pay its bills. Moammar Gadhafi's regime currently has about $4 billion in arrearages (late payments) to both communist and noncommunist governments on various supply contracts and projects. Italy heads the list with about $600 to $700 million in arrearages, with Turkey second at roughly $400 million. The Soviet Union and East European countries are owed about $1 billion.

Libya's financial strains emerged during the 1980s because of falling oil revenues. The country's total financial reserves, including gold, have dwindled from about $15.4 billion in 1981 to about $7.2 billion today. Continuing depressed levels of oil earnings should further deplete Libyan financial reserves.

One useful Libyan financial outlet is the Libyan Arab Foreign Bank, or LAFB. The bank was established in 1972 and engages principally in syndicated lending and foreign banking joint ventures (including equity in 26 foreign banking establishments.) At the end of 1984 the bank had total capital and reserves of $328 million and $2.63 billion in total assets.

Western bank deposits appear to play a significant role in funding LAFB's assets. Although balance sheet information is sketchy, numbers provided by LAFB suggest that demand and time deposits make up more than 80 percent of LAFB's total funding. Western bank deposits comprise a sizeable share of this total.

With Libyan-sponsored terrorist attacks occuring in several Eurpean capitals, we might expect that western deposits in LAFB would be eroding. But this apparently hasn't happened.

Agreement in the West to withhold deposits from LAFB would bring important economic pressure on Libya, adding to the problems caused by that country's sharply deteriorating balance of payments position. Without stronger allied support for such economic measures, the United States will continue to lack viable policy alternatives between diplomatic and military options.

By Mr. MOYNIHAN:

S. 2613. A bill to suspend for a 4-year period the duty on certain parts of indirect process electrostatic copying machines; to the Committee on Finance.

DUTY SUSPENSION OF PARTS OF INDIRECT PROCESS ELECTROSTATIC COPYING MACHINES

● Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that would temporarily suspend the duty on certain parts and components imported for the manufacture of office copying machines operating by the indirect electrostatic process.

The U.S. industry has seen its market share steadily eroded by imports, so that today U.S. manufacturers have only 15 to 20 percent of the domestic market. In the face of this competition, the major U.S. manufacturers, Zerox, IBM, and Eastman Kodak—New York companies all—have taken steps to reduce costs and improve competitiveness.

For example, Xerox Corp.—which employs 6,700 workers in the Rochester, NY, area in the manufacture of office copiers for sale here and abroad—has worked closely with its domestic suppliers to improve their ability to supply Xerox with parts and components, based on the principles of quality, cost, and delivery. Xerox also has worked closely with its workers—represented by the Amalgamated Textile & Clothing Workers Union—to improve labor productivity.

Mr. President, it goes without saying that this is an industry where the competition is intense and where all factors affecting price are important. In this regard, my bill would help U.S. manufacturers meet foreign competition and would make maintenance and expansion of their manufacturing operations in the United States more attractive.

The bill is supported by the Computer & Business Equipment Manufacturers Assoc., whose members represent the leading edge of American high technology industries in the computer, business equipment, telecommunication and software sectors. In addition, it is supported by the Amalgamated Clothing Textile Workers Union. Finally, I know of no objections to the bill.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to support the legislation.●

By Mr. CHAFEE (for himself, Mr. ROTH, and Mr. RUDMAN):

S. 2614. A bill to provide for parallel imports in order to provide savings for U.S. consumers; to the Committee on Finance.

PRICE COMPETITIVE PRODUCTS ACT

● Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, American consumers save billions of dollars a year due to the availability of parallel imports, or "gray market" merchandise. These products are threatened by a recent court decision. The legislation I am introducing today is vitally needed in order to maintain consumer access to this merchandise, by clarifying the law with respect to imports of trademarked goods. Joining me as cosponsors of this measure are Senators ROTH and RUDMAN.

Parallel imports are genuine, trademarked articles manufactured abroad and purchased on the world markets by independent American importers. These include such trademarked goods as Japanese cameras, Swiss and Japanese watches, fine foreign perfumes, tires, crystal, electronic goods, and computer chips (semiconductors) which are sold to U.S. consumers at discounts of 25 to 40 percent less than the identical products. The products are manufactured in the same plants, but imported and sold through different channels at vastly different prices.

There are two routes by which genuine trademarked goods are brought to U.S consumers: through a "U.S. authorized distributor" owned or controlled by the foreign manufacturer, or through independent U.S. importers who purchase the goods from foreign authorized distributors. Other than price, the products are identical.

For many decades, some overseas manufacturers have been setting up subsidiary companies in the United States, which they own and direct. The foreign firms designate their American subsidiaries as the exclusive importers and distributors of their trademarked perfumes, watches, cameras, and other such products in this country.

The foreign firms see the United States as a wealthy market where they can demand—and get—higher prices for their goods than anywhere else in the world. They set prices on the goods higher here than they do overseas, often by as much as 30 to 40 percent.

For many years, Treasury Department regulations have permitted independent American importers to compete with foreign-owned importers. The American independents, often small businesses, buy these popular products overseas on the open market at the lower "world" price. The independents can then pay to ship them back to the United States, pay U.S. customs duties, and still sell them to retailers for 30 to 40 percent less than the manufacturers' own distributors are charging for the same products.

This huge price difference has led to the enormous growth of "price competitive" retail stores and catalog/showroom businesses, which buy their goods from the independent importers. Such stores—from large chain stores to individual "mon and pop" neighborhood stores—sell upward of $100 billion worth of goods each year, employ hundreds of thousands of employees and also make an enormous investment in the good will of trademarks through their widespread advertising and marketing of paralled imports. All in all, then, they make a very valuable contribution to our economy. Price-conscious Americans who shop at these stores may be saving billions of dollars annually.

The difference in prices is quite remarkable. A Seiko watch, for example, which is sold for $200 by an "authorized dealer," may be sold for $120 or $140 by a discount retailer who buys from independent importers. Similar savings can be made on imported perfumes. Here are some examples of very popular brands: Two ounces of Chloe Toilet Water—authorized dealer price $22.50, parallel importer price $13.99. Anais Anais/Cacharel—authorized dealer price for 1.7 ounces is $18.00, but $11.99 on the gray market. Opium perfume, which is sold to authorized U.S. dealers at $96 per ounce, can be bought retail in Paris by an independent importer, shipped to the United States and duty paid, all for $69—still far less than U.S. wholesale price.

The same price savings can be made on camera purchases. Here are a few examples: an Olympus camera which sells for $290 at American discount stores cost $325 when bought from the authorized distributor. The price comparisons for a Nikon motor drive is $156 versus $230, a Minolta camera $150 versus $189. Even Dom Perignon Champagne can be purchased at a discount: $40 versus $60.

If we eliminate the paralled market, U.S. consumers will really suffer, being forced to pay up to 40 percent more, billions of dollars per year for consumer products, and product availability will be limited only to those major metropolitan areas where exclusive "authorized" stores choose to locate.

Let me make it very clear that paralled imports are not counterfeit goods or cheap imitations of brand name, trademarked goods. They are genuine goods, manufactured by the trademark holder and they do not displace American manufacturing jobs. Some authorized distributors say they are being unfairly treated and injured by unauthorized competition, but this overlooks their real complaint, namely the high prices charged to American distributors by foreign manufactures.

Most courts have upheld the longstanding customs regulations against the attacks of the authorized distributors. However, a recent decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, COPIAT versus United States (May 6, 1986), struck down these regulations on the basis of a narrow reading of the legislative history behind section 526 of the Tariff Acts of 1922 and 1930. The court explicitly acknowledged that consumer and other benefits would be lost, but stated that these arguments should more properly be addressed to Congress.

The COPIAT decision is in conflict with decisions of two other Federal circuit courts of appeal: the court of appeals for the Federal circuit last year in Vivitar versus United States, which the Supreme Court declined to review, and the Second Circuit Court of Appeals on June 9, 1986, in Olympus versus United States. Rehearing of the COPIAT decision will be sought, as well as Supreme Court review, but this process could take years and leave the matter highly uncertain in the interim. If the regulations were ultimately struck down, parallel importers, which are small businesses whose trade necessarily requires long lead time, could be bankrupted before Congress could act.

As a result, positive legislation is urgently needed now. The legislation which I introduce today makes clear current congressional intent in favor of parallel importation and avoids leaving it to the Supreme Court to divine what congressional intent was more than 50 years ago. The legislation protects parallel importation and consumer savings in two ways.

First, it adds to section 526 a new subsection (f) which enacts into law the current customs regulations and the 50-year-old policy allowing parallel importation of genuine, trademarked articles in the case where related parties own the trademarks here and abroad. Second, my bill settles the issue the same way in trademark infringement suits, most of which have followed the customs regulations, by making clear that the Lanham Trademark Act of 1946 does not restrict the importation or sale of foreign-made articles bearing a genuine trademark.

Parallel markets are legal in Japan, France, Germany, and in every other country which is a major American trading partner. It would be entirely inappropriate for the U.S. Government to provide protection to foreign manufacturers whose own governments do not provide comparable protection for discriminatory pricing by American manufacturers.

Finally, contrary to the foreign manufacturers' claims, there are no warranty or other consumer "deception" problems with parallel imports. The Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act requires manufacturers of consumer products sold in the United States to honor the written warranties they provide with their products unless they explicitly disclaim those warranties in writing. The purchaser of a parallel import can also look to the discount retailer from whom he purchased the product for warranty service, under the extensive network of existing Federal, State, and municipal consumer protection laws and agencies, as well as private sector consumer "hotlines." In fact, most discount retailers offer even more extensive warranties than the manufacturers. Sales of parallel imports would not continue to rise year after year if consumers were being deceived or confused by buying from price-competitive sources.

Mr. President, I ask that the text of the bill be printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2614

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Price Competitive Products Act of 1986".

SEC. 2. Section 526 of the Tariff Act of 1930 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(f)(1) Nothing in this section shall restrict the importation or sale of foreign-made articles bearing a trademark or trade name identical with one owned and registered by a citizen of the United States or a corporation or association created or organized within the United States when—

"(A) both the foreign and the United States trademark or trade name are owned by the same person or business entity;

"(B) the foreign and domestic trademark or trade name owners are parent and subsidiary companies or are otherwise subject to common ownership or control; or

"(C) the articles of foreign manufacture hear a recorded trademark or trade name applied under authorization of the United States owner.

"(2) As used in paragraph (1), the term—

"(A) 'common ownership' means individual or aggregate ownership of more than 50 percent of the business entity; and

"(B) 'common control' means effective control in policy and operations and is not necessarily synonymous with common ownership.".

SEC. 3. Section 42 of the Act of July 5, 1946 (15 U.S.C. 1124), known as the Lanham Trademark Act, is amended by—

(1) inserting "(a)" before "Except"; and

(2) adding at the end thereof the following:

"(b)(1) Nothing in this section shall restrict the importation or sale of foreign-made articles bearing a trademark or trade name identical with one owned and registered by a citizen of the United States or a corporation or association created or organized within the United States when—

"(A) both the foreign and the United States trademark or trade name are owned by the same person or business entity;

"(B) the foreign and domestic trademark or trade name owners are parent and subsidiary companies or are otherwise subject to common ownership or control; or

"(C) the articles of foreign manufacture bear a recorded trademark or trade name applied under authorization of the United States owner.

"(2) As used in paragraph (1), the term—

"(A) 'common ownership' means individual or aggregate ownership of more than 50 percent of the business entity; and

"(B) 'common control' means effective control in policy and operations and is not necessarily synonymous with common ownership.".●

By Mr. RIEGLE:

S. 2617. A bill to establish within the Department of Agriculture an Office of Emergency Aid for Farm Families to provide grants to States for emergency services to farm families, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Government Affairs.

FAMILY FARM EMERGENCY PROTECTION ACT

● Mr. RIEGLE. Mr. President today, I am introducing the Farm Family Emergency Protection Act of 1986. This legislation is designed to meet a problem that I have encountered in Michigan, and which I believe is occurring throughout the Nation.

There is truly a farm crisis, and there are few signs that it will ease in the near future. Commodity prices are low and will remain so for the rest of the year; there are no indications that foreign trade is increasing to a level that will improve the overall agricultural economy, and the human costs of bankruptcy and foreclosure grow daily.

Farmers are in many cases ineligible to receive assistance from many of the programs which are available to workers in other industries. Farmers do not ordinarily receive unemployment compensation. Aid to Families with Dependent Children is sometimes difficult, if not impossible, to receive due to asset limitations, or deprivation requirements. Most importantly, medical insurance is usually canceled or lapses, and families must either forego medical care or rely entirely upon charity.

The legislation that I have introduced would authorize $15,000,000 to provide limited, but vital assistance to eligible farm families for medical assistance, under the Medicaid Program; cash assistance under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Program; moving and relocation assistance, and job counseling and training.

Mr. President, many families have already seen their lives disrupted by the farm crisis. Bankruptcies and foreclosures are continuing, and I am certain that they will increase. The debate accompanying the 1985 farm bill revealed that thousands of farmers will leave farming in the next 5 years, it is virtually inevitable, and there are few, if any, programs available to ease the real hardships that bankruptcy and foreclosure represent. The hardship imposed by the farm crisis extends to all of rural America. Entire communities are disrupted, stores close, additional jobs are lost, and there is no immediate end in sight.

The legislation that I am introducing will provide a small measure of relief to farmers and their families, and will be a step toward reducing the human cost that is behind the bleak statistics showing the decline of the agricultural economy. I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the legislation be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2617

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Farm Family Emergency Protection Act of 1986".

SEC. 2. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this Act, unless the context requires otherwise:

(1) DIRECTOR.—The term "Director" means the Director of the Office appointed under section 4(b)(1).

(2) OFFICE.—The term "Office" means the Office of Emergency Aid for Farm Families established under section 4(a).

(3) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Agriculture.

(4) STATE.—The term "State" means each of the 50 States.

(5) STATE AGENCY.—The term "State agency" means the agency of the government of a State that has the responsibility for the administration of the State plan submitted under section 9 in the State.

SEC. 3. ELIGIBILITY.

(a) CRITERIA.—To be eligible to receive emergency services under this Act, a person must—

(1) be a farmer or rancher who is—

(A) engaged primarily and directly in farming or ranching in a State;

(B) a citizen of the United States;

(C) an owner or operator of not larger than a family farm or ranch; and

(D) in a state of economic crisis because the farmer or rancher has—

(i) declared bankruptcy; or

(ii) been forced to liquidate property as the result of foreclosure on a loan, mortgage, or lien; or

(2) a member of the family of a farmer or rancher described in paragraph (1) who is related by blood or marriage to the farmer or rancher and who resides with the farmer or rancher.

(b) DURATION.—A person described in subsection (a) shall be eligible to continue to receive emergency services under this Act until the date that is 36 months after the date the farmer or rancher, or a member of the family of the farmer or borrower, first received services under this Act.

SEC. 4. OFFICE OF EMERGENCY AID TO FARM FAMILIES.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established within the Department of Agriculture the Office of Emergency Aid for Farm Families.

(b) DIRECTOR.—

(1) APPOINTMENT.—The Office shall be headed by a Director of the Office of Emergency Aid for Farm Families, who shall be appointed by, and under the direction and supervision of, the Secretary.

(2) LEVEL V CLASSIFICATION.—Section 5316 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new item:

"Director of the Office of Emergency Aid for Farm Families, Department of Agriculture".

(c) FUNCTIONS.—It shall be the function of the Office to—

(1) evaluate and approve or disapprove plans of operations submitted by States under section 9 for providing emergency services to eligible farm families;

(2) allocate funds and make payments to State agencies for emergency services to eligible farm families in accordance with this Act;

(3) coordinate emergency services provided to eligible farm families under this Act with other assistance provided to the families to avoid duplication;

(4) maintain records, and provide an annual report to Congress, on the demand for emergency services under this Act and the administration of this Act; and

(5) perform such other functions as are necessary to carry out this Act.

SEC. 5. AUTHORIZATION FOR APPROPRIATIONS.

Subject to section 11, for the purpose of making allotments to States to carry out the activities described in sections 8 and 9, there are authorized to be appropriated $15,000,000 for each fiscal year.

SEC. 6. ALLOTMENTS.

From the amounts appropriated under section 5 for each fiscal year, the Director shall allot to each State that demonstrates to the Director a need for such allotment an amount that bears the same ratio to the total amount appropriated under such section for such fiscal year as the number of farms in the State (as measured by the latest census of agriculture published by the Secretary of Commerce) bears to the number of farms in all States that demonstrate to the Director a need for such allotments.

SEC. 7. PAYMENTS UNDER ALLOTMENTS TO STATES.

The Director shall make payments, as provided by section 6503(a) of title 31, United States Code, to each State from its allotments under section 6 from funds appropriated under section 5.

SEC. 8. USE OF ALLOTMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Amounts paid to a State under section 7 from its allotments shall be used to provide emergency services to eligible farm families in accordance with this section.

(b) MEDICAL ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), a State agency shall provide to an eligible farm family medical assistance of the type described in section 1905(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396d(a)) for medical expenses incurred by the family for which the family does not otherwise receive reimbursement.

(2) FULL FEDERAL FUNDING.—Notwithstanding section 1905(b) of such Act, the Federal medical assistance percentage for medical assistance provided under paragraph (1) shall be 100 percent.

(c) SOCIAL SERVICES.—

(1) CASH ASSISTANCE.—If an eligible farm family is headed by a farmer or rancher who is not otherwise employed, a State agency shall provide to the family cash assistance in an amount that is equivalent to the amount of aid provided under the State plan approved under the aid to families with dependent children program established under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.).

(2) HOME ENERGY ASSISTANCE.—A State agency shall provide to an eligible farm family home energy assistance that is similar to assistance provided under the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Act of 1981 (42 U.S.C. 8601 et seq.).

(3) HOUSING ASSISTANCE.—

(A) MOVING EXPENSES.—If an eligible farm family is required to sell or liquidate the primary residence of the family as the result of an economic crisis referred to in section 3(a)(1)(D), a State agency shall reimburse the family in an amount not to exceed $1,000 for any moving or relocation expenses incurred by the family as the result of the crisis.

(B) RENTAL EXPENSES.—A State agency may provide a family described in subparagraph (A) with an additional subsidy for rental expenses incurred by the family as the result of the crisis.

(4) FAMILY SERVICES.—A State agency may establish centers to provide to eligible farm families professional, self-help, or other forms of—

(A) stress management assistance;

(B) family financial planning assistance; and

(C) educational counseling.

(d) EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A State agency shall offer to an eligible farm family—

(A) employment counseling;

(B) job search assistance;

(C) day care for a preschool child; and

(D) before and after school care for a child below the age of 13.

(2) JOB SKILLS TRAINING.—A State agency may establish a program to provide job skills training to eligible farm families.

(e) NUTRITION ASSISTANCE.—A State agency shall conduct outreach activities to inform eligible farm families of the availability of nutritional assistance under Federal, State, and local nutritional programs such as—

(1) the food stamp program established under the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2011 et seq.) (including the availability of expedited coupon issuance to eligible households described in section 11(e)(9) of such Act (7 U.S.C. 2020(e)(9));

(2) the school lunch and school breakfast programs established under the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1751 et seq.) and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1771 et seq.), respectively;

(3) the summer food service program for children established under section 13 of the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1761);

(4) the special supplemental food program for women, infants, and children established under section 17 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1786); and

(5) the temporary emergency food assistance program established under the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Act of 1983 (7 U.S.C. 612c note).

SEC. 9. STATE PLANS.

(a) REQUIREMENT.—To be eligible to receive an allotment under section 6, a State must submit for approval by the Director an annual plan of operation specifying the manner in which the grant will be used to provide emergency services to eligible farm families in accordance with this Act.

(b) COMPONENTS.—A State plan of operation required under subsection (a) shall—

(1) designate an agency of State government as the State agency responsible for the administration of the plan in the State;

(2) provide emergency services to eligible farm families in accordance with section 8;

(3) establish an outreach program for providing emergency services to eligible farm families; and

(4) contain such other provisions as are determined appropriate by the Director.

SEC. 10. REGULATIONS.

The Secretary shall issue such regulations as are necessary to carry out this Act.

SEC. 11. TERMINATION DATE.

The authority provided under this Act shall terminate 5 years after the date of enactment of this Act.●

By Mr. DANFORTH (for himself, Mr. MOYNIHAN, and Mr. EAGLETON):

S. 2618. A bill to amend the Tariff Schedules of the United States to change the classification of certain prefabricated bitumen roofing membranes; to the Committee on Finance.

TARIFF CLASSIFICATION OF CERTAIN PREFABRICATED BITUMEN ROOFING MEMBRANE

● Mr. DANFORTH. Mr. President, today I am introducing with Senators MOYNIHAN and EAGLETON legislation to change the tariff classification of prefabricated modified asphalt roofing materials. Although the principal components of this product are asphalt, oil, polyethylene, and synthetic rubber, the Customs Service recently ruled that it should be classified as a textile since a very small amount of fabric is used to reinforce the product.

The Customs decision results in a duty rate of 50 percent, effectively barring imports of the product. This legislation would amend the Tariff Schedules of the United States to create a new classification for modified bitumen roofing membrane identical to that for automobile tires, which is an analogous product. To be eligible for this tariff rate, however, the textile reinforcing component of the product would have to be manufactured in the United States.

Mr. President, this seems to me to be a reasonable solution to the problem. I look forward to receiving comment on the bill from the domestic roofing materials industry and other interested parties.●

● Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, today I join Senators DANFORTH and EAGLETON in introducing legislation to remedy an apparent misclassification by the Customs Service of a prefabricated bitumen roofing product that contains a scrim membrane.

The Customs Department has apparently chosen to classify this material as a textile, because of its scrim content, even though scrim comprises only about 3 percent of its content.

Mr. President, the scrim under question is made by Bayex, in Albion, NY, and then exported for use as an input into the product this legislation seeks to address.

By creating a new tariff number, and allowing this prefabricated bitumen to enter with a lower duty—if its reinforcement medium is of 100 percent U.S. manufacture—we would be aiding this New York textile company, and others like it who, in an effort to readjust to current market conditions, have had to search for additional markets abroad.●

By Mr. McCLURE (for himself and Mr. SYMMS):

S. 2635. A bill to protect the integrity and quality of certain reaches of the Henry's Fork of the Snake River, ID, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

HENRY'S FORK OF THE SNAKE RIVER PROTECTION ACT

● Mr. McCLURE. Mr. President, today Senator SYMMS and I are introducing legislation designed to protect, from future hydroelectric development, approximately 60.9 miles of the Henry's Fork of the Snake River in Idaho. The Henry's Fork of the Snake River has long been recognized as possessing outstanding natural, scenic and recreational values.

Our effort, in introducing this legislation, is not to add another layer of government management to this river, but rather to preserve the status quo. During extensive discussions with a wide variety of interest groups and during our personal inspection of the entire river, it is obvious that a great majority of those people concerned want this river to remain in its present ownership status, with current management practices to continue by private property owners in the area, by local government entities, by the Forest Service, and by the State of Idaho.

What makes this legislation necessary, at this time, is the threat of hydroelectric development on the river at other than existing impoundments. Several hydroelectric projects have been proposed to this date, all but one would require some type of new impoundment structure. One of the proposed hydroelectric developments would utilize an existing Bureau of Reclamation dam at Island Park Reservoir.

This legislation would allow, under existing requirements of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the one hydroelectric application of the Raft River Rural Electric Coop to proceed, providing FERC also determines that "significant and permanent alternation of streamflow, habitat, water temperature and quality will not occur as a result of the project."

Development of this project, at the existing Island Park Dam, is widely supported by area residents, ratepayers, and by many concerned environmentalists, providing there is no alternation of the quality of the river. It would appear that the project applicants can and are willing to meet those standards, and therefore this legislation would allow that specific project to proceed.

Mr. President, the Henry's Fork of the Snake River actually has two origins. Officially the river begins at the outlet of Henry's Lake. However, a significant tributary of the river begins at Big Springs, a natural wonder in itself. At Big Springs, crystal clear water, always at 58 degrees Farenheit despite atmospheric temperatures, gushes from several springs at the base of a low conifer-covered hill. Gigantic rainbow trout patrol the quiet waters below the bridge at the springs, waiting for food to be tossed into the water by recreation visitors. In contrast to the tranquility of the Big Springs and the associated broad, shallow, slow moving river with its scenic marshes, meadows and moose, is the Henry's Fork Canyon. Here, the river has entrenched itself into a well-defined canyon. Conifer-covered slopes are steep and cliffy. Two spectacular waterfalls occur in the canyon. Upper Mesa Falls is 106 feet high and cascades in a single sheet over the vertical rock face. Lower Mesa Falls is 70 feet high and multileveled. The river funnels into a narrow channel as it churns and boils down the terraced chute to the river below.

The Henry's Fork has an international reputation as one of the best fishing streams in the United States. Trumpeter swans winter on the river at Harriman State Park. The entire segment is essential bald eagle habitat.

In general terms, the Henry's Fork of the Snake River flows southward within the boundaries of the Targhee National Forest in southeastern Idaho, just west of Yellowstone National Park. Land ownership along the river is a mixture of predominantly national forest, State, and private. There are several existing shoreline developments along the river, and two hydroelectric power projects are currently in operation. About 7 miles of the river flows through Harriman State Park.

Existing uses include fishing, float boating, camping, and sightseeing. Fly fishermen claim that the river is the finest stream in the country for large rainbow trout. River waters are entirely appropriated by the Fremont-Madison Irrigation District.

There has been significant summer home development in the area, including resorts and lodges. The Henry's Fork of the Snake River is the dominant feature of what is known as the Island Park area, and the entire area is widely used by recreationists from nearby communities, and by many millions of visitors traveling through, on their way to and from the West Entrance to Yellowstone National Park. Additionally, snowmobiling and cross-country skiing have become dominant winter activities, making the area a year-round haven for recreationists.

Mr. President, legislation has passed the House of Representatives which would designate a portion of the Henry's Fork of the Snake River in a study for Federal Wild and Scenic River status. The approach Senator SYMMS and I take with this legislation is important for two primary reasons:

First, our legislation encompasses a longer stretch of the Henry's Fork, including that section of the tributary originating at Big Springs.

Second, there is no need for Federal Wild and Scenic River designation which would only add another layer of Federal regulation to an area which is currently being managed by the Forest Service, by the State of Idaho, and by local government entities to nearly universal satisfaction. In short, those who care about the future of the Henry's Fork want it left the way it is. They do not want future hydroelectric development which might alter the river from its present course, but they likewise do not want all of the restrictions imposed by Wild and Scenic River designation.

This legislation will accomplish these two goals. It will protect a magnificent river, a river whose primary and best use is that of recreation. It will continue the traditional mix of Federal, State, and local management of the area which has proven so successful throughout the years.

Finally, Mr. President, I want to thank the many citizens of Southeastern Idaho and those from around the Nation who care very deeply about the Henry's Fork. Particularly the members of the Henry's Fork Foundation, an organization which has contributed much to the enhancement, preservation, and general public enjoyment of this river. Members of this organization, along with many others, have helped us in our efforts to structure this legislation. Their dedication contributed much to the many thousands and millions of recreationists who visit the area each year.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the bill be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2635

Be it enacted by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled,

SHORT TITLE

SECTION 1. This Act may be cited as the "Henry's Fork of the Snake River Protection of 1986".

GRANTING OF FERC LICENSES AND PERMITS

SEC. 2. Except as set forth in Section 3 of this Act, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission [FERC] is prohibited from taking any action, other than denial, on any application for a license, preliminary permit, or exemption or any further action on an issued preliminary permit pursuant to sections 4(e), 4(f), and 30 of the Federal Power Act, as amended (16 U.S.C. 797 (e-f), and 823), for any project proposed to be sited on or adjacent to that portion of Henry's Fork of the Snake River, Idaho (including that segment originating at Big Springs), or its tributaries within one-half mile of their confluence with Henry's Fork of the Snake River, from its point of origin at Henry's Lake, Idaho, to the point of its confluence with the backwaters of Ashton Reservoir, Idaho.

SEC. 3. The prohibition in section 2 of this Act shall not apply to the application for license filed for the Island Park Dam hydropower project (FERC project number 2973): Provided, That such license may be approved only if FERC determines that significant and permanent alteration of streamflow, habitat, water temperature and quality will not occur as a result of the project.

SEC. 4. (a) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as authorizing (either expressed or implied) the appropriation or reservation of water by any Federal, State, or local agency, Indian tribe, or any other entity or individual. Nor shall any provision of this Act (1) affect the rights or jurisdictions of the United States, the States, Indian tribes, or other entities over waters of any river or stream or over any ground water resource, (2) alter, amend, repeal, interpret, modify, or be in conflict with any interstate compact made by the States, (3) be construed to alter or establish the respective rights of States, the United States, Indian tribes, or any person with respect to any water or water-related right, or (4) otherwise be construed to affect the validity of any existing license, permit, or certificate (other than as set forth in section 2) issued by any Federal agency pursuant to any other Federal law.

(b) With respect to this Act, no other provision of any other Federal law shall be construed as authorizing the implied appropriation or reservation of water by any Federal agency.●

By Mr. LONG:

S. 2637. A bill relating to the application of the drawback provisions of section 313 of the Tariff Act of 1930 to certain imports of cane sugar; to the Committee on Finance.

SUGAR DRAWBACK EXTENSION LEGISLATION

● Mr. LONG. Mr. President, today I am introducing a bill identical except for technical corrections to H.R. 4563. This bill would allow the drawback of import duties paid on raw sugar imported from November 1, 1977 until March 31, 1985, provided that the export of refined sugar or sugar-containing products occurs before October 1, 1991.

The purpose of the bill is to assure that U.S. cane sugar refiners can continue to export refined sugar by carrying back the privilege to recover drawback. But for this legislation, sugar refineries in Louisiana and other States will close. These refineries process our domestic cane crop as well as producing 500,000 tons per year of exportable refined sugar.

Drawback means the refund of previously paid import duties and other fees. Drawback is a traditional and internationally-accepted practice all countries use. The idea is that so long as an imported product is used for the purpose of making a product that will be exported, or is itself reexported, then U.S. duties that have been paid should be refunded on the exported product, less 1 percent. This is much the same philosophy as the policy of other governments which refund value added taxes and other consumption taxes on products made in those countries and subsequently exported. Under current law, drawback privileges can only be exercised for a limited period of time.

The use of drawback is the only way U.S. sugar refiners can be competitive today. U.S. cane sugar refiners are to a great extent dependent on imported raw sugar, which is not subject to quotas under our agricultural price support programs if the imported sugar is processed and reexported as refined sugar. However, over the last few years, the European Economic Community has been subsidizing the export of refined sugar. The Community produces only refined sugar, since it grows beets, not sugar cane. The result has been that the natural difference in world prices between refined sugar and raw sugar has diminished almost to the point of disappearing, making it uneconomic for U.S. sugar refiners to engage in this export business without access to unused drawback that is not available under current law because the statutory time period has expired.

Under this bill, U.S. refiners would be privileged to carry forward drawback for years in which the drawback was not used. I am informed that the estimated annual drawback claims under the bill would amount to about $53 million.●

By Mr. DECONCINI:

S.J. Res. 370. Joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States regarding judges appointed pursuant to Article III; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT ON JUDGES

Mr. DECONCINI. Mr. President, I am introducing today a Senate joint resolution that proposes a constitutional amendment on the subject of the discipline of Federal judges.

Section 1 of the amendment would provide that a Federal judge appointed pursuant to article III of the Constitution shall, upon conviction for a felony and exhaustion of all appeals, forfeit office and all benefits thereof.

Section 2 specifically gives the Congress the power to legislatively set standards and guidelines by which the Supreme Court may discipline judges appointed pursuant to article III who have brought disrepute on the Federal courts or the administration of justice by those courts. The section specifically provides that the discipline authorized by Congress and the Supreme Court may include removal from office or diminution of compensation. I believe this legislation is required to maintain the high expectations of integrity and impartiality of the judiciary that the citizens of the Nation have every right to expect.

Under the present state of the law, it is questionable if there are any teeth to sink into a judge who has violated his oath of office through his or her actions while serving on the bench. In 1980 the Congress adopted public law 96-458, the Judicial Tenure and Disability Act. This act has been largely ignored by the Federal judiciary. In deed, they have not even come up with rules and guidelines for the conduct of their operations. Nothing in 5 years. The blame for this must rest squarely with the judges of the courts of appeals. I can only urge them to act quickly and responsibly.

However, even when these judges finally do get around to setting their guidelines, I have no expectation that anything will come of it by way of investigating instances of alleged judicial misconduct and then bringing the matter to head. The record of the past 5 years—a record of inactivity—speaks for itself.

The impetus for this resolution clearly stems from the stunning state of events that surround Federal District Court Judge Harry Claiborne of Nevada. This judge was indicted for bribery, perjury, and income tax evasion in 1983. He was convicted in August of 1984 on the tax charges. Since 1983, he has continued on the Federal bench, receiving pay, but hearing no cases. Even after all direct appeals were exhausted and he entered a Federal prison, he has refused to resign from the bench. Section 1 of the resolution would preclude this unseemly chain of events from happening again in the future.

Section 2 of the bill is designed to place teeth into judicial discipline. Under Public Law 96-458, the courts can discipline errant judges in modest ways such as public or private censure, temporary removal of caseload, and reporting findings of their investigations to the House of Representatives for possible use in an impeachment. Even these modest disciplinary actions have not been used to date. The resolution would permit Congress to set standards and guidelines by which the Supreme Court may discipline Federal judges. Congress sets the outlines of the disciplinary process, but we would leave it to the courts to implement. I believe that by proceeding in this fashion we give the Supreme Court all the tools it needs to conduct the affairs of the judicial branch in a manner that will assure that a judge who brings the judiciary into disrepute or who brings into disrepute the administration of justice by the courts will be punished. At the same time, by making the Supreme Court the disciplinary body, we will maintain the independence of the judicial branch to the greatest degree possible. It will be judges judging judges, but under guidelines as set by the policymaking branch of Government, the legislature.

The section also makes clear that the discipline that can be meted out includes removal from office and reduction in compensation of an article III judge. The threat of impeachment has been in reality no threat. The last impeachment of a Federal judge was over one-half century ago. We may have that sad opportunity again within the next few months—but the situation should never again be permitted to become so bad with such bad publicity for Federal bench at the cost of the many honorable public servants who serve in the Federal judiciary. With a process in place that might have a realistic opportunity of providing for swift and sure justice for judges who have brought the judiciary into disrepute, I hope to make Federal judges think twice before engaging in such activity.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the joint resolution be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the joint resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. J. RES. 370

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following article is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution if ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years after the date of its submission by the Congress:

"ARTICLE ——

"SECTION 1. A judge appointed pursuant to Article III shall, upon conviction of a felony and exhaustion of all direct appeals, forfeit office and benefits thereof.

"SEC. 2. The Congress shall have the power by appropriate legislation to set standards and guidelines by which the Supreme Court may discipline judges appointed pursuant to Article III who bring disrepute on the Federal courts or the administration of justice by the courts. Such discipline may include removal from office and diminution of compensation.".

By Mr. DECONCINI (for himself, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. PELL, Mr. EXON, Mr. METZENBAUM, Mr. SYMMS, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mr. D'AMATO, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. HEINZ, Mr. LONG, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. HATCH, Mr. KERRY, Mr. DODD, Mr. RIEGLE, Mr. WILSON, and Mr. DOLE):

S.J. Res. 371. Joint resolution to designate August 1, 1986, as "Helsinki Human Rights Day"; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

HELSINKI HUMAN RIGHTS DAY

Mr. DECONCINI. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce today with many of my colleagues a joint resolution that authorizes and requests the President of the United States to designate August 1, 1986, as "Helsinki Human Rights Day."

Eleven years ago, on August 1, 1975, representatives from 35 countries joined together in signing the Final Act of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, often referred to as the Helsinki accords.

In agreeing to the Helsinki accords, the signatory nations have acknowledged their adherence to the principles of freedom. Not, perhaps, to the sophisticated modes of parliamentary democracy, but to the basic rights of citizens to emigrate, to be reunited with their families and to enjoy at least the minimal respect of their government of their individuality and personal worth.

Unfortunately, several signatory nations have not adhered to the human rights and humanitarian standards of this agreement. The Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, the German Democratic Republic, Hungary, Poland, and Romania, have violated their commitments to the Helsinki accords; they have denied individuals their inherent rights to freedom of religion, thought, conscience, and belief, and they have restricted the movement of people, ideas, and information.

By proclaiming August 1, 1986, the 11th anniversary of the signing of the Helsinki accords, as "Helsinki Human Rights Day," we are reaffirming our commitment to the principles upon which our own democracy was founded. We are sending a message to the signatory nations, particularly the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, that we expect them to live up to their international agreements.

I urge each Member of this body to support this resolution, and I ask unanimous consent that the text be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the joint resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. J. RES. 371

Whereas August 1, 1986, will be the eleventh anniversary of the signing of the Final Act of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (hereafter in this preamble referred to as the "Helsinki Accords");

Whereas on August 1, 1975, the Helsinki Accords were agreed to by the Governments of Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Cyprus, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, France, the German Democratic Republic, the Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, the Holy See, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malta, Monaco, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Romania, San Marino, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom, the United States of America, and Yugoslavia;

Whereas the Helsinki Accords express the commitment of the participating States to "respect human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the freedom of thought, conscience, religion or belief, for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "promote and encourage the effective exercise of civil, political, economic, social, cultural and other rights and freedoms all of which derive from the inherent dignity of the human person and are essential for his free and full development";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "recognize and respect the freedom of the individual to profess and practise, alone or in community with others, religion or belief acting in accordance with the dictates of his own conscience";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States in whose territory national minorities exist to "respect the right of persons belonging to such minorities to equality before the law" and that such States "will afford them the full opportunity for the actual enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms and will, in this manner, protect their legitimate interests in this sphere";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "recognize the universal significance of human rights and fundamental freedoms, respect for which is an essential factor for the peace, justice and well-being necessary to ensure the development of friendly relations and cooperation among themselves as among all States";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "constantly respect these rights and freedoms in their mutual relations" and that such States "will endeavor jointly and separately, including in cooperation with the United Nations, to promote universal and effective respect for them";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "confirm the right of the individual to know and act upon his rights and duties in this field";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States in the field of human rights and fundamental freedoms to "act in conformity with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights" and to "fulfill their obligations as set forth in the international declarations and agreements in this field, including inter alia the International Covenants on Human Rights, by which they may be bound";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "facilitate freer movement and contacts, individually and collectively, whether privately or officially, among persons, institutions and organizations of the participating States, and to contribute to the solution of the humanitarian problems that arise in that connection";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "favorably consider applications for travel with the purpose of allowing persons to enter or leave their territory temporarily, and on a regular basis if desired, in order to visit members of their families";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "deal in a positive and humanitarian spirit with the applications of persons who wish to be reunited with members of their family" and "to deal with applications in this field as expeditiously as possible";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "examine favorably and on the basis of humanitarian considerations requests for exit or entry permits from persons who have decided to marry a citizen from another participating State";

Whereas the Helsinki Accords also express the commitment of the participating States to "facilitate wider travel by their citizens for personal or professional reasons";

Whereas the Governments of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, the German Democratic Republic, Hungary, Poland, and Romania, in agreeing to the Helsinki Accords, have acknowledged an adherence to the principles of human rights and fundamental freedoms as embodied in the Helsinki Accords;

Whereas the aforementioned Governments have violated their commitments to the Helsinki Accords by denying individuals their inherent rights to freedom of religion, thought, conscience, and belief;

Whereas the aforementioned Governments have violated their commitments to the Helsinki Accords by restricting the freer movement of people, ideas, and information;

Whereas the concluding document of the Madrid Review Conference of September 9, 1983, called for the Ottawa Human Rights Experts Meeting, the Budapest Cultural Forum, and the Bern Human Contacts Experts Meeting to discuss questions concerning respect for human rights and cooperation in humanitarian fields as embodied in the Helsinki Accords;

Whereas these meetings, which were attended by representatives from all the signatory States, presented important opportunities to address issues of compliance with the human rights and humanitarian provisions of the Helsinki Accords; and

Whereas in November 1986 representatives from the signatory States will be meeting in Vienna to review implementation of the Helsinki Accords, including the human rights and humanitarian provisions: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That—

(1) August 1, 1986, the eleventh anniversary of the signing of the Helsinki Accords is designated as "Helsinki Human Rights Day";

(2) the President is authorized and requested to issue a proclamation reasserting the American commitment to full implementation of the human rights and humanitarian provisions of the Helsinki Accords, urging all signatory nations to abide by their obligations under the Helsinki Accords, and encouraging the people of the United States to join the President and Congress in observance of Helsinki Human Rights Day with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities;

(3) the President if further requested to continue his efforts to achieve full implementation of the human rights provisions of the Helsinki Accords by raising the issue of noncompliance with the Governments of the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, the German Democratic Republic, Hungary, Poland, and Romania at every available opportunity;

(4) the President is further requested to convey to all signatories of the Helsinki Accords that respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms is a vital element of further progress in the ongoing Helsinki process; and

(5) the President is authorized to convey to allies and friends of the United States that unity on the question of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms is the most effective means to promote the full implementation of the human rights and humanitarian provisions of the Helsinki Accords.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of the Senate is directed to transmit copies of this joint resolution to the President, the Secretary of State, and the Ambassadors of the thirty-four Helsinki signatory nations.

● Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my colleague from Arizona, Senator DECONCINI, in introducing legislation designating August 1, 1986, as "Helsinki Human Rights Day." It has been my privilege to serve with him on the Helsinki Commission. As Chairman of the Commission, I want to acknowledge his tireless efforts to promote human rights and freedom.

August 1, 1986, marks the 11th anniversary of the signing of the Helsinki Final Act. For more than a decade, 35 nations, including the United States, Canada, and every European country with the exception of Albania, have been involved in the Helsinki process. The cornerstone of this process is the Helsinki Final Act.

The Final Act is significant in that it established a standard for behavior against which the actions of the signatory states could be judged. It contains specific commitments to "respect human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the freedoms of thought, conscience, religion or belief, for all without distinction to race, sex, language or religion." Furthermore, the 35 participating states agreed to "promote and encourage the effective exercise of civil, political, economic, social, cultural and other rights and freedoms . . ."

While some states have earnestly attempted to implement the commitments made in Helsinki, the behavior of others has fallen far short of the standard. As President Ford noted when signing the Final Act, "History will judge this conference not by what we say today, but by what we do tomorrow—not only the promises we make but by the promises we keep."

Nobel laureate Dr. Andrei Sakharov has stated, "The whole point of the Helsinki accords is mutual monitoring, not mutual evasion of difficult problems." As a signatory to the Final Act, the United States has a moral obligation to press for full implementation of existing human rights commitments. Today, many individuals continue to be separated from loved ones, denied the right to be reunited with family. Believers are imprisoned and harassed because of their faith. Others are denied the right to their rich cultural heritage. Many who seek to secure their rights are placed in labor camps, internal exile, or confined to psychiatric hospitals. These prisoners of conscience are often subjected to particularly harsh conditions.

Recently I had the pleasure of meeting with two champions of human rights in the Soviet Union, Dr. Elena Bonner and Natan Shcharansky, founding members of the Moscow Helsinki Group. Both have paid dearly for their steadfast dedication to the human rights movement. Bonner is currently serving a sentence of 5 years' internal exile. Shcharansky was released by the Soviets last February after 9 years in the gulag. Appearing before the Commission, Shcharansky testified, "* * * the mistake wasn't in signing the act. The mistake is not to demand that the Soviet Union fulfill its obligations under the Final Act."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the 10 principles agreed to at Helskinki be included in the RECORD at this time.

There being no objection, the principles were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

I. SOVEREIGN EQUALITY, RESPECT FOR THE RIGHTS INHERENT IN SOVEREIGNTY

The participating States will respect each other's sovereign equality and individuality as well as all the rights inherent in and encompassed by its sovereignty, including in particular the right of every State to juridical equality, to territorial integrity and to freedom and political independence. They will also respect each other's right freely to choose and develop its political, social, economic and cultural systems as well as its right to determine its laws and regulations.

Within the framework of international law, all the participating States have equal rights and duties. They will respect each other's right to define and conduct as it wishes its relations with other States in accordance with international law and in the spirit of the present Declaration. They consider that their frontiers can be changed, in accordance with international law, by peaceful means and by agreement. They also have the right to belong or not to belong to international organizations, to be or not to be a party to bilateral or multilateral treaties including the right to be or not to be a party to treaties of alliance; they also have the right to neutrality.

II. REFRAINING FROM THE THREAT OR USE OF FORCE

The participating States will refrain in their mutual relations, as well as in their international relations in general, from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any State, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations and with the present Declaration. No consideration may be invoked to serve to warrant resort to the threat or use of force in contravention of this principle.

Accordingly, the participating States will refrain from any acts constituting a threat of force or direct or indirect use of force against another participating State. Likewise they will refrain from any manifestation of force for the purpose of inducing another participating State to renounce the full exercise of its sovereign rights. Likewise they will also refrain in their mutual relations from any act of reprisal by force.

No such threat or use of force will be employed as a means of settling disputes, or questions likely to give rise to disputes, between them.

III. INVIOLABILITY OF FRONTIERS

The participating States regard as inviolable all one another's frontiers as well as the frontiers of all States in Europe and therefore they will refrain now and in the future from assulting these frontiers.

Accordingly, they will also refrain from any demand for, or act of, seizure and usurpation of part or all of the territory of any participating State.

IV. TERRITORIAL INTEGRITY OF STATES

The participating States will respect the territorial integrity of each of the participating States.

Accordingly, they will refrain from any action inconsistent with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations against the territorial integrity, political independence or the unity of any participating State, and in particular from any such action constituting a threat or use of force.

The participating States will likewise refrain from making each other's territory the object of military occupation or other direct or indirect measures of force in contravention of international law, or the object of acquisition by means of such measures or the threat of them. No such occupation or acquisition will be recognized as legal.

V. PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

The participating States will settle disputes among them by peaceful means in such a manner as not to endanger international peace and security, and justice.

They will endeavour in good faith and a spirit of co-operation to reach a rapid and equitable solution on the basis of international law.

For this purpose they will use such means as negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitation, judicial settlement or other peaceful means of their own choice including any settlement procedure agreed to in advance of disputes to which they are parties.

In the event of failure to reach a solution by any of the above peaceful means, the parties to a dispute will continue to seek a mutually agreed way to settle the dispute peacefully.

Participating States, parties to a dispute among them, as well as other participating States, will refrain from any action which might aggravate the situation to such a degree as to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security and thereby make a peaceful settlement of the dispute more difficult.

VI. NON-INTERVENTION IN INTERNAL AFFAIRS

The participating States will refrain from any intervention, direct or indirect, individuals or collective, in the internal or external affairs falling within the domestic jurisdiction of another participating State, regardless of their mutual relations.

They will accordingly refrain from any form of armed intervention or threat of such intervention against another participating State.

They will likewise in all circumstances refrain from any other act of military, or of political, economic or other coercion designed to subordinate to their own interest the exercise by another participating State of the rights inherent in its sovereignty and thus to secure advantages of any kind.

Accordingly, they will, inter alia, refrain from direct or indirect assistance to terrorist activities, or to subversive or other activities directed towards the violent overthrow of the regime of another articipating State.

VII. RESPECT FOR HUMAN RIGHTS AND FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOMS, INCLUDING THE FREEDOM OF THOUGHT, CONSCIENCE, RELIGION OR BELIEF

The participating States will respect human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the freedom of thought, conscience, religion or belief, for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion.

They will promote and encourage the effective exercise of civil, political, economic, social, cultural and other rights and freedoms all of which derive from the inherent dignity of the human person and are essential for his fee and full development.

Within this framework the participating States will recognize and respect the freedom of the individual to profess and practice, alone or in community with others, religion or belief acting in accordance with the dictates of his own conscience.

The participating States on whose territory national minorities exist will respect the right of persons belonging to such minorities to equality before the law, will afford them the full opportunity for the actual enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms and will, in this manner, protect their legitimate interests in this sphere.

The participating States recognize the universal significance of human rights and fundamental freedoms, respect for which is an essental factor for the peace, justice and well-being necessary to ensure the development of friendly relations and co-operation among themselves as among all States.

They will constantly respect these rights and freedoms in their mutual relations and will endeavour jointly and separately, including in co-operation with the United Nations, to promote universal and effective respect for them.

They confirm the right of the individual to know and act upon his rights and duties in this field.

In the field of human rights and fundamental freedoms, the participating States will act in conformity with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. They will also fulfill their obligations as set forth in the international declarations and agreements in this field, including inter alia the International Covenants on Human Rights, by which they may be bound.

VII. EQUAL RIGHTS AND SELF-DETERMINATION OF PEOPLES

The participating States will respect the equal rights of people and their right to self-determination, acting at all times in conformity with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and with the relevant norms of international law, including those relating to territorial integrity of States.

By virtue of the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, all peoples always have the right, in full freedom, to determine, when and as they wish, their internal and external political status, without external interference, and to pursue as they wish their political, economic, social and cultural development.

The participating States reaffirm the universal significance of respect for and effective exercise of equal rights and self-determination of peoples for the development of friendly relations among themselves as among all States; they also recall the importance of the elimination of any form of violation of this principle.

IX. CO-OPERATION AMONG STATES

The participating States will develop their co-operation with one another and with all States in all fields in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations. In developing their co-operation the participating States will place special emphasis on the fields as set forth within the framework of the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe, with each of them making its contribution in conditions of full equality.

They will endeavour, in developing their co-operation as equals, to promote mutual understanding and confidence, friendly and good-neighbourly relations among themselves, international peace, security and justice. They will equally endeavour, in developing their co-operation, to improve the well-being of peoples and contribute to the fulfillment of their aspirations through, inter alia, the benefits resulting from increased mutual knowledge and from progress and achievement in the economic, scientific, technological, social, cultural and humanitarian fields. They will take steps to promote conditions favourable to making these benefits available to all; they will take into account the interest of all in the narrowing of differences in the levels of economic development, and in particular the interest of developing countries throughout the world.

They confirm that governments, institutions, organizations and persons have a relevant and positive role to play in contributing toward the achievement of these aims of their co-operation.

They will strive, in increasing their co-operation as set forth above, to develop closer relations among themselves on an improved and more enduring basis for the benefit of peoples.

X. FULFILLMENT IN GOOD FAITH OF OBLIGATIONS UNDER INTERNATIONAL LAW

The participating States will fulfill in good faith their obligations under international law, both those obligations arising from the generally recognized principles and rules of international law and those obligations arising from treaties or other agreements, in conformity with international law, to which they are parties.

In exercising their sovereign rights, including the right to determine their laws and regulations, they will conform with their legal obligations under international law; they will furthermore pay due regard to and implement the provisions in the Final Act of the Conference of Security and Co-operation in Europe.

The participating States confirm that in the event of a conflict between the obligations of the members of the United Nations under the Charter of the United Nations and their obligations under any treaty or other international agreement, their obligations under the Charter will prevail, in accordance with Article 103 of the Charter of the United Nations.

